Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the contingency planning into staffing intensive care unit wards in the second and subsequent surges of the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10557/17-22)

Mr Swann: I published the Surge Planning Strategic Framework on 6 October. This set the overarching context for individual Trust surge and winter planning, including that of the Critical Care Network for Northern Ireland (CCaNNI).

CCaNNI continues to oversee and monitor the critical care surge plan and reports daily to the Department. The critical care surge plan provides the ability to flex critical care capacity to a maximum of 158 ICU beds across the region. This plan enables Trusts to work collectively to ensure that critical care capacity is maximised, while making the most of available staffing resources. Within this overarching plan, Trusts take decisions on the need to transfer patients to the Belfast City Hospital Nightingale facility.

It is important to note that the level of staffing required to deliver maximum ICU capacity would be challenging to sustain for anything but a short period and will have a major impact across HSC services, including complex elective surgery. This is why we must all continue to do everything we can to reduce transmission of COVID-19.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health how many residents of care homes have been transferred to hospital due to a condition other than COVID-19 in each week since 13 October 2020.

(AQW 10623/17-22)

Mr Swann: The information requested on the number of care home residents transferred to hospital due to a condition other than COVID-19 for each week since 13 October 2020 is currently not available.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health to detail the most recent waiting times and waiting lists for (i) first outpatient appointments; (ii) diagnostic services; (iii) admission for inpatient treatment; and (iv) cancer services at each Health and Social Care Trust; and how this compares with each of the previous four quarters.

Mr Swann: Outpatient, diagnostic, inpatient and cancer waiting times are reported by my Department on a monthly and quarterly basis. These publications refer to the position at the end of a given month/quarter.

- (i) Outpatient waiting times publications detail how many patients are still waiting for a first consultant led outpatient appointment broken down by HSC Trust, Specialty and length of time waiting. Quarterly National Statistics on Outpatient Waiting Times Information is published at the following link: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/outpatient-waiting-times>
- (ii) Diagnostic waiting times publications detail how many patients are still waiting for a diagnostic test broken down by HSC Trust, type of test and length of time waiting. Quarterly Official Statistics on Diagnostic Waiting Times Information is published at the following link: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/diagnostic-waiting-times>
- (iii) Inpatient waiting times publications detail how many patients are still waiting for an inpatient or day case appointment broken down by HSC Trust, Specialty and length of time waiting. Quarterly National Statistics on Inpatient Waiting Times Information is published at the following link: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/inpatient-waiting-times>
- (iv) Cancer waiting times publications detail how long patients waited for treatment, waited to see a breast cancer consultant and the number of breast cancer referrals broken down by HSC Trust and tumour site. Quarterly National Statistics on Cancer Waiting Times Information is published at the following link:

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/cancer-waiting-times>

Waiting times information is available as downloadable csv files which includes data for the previous four quarters. In addition to the publications mentioned above, provisional monthly waiting times information for Outpatients, Inpatient & Day Case and Cancer are published at the following link: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/interim-waiting-times-reports>

Department for Infrastructure

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the active travel projects her Department is progressing in the Newry and Armagh area.

(AQW 9832/17-22)

Ms Mallon (The Minister for Infrastructure): I am very keen to deliver on projects to get more people to walk and cycle. In June I committed £20million for blue/green infrastructure and to working with all Council areas in identifying and delivering active travel and greenway projects and in September, I announced £3.735million for six greenway projects that would be able to start this financial year.

Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon Borough Council has proposed an extension to the Ulster Canal Greenway, where it stops short of Middletown village, as a greenway project that could commence next year. The Department is also examining options in Middletown village to encourage active travel in advance of the Ulster Canal Greenway, due to complete in 2021.

I would encourage Councils to continue the momentum for delivery of greenways and advance their projects through meaningful local consultation and engagement with landowners. I hope to be in a position to fund further greenway projects in coming years. However, decisions regarding potential funding allocations for any future greenway projects will depend on the budget provided to my Department for 2021/22.

A proposed Puffin crossing at Burren, Co Down will enable safer access to Carrick Primary School and park on the busy Bridge Road. My officials also continue to discuss potential pilot projects for Newry City Centre with officers in Newry, Mourne and Down District Council.

Details of all works programmes, including those in the Newry and Armagh area are compiled on a yearly basis and issued to the relevant Councils. They are then published on the Department's website and are available to view online through the following link:

<https://www.infrastructure-ni.gov.uk/publications>

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the Transport Regulation Unit holding of public inquiries.

(AQW 9833/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Four public inquiries have been scheduled for Thursday 26 and Friday 27 November. Those being called to these hearings have received their call up letters, giving the appropriate statutory notice. Preparation for the outstanding hearings remains ongoing and they are being arranged over the coming months.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure what her Department is doing to deter bicycle theft, such as increasing the provision of secure bike shelters.

(AQW 9834/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I want to ensure that in all transportation interventions my Department includes measures to improve walking and cycling and this includes cycle parking. I want to build infrastructure that makes walking and cycling journeys easier, safer and more convenient to undertake.

My Department has committed funding to councils through the COVID Revitalisation fund and I understand that Newry, Mourne and Down District Council is considering using part of its allocation for cycle shelter provision and maintenance, including roll-out of secure bike stands and maintenance stations across the Council's civic buildings, leisure centres, car parks, parks, greenway and towpath entrance areas.

My Department also provides funding for secure bike shelters and bicycle parking at key locations in discussion with stakeholders such as Translink, PSNI and the Council. I am keen to support the development of other such infrastructure throughout the region.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure what spare sewerage capacity there is in (i) Ballintoy; (ii) Balnamore; (iii) Dunloy; (iv) Loughgiel; and (v) Rasharkin.

Ms Mallon: NI Water has advised me that capacity at the five named wastewater treatment works is as follows:-

- (i) Ballintoy - capacity issues had been identified. However, the upgrade of Ballintoy wastewater treatment works, which is estimated will cost in the region of £3 million, is scheduled for delivery during 2020/21.
- (ii) Balnamore - wastewater capacity is currently available. Wastewater from Balnamore is conveyed to Ballymoney wastewater treatment works, which also serves Bendooragh, Dunaghy, Lislagan.

- (iii) Dunloy - nearing capacity. This wastewater treatment works has been identified as requiring intensive management, by NI Water, through the PC21 period (2021-2027).
- (iv) Loughgiel - wastewater capacity is currently available. No wastewater network or treatment work issues have been identified.
- (v) Rasharkin - wastewater capacity is currently available in the wastewater treatment works. However, NI Water is aware of issues in the associated wastewater network. An upgrade to the wastewater network is not currently prioritised for investment in PC21 (2021-2027).

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the impact of receiving no additional resource funding in the October monitoring round for winter service.

(AQW 9888/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The average cost of providing winter service is £7m but can be as high as £10m in more severe winter conditions.

I have already allocated £3m from the Opening 2020/21 resource baseline budget as a contribution to funding for Winter Service. A recent Covid bidding exercise provided a further £5m funding for Winter Gritting Services but, as you are aware, a further bid for £2m in October Monitoring was unsuccessful.

While we can't predict the weather over the winter period, the funding in place will only deliver winter service for typical weather conditions. If the weather is above winter averages this will present budget difficulties to the department and if considered necessary, a bid for additional funding will be made as part of January Monitoring.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many potholes were recorded for repair on the Gransha Road, Bangor, in each of the last four years.

(AQW 9896/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Details of the number of carriageway defects identified on the Gransha Road, Bangor in each of the last four completed financial years are shown in the table below:

Financial Year	Number of Defects
2017/18	4
2018/19	13
2019/20	14

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many road drainage issues were reported in the North Down area, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 9898/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department allocates funding and manages roads maintenance issues on a council basis rather than by constituency area. Therefore the table below provides details of the number of road drainage related issues for each of the last three completed financial years across all of the Ards and North Down council area:

Financial Year	Number of Road Drainage Issues
2017/18	472
2019/20	674

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the funding that has been allocated to NI Water for the long-term resolution of the sewer flooding issues affecting Christie Park, including underneath Sandelford Bridge, in Coleraine; (ii) how future instances of sewer flooding in this area will be avoided; and (iii) what funding has been allocated for the Northern Ireland-wide PC21 (2021-27) investment programme.

(AQW 9935/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am advised by NI Water that a solution to address the sewer flooding affecting Christie Park is not sufficiently progressed, and therefore there is currently no funding allocated to resolve this issue. Any scheme to address the sewer flooding issue in the Christie Park area, including underneath the Sandelford Bridge, will be subject to sufficient funding, and prioritisation, within the PC21 Investment Programme.

In terms of plans to address future instances of sewer flooding in this area, NI Water has developed a sewer network model to inform a Coleraine Drainage Area Plan (DAP). A high level solution emerging from the model is to upgrade NI Water sewerage infrastructure in the Christie Park area, potentially involving the upsizing of main sewers that run alongside the river and the replacement of the existing Strand Road Wastewater Pumping Station Outline options for inclusion in the Coleraine DAP will be completed in the summer of 2021, with detailed solutions being subject to agreement with the Northern Ireland Environment Agency.

The PC21 process is well underway with the issue of a Draft Determination setting out the Utility Regulator's initial assessment of NI Water's Business Plan and funding requirements over the six-year period from 2021-27. Over the six-year period, the Draft Determination states that approximately £2bn will be invested in water and sewerage services, this compares to funding of £990m for PC15. You will be aware that presently funding can only be allocated on an annual basis, and the process for setting the budget for 2021-22 has not commenced.

It is essential that the appropriate level of funding is provided to NI Water to ensure that these essential services are progressed. NI Water's PC21 investment programme requires a multi-year budget settlement to provide medium term certainty and to enable greater capital efficiencies. I am working collaboratively with Executive colleagues to raise awareness of this need and to secure this important investment in our water and sewerage infrastructure.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) her Department's position in relation to their response to the Energy Management Strategy and Action Plan, as published in June 2019; and (ii) what measures she has taken to ensure her Department fully meets the targets set down within the strategy.

Ms Mallon: My department is fully committed to meeting the targets outlined in the Energy Management Strategy and Action Plan.

NI Water's goal is to fully exploit innovative approaches to energy and new technology to reduce their carbon footprint and ultimately become carbon neutral. This will be achieved through a wide range of actions that will affect almost every part of the business including:

- Improved instrumentation, automation and control of plant and equipment;
- Investment in new treatment processes and pumping systems to reduce energy demand and the emission of greenhouse gasses;
- Increased self-generation of renewable energy; and
- Procurement of more renewable energy.

NI Water has already achieved significant benefits from renewable energy generation, with the Dunore solar farm producing enough electricity to power Dunore water treatment works with spare capacity going into the grid.

From April 2017 to March 2020, the replacement of sodium street lights with energy efficient LED units and a programme to de-illuminate traffic signs, enabled my Department to reduce its energy consumption for street lighting by 14.5%.

I have also been able to allocate £8m for further LED retrofitting for this year, which will allow the replacement of approximately 30,000 sodium street lights with LED units and an estimated further reduction in energy consumption of 5.5%.

I will continue to work with Executive colleagues to embed an ambitious green recovery from COVID-19 that feeds into wider work with Executive colleagues to tackle climate change.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the number of street light faults registered, broken down by local council area as at 10 November 2020; (ii) whether additional resources will be allocated for the replacement and repair of street lights this year; and (iii) whether she has any plans to escalate repair and replacement of them.

Ms Mallon: My Department does not maintain this information by local council area, however the table below shows the number of outages for each Roads Division as at 10 November 2020:

Division	Outages
Northern	540
Southern	873
Eastern	541
Western	980

I am pleased to be able to confirm that I have allocated a budget of £5m for street lighting maintenance for the current financial year and this will allow for delivery of a full street lighting repair service. Typically repairs will take up to 5 working days, however, there may be slight delays in some areas due to unavailability of internal staff and external contractor staff arising from the impact of the Covid 19 pandemic.

I am also pleased to inform you that I have allocated £14m for street lighting column replacements in the current financial year. When compared to funding provided in recent years, this represents a significant increase and will allow for the replacement this year of approximately 6500 street lighting columns spread across all four Roads Divisions.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how her Department is supporting greenways in West Tyrone.
(AQW 10006/17-22)

Ms Mallon: In 2017, my Department provided Fermanagh and Omagh District Council with grant funding for a feasibility study along the greenway route from Omagh to Carrickmore.

More recently, the Walking and Cycling Champion wrote to Councils in July seeking an update on the status of their greenway projects. All Councils responded, including a number of proposals from the West Tyrone area. Following consideration of the proposals, I announced £3.735 million funding investment towards the development of six greenway projects, where construction could begin this financial year. Fermanagh and Omagh District Council confirmed that it was not yet in a position to progress greenways to the construction stage.

However, the Strabane North Greenway, as proposed by Derry City Council, was one of the successful projects selected and will be provided with funding subject to an approved business case and DoF approval.

More recently, my Walking and Cycling Champion wrote to Councils in July seeking an update on the status of their greenway projects. I hope to be in a position to fund further greenway projects in coming years. However, decisions regarding potential funding allocations for any future greenway projects will depend on the budget provided to my Department for 2021/22.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how many Translink auxiliary staff are currently employed on the minimum wage; and (ii) whether there are plans to increase their wage.
(AQW 10019/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Upon receipt of your question, the Translink Chief Executive has advised me that Translink has a total of 90 ancillary staff employed on the National Minimum Wage. I understand that the Annual Pay Award for financial year 2020/21 is currently being discussed with Translink staff and Trade Unions and I have been assured by Translink that any pay increase will increase pay above National Minimum Wage when concluded.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure what steps her Department is taking to protect and maintain rural community transport services.
(AQW 10034/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I recognise the important role that community transport plays and for that reason I have taken a number of steps to support Rural Community Transport Providers (RCTPs) during the COVID-19 response period. This included maintaining their grant funding for 2020 – 21 at 2019 - 20 levels, authorising the early release of 2019/20 retentions, along with Minister Poole, continued payment of Assisted Rural Travel Scheme and allocated £49k to the RCTPs to help cover costs of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE).

The period ahead will continue to be challenging, and I will continue to work collaboratively and innovatively in an effort to support and help ensure the long term viability of these organisations. I will do this reflecting on my priorities, the commitments in “New Decade: New Approach” and the budget available to me for the period ahead.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure what steps her Department is taking to encourage people living in rural areas, who are currently relying on private transport providers for essential journeys, to access public transport.
(AQW 10035/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I would like to state that, whilst Translink delivers the majority of our public transport network, private transport providers play an important role in improving our connectivity within the North.

As you will be aware, due to the Covid-19 pandemic, it is recommended that the public avoid all unnecessary travel and, where travel is necessary, people are asked to walk, cycle or use private transport. By following this approach, we can ensure that our public transport network is being used by those people who have no alternative means of travel.

Throughout the pandemic, whilst I have not encouraged the uptake of public transport for safety reasons, I have been committed to maintaining a public transport network that covers all of Northern Ireland, including our rural areas, for those who need it.

In light of this, Translink has delivered a comprehensive package of up-to-date service information and messaging to support public transport usage through the Let's Go Safely Together Campaign, which has included messaging on the mandatory wearing of face coverings, social distancing, hand hygiene and the availability of contactless forms of ticketing/payment.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the potential of hydrogen electric vehicles to provide sustainable, greener transport in rural areas.

Ms Mallon: As Infrastructure Minister, I am determined to secure a public transport service that connects people; unlocks our economic potential; protects our valuable environment; encourages active lifestyles; and improves well-being. I also want to see low emission – and in time zero emission – vehicles delivering services and public transport across Northern Ireland.

My Department is currently examining potential options to support the decarbonisation of transport through the introduction of a range of new green fuels which have the potential to replace petrol and diesel. This includes support for alternative fuels such as "Green" hydrogen. Development and deployment of hydrogen fuel cell technologies in the transport sector is at an earlier stage than for plug-in hybrid or battery electric vehicles.

Earlier this year I announced £30m investment in Zero Emission buses, building on the procurement of 3 Hydrogen Buses by Translink, as part of the Northern Ireland Hydrogen (NIH2) Project, which will also provide refuelling infrastructure for Hydrogen Vehicles other than for public transport.

Hydrogen technologies are particularly suited to the heavier vehicle market and I am currently considering how the NIH2 project can be built upon and how the introduction of these new fuels can be supported. Considering such options could provide a pathway for greening our transport infrastructure beyond urban areas and providing clean vehicle technology to operate in our small towns and countryside across Northern Ireland.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) what plans she has to improve road safety and reduce speeding on Fort Road, Helen's Bay; and (ii) whether she will consider installing traffic calming measures.

Ms Mallon: All requests for improvements to the road network, including the provision of traffic calming measures, are assessed and prioritised in line with my Department's current policies and guidance with all viable proposals competing for the limited funding available.

Based on the outcome of a previous traffic calming assessment, I can confirm that a scheme at Fort Road, Helens Bay is not as high a priority as other sites that have been assessed for the provision of traffic calming measures within the Ards & North Down area. I can also advise that my officials recently reviewed the signage and road markings on Fort Road which confirmed that they comply with the relevant standards.

I would respectfully suggest that should residents continue to have concerns about vehicles travelling at excessive speeds, they should contact the PSNI using the 101 non-emergency number, as they have the necessary enforcement powers for dealing with speeding issues.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will consider extending double yellow lines to reduce dangerous parking on Seapark Road, Holywood.

(AQW 10039/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Waiting restrictions, such as double yellow lines, are generally only provided to help facilitate traffic progression, or where there is a road safety concern, at locations where there are frequent and ongoing parking issues. It is recognised that during periods of more favourable weather, a substantial number of additional visitors are attracted to the Seapark area which may lead to parking issues.

While my Department has the powers to introduce waiting restrictions, it would not be considered appropriate to introduce permanent restrictions to address parking issues that are likely to occur relatively infrequently throughout the year.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will share the evidence gathered which did not suggest that exceptional circumstances exist to justify a bespoke financial assistance scheme for the haulage sector.

(AQW 10042/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My officials sought a range of evidence to put in place a financial support scheme for the Haulage sectors. The first requirement for the Determination and Designation under the Financial Assistance (Northern Ireland) Act 2009 is to prove that 'exceptional circumstances' exist.

As part of the evidence gathering on this issue I received letters from Ministers Murphy and Dodds on this issue and Minister Murphy pointed out that there were no 'exceptional circumstances' that have prevented the haulage sector benefitting from the existing schemes.

In terms of other evidence provided, before the summer, DAERA officials worked with DfI officials in an NI Haulage Industry Critical Goods Supply Analysis Group (NIHCA) to address evidence gaps, where possible, to inform decision making around any need for urgent NI specific financial assistance to ensure that critical goods can continue to flow. This group concluded that at that time:

- a) the food supply chain was operating relatively normally, with the large retailers indicating that they were not facing any major issues in relation to supply;
- b) Large hauliers appeared to be coping and in some cases had managed to share their empty running costs with their clients;
- c) The opening up of sectors in GB was expected to reduce the scale of empty running;
- d) As far as it could be determined, demand for road haulage services was being met; and

- e) Food and other critical goods were continuing to be hauled as and when required for supermarkets, pharmacies, etc. That was consistent with evidence from Road Haulage surveys across these islands which indicated that more than 80% of companies were expected to survive the next two months.

In addition the Department for Transport (DfT) has had regular engagement with both the Road Haulage Association and Freight Transport Association (now Logistics UK) to understand the up-to-date picture for road hauliers at a local and GB wide level. An analysis of available data by DfT concluded that it did not demonstrate an urgent and compelling need which would satisfy Treasury's threshold for intervention.

DfT have recognised that, with the road haulage industry being highly fragmented and SME dominated, it has proven difficult to obtain robust data on its economic position and resilience. However, they advised that available data sources, including the Logistics UK monthly tracker do not suggest that there is a general problem for road haulage, especially given the extension of the Coronavirus Business Interruption Loan Scheme (CBILS) and the announcement of the Job Support Scheme by the Chancellor of the Exchequer (now replaced by the extension of the more generous furlough scheme). The monthly tracker report for September 2020 highlighted that;

- a) business outlook for the logistics sector for next six months is positive;
- b) The number and proportion of HGVs parked up was 2.8%, while the number of vans was 0.8% - this reflects the return to normal levels of traffic for commercial vehicles; and
- c) According to ONS vacancies data (provided by the online job search engine Adzuna) for 17 September, the number of transport /logistics/warehouse online job adverts are one-fifth above their average.

Additionally, in line with the Logistics UK findings for financial health, ONS data from the Business Impact of Coronavirus Survey (BICS) found the proportion of businesses in the transport and storage sector with cash reserves of more than six months has risen since April.

Taking into account all of the evidence it is clear that, like many sectors across the economy, the haulage sector has faced some difficulties from demand for its services because of the impact of Covid-19. Current analysis still suggests a mixed picture with some hauliers reporting no significant issues while others have been impacted. Based on the evidence and engagement with the sector, it is my view that there is insufficient evidence to demonstrate 'exceptional circumstances' which would justify a bespoke financial support for the haulage industry. I will, however, continue to keep this matter under review.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure what further information or developments would require her to review her decision not to provide a bespoke financial assistance scheme for the haulage sector.

Ms Mallon: As previously explained in AQW 10042/17-22 my officials sought evidence from a range of sources before I came to my decision that there was insufficient grounds to show exceptional circumstances to support a Financial support scheme for the Haulage sector in Northern Ireland.

The evidence included information from the DAERA and Economy Ministers, assessments from the Department for Transport, Industry trackers, and direct engagement with industry representatives. From this evidence it was apparent that the industry is diverse and has been affected in different ways with some sectors being harder hit than others, however the assessment was that the proof of Exceptional Circumstance required for Determination and Designation under the Financial Assistance (Northern Ireland) Act 2009 was not there. DfT is looking at specific sectors which may need direct help and my Department will work closely with them on this issue.

I will, of course, keep this matter under review and if you have any evidence of widespread hardship in the haulage industry please do not hesitate to share that information with my Department.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will consider asking the Driver and Vehicle Agency to run an advertising campaign reminding those who have received Temporary Exemption Certificates that they continue to be responsible for ensuring that their vehicles are roadworthy.

Ms Mallon: The issuing of Temporary Exemption Certificates (TECs) was a necessary and effective mechanism to address the challenges posed by the measures implemented to deal with COVID 19, and enable customers to continue to legally use their vehicles on the road, throughout the period of time when it was not possible to conduct vehicle tests.

I am aware of the concerns around ensuring that, throughout the exemption period, customers are reminded of their responsibility to ensure that their vehicle is in a roadworthy condition for it to be driven safely and legally on the public road, which is also the expectation of the PSNI and insurers, and I have made that clear on numerous occasions. My department's advice to motorists is that they should continue to service their vehicle and carry out basic checks such as regularly checking tyre pressures and tread depths, looking out for brake wear and ensuring that all lights are working. This is a motorist's responsibility at all times, not just during the exemption period afforded by a TEC.

Over the past few months, my Department has used a number of platforms and formats to convey this road safety message to customers. The DVA has made this clear in its direct communications with customers and this message has been reiterated in statements and press releases issued by the Department, and I have stated this in the Assembly on many occasions and asked members for their assistance in communicating this to their constituents. Furthermore, the importance of ensuring vehicle roadworthiness and wider vehicle maintenance messages have been frequently published on social media, using a number of government platforms which include nidirect, the Department's main social media platforms and the Share the Road to Zero platform, which has a strong road safety message. Officials in my Department also work closely with partner organisations and stakeholders who share these messages through their own platforms. The messages cover a number of topics, from general vehicle roadworthiness to tyre safety, winter weather precautions and regular vehicle checks.

The emphasis on these messages will continue over the coming months and their frequency will be reviewed as appropriate.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on calming measures in Ballyree Drive, Bangor.
(AQW 10054/17-22)

Ms Mallon: All requests for improvements to the road network, including the provision of traffic calming measures, are assessed in line with my Department's current policies and guidance. All schemes are subject to prioritisation, with all viable proposals competing for the limited funding available.

The Department is currently working on design options for providing traffic calming measures at this location. However until a preferred option is identified and estimated costs and budgets are known, I am unable to confirm whether this site will be included within our Local Transport and Safety Measures (LTSM) programme for 2021/22.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure what action her Department is taking to improve accessibility for people with disabilities on (i) public transport; and (ii) her Department's property.
(AQW 10059/17-22)

Ms Mallon:

- (i) All Translink vehicles comply with current Public Service Vehicle Accessibility regulations (PSVAR). All Metro and Glider vehicles along with NIR fleet are wheelchair accessible, and over 95% of Ulsterbus vehicles are wheelchair accessible. All bus and coach purchases going forward will be wheelchair accessible.

In addition to this, steps have been taken around the public transport network to improve the accessibility of the network. This has included the provision of changing places facilities in bus and rail stations including Lanyon Place, the North West Multimodal Transport Hub and Portrush Station. The inclusion of changing places facilities will continue to be considered by Translink when upgrading public transport infrastructure.

Translink also works closely with the Inclusive Mobility and Transport Advisory Committee and meets with the organisation regularly to work towards making all aspects of our public transport network inclusive. In addition to this, IMTAC will also be involved in the design of the Belfast Transport Hub and new vehicles to ensure that my Department's investment in public transport infrastructure is inclusive.

- (ii) All property owned by my Department is compliant with the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. The Driver Vehicle Agency's (DVA) Business Transformation project includes plans to modernise or replace many test centres and office complexes which will improve accessibility to services and property for people with disabilities.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how soon taxi drivers can receive support payments; and (ii) whether her Department is exploring ways to speed up this process.

Ms Mallon: I was given new powers to provide financial assistance to taxi drivers on 3rd November and opened the taxi driver financial assistance scheme on the 10th November. Applications to this scheme are being assessed as quickly as possible. Eligibility and verification checks must be completed before payments can be issued to the successful applicants. I can assure you that officials are processing applications as quickly as possible.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 8970/17-22, when her Department acted on behalf the Quarry Products Association (QPA) to alert local councils about procurement of materials from unauthorised rogue quarry operators whether, at that time, those companies represented by QPA that were extracting sand from Lough Neagh fell under her Department's definition of unauthorised rogue quarry operators.

Ms Mallon: Until my recent decision to grant planning permission for sand dredging on Lough Neagh, those operations have been undertaken in accordance with a series of interim control measures implemented in November 2017.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the staffing complement; and (ii) structure of the Transport Regulation Unit on 1 September (a) 2017; (b) 2018; (c) 2019; and (d) 2020.
(AQW 10073/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The information is not available in the format requested, however the number of staff in post and unfilled vacancies in the Transport Regulation Unit (TRU) is set out below, as at 1 September 2017, 2018, 2019 and 2020.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the pass rate for learner drivers (i) since March 2020; and (ii) for the same period in each of the past two years.

Ms Mallon: Learner driver pass rates are published on the Department's website. The latest reporting of these figures for Q1 2020/21 can be accessed via the link below.

<https://www.infrastructure-ni.gov.uk/articles/driver-vehicle-agency-activity-statistics>

Within the Driver Practical Testing section of the latest Q1 report, Table 4.5 details pass rates by test category for each quarter from 2008/09 to the end of June 2020. Due to Covid-19, all driver testing was suspended during April to June, 2020. The pass rates for private cars in this quarter for the previous two years, were 54.4% (2019/20) and 54.3% (2018/19) respectively.

Driver testing figures are within scope of National Statistics reporting, and as such they are released to the public by NISRA statisticians in accordance with protocols outlined in the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. The next publication of driver testing statistics for the quarter ending 30 September 2020 will be issued on 25 November 2020.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Infrastructure what discussions she has had as to whether those pupils who fail their driving test will be able to retake their test sooner than others who are applying for the first time.

(AQW 10077/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that closed from 16 October until 20 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests also ceased over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Driving tests resumed on 21 November but will cease again for 2 weeks from 27 November to 10 December 2020 due to the circuit breaker restrictions announced by the Executive. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these restrictions.

The DVA has opened up the booking system exclusively for those customers whose tests were cancelled between 17 October and 20 November. Testing slots have been released for February and additional booking slots have also been made available in December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. The DVA is working on proposals to reopen the booking service for the customers impacted by the 2 week circuit breaker restrictions and in due course will issue further communications to customers through nidirect and social media channels.

To ensure the process for booking driving tests is managed fairly, the DVA does not intend to prioritise retests for candidates who fail their test over those who have not yet had the opportunity to take their test. The DVA will, however, continue to work hard to increase its testing capacity for all candidates.

When testing resumes the DVA will continue to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

To help further mitigate the impact on customers due to the cessation of practical driving as a result of the latest Covid restrictions, I will be bringing forward further legislation to extend the validity of theory test pass certificates. Theory test pass certificates which have already been extended by eight months and will expire from 1 November 2020 onwards, will have their validity period extended by a further four months. In addition, theory test pass certificates which expire between 1 November 2020 and 30 June 2021, and which have not already benefited from an extension, will have their validity period extended by eight months.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the current operating capacity of MOT centres across Northern Ireland; (ii) the number of MOT staff that are currently trained as driving examiners; and (iii) what discussions she has had with the Driver and Vehicle Agency regarding the potential for using those MOT staff who are qualified as driving instructors to be used in that capacity to relieve the backlog of driving test applications.

Ms Mallon: From 20 July, the Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) resumed MOT testing, at all test centres, for priority vehicle groups, including those vehicles that are not able to avail of a Temporary Exemption Certificate (TEC). This includes taxis and buses due a first time test, vehicles not previously registered in Northern Ireland, vehicles whose MOTs have expired by more than 12 months that includes vehicles previously declared SORN and those sold by car dealerships. By this time, all MOT test centre staff were back at work.

From 1 September, MOT testing for four year old cars and motorbikes and three year old light goods vehicles also resumed and for those vehicles in this category that currently have a 6 month TEC, they will be called for test when their TEC expires. In addition, the DVA recommenced testing of heavy goods vehicles, trailers and buses.

Due to the adaptations made to vehicle testing processes, to ensure the necessary and proportionate control measures are in place to help prevent the spread of COVID-19, whilst all MOT staff are working in test centres, the current capacity for vehicle testing is approximately 30% in comparison with levels prior to the pandemic and the lift issues. The DVA is currently working on proposals to increase its vehicle testing capacity in the coming months.

Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that closed from 16 October until 20 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests also ceased over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. The DVA is working on proposals to reopen the booking service for the customers impacted by the 2 week circuit breaker restrictions and in due course will issue further communications to customers through nirect and social media channels.

The DVA currently has 37 driving examiners and 40 dual role examiners who conduct both vehicle and driving tests. The DVA plans to use the dual role examiners to help meet the demand for driving tests over the coming months.

When testing resumes the DVA will continue to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department plans to improve pedestrian and cycle infrastructure between Bready and Newbuildings.

(AQW 10101/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department has developed a Masterplan for Active and Sustainable Transport Assessment for the full length of the A5 route. This plan identifies possible opportunities for the implementation of active and sustainable transport initiatives on and in the vicinity of the existing A5, after the new A5WTC dualling scheme is in place and the resulting reduction in traffic volumes has taken effect. The report identifies a number of possible opportunities at various locations between Bready and New Buildings including new footways, pedestrian crossings and bus stop facilities.

This report can be viewed by clicking on 'Documents' at <http://a5wtc.com/Decision-to-Proceed>. (Document 4 - Appendix 4: Sections DM04/05 & 06 - NMU opportunities between Bready - Magheramason and New Buildings).

The opportunities identified in the Masterplan can be delivered as separate packages of work depending on the timing of completion of the various stages of the A5WTC and the availability of funding at the particular time.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure when her Department will be developing an airport strategy for Northern Ireland.

(AQW 10102/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As Minister for Infrastructure, my main powers relating to NI's three main airports are set down in the Airports (NI) Order 1994. These powers are limited to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

My Department is, therefore, not responsible for developing an airport strategy for Northern Ireland. I remain committed, however, to working alongside my Executive colleagues, the Finance and Economy Ministers, to support our airports in promoting economic recovery and maintaining air connectivity across these islands and further afield.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 9727/17-22, whether her Department has informed the European Commission of her intention to (i) grant planning permission for sand extraction at Lough Neagh Special Protection Area; (ii) not enforce against unauthorised Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) development; and (iii) permit unauthorised EIA development to become immune from enforcement action.

Ms Mallon: My Department has provided relevant information to the European Commission in relation to the Lough Neagh case at different stages in the process, and will continue to provide it with information as appropriate and necessary.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the active travel projects (i) being undertaken by her Department; and (ii) being funded by her Department in the North Down constituency during the 2020/21 financial year.

Ms Mallon: I am very keen to deliver on projects to get more people to walk and cycle. In June I committed £20 million for blue/green infrastructure and to working with all Council areas in identifying and delivering active travel and greenway projects. For example in September, I announced £3.735million for six greenway projects that would be able to start construction this financial year.

Ards & North Down Borough Council submitted a number of greenway proposals to the Department for consideration but only one is ready to start construction work this year. I have therefore allocated £22,500 to the Council to upgrade the Coastal Path, between Stricklands Glen and Brompton Road.

Newtownards Chamber of Trade have proposals to encourage more active and sustainable travel to and within the town centre and preliminary survey work will begin shortly to inform a future reconfiguration of the town to help with a green recovery.

A proposed puffin crossing on Bloomfield Road near Jordan Avenue, is proposed this financial year, which will improve road safety for pedestrians in the area.

