It may be a better basis to consider this on a more open scale, rather than subject to sensitive areas.

Specifically this year in the lead up to the 12th July celebrations I have noticed, particularly in the Mid Ulster area, the display of numerous overhead road displays accompanied by LED lights (red/white/blue), which I presume is being supplied and funded by the council, which i also think is unnecessary.

This could be deemed intimidating, the same way flags and emblems are and I think that this should also be considered.

It is also my view that neither a Palestine or Isreal flag represents the views of anyone in this country enough to justify public display.