Details of works programmes, including those in the North Down area are compiled on a yearly basis and issued to the relevant Councils. They are then published on the Department's website and are available to view online through the following link: <https://www.infrastructure-ni.gov.uk/publications>

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department will consider funding an eCargo bike accelerator project, similar to the Department for Transport's eCargo Bike Grant Fund.
(AQW 10123/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am aware of the Department for Transport e-Cargo Bike Grant Fund and the benefits it could bring to introducing a green recovery for towns and cities. I have asked officials to request sight of a review of the scheme, when it has been carried out, for my consideration.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether Translink provide discounts to staff hiring public transport buses.
(AQW 10131/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Translink staff can get a 10% discount on private hire.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many cases of flooding in North Down were reported following the heavy rain on 11 November 2020.
(AQW 10132/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department maintains records by District Council area rather than by constituency area and I can confirm that during the night of 11 November 2020 and the early hours of 12 November 2020, my Department received 30 reports of flooding at 21 separate locations across the Ards and North Down Council Area.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure why drains along the A2 Donaghadee to Millisle were not cleared despite being reported prior to the recent flooding that affected the homes of residents.

Ms Mallon: My Department received a report about a blocked gully at the location in question and following an inspection of the area on 18 October 2020, a works order to have the gully cleaned was raised. Unfortunately, due to existing workload and resource constraints the work could not be completed before the severe rain event occurred on 11 November 2020. Subsequent investigative works have indicated that there may be underlying problems with the drainage system in this area and further investigations are being taken forward as a matter of urgency.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for Infrastructure what consultation her Department has conducted with (i) businesses; (ii) residents; and (iii) other stakeholders on the cycle lanes introduced in South Belfast in 2020.

Ms Mallon: With the ongoing COVID-19 emergency, we are now having to adapt to a new way of living, and as part of that, we need to create more opportunities for active travel and make our roads safer for those who want to walk and cycle. For many of those key workers during this health emergency, this is a preferred option for getting to and from work.

In June 2020, I therefore created pop-up cycle lanes on Bankmore Street, Hardcastle Street, Marcus Ward Street and the Dublin Road to Shaftesbury Square, for a trial period, to help those travelling to the Belfast City Hospital.

When the Dublin Road route was first developed, businesses were closed and we were unable to follow proper consultation format. As businesses opened up again we were able to engage with all stakeholders and make necessary amendments. At the time of their construction all affected residents and businesses were notified by letter of the nature of the works, advising that should consideration be given to making this arrangement permanent a formal consultation exercise would be carried out before any decision is taken.

On 13th November 2020, part of this route was continued on the Donegall Road from Sandy Row to the entrance to the hospital, again as a temporary measure. At the time of construction all affected residents and businesses were notified by letter of the nature of the works, advising that should consideration be given to making this arrangement permanent a formal consultation exercise would be carried out before any decision is taken. Consultation is ongoing in relation to the Donegall Road cycle lane.

Going forward, any future pop-up cycle lanes will be taken forward as experimental schemes where notification will be given a few weeks in advance to allow objections to be made and considered.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for Infrastructure how her Department intends to consult with (i) businesses; (ii) residents; and (iii) other stakeholders on the location of new cycle lanes.
(AQW 10172/17-22)

Ms Mallon: With the ongoing COVID-19 emergency, we are now having to adapt to a new way of living, and as part of that, we need to create more opportunities for active travel and make our roads safer for those who want to walk and cycle. For many of those key workers during this health emergency, this is a preferred option for getting to and from work.

In June 2020, I therefore created pop-up cycle lanes on sections of key routes to the three main Belfast hospitals on the Dublin Road, Donegall Road, Grosvenor Road and Crumlin Road. When the Dublin Road route and Grosvenor Road were first developed, businesses were closed and we were unable to follow proper consultation format. As businesses opened up again, we were able to engage with all stakeholders and make necessary amendments.

At the time of their construction all affected residents and businesses were notified by letter of the nature of the works, advising that should consideration be given to making this arrangement permanent a formal consultation exercise would be carried out before any decision is taken.

Going forward, any future pop-up cycle lanes will be taken forward as experimental schemes where notification will be given a few weeks in advance to allow objections to be made and considered.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure what actions her Department intends to take to address the issue of speeding on the Old Belfast Road, Bangor.

(AQW 10180/17-22)

Ms Mallon: All requests for improvements to the road network, including the provision of traffic calming measures, are assessed in line with my Department's current policies and guidance.

Officials have carried out a traffic calming assessment of this section of the Old Belfast Road, Bangor and I can confirm that a scheme at this location wouldn't currently rank as highly as other sites in the Ards and North Down area competing for what is limited funding for works of this nature. I am also advised that a previous consultation on a traffic calming scheme incorporating road humps generated over 100 objections.

It is important where speeding is a problem, that residents contact the PSNI, as the authority responsible for enforcing speed limits, on its 101 number.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the sewerage projects in the Foyle constituency listed under NI Water's PC21 plan, in order of priority.

(AQW 10185/17-22)

Ms Mallon: NI Water has advised me that the projects highlighted in the table below, in priority order, are proposed for delivery in the Foyle constituency in PC21, subject to funding from the Executive.

Project Name	Current Priority Order	Anticipated PC21 Investment (£m)
Foyle Street, Derry - sewer upgrade	1	0.827
Skeoge Link Road, Derry - new wastewater pumping station at Skeogelands	2	4.872
Skeoge Link Road, Derry - new wastewater pumping station at Lenamore Road	3	4.527
Culmore - improvements to wastewater treatment works	4	4.743
Culmore - upgrade Faughan Crescent wastewater pumping station	5	0.594
Culmore - upgrade Strathfoyle siphons (sewers)	6	11.934
Donnybrewer - upgrade Eglinton Cottage Way wastewater pumping station	7	1.361

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether driving tests cancelled after the latest COVID-19 restrictions will get rebooking priority.

(AQW 10189/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that closed from 16 October until 20 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests also ceased over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the COVID-19 support funding that is provided to (a) Belfast City Airport; and (b) City of Derry Airport; and (ii) why no funds have been made available to Belfast International Airport.
(AQW 10203/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As Minister for Infrastructure my powers relating to NI's three main airports are set down in the Airports (NI) Order 1994. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

However, due to the exceptional circumstances that emerged from the COVID 19 pandemic, the Department for Infrastructure was, for expediency and logistical reasons, asked to facilitate the distribution of emergency funding on behalf of the NI Executive to George Best Belfast City Airport and the City of Derry Airport.

In April, the NI Executive, DfT and HM Treasury agreed a package of temporary financial support worth up to £5.7m over 3 months to maintain air connectivity, with the Executive meeting half of the costs. This enabled George Best Belfast City Airport to continue to maintain services for passengers on the Belfast - London Heathrow route operated by Aer Lingus. It also enabled the City of Derry Airport to continue to maintain services for passengers on the Derry City - London Stansted route operated by Loganair.

Recently, in line with the Executive's decision, I announced £1.23m in additional support for City of Derry Airport. This short term support grant is to help City of Derry Airport to remain operational.

In addition, in May 2020, the Minister of Finance announced 100% rates relief for Belfast International, Belfast City & City of Derry airports until 31 March 2021. This financial support is worth £2.2m, and £1.7m to BIA in particular.

Furthermore, whilst civil aviation is a reserved matter for the UK Government, the Department for the Economy has responsibility for the development of Northern Ireland's air connectivity and provides support aimed at maintaining connectivity during the COVID 19 pandemic and as part of recovery. The Department for the Economy has secured £2m for marketing support which is being delivered by Tourism Ireland and held recent discussions with Belfast International Airport to develop Trans-Atlantic and Middle East air routes

I am committed to working with both my Executive colleagues in Department for the Economy and the Department for Finance to identify and put in place any appropriate support for Belfast International Airport. I have accepted an invitation to meet with Belfast International Airport representatives, along with my ministerial colleagues in the Department of Finance and the Department for the Economy, given the different statutory responsibilities we each hold in respect of airports and connectivity.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how much she has bid for to fund the coastal road report recommendations for the Ards Peninsula in this financial year; and (ii) how much she will be applying for in 2021/22.

Ms Mallon: The funding for works carried out to protect coastal roads in the Ards Peninsula is not bid for separately but rather forms part of my overall capital funding allocation and I understand that £280k has been allocated towards such works in the current year.

Looking forward I recognise the importance of investment in the road infrastructure and have highlighted a funding requirement for road maintenance as part of the information gathering exercise for Budget 2021-22. I will work collaboratively with the Minister for Finance and Executive colleagues as part of the Budget settlement to make the case for sustainable investment in our infrastructure and the outcome of this will influence the levels of funding that will be made available for works in the Ards Peninsula.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will commission a report into the provision and review of footpaths (i) around the Ards Peninsula; (ii) the Ballyhalbert Shore Road; and (iii) the footpath from Newtownards to Teal Rocks, Portaferry Road.

Ms Mallon: All requests for improvements to the road network, including the provision of a footway schemes or upgrading works, are assessed in line with my Department's current policies and guidance and all works are subject to prioritisation, with all viable proposals competing for the limited funding available.

While I can appreciate why you have asked about my Department commissioning a report into the provision and review of footways at individual locations such as Ards Peninsula, it would not, given the Department's financial position, be the most effective use of limited resources. However if there are specific locations within the Ards Peninsula where you feel that a footway is merited then these should be brought to the attention of my officials so that they can be considered and assessed.

In relation to the previous request for a footway on Shore Road Ballyhalbert, my officials will update the feasibility study and costings to determine whether a scheme can be undertaken and included within a future works programme.

The request for the provision of a footway at Teal Rocks has previously been assessed by my officials but it did not rank as highly as other schemes in Southern Division. I have however asked that officials keep this request under review.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given there is not enough indoor passenger capacity to provide protection from inclement weather, what plans are in place to protect the daily foot passengers on the Strangford Ferry.

Ms Mallon: Arrangements for additional morning and afternoon passenger-only sailings were put in place to facilitate the transportation of the large number of school children who need to travel at the same time. The use of the main open deck as an outdoor area, reduces the risk of Covid-19 transmission, while also maximising the number of passengers who can be carried. Unfortunately in applying the public health advice, this does mean that on occasions passengers may be exposed to inclement weather conditions on the 7 minute journey. Foot passengers are therefore recommended to wear suitable clothing.

Officials have explored options for putting additional shelter in place but no safe and practical option has as yet been identified.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for Infrastructure what measures have been taken to improve safety at the traffic lights at the junction of Urney Road and Great Northern Link junction, Strabane.

(AQW 10240/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As you are aware concerns have been raised with my officials about difficulties being experienced by drivers turning right from the Urney Road onto the A5, when traffic volumes are higher. There is currently no dedicated green filter arrow included in the traffic light sequence at this junction.

I had arranged for my officials to carry out a traffic survey in early December when it was expected that traffic volumes would have returned to more normal levels, however, with the recent announcement of further restrictions and their impact on traffic levels, this will be rescheduled to ensure the assessment reflects more normal levels.

With more accurate survey information based on more typical traffic volumes a better informed decision can be made on whether the signal design should be updated to accommodate the right turning demand.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure, following the Executive decision on 12 November, when (i) driving tests will resume; and (ii) the booking system for driving tests will reopen.

(AQW 10254/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that closed from 16 October until 20 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests also ceased over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Driving tests resumed on 21 November but will cease again for 2-weeks from 27 November to 10 December 2020 due to the circuit breaker restrictions announced by the Executive. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these restrictions.

The DVA has opened up the booking system exclusively for those customers whose tests were cancelled between 17 October and 20 November. Testing slots have been released for February and additional booking slots have also been made available in December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. The DVA is working on proposals to reopen the booking service for the customers impacted by the 2-week circuit breaker restrictions and in due course will issue further communications to customers through nidirect and social media channels.

When testing resumes the DVA will continue to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

To help further mitigate the impact on customers due to the cessation of practical driving as a result of the latest Covid restrictions, I will be bringing forward further legislation to extend the validity of theory test pass certificates. Theory test pass certificates which have already been extended by eight months and will expire from 1 November 2020 onwards, will have their validity period extended by a further four months. In addition, theory test pass certificates which expire between 1 November 2020 and 30 June 2021, and which have not already benefited from an extension, will have their validity period extended by eight months.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure why the bus and coach support scheme is capped at the current limit for each operator.

(AQW 10267/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The DfI financial support scheme for private coach and bus operators will distribute £5m of public funds. £100k is the maximum payment which can be paid through this scheme and is in addition to other available financial support such as the £25k business support grant, furlough and rate support and COVID 19 loans. This scheme was devised to help ensure payments can get to the industry quickly and the cap was recommended in line with value for money. It is estimated that this £100,000 cap will impact on approximately 2% of operators and I have asked my officials to continue to work with the industry through this crisis.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the indicative timings of the high speed rail feasibility study.

(AQW 10268/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Minister for Transport, Eamon Ryan T.D and I agreed at the NSMC meeting on 7 October 2020 to progress the feasibility study for high speed rail, a commitment in New Decade, New Approach (NDNA).

In addition to the commitment in NDNA to conduct a feasibility study into high speed rail between Belfast – Dublin – Cork, we also agreed that the feasibility study will be extended and will now include Derry and Limerick in the terms of reference.

Following this decision, work is ongoing between my Department and the Department for Transport to agree terms of reference for the feasibility study and I look forward to the commencement of the study in due course.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how her Department is reminding drivers to ensure that their vehicles are roadworthy.

(AQW 10269/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am aware of concerns around ensuring that, throughout the exemption period under the Temporary Exemption Certificates (TECs), customers are reminded of their responsibility to ensure that their vehicle is in a roadworthy condition, which is also the expectation of the PSNI and insurers, and I have made that clear on numerous occasions. My department's advice to motorists is that they should continue to service their vehicle and carry out basic checks such as regularly checking tyre pressures and tread depths, looking out for brake wear and ensuring that all lights are working. This is a motorist's responsibility at all times, not just during the exemption period afforded by a TEC.

Over the past few months, my Department has used a number of platforms and formats to convey this road safety message to customers. The DVA has made this clear in its direct communications with customers and this message has been reiterated in statements and press releases issued by the Department, and I have stated this in the Assembly on many occasions and asked Members to help share this message with their constituents.

The importance of ensuring vehicle roadworthiness and wider vehicle maintenance messages have been frequently published on social media, using a number of government platforms which include nidirect, the Department's main social media platforms and the Share the Road to Zero platform, which has a strong road safety message. Officials in my Department also work closely with partner organisations and stakeholders who share these messages through their own platforms. The messages cover a number of topics, from general vehicle roadworthiness to tyre safety, winter weather precautions and regular vehicle checks.

The emphasis on these messages will continue over the coming months and their frequency will be reviewed as appropriate.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, due to issues such as changes to the insurance as a result of the financial pressures of COVID-19, whether she will address the problems taxi drivers have been experiencing when applying for the support scheme.

(AQW 10270/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme is designed to provide a contribution to overhead costs (including PPE) that have actually been incurred. If a driver has not incurred the overhead expenditure then they are not eligible for the payment of £1500. In order to ensure value for money, the scheme is dependent on actual expenses having been incurred between 22nd March and 30th September with applicants needing to show evidence of continuous taxi insurance for that period. The requirement for this evidence has been confirmed by Audit.

The scheme provides additional support to that which is available to self-employed drivers through the Self Employment Income Support Scheme, in recognition of the fact that they have not been able to earn as much income to cover the ongoing costs which they have still had to pay out. The scheme is set up as a means of helping drivers with their ongoing overheads should they have paid them.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how many driving examiners have been recruited in each of the last four years; and (ii) whether she plans to recruit more.
(AQW 10271/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The DVA currently has 37 driving examiners and 40 dual role examiners who conduct both vehicle and driving tests. In the last four years the DVA has recruited a total of 23 examiners who can conduct driving tests, as set out in the table below.

Year	Driving examiners	Dual role examiners

To increase driving test capacity the DVA is in the process of recruiting an additional 27 temporary and permanent vehicle examiners, which will free up the dual role examiners to conduct more driving tests over the coming months. The DVA is also planning to launch a driving examiner recruitment competition early next year.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 6872/17-22, (i) for an update on the options for the location of the park and ride in Dungiven; and (ii) when a decision is expected.
(AQW 10335/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have asked my officials to bring forward options for a Park and Ride facility in the Dungiven area. This work is expected to be completed towards the end of this year.

I would be happy to provide you with an update when this work is completed and I have made a decision on the location for the facility.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) how much NI Water pays to Belfast City Council under its contractual relationship for the provision of pest control services; and (ii) how this funding is spent.
(AQW 10348/17-22)

Ms Mallon: NI Water has advised me that it has a contractual arrangement with Belfast City Council (BCC) to provide services on its behalf, directly related to its sewerage system. The operational cost of this service to NI Water is £42,000 per annum.

NI Water's contractual arrangement with BCC covers the provision of services for pest control expertise, compliance with all related legislation, staff/equipment and material costs. Specifically, this service involves the identification of rodent issues that are a direct consequence of defects in NI Water's sewerage system. BCC uses its expertise to offer the best holistic solution, including any follow-up work required. Services provided by BCC include, for example, reactive baiting for its wastewater network in its area. BCC also provides a contact for NI Water to forward any requests for sewer baiting/rodent control during normal working hours. All calls received by NI Water's Contact Centre or by NI Water's members of staff, in relation to pest control issues, will be forwarded to this contact. BCC also maintains records and reports of investigations as required, co-ordinates and communicates with NI Water and other bodies as appropriate and holds public liability insurance to cover the services it provides under its contract with NI Water.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the methodology behind NI Water determining that pest control issues in Belfast is a direct consequence of defects in NI Water's sewerage system; and (ii) when this latest assessment was conducted.

Ms Mallon: NI Water has advised that pest control issues in Belfast are determined to be a direct consequence of defects in its sewerage system via reported sightings of rats linked to the public waste water network by either BCC or NI Water employees or a member of the public. Some customers contact NI Water directly and others may also have liaised with Belfast City Council. BCC, under its contractual arrangements with NI Water, provides a contact number to which any rodent related calls to NI Water's contact centre are forwarded. If the fault identified is an NI Water issue, within the Belfast area, a more thorough investigation will be carried out by the dedicated pest control section within BCC. If a fault is found which NI Water is responsible for it will rectify it as soon as possible. However BCC staff will bait manholes and sewers.

No other council outside of Belfast provides this service. NI Water has advised that the identification of defects is a reactive process driven by contacts and complaints on rodent issues.

Rodent issues are not always caused by faults in NI Water's infrastructure. In such cases NI Water, in the interests of good customer service, will work in tandem with BCC to educate customers on measures to try and prevent rodent activity. This would include advice on what to do with pipework that belongs to the customer and good housekeeping, for example not leaving rubbish or food waste out in the open. NI Water offers this service to any Council.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for Infrastructure what road resurfacing work is scheduled for the Castlederg area.

(AQW 10350/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Details of works planned for 2020/21 within the Derry and Strabane Council area, which includes Castlederg, will be included within the Derry City and Strabane District Council report that is due to be presented to Council on Wednesday 9 December. After this meeting the report will be publically available via the following link:

<https://www.infrastructure-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/infrastructure/Fermanagh%20and%20Omagh%20District%20Council%20Report%20Spring%202020%20-%20FINAL%20REPORT%20AS%20ISSUED%20TO%20FODC.PDF>

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to address safety issues, for an update on the proposed land acquisition on Bellspark Road, Strabane.

(AQW 10351/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The scheme to improve road safety at the Bellspark Road / Orchard Road junction by introducing a new staggered crossroads is significant and will require a number of stages including land acquisition. Efforts at present are focused on the acquisition of one key property as this will enable sightlines at the junction to be significantly improved.

Negotiations are ongoing with the owner to seek to reach an acceptable valuation for the purchase of this property.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to answer AQW 9655/17-22, given that it is her responsibility to explore any and all negative effects of schemes designed by her Department (i) what measures she has put in place to ensure that taxi driver's benefits are protected when applying to her financial assistance scheme; and (ii) whether she has discussed with the Department for Communities on how such a scenario can be avoided.

(AQW 10364/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme, which launched on 13th November, recognises that self-employed taxi drivers have significant overheads, including additional PPE costs, which were not covered by payments received through the available self-employed income support schemes (SEISS).

The scheme provides additional support to that which was/is available to self-employed drivers through the SEISS. The SEISS allowed individuals to claim a taxable grant worth 80% and 70% of their average monthly trading profits. This separate scheme recognises that drivers have not been able to earn as much income to cover their ongoing costs, such as taxi insurance, but which they have still had to pay out.

I can advise that I have not been in discussions with the Department for Communities in relation to the financial assistance scheme for taxi drivers. As I indicated in my response to AQW 9655/17-22, it will be up to eligible taxi drivers applying for the financial assistance scheme and, based on their individual circumstances, to consider any implications for other financial support and benefits received.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will explore ways to strengthen the Active School Travel Programme.

(AQW 10372/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Active School Travel programme is delivered on behalf of my Department and the Public Health Agency (which jointly fund the programme) under contract by Sustrans NI. That contract is now in its final year which provides me with an opportunity to review how my Department will encourage active and safe school travel for children in the future.

My officials, together with the Public Health Agency, have already undertaken some work to inform the way forward. Expansion of important programmes of this nature will naturally be dependent on the resource budget allocated to my Department.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how her Department will encourage active travel school runs.
(AQW 10373/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The publication of the Travel to and from School by Pupils in Northern Ireland (2018/19) Report demonstrates that the 'school run' is far too often, the 'school drive'. I want to create safer conditions that allow children to use an active and sustainable method of travel where possible.

To achieve that aim, my Department's work with schools includes the Practical Child Pedestrian Safety Training Scheme, the Cycling Proficiency Programme, and the Active Travel Schools Programme, which is delivered by Sustrans and co-funded by the Public Health Agency. We also provide a range of road safety teaching resources to support safe walking and cycling to schools. Work has already begun on rolling out 20mph zones at 100 schools and will continue over the coming months. These zones will mean that parents, children and staff will be safer as they go to and from school on a daily basis and will complement our efforts to encourage more children to walk, scoot, wheel and cycle to school where they are able to do so.

I have also delivered campaigns encouraging people to choose active modes of travel, such as walking and cycling. My Department is also simultaneously addressing the safety of those who choose to walk and cycle. The most recent campaign which I launched in July pays particular attention to highlighting the benefits of walking to school for both children and their parents/guardians. The Department's social media channels also support these messages and frequently encourage active travel for the school commute.

I have also announced the Road Safety Grant Scheme for 2020/21 where a number of projects focussing on road safety and active travel will be rolled out across local communities in the coming weeks. Many of the projects will be seeking to improve the safety of people walking or cycling, including children.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department has considered piloting school street initiatives.
(AQW 10374/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I want to create safer conditions that allow children to replace the daily school run by an active and sustainable method of travel where possible. My officials are exploring options for a pilot 'School Street' scheme in Northern Ireland for my consideration.

My Department's work with schools continues through the Cycling Proficiency Programme, and the Active Travel Schools Programme, which is delivered by Sustrans and co-funded by the Public Health Agency. The Department also provides a range of road safety teaching resources to support safe walking and cycling to schools.

Over the next few months, my Department will roll out 20mph zones at 100 schools. These zones will mean that parents, children and staff will be safer as they go to and from school on a daily basis and will complement our efforts to encourage more children to walk, scoot, wheel and cycle to school where they are able to do so.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the percentage of schools that have 20mph zones around them.
(AQW 10375/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As Minister responsible for promoting and improving road safety, I want to work actively with partners to reduce death and serious injuries on our roads. I believe that reducing the maximum speed traffic can travel at on some of our roads can help in this regard.

There are currently part-time 20mph speed limits outside 16 schools which equates to just under 2% of schools.

I want to see this situation improved and am therefore delighted to have committed funding in this year's capital budget towards the introduction of new part-time 20 mph speed limits at around 100 additional schools. This will mean that approximately 12% of schools will have a part-time 20mph speed limit outside their gates by the end of the financial year.

These measures will increase driver awareness and achieve reductions in vehicle speeds, ensuring that parents, children and staff will be safer as they go to and from the schools on a daily basis. I am determined that using the roads around all of our schools will be safer for everyone, and it is my intention that through future programmes, part-time 20 mph speed limits will apply to roads outside many more schools.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she would meet with the Walk the Line campaign group in Ballyhalbert.
(AQW 10392/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Thank you for the opportunity to meet with the Walk the Line campaign group in Ballyhalbert.

I very much welcome the interest that groups such as the Walk the Line campaign group take in relation to roads related matters but unfortunately my current diary commitments do not provide me with a suitable opportunity to meet with them at present. However, should the group wish to meet with an official from DfI Roads Southern Division to discuss their thoughts on footway provision or indeed any roads related matters in the area then this can be arranged by contacting the Division directly at southern.secretariat@infrastructure-ni.gov.uk

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail all correspondence between her Department and the owner of a hedge that encroaches onto the public footpath on the A20 from Newtownards to Teal Rocks.

(AQW 10395/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department has had no formal contact with the owner of the hedge adjacent to the footway that runs between Old Shore Road and Teal Rocks. As is normal practice when overgrown hedges obstruct the movement of pedestrians on footways, informal contact was made with the owner of the hedge advising that overgrowth was reducing the footway width. In response to this informal approach, the hedge has been cut back and it has not been necessary for my Department to issue any formal notices to have hedge cutting carried out at this location.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how Shared Environmental Services is funded; and (ii) to whom is it accountable.

(AQW 10419/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Shared Environmental Services (SES) is funded mainly through the Transferred Functions Grant (TFG) which is delivered by the Department for Communities (DfC).

Mid and East Antrim Council employ and host SES on behalf of the 11 councils. SES is accountable to each commissioning Council for the work and advice they provide.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many meetings or engagements she has had with City of Derry Airport and its representatives since taking office.

(AQW 10422/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since taking office, I have met with officials from CoDA and Derry City and Strabane District Council which owns CoDA, on one occasion. This was a joint meeting along with the Minister of Finance and took place on 17 November 2020, and was in response to an invitation from the Council and CoDA to discuss future support for CoDA with the Minister for the Economy, Minister for Finance and myself. The meeting was convened online due to the ongoing Covid situation.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many meetings or engagements she has had with Belfast International Airport and its representatives since taking office.

(AQW 10423/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have not yet met with officials from Belfast International Airport since taking office, however I have already accepted an invitation to meet representatives from the Airport alongside the Economy Minister, that meeting is to be arranged when the Economy Minister responds with availability.

I remain committed to meeting with Belfast International Airport at the earliest opportunity, alongside my Executive colleagues to listen to their case for urgent financial support.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many meetings or engagements she has had with Belfast City Airport and its representatives since taking office.

(AQW 10424/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have not had any requests to meet with representatives from Belfast City Airport since taking office.

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues to maintain air connectivity across these islands and further afield, and to consider cases for support and other measures required by the Executive to support the aviation sector.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many times her Department has had to respond to flooding on (i) Foyle Road; and (ii) Ann Street, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 10447/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department has not had to respond to any flooding incidents on Ann Street in the last five years. In relation to Foyle Road officials have responded to reports of flooding twice in 2018, four times in 2019 and on three occasions in 2020. There were no reports of flooding in either 2016 or 2017.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will address the recurring flooding issues that are prevalent on (i) Foyle Road; and (ii) Ann Street.

(AQW 10448/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My officials are aware of instances of sporadic surface water flooding on the Foyle Road, however, they are not aware of flooding on Anne Street.

Flooding on Foyle Road can occur when very wet weather coincides with a high tide and the outfall drainage becomes unable to discharge to the Foyle River. To enable my officials to better understand your concerns and observations, I would suggest that you initially contact Mr Robert McCartney, DfI Roads Section Engineer at Robert.mccartney@infrastructure-ni.gov.uk.. He will arrange for officials from NI Water to also attend a virtual meeting.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in light of the increase in the volume and speed of traffic past Ballylifford Primary School, what measures she will take to help with traffic calming at this location.

(AQW 10449/17-22)

Ms Mallon: In response to concerns you and other elected representatives had raised earlier this year, my officials and the PSNI reviewed the site. It was agreed that the 30mph signage would be upgraded and mounted on yellow backing boards, additional repeater signs would be provided and some signs would be relocated to enhance their visibility to approaching motorists.

A temporary traffic counter has also been placed on Ballinderry Bridge Road close to the school to ascertain current traffic volumes and the average speed of passing vehicles. The PSNI will review the data and consider the site for additional enforcement.

In recent years my Department has provided a number of traffic management measures on Ballinderry Bridge Road, Ballylifford, including a 30mph speed limit with gateway signage, flashing school signs, high friction surfacing, SCHOOL and KEEP CLEAR markings and zig zag warning lines at the school frontage. Under current policy, provision of traffic calming measures in the form of vertical speed measures (e.g. speed ramps), is not considered appropriate for this location due to the traffic volumes and nature of the road.

As you will be aware, I have recently committed £2m funding in this year's capital budget towards the introduction of part-time 20 mph speed limits. Given the funding limitations for works of this nature, as well as the practicalities of delivery, it was necessary to limit the number of schools in this year's programme to 100. Unfortunately, based on its assessment score Ballylifford Primary School was not ranked as highly as other schools that were included within this year's programme. However, I do intend to take forward a further tranche of part-time speed limits at schools and Ballylifford Primary School will be considered for inclusion in future programmes.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in the absence of the public inquiry into illegal waste disposal, as voted for by the Assembly in March 2014, for her assessment of (i) whether deficiencies in the planning system in respect of unauthorised minerals extractions which created a ready supply of ideal sites for the illegal disposal of waste has been addressed; and (ii) whether public confidence has been restored in the planning system.

Ms Mallon: Councils, in their role as local planning authorities have a broad range of enforcement powers available to them in order to deal with unauthorised development. Since the publication of the the Mills report on waste disposal at the Mobuoy site, my Department has made changes in relation to planning policy, procedures and guidance, including the cancellation of Planning Policy Statement 9 "The Enforcement of Planning Control" and its replacement by the Strategic Planning Policy Statement and a series of practice notes. More recently, the Department has committed to the development of further targeted guidance to support district councils in relation to enforcement and the environmental impact assessment (EIA) process. The first element of guidance which is currently under development deals with unauthorised EIA development. This is part of a wider programme of work with councils which has also involved the development and delivery of tailored EIA training in conjunction with an external EIA expert and a clear focus on the proper management of unauthorised development. This is essential to ensuring public confidence in the planning system.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 9813/17-22, (i) in which division the Active Travel Branch (ATB) sits; and (ii) what the ATB budget is for 2020/21.

(AQW 10463/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Active Travel Branch sits within the Transport Policy Division under my Walking and Cycling Champion, Liz Loughran.

Budgets are not allocated to individual branches, but are held by division. Transport Policy Division's Budget for 2020/21, following October Monitoring, is £2.074 million Non Ring-fenced Resource DEL, and £11.4 million Capital DEL. This is after the transfer of some blue green infrastructure capital funding, including £5.0 million Capital DEL to the Department for Communities to fund DfI's element of the COVID-19 Town Revitalisation Programme for councils for greater active travel.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the nature of the Translink partnership with Scottish Citylink.

(AQW 10480/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Translink operates three return journeys per day on service 923 from Stranraer to Glasgow. Two of these services are operated by Translink under Translink's Scottish Operators Licence and the remaining service is operated by Translink under a commercial contract with Scottish Citylink.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the Driver and Vehicle Agency's strategy following the full commencement of vehicle testing.

(AQW 10481/17-22)

Ms Mallon: From 20 July, the Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) resumed MOT testing, at all test centres, for priority vehicle groups, including those vehicles that are not able to avail of a Temporary Exemption Certificate (TEC). This includes taxis and buses due a first time test, vehicles not previously registered in Northern Ireland, vehicles whose MOTs have expired by more than 12 months that includes vehicles previously declared SORN and those sold by car dealerships.

From 1 September, MOT testing for four year old cars and motorbikes and three year old light goods vehicles also resumed and for those vehicles in this category that currently have a 6 month TEC, they will be called for test when their TEC expires. In addition, the DVA recommenced testing of heavy goods vehicles, trailers and buses.

Due to the adaptations made to vehicle testing processes, to ensure the necessary and proportionate control measures are in place to help prevent the spread of COVID-19, the current capacity for vehicle testing is approximately 30% when compared with levels prior to the pandemic and the lift issues.

The DVA is urgently working on proposals to increase its vehicle testing capacity from January 2021, to ensure they can test those vehicles whose 12 month TECs will start to expire early next year. To achieve this a range of measures will be adopted including the recruitment of additional vehicle examiners, the use of overtime to provide cover for leave and sick absence, and the reduction of the current vehicle test time in line with revised risk assessments. The DVA will also continue to issue TECs to all eligible vehicles until normal vehicle testing services resume.

Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA will continue to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on Operation SNAP.

(AQW 10483/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Implementation of Operation SNAP in Northern Ireland will require amendment of existing road traffic legislation so that the existing offence of careless driving can be discharged by means of a fixed penalty.

I discussed the need for this legislation during my meetings with the Chief Constable in May and June 2020. I recognised the need for action and committed to the development of proposals to consult on the creation of a fixed penalty for careless driving. I will work with PSNI to achieve implementation as soon as possible.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what measures she will introduce to effect central collation of information on Environmental Impact Assessment applications and permissions to assist Environmental Impact Assessment system monitoring.

(AQW 10506/17-22)

Ms Mallon: There is no requirement under current planning legislation governing Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) for my Department to collate or monitor information relating to the EIA process. Each individual planning authority is under an obligation to maintain a planning register in order to enable public access to various decisions and information, including information relating to the EIA process where appropriate. The current Northern Ireland Planning Portal further supports wider public access and my Department is currently undertaking work with district councils to take forward a project for a replacement to the portal which will support ongoing public access to planning information.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what system monitoring measures her Department undertakes to ensure the Environmental Impact Assessment process is effective and robust.

(AQW 10507/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am content that my Department has fully transposed the requirements of the Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) Directive (as amended) as they apply to the land use planning system so that domestic legislation provides for an effective and robust EIA process. District councils, in their role as local planning authorities, are the decision-makers for the majority of decisions relating to EIA. My Department's EIA responsibilities do not involve a central monitoring system of the overall EIA process. However, my Department has funded the development, delivery and accreditation of tailored EIA training for planning staff across the two-tier system. This training, at core and advanced levels, is intended to support all planning authorities apply the EIA process effectively and robustly. My Department is also preparing a number of further guidance documents on key aspects of the EIA process.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to replace the current DCAN 10 which relates to the 2012 Regulations, when a Development Management Practice Note will be issued to reflect the provisions of the Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2017.

(AQW 10508/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Development Control Advice Note 10 (DCAN 10), was prepared by the former Department of the Environment under the unitary planning system. It provides general guidance on the operation of the Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012 and continues to be a material consideration, where relevant.

However, given the move to a two-tier planning system in 2015 and subsequent amendments to the EIA process, which are set out in the Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2017, officials in my Department are developing a number of pieces of further guidance relating to different aspects of the environmental impact assessment (EIA) process.

While it had been anticipated that the first element of guidance, dealing with unauthorised EIA development, would have been available in the autumn the current COVID-19 crisis has resulted in some delay. However, work is well underway to finalise this as soon as possible.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether each division has the same policy with regards to maintaining trees and shrubs along roads.

Ms Mallon: My Department's policy on tree and hedge maintenance is primarily focussed on road safety rather than aesthetic or amenity purposes. From a safety point of view the aim of tree, hedge and verge maintenance is to prevent obstructions to sight lines and traffic signs and to prevent trees or hedges becoming a danger to road users. This policy is applied across all of the Section Offices within the four DfI Roads Divisions as permitted by the availability of resources.

In general Departmental officials identify overgrown trees and hedges that endanger or obstruct road users during our routine maintenance inspections. Where such a tree or hedge is located on land adjoining the road, owners / occupiers are identified and requested to co-operate in the removal or cutting back of the trees or hedges thereby addressing any concerns in relation to public safety. Where the offending tree or hedge is located within the road boundary, appropriate remedial action is initiated by the Department with a response time commensurate with the severity of the defect.

It should be noted that most roadside trees and hedges are on lands adjacent to public roads and it is the responsibility of property owners or occupiers of those lands to ensure that trees and hedges/shrubs do not endanger or obstruct road users, including pedestrians. From time to time the Department will place notices in the local press and in farming journals reminding owners/occupiers of their obligations.

Whilst I would like to do more, the resource budget this year remains constrained and challenging and so within the funding envelope available, it is not possible to extend the tree and hedge maintenance activities beyond addressing safety related issues. Going forward I will continue to engage with the Finance Minister and Executive colleagues on an enhanced budget for road maintenance activities.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on planned road safety improvements at Urney Road and Great Northern link in Strabane.

Ms Mallon: As you are aware concerns have been raised with my officials about difficulties being experienced by drivers turning right from the Urney Road onto the A5, when traffic volumes are higher. There is currently no dedicated green filter arrow included in the traffic light sequence at this junction.

I had arranged for my officials to carry out a traffic survey in early December when it was expected that traffic volumes would have returned to more normal levels, however, with the recent announcement of further restrictions and their impact on traffic levels, this will be rescheduled to ensure the assessment reflects more normal levels. With more accurate survey information based on more typical traffic volumes a better informed decision can be made on whether the signal design should be updated to accommodate the right turning demand.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how much support her Department has provided City of Derry Airport since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10545/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As Minister for Infrastructure my powers relating to NI's three main airports are set down in the Airports (NI) Order 1994. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

Due to the exceptional circumstances that emerged from the COVID 19 pandemic back in Spring, my Department was, for expediency and logistical reasons, asked to facilitate the distribution of emergency funding on behalf of the NI Executive to the City of Derry Airport (CoDA) and Belfast City Airport.

In April, the NI Executive, DfT and HM Treasury agreed a package of temporary financial support over 3 months to maintain air connectivity, with the Executive meeting half of the costs. City of Derry Airport was granted £924,435 as part of this package.

Following a decision by the Executive, I announced £1.23 million in additional support for City of Derry Airport. This short term support grant is to help City of Derry Airport to remain operational and will be drawn down from the £10 million set aside by the Executive to provide support for airports during the pandemic.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, following the review of the scoping study commissioned by Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon Borough Council, to detail a timeline for a feasibility study for the Portadown to Armagh rail project.[R]
(AQW 10565/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My priority as Minister is to work on transport infrastructure that improves people's lives, connects communities and tackles the climate emergency through prioritising active and sustainable transport options. I believe that rail has huge untapped potential to deliver multiple benefits across our island.

A Feasibility Study for the Portadown to Armagh rail project would be a follow-on to the scoping study commissioned by Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon Borough Council. Recognising how this project can fit with my priorities I have committed to providing funding in partnership with the Council for the Feasibility Study. The intention is that Council will procure and manage the development of their Feasibility Study. There will be further engagement on this between my officials and council officers in December.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will work with her counterpart in Dublin to restore the Dublin to Belfast bus service to its original service levels.
(AQW 10569/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am committed to securing island wide transport services including between Belfast and Dublin and, in light of Bus Éireann's decision to cease its cross border services, I approved Translink's request to provide some of these cross border services to ensure the connectivity between the two major cities on our island.

This is something I will monitor closely in line with government restrictions, as safety and social distancing are fundamental in considering a resumption to original service levels. I am in regular contact with my counterpart Minister Ryan, particularly regarding all island transport services, and I will continue to liaise with him as we navigate the challenges presented by COVID-19.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to promote safe and active travel for children to and from school, whether she will consider the implementation of a footpath to provide a linkage on Chancellors Road, Newry, between St Moninna's Primary School and Ravens Glen housing development using the blue-green infrastructure fund.

Ms Mallon: I can confirm that my officials have previously considered a request for provision of a footway at this location and have deemed that any footway scheme would be developer led and provided in conjunction with development of adjacent lands which, as reflected in the current Area Plan, are included within the development limits of Newry.

My Department has recently approved an additional 76m of footway along Chancellors Road as part of a development proposal and any future development in this area will further extend this footway until it is connected to Ravens Glen.

In the meantime a number of additional safety measures in this area have been identified including provision of additional signage and associated road markings; works orders have been raised and works are expected to be completed in the New Year.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will (i) consider relaxing parking restrictions in the run up to Christmas in areas where it would be beneficial to do so; and (ii) engage with business representatives on this issue.

Ms Mallon: I am keenly aware of the difficulties currently being experienced by businesses. These are very difficult times and I am fully committed to doing all I can to help businesses and our communities get through and recover from the current pandemic.

Restrictions are in place to facilitate the safe and free movement of traffic, and to manage on-street car parking in all of our towns and cities. The removal of restrictions would result in increased traffic congestion, instances of inconsiderate or unsafe parking, and reduced turnover and availability of spaces for those wishing to visit our city and town centres. A reduction in the availability of parking during the day could potentially deter rather than encourage shoppers from coming into the city in the first place, to the detriment rather than benefit of retail businesses.

In weighing all of these factors up, I am of the opinion that the current approach represents the best way forward in terms of achieving a balance that accommodates the varied and competing needs of the different types of businesses and business users. I will continue to keep this matter under review.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the review of the Special Events on Roads - Road (Miscellaneous Provision) Act (NI) 2010 following the closure of the consultation window in September 2020.
(AQW 10580/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Roads (Miscellaneous Provision) Act (Northern Ireland) 2010, was enacted following a public consultation and Northern Ireland Assembly scrutiny. The legislation provides the power to close a road so that a special event, such as a street party, or sporting event, can be held on it. In most cases, the power is provided to the local Council in which the road is located.

I am aware that concerns have been raised by Councils, sporting bodies and other organisations, about how the legislation operates and I can confirm that my Department has just completed an exercise to gather views and data relating to how the legislation is operating in practice.

I am pleased to say that there were almost 800 responses to our online questionnaire and 14 letters/emails received. Detailed analysis of the information gathered is currently underway, and I have asked officials to provide the findings to me at the earliest opportunity. I can confirm that any findings will be made publically available then.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) to detail the number of (a) hours; (b) days; and (c) crossing sailings both ferries serving the Strangford ferry crossing have been out of operation at the same time, from 1 April 2020 to 31 October 2020; and (ii) to provide a copy of the service charter confirming the operating targets for provision of ferry services in Strangford Lough for 2020/21.

(AQW 10590/17-22)

Ms Mallon:

- (i) During the period from 1 April 2020 to 31 October 2020, both ferries serving the Strangford Lough Ferry Service crossing were out of operation at the same time for a total of:
- 59.5 hours out of a total of 2418 planned hours (primarily due to crew unavailability related to COVID-19);
 - 3.8 days out of a total of 214 planned days (In total 8 days, consisting of 1 full day and a number of partial days, were disrupted due to crew unavailability related to COVID-19); and
 - 246 times out of a total of 9556 planned sailings (primarily due to crew unavailability related to COVID-19).
- (ii) The operating targets set out in the Passenger Charter are to provide a safe, reliable, clean and effective service, which meets the following standards:
- vehicle ferry available for 97 per cent of planned crossings;
 - shelters, cabins and decks are to be kept clean and tidy;
 - complaints thoroughly and quickly addressed; and
 - loading and disembarkation supervised by crew for maximum customer safety.

During the period between 1 April 2020 and 31 October 2020, the ferry has been available for 97.4% of planned sailings.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether taxi drivers will be eligible for the hardship scheme if they temporarily downgraded their vehicle insurance for private use only due to shielding.

(AQW 10611/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Taxi Driver Financial Assistance scheme provides additional support to that which is available to self-employed drivers through the Self Employment Income Support Scheme (SEISS), which pays out 70% or 80% of previous profits and is the main source of support available for the self employed.

The Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme agreed by the Executive is designed to provide a contribution to overhead costs (including PPE) that have actually been incurred and which were not covered by the SEISS support. However if a driver has not incurred the overhead expenditure then they are not eligible for the payment of £1500. In order to ensure value for money, the scheme is dependent on actual expenses having been incurred between 22nd March and 30th September with applicants needing to show evidence of continuous taxi insurance for that period. The requirement for this evidence has been confirmed by Audit. The scheme is set up as a means of helping drivers with the overhead costs they have had to pay out.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail passenger numbers on the main railway routes, for each year from 2019.

Ms Mallon: The table below provides the passenger numbers on the main railway routes in the calendar year for 2019 and up to the 25th October for 2020.

	Total 2019	Ytd 2020
Bangor Line	3,296,290	1,079,631
Derry Line	2,979,823	998,329
Larne Line	3,185,656	1,152,592

	Total 2019	Ytd 2020
Portadown Line	4,642,523	1,587,240
Portrush Line	665,242	223,201
Local Lines	14,769,534	5,040,991
Cross Border Line	924,849	238,346
Total	15,694,383	5,279,337

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how her Department plans to assist local councils with the development of greenways.

(AQW 10658/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's Walking and Cycling Champion wrote to Councils in July seeking an update on the status of their greenway projects. Following consideration of the proposals, I announced £3.735 million funding investment towards the development of six greenway projects, where construction could begin this financial year.

All Councils were contacted in September this year to encourage them to continue the momentum for delivery of greenways and advance their projects through meaningful local consultation and engagement with landowners. I hope to be in a position to fund further greenway projects in the coming years, subject to budget provision for 2021/22.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the introduction of Residents Parking Schemes in (i) Bangor; and (ii) Holywood town centre.

(AQW 10664/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The first residents' parking scheme in Rugby Road / College Park Avenue, Belfast, came into operation during April 2018. A review of the scheme, which will reflect the needs, experiences and feedback of residents, is currently nearing completion. I will want to make sure that any lessons learnt from this scheme, and the other potential schemes that did not make it to implementation, inform wider policy on implementation of residents' parking schemes to the benefit of communities.

I can confirm that any findings will be made publically available and I will consider any new schemes in light of these findings.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure what costs the £1.23 million support grant announced for City of Derry Airport, based on 50% of the airports deficit this financial year, is going to cover.

(AQW 10717/17-22)

Ms Mallon: This money for City of Derry Airport will be targeted solely at supporting the airport to operate the essential flight routes servicing the North West and ensuring the safe operation of the infrastructure necessary for this. It is the minimum amount necessary to support Derry City and Strabane District Council, which owns the airport, to enable it to operate safely during COVID-19 related travel restrictions in the short term period to March 2021.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she intends to bring forward a bid to the Minister of Finance for grant support for (i) Belfast International Airport; and (ii) George Best Belfast City Airport as a result of downturn in trade arising from the COVID-19 pandemic.

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

Due to the exceptional circumstances that emerged from the COVID 19 pandemic back in Spring, the Department for Infrastructure was, for expediency and logistical reasons, asked to facilitate the distribution of emergency funding on behalf of the NI Executive to George Best Belfast City Airport and the City of Derry Airport (CoDA). This was the case once again when, on 19 November, I confirmed £1.23m in additional support to help CoDA remain operational.

In addition, in May 2020, the Minister of Finance announced 100% rates relief for Belfast International, Belfast City & City of Derry airports until 31 March 2021. This financial support is worth £2.2m, and £1.7m to BIA in particular.

Furthermore, whilst civil aviation is a reserved matter for the UK Government, the Department for the Economy has responsibility for the development of Northern Ireland's air connectivity and provides support aimed at maintaining connectivity during the COVID 19 pandemic and as part of recovery. The Department for the Economy has secured £2m for marketing support which is being delivered by Tourism Ireland and held recent discussions with Belfast International Airport to develop Trans-Atlantic and Middle East air routes

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues, the Finance and Economy Ministers, to maintain air connectivity across these islands and further afield, and to consider cases for support and other measures required by the Executive to support the aviation sector.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how the £10 million set aside to give support for airports during the pandemic has been allocated to date; and (ii) how much of this will be used to assist Belfast International Airport.
(AQW 10749/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

The Executive's most recent decision to set aside £10million as part of the October monitoring was to provide further support, as and when required, for airports during the Covid19 crisis and it is a matter for the Executive to decide how this funding is allocated.

Following an Executive decision, I announced £1.23 million in additional support for City of Derry Airport. This short term support grant is to help City of Derry Airport to remain operational and will be drawn down from the £10 million set aside to give support for airports during the pandemic.

Furthermore the Department for Finance is leading work on safety and security measures in all three airports and it is proposed that the remaining c£8.8 million continues to be held for this purpose.

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues, given shared statutory responsibilities, to maintain air connectivity across these islands and further afield.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on HGV restrictions in Clady village, Tyrone.
(AQW 10760/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Following the formal consultation on the proposed introduction of a 7.5 tonne weight restriction through Clady village in 2019, a number of responses were received from owners of local businesses who expressed concerns as to the potential impact of the proposed restrictions on their operations.

My officials are now considering if amendments can be made to the proposed weight restriction legislation which would mitigate the impact on local businesses.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in light of the £1.23 million package given to City of Derry Airport, whether she is considering giving financial support to Belfast International Airport.
(AQW 10768/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether there are plans to pause parking enforcement during the two week lockdown beginning 27 November 2020.

(AQW 10824/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The purpose of parking enforcement is to assist in the management of roads and streets by enforcing against dangerous, and inconsiderate parking that may impede the safe and free movement of pedestrian and vehicular traffic. The regular turnover of parking spaces provides improved access to businesses and other premises in a managed way. As this lockdown is only envisaged to last for two weeks I have no plans to suspend parking enforcement. However, I have asked my officials to monitor the situation and I will reconsider this approach if there are significant changes in circumstances.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to assist the recovery from COVID-19, to detail what work is being done in conjunction with the Department of Finance and the Department for the Economy to support Belfast International Airport.

(AQW 10912/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

Department of Justice

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the recruitment of more police officers.

(AQW 10055/17-22)

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): In the New Decade New Approach Document the British and Irish governments set out a number of priorities for the Executive, including increasing police numbers to 7,500. The Strategic Outline Case for increasing PSNI officer numbers has been approved by the Department of Finance to proceed to Outline Business Case and the PSNI are progressing this now.

Delivery of additional police numbers is largely dependent on the availability of Executive funding. There are also other considerations such as discussions with PSNI around ongoing requirements and operational considerations which are a matter for the Chief Constable.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister of Justice how much funding her Department is currently providing to organisations in the Foyle constituency to support victims of domestic abuse.

(AQW 10100/17-22)

Mrs Long: I can advise that during the current financial year my Department has provided £270,000 capital funding to assist Foyle Women's Aid 'One Safe Place' project to establish a Family Justice Centre in Londonderry/Derry city centre for victims of domestic abuse. This project is being delivered in partnership with the Department for Communities.

Further to my response to your Assembly question earlier this year (AQW 3016/17-22), you will note that my Department also provides funding to organisations not based in the Foyle constituency (Victim Support, Nexus and NSPCC) to support all victims of domestic violence and abuse across Northern Ireland, including those in the Foyle region.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice to detail the equality screening process applied to the tender for the proposed domestic and sexual violence advocacy service.

(AQW 10151/17-22)

Mrs Long: My Department carried out an equality screening exercise on the advocacy service policy which underpins and is reflected in the tender documentation.

This screening exercise has concluded that an Equality Impact Assessment is not necessary on the basis of positive impacts that will apply as a consequence of the service's introduction. The proposed new service is intended to strengthen and increase the existing help and support that is available to victims, regardless of their grouping under Section 75.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice to detail the conversations she has had, or plans to have, with victims relating to the proposed domestic and sexual violence advocacy service.

(AQW 10152/17-22)

Mrs Long: My Department did not engage with victims of domestic and/or sexual violence and abuse directly in the development of the new advocacy service. Rather, and from the outset, my officials engaged significantly with a range of key voluntary sector organisations representing the interests of victims. This took place over a prolonged period of time, to help inform policy development. This involved the establishment of a dedicated working group comprising Men's Advisory Project, Nexus, National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Victim Support Northern Ireland and Women's Aid Federation Northern Ireland. Extensive consultation was carried with this group on all aspects of the proposed model, tailored for the Northern Ireland context. Collective meetings of the working group, as well as individual meetings with its members, were held as well as a dedicated workshop to help shape the advocacy role.

My Department also consulted with existing support service workers currently employed by both Women's Aid NI (the Criminal Justice Support Worker and the Domestic Abuse Support Worker) and Victim Support NI (the Independent Sexual Violence Advisor).

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice to detail her position on the domestic and sexual violence advocacy service proposals, in relation to her Department's response in the Stakeholder Assurance Group minutes of 17 August 2020.

Mrs Long: The approach of my officials reflects the position I have agreed as Minister following consideration of the scoping exercise and options available. The intention of the new service is to provide the best possible level of support for victims across Northern Ireland within the resources that may be available. The model developed was fully informed by comprehensive research to determine the current level of service in place across Northern Ireland as well as within neighbouring jurisdictions. This research identified gaps in a number of areas which could not be ignored and which will be addressed via the introduction of a singular advocacy service for all victims of domestic and sexual violence and abuse, regardless of age or gender, who are engaged within the criminal justice system.

The advocacy service proposals were consulted upon extensively, and over a prolonged period of time, with statutory and voluntary sector partners. I consider that as domestic and sexual violence can be intrinsically linked, with commonality in terms of need, providing a singular service will, amongst other things, help ensure that a high quality consistent service can be applied in support of both important areas and that the service can be made available regardless of a person's age, gender or where they live in Northern Ireland.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice, in light of the Stakeholder Assurance Group Minutes of 17 August 2020, to detail any concerns she has proceeding with the domestic and sexual violence advocacy service proposal.

Mrs Long: I believe the new advocacy service will help plug gaps in existing service and will provide a consistent level of support to victims of domestic and sexual violence and abuse across Northern Ireland.

I am conscious of the significant benefits such a service will bring, not least in keeping victims safe but also in championing their interests.

It is my intent that its introduction will also go some way to enhancing the experience of those engaging directly with justice partners, empowering them to seek justice. In time, and depending on the availability of funding from strategic partners, any contract will provide scope to extend the breadth of the new service to support a wider pool of victims.

My officials, in conjunction with partners, will closely monitor the new service once introduced to ensure its effective delivery and that objectives set are being achieved.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice, in relation to the proposed tender from her Department for a domestic and sexual violence advocacy service, to detail her concerns regarding the opposition from stakeholder groups in relation to the All Population Role for this proposed service.

Mrs Long: I am aware of the extensive consultation, over a prolonged period of engagement, with key voluntary sector partners on the development of an advocacy service. I am grateful for their valuable contribution to this important initiative to date.

I remain of the view that provision of a singular service presents the best way forward in delivering effective advocacy support to victims across Northern Ireland and within the funding that may be available.

Providing support for victims, regardless of their gender, age or where they live in Northern Ireland remains at the centre of what we are seeking to achieve with introduction of this new service.

The singular service approach was chosen because of the intrinsic link between both domestic and sexual violence and abuse and also because of the commonality in the specifics of the advocacy role proposed for the new service across both victim areas.

The role of the advocate was developed following extensive scoping in terms of both local provision, as well as that available in neighbouring jurisdictions. A singular service approach presents the most effective use of resources locally to meet the needs of victims, ensuring consistency in approach and transferability of skill set by the advocates. It will also help ensure that support can be more readily targeted according to the level of need identified, where advocates skilled in both disciplines will be able to cover a more extensive remit and more effectively.

Any tender documentation issued will be clear on the need to provide safe and effective services to address all of the needs outlined within a singular service. Whilst our initial intent had been that this service could be delivered via a consortium to reflect the variety of specialisms across the sector, I understand that two key local voluntary sector organisations could not reach agreement on who would lead in such a consortium and in the absence of agreement, our procurement advice is to proceed to tender.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice (i) what plans her Department has for a new prison on the current HMP Magilligan site; and (ii) the potential cost of such a new build.

(AQW 10263/17-22)

Mrs Long: An Outline Business Case (OBC) 1 for the redevelopment of Magilligan Prison is near completion and will be submitted to Financial Services Division (FSD) over the next few months. The proposals in the OBC reflect the delivery model from the Estates 2020 discussion document, launched in December 2018 ie a 240 Accommodation Block, Independent Living Units (ILUs), a new Welcome & Visits Centre and a new Admin block.

The estimated costs for the proposed redevelopment are £109 million. Delays in development could however increase costs through construction cost inflation and the potential loss of resource savings.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice to detail the cost of repairs to HMP Magilligan, over the last five-year period.

(AQW 10264/17-22)

Mrs Long: The cost of all reactive maintenance repairs at Magilligan Prison over the last 5 financial years is as follows:-

Financial Year	Reactive Maintenance Repairs
2015/2016	£326,744
2016/2017	£415,834
2017/2018	£498,867
2018/2019	£355,829
2019/2020	£444,963

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice (i) how many; and (ii) what types of weapons related to terrorism, have been discovered by the PSNI over the last five year period.

(AQW 10265/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Department of Justice does not hold this information.

This is an operational matter for the Chief Constable.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Justice to detail the levels of domestic violence in the Belfast East constituency, in each of the last 3 years.

(AQW 10426/17-22)

Mrs Long: The recording of information on the number of reported incidents of domestic violence and associated statistics is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

You may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI.

You may wish to note that following Consideration Stage of the Domestic Abuse and Family Proceedings Bill provision has been made on a range of information that is to be reported on in relation to the domestic abuse offence (including where there is a child aggravator) and offences that are aggravated by domestic abuse.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Justice to detail the cost of maintaining Castlederg barracks since its official closure date.

(AQW 10456/17-22)

Mrs Long: The management of the PSNI estate is an operational matter for the Chief Constable, for which he is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

You may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the number of sexual offence cases dealt with at court involving child victims in (a) 2018/19; and (b) 2019/20; and (ii) the outcome of prosecutions at court involving sexual offence cases involving child victims in (a) 2018/19; and (b) 2019/20.

(AQW 10458/17-22)

Mrs Long: Departmental prosecutions and convictions datasets do not contain information on the age of a victim beyond that included in offence descriptions. Therefore, information on the numbers of prosecutions and convictions for sexual offences which specify the involvement of children in their description, has been included in the table. Information is held on a calendar year basis so figures for 2018 and 2019, the most recent year for which information is available, have been provided.

Prosecutions and convictions for cases involving sexual offences specifying involvement of a child 2018 - 2019

Year	Prosecutions	Convictions
2018	113	62
2019	163	98

Notes:

- 1 Figures relate to initial disposal at court. Appeals are not included.
- 2 Figures relate to cases where at least one of the offences prosecuted was a sexual offence that specified involvement of a child in the offence description.
- 3 This may be an undercount of the actual number of cases where there was a prosecution for a sexual offence where the victim was a child.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice, since the devolution of policing and justice, how many occasions has a Minister of Justice rejected proposals from the Northern Ireland Policing Board on officer remuneration and allowances.

(AQW 10489/17-22)

Mrs Long: Since I have held the position as Minister of Justice, I have not rejected any proposals from the Northern Ireland Policing Board in respect of police officer pay and allowances. It would be inappropriate for me to comment in respect of decisions made by previous Ministers.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Justice to detail her plans for the future of the temporary resting place at Kinnegar Barracks.

(AQW 10490/17-22)

Mrs Long: The temporary resting place will be retained for at least the duration of the Covid-19 pandemic. The longer term options for the resting place are currently under consideration.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of domestic abuse incidents reported to the PSNI in each of the last five years.

(AQW 10491/17-22)

Mrs Long: The recording of information on the number of reported incidents of domestic violence and associated statistics is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

You may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI.

You may wish to note that, following Consideration Stage of the Domestic Abuse and Family Proceedings Bill, provision has been made on a range of information that is to be reported on, in relation to the domestic abuse offence (including where there is a child aggravator) and offences that are aggravated by domestic abuse.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice (i) how many fines have been issued for improper use of fireworks or using fireworks without a licence in North Down, in each year for the past 5 years; and (ii) to detail the quantity of illegal fireworks seized in North Down in each year for the past 5 years.

Mrs Long: There have been no fines issued following a conviction at court for offences relating to improper use of fireworks or using fireworks without a licence, in any of the past 5 years, where defendants had an address in North Down at time of conviction.

The recording of information on the quantity of illegal fireworks seized in North Down and associated statistics is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

You may, therefore, wish to direct that part of your question to the PSNI.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister of Justice how much revenue was raised through the Offender Levy in each of the last five years.

(AQW 10595/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Offender Levy has raised a total of £1,797,597 in the last 5 years, which has been used to fund projects that support victims and witnesses in the criminal justice system and is broken down as follows:

2015-16	£233,020
2016-17	£256,215
2017-18	£354,572
2018-19	£365,725
2020-21 to date	£188,154

A full breakdown of Offender Levy receipts and allocation since the introduction of the Offender Levy in 2012 and can be found on the Department's website at <https://www.justice-ni.gov.uk/publications/victims-crime-fund>.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister of Justice which groups availed of funding through revenue raised through the Offender Levy in each of the last five years.

(AQW 10596/17-22)

Mrs Long: Revenue raised through the Offender Levy is allocated through the Victims of Crime Fund to projects that support victims and witnesses in the criminal justice process, including victims' and witnesses' initiatives that are intended to contribute to the achievement of commitments within the victim and witness action plan.

Over the last 5 years, Victim Support Northern Ireland, NSPCC Young Witness Service, Nexus and the Men's Advisory Project have received funding from the Victims of Crime Fund. A breakdown of the allocation of the fund over the last 5 years is as follows:

2015-16 Victims of Crime Fund		£233,020
Funding allocated	Organisation	Projects funded
£179,020	Victim Support NI	Support services for victims and witnesses (including a contribution towards the implementation of cloud computing).

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the number of reported incidences of serious sexual offences in Northern Ireland in each of the past five years; and (ii) her assessment of these in comparison with the statistics for England, Wales and Scotland.

(AQW 10598/17-22)

Mrs Long: The recording of information on the number of reported incidents of serious sexual offences and associated statistics is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

You may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of the Independent Reporting Commission's Third Report on progress towards ending paramilitary activity.

(AQW 10640/17-22)

Mrs Long: The IRC plays an important role in monitoring progress towards ending paramilitary activity in Northern Ireland. I welcome the Commissioners' third report, which, as always, reflects their extensive consideration of, and engagement on, the issues. I wholeheartedly agree with the Commissioners' assessment that "the continuation of paramilitarism 22 years after the Belfast/Good Friday Agreement is against the wishes of the people, is without justification and should end".

The Action Plan to Tackle Paramilitary Activity, Criminality, and Organised Crime is a cross-Executive initiative, not a justice issue alone. I want to reflect carefully on the recommendations made by the Commissioners with my Executive colleagues.

Some of the issues raised by the IRC, such as group transition, are complex and contentious: whichever approach is taken to addressing these issues will require significant engagement and discussion, including with the British and Irish Governments.

I am pleased the Commissioners have recognised the significant amount of work which is being delivered under the cross-Executive Action Plan. This collaborative effort, drawing on the strengths of all involved, is making a real difference in communities. As the Commissioners rightly acknowledge, we are currently operating in a less than ideal context, not least in light of the pressures brought to bear by the ongoing global pandemic. I have been very impressed by the way in which delivery partners have been more creative and innovative over recent months to respond to that context.

I share the IRC's hope and expectation that the restoration of the Executive and Assembly will create the opportunity for more active political engagement on the development of the Programme, and for a cross-cutting focus on some of the more sensitive and challenging issues that remain to be addressed. We now have the opportunity to build on the progress that has been made to date. New Decade, New Approach committed the restored institutions to re-doubling their efforts to tackle paramilitarism. Political leadership will be key to that success.

Department for the Economy

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what action she is taking to ensure that apprenticeships continue to promote a high level of engagement in learning, despite a lower level of on-site training due to COVID-19 restrictions.

(AQW 9988/17-22)

Mrs Dodds (The Minister for the Economy): My Department has responded quickly and decisively in response to the Covid-19 crisis: putting in place supplier relief measures to ensure the continued viability of our skills infrastructure; developing alternative assessment measures for vocational qualifications; providing guidance on learner support; and, supporting apprentices, under the age of 18, who lost their jobs to continue their training on the Training for Success programme.

Working collaboratively with partners and stakeholders, an Apprenticeship and Youth Training Recovery Package has been developed. This support package is underpinned by four key strategic priorities: minimising apprenticeship job losses; maintaining and growing the supply of apprenticeship opportunities; supporting apprentices who have been displaced; and, growing capacity in the youth training system. In order to help support employers' engagement with the apprenticeship system and the vital on the job training this provides, financial incentives have been made available to recruit new apprentices, including those previously made redundant, and also to return and retain furloughed apprentices through to successful completion of their apprenticeship.

My Department has provided advice and guidance to all ApprenticeshipsNI contractors - outlining COVID-19 contingency arrangements. With effect from the 1st November apprenticeship training is continuing for all apprentices (unless an apprentice is furloughed and has no agreement with their employer to continue training at this time).

A Digital Hardship fund was also established to support access to on-line learning for disadvantaged learners - with equipment and internet connectivity being prioritised for those in most need and including internet connectivity where required.

The Departments Quality Improvement Team commenced a Peer Support Initiative in 2019, where high performing training contractors are invited to provide peer support to training contractors that face challenges in aspects of the quality of delivery. This initiative is well placed to support providers as they continue to engage with learners in the current environment.

The review of private training contractors' and colleges' Quality Improvement Plans has maintained a strong focus on the quality of delivery - closely linked to supporting the health and well-being of all learners. Support with this process has been provided by the Education and Training Inspectorate. The resulting Quality Improvement Plans will provide further information as to themes that will require additional support in the future.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of whether apprenticeships in the hospitality sector can continue to provide quality skills training over the course of the winter, considering the heightened restrictions on hospitality due to COVID-19.

(AQW 9989/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Skills are a key driver of economic growth and provide a powerful tool to promote individual opportunity and social inclusion. This is especially true for apprenticeships that meet specific skills needs and provide a route into many careers across the economy, including hospitality.

In the current climate, I recognise that ensuring inclusive access to apprenticeships has never been more critical. They will play a significant contribution in providing high quality opportunities, maintaining the skills pipeline and supporting the renewal of the Northern Ireland economy.

This is why the Apprenticeship Recovery Package has been developed to minimise apprenticeship job losses, maintain and grow the supply of apprenticeship opportunities and support apprentices who have been displaced and lost their apprenticeship. The package is bespoke to the needs of our local economy and will help to ensure that our Apprenticeship system bounces back from the devastating impact of the COVID-19 crisis.

My Department also launched an Apprenticeship Challenge Fund to support innovative approaches and new collaborations to increase apprenticeship opportunities in Northern Ireland.

In relation to sustaining training, my Department has published information for employers and apprentices in respect of COVID-19. This information reflects the current guidance and is updated as the situation evolves. Going forward, updated Key Messages will be shared with the Further Education Colleges and Training Contractors delivering the ApprenticeshipsNI Programme as and when is necessary.

Apprenticeship training will continue to be delivered in line with government guidelines and, in the meantime, training suppliers have been asked to facilitate online learning and learning portfolio building work where possible.

My Department will be closely monitoring programme activity to ensure the continued delivery of the ApprenticeshipsNI programme across all sectors - including Hospitality.

Alternative assessment/awards measures for vocational qualifications have been developed in conjunction with the Department of Education, CCEA, Awarding Organisations and other key stakeholders.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the rate of unemployment in West Tyrone.

(AQW 10082/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The latest unemployment rate data for West Tyrone and other parliamentary constituencies are only available pre-COVID-19. This shows that the West Tyrone constituency had an unemployment rate equivalent to that of the Northern Ireland average.

The economic impact of COVID-19 has been unprecedented, the effects of which have been felt across all areas of Northern Ireland. Despite the UK Government providing support, including the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme and the Self-Employed Income Support Scheme, recent figures have shown a spike in the claimant count and redundancies across the whole of Northern Ireland over the last number of months.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for the Economy what recent discussions she has held with (i) industry representatives; and (ii) the UK Government on an aerospace industry taskforce to help safeguard jobs in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 10089/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I meet aerospace industry representatives and the sector body, ADS, on a regular basis to hear directly from them about the extraordinary challenges being faced by Aviation and Aerospace, induced by COVID-19. I also meet Whitehall Ministerial colleagues bilaterally and as part of a Devolved Nations Group to represent the economic interests of Northern Ireland including Aerospace.

I will host a meeting of the Northern Ireland Aerospace industry group again on 23 November and on for that occasion, I have invited Whitehall Ministerial colleagues from the Department for Business, Ministry of Defence and Department for International Trade, to hear directly about, not only the challenges being faced by businesses, but also the opportunities to diversify into other areas such as defence, as they begin to see beyond COVID-19.

There are two Task Forces already established at UK-wide level in response to the COVID-19 impact on Aviation and Aerospace. The Prime Minister established a Global Travel Taskforce under the joint Chairmanship of the Secretary of State for Health and Social Care and the Secretary of State for Transport to consider further how Government can address issues associated with international travel. The UK Aerospace Supply Chain Task Force, Chaired by Tom Williams and established in consultation with ADS and industry primes, is co-ordinating help to minimise the impact of COVID-19 by taking action to support the business continuity of critical UK aerospace suppliers in the short-term, whilst enabling longer-term recapitalisation and investments in strategic capabilities to ensure future competitiveness of the UK supply chain.

I remain firmly of the view that we cannot solve the existential crisis facing the sector on our own. Solutions lie in a collaborative and joined up approach across the UK, and internationally, and I shall continue to do everything possible to represent the interests of Northern Ireland in that context.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the current status of the city deal proposals for Londonderry and the North West.

(AQW 10103/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I welcome the significant investment planned from the City Deals Programme and the Inclusive Futures Fund for Londonderry and the wider North West Region. The proposed investment provides a tremendous opportunity to drive sustained inclusive growth for the region.

My Department has responsibility for a number of the proposed projects in the City Deal. These centre on innovation and digital and I am currently considering these.

In addition, my officials together with colleagues in Tourism NI, are continuing to engage with Derry City and Strabane District Council on the potential for some tourism proposals to be included in the overall City Deal/ Inclusive Futures Fund suite of Projects. Other proposed projects which focus on regeneration are the responsibility of the Minister for Communities.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy (i) for her assessment of the risk of disruption to examinations in the further education sector for the current academic year, as a result of COVID-19; and (ii) what actions she is taking to mitigate this risk.

(AQW 10204/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Covid-19 pandemic and ongoing social distancing measures continue to impact on the delivery and assessment of vocational qualifications in the further education sector and further disruption is a distinct possibility.

From the outset of the pandemic, my Department has been working closely with key stakeholders, including the further education sector, through a Departmental Task & Finish Group, to respond to the emerging challenges with regard to the safe and effective delivery of vocational qualifications.

The focus for this academic year is to ensure that awarding organisations put in place flexible contingency measures and adaptations for providers to be able to respond appropriately to changing needs throughout the academic year and to effectively support learners to complete their courses of study.

In addition, providers, particularly the further education sector given their prominence in terms of scale, have put in place a range of innovative ways to offer safe delivery of teaching and learning, including enhanced blended learning.

The Department will continue to closely monitor the situation through the Task & Finish Group and in conjunction with CCEA Regulation in anticipation of any further emerging needs.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for the Economy what measures her Department is taking to ensure that students can return home safely for the Christmas holidays.

(AQW 10211/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Given the overlap between the above questions, I have decided to answer them both in a single response.

In Northern Ireland, there are a number of cross-cutting issues related to student travel to be worked through, involving a variety of Departments. For this reason, the Executive Office has been asked to co-ordinate these plans, and a Task and Finish Group has been established to do so.

The various Departments involved are working collectively with other partners to develop and communicate a package of advice and support to help students stay safe, and to travel home safely at Christmas. This includes engaging with the local HE providers to agree a phased end to the semester and the facilitation of a move to online learning. The measures will also involve testing for students; public health authorities are working to agree the operational aspects of a testing programme to inform arrangements for student travel, while the relevant authorities will be engaged to consider the impacts on public transport.

In the interim, students should continue to follow the relevant public health advice in terms of travelling, and self-isolating when required.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will establish a cross-departmental working group, with the Department of Health, to work out how the return of university students over the Christmas holidays can be best managed. (AQW 10212/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Given the overlap between the above questions, I have decided to answer them both in a single response.

In Northern Ireland, there are a number of cross-cutting issues related to student travel to be worked through, involving a variety of Departments. For this reason, the Executive Office has been asked to co-ordinate these plans, and a Task and Finish Group has been established to do so.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will publish the legal advice in relation to Tamboran Resources Limited licence application that she referred to in the Assembly debate on 13 October 2020. (AQW 10256/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: In my speech to the Assembly on 13 October 2020, in response to the motion calling on the Executive to instigate an immediate moratorium on petroleum licensing for all exploration for, drilling for and extraction of hydrocarbon, I indicated that I could not support the motion as presented based on legal advice. That legal advice indicated that the course of action proposed in the motion would, most likely, be subject to challenge.

Such legal advice is protected by legal professional privilege and I do not intend to publish it.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy (i) whether Tamboran Resources Limited has indicated the technologies it proposes to use during the production stage relating to the exploitation of hydrocarbons in the proposed licence area; and (ii) whether it has stated that hydraulic fracturing will not be used. (AQW 10258/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) On 20 March 2020, Tamboran Resources (UK) Limited formally submitted a request to revise their Work Programme for application PLA2/16. Given the significant change to the Work Programme, the Department is in the process of scrutinising the revised proposal and is awaiting further information from TRUK.
- (ii) TRUK has indicated that the purpose of the proposed revised Work Programme is to remove the need to use high volume hydraulic fracturing from the Work Programme.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for the Economy what financial support her Department has provided to airlines since March 2020. (AQW 10425/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: COVID-19 has had a profound impact upon the aviation industry: globally, nationally and regionally since March 2020.

My responsibility is with maintaining and enhancing Northern Ireland's air connectivity, both domestically and internationally, which is essential to rebuilding Northern Ireland's economy. In doing so, I fully acknowledge that civil aviation is a reserved matter for the UK Department for Transport (DfT).

I had a key role in securing the £5.7m support package, announced by the Secretary of State for Transport on Friday 1 May, which enabled the Belfast City and City of Derry airports to remain open, and Aer Lingus and Loganair respectively, to operate essential flights to London, thereby safeguarding NI's air connectivity with GB during the initial COVID-19 crisis period.

The City of Derry Airport to London Stansted flight, operated by Loganair, is a Public Service Obligation (PSO) route, whose funding has been split, between my Department and the DfT, since May 2019. The total PSO funding provided by my Department for the period 1 March to 30 September 2020 is £171,304.

I have established and lead a Tourism Recovery Steering Group in response to COVID-19. This includes an air and sea connectivity sub-group, which involves the 3 NI airports and airlines. As a direct result, I successfully secured £2m to fund marketing support, to be delivered by Tourism Ireland by March 2021. I understand that Tourism Ireland has received funding requests from a number of airlines, that operate from all 3 NI airports.

My Department is always willing to consider any requests for support from airports/airlines that deliver Value for Money, are State Aid compliant and are within the policy remit and legal vires of my Department to deliver.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the other extraction techniques that are proposed for use by Tamboran Resources Limited in place of hydraulic fracturing in its revised work plan related to licence application PLA2/16. (AQW 10466/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 20 March 2020, Tamboran Resources (UK) Limited (TRUK) formally submitted a request to revise their Work Programme for application PLA2/16. Given the significant change to the Work Programme, the Department is in the process of scrutinising the revised proposal and is awaiting further information from TRUK.

Due to potential commercial sensitivities, the Department is not in a position to release any information pertaining to the proposed changes at this point.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for the Economy (i) what discussions there has been with UK Ministers and officials regarding the ending of the VAT margin scheme in Northern Ireland as a result of the Protocol on Ireland/Northern Ireland; and (ii) what proposals there are to mitigate against the impact to (a) local businesses importing second hand goods from the rest of the UK; and (b) Northern Ireland consumers. (AQW 10510/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The VAT margin scheme is very important to the operation of second hand car businesses in NI and I am very concerned that its removal will put pressure on businesses and could ultimately lead to increased prices to consumers.

I have written to the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and the Secretary of State for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy and asked them to urgently resolve this issue. My officials have also been liaising with HMRC on this issue.

There are no actions which the Executive could take to mitigate the impact of this on consumers or businesses as VAT policy is reserved.

Mr McGuigan asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the payment of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme. (AQO 1160/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Part A of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme, opened on 28 October 2020 and is targeted at those businesses named in the Health Protection regulations who are not eligible for support under the Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme. I welcome that £3million of assistance has been provided through the scheme to date. Part A has received 2,927 applications which officials are continuing to process as quickly as possible. Part B of the scheme which is aimed at those supplying goods or services to businesses named in the regulations, opened for applications on 18 November. 111 applications have been received to date and officials also continue to verify these and process eligible applications for payment as quickly as possible.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for the Economy to outline the progress made on processing applications to the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme. (AQO 1162/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Part A of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme, opened on 28 October 2020 and is targeted at those businesses named in the Health Protection regulations who are not eligible for support under the Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme. Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the payments made to businesses under Part A of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme. (AQO 1163/17-22)

Ms Hunter asked the Minister for the Economy to outline why 35,000 customers in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area were without electricity for part of the day on 10 November 2020.

(AQO 1165/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: This is a matter for NIE Networks. Enquiries can be submitted through the help and advice section in the NIE website.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the economic impact of COVID-19-related restrictions.
(AQO 1166/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The economic impact of COVID-19 and its subsequent restrictions has been unprecedented. Huge economic losses accumulated within a matter of weeks as a result of lockdown and industry shutdowns. At its most severe, during the spring, output in our economy was operating around 25% below normal. The shutdown of many industries led to the widespread furloughing of workers and a high uptake of self-employment grants. Even with these UK-wide schemes in place, there has been a spike in the claimant count and redundancies have shot up over the last few months. Our initial assessment of the most recent four-week circuit breaker suggests a potential loss of around £400m to our economy. This is on top of an estimated £4-5bn loss from the lockdown in the spring. The restrictions under the circuit breaker directly impacted on some 60,000 jobs, with huge consequences for those working in accommodation and food, close contact services, supply chain businesses, and the arts, entertainment and recreation sectors.

Ms Dillon asked the Minister for the Economy what actions her Department is taking to encourage women to take up careers in the engineering and manufacturing sector.

Mrs Dodds: I am passionate about diversity and inclusion in our economy, and my Department is taking forward a number of activities to encourage more women into our engineering and manufacturing workforce. Last month I was privileged to launch the Northern Ireland Women in Science and Engineering Hub. The NI WISE Hub was established by Matrix (the Northern Ireland Science and Industry Panel) and draws on a UK wide campaign with over 30 years' experience of building opportunities for women and girls in science, technology, engineering and mathematics. Committed employers will be supported to address gender gaps by embedding diversity strategies within their organisations. Matrix also recently launched the Pulsar website, which maps support organisations across Northern Ireland and showcases inspirational female role models, promoting the breadth of engineering and manufacturing opportunities available. These initiatives will be further developed in partnership with other organisations including Manufacturing NI, the Royal Academy of Engineering, Allstate, Grahams and the Equality Commission. My Officials continue to work closely with the FE College Curriculum Hubs and Sectoral Partnerships to produce regular sector-focused careers information bulletins. A bulletin for the Advanced Manufacturing Sector will be published online next month. Finally, in developing the new Skills Strategy we are engaging with stakeholders across industry and government, to develop better pathways to encourage women into engineering and manufacturing careers.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister for the Economy what assurances she can give that businesses will have unfettered access to the UK internal market from 1 January 2021.

(AQO 1168/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The right for Northern Ireland businesses to place goods on the UK internal market, as they do now, has been my overriding priority.

The UK Internal Market Bill, and the proposed Regulations defining a NI 'Qualifying Good', show that the repeated promises that have been given by the UK government to guarantee unfettered access to the GB market, are being acted upon.

I remain concerned, however, that clarity is not yet forthcoming on whether the UK and EU have agreed the position on exit summary declarations for goods leaving NI for GB. This would be a retrograde step and I continue to urge the UK government to press to ensure that this unwelcome administrative burden is not placed on NI businesses.

I am also concerned that the guarantees apply only to NI businesses sending their goods directly from NI ports. A significant amount of trade from NI for the GB market passes through Dublin port. I am continuing to press this point with the UK government so that all NI goods enjoy the unfettered access to the GB market that has been promised.

Mr Storey asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on her plans to support growth and job creation in the hydrogen economy, in particular in North Antrim.

Mrs Dodds: I recently made a statement setting out my ambition for the hydrogen economy, which I believe can play a key role in the future decarbonisation of energy and the growth of our economy. I recently provided funding to NI Water to purchase an innovative new electrolyser to trial in their waste water treatment works. This is a major early development in kick-starting the hydrogen economy. I am excited by some of the potential projects that can showcase our potential to develop cutting-edge hydrogen technology here in Northern Ireland, particularly in North Antrim. I met with Wrightbus earlier this year to learn about their plans to develop a hydrogen hub in Ballymena. This has the potential to create local jobs and support the local manufacture and fuelling of zero-carbon buses. My Department also recently met with Mid and East Antrim Borough Council on its plan to develop a Hydrogen Training Academy to facilitate specialised training to support job creation in the area. I am committed to leading on the growth of the hydrogen economy, and have met with Executive colleagues to ensure a joined-up approach and the BEIS Minister to explore UK funding opportunities for local projects.

Northern Ireland Assembly Commission

Mr Carroll asked the Assembly Commission (i) to detail the amount of food waste that was disposed of when the Assembly was not sitting between 2017 and 2020; and (ii) how the waste was disposed of.

(AQW 10498/17-22)

Mr Butler (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The provision of waste contractor services for the Assembly Commission is managed through a pan-government framework contract which encompasses Parliament Buildings and the wider Stormont Estate. The Estate Management team and its subcontractors provided the information in this response.

Within Parliament Buildings, it is not possible to separate the food waste generated by the catering operations and the food waste collected from the recycling bins located throughout the building. The following table includes the monthly figures in kilograms (kg) for both, from January 2017 to January 2020.

	2017 (kg)	2018 (kg)	2019 (kg)	2020 (kg)
January	4,019	1,370	633	735
February	2,924	1,850	640	-
March	4,019	1,910	632	-
April	3,654	1,014	648	-
May	4,750	1,863	665	-
June	4,020	972	685	-
July	2,558	1,026	588	-
August	4,751	1,014	628	-
September	617	368	657	-
October	760	633	647	-
November	760	633	148	-
December	1,070	633	513	-

The food waste from the Stormont Estate is transported directly to an anaerobic digestion plant where it is processed to produce fertiliser and biogas.

Written Answers to Questions

The Executive Office

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what is the status of Guidance for Ministers in the Exercise of their Official Responsibilities (March 2020) and the Conduct of Executive Business documents; and do they form part of the Ministerial Code, as defined in law.

(AQW 4516/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): Both Guidance for Ministers in the Exercise of their Official Responsibilities and the Conduct of Executive Business are non-statutory documents, although they contain references to certain statutory provisions. They do not form part of the Ministerial Code.

Mr Middleton asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the Derry/Londonderry Urban Villages Scheme.

(AQW 5561/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Urban Villages Initiative in Derry~Londonderry continues to enable a partnership approach with a diverse range of community-led and capital projects to support good relations and address key strategic actions identified by the local community in the Bogside, Fountain and Bishop Street.

2020/21 investment of approximately £275k is supporting delivery of five community-led projects on important local themes including: mental health and well-being; pathways to employment; community events/festivals; understanding shared heritage; and helping low-income families to build their financial resilience.

Local schools are also involved in cross-cutting schools programmes and all five local primary schools along with two post-primaries have achieved School of Sanctuary status in recognition of their work in providing safe, welcoming and inclusive places for children.

Two of the primary schools have also partnered up under our 'Buddy Up' scheme and three post-primaries schools are involved in the Creative Schools Partnership programme.

Groups leading key capital projects, such as New Gate Arts and Cultural Centre and Iona Enterprises, are also availing of a peer-to-peer community development programme. The area is also included in a new PEACE IV programme to tackle mental health and wellbeing in children and young people in Urban Village areas and the border regions.

More recently, the area has received funding from our 'Keeping Healthy, Staying Safe' initiative to support projects in providing healthy meals and personal protection measures to continue safe delivery in the current challenging circumstances.

In addition, there are twelve capital projects, seven of which have already been completed including the Abercorn Road Environmental Improvement Scheme. Recently £1.7M of investment was announced to transform the existing New Gate Arts and Culture Centre in the Fountain estate into a state-of-the-art shared performance space. Work is underway on site at the Cathedral Youth Club project and business case approval has also been gained for the Gasyard Heritage and Exhibition Centre.

Work is at an advanced stage to secure business case approval for redevelopment of the Meenan Square complex.

Mr McGlone asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what guidance has been provided to Government departments, public bodies and local councils to ensure that people with (i) sight loss; and (ii) other disabilities are not unfairly disadvantaged by changes to the built environment or other measures taken in response to COVID-19.

(AQW 5597/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Disability Discrimination Act 1995 places a duty on service providers to make reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities to help them to overcome barriers in accessing goods and services. Any changes to the built environment or other measures taken in response to Covid-19 should comply with current building regulations, relevant legislation and best practice guidance. Those responsible for buildings should make reasonable adjustments to avoid disadvantaging any users of their buildings.

Mr Middleton asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the High Streets Task Force.
(AQW 9026/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: This is a priority for us. Officials have been tasked with the establishment of the High Street Task Force Reference Group and the first meeting will take place in the next few weeks.

It is clear that our town and city centres face a range of economic and social challenges. Whilst the Covid-19 pandemic has undoubtedly exacerbated the situation, many of the challenges are long-standing; stemming from the financial crisis of 2009, prolonged underinvestment in infrastructure, and changing patterns of consumer behaviour.

This calls for a strategic, sustained response, with Departments and local government working in partnership to deliver a vision for sustainable town and city centres, as thriving sustainable hubs for the retail, services, hospitality and residential sectors.

Our aim is to bring a proposal to the Executive for discussion in the near future.

Mr McCrossan asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether (i) they have written to United States president-elect, Joe Biden, to congratulate him following the US presidential election; and (ii) they have invited him to Ireland to discuss future economic opportunities.
(AQW 10084/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The First Minister and deputy First Minister wrote to President-elect Joe Biden on 7 November 2020 to congratulate him on his success in the Presidential election of 3 November 2020.

In their letter of congratulations, First Minister and deputy First Minister highlighted long standing economic and cultural links between Northern Ireland and the United States, and their desire to strengthen these links as we set about rebuilding after the pandemic. They acknowledged the President-elect's strong connections with the island of Ireland and looked forward to welcoming him when he is in a position to visit. They expressed the hope that they will get the opportunity to meet the incoming President in the not too distant future.

Miss Woods asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what interim arrangements are in place within the Commission to support victims and survivors in the absence of a Victims and Survivors Commissioner.
(AQW 10178/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: We have instructed our officials to commence the process for the appointment of a Victims Commissioner. In the meantime, as a body corporate the Commission continues in legal existence even in the absence of a Commissioner. The Chief Executive Officer is now responsible for the day-to-day business of the Commission.

CVS will continue to operate on the basis of the work programme previously agreed by the Commissioner before her term ended and the Commission staff are still available to continue to support and assist Victims and Survivors as they have always done.

Mr Muir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, in light of delays encountered to date, whether they intend to publish revised timescales for the implementation of New Decade, New Approach.
(AQO 628/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The New Decade, New Approach document contains a wide range of proposals which, taken together, constitute an ambitious and very challenging package of measures to be taken forward.

Whilst the Executive's priorities in recent months have been the management of the COVID-19 pandemic and charting the path for recovery, some of the NDNA proposals are already being progressed at a departmental level or are already implemented.

Looking forward, the Executive will soon have the opportunity to consider the totality of the NDNA proposals in the context of work underway on the development of a multi-year PFG from 2021.

Mr Blair asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the establishment of support services for the survivors of institutional abuse.
(AQO 1210/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: We are pleased to say that the HIA Support Service was officially launched on Tuesday 1 December 2020. This is another important step forward in helping to ensure that victims and survivors of historical institutional abuse can access the support they need.

The Victims and Survivors Service (VSS) will deliver dedicated health and wellbeing services to HIA victims and survivors. This will include: dedicated health and wellbeing caseworkers; psychological therapies and other talking therapies; disability aids; support for those with persistent pain; welfare support; drop-in and social support; personal development; and, when COVID restrictions allow, complementary therapies.

Officials, along with staff from VSS and the Interim Advocate's Office, are continuing to engage with the victims and survivors groups regarding the design and implementation of the service.

Going forward the Executive Office will rely heavily on advice from the new Commissioner, Fiona Ryan, who takes up office on 14 December 2020 – a further key step in the implementation of the Hart report. She, in turn, will engage with victims and survivors, including through the new Advisory Panel.

Ms Bunting asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what discussions have been held with Her Majesty's Government and the government of the Republic of Ireland with regard to the Troubles-related incident Victims Payments Scheme.

(AQO 1207/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: There has been ongoing correspondence between Executive Ministers and the Secretary of State in relation to the source of funding for the Victims' Payments Scheme.

Along with the Finance Minister and the Justice Minister, we have requested a meeting with the Secretary of State to discuss this matter. While the Secretary of State has very recently agreed in principle to this meeting, a date has not yet been confirmed.

We have had no discussions with the Irish government on the Victims' Payments Scheme.

In response to a recent information gathering exercise commissioned by the Department of Finance, officials provided estimated figures for the Scheme for next 3 years of £165M.

In addition, the formal designation of the DOJ and the funding of £2.5M advanced by the Executive has meant that a substantial programme of work is being taken forward to put in place the necessary administrative preparations for establishment of the scheme. This has already enabled the progress of critical IT developments such as the completion of the Discovery phase, and has allowed the recruitment of Board members to commence.

We will continue to work to do all that we can to help this scheme get delivered as soon as possible.

Ms Flynn asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the progress of the Interdepartmental Working Group on Mother and Baby Homes, Magdalene Laundries and Historical Clerical Child Abuse in respect to the Historical Clerical Child Abuse element of their work.

(AQO 1208/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: It is important that the Executive continues to hear the experience of people who have experienced clerical abuse, and responds to their needs.

The Inter-Departmental Working Group was established by the Executive to take forward work on historic Mother and Baby Homes and Magdalene Laundries, as well as historical clerical child abuse which fell outside the terms of reference of the Historical Institutional Abuse Inquiry.

The Department of Health leads the work on Mother and Baby Homes and Magdalene Laundries while the Executive Office leads the work on historical clerical child abuse.

The working group intends to commission a research project on clerical child abuse shortly.

The Independent Chair, Judith Gillespie, has established a Reference Group of victims and survivors and their representatives. The group met for first time on 16 November and offered a number of comments on the proposed scope of the research, which officials are now considering.

The research will not be restricted to abuse perpetrated by ordained clergy; it will also include abuse by those carrying out a role related to the ministry of a religious institution or faith group. The research is a key step in deciding the best way forward on addressing the impact and legacy of abuse. And it will help to inform how we can best address the needs and concerns of people affected, which is paramount.

Mr Humphrey asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what support is being provided by the Urban Villages Initiative for the work of the North Belfast Advice Partnership.

(AQO 1213/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The North Belfast Advice Partnership comprises five organisations including Ballysillan Community Forum; Ardoyne Association; Ligoniel Improvement Association; Vine Centre and Tar Isteach, who work in collaboration across the North Belfast Urban Village area.

Since 2018, under its community led programme, the Urban Villages Initiative has been supporting the Connected Futures project, with NBAP as a named partner. In 2020 the project's lead partner is the Ardoyne Association and prior to that, Ballysillan Community Forum, both NBAP organisations.

The core aim of all Urban Village projects is to improve good relations outcomes and develop thriving places. Connected Futures recruits and trains 15 volunteers each year in the area of welfare rights and volunteering on a cross-community basis. The volunteers are trained and deployed together across the Ardoyne/Ballysillan area, increasing participant's knowledge, relationships and mobility. A further strand of the current project trains local participants on a cross-community basis to gain appropriate, industry-recognised qualifications with direct access to employment opportunities in the Care Home sector in North Belfast.

There is significant cooperation and cross community collaboration in this area with many community partners working alongside NBAP organisations including NBWISP, Sunningdale, Marrowbone Community Association, North Belfast Alternatives and Good Morning NB. NBAP continues to work collaboratively with community organisations, schools and local businesses, complementing other statutory services.

Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs

Mrs Barton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what plans he has to provide support for farmers as a replacement for the Basic Payment Scheme.

(AQW 9160/17-22)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs): I am working to develop a tailored support regime that will help farmers to become more productive and to maximise the sustainable returns they can achieve from the assets at their disposal. These assets include the environmental assets on the farm and therefore the delivery of environmental outcomes will form a major part of the overall support framework going forward.

I provided some detail on my plans in my statement to the Assembly on the 17 November 2020.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to prevent the use of (i) incineration; and (ii) landfill for unsold clothing suitable for reusing or recycling.

(AQW 9722/17-22)

Mr Poots: War Memorials

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether Northern Ireland Environment Agency grants are available for the restoration of war memorials.

(AQW 10194/17-22)

Mr Poots: The Environment Fund is a key delivery mechanism through which DAERA's Environment, Marine and Fisheries Group and Northern Ireland Environment Agency secure delivery of strategic environmental outcomes through the provision of grant aid and partnership working with not-for-profit organisations and councils.

As the remit of the Environment Fund relates to environmental outcomes such as improvement and monitoring of habitats and species and promotion of health and wellbeing, the restoration of war memorials is not within its remit. I have also considered more broadly across other funds within my Department but there is nothing that would be applicable. I know that you have raised this issue with other Departments to explore whether they can be of assistance. I am also aware that local council areas maintain war memorials and, if you have not already, there may be merit in exploring with them.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to detail the current advice to landowners to deal with ash trees affected by dieback disease.

(AQW 10215/17-22)

Mr Poots: Landowners and those with responsibilities for management of trees are encouraged to remain vigilant for symptoms of ash dieback infections. Detailed information and guidance for owners of ash trees affected by the disease is provided by DAERA, and is published on the Department's website at;

<https://www.daera-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/daera/support-%26-advice-on-chalara-affected-woodland-august-2019.pdf>

In particular the guidance provides important advice on tree safety management to those with responsibilities, taking account of the situation and extent of affected ash trees. Landowners can access information from the guidance on the regulatory requirements where they wish to fell affected trees to manage the impacts of the disease and increase the resilience of woodlands. In addition, the eligibility criteria are set out for grant support, available from DAERA, to replant trees and support woodland recovery.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how common dieback disease is in ash trees, broken down by local council area.

(AQW 10216/17-22)

Mr Poots: DAERA surveillance and monitoring of ash dieback disease (Hymenoscyphus fraxineus) since 2012 has confirmed that the disease is affecting trees in the wider environment across all local council areas in Northern Ireland.

The following table summarises for the period 2017 to 2020, findings of ash dieback that have been confirmed across a range of single trees and groups of ash trees, by council area.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what plans he has to support the wool sector.
(AQW 10297/17-22)

Mr Poots: Since the start of the pandemic I and my officials have been meeting with industry stakeholders on a regular basis and I have met with the Ulster Wool Marketing board to hear and discuss their concerns. I am aware of the impact that COVID-19 has had on the global market for wool however I am pleased to hear that wool markets have reopened and that Ulster Wool have been able to market wool from the 2019 wool clip, albeit at a much reduced market price.

Wool from the 2020 clip hasn't yet been marketed and Officials are continuing to monitor the market in the hope that the modest price rises that have been seen recently will continue. I would also note that any potential options for future support must be fully compliant with relevant State aid rules.

The wool clip is an important part of sheep production especially in terms of animal welfare but I note that wool sales only account for approximately 1.3% of the output per ewe. With markets for lamb remaining strong this year throughout the summer and autumn, the loss in value estimated at 75 pence per fleece traded, has had a relatively small impact on enterprise profitability.

To date the focus for my Department has been on ensuring COVID-19 support payments are made to producers for losses incurred due to reduced market returns from the main contributor to enterprise output. In most cases this has been for perishable products or those that lose substantial value if held back from the market or stored, which is not the case for wool.

With other sectors having also incurred significant losses and I am considering further support measures, these will have to be prioritised with a focus on compensating for losses attributed to the main element of enterprise output and profitability.

In the longer term I intend to work closely with stakeholders from the sheep industry and Ulster Wool to develop a strategy for sustainable wool production. I have asked my officials to consider and investigate options for how this can be developed.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs when the discussion document on the Environment Bill will be published.

(AQW 10354/17-22)

Mr Poots: It is intended that the discussion document on the plans, principles and governance aspects of the Environment Bill should be published imminently.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to AQW 8150/17-22 and AQW 8428/17-22, (i) whether this includes farm funding; and (ii) if so, to detail the relevant figures excluding such farm funding.

(AQW 10420/17-22)

Mr Poots: Further to my responses to AQW 8150/17-22 and AQW 10166/17-22, I can confirm that payment details found at <http://cap-payments.defra.gov.uk/> are categorised into rural development, direct aid and market schemes. In addition details of the measure description under which each beneficiary received funding is also available.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what support his Department is providing to help farmers prepare their farms for winter.

(AQW 10634/17-22)

Mr Poots: To help farmers prepare for the winter, my Department on an ongoing basis provides practical advice and information on a range of topics. These include fodder budgeting, preparing cattle for housing, slurry management and preparing for extremes of weather. The information is published on the DAERA website, agriculture press and also discussed at Business Development Group meetings and webinar events. An example of this are the monthly management notes prepared by CAFRE which appear in local press and are available on the CAFRE website under monthly news. In addition, poultry farmers and bird keepers have been reminded about the threat of Avian Influenza from migrating birds at this time.

Along with Health Minister Robin Swann, I recently launched Rural Support's Winter Programme that aims to help farmers deal with the pressures of farming throughout the winter months, to remain resilient, to keep their farm sustainable and aid positive physical and mental health. The programme addresses topics and issues identified through an extensive survey of farmers and farm workers carried out by Rural Support, and I would urge the farming community to actively engage in order to help increase their capacity to deal with these pressures.

In the coming weeks, messages on winter preparedness will be reinforced with further information and publications in the media related to managing drinking water infrastructure on the farm, and animal welfare considerations in severe weather conditions.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made on the current trends of calf prices.

Mr Poots: On a weekly basis my Department publishes a statistical report that contains the latest average market prices for livestock and crops. Within each of these weekly reports, average drop calf prices are reported for the latest week along with comparisons against prices in previous periods.

The weekly reports show that average drop calf prices for 2019 were £208 per head with a minimum average weekly value of £179 per head and a maximum average weekly value of £258 per head over that year. The weekly reports also show that prices for drop calves in 2020 were within the range of those from the previous year until live markets closed in March due to Covid-19 restrictions. Once live markets opened again and price reporting recommenced in May there was a substantial uplift in average weekly calf prices with average weekly values ranging between £274/head and £326/head until early September. Since then, average weekly calf prices have weakened to between £234/head and £268/head for the weeks up to mid-November.

With the closure of live markets from March until May a back-log of drop calves would have developed on farms. Therefore, when live markets re-opened in May there would have been older drop calves appearing in the marketplace and these would have been worth relatively more. This may have contributed to some of the increase in the average drop calf price from May onwards. Furthermore, beef prices were similar when live markets closed in March and opened again in May. However, since then beef prices increased and by early July were 30p/kg higher which equates to a difference of around £100/head for a finished animal. This increase in beef prices would also have contributed to the increase in drop calf prices since live markets re-opened. Finally, the decrease in prices since early September is in line with the trend of past years and reflects the fact that relatively more drop calves are available in the market place between September and April.

In summary, my Department officials have assessed that there has been several factors that have contributed to the trend in average drop calf prices this year. These include the temporary closure of live markets due to covid-19 restrictions, rising beef prices, and the seasonality of births within the dairy herd. In particular, the temporary closure of live markets looks to have distorted the 2020 trend in drop calf prices and this is something that I am keen to avoid going forward.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, what assessment his Department has made of the potential effect on air quality levels in County Antrim of the proposed energy park at Kilroot Power Station.

(AQW 10638/17-22)

Mr Poots: Dear Mr Blair

The Industrial Pollution and Radiochemical Inspectorate in NIEA has held preliminary discussions with the operator regarding the regulatory process and additional permitting requirements in relation to the proposed energy park at the Kilroot power station. Any new large combustion plant must obtain a new permit or a variation of an existing permit under the Pollution Prevention and Control (Industrial Emissions) Regulations (NI) 2013 prior to operating, and the application must include an air quality impact assessment report.

Given that the proposals are for new technologies, they will be required to employ Best Available Techniques (BAT), therefore emission limits for any new plant will be much tighter, and will result in a reduction in air emissions from the installation. NIEA will carry out an assessment on any application received and will consult with all relevant statutory authorities.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to AQW 8129 17-22, to detail the species of trees have been planted thus far.

(AQW 10742/17-22)

Mr Poots: Tree species planted with support from Forestry Grant Schemes and on Departmental land pursuant to AQW 8129 17-22 includes the following; broadleaf species of oak, birch, alder, hazel, wild cherry, rowan, crab apple, willow, rowan, aspen, field maple, hornbeam, and beech. These account for 426,000 trees of which approximately 95% are native tree species. Conifer tree species of Sitka spruce, Norway spruce, western red cedar, Douglas fir and Scots pine account for 148,000 trees.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs whether farmers will be eligible to apply for any of the new COVID-19 financial support schemes.

(AQW 10759/17-22)

Mr Poots: On 23 November our Finance Minister, Conor Murphy announced a £300 million support package including over £200 million for businesses and £98 million of COVID-19 funding to support the most vulnerable.

Whilst there are no particular elements of this funding that relate specifically to farmers. Farmers and farm families may be eligible to benefit from the following elements of the funding package.

£95 million is being allocated to a High Street Voucher Scheme this funding will be distributed across all households within Northern Ireland.

£44.3 million is being provided to fund a one-off £200 heating payment for those with disabilities who are on higher disability benefits and older people in receipt of pension credits.

£20 million is being provided to support company directors who have been without support until now. The majority of farm businesses are formed as sole traders or partnerships but there are a small number who are formed as limited companies. This funding will help to support farmers who are listed as company directors.

The key support measures that farmers can avail of have been in place for some time and remain open. These include:

The Self Employed Income Support Scheme (SEISS), a third grant has opened and is available to support self-employed individuals and members of a partnership, including farmers that have had a new or continuing impact from coronavirus between 1 November 2020 and 29 January 2021.

The Bounce Back Loan scheme helps small and medium-sized businesses to borrow between £2,000 and up to 25% of their turnover. The maximum loan available is £50,000. The government guarantees 100% of the loan and there isn't any fees or interest to pay for the first 12 months. After 12 months the interest rate will be 2.5% a year.

The Bounce Back Loan scheme remains open for applications until the 31 January 2021. If a farmer already has a Bounce Back Loan but borrowed less than they were entitled to, they can top up their existing loan to the maximum amount. The top-up must be requested by 31 January 2021.

Other forms of finance include The Coronavirus Business Interruption Loan Scheme (CBILS) which helps small and medium-sized businesses to access loans and other kinds of finance up to £5 million. This is not available to farmers if they have already availed of a Bounce Bank Loan.

The Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme also remains open for farm businesses who are unable to maintain staff in post because their operations have been affected by coronavirus (COVID-19).

The Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme will remain open until 31 March 2021. From 1 November 2020 farm businesses can claim 80% of an employee's usual salary for hours not worked, up to a maximum of £2,500 per month.

Details of COVID-19 Support measures are constantly evolving and I would encourage everyone to visit the NI Business Info website www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk where further details on the range of COVID 19 support measures for businesses can be found. These details are updated and added to on a regular basis.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) for an update on Bord Bia schemes to be renewed this year under the EU State Aid regime; (ii) to detail future participation in the schemes for agriculture products; and (iii) for his assessment of the economic impacts if Bord Bia schemes are not renewed.

(AQW 10865/17-22)

Mr Poots: I am aware of concerns that Northern Ireland producers and processors may no longer be eligible to participate in the Bord Bia quality schemes after the end of the Transition Period. The Bord Bia schemes are due for renewal under the EU State Aid regime later this year. My officials have liaised with Bord Bia's parent Department, DAFM, seeking clarification on any potential issues and I also raised the matter with my counterpart in Dublin at the time, former Minister Calleary. Having considered all the legal issues involved, in early September, DAFM submitted an application for renewal of the relevant State Aid approval on a no-change basis, and is currently awaiting the EU Commission's response. Continued participation of NI businesses in these schemes is beneficial to both our jurisdictions. I am due to meet with DAFM Minister McConalogue on 3 December and this issue is tabled for discussion alongside other important matters.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) for his assessment of exports and imports status regarding animals; (ii) whether he is aware of concerns raised specifically by blacksheep breeders; and (iii) what consideration he has given to making an application for a derogation.

Mr Poots: I am ever mindful of the need to protect animal health status in Northern Ireland and its associated access to export markets.

I am aware of the concerns raised by blackface sheep breeders in relation to the movement of sheep between Great Britain and Northern Ireland following the end of the transition period.

My officials will imminently be liaising with their colleagues in other UK administrations with regard to these concerns, as they continue to work to provide the clarity needed to stakeholders on this and other issues relating to the post transition movement of animals.

I also intend to engage with my Ministerial counterparts across the UK on the issues which the blackface sheep breeders have raised.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to detail his plans to grow and develop organic agriculture.

(AQW 10909/17-22)

Mr Poots: My Department offers support to farmers for conversion and management to certified organic farming standards through the Environmental Farming Scheme (EFS). After three tranches of the EFS since 2017, the Department is supporting 631 hectares under the Organic Conversion option and 2,506 hectares under the Organic Management option.

The Department also liaises with Organic NI, which is the sector's producers group, in relation to organic farming issues.

My Department previously funded the Organic Action Plan Group Northern Ireland (OAPGNI), which oversaw delivery of an action plan to grow and develop the organic sector. However, growth of the sector will be dependent on market demand for organic produce.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) what protocols are in place for the movement of mushroom substrate after 1 January between (a) Northern Ireland and Great Britain; (b) Great Britain and Northern Ireland; (c) Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland; (d) Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland; and (ii) whether he anticipates any difficulties for the mushroom farming sector.

Mr Poots: The chicken litter component of mushroom substrate is a category 2 Animal By-Product (ABP). European Union (EU) law prohibits the movement of category 2 ABPs from the EU to third countries. The process for moving mushroom substrate between Northern Ireland (NI) and Great Britain (GB) after 1 January 2021 will, therefore, depend on the outcome of the UK's ongoing negotiations with the EU (albeit that there is no currently no NI to GB trade in mushroom substrate).

Mushroom substrate can continue to move from GB to NI after 1 January 2021 as long as it has been processed in an approved facility as required by EU Regulation No. 142/2011 and consignments are accompanied by an Export Health Certificate (EHC) for the chicken litter component. If it contains any other category of ABP, it will also have to be accompanied by the relevant EHC for that material. Any EHCs required will need to be provided by the relevant compost manufacturer in GB.

The processes for the movement of mushroom substrate between NI and the Republic of Ireland (ROI) will not change following the end of the transition period.

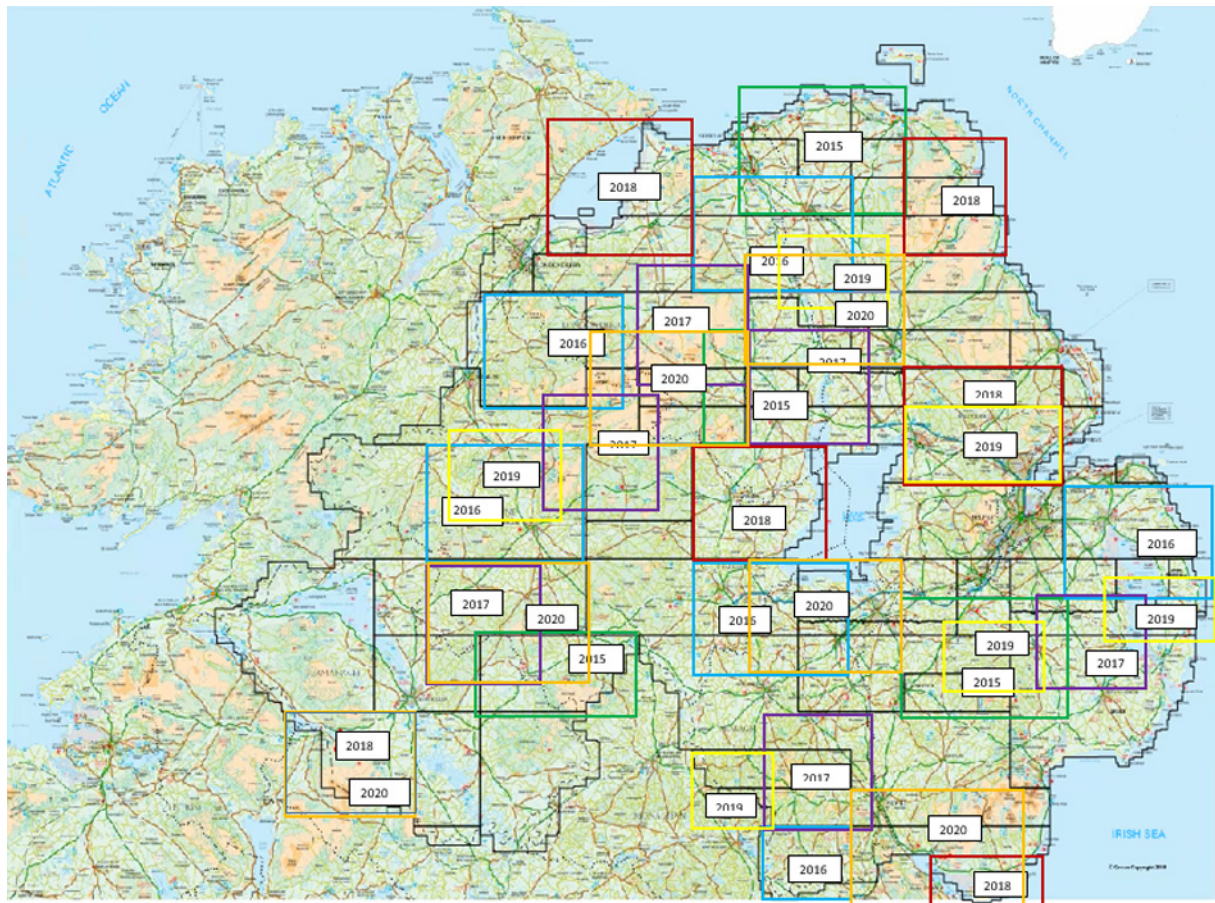

As mushroom substrate is not currently moved from NI to GB, and will be able to continue to move from GB to NI with certification (EHC) from 1 January 2021 there are not expected to be any significant issues arising for the mushroom sector in NI, provided manufacturers in Great Britain can issue the certification needed.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs which geographical areas were zoned for Basic Payment Scheme inspection by satellite in the years (i) 2020; (ii) 2019; (iii) 2018; (iv) 2017; (v) 2016; and (vi) 2015.

Mr Poots: A number of geographical zones are selected at random within Northern Ireland each year and contemporaneous satellite imagery is obtained for these areas. A number of farm businesses that fall within these zones are then selected for Basic Payment Scheme On The Spot Checks. A visual representation of these zones has been provided as this best identifies their geographical locations. The first map identifies all the zones which have been selected since 2015 onwards. Each zone has been overlaid and colour coded depending on the year. The subsequent maps individually identify each zone for the years requested.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs when payments will issue to farmers on the Environmental Farming Wider Scheme.

(AQW 10978/17-22)

Mr Poots: It is planned to commence payment of all EFS Higher and Wider 2020 claims in early April 2021.

All administrative and on the spot checks must be carried out before any payments can issue. The extension of the time available to Tranche 3 applicants to complete their commitments from 1st June 2020 to 31st December 2020 has meant that checks of these claims can only commence in January 2021.

Department for Communities

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for Communities what steps will be taken to reduce food poverty as the furlough scheme closes and people face redundancy.

(AQW 7521/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister for Communities): Since the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic my Department has led on an Access to Food Programme supporting both those who were shielding and others who found themselves facing food insecurity for any other reason. This included the delivery of food boxes which was a critical element of the Department's response.

As we have moved into the next phase of the emergency the programme has been reviewed looking at the range of interventions available and the emerging needs of the community, in discussion with Councils, Trusts and Voluntary and Community sector partners. A key purpose of the review was to consider ways of building a level of sustainability into any future access to food programme. The position on funding and ongoing cost was considered as part of that review.

Firstly, I can confirm that my Department has invested almost £800k to support Fareshare to deliver an increased supply of food to community food providers. Secondly, we have also made a further £750k allocation to Councils for a COVID-19 Access to Food Fund. This will help deliver a more strategic response to the issue, recognising that whilst food is at the forefront of need, support and advice on wider issues and the need to link into a strong network of local services is so important, especially with the challenges to our local economy. Thirdly, a business case is also in development to consider the roll out of the Social Supermarket model. This is following the success of a five pilot programme launched in October 2017 as part of the Welfare Mitigations package. A Social Supermarket offers food provision alongside a wraparound of support to address the underlying causes of food insecurity. I believe this model has the potential to form a sustainable part of the food response in the medium to long term.

My Department has recently received an additional allocation of £3.5m for Food Support and officials are currently working on proposals as to how best to utilise this between now and March, recognising the short term needs of vulnerable people across Christmas and New Year. These funds will aim to bolster and complement existing supports.

In going forward I am committed to delivering long-term sustainable solutions to poverty in all its forms including food poverty. I'm very much aware of the increasing need for food across our communities and the likelihood of this continuing as the economic consequences of the pandemic continue. The issue of food insecurity and the associated impacts of Covid-19 cut across all Departments. Tackling this in the longer term must be considered within the broader context of an Anti-Poverty Strategy that is well informed throughout its development with the involvement of our citizens and communities.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for Communities what measures she is taking to introduce a self-isolation support grant for people on low income.

(AQW 8994/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 25 March Minister Hargey responded swiftly to the pandemic by introducing a non-repayable Discretionary Support COVID19 living expenses grant where a person or a member of their immediate family is diagnosed with COVID-19 or is advised to self-isolate in accordance with guidance published by the Regional Agency for Public Health and Social Well-being.

There is no limit on the number of Discretionary Support COVID19 awards a person may receive as long as they meet the eligibility criteria. The amount payable is based on each applicant's individual circumstances and will include a specific amount for all dependent children in the household.

As we continue to respond to the impacts of the pandemic I will keep this under review.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities what action has been taken in respect of the Charity Commission NI arising from the Baume report.

(AQW 9387/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The former Head of the Civil Service (HOCS) commissioned a review into how the Department for Communities had handled a number of complaints from a member of the public in relation to the Charity Commission.

HOCS asked my Department to respond to the suggestions set out in the review. These are currently being progressed, including consideration of the Department's role as the custodian of charity regulation law and policy and sponsor for the Commission. The Department's Head of Governance has also written to the Chief Commissioner to seek assurances in relation to matters highlighted in the Review.

In order to restore public confidence in a system that has undoubtedly been damaged, I have also decided to commission an independent review of charity regulation including a review of the performance of the Charity Commission in its role as statutory regulator.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she has considered the merits of a winter heating benefit payment.

(AQW 9904/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: There is a Winter Fuel Payment – a tax free and non means tested benefit to help people pay their heating bills. The Payment is made yearly to eligible older people who are born on or before the 5th October 1954. The current rate payable is between £100 and £300 depending on personal circumstances. The total spent here on Winter Fuel Payments in 2019/20 was £51.1 million.

I announced in the Assembly on 23 November, further support to ensure that the additional heating costs incurred as a result of the pandemic will not create an added burden or anxiety at this difficult time.

A Covid-19 Heating Payment will be issued as a one-off payment to provide financial support to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children.

This payment is in addition to any other payments, including the annual Winter Fuel Payment.

There is no application process; the payment will be made automatically via existing payment channels.

I will continue to review and improve the services that my Department delivers to ensure that we continue to meet the needs of the people we serve, especially at this very difficult time.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Communities what measures his Department has taken to assist people on low incomes and are the most vulnerable in our society to address fuel poverty.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I refer the member to AQW 9963/17-22

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Communities what measures her Department has taken to address fuel poverty for those on low incomes.

(AQW 9963/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Communities' approach has been to tackle the effects of fuel poverty both through direct interventions and behavioural changes within households.

Current Programmes include the Affordable Warmth Scheme, Boiler Replacement Scheme, the Energy Advice Service, Winter Fuel Payments, Oil Buying Clubs and the School Education Programme.

I have recently approved changes to the eligibility criteria for the Affordable Warmth Scheme increasing the income threshold from £20,000 to £23,000 and removing disability benefits from the calculation of income for the Scheme. Work is now ongoing to amend the relevant Scheme Regulations and these changes to scheme eligibility will then be implemented.

A Covid-19 Heating Payment will be issued as a one-off payment to provide financial support to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children.

This payment is in addition to any other payments, including the annual Winter Fuel Payment.

There is no application process; the payment will be made automatically via existing payment channels.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities for a breakdown of staff by community background in the Northern Ireland Housing Executive district, grant and technical sections in the (i) Omagh; (ii) Cookstown; (iii) Dungannon; and (iv) Magherafelt offices.

(AQW 10020/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised the Department of the following information:

Office Location	Community Background
	Protestant	Roman Catholic	Not Known	Total
Omagh	14	48	-	62
Cookstown	#	#	-	14
Dungannon	#	15	-	#

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities for a breakdown of (i) permanent; (ii) fixed-term; and (iii) agency staff by community background in the Northern Ireland Housing Executive district, grant and technical sections in the (a) Omagh; (b) Cookstown; (c) Dungannon; (d) Magherafelt; and (v) Enniskillen offices.

(AQW 10227/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following table detailing the breakdown of staff by community background in its district, grant and technical sections in the Omagh; Cookstown; Dungannon; Magherafelt; and Enniskillen offices.

The Housing Executive has advised that it is not possible to disaggregate the data further to provide information on the number of permanent and fixed term staff without risk of exposing an individual's identity. Furthermore data relating to the community background of Agency workers is not held by the Housing Executive; such data is held by the respective Employment Agency.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities whether there is a delay on the Winter Fuel Payment being made this year; and when payments will be made to those who are automatically eligible.

(AQW 10248/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: There is no delay to the Winter Fuel Payment being made this year. Automatic Winter Fuel Payments are being made to those who are eligible during the period 9 November 2020 to 11 December 2020.

I announced in the Assembly on 23 November, further support to ensure that the additional heating costs incurred as a result of the pandemic will not create an added burden or anxiety at this difficult time.

A Covid-19 Heating Payment will be issued as a one-off payment to provide financial support to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children.

This payment is in addition to any other payments, including the annual Winter Fuel Payment.

There is no application process; the payment will be made automatically via existing payment channels.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities how many Housing Executive tenants or applicants have been temporarily placed in a (i) hotel; (ii) bed and breakfast; and (iii) hostel in each of the last five years, broken down by broad rental market area.

(AQW 10314/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive is unable to provide a breakdown of placements by broad rental market area. However, the tables below provides local Council area data on the number of placements made between 2015/16 and 2019/20 and broken down into non-standard accommodation (B&B/Hotels) and Hostel accommodation. It should be noted that in making placements the Housing Executive will seek to utilise available spaces within hostel accommodation or single lets (a self-contained property like a house or flat, sourced via the private rented sector, where the household are sole occupants). Only when there is no viable alternative will the Housing Executive seek to place a household in B&B or Hotel accommodation in order to fulfil the statutory duty placed upon it by the Housing (NI) Order 1988 (as amended).

*note that voluntary sector hostels also contain direct access placements which will not be recorded by the Housing Executive. In categorising and recording the type of accommodation, the Housing Executive records number of placements within B&B/Hotel accommodation within the category of 'non-standard' accommodation. There is no breakdown within the category as to specific types of accommodation e.g. B&B/Hotels.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities what is the longest time a Housing Executive applicant has spent in a (i) hotel; (ii) bed and breakfast; and (iii) hostel in each of the last five years, broken down by broad rental market area. (AQW 10315/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive is unable to provide a breakdown of placements by Broad Rental Market Area. However, the tables below provide local Council area data on the maximum time a placement has remained in temporary accommodation across the years 2015/16 to 2019/20 and broken down into non-standard accommodation (Hotel/B&B) and Hostel accommodation. It should be noted that in making placements the Housing Executive will seek to utilise available spaces within hostel accommodation or single lets (a self-contained property like a house or flat, sourced via the private rented sector, where the household are sole occupants). It is intended that use of such non-standard accommodation is for as short a duration as possible and attempts are made to find more suitable accommodation. In categorising and recording the type of accommodation, the Housing Executive records length of stay within B&B/Hotel accommodation within the category of 'non-standard' accommodation. There is no breakdown within the category as to specific types of accommodation e.g. B&B/Hotels.

It should be noted that the non-standard placement category may include some placements which are referred to as Non-standard (B&B/Hotels) but are not strictly B&B/Hotels. This would be the case for some of the longer-term placements whereby such placements have been made within shared accommodation which is non-standard in nature but neither a B&B/Hotel.

While the data in each table above relates specifically to an individual case per Council Area per year, the Housing Executive's Homelessness Strategy Annual Progress Report has published the average length of stay in temporary accommodation from 2017/18 which will help to give context to the specific case data. This can be detailed as follows and highlights a significant difference between the average length of placements and the maximum length of placements outlined in the table above.

Hostel Average placement

- 2017/18 – 234 days
- 2018/19 – 220 days
- 2019/20 – 224 days

Non-standard Accommodation Average placement

- 2017/18 – 48 days
- 2018/19 – 18 days
- 2019/20 – 36 days

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities what assessment she has made of the value for money of the process of placing Housing Executive applicants in hotels, bed and breakfasts or hostels; and whether she plans to amend this process. (AQW 10316/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive seeks to ensure stays in temporary accommodation are as short as possible with the needs of the client being paramount. The costs associated with temporary accommodation are closely monitored by both DfC and the Housing Executive and are the subject of a bid if necessary for funds to enable the Housing Executive to fulfil its statutory Homelessness duty.

While it is recognised that non-standard accommodation is not the best value for money, in the absence of available/suitable accommodation, it is necessary for the Housing Executive to place people in non-standard accommodation in order to fulfil its homelessness duty.

The Housing Executive is currently carrying out a strategic review of temporary accommodation and support needs of homeless clients. The review aims to develop a long term and sustainable strategy for temporary accommodation provision and includes an objective to consider the strategic response to homelessness to make the stay in temporary accommodation as short as possible.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Communities to detail the scope of the consultation during the 2016 review of the Caravan Act 2011. (AQW 10376/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The main purpose of the Review in 2016 was to consider what impact the Caravan Act 2011 has had on both caravan and site owners and if there are any gaps or unintended consequences. As well as the statutory duty to consider if amendments to the implied terms are needed, the Department broadened the Review to include consideration of the whole Act.

The Review was carried out to take account of evidence collated since the introduction of the Act in Sept 2011. This included the findings from the Department for Economy on the holiday sector. All correspondence with interested parties such as MLA's, DfE, the Caravan and Camping Forum National Caravan Council site owners, residents, etc. over the previous five years was also taken into account.

Correspondence was issued in May 2016 to stakeholders seeking views as part of the Review of the Caravans Act, and a total of 9 responses were received. The following shows the breakdown of those who responded.

- 1 site owner
- 3 council representatives
- 1 Government Department
- 4 Camping and Caravan organisations

Councils were also asked to report on any referrals, court action and any prosecutions around illegal eviction or harassment on a quarterly basis to the Department.

From the evidence collated the Department did not deem any amendments to the implied terms to be necessary at this time.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Communities whether she will bring forward additional COVID-19 financial support for social enterprises.

(AQW 10386/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The budget approved by the Executive for the Covid Social Enterprise Fund was £7m. The fund was significantly oversubscribed and Community Finance Ireland (CFI), who were appointed to administer the fund, have now completed their individual assessment of all applications. In order to fund all applicants who were deemed eligible and assessed to be in need a further £2.25m was required. In recognition of the valuable role Social Enterprises play in our community, I bid to the Executive for these additional funds and I am delighted that this has now been approved.

In addition the Department has also recently launched the £3.3million Voluntary, Community and Social Economy Sector (VCSE) Covid Recovery Fund. This fund is open to applications from VCSE organisations and allows for grant awards to support the purchase of PPE and IT to enable the safe delivery of services.

Funding is being distributed by Co-operation Ireland in partnership with Rural Community Network, and will remain open for applications until 4pm on Friday 11th December 2020. The deadline for applications may be extended subject to a review of committed expenditure and availability of any remaining funds.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities what initiatives and schemes she is supporting in East Belfast to address the issue of poverty.

(AQW 10427/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department supports a number of initiatives and schemes specific to East Belfast.

- Neighbourhood Renewal and Areas at Risk funding supports 12 projects in Inner East and Tullycarnet Neighbourhood Renewal Areas (NRAs) and Ballybeen Area at Risk.
- Ballynafeigh Community Development Association, East Belfast Community Development Agency and Greenway Women's Group are supported through the Community Investment Fund.
- Greenway Women's Group received support through the Women's Centres Childcare Fund which provides free childcare places to help low income parents access employment and training opportunities.
- Support was given to the 'Training for Women Network' which is located in East Belfast. It is the lead partner in the 'Regional Support for Women in Disadvantaged Areas and Rural Areas' which consists of 7 women's sector organisations.
- Business in the Community, based in East Belfast, receives support through the Innovation and Research Fund (Skills Match Programme). It seeks to help all sectors work more collaboratively, refocusing their collective efforts to tackle key societal issues and building long-term, sustainable business models.

My Department also provides wider interventions to address poverty. For example:

- The Make the Call Wraparound Service aims to ensure that individuals and households receive the social security benefits, supports and services to which they are entitled.
- The Volunteering Infrastructure Support Programme provides support for organisations and volunteers.
- FareShare have been given an additional investment of c. £800,000 to ensure adequate food infrastructure and supply of food to community food providers to end March 2021.
- Local Councils have been given a £750,000 allocation for a Covid-19 Access to Food Fund.
- The Voluntary, Community and Social Enterprise (VCSE) Covid Recovery Fund is currently open for applications and allows organisations, including those that may be involved in work to address poverty, to apply for funding to purchase PPE and IT equipment to enable safe delivery of services.
- The Affordable Warmth Scheme offers energy efficiency improvement measures to low income households with an annual income of less than £20,000.
- Housing Rights provides advice regarding housing and homelessness, and debt being experienced by households having difficulty paying their mortgage (directly preventing some from being made homeless).

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities to detail her strategy, timescales, budget and projected outcomes of the decision to let the Housing Executive build family homes again.

(AQW 10428/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In my Housing Policy Statement to the Assembly, I set out my plans to deal with the very significant investment challenge facing the Housing Executive.

The strategy for doing so, involves a package of revitalisation measures including changing the Housing Executive Landlord from its current form, so that it has the freedom to borrow and invest in its own homes thereby providing security for current tenants and future generations.

The projected outcome of my plans is about ensuring the supply of social homes can meet the needs of the increasing numbers of households in housing stress. Crucial to this is the protection of the homes we have; ensuring they can be maintained and sustained and ultimately through the Housing Executive, in its new form, being able to access borrowing to sustain itself and to build again.

I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate which will include details of the timescales and budget for implementation.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for Communities what actions she is taking to ensure that vulnerable people placed in shared and temporary accommodation have access to adequate support packages; and whether she has plans to increase the provision of supported accommodation.

(AQW 10467/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive must ensure that individuals who present as homeless are assessed and vulnerability or support needs identified prior to placement in available accommodation most suited to their needs.

When conducting housing solutions interviews with customers who present as homeless, Housing Advisors attempt to identify any support needs that the applicant may have. Advisors will make referrals to a range of external support services tailored to the individual where available, regardless of the type of temporary accommodation they are placed in, including those placed in single lets in the private rented sector. Should further support needs be identified after the placement has been made, landlords have access to Housing Executive staff who can then arrange for any additional support services to be included to enable the placement to continue.

The Housing Executive's Supporting People Team are producing a three year strategy for 2021-2024. This strategy will consider the existing needs, service provision and emerging demands on Housing Support Services. It will be informed, in part, through an evidenced assessment of need. Action plans to address identified needs will then be drawn up.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities how many times her Department has lobbied for, or requested, a change in the borrowing rules in relation to the Housing Executive.

(AQW 10495/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The issues around the borrowing rules for the Housing Executive have always been a consideration in working towards a solution to the very significant investment challenge that we face.

Work to date has demonstrated that the only option to lift these borrowing obstacles is to change the classification of the Housing Executive from its current form within the public sector. Further work will take place to assess viable options as part of revitalisation of the Housing Executive.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities when the review of the current housing fitness standard will be completed.

(AQW 10496/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I will amend the Landlord Registration regulations to incorporate a fitness declaration at the point of registration. In time this will then be underpinned by a change to the fitness standard to improve the standard of these properties.

A comprehensive review of fitness for all tenures would not be deliverable during this mandate however preparatory work will commence during this business year.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the Housing Executive's policy for reallocation of housing cases and applications during the absence of a housing adviser.

(AQW 10540/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised that there are various reasons why the transfer of a case between staff may be appropriate. One of these is where a member of staff is absent.

The decision to transfer a case is normally taken by the respective Team Leader on a case by case basis. The Team Leader will take into consideration how long the member of staff is absent, along with the status of the case. Dependent on these factors, a case may be reallocated to another Advisor for a time bound period or indefinitely.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities what mental health support is available for Housing Executive staff.

(AQW 10541/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised the Department that it is fully committed to the protection and promotion of the health and wellbeing of its staff, including their mental health. The current COVID-19 pandemic has provided additional challenges for staff and the Housing Executive has put in place some additional measures in order to support staff during these difficult times.

Support for Housing Executive staff includes access to free and confidential counselling sessions through Inspire Workplaces. Inspire also provides an online platform for health and well-being information which all Housing Executive staff have access to.

Independent medical advice and support is provided by the Occupational Health Service and is engaged by the Housing Executive on individual cases as required. It is currently working to further increase the interventions available through Occupational Health.

The Housing Executive has 37 staff trained as Mental Health First Aiders who can be contacted in confidence by staff who may be experiencing mental health issues for initial support and advice. In addition, the Housing Executive may also refer employees to outside agencies where specific dependency issues are identified.

The Housing Executive has also made available various online materials and courses for staff relating to health and wellbeing, with a dedicated Health and Wellbeing section accessible through its Covid-19 intranet page. This includes information on topics such as adapting to home working, personal resilience, and managing stress. This also includes signposting to other external sources of information and advice.

Finally the Housing Executive has established a Health and Wellbeing Team and a Personal Resilience Steering Group to seek to understand and address issues affecting the mental health and well-being of frontline staff.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of incidences of sick leave in the Housing Executive, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 10542/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised the Department of the following:

The table below details the instances of sickness absence from 2015 to 2020.

Year (1st Jan-31st Dec)	Instances of sickness absence
2016	4241
2017	4398
2018	4742
2019	4692

*Based on absence figures to 31 October 2020.

Please note: on average each year (over the last 5 years) 64% of employees have had no absences or have had 1 instance of absence. These figures do not include agency workers.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities what plans her Department will put in place to hold the NI Housing Executive to account for poor insulation in their properties.

(AQW 10572/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Under my Department's oversight, the Housing Executive made the decision in August 2017 to commission an independent report on the condition of Cavity Wall Insulation and the impact that it is having in terms of thermal efficiency and associated technical defects across a representative sample of its housing stock and a selection of private home properties.

The Housing Executive has embarked on a multi-million pound investment programme to improve the energy performance of almost 2,700 of its homes. The programme will see improvements to the thermal efficiency of these homes include cladding, new double glazing and insulation. The Energy Efficiency in Social Housing project has been made possible by funding of €22.951 million secured from the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) through its Investment for Growth and Jobs Programme 2014-2020 with a further €22 million being invested by the Housing Executive. As intermediary we facilitate quarterly and annual reporting to the EU whilst also having regular monitoring meetings with the Housing Executive.

Through oversight arrangements that are currently in place we will continue to monitor Housing Executive maintenance programmes to ensure they continue to deliver for their tenants.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of claims that have been made against the NI Housing Executive for damp in tenants' properties, over the last ten years.

(AQW 10573/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Since November 2010 the Housing Executive has registered 869 claims relating to damp in tenants' properties.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities how many of the NI Housing Executive 87,000 properties have no cavity wall insulation.

(AQW 10574/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has a significant number of dwellings (approximately 15 000) that are not of cavity wall construction and, therefore, do not have cavity wall insulation.

With regards to properties of cavity wall construction, the Housing Executive began installing cavity wall insulation as part of the construction of new dwellings in the 1980s, and carried out an extensive retrofit programme in the mid/late 1980s to install cavity wall insulation in those older cavity wall properties that had not had it installed during construction. However, due to the lack of available data the Housing Executive is unable to confirm how many cavity wall constructed properties do not have cavity wall insulation.

The Housing Executive published a research report May 2019 on the condition of cavity wall insulation in its properties, and is currently finalising an action plan in response to the report's findings and recommendations. It will be issued for public consultation in the coming months.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities how many of the NI Housing Executive's 87,000 properties have been recorded as having a poor standard of cavity wall insulation.

(AQW 10575/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In 2019 the Housing Executive published a research report on Cavity Wall Insulation (CWI) in Northern Ireland. The findings for the Housing Executive's stock were based on a sample survey of 825 properties. 63% of these properties had cavity wall insulation installations that were non-compliant with modern industry standards because there were found to be voids or debris in the cavity.

Although the Housing Executive's data on the construction of all of its stock is not comprehensive, it estimates that if this 63% is extrapolated it would represent some 44,600 of their likely cavity wall constructed properties.

The Housing Executive is currently finalising a CWI Action Plan for its stock in response to recommendations. It will be issued for public consultation in the coming months.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities how many damp and condensation issues have been recorded in NI Housing Executive homes in North Down, over the last five years.

(AQW 10576/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: There have been 3405 reports of dampness and condensation relating to 1686 properties recorded over the last five years in Housing Executive homes in North Down. These figures relate to repairs as reported by tenants only and the figures do not relate to jobs issued to address a report of dampness and/or condensation.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities to detail her plans to address private rented sector properties with inadequate or a low standard of housing.

(AQW 10581/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I will amend the Landlord Registration regulations to incorporate a fitness declaration at the point of registration. In time this will then be underpinned by a change to the fitness standard to improve the standard of these properties.

Legislation will also be brought forward in this mandate which will make it a mandatory requirement for private landlords to provide smoke and carbon monoxide detectors and to carry out periodic electrical checks.

Provisions in this Bill will also make an enabling power in primary legislation to take forward work so that any rented property has to have a minimum EPC rating. This work could commence with the potential to develop further detail later in secondary legislation.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities how many landlords (i) have complied; and (ii) have not complied with the Landlord Registration Scheme.

(AQW 10582/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Over 45,000 landlords have registered over 80,000 properties with the Landlord Registration Scheme. According to the last House Condition Survey carried out there are approximately 136,000 households living in the Private Rented Sector.

The Landlord Registration Scheme Regulations 2014 makes compulsory for all private Landlords to register their details as part of the Landlord Registration Scheme. The Rent Order 1978 and the Private Tenancies Order 2006 sets out the law on the current regulation of the private rented sector and provides councils with powers to enforce the legislation.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she has considered extending the remit of the Landlord Registration Scheme into a landlord licensing scheme.

(AQW 10583/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The issue of a landlord licensing scheme was considered as part of the Private Rented Sector - Proposals for Change Consultation Document in 2017.

In looking at this issue, I have decided to amend the Landlord Registration regulations to incorporate a fitness declaration at the point of registration. In time this will then be underpinned by a change to the fitness standard to improve the standard of these properties.

This is an important element of the work which will ultimately see the transfer of Landlord Registration to councils.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) the number of people refused the Discretionary Support Self Isolation Grant between 25 March 2020 and 31 October 2020; and (ii) a breakdown of the reasons why people were refused. (AQW 10592/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Applications are made to the Discretionary Support Scheme for help in response to immediate financial need with those needs then assessed and awards made accordingly – including needs associated with self-isolation due to Covid – 19.

Since the introduction of the self-isolation grant on 25 March 2020 my Department has processed 19,313 applications where self-isolation was found to be the underlying cause of the financial need, of which 15,570 Discretionary Support Self-Isolation awards were made totalling £2.1m.

Reasons why applications may not be successful will vary according to individual circumstances set against the eligibility criteria for the scheme.

There will also be duplicate applications and those that failed because contact with the applicant was not established.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Communities how many social housing dwellings were completed in the Strangford constituency in each of the last five years, broken down by (i) one bedroom; (ii) two bedroom; (iii) three bedrooms; and (iv) more than three bedrooms.

(AQW 10594/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: A total of 450 new social homes have been completed in the Strangford Constituency from 01 April 2015 to 31 October 2021. For ease of reference, I have provided the table below outlining the number of completions in each year, broken down by bedroom type, as per your request.

Year	Total New Social Housing Completions	1 Bed	2 Bed	3 Bed	3 Bed +
2015/16	46	12	25	9	-
2016/17	44	6	23	15	-
2017/18	156	18	111	20	7
2018/19	126	14	86	25	1
2019/20	24	-	10	13	1
2020/21 (Apr-Oct)	54	-	25	25	4
Total	450	50	280	107	13

Please note that this includes all Scheme Types. Details of Scheme Types can be found at <https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/scheme-types>.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Communities to detail (i) any discussions she has had with LGBT+ groups or organisation in relation to (a) a potential sexual health strategy for Northern Ireland; and (b) sex education in Northern Ireland's schools; and (ii) any issues raised during these conversations.

(AQW 10597/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: While it would not be appropriate for me to comment on policy matters that fall to the Minister of Health and the Minister of Education, I am leading on the development of the Executive's Sexual Orientation Strategy under New Decade, New Approach. This Strategy will cut across Ministerial and Departmental remits and I have appointed an independent Expert Advisory Panel to make recommendations on the themes that the Strategy should address.

It is likely that the Panel will make recommendations relating to Health and Education; however, I am not in a position to make further comment on those recommendations until the Panel completes their work.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities how many Discretionary Support grants were issued by her Department between 22 March 2019 and 31 October 2019.

Ms Ní Chuilín: Data for the 2018/19 year period is set out in the 2018/2019 Annual Report and can be found online at <https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/communities/dfc-annual-report-welfare-supplementary-> payments-2018-2019.pdf.pdf. Data for the period 1 April 2019 to 31 October 2019 will be included in the 2019/2020 Annual Report which has not yet been published.

However, management information for the period requested shows that my Department paid 13,944 Discretionary Support grants between 22 March 2019 and 31 October 2019, totalling almost £5.8 million.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for Communities whether her Department will consider opening a uniforms grant for marching bands in the 2021/22 financial year.

(AQW 10609/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department's funding in support of the arts is disbursed through the Arts Council. They provide funding to bands through the Musical Instruments Scheme and the Small Grants Programme, which provides grants to cover tuition costs.

These schemes do not provide funding to assist with the costs of band uniforms. Given the objectives of the Arts Council and its remit to support the creation and development of art, there are no current plans to introduce a programme to provide grants for marching band uniforms.

Mr Frew asked the Minister for Communities what additional support will be given to carers during this lockdown and winter.

(AQW 10624/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As you will already be aware, in April 2020, my Department introduced two important temporary measures to help unpaid carers through the current COVID-19 emergency, to ensure people most in need get the help and support they require:

- Unpaid carers are able to continue to claim Carer's Allowance if they have a temporary break in caring, because either they or the person they care for becomes infected with coronavirus or has to self-isolate because of it.
- Providing "emotional support" to a severely disabled person will also count towards the Carer's Allowance threshold of 35 hours of care a week.

My officials continuing to look at how best to support people during this unprecedented time. As such, we have extended the temporary easements in Carer's Allowance until 12 May 2021. This is aimed at those unpaid carers who need some extra flexibility in the way they provide care during the current emergency, so as to continue to protect themselves and the people they are caring for.

Those carers who are on low incomes can continue to access additional financial support through income-related benefits and their associated carer premiums/additions. Carers in receipt of Universal Credit will also be able to benefit from the increase in the standard allowance put in place in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

In addition, those in receipt of Carer's Allowance here may, depending on their circumstances, be eligible to access the range of other emergency financial support that my Department is providing during the COVID-19 crisis, including Discretionary Support.

These measures have included the introduction of a specific Self-Isolation grant through Discretionary Support to financially support those who are impacted by having to self-isolate. Payments can also be made to people who live in the same household as a person showing symptoms of COVID-19.

I have also recently introduced further enhancements to the Self-isolation grant that should ensure that people receive more appropriate financial support during a time of crisis. There is also no limit on the number of Self-isolation grants that can be awarded.

Mr Frew asked the Minister for Communities to confirm whether Northern Ireland pensioners will receive the Warm Homes Discount Scheme payment.

(AQW 10625/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Warm Homes Discount Scheme does not apply here. There are a range of schemes available here to support qualifying consumers in reducing their energy bills. These include the Sustainable Energy Programme and the Affordable Warmth and Boiler Replacement Schemes. These are in addition to the availability of cold weather payments and the annual winter fuel payment which are issued by this Department.

Whilst not a measure specifically for pensioners a Covid-19 Heating Payment will be issued as a one-off payment to provide financial support to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children.

This payment is in addition to any other payments. There is no application process; the payment will be made automatically via existing payment channels.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Communities how many claims have been made to the Discretionary Support Self Isolation Grant since 25 March 2020.

(AQW 10630/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Applications are made to the Discretionary Support Scheme for help in response to immediate financial need with those needs then assessed and awards made accordingly – including needs associated with self-isolation due to Covid-19.

Since the introduction of the self-isolation grant on 25 March 2020 my Department has processed 19,313 applications where self-isolation was found to be the underlying cause of the financial need, of which 14,800 Discretionary Support Self-Isolation awards were paid totalling £2.1m.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Communities how many Discretionary Support Self Isolation Grant payments have been issued since 25 March 2020.

(AQW 10631/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department paid 14,800 Discretionary Support Self- Isolation grants between 25 March 2020 and 31 October 2020, totalling £2.1 million.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Communities how many staff are currently working in the Discretionary Support Self Isolation Grant processing team.

(AQW 10632/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Discretionary Support system receives applications due to a range of reasons, from help with living expenses to the need for household items. Staff in this business area collectively deal with all areas of Discretionary Support including Discretionary Support Self-Isolation grants. Therefore it is not possible to provide the number of staff working on Discretionary Support Self-Isolation grants alone.

However, I can advise that there is a total of 234 staff currently working to deliver the Department's Discretionary Support scheme.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Communities how many staff in the Discretionary Support Self Isolation Grant processing team are currently (i) working full-time in the office; (ii) working full-time from home; (iii) working part-time in the office; and (iv) part-time from home.

(AQW 10633/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In line with Executive guidance, all staff delivering Discretionary Support that can work from home, are doing so.

The Discretionary Support system receives applications due to a range of reasons, from help with living expenses to the need for household items. Staff working in Discretionary Support collectively deal with all areas of Discretionary Support including Discretionary Support Self-Isolation grants. Therefore it is not possible to provide the number of staff working on Discretionary Support Self-Isolation grants alone.

However, I can advise that there is a total of 234 staff currently working to deliver the Department's Discretionary Support scheme. 127 staff are working in the office, with 101 working remotely and six staff are currently in training.

We are continuing to increase our capacity to work remotely and have made significant progress since the start of the pandemic by securing additional IT to increase our ability to deliver more services remotely. However, due to the nature of the business in some DfC areas, especially those administering benefits, staff are unable to work remotely and are therefore required to work in the office.

DfC remains committed to delivering essential services to the most vulnerable in our society and our staff have demonstrated tremendous resilience throughout this pandemic in their continued commitment to provide this necessary support to the people who need it most.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities what plans she has to close the loophole in the bedroom tax, which is not covered by the Welfare Migration Scheme, when a tenant moves from one Housing Executive property to another but still has an under occupancy.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I will be bringing forward new legislation to extend and improve the existing welfare mitigation schemes. The legislation will include a proposed amendment to the so called "bedroom tax" mitigation scheme to remove an anomaly in the current regulations that acts to end entitlement when a person moves home without Management Transfer Status and continues to under-occupy by at least the same number of bedrooms.

This will ensure that in future all tenants affected by the "bedroom tax" will receive full mitigation for the associated loss of benefit. As the legislation is draft affirmative this proposed change will not come into operation until after it has been approved by the Assembly.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Communities what consideration has been given to allowing elite pathway athletes to train during the COVID-19 restrictions.

(AQW 10660/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Athletes on an 'elite development pathway' are permitted to continue to train during the current COVID-19 restrictions.

For further information and guidance on the current regulations including a comprehensive definition of an 'elite athlete' please visit the following link on the Sport NI website:

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister for Communities what financial support will be made available to individuals and households who have an annual income over £20,405 and who lose their income during a period of self-isolation required under COVID-19 guidance.

(AQW 10677/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is committed to supporting people at this difficult time and a series of changes have been put in place to ensure that the social security system is more flexible, to relieve hardship and to ensure people most in need get the help and support they require.

For anyone who sees their income reduced, is on a low income or unemployed can make a claim to Universal Credit. Details on making a claim for Universal Credit, including the eligibility criteria, can be found at <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/you-claim-universal-credit>.

Immediate financial support is available for anyone struggling financially while waiting for their first payment of Universal Credit by applying for a repayable advance payment of up to 100% of their estimated entitlement. This can be done through their online Universal Credit account, also known as their journal.

From 6 April 2020, the Universal Credit standard allowance and Working Tax Credit basic element increased by £86.67 per month for one year. This measure applies to all new and existing Universal Credit claims and is in addition to the planned annual uprating in benefits.

It is important for anyone currently receiving Tax Credit that they refer to the www.gov.uk/tax-credits-calculator before making a claim to Universal Credit.

If a person satisfies the National Insurance Contributions (NICs) criteria, they may also be able to apply for New Style Jobseeker's Allowance or, if they are sick, New Style Employment and Support Allowance. Further information is available at:

<https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/jobseekers-allowance>

<https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/employment-and-support-allowance>

A person considering making a claim for benefit can access the 'entitled to' benefit calculator to get an estimate of how much benefits including Universal Credit they may be entitled to at <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/benefits-adviser>

The Department's Make the Call service also provides advice to people to help identify all the money, support and services they are entitled to and can be contacted through the Freephone service on 0800 232 1271.

The Department for Communities website and NIdirect provide important information on all new measures available in response to COVID 19, and are regularly updated to ensure people know what help is available. Information can be found at:

<https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/landing-pages/covid-19-service-updates>.

<https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/coronavirus-covid-19-and-benefits>

Depending on a person's terms and conditions of employment, they may be eligible for Statutory Sick Pay (SSP). This is paid at a flat rate of £95.85 per week for up to 28 weeks.

The Statutory Sick Pay (General) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1982 have been amended in response to the coronavirus pandemic to ensure that SSP is available to those who have been advised, by a relevant notification, to self-isolate. Further information about SSP is available at: <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/statutory-sick-pay>

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities how her Department is supporting initiatives in West Tyrone aimed at tackling loneliness, especially over the festive break.

(AQW 10688/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has put in place a range of supporting initiatives in West Tyrone aimed at tackling loneliness including:

Housing

Housing support services, delivered through the Housing Executive's Supporting People (SP) Programme, can promote confidence and independence, and where someone is isolated more practical interventions can also be used for example, access to local transport. Positive relationships can also be supported in order to maintain links with friends and family, befriending and support given to practical solutions like internet connectivity to maintain contact online. Housing support services often signpost service users at risk of being lonely and/or socially isolated to other sources of support such as groups, clubs and activities etc.

Being aware of the impact COVID-19 restrictions have had on loneliness and isolation, SP service providers have used non face to face activities such as virtual classes, distant socialising, newsletters, befriending schemes and referrals to community support to help service users.

There are 10 SP funded Floating Support Services (4 Disability, 4 Homeless, 1 Older People and 1 Younger People) in the Fermanagh and Omagh council area which covers the West Tyrone constituency area. NIHE does not currently hold information based on constituency areas.

Through their Community Cohesion and Involvement funding streams they are supporting a number of initiatives in West Tyrone to tackle the loneliness that may be experienced over the festive break. Activities will assist in building relationships, promoting inclusion and celebrating community spirit. Information in the table below details recipient groups:

Community Cohesion to combat isolation and loneliness	The Drummond Centre Killeter and District Development Trust
Community Involvement to combat isolation and loneliness	Melmount and Eastbank Community Forum Fountain Street Community Development Association, Churchtown Community Development Association and Culmore & Okane Residents Association

Neighbourhood Renewal

Voluntary and Community Organisations funded through People and Place have been providing the following responses: good morning services for the elderly; telephone/online support to those most vulnerable within communities; food provision/delivery; childcare for key workers and youth interventions.

Neighbourhood Renewal Groups have worked to address the impact of COVID-19 in relation to: finance; food; and connectivity. The Neighbourhood Renewal Investment Programme initiatives that are in place, or are planned to be delivered to address loneliness over the festive period, include:

- Strabane Community Project: delivering the Good Morning Service; Meals on Wheels; and a Community Help Line Hub for individuals/families in the Strabane Town and Derg and Sperrin District Electoral Areas. Strabane Community project was allocated £29,790 in Neighbourhood Renewal funding in 20/21;
- The Koram Centre: In partnership with Strabane Health Improvement Project, it plans to deliver additional services for children & young people and adults including meditation/mindfulness/yoga and other programmes such as befriending and listening ear services, and 1:1 counselling/ psychotherapy. The Koram Centre was allocated £70,858 in Neighbourhood Renewal funding in 2020/21; and
- Lisnafin/Ardnalee/Trust Community Development Association plan to provide local residents aged 60 and over with a festive meal and gifts in partnership with Strabane Community Project's Meals & Wheels, who will also help with delivery across the area. Lisnafin/Ardnalee/Trust Community Development Association was allocated £29,560 in Neighbourhood Renewal funding in 2020/21.

Voluntary, Community & Social Enterprise (VCSE) Sectors COVID-19 Recovery Fund

£800,000 has been allocated to provide IT and digital devices to VCSE groups to improve connectivity and to move services to an online platform.

Voluntary & Community Division awarded £80,887 of funding in 2019/2020 and £80,887 in 2020/2021 to the West Tyrone area through various community based programmes:

Organisation	Funding Stream	2019/2020	2020/2021
FOCUS	Community Investment Fund	£47,514	£47,514
Omagh Volunteer Centre	Volunteering Infrastructure Support	£ 33,370	£ 33,370

Community Investment Fund (CIF)

CIF supports community development activity with an emphasis on building more cohesive and sustainable communities. It includes support for core costs of local community development groups, particularly where this leads to improved services to local communities.

Volunteering Infrastructure Support Programme (VISP)

This Programme provides the necessary support for volunteering involving organisations, volunteers and those wishing to become involved in volunteering.

Regional Programmes

My Department supports regional programmes delivered by strategic business partners and local government that have a direct impact on those affected by loneliness.

- Warm Well Connected Fund: I have allocated extra funding to help bolster existing programmes of work and new interventions to support those in most acute need over the winter 2020/21. While support provided will have both an urban and rural spread, I'm particularly aware of the issues of loneliness and isolation being felt across rural communities and the programme of work will seek to help lessen this. The programme will launch in the coming weeks with support on the ground before Christmas.
- COVID-19 Community Support Fund: To date £3.25m has been allocated among the 11 councils to deliver funding to communities and grassroots organisations in their area.
- Independent Advice Sector: £6.4million has been allocated for the provision of independent community based advice services to citizens, through a network of front line advice organisations. This provides support and reassurance to people right across our communities, including those experiencing loneliness and social isolation.
- Regional Support for Women in Disadvantaged and Rural Areas (W-RISP): In February 2012 and following a review of Regional Infrastructure funding, alongside the Department for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs we published the Joint Policy Statement on "Regional Support for Women in Disadvantaged and Rural Areas". In response, 7 established women's sector organisations came together in September 2013 and formed the 'Women's Regional Consortium for Women in Disadvantaged and Rural Areas'. The annual W-RISP budget is £305,000.

Mr M Bradley asked the Minister for Communities whether there are exceptions in place for people receiving benefit payments who do not have a bank account and are having difficulty opening one as a result of the Post Office contract coming to an end.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Post Office card account contract is due to end in November 2021. Following contract end, people who have not already switched to an alternative mainstream account will be migrated onto a new payment exception service (pes) and their Post Office card account will be closed.

Letters to customers of all ages encouraging them to switch payment into a mainstream account ahead of the POca contract ending are being issued. In doing this, DfC is giving advance notice so that customers who are able to move to a mainstream account have time to make that change. For those unable to access or manage a mainstream account my Department will offer a replacement payment exception service (pes). Support is available to help people choose a product that is right for their circumstances, which may include a payment exception service.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities whether the one-off heating payment announced is on top of, or in place of, the annual heating payment; and whether the payment will be dependent on weather conditions or will be made automatically.

(AQW 10743/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Covid-19 Heating Payment is a one-off payment to provide financial support to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children.

This payment is in addition to any other payments, including the annual Winter Fuel Payment.

There is no application process; the payment will be made automatically via existing payment channels and is not dependent on weather conditions.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities whether she will make a bid for additional financial award for carers who have had no uplift in carers allowance throughout the pandemic.

(AQW 10744/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As you may be aware, the rate of Carer's Allowance was increased to £67.25 a week from April 2020 as part of the annual benefits up-rating exercise.

A number of temporary easements were introduced from April 2020:

- unpaid carers are able to continue to claim Carer's Allowance if they have a temporary break in caring, because either they or the person they care for becomes infected with coronavirus or has to self-isolate because of it; and
- providing "emotional support" to a severely disabled person is also counted towards the Carer's Allowance threshold of 35 hours of care a week.

With the continuing impact of the coronavirus pandemic, these temporary easements in Carer's Allowance have been extended until 12 May 2021.

In terms of providing longer term additional financial support for carers here, it is anticipated that this will be considered as part of the upcoming welfare mitigations review and, until the review is finalised, my Department will continue to examine how we can best support carers throughout this COVID-19 pandemic.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 10092/17-22, to place a copy of the letter of offer in the Assembly library.

(AQW 10777/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The administration of the Covid-19 Culture, Languages, Arts and Heritage Support Programme 2020/2021 involves the issue of multiple letters of offer. It would therefore be inappropriate to single out one organisation's letter of offer for placement in the Assembly Library. Letters of offer are standard contracts between the Department and a grant recipient outlining the terms and conditions of the grant funding. I have attached a sample letter of offer template for information purposes.

Dear xxxxx

Project Title:
Project Amount:
Period of Grant:

I am pleased to inform you that the Department for Communities Business Case in relation to project name has been approved. The Department for Communities (DfC) has agreed to offer a grant of up to a maximum of £xxxx to Organisation Name ("the grant recipient") for the project as outlined in this Letter of Offer.

DfC will pay the grant in one full instalment upon receipt of your returned Acceptance and BACS forms.

The funding may not be repurposed and any potential underspend must be notified to DfC immediately so that appropriate action can be taken. A Memorandum of Understanding and Data Sharing Agreement are to be agreed between DfC and Organisation Name in relation to this funding.

This funding is covered by an overarching Business Case prepared by the Department in relation to Covid-19 Culture, Languages, Arts and Heritage funding, and the Department does not require further business cases to support applications. However, it remains for Organisation Name to ensure that each applicant demonstrates a need for funding and has specific targets in place. DfC reserves the right to complete a test check on a random selection of both successful and unsuccessful applications to the fund.

You must provide regular updates to the Department on progress as and when requested. These will take the form of regular meetings with officials and written reports may also be requested.

Funding will be subject to:

- 1 Budget availability for grant awards.
- 2 Terms and conditions included in this letter being met in full by the grant recipient (Appendix A).
- 3 Confirmation that the grant recipient is properly constituted by means of a Memorandum and Articles of Association. DfC will require copies of the aforementioned documents.
- 4 Confirmation that the grant recipient is financially viable and solvent. DfC will require copies of the last two years financial statements to determine viability and solvency.
- 5 Confirmation that the grant recipient has appropriate financial controls and monitoring arrangements in place to ensure effective financial management of this project. DfC will require a copy of all internal financial control policies and procedures.
- 6 Confirmation of the grant recipient's VAT status i.e. whether or not the grant recipient is registered with HMRC and can/cannot reclaim VAT on expenditure relating to this project.
- 7 Confirmation that the grant recipient will agree all marketing and publicity for the project with DfC in advance of undertaking any media activity.

Please read this offer carefully and if you wish to accept it on the terms and conditions stated in this letter and in the terms and conditions attached at Appendix A, please return one copy of the enclosed "Form of Acceptance", signed and dated by two duly authorised officials on behalf of Organisation Name. You should retain the other copy, which together with this letter, Appendix A and Annexes 1 – 5 will constitute the legally binding contract/agreement between DfC and Organisation Name. Failure to observe these terms and conditions may result in the funding being withdrawn.

This letter is issued electronically in recognition of remote working arrangement during the pandemic. If you are prepared to accept the offer on the Terms and Conditions stated including the attached Annexes, you should sign and return a copy of the acceptance letter to DfC by email to Eamon.Gregory@communities-ni.gov.uk within 7 days of this letter, otherwise the Offer will lapse.

Revisions to this letter of offer may be made by a "letter of variance" at the discretion of DfC.

Definitions of terminology used in this contract are given at Annex 1.

Please note the period of grant is up to 31st March 2021 and therefore your project must be completed prior to this date.

If you have any queries, or if you would like to meet to discuss this letter further, please do not hesitate to contact me on 028 9051 5238.

Yours sincerely

APPENDIX A

SPECIFIC & GENERAL CONDITIONS OF GRANT FUNDING

Specific Conditions

Conditions of Award

- 1 DfC shall not be obliged to make any payment before you have:
 - a returned a signed copy of the Form of Acceptance to DfC;
 - b agreed a Memorandum of Understanding and Data Sharing Agreement with DfC in relation to this funding
 - c returned a signed Funders Passport Declaration (attached at Annex 2), including supporting documentation as requested by DfC;
 - d returned a signed DfC Policy/Procedures Declaration (attached at Annex 3), including copies of all relevant policies/procedures as requested by DfC;
 - e followed procurement procedures as outlined in Annex 4.
 - f returned a completed Nominated Bank Account Details Form (attached at Annex 5) confirming the bank account is in the name of the organisation and under the control of a committee or board (with a minimum of 2 signatories);
 - g provided written confirmation of your VAT status i.e. whether or not the grant recipient is registered with HMRC and can/cannot reclaim VAT on expenditure relating to this project.

Payment Conditions of Award

- 2 Unless DfC otherwise agrees, DfC shall not be under any obligation to make payments in respect of grant to the grant recipient at any time when:
 - an event of default has occurred and is continuing; or
 - making the payment would cause the total amount of grant paid by DfC to the grant recipient to exceed the maximum amount of grant; or
 - there are any compliance matters in relation to previous or existing claims for payment of grant, which have not been resolved to the satisfaction of DfC.
- 3 Value Added Tax (VAT) recoverable by the grant recipient will be deducted from project costs in calculating the final allowable expenditure for grant purposes.
- 4 The grant is up to the amount detailed in this Letter of Offer. Should all the money not be spent on agreed eligible costs and activities the unspent balance will not be available to the project.
- 5 The overall amount of grant will not exceed the maximum amount of grant.
- 6 If funding becomes available from other sources in respect of the project at any time during the control period, DfC must be notified without delay and (following prior consultation with the grant recipient) DfC reserves the right to reduce the maximum award amount of grant by a sum equivalent to such third party funding. Where the maximum amount of grant is reduced below the level of funds paid by DfC at the date of notification, DfC shall be entitled to be repaid on demand any funds paid by it above that level.
- 7 Payment will only be made for expenditure on the activities/costs agreed with the Department. Any changes to the allocation of costs as agreed with the Department should be communicated immediately to DfC and any proposed variances must be agreed in advance with DfC.
- 8 Payments will be made by Bank Automated Clearance System (BACS) to the nominated bank account by DfC.

9. The grant recipient must submit original nominated bank account statements to DfC to confirm the full payment (including the VAT element) of the invoices/claim documentation relating to their previous claim for grant. No further payments of grant will be made until confirmation has been received of full payment of the previous claim for grant.
10. The grant recipient shall, unless DfC agrees otherwise, repay to DfC any grant paid to it as a result of an administrative error (by DfC, the grant recipient or any person) as soon as the grant recipient becomes aware of such occurrence.
11. The grant recipient shall not submit a claim form for any sum that is in dispute. Where invoices include disputed sums, there shall be no obligation on DfC to pay the disputed amounts.
12. The accounting of expenditure for the project is on an accruals basis (i.e. accounting for expenditure is in the period that the expenditure occurs, not when it is paid). Claims for grant must be submitted throughout the financial year. For expenditure incurred in the last month of the financial year, a claim must be submitted within three months following the end of the financial year.
13. The grant recipient must return to DfC an appropriate share of any under-spend on the project. The share of the under-spend to be returned to DfC shall be in direct proportion to the actual share of the allowable costs originally met from DfC's funds, as determined from the Letter of Offer.

Monitoring & Evaluation

14. Organisation Name is responsible for the overall direction and management of the project.
15. Any failure to meet targets/objectives could result in a reduction in the grant paid.
16. A list detailing the budget allocations for the approved projects should be forwarded to the Department as soon as this is confirmed. Updates on progress must be provided to the Department on request.
17. The grant recipient shall provide DfC, upon demand, with such evidence as DfC shall require, to demonstrate successful completion, delivery and operation of the project in compliance with the approved business case.
18. In the event of failure to demonstrate successful completion, delivery and operation of the project, the grant recipient shall take such steps as shall be acceptable to DfC to demonstrate recovery of the project and the objectives of the business case and benefits realisation plan.
19. Progress reports should be provided on a regular basis. The grant recipient is required to submit a Post Project Evaluation by 31 December 2021. (see Annex 6 for more information). Officials will be in contact with you to arrange the first progress update.

General Conditions

20. The grant recipient shall:
 - a. apply the funding solely for the purposes of carrying out and implementing the Project as detailed in the business case, this Letter of Offer and the Memorandum of Understanding;
 - b. notify DfC as soon as possible if there is likely to be an underspend by the end of the funding period;
 - c. not without the prior written consent of DfC, transfer any of its rights or obligations under this Letter of Offer;
 - d. be sufficiently served by any letter, notice or demand by DfC if it is delivered by hand, left at the last known address, or sent by post addressed to its registered office address as listed in Companies House;
 - e. in the case of any dispute arising on the interpretation of the conditions contained within this Letter of Offer or any Letter of Variance, accept that the decision of DfC shall be final and binding;
 - f. conduct a final self-evaluation on completion of the Project. This should review the progress of the Project and identify and document any remedial action that was required.
 - g. immediately inform DfC of any circumstances which will or may affect the ability of the grant recipient to carry out the Project;
 - h. not vary or alter the Project without the prior written consent of DfC (other than discretion to manage salaries depending on funding allocation);
 - i. not alter or vary its governance documents without the prior written consent of DfC;
 - j. not seek, make any application for, or accept any financial assistance from any other Government Department, public body or agency in respect of the expenditure for which the funding is or may be payable under the terms of this Letter of Offer, without the prior written consent of DfC;
 - k. maintain proper and effective accounting records which identify individual financial transactions relating to the Project, including the retention of original invoices and receipts;
 - l. make payment for expenditure incurred by cheque or BACS (no cash can be paid). Invoices and receipts for payment should be retained for all expenditure.
 - m. provide any information concerning the progress, administration, monitoring and evaluation of the project as requested by DfC;

- n permit DfC, the Department's Agents and the Comptroller and Auditor General to enter upon any facilities owned or occupied by the applicant for the purpose of inspecting the Project or any asset or accounting record relating to the Project;
- o ensure that all records and information relating to the Project, including those held by third parties and consultants, are held for a minimum period of not less than 7 years (10 for tender documents). Specifically, all tender documentation including any amendments with explanatory notes, and all tender evaluation documentation should be retained for this period;
- p ensure that DfC's contribution of funding to the project under this Letter of Offer is appropriately recognised through a variety of mediums. This includes press releases, speeches, publications, banners, signage, advertisements and media interviews. Northern Ireland Executive / DfC branding must be prominently displayed. Electronic branding and logos are available by contacting the DfC Communications Office by email to Press.Office@communities-ni.gov.uk;
- q keep DfC regularly informed of marketing, press and PR activity including the planning and delivery of public statements, announcements and promotional activity concerning the project;
- r repay to the Department any overpayment forthwith on first demand or on becoming aware that the funding has been overpaid, whichever first occurs;
- s ensure that the funding shall not be used for the purpose of or in any way connected with the promoting of any religious or political viewpoint or use for a purpose that could be perceived as discriminatory on grounds of religion, sexual orientation, colour, race, gender or disability;
- t ensure that it has obtained all relevant licences and permissions where applicable to the Project;
- u ensure that all actions undertaken in relation to this Project comply with the relevant statutory legislation in existence during the lifetime of the Project;
- v comply with the requirements of all relevant/current EC Directives and legislation from time to time in force relating to working conditions, health and safety at work, etc. and the requirements of the Sex Discrimination (NI) Orders 1976 and 1988, the Fair Employment & Treatment (NI) Order 1998, the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, The Race Relations (NI) Order, the Human Rights Act 1988, the Health & Safety at Work (Northern Ireland) Order 1978, the Children's Act 1989, Section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 and all Employment Equality Legislation and any enactments amending, extending or replacing them;
- w acknowledge that DfC accepts no liability to the grant applicant, other than as expressly provided for in this Letter of Offer and subject to the terms and conditions stated;
- x acknowledge that the Department accepts no responsibility or liability for staff employed in relation to the Project. The applicant shall be the employer of all staff it employs for the project and shall be responsible for all matters in connection with that employment including any legal or tax obligations;
- y ensure any items of an insurable nature which have been obtained with the benefit of the grant funding to the full replacement value thereof and furnish DfC with copies of all relevant policies of insurance on demand by the Department.
- z ensure in the name of the grant recipient all buildings or facilities which are now or may in the future be erected on the Property against loss or damage by fire or theft, for a sum equal to the cost of their reinstatement or replacement and keep the same so insured;
- aa. if the buildings or facilities so insured are in any part thereof destroyed or damaged, expend without delay the monies received under such insurance in rebuilding, reinstating or replacing the same; and
- bb. maintain in good condition all property, equipment, machinery, furniture, fixtures, fittings and assets which DfC has funded or part funded.

Claims & Payments

21. Claims for goods and services will not be paid unless supported by the documentation detailed in 7 above.
22. Claims for assistance towards the cost of individuals who are employed in the project will not be paid unless supported by the documentation detailed in paragraph 7 above.
23. No payment will be awarded for any expenditure incurred outside the award period specified.
24. There shall be no obligation on DfC to make payment in respect of claims which are received more than 3 months after the end date of the Funding Period.

Bank Account

25. A nominated current account must be maintained for the disbursement of all expenditure related to the project. Details of the account must be provided on the form provided with this letter. The Grant will be paid directly into this bank account. No cash payments may be made for expenditure incurred.
26. Any proposed changes to bank account details must be notified to DfC immediately.

27. Organisations involved in the delivery of multiple projects may already have a financial system using cost centres rather than multiple bank accounts. Such organisations may wish to negotiate with DfC to retain this system for the purposes of managing the project. These negotiations will require the grant recipient to demonstrate to the DfC's satisfaction that the systems in place guarantee a clear audit trail with regard to all aspects of the project finances. Should subsequent systems checks reveal that DfC's requirements are not being met in this respect then the use of a dedicated bank account will become mandatory.
28. DfC will make every effort to pay claims promptly but accepts no liability in respect of loss attributable to delay in the payment of claims or to any suspension, reduction or cancellation of grant.

Fixed Assets

29. Should DfC funding be used to purchase or build a fixed asset/s, the applicant must maintain a fixed assets register. The assets must be retained by the applicant for periods which reflect their economic life. The grant recipient shall not sell, transfer or otherwise dispose of any asset without the prior written authorisation of DfC. If any asset obtained with the benefit of grant is sold, transferred or otherwise disposed of within 10 years from the Completion Date the grant recipient shall, on demand, repay to DfC so much of the grant as DfC considers is reasonable.

Clawback

30. If the equipment is sold, transferred or otherwise disposed of without the Department's consent or DfC concludes that the project has been abandoned DfC shall be under no obligation to make any further payment of the Grant and the full amount of the Grant already paid shall be repaid by the grant recipient on demand by DfC.

Procurement

31. In the event of the procurement of goods and services connected to the Project, the grant recipient is required to have procurement procedures which demonstrate value for money, are in line with NI Public Procurement Policy and comply with relevant Procurement Guidance Notes (PGNs). PGN's can be accessed on CPDs website - http://www.dfpni.gov.uk/index/procurement-2/cpd/cpd-policy-and-legislation/content_-_cpd_-_policy_-_procurement_guidance_notes.htm. At all times, due consideration should be given to ensure best value for money and open, fair and transparent competition. The grant recipient must keep records which support its decisions and be able to provide DfC with evidence of the competitive process if requested by DfC. (Annex 4 refers)
32. The grant recipient shall ensure that no conflict of interest shall arise in the appointment of any person to provide any goods, services or works which may be wholly or partly funded by DfC, and shall upon request provide DfC with written confirmation that no such conflict arises. A written declaration of interest must be provided where any member of the grant recipient organisation has any association or connection with any person who bids to provide work, goods or services to the grant recipient.
33. The grant recipient must provide DfC with a copy of any approved tender evaluation report, and supporting documentation.
34. The grant recipient shall not enter into any contract for the provision of works, goods or services wholly or partly funded from the award, and the works, supplies or services must not commence until permission to proceed is obtained from DfC.
35. The grant recipient will ensure that any agreements it enters into with contractors contain reasonable and adequate terms and conditions to safeguard the monies paid by DfC and all obligations of the grant recipient hereunder. The grant recipient shall comply with and pay all sums due and owing to contractors in accordance with any agreement it enters into with such persons in connection with the project.

36. Two duly authorised and empowered officials must accept this offer on behalf of the grant recipient. DfC must be informed of any change in project officials. At least one project official shall sign all subsequent communications to DfC including claims for payments (Chairperson and another authorised person e.g. Treasurer).

Indemnity

37. The grant recipient shall indemnify and keep indemnified DfC against all actions, proceedings, costs, claims, demands, and liabilities arising out of, in respect of, or in connection with this Letter of Offer from all or any of the activities associated with the Project.

Fraud

38. The grant recipient is responsible for ensuring effective procedures and controls are developed and maintained to mitigate the risk of fraud occurring and to ensure any instances of fraud are detected promptly – this includes the requirement to have a whistle-blowing policy and fraud policy / response plan in place. In the event of suspected / actual fraud DfC must be informed immediately.
39. If an investigation is deemed appropriate, DfC and its agents will have access to facilities, the right to view / obtain any records or documents or to interview any employee as necessary to enable DfC to determine whether any condition subject to which the financial assistance is given is satisfied or is being complied with or whether the financial assistance has become repayable in whole or in part in accordance with any such condition.

40. The grant recipient (and/or its representatives) may be prosecuted if it knowingly or recklessly makes any statement or produces any document which is false in a material particular.
41. Following a DfC investigation all instances of suspected fraud will be reported to the Police and criminal proceedings may be instigated if deemed appropriate.
42. This letter may be made available to other Departments / Agencies and other funding bodies for the purposes of preventing or detecting fraud.
43. Conflicts of interest – declare any actual or potential Conflicts of Interest which could exist as a direct consequence of the grant recipient's use of the funding to be provided by DfC and record same in a Register of conflicts
44. Charity law - ensure that the grant recipient operates within, and meets its obligations under charity law in Northern Ireland and further promotes, where relevant to the project, the charitable sector's obligations under the Charities (Northern Ireland) Act 2008.

Child Protection and Safeguarding Vulnerable Adults

45. The grant recipient is responsible for ensuring effective procedures and controls are developed and maintained to ensure the protection of Children and safeguarding vulnerable adults. Useful websites include www.safeguardingni.org and www.deni.gov.uk.

VAT

46. The amount of grant awarded is exclusive of VAT unless the VAT status provided proves the grantee cannot reclaim VAT. Any changes to VAT registration status should be communicated to DfC as soon as possible.

Sharing of Information

47. All Government Departments, Agencies and other funding bodies may share information on projects to enable them to prevent and detect fraudulent applications and to coordinate the processing of complementary applications. Accordingly, information provided by the grant recipient in the approved proposal and monitoring and evaluation plan and any other information provided may be stored on computer and may be made available to other Departments / Agencies for the purpose of ensuring the accuracy of information and preventing or detecting crime. Such information may also be placed in the public domain.
48. Subject to the requirements of the Data Protection Act 1998, information regarding the approved business case and the project may also be placed in the public domain by DfC.

Freedom of Information

49. The grant recipient acknowledges that DfC is subject to the information disclosure requirements of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Environmental Information Regulations 2004 and shall assist and co-operate with DfC (at the grant recipient's expense) to enable DfC to comply with these information disclosure requirements

Default

50. A default will be deemed to have occurred if;
 - a any information provided by the grant recipient or any representative in connection with, or for the purposes of, this contract and whether before or after the date of this Letter of Offer, is misleading or incorrect in any material respect; or
 - b the grant recipient is in breach of any obligation on its part contained in this Letter of Offer, and such breach is incapable of remedy, or if capable of remedy remains unresolved for a period of 30 days after written notice by DfC; or
 - c an order is made or an effective resolution is passed for the winding up of the grant recipient's organisation or a Receiver is appointed over the undertaking or a material part of the undertaking of the organisation; or
 - d the grant recipient is unable to pay its debts within the meaning of Article 104 of the Insolvency (NI) Order 1989; or
 - e an administration order is made in respect of the organisation.
51. In the event that a default occurs, DfC may suspend or terminate the contract between DfC and the grant recipient constituted by this Letter of Offer and the grant recipient shall, on written demand by the DfC, repay the whole of the amount of the funding paid under this Letter of Offer or such lesser amount as DfC may at its sole discretion so determine.
52. Furthermore, in the event of the applicant defaulting under paragraph 38 above, criminal proceedings may be instigated against the grant recipient as DfC may at its sole discretion so determine.
53. DfC reserves the right to suspend, defer, withhold or claw back any or all of the payments and / or require to repay part or all of the financial assistance if:
 - a the conditions of this offer are not met; or

- b any information given to DfC in connection with the application or claims for financial assistance is found to be false or misleading or there had been failure to disclose any material fact which would have had a bearing on the initial consideration of the application; or
 - c there is a substantial or material change in the nature, scale or timing of the Project; if the Project is used for purposes other than those specified in the application; or
 - d the applicant receives duplicate funding from any other source for the same project; or
 - e the operation of DfC or any legislation or DfC funding is changed to the detriment of the funding made available for this project; or
 - f if the project has in any other way not been implemented in accordance with these conditions of offer.
54. In the event of the identification of any administration errors in grant claims, acts of fraud and/or any circumstance that has caused or is likely to cause a loss or misuse of funding, this should be reported to DfC immediately.

Notice

55. Any letter, notice or demand by DfC shall be sufficiently served on the applicant if it is delivered by hand or sent by post to the grant recipient's registered Office address as listed in Companies House.

Procurement of Goods and Services

All grant recipients will be required to observe the current procurement threshold requirements for purchasing goods and services, as outlined in CPD Procurement Guidance Note 04/12.

The CPD guidance note goes into detail on the requirements for purchasing however in summary the following thresholds should be observed:

Estimated Value of Order (excluding VAT)	No. of Quotations Required
UP TO £5,000	Demonstrate that value for money has been secured *
£5,001 to £30,000	A minimum of 2 tenders received
£30,000 to EU Thresholds	Publicly advertised Tender Competition
EU Thresholds	Advertisement in European Journal

 Purchases under £5,000 will be classified as procurement expenditure but they are not subject to the full range of procurement rules. However Project Promoters must ensure that all purchases below £5,000 are subject to normal value for money considerations and are in compliance with Managing Public Money Northern Ireland.*

Organisations should carry out a price check (including internet checks) with at least two suppliers to ensure value for money has been achieved. Price checks should be documented and retained on file for audit purposes.

These contracts must be procured in adherence to the Public Contracts Regulations 2006 (as amended). The regulations can be found at <http://www.opsi.gov.uk/si/si2006/20060005.htm>

Competitions for contracts not subject to the Public Contracts Regulations should be carried out in accordance with the European Treaty principles in relation to transparency, non discrimination and proportionality where they are of cross border interest.

What factors are to be evaluated?
Outline the procedures for disseminating any lessons learnt.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities what is the anticipated cost to the public purse of her decision to allow the Northern Ireland Housing Executive to again build houses.

(AQW 10787/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In my recent Housing Policy Statement to the Assembly, I set out my plans to deal with the very significant investment challenge facing the Housing Executive. It is vital that we invest in our current stock as well as building more social homes.

The cost of revitalising the Housing Executive so that it may borrow and invest in its existing homes has yet to be established. It will however be insignificant in comparison to the costs that the public purse will face if the Housing Executive were to meet its investment requirement in its current form.

The changes that I will bring will ensure that the Housing Executive can build more homes where they are needed and provide essential maintenance to the 85,000 homes they currently manage. I want to provide security for current tenants and homes for future generations.

I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate which will set out further details of how to address the investment Challenge facing the Housing Executive.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister for Communities what support her Department provides to charities offering animal assisted therapy.

(AQW 10810/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: You will appreciate that animal assisted therapy is a health related matter and is outside the remit of my Department. However, on behalf of the Executive, my Department has taken the lead in distributing emergency funding to charities impacted by Covid-19. Although the funding scheme closed on 21 August 2020, I am aware of the ongoing financial challenges faced by charities and I therefore plan to launch a further phase of funding in December. I would encourage as many charities as possible to apply.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities how much will membership of the new mutual replacing the Housing Executive cost.

(AQW 10833/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I set out my plans to the Assembly in my Housing Policy Statement, to revitalise the Housing Executive and in particular to change the Landlord side of the Housing Executive from its current form, so that it has the freedom to borrow and invest in its homes.

I have noted my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants

I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate which will include details of the timescales and budget for implementation of the new proposed structures.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether current tenants of the Housing Executive will automatically become tenants of the new mutual replacing the Housing Executive.

(AQW 10834/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Following my November 3 statement, my officials have started work to assess options to take forward reclassification for the Housing Executive landlord. I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I am committed to a co-design approach in developing these options and engaging with tenants. These plans are in their early stages but a principle will be that tenants of the Housing Executive will continue to be tenants after the change.

I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether employees will be members of the new landlord body for the Housing Executive.

(AQW 10835/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My revitalisation plans are at an early stage, but I want to reassure staff that I am committed to a co-design approach in developing these options, and engagement with staff and their Trade Unions will be central to this process.

My officials will shortly be commencing work to assess options to effect this change and I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants. This work will include considerations of governance arrangements, with this preference in mind.

I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities what is the intended management and governance structure for the new landlord body of the Housing Executive.

(AQW 10836/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My officials have started work to develop and assess options to achieve reclassification of the Housing Executive and deliver the much-needed investment in its homes. This work will explore all changes that reclassification will require including the governance structure of the reclassified organisation. I have been clear that my preference is for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants. I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate which will include details for implementation of the new proposed structures.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities to detail any COVID-19-related payments made to individual sports organisations and clubs since March 2020 by her Department or Sport NI.

(AQW 10839/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Due to the volume of detail required to answer the question, I have arranged for these details to be placed in the Assembly Library.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities how local councils will be supported as part of the £10 million allocation announced by the Minister of Finance.

(AQW 10869/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 23 November 2020, the Executive allocated a further £10m to my Department to support local councils for the period from mid-March 2020 to March 2021. This was in addition to £75.3m that was previously allocated for councils for this financial year of which £40.3m has been paid to date as set out in the table below.

Councils have faced significant financial challenges as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and continued financial support from the Executive to alleviate these losses is critical to ensuring councils can positively contribute to local economic, social and environmental recovery. In addition councils will be appointing COVID-19 ambassadors/champions to ensure the regulations are widely known and understood and will also be providing assistance with the revitalisation of town centres.

My Department will continue to carry out analysis of the figures to be provided by each council reflecting their projected financial losses and COVID-19 costs for this financial year taking into account updated estimates and actual spend.

Once my Department has carried out due diligence exercises on further information provided by councils, the figures will be signed off by individual Council Chief Executives. Final consultation with Association of Local Government Finance Officers and Society of Local Authority Chief Executives will also take place.

This will provide a basis for allocation that will be consistent with the original bid for support as approved by the Executive. Allocations for the remaining £45m funding will be confirmed once information has been provided by councils and due diligence exercises have been completed.

COVID-19 Quarter 1 and Quarter 2 Allocations

Council	COVID-19 Q1 Allocation	COVID-19 Q2 Allocation
Antrim & Newtownabbey	£1,949,158	£472,679
Ards & North Down	£1,415,734	£1,811,688
Armagh, Banbridge, Craigavon	£2,052,238	£1,483,788
Belfast	£4,042,083	£5,568,533
Causeway Coast & Glens	£1,965,989	£1,601,625

Council	COVID-19 Q1 Allocation	COVID-19 Q2 Allocation
Derry & Strabane	£1,291,091	£1,824,842
Fermanagh & Omagh	£1,793,465	£307,599
Lisburn & Castlereagh	£2,016,401	£982,304
Mid & East Antrim	£934,149	£3,040,393
Mid Ulster	£1,298,985	£2,259,197
Newry Mourne & Down	£1,540,707	£647,352
Total	£20,300,000	£20,000,000

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 10092/17-22, to specify the accountability measures which are in place.

(AQW 10890/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As is standard practice for grant recipients Conradh na Gaeilge is subject to the usual requirements for award of public funds which are set out in a letter of offer including, providing to the Department upon demand such evidence as the Department shall require to demonstrate successful completion, delivery and operation of the project. The letter of offer outlines the conditions for award of the grant and the responsibilities of the grant recipient. A post project evaluation must be carried out on completion of the project. Grant recipients must also inform the Department as soon as possible of any changes to the terms of the letter of offer.

Mr Storey asked the Minister for Communities whether she will bring forward additional funding support for sports organisations, including elite football clubs, affected by the prohibition of spectators from 27 November 2020.

(AQW 10895/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I have secured £25m for a Sports Sustainability Fund, this is on top of the £2m I secured in the June monitoring round for the Sports Hardship Fund.

The £25m of funding will be used to support the sector, and that will include providing financial support for sports, including elite football, who have been impacted by the restrictions on spectators being present at fixtures.

The scheme which is currently being developed by the department in partnership with Sport NI, will be open to Governing Bodies, their affiliated sports clubs and other sporting organisations and will open shortly for applications.

Finally, I can also confirm that the Sports Hardship Fund, which has provided essential support to smaller clubs and sporting organisations, will continue to be available as part of this wider Covid support package.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities when the £44.3 million for one-off heating payments of £200 for disabled people on higher rate Disability Living Allowance or Personal Independence Payment, and older people in receipt of pension credit, will be rolled out.

(AQW 10927/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: This question has been transferred to me, as Minister for Communities, to respond as the issue falls within my area of responsibility.

My Department plans to make the Covid-19 Heating Payment at the end of January 2021.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Communities what assurances she can give that the financial assistance provided to taxi drivers in the taxi drivers financial assistance scheme will not disqualify recipients from benefit payments, such as housing benefit.

(AQW 10931/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme provides a one off payment to eligible taxi drivers to assist with directly incurred overhead costs and expenses. As the payment is related to an individual's business it will not impact on entitlement to a relevant income-based benefit. This means there will be no requirement to report details of any payments made under this scheme to the Department for Communities or the Housing Executive if an individual taxi driver is in receipt of one of the following benefits: Employment and Support Allowance, Housing Benefit, Income Support, Jobseeker's Allowance and Universal Credit.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether the Housing Executive will remain under ministerial control when it becomes a housing mutual; and how she will ensure ring-fenced funding for new builds will be spent on housing.

(AQW 10944/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The objective set out in my statement is to change the landlord part of the Housing Executive so that it may borrow, invest and provide a sustainable future for its homes. I am clear that I want to maintain the maximum degree of public accountability consistent with that objective. Hence my preference for a mutual or co-operative model.

I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate which will include details for implementation of the new proposed structures and processes.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for Communities when AQW 7521/17-22 will be answered.
(AQW 10967/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: AQW 7521 17-22 was answered on 30 November 2020.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities whether telephone assessments for personal independence payments are recorded; and to detail the rationale for this decision.
(AQW 10994/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The audio recording of face to face assessments was a recommendation by Walter Rader in the first independent review of PIP. The introduction of recording was viewed as improving transparency in the assessment process. Following this recommendation, the Department introduced the facility to record all clinic-based PIP Assessments on 18 November 2019 and all arrangements were in place to also record home-based assessments.

Due to COVID-19, and in line with public health guidance, I suspended face-to-face Personal Independence Payment (PIP) assessments from 23 March 2020.

To ensure continuity of service for new applicants for PIP, telephone assessments were introduced. Whilst telephone assessments are not currently recorded, Officials in DfC are working with the contracted Assessment Provider, Capita, to develop and implement an audio recording service from Spring 2021.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities to detail all capital disregards when calculating social security entitlement.
(AQW 11004/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: For social security purposes, all capital is taken into account as capital unless it can be treated as unearned income or disregarded. Capital disregards are amounts that the claimant has, but is not taken into account when calculating entitlement. Generally speaking, a person who has more than £16,000 in capital will not be entitled to a social security benefit.

A person has to provide all necessary evidence to show that any capital they have can be disregarded. If there is no evidence to show capital can be disregarded, it may be included as unearned income when working out entitlement to social security benefits.

The rules governing social security legislation are complex; each social security benefit has its entitlement rules embedded within the legislation governing. It may be more helpful to outline categories of capital which may be disregarded when calculating entitlement to social security benefits.

Firstly, capital can be disregarded:

- indefinitely;
- for a period of up to 12 months;
- for a period of up to 6 months; or
- for more than 6 months if it is reasonable.

Capital disregarded indefinitely includes:

- Business Assets;
- Personal Injury Compensation Payments;
- Premises occupied as the home;
- Life insurance policies still in force;
- Any occupational or pension fund (does not include money drawn out);
- Premises occupied by a former partner, under certain circumstances;
- Special compensation schemes; and
- A funeral plan contract.

Capital disregarded for up to 12 month includes:

- Arrears of benefit / compensation for late payment;
- A personal injury payment (in certain circumstances);
- Social fund;
- Bereavement Support Payment;

Capital disregarded for up to 6 months includes:

- Premises intended to be occupied (in certain circumstances);
- Premises no longer occupied, for example after separation;
- Business assets where a person has stopped involvement in that business within the last 6 months;
- Amount from an insurance policy where it is connected with the loss of premises and personal possessions; and
- Amounts for repairs or alterations.

Capital disregarded for more than 6 months, if reasonable includes:

- Amount to be used to purchase premises;
- Amount from an insurance policy where repairs or replacement of personal possessions will take longer than 6 months; and
- Amounts for repairs and alterations for premises occupied or intended to be occupied as a person's home.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the Sub-Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer funding. (AQW 11006/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Sub Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer is one of the commitments in the "New Decade, New Approach" Deal and as such my Department has been working to refresh and re-engage with the programme to provide a robust evidence base on the challenges, strategic priorities and needs of soccer at all levels.

A range of primary and secondary research tools have been adopted to inform the evidence base. This work has utilised a club survey along with discussions with key stakeholders including governing bodies of football, Sport NI, councils and Disability Sport NI. The analysis stage has begun and will inform the shape and scope of the programme going forward.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether she will raise the £21,400 household income threshold for the COVID-19 Self Isolation Grant (AQW 11038/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: To be eligible for a Discretionary Support Self-isolation grant a household's annual income must be no higher than £20,405. This income threshold was increased in response to the pandemic and means that more people in low paid employment can access Discretionary Support.

The Self-isolation grant is designed to assist with short term living expenses where a person, or any member of their immediate family, is diagnosed with COVID-19 or has been advised to self-isolate in accordance with the latest guidance from the Public Health Agency. Importantly, there is no limit on the number of Self-Isolation grants that can be awarded.

I announced enhancements to the Self-isolation grant on 17 November 2020 and I am continuing to review the Discretionary Support scheme to ensure that it delivers financial support to those most in need during the pandemic.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for Communities (i) for an update on discussions on the necessary remediation work on Creggan reservoirs; and (ii) whether her Department will meet the costs in order to make progress on developments at Fort George and others that fall within the responsibility of her Department. (AQW 11085/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Following a meeting between Department for Infrastructure, Derry City and Strabane District Council and my officials, it has been agreed that, subject to elected members' approval, Council will submit a funding proposal to central government for costs needed to carry out the necessary remediation work on Creggan Reservoirs as well as future inspection and maintenance costs. Discussions are still ongoing as to how these works will be funded.

Department of Education

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education what resources have been allocated to the provision of remote learning in the event of further disruption and remote learning becoming necessary over the next few months. (AQW 9704/17-22)

Mr Weir (The Minister of Education): My Department has asked schools to have contingency plans in place for the delivery of remote learning in the event of a school closure, or that a class or group of pupils need to self-isolate.

Practical advice and support is available to schools on remote learning from their COVID-19 Link Officer and from both the Education and Training Inspectorate and Education Authority more generally.

In addition, my Department has provided guidance for schools on both Remote Learning and Curriculum Planning and Blended Learning for 2020/21. Further resources, guidance materials and case studies have also been produced by my Department's Continuity of Learning Project.

EA has developed a website to host resources and to provide access to a range of online Teacher Professional Learning sessions on issues pertinent to the COVID-19 context. New resources are being added on a regular basis over coming weeks and months.

We are fortunate in Northern Ireland that schools have access to a centrally provided IT system - C2K. This has supported online access to school services from the beginning of the COVID-19 school closures. Additional funding has been provided to EA to continue to improve the services available, including a number of additional learning applications and upgrading the bandwidth in specific areas.

My Department's scheme to provide IT devices and WiFi access (vouchers or MiFi devices) to our educationally disadvantaged and vulnerable learners to support access to remote learning has distributed over 8,500 devices and remains open.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 9077/17-22, when a child is deregistered from a school with not known given as the reason, whether his Department investigates this to make sure it is a legal move made by the parents or guardians.

(AQW 9777/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority (EA) advises any parents/carers wishing to deregister their child to ensure that the reason is stated within their letter to the school.

Should the parent/carer wish to home educate their child, this will be recorded on the SA1 form, filled in by parents who wish to home educate their child, and will then be recorded by the school on the SIMS system. Home education is not the only reason for deregistration and guiding codes are used in the SIMS system to confirm the reason.

Schools will also record on the SIMS system when a young person has moved to another school within Northern Ireland and this can be confirmed by the Education Welfare Service.

In addition, schools will refer matters to Education Welfare Services for tracing of pupils who have reportedly left the jurisdiction. The EA Education Welfare Service is a member of the Children Missing in Education UK database and can track pupils as to their new school for confirmation of enrolment.

Schools will also notify Intercultural Education Service regarding Roma/Traveller pupils who have left the school register and the service will follow up as required.

An SA1 form submitted with no reason will prompt a call to the school from the EA to gain clarity on the situation and inform any necessary action.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether he will review the decision to change the commencement of education of sick children at the Children's Hospital from five days after admission to 28 days.

(AQW 9783/17-22)

Mr Weir: Belfast Hospital School is part of the Education Authority's Exceptional Teaching Arrangements (ETA) service which assists schools in delivering education to pupils who are temporarily unable to attend school for a period of time lasting more than 20 school days. The Education Authority has advised that it has decided that education will commence when a pupil has been in hospital for at least 20 school days, this is to keep the provision in hospital in line with that in the community. The rationale is to concentrate resources on those pupils who need it most, in the case of the hospital this would include children with long-term or recurring illnesses and was agreed by the Hospital School's Board of Governors and relevant medical professionals.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education what progress has been made in respect of extending eligibility criteria for laptops, chromebooks and wifi vouchers in order to expand access to these supports.

Mr Weir: The current scheme for lending devices aims to ensure that resources are targeted where there is greatest need.

The Scheme is open for schools to make requests for eligible pupils who do not have sufficient access to a device to support their learning and priority has been given to pupils in Year 12,14,7 and 4. In November the eligibility was expanded to include pupils currently in Year 11 and 13 and devices continue to be allocated across these 6 year groups.

As of 27 November over ten thousand devices have been allocated to support pupils to engage with their learning.

WiFi is available for eligible pupils across all year groups and the EA continues to work with schools to allocate WiFi to those pupils who require it.

The form to request both digital devices and wifi access remains open on the C2k exchange and the EA is continuing to process requests as a matter of urgency. The need for additional devices to meet further demand is being kept under review.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Education to detail how many primary schools fall into each financial category ranging from 1a – 5.

(AQW 10196/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority's assessment of the financial categories of Controlled and Maintained primary schools, based on those schools' financial plans for the 2019-20 financial year, is provided in the table below.

Funding Authority Financial Category

1a	1b	2	3	4	5	Total
88	164	130	57	242	98	779

Note: The table includes schools that opened and closed in the 2019-20 financial year.

As different financing arrangements apply to Grant Maintained Integrated (GMI) schools, GMI primary schools are not categorised in the same way, and are therefore not included in the above table.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education to provide (i) a health and safety report on whether it is reasonably practicable for school children, who travel with an Education Authority (EA) issued boat pass on the Strangford ferry, where there is not enough shelter from inclement weather, to spend full days in school in wet, cold uniforms; and (ii) what actions his Department is taking to protect the health and wellbeing of those children who are under the responsibility of the EA Transport department while travelling from home to school.

Mr Weir: My Department and the Education Authority consider the health and safety of all pupils to be a key priority and a range of actions has been taken to protect pupils when using the home to school transport service during COVID-19. I recognise that many pupils will find themselves having to manage difficult weather conditions on their journey to school. This includes examples such as when they are travelling to/from, or waiting at, their bus pick up point and when using the Strangford Lough Ferry Service. It is not possible for all pupils to be sheltered on all such aspects of their journey to school and it is therefore important, as it is in any year, for all pupils to be prepared for such conditions by having suitable clothing with them. There is no additional health and safety assessment in respect of this.

My officials have worked closely with those from the Department for Infrastructure, the Education Authority and Translink in recent months to enable pupils to use the Strangford Lough Ferry Service for their journey to school. As a result of this there are now two additional ferry sailings to facilitate those using the home to school transport service and bus services have been scheduled to ensure a seamless transition. Social distancing requirements on the ferry do not allow all pupils to use the passenger cabin. Alternatives have been explored and it is considered that while some pupils are likely to be without shelter for the seven minute journey on the ferry, on balance this is preferable to the alternative of bus transport around the lough which is likely to add considerably to the duration of pupils' journeys.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education (i) why unit one of GCSE English Literature was removed when all schools had already studied this; (ii) for his assessment of whether this will reduce the burden on pupils given that many pupils, parents and teachers are reporting the opposite; and (iii) whether there are any other options for omission if unit one is reintroduced.

Mr Weir: Not all schools teach the specification in the same order, therefore omitting a different unit would impact on other schools. There is no perfect solution. While the assessment of unit one of GCSE English Literature may be omitted in Summer 2021, the unit has not been removed from the specification. This decision directly reduces the assessment burden on students by reducing the number of exams they need to sit to complete a qualification.

I would note that the unit one exam will still be available for any candidates wishing to be assessed in all units.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Education what additional support will be given to schools to help prepare them for a period of remote learning ahead of the Christmas period or in the remaining academic year.

(AQW 10285/17-22)

Mr Weir: There are no plans for a general move to remote learning prior to the Christmas period.

More generally, my Department has asked schools to have contingency plans in place for the delivery of remote learning in the event of a school closure, or that a class or group of pupils need to self-isolate.

Practical advice and support is available to schools on remote learning from their COVID-19 Link Officer and from both the Education and Training Inspectorate and Education Authority more generally.

In addition, my Department has provided guidance for schools on both Remote Learning and Curriculum Planning and Blended Learning for 2020/21. Further resources, guidance materials and case studies have also been produced by my Department's Continuity of Learning Project.

EA has developed a website to host resources and to provide access to a range of online Teacher Professional Learning sessions on issues pertinent to the COVID-19 context. New resources are being added on a regular basis over coming weeks and months.

We are fortunate in Northern Ireland that schools have access to a centrally provided IT system - C2K. This has supported online access to school services from the beginning of the COVID-19 school closures. Additional funding has been provided to EA to continue to improve the services available, including a number of additional learning applications and upgrading the bandwidth in specific areas.

My Department's scheme to provide IT devices and WIFI access (vouchers or MiFi devices) to our educationally disadvantaged and vulnerable learners to support access to remote learning has distributed over 8,500 devices and remains open.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) who is responsible for assessing the effectiveness of COVID-19 mitigation strategies in schools; (ii) how the effectiveness of these measures is assessed; and (iii) his level of confidence of the rule compliance and mitigation strategies in force in schools.

Mr Weir: The Department's approach to planning for the re-opening of schools has been focussed on restricting opportunities for the virus to enter a school and limiting the risk of transmission.

To make sure that schools remain safe for our children, young people and staff, a number of risk mitigations have been put in place.

Principals and school staff have been working tirelessly implementing these measures to keep schools safe for pupils and, their efforts have ensured the level of transmission in schools remains low.

In regards to assessing the effectiveness of mitigations Education Inspectorate Team (ETI) have been working with the Minister and Department of Education, and has remained committed to supporting school staff, parents and pupils offering bespoke advice, guidance and assistance. This has allowed ETI to identify challenges and many examples of creative practice associated with remote learning during school closure.

The PHA is publishing weekly and monthly bulletins on the COVID-19 pandemic in Northern Ireland. This information includes information in relation to schools. The latest PHA stats indicate that up to the end of week 46 (ending 15 November 2020) 1,656 confirmed COVID-19 cases in pupils had been reported by schools to the PHA School Team. This equates to 0.48% of school aged children in Northern Ireland which would confirm the risk mitigations are working and school remains a safe place.

Each school has a dedicated link officer who work closely with schools to provide guidance on best practice.

I hope this provides you with the information you require.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education why his Department has never used the volunteers recruited under the Department of Education Volunteering Scheme, despite the fact that thousands of vulnerable children continue to miss out on learning experiences every day due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10301/17-22)

Mr Weir: Following the closure of schools in late March 2020, the Department of Education initiated a volunteers list, which was formed in case there was a need to supplement the staffing for the key workers' scheme, which ran from March until the end of June. In the event, there was no need to call from this list and a letter went to all volunteers at that time.

Presently there are no plans to reinstate the list for school operations under restart, as the NISTR list (substitute teachers register) would be utilised before there would be a need to go further. The Department does appreciate the willingness of volunteers to become involved, and should the situation change, we would re-visit the issue.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education, even though children have had their full legal entitlement to special educational needs support restored in August 2020 when the Temporary Modification Notices were discontinued, to detail why (i) Education Authority direct peripatetic literacy support remains restricted; (ii) direct autism intervention is suspended; and (iii) there is no direct language and communication service.

Mr Weir: The services referred to (i) direct peripatetic literacy support (ii) direct autism intervention and (iii) direct language and communication service are provided under the banner of the Education Authority (EA) Special Educational Needs (SEN) Pupil Support Services. The EA advise that these services have continued during the Covid-19 period and remain fully operational at this time.

A blended approach is being taken and support is being provided in a range of ways depending on the needs of children and young people and the individual circumstances. In keeping with Public Health Agency advice and guidance, some meetings with staff and some advisory supports are being provided remotely. Intervention continues to be provided face to face with pupils in schools, where it is safe and appropriate to do so. Where there are unavoidable restrictions, remote support is being offered as part of the blended offer.

In addition to the on-going training, advisory and intervention work of services, an extensive suite of resources, contact details and signposts remain available on the EA Website: <https://www.eani.org.uk/services/pupil-support-services>

This resource suite was developed during the school closure period to provide remote support to parents and schools. It continues to be developed and now contains training for both professionals and parents as services move their training programmes to online platforms.

Middletown Centre for Autism (MCA) resumed their Learning Support & Assessment Services from 1 September 2020, with all training moving online for the foreseeable future.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what guidance and support his Department is providing to promote live stream classes for pupils unable to attend school due to a COVID-19-related absence.

(AQW 10306/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Department has asked schools to have contingency plans in place for the delivery of remote learning in the event of a school closure, or that a class or large group of pupils need to self-isolate.

My Department has provided guidance for schools on both Remote Learning and Curriculum Planning and Blended Learning for 2020/21. Further resources, guidance materials and case studies have also been produced by my Department's Continuity of Learning Project.

When developing and delivering their remote learning programme, it is a matter for individual schools in conjunction with their staff to determine whether livestreaming represents an appropriate learning approach for their school community and to ensure that all child protection and safeguarding procedures are appropriately followed.

Live-streaming allows for a level of personal interaction and belonging to the school community, as well as allowing pupils direct access to teaching. However, there is no compelling evidence to indicate that synchronous online learning is more effective at improving pupil outcomes than asynchronous approaches through for example pre-recorded lessons.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education for his assessment of the Queen's University Belfast and Centre for Children's Rights report on Understanding Life in Lockdown for Autistic Young People.

(AQW 10307/17-22)

Mr Weir: The emotional wellbeing and mental health of our children and young people, are extremely important to me and I welcome the issues raised in the report in relation to the impacts of lockdown on children and young people with Autism.

I recently launched the Wellbeing Restart Fund, providing £5m in 2020/21 direct to all schools (nursery, primary, post primary, special), as well as EOTAS and Youth Settings, to help address concerns around children and young people's emotional wellbeing and mental health, arising as a result of Covid-19.

Alongside this, officials are working with the Education Authority and representatives of the Special Schools Leadership Group to develop a programme of support, similar to Engage, which will help address the impact of school closures on the learning of children and young people with complex needs in Special Schools.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Education what provisions are being put in place for students during the winter months that may need to carry out remote learning due to additional medical needs.

(AQW 10417/17-22)

Mr Weir: A small number of children will be advised by their clinical team not to attend school. Where a child has been medically advised by a consultant not to attend school during 2020/21, parents should consult with their school Principal and the Education Authority regarding education provision for these pupils.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education (i) what work his Department has undertaken to deliver a new special school in Belfast, the need for which was identified by an Education and Library Board report in 2012; and (ii) what capital budget he has allocated for this project.

(AQW 10521/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education and Library Boards submitted strategic area plans for special education to the Department of Education in 2012. On receipt, the then Minister for Education decided that a co-ordinated regional assessment of future need for special schools was required, and commissioned a review to facilitate the development of a framework for a regional area plan.

The Education Authority (EA) is currently consulting on two Strategic Frameworks (one for Special Schools and one for Specialist Provision in Mainstream Schools). The consultation period for both consultations has been extended until 11 February 2020.

Planning provision for special education services in mainstream and special school settings is a matter for the EA.

Any significant changes to statutory education provision, including Special Schools, are subject to a statutory process. This is mainly set out in Article 14 of the Education and Libraries (NI) Order 1986 (as amended) and requires the publication of a Development Proposal (DP). No DP's have been published in relation to the establishment of a new special school and the Department's role has therefore not been engaged.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether he plans to fully delegate budgets to special schools.
(AQW 10522/17-22)

Mr Weir: There are no immediate plans to fully delegate budgets to Special Schools, but I will keep under review the opportunity for more financial delegation to the sector.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) why the Education Authority is operating a reduced service; and (ii) why key support services such as behaviour support and the autism advisory and intervention service are working from home when schools are operational and in need of this support.

(AQW 10524/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority (EA) operates the Special Educational Needs (SEN) Pupil Support Services. The EA advise that these services have continued during the Covid-19 period and remain fully operational at this time.

A blended approach is being taken and support is being provided in a range of ways depending on the needs of children and young people and the individual circumstances. In keeping with Public Health Agency advice and guidance, some meetings with staff and some advisory supports are being provided remotely. Intervention continues to be provided face to face with pupils in schools, where it is safe and appropriate to do so. Where there are unavoidable restrictions, remote support is being offered as part of the blended offer.

In addition to the on-going training, advisory and intervention work of services, an extensive suite of resources, contact details and signposts remain available on the EA Website: <https://www.eani.org.uk/services/pupil-support-services>

This resource suite was developed during the school closure period to provide remote support to parents and schools. It continues to be developed and now contains training for both professionals and parents as services move their training programmes to online platforms.

Middletown Centre for Autism (MCA) resumed their Learning Support & Assessment Services from 1 September 2020, with all training moving online for the foreseeable future.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether the Education Authority Educational Psychology Service has the capacity to meet the needs of pupils in need of special educational need support.

(AQW 10525/17-22)

Mr Weir: I am aware that the significant increase in the number of children presenting with Special Educational Needs (SEN) has placed increased demands on the Educational Psychology Service (EPS).

A review of the EPS, including a capacity and demand exercise, will be progressed as part of the Education Authority's (EA) wider SEN Strategic Programme. This capacity and demand exercise will also consider interdependencies with other SEN services and schools, and will provide a clearer picture of the EPS's capacity to meet the needs of pupils with SEN.

Mr Robinson asked the Minister of Education for an update on the provision of a new classroom at Drumrane Primary School, Limavady, to facilitate increasing admission numbers.

(AQW 10544/17-22)

Mr Weir: A Development Proposal (DP) was submitted by the Education Authority (EA) in February 2020 to increase the schools admission and enrolment numbers, but the DP process was subsequently suspended due to the Covid-19 pandemic. DP activity has now resumed and I hope to be in a position to make a decision regarding this school shortly.

I would however highlight that the EA's Case for Change supporting the DP for this school noted that, should the DP be approved, an additional multipurpose resource space and toilets were required, not an additional classroom.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education why special educational needs provision was not included in the criteria for Engage Programme funding.

(AQW 10602/17-22)

Mr Weir: In recognition of the wider impact of the Covid-19 pandemic, the Engage programme provides both additional support across all primary and post primary schools, whilst also targeting schools with the greatest concentrations of children from disadvantaged backgrounds, measured by Free School Meal Entitlement (FSME).

I felt that it was right and necessary to weight the distribution of resources in this way as there is evidence to suggest that the period of school closures may have been more likely to impact on such pupils and had the potential to widen the achievement divide further between FSME pupils and their non-FSME peers.

In the context of a global pandemic, the funding methodology for Engage was designed in such a way as to ensure that it was simple and straightforward and could be allocated quickly and efficiently to schools, hence the use of FSME, a widely used indicator of socio-economic disadvantage, validated at pupil level, and which is readily available from annual school census data.

Schools have a wide range of autonomy in terms of the design, content and structure of Engage programme delivery in accordance with the particular needs of their pupils, using their professional judgement to identify those pupils who would benefit the most from additional teaching support following the lockdown period. This may include children with Special Educational Needs attending mainstream schools.

Officials are working with the Education Authority (EA) and representatives of the Special Schools Leadership Group (SSLG) to develop options for a similar model to the Engage Programme which, subject to securing funding, will help address the impact of school closures, in terms of lost learning, on children and young people with complex needs in Special Schools.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether he has considered allowing greater flexibility with the six month rule for teachers employed via the Northern Ireland Substitute Teacher Register, to permit some continuity during the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10604/17-22)

Mr Weir: In Northern Ireland, teachers' terms and conditions of service are negotiated by the Teachers' Negotiating Committee (TNC). Therefore it is not an issue that lies within the control of the Department. Management Side's membership includes representatives of the main employing authorities and sectoral bodies; Department of Education (DE) is also represented. Teachers' Side, Northern Ireland Teaching Council (NITC), is made up of members of the 5 recognised teachers' unions.

The procedure for engaging substitute teachers was negotiated at TNC and can be found in the TNC document TNC 2016/1 at this link:

TNC 2016-1 Appropriate Use of NISTR

This document explains the procedure to be followed in exceptional circumstances, where short term appointment/s through NISTR may require extension beyond a 6 month period.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education whether his Department's guidance for educational settings and childcare was prepared for a typical school day or for schools being used as test centres.

(AQW 10668/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Department's revised Northern Ireland Re-opening Schools Guidance - New School Day was published on 13 August 2020. The guidance has been informed by advice provided by the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Scientific Advisor and the Executive's agreement on 6 August 2020 that the stringent application of social distancing requirements between pupils will be relaxed from 17 August 2020. The guidance provides guidelines on issues including start dates, hygiene and cleaning processes and a wide range of risk mitigations.

The guidance is written with a view to providing a planning framework for the "day one" restart of schools and should be seen in that context.

It provides an overarching framework for the re-opening of schools and education settings in Northern Ireland, with the aim of ensuring broad consistency and equity across local areas, but is sufficiently flexible to allow education settings and staff to adapt and adopt approaches that best suit their needs.

In regards to Schools being used as test centres there are currently no schools being used as test centres.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education to detail any joint initiatives his Department has undertaken with the Department of Health under the Children's Services Co Operation Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 since the Act received Royal Assent.

(AQW 10673/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Children's Services Co-operation Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 places a duty on named children's authorities, which include Northern Ireland departments, to co-operate with each other and with other children's service providers to improve the well-being of children and young people; and requires the Northern Ireland Executive to adopt a children and young person's strategy.

My Department has led on the development of the Executive Children and Young People's Strategy, working collaboratively with all the departments, including the Department of Health. I intend to bring the strategy to the Executive for consideration in the near future.

In accordance with the Act's requirement for children's authorities to co-operate to improve the well-being of children and young people, my Department has worked and continues to work collaboratively with the Department of Health on a range of policy, strategy and programme developments including: the draft Looked After Children Strategy: A life Deserved; the Online Safety Strategy; the Family and Parenting Support Strategy; the Childcare Strategy; the Obesity Prevention Strategy (A Fitter Future for All); Nutritional Standards for School Food; the New Strategic Direction for Alcohol and Drugs Phase 2; the Childhood Flu Vaccination and Immunisation programme; the development of proposals for a Regional Care and Justice Campus (with Health and Justice); the Sure Start programme; the Emotional Health and Well-being Framework; and implementing aspects of the new Special Educational Needs (SEN) Framework. As part of the Early Intervention Transformation Programme, the Departments of Education and Health developed and implemented the Getting Ready Suite of programmes, including Getting Ready for Toddler and Getting Ready to Learn.

Since the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic, my Department has worked co-operatively with Health on a number of matters including measures to support vulnerable children and families, provide support for childcare and ensure childcare was available for children of key workers during the first lockdown. To ensure a clear understanding of the issues impacting children returning to school safely and having access to school transport and catering services, there was engagement at Ministerial level involving the Ministers of Education and Health, the Chief Medical Officer, Chief Scientific Advisor and the Public Health Agency.

The Departments of Education and Health and their arms-length bodies co-operate on an ongoing basis on a wide range of matters affecting the well-being of children and young people including child protection, educational underachievement and support for children with special educational needs.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education, given the contribution that nurture classes make to many children's education and wellbeing, whether he has any plans to expand the programme in the incoming years.
(AQW 10690/17-22)

Mr Weir: The new nurture programme, which I announced on 18 September, is being progressed within the budget I have available to ensure implementation at the earliest opportunity.

Should additional funding be made available in future years, I will consider an expansion of this programme in the context of my priorities at that time.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what work his Department has undertaken to prepare for the implementation of Operation Encompass.
(AQW 10694/17-22)

Mr Weir: My Department is working collaboratively with DOH, DOJ, the SBNI and the PSNI to progress this work through the "Stopping Domestic and Sexual Violence and Abuse Strategy" and associated action plan. The Domestic Abuse and Family Proceedings Bill is currently at consideration stage and an amendment has been proposed to give power to make regulations to enable the initiative to be taken forward in this jurisdiction.

Once the bill is completed my Department will assist DOJ in developing supporting regulations to introduce Operation Encompass to NI. Part of this process will also be to determine and develop the support required by educational settings in implementing Operation Encompass.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education, given that the Engage Programme only applies to mainstream schools, to detail the specific work being done by Education Authority to limit any long-term adverse impact of the COVID-19 lockdown on educational standards in special schools.
(AQW 10695/17-22)

Mr Weir: Officials are working with the Education Authority and representatives of the Special Schools Leadership Group to develop options for a similar model to the Engage Programme which, subject to securing funding, will help address the impact of school closures on the learning of children and young people with complex needs in special schools following lockdown.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister of Education what training is provided to teachers in schools around racism and to raise awareness of cultural differences.
(AQW 10725/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority's (EA) Intercultural Education Service (IES) currently delivers an accredited intercultural training course to teachers and classroom assistants through the Queen's University Belfast (QUB) Open Learning programme. A condensed, unaccredited version of this training is expected to be made available by IES to all EA and school staff from April 2021.

IES is also developing intercultural content for inclusion in Bachelor of Education (BEd) and Post-Graduate Certificate in Education (PGCE) Initial Teacher Education (ITE) courses delivered by the Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) here, with the first training module being piloted in the 2021 spring term.

The training materials include specific content relating to the educational barriers and issues affecting Asylum Seeker, Refugee, Roma and Traveller children and young people.

Additionally, IES provides intercultural training to any EA service requiring awareness training around anti-racist and intercultural education practice. It also provides advice, guidance and focused support to schools, families and other educational support services in pursuit of the EA's objective of providing high quality education for every child.

Finally, whilst the Council for the Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) has no direct responsibility for teacher professional development, it does provide an extensive range of resources which support anti-racism and associated issues to assist teachers in the effective delivery of this important area within the NI Curriculum.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education what expertise or experience risk assessors have in conducting (i) COVID-19 risk assessments regarding pupils; and (ii) health and safety occupation assessments for invigilators specific to COVID-19.
(AQW 10737/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority (EA) has advised that guidance on the completion of risk assessments accompanies every risk assessment produced. The EA employs professionally qualified Health & Safety staff, well versed in the legal requirements around risk assessments, who ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, that EA assessments will meet the regulatory test of 'suitability and sufficiency' in controlling the risk. To assist schools in this task, the EA offered risk assessment training, at least up until March this year, free of charge to all schools.

The EA is not the legal 'duty holder' for health and safety in non-Controlled schools but does provide health and safety advice to all schools.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education to confirm whether invigilators have received training and induction into procedures for the Education Restart for each individual school setting.
(AQW 10738/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Department's revised Northern Ireland Re-opening Schools Guidance - New School Day was published on 13 August 2020. The guidance has been informed by advice provided by the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Scientific Advisor and the Executive's agreement on 6 August 2020 that the stringent application of social distancing requirements between pupils will be relaxed from 17 August 2020. The guidance provides guidelines on issues including start dates, hygiene and cleaning processes and a wide range of risk mitigations.

The guidance is written with a view to providing a planning framework for the "day one" restart of schools and should be seen in that context.

It provides an overarching framework for the re-opening of schools and education settings in Northern Ireland, with the aim of ensuring broad consistency and equity across local areas, but is sufficiently flexible to allow education settings and staff to adapt and adopt approaches that best suit their needs.

In regards to training it is for the individual schools to provide any training they feel is appropriate or required.

Public Health Agency and the Department of Health

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education (i) whether more than 15 pupils outside of their classroom bubbles travelling to be tested for COVID-19 is in contravention of any guidance from the Public Health Agency and the Department of Health; and (ii) whether gathering for test events would be prohibited by any statutory directions or legislation related to the incidence and transmission of COVID-19.

(AQW 10739/17-22)

Mr Weir:

Under Section 5 paragraph (1) of The Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020/150, which states:

- 1 "Subject to paragraphs (2) to (7), a person shall not organise, operate or participate in an indoor or outdoor gathering which consists of more than fifteen persons". Therefore if a group of more than 15 pupils travelled to be tested for Covid-19 they would be in breach of the regulations.
- 2 "Gatherings" for test events or any outdoor/indoor event would have to comply with The Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020/150 and any restrictions imposed within them.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education to detail all pupil enrolment numbers in (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools, broken down in each of the last three years.

(AQW 10762/17-22)

Mr Weir: The information requested has been placed in the assembly library.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether he considered the introduction of a temporary continuity direction to specify guidance for remote learning as issued by the Department of Education in England.

(AQW 10765/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Temporary Continuity Direction in England requires that where a class, group of pupils, or individual pupils need to self-isolate, or there are local or national restrictions requiring pupils to remain at home, schools are expected to provide immediate access to remote education.

My Department has asked schools to have similar contingency plans in place for the delivery of remote learning in the event of a school closure, or that a class or group of pupils need to self-isolate.

Feedback indicates that these plans are in place. I do not, therefore, consider it necessary at present to introduce a mandatory or legal temporary continuity direction to require remote learning.

Out key priority is to support and empower schools to deliver high quality remote learning and to share innovative practice. Departmental guidance has, therefore, been provided for schools on both Remote Learning and Curriculum Planning and Blended Learning for 2020/21. Further resources, guidance materials and case studies have also been produced by the Department's Continuity of Learning Project.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 6494/17-22, what stage the drafting of proposals for the introduction of mandatory autism training for teachers is presently at.

(AQW 10766/17-22)

Mr Weir: Work has been ongoing to develop and finalise proposals for an enhanced training framework. I intend to make an announcement shortly in relation to this.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the number of post-primary pupil absences by year group since schools returned following the extended mid-term break; (ii) the figures in relation to post-primary teacher absences for the same period; and (iii) these figures on a constituency basis.

(AQW 10796/17-22)

Mr Weir:

- (i) The figures in the tables below refer to the time period covering the weeks commencing 2nd November to the 16th November.

Pupil attendance is recorded by schools in units of half day sessions therefore if a pupil missed all three weeks of school through sickness for example this would count as 30 units (15 days x 2) within the figures presented in the table.

These figures do not include those pupils self-isolating due to COVID-19 or those learning remotely from home as these pupils will be marked as undertaking an approved educational activity which contributes to the overall Present figure. In recent years pre COVID-19 post primary absence has been 6.7%.

The first table shows the number of half day sessions recorded as absence while the second table shows these absences as a proportion of total possible attendance which will allow for greater comparability across constituencies.

- (ii) As part of a survey currently being undertaken each Tuesday, educational settings are being asked to report teacher attendance information. The information reported for post-primary schools is presented in the table below. It should be noted that the information relates only to the day of the survey. The survey has a typical response rate of approximately 63% for post-primary schools (i.e. around 120 schools). The data is not sufficiently robust to provide on a constituency basis.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Education for an update on the new build programme for Priory Integrated College, Holywood.

(AQW 10830/17-22)

Mr Weir: Priory Integrated College has been selected for a major capital investment project to improve or replace its existing accommodation. The project will cater for the school's current approved enrolment of 600 pupils.

In February 2020 the EA successfully completed the appointment of an Integrated Consultant Team to carry out the design of the proposed Priory Integrated College. The business case was approved by the Department of Finance (DoF) in August 2020. This identified the preferred option as a new build school at a site on Redburn Road in Holywood.

The Integrated Consultant Team is now working on the early stages of the design process.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education whether all children will be attending familiarisation days at their allocated test centres prior to test dates as in previous years.

(AQW 10832/17-22)

Mr Weir: Arrangements for familiarisation days are the responsibility of the test providers and host schools. I understand that all children sitting the tests are normally invited to a familiarisation day at the test centre where they are sitting the tests. Whether or not pupils attend this day is matter of individual choice. I have been advised that this year some schools are offering virtual familiarisation days.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education for an update on the Red Box project free sanitary products in school pilot.

(AQW 10873/17-22)

Mr Weir: DE officials have been working with the Education Authority on the issue of “period poverty” since June 2019 when it piloted a small voluntary scheme in North Belfast. Since then, work has developed on a range of options to provide free sanitary products in schools.

I await imminent advice for my consideration on the way forward. This is likely to lead to an Executive paper in the coming weeks if there is scope for it to be considered by the NI Executive. I intend to update the Education Committee at the same time.

Pursuant to AQW 689/17-22, the scheme would, if approved, be funded by the NI Executive and would not rely on charitable donations.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education for an update on the provision of free sanitary products in all schools.

(AQW 10874/17-22)

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 1405/17-22, for an update on advice on potential options in respect of the provision of free sanitary products in schools that he was scheduled to receive by the end of March 2020.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister of Education how his Department plans to deal with the need for an increase in nursery school place provision in the Ballyclare area.

(AQW 10907/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority (EA) is responsible for managing the Pre-School Education Programme (PSEP) and the EA Pre-School Education Group (PEG) has responsibility for securing sufficient PSEP provision in local areas to meet levels of demand for pre-school education provision for children in their immediate pre-school year.

The EA has advised that there is currently sufficient pre-school education provision in the Ballyclare area to meet both current and projected demand for funded pre-school education provision in the area.

There are no proposed actions in the Strategic Area Plan for School Provision - Action Plan 2019-21 relating to nursery provision in Ballyclare.

Any school seeking to expand its nursery provision is required to bring forward a development proposal (DP).

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education whether the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Scientific Officer contributed to and agreed to the application of the public exam guidelines that will be used for the post-primary transfer test.

(AQW 10945/17-22)

Mr Weir: The public exam guidelines are based on the main DE Coronavirus guidance and draw on guidance recently issued in England. It is intended as a guide to how to apply Covid-19 measures to an exam setting.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education, in light of primary school children aged 10 and 11 having to travel to secondary schools to sit each test, unlike the majority of children taking public exams who sit the tests in their own schools in their existing bubbles, whether the guidelines for public exams were conceived with the specific logistics of the post-primary transfer tests in mind.

Mr Weir: The post-primary tests are not overseen by the Department and are the result of a private arrangement between the test providers and schools. My Department plays no role in their operation or administration this includes the timing and location of the tests.

There is currently no bar on primary schools hosting the tests; however schools have a significant degree of autonomy to make decisions that reflect their ethos. Some primary schools may have indicated an openness to host tests but many have indicated they are not content. Representatives from the five teachers unions have indicated that they would be opposed to the use of local primary schools for the purpose of testing.

The health and safety of young people sitting the transfer tests is of paramount importance. I have therefore written to the test providers asking to be kept informed of the safety measures being put in place to reduce the risk of COVID 19 in line with guidance from the Department and the wider medical and public health requirements.

This would include, but not be limited to, ensuring staggered arrival and leaving times based on primary school bubbles, social distancing in classrooms and appropriate sanitising arrangements within the host school. I understand that the test providers, together with host schools, are already developing their approach to managing the practical arrangements needed for the test days. I have asked the providers to ensure I am kept informed of their plan

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education to detail any correspondence that has taken place between the Education Authority or Department of Education to schools in relation to following the Education Restart public health guidance to support public examinations in the context of the post-primary transfer tests.

Mr Weir: To date I have not had any direct contact with schools in relation to the published public health guidance to support public examinations in the context of the post-primary transfer tests. However, I wrote to the test providers on 30 October to advise that the guidance was being prepared and outlined my expectation that the test providers and those schools hosting the transfer tests would have regard to it when published. I have also agreed to share it with the providers and this is being followed up.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education for an update on payments due to members of the senior exam team employed by CCEA who were unable to perform their duties due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10981/17-22)

Mr Weir: Some examiners had already delivered preparatory work in relation to the cancelled examinations and all these individuals have been paid for this in accordance with the terms of their contracts. These payments amounted to almost £1million in the period April 2020 to August 2020. No further payments are due under these contracts.

Any compensatory payment in relation to work that could not take place due to the cancellation of exams would be considered a non-contractual payment. The Department was unable to reconcile the approval of a compensatory payment to examiners with Managing Public Money considerations and the potential repercussive effects of making a non-contractual payment.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education why CCEA senior examiners in Northern Ireland did not receive any furlough payments, given that their counterparts in other parts of the United Kingdom did.

Mr Weir: There was no central directive on the treatment of contractors in the examinations market and awarding organisations have made varying arrangements with their contractors depending on their specific contractual arrangements and organisational constitution.

Examiners in Northern Ireland were engaged by CCEA on a contract for services basis, whereby payment is conditional on the completion of work. As they are not employees of CCEA, they were not eligible for the Government furlough scheme.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education for an update on refunds given to students who were unable to take resit exams in 2020.

(AQW 10983/17-22)

Mr Weir: As already indicated in my answer to AQW 7282/17-22 and AQW 7900/17-22, CCEA has now submitted a proposal to the Department in relation to charges for summer 2020. This includes proposals in relation to private candidates and resit candidates who were awarded a grade.

Specific details pertaining to refunds and fees will be finalised following my consideration of CCEA's proposal.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education or his assessment of the hardship caused to CCEA examiners who were unable to perform their duties due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10984/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Department is aware that the cancellation of the summer exams series will have affected examiners to varying degrees depending on the level of anticipated income and their personal circumstances. However, it was important that any decision on this matter treated all exam contractors consistently. In that context, a compensatory payment could not be reconciled with Managing Public Money considerations and the potential repercussive effects of making a non-contractual payment.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education why no progress has been made on a new Special School in Belfast, the need for which was identified in 2012.

(AQW 10985/17-22)

Mr Weir: As I have said in my response to AQW 10521/17-22, any significant changes to statutory education provision, including Special Schools, are subject to a statutory process. This is mainly set out in Article 14 of the Education and Libraries (NI) Order 1986 (as amended) and requires the publication of a Development Proposal (DP). No DP's have been published in relation to the establishment of a new special school and the Department's role has therefore not been engaged.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education for his assessment of the Welsh Government's proposals for examinations in 2021.

(AQW 10986/17-22)

Mr Weir: I am disappointed that the Welsh Education Minister has acted unilaterally, moving away from the three-country arrangement for GCSEs and A Levels. The Welsh Minister outlined her intention to introduce a process involving externally set and marked assessments, which would appear to be exams without the security and controls of an exam situation to ensure fairness for all.

There is considerable uncertainty about the details of the process that will replace examinations in Wales and this is likely to increase anxiety amongst learners as they wait to hear how their qualifications will be awarded. The lack of familiarity with new assessment instruments, developed and rolled out at short notice could also increase anxiety levels. There is also no certainty about how universities will view the Welsh qualifications awarded using this untested new process.

CCEA has sought urgent clarification from WJEC on how they will award their qualifications outside Wales, including in Northern Ireland.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether he will publish full, open, transparent and accurate data regards all COVID-19-related pupil and staff absences by (i) school; and (ii) school year for this academic year.

(AQW 10987/17-22)

Mr Weir: All pupil and staff absence data collected by the Department are published in a weekly bulletin on my Department's website (www.education-ni.gov.uk/publications/management-information-attendance-pupils-and-workforce-schools).

Publication of Covid-19 related pupil absence at school and school year group level is not possible at present. It is not currently possible to identify all Covid-19 related pupil absences as there are no dedicated Covid-19 attendance codes available. Existing attendance codes are being used not only to capture Self Isolation and Remote learning but also for their original purpose of Approved Educational Activity and Intensive Support Learning Unit. There is also no specific code for illness relating to Covid-19. Work is ongoing to establish the viability of additional pupil attendance codes specific to Covid-19.

All pupil attendance data is held within schools and the information received by the Department each week from C2K is at a school level. School year group analysis requires a bespoke request to C2K, which places significant pressure on School Information Management systems and creates an administrative burden to validate.

A snapshot of staff attendance is currently being collected on each Tuesday through a temporary survey. This voluntary survey, which has a response rate of around 65% and therefore does not include all schools, was established to enable overall trends to be monitored for planning and reporting purposes. It is collected as management information and is not validated to the usual standard of Official Statistics, so there may be discrepancies for individual schools. Data from this survey will therefore not be released at a school level.

Teacher absence data is also available from the Teachers' Payroll System. The number of working days lost per teacher due to sickness for each financial year is published at the end of June each year. However, this data will not include Covid-19 related absences as they are not sickness absences. This data is also not published at school level as a high proportion of schools will have only a small number of teachers who have taken a sickness absence and publishing this would risk identifying individuals.

Schools are also able to record staff absences on the Schools Information Management System (SIMS) and the possibility of using this system to collect data on Covid-19 related absences from schools is currently being investigated.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education for his assessment of what level of pupil absence would make it necessary to cancel examinations this year.

(AQW 10988/17-22)

Mr Weir: It is my priority that exams should go ahead if at all possible. Officials are working with CCEA on a range of contingencies to support this objective.

In these uncertain times, the familiarity of the exam system provides greater certainty as learners know what they are working towards and how it will be awarded.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education whether the Education Authority Educational Psychology Service is adequately resourced to meet demand.

(AQW 10989/17-22)

Mr Weir: I am aware that the significant increase in the number of children presenting with Special Educational Needs (SEN) has placed increased demands on the Educational Psychology Service (EPS).

A review of the EPS, including a capacity and demand exercise, will be progressed as part of the Education Authority's (EA) wider SEN Strategic Programme. This capacity and demand exercise will also consider interdependencies with other SEN services and schools, and will provide a clearer picture of the EPS's capacity to meet the needs of pupils with SEN.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister of Education whether there are any plans for a further School Enhancement Scheme.

(AQW 11008/17-22)

Mr Weir: There are currently 74 schools being progressed under the second call to the School Enhancement Programme (SEP).

I will review the progress of these projects and subject to satisfactory progress and available budget, I will consider if there should be a third call for applications to SEP, as part of the overall capital investment strategy.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to the answer provided to my supplementary question to AQO 1039/17-22, in relation to the stakeholder group referred to, to detail (i) the membership of the group; (ii) the frequency and dates of meetings held with his Department during COVID-19; and (iii) any advice relating to COVID-19 offered to his Department by the group.

(AQW 11041/17-22)

Mr Weir: Since the inception of Education Restart the Department has used a practitioners group made up of a balanced and diverse group of school principals and officials to consider and co-design Department of Education guidance.

The Practitioners group met twice weekly during May and June until the first version of the guidance was issued and then monthly since with last meeting on 11 November.

The Department is well aware it cannot deliver on its Educational objectives without the support and confidence of the education workforce. Therefore the Department will continue to work alongside stakeholders through both the Practitioners Group and the established consultative fora to ensure safe and effective operation of schools for the benefit of our children and young people

The advice offered by the practitioner group was used to co-design the revised New School Day guidance relating to practical arrangements for re-opening schools which was published on 13 August 2020. The guidance provides guidelines on issues including start dates, attendance patterns, cleaning processes and risk mitigations.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Education whether schools are set a quota of how many children can be referred for Special Educational Needs services in each educational year.

(AQW 11050/17-22)

Mr Weir: This question has been interpreted as referrals to the Education Authority's (EA) Educational Psychology Service for assessment at Stage 3 of the Special Educational Needs (SEN) Code of Practice.

Whilst there are no limits imposed on the number of children that may be referred to an Educational Psychologist for assessment at Stage 3, the EA operates a time allocation model for Educational Psychology Services where children are prioritised for assessment. There is a finite amount of Educational Psychology time available and this process helps ensure that it is apportioned in a transparent and equitable manner and that those in greatest need are prioritised.

If information is presented to the Educational Psychologist during consultation which indicates that a pupil has exceptional circumstances and the school has exhausted its time allocation, such referrals, while not guaranteed, will continue to be prioritised and an allocation of time is held centrally for this purpose.

The EA stresses that it applies the time allocation system in as flexible a manner as possible. Time available for case work within the whole service is collated annually, and this is used to determine the amount of time each school receives.

The time allocation model does not apply to statutory SEN assessments at Stage 4 of the Code of Practice.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education, given that many students have had to self-isolate for 14 days or more and thereby missing valuable teaching time, (i) for his assessment of the fairness of this school year's assessment procedures; and (ii) whether he is considering alternative grading processes, potentially similar to the last school year.

(AQW 11055/17-22)

Mr Weir: My priority is that exams should proceed as planned in 2021 as they remain the fairest method of assessing and awarding qualifications. However I recognise the need to take account of the ongoing disruption to face to face teaching experienced by many learners.

My officials have been working closely with CCEA to develop a range of options for contingencies to respond to the fluid public health situation. In considering these options I want to ensure that NI students are not disadvantaged in comparison to their peers in other jurisdictions.

I hope to be in a position to make an announcement very soon.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education what contingencies are in place for children who miss (i) two or more AQE tests; or (ii) both GL tests.

(AQW 11100/17-22)

Mr Weir: In setting their admissions criteria, Boards of Governors of schools that will make use of a test to prioritise children for admission in 2021 will need to set out how they will rank order children who cannot provide a score because they were unable to attend tests. The approach taken will be a matter for individual Boards of Governors to determine.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Education (i) for an update on work within his Department to help with the prevention of loneliness; and (ii) whether his Department would be supportive of the development of a preventing loneliness strategy.

(AQW 11115/17-22)

Mr Weir:

(i) My Department has no specific measures in place to address loneliness in children and young people in schools.

DE is however working collaboratively with the Department of Health, the Public Health Agency the Health and Social Care Board, other government departments and the Education Authority, to develop an Emotional Health and Wellbeing in Education Framework, which will build on DE's existing iMatter Programme, to promote emotional wellbeing within schools. This will further support schools to develop a "whole school wellbeing" culture and ethos, including a sense of connectedness and belonging for all pupils.

(ii) My Department would be content in principle to be supportive of a new NI Loneliness Strategy and would anticipate that the ongoing work on Emotional Health and Wellbeing would contribute to its development and implementation.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what action his Department has taken to progress the Independent Review of Integrated Education recommendation that he bring forward legislation to place a duty on the Department of Education and the Education Authority, and a power on all other arms'-length bodies, to encourage, facilitate and promote integrated education.

(AQW 11129/17-22)

Mr Weir: There is already a statutory duty on my Department to encourage and facilitate the development of integrated education which I take very seriously. All of my Department's Arm's Length Bodies are already required to assist in delivering this statutory duty. Additionally my Department does not promote one sector over another.

My Department also funds the Northern Ireland Council for Integrated Education (NICIE) to promote and encourage integrated education and provide sector specific support. This is the reason I have categorised this recommendation as sitting within NICIE's remit.

I have not therefore brought forward any legislation in respect of this recommendation, which was set out in the report I published for information only in 2017.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what action has he taken to progress the Independent Review of Integrated Education recommendation that his Department commission comparative research to assess the evidence for pupil outcomes in terms of tolerance and reconciliation across the different school sectors in Northern Ireland to include the outcomes for pupils in shared education.

(AQW 11130/17-22)

Mr Weir: There are already a range of surveys undertaken about the experiences of children and young people.

My Department obtains information on the impact of Shared Education from a range of sources including regularly scheduled surveys such as Young Life & Times (YLT), Kids Life & Times (KLT) and the Education and Training Inspectorate (ETI) Chief Inspector's biennial report. A summary of the results from the latest KLT and YLT surveys (2018) are included in the second Advancing Shared Education Report to the Assembly published in June 2020, which is available on my Department's website. That Report was also informed by a number of ad hoc evaluations and research papers linked to Shared Education funded programmes.

The YLT contains questions across various modules that are relevant to tolerance and reconciliation. In the module specific to Education the "Community Relations Equality and Diversity Education" section provides a useful set of attitudinal information.

I remain to be convinced of the need for a further survey when information from e.g. YLT is able to be analysed by school type so information about the outcomes from pupils attending integrated schools can be ascertained, subject to any restrictions in relation to small numbers. That is why I have categorised this recommendation as not to be taken forward.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education (i) what action he has taken to progress the Independent Review of Integrated Education recommendation that the Department of Education urgently consider (a) support services to grant-maintained integrated schools; (b) the demand and need for centralised support to be available to these schools; and (ii) how best to provide such centralised support.

Mr Weir: In looking at this recommendation Departmental officials consulted with all 38 GMI schools in November 2018, to ascertain the potential level of demand and need for such support and how this may be secured.

While only 11 schools responded, the findings of the consultation were reported to Integrated Education Stakeholders including the Northern Ireland Council for Integrated Education (NICIE), and the Association of Integrated Principals in Integrated Schools (APTIS).

Additionally my Department has encouraged and facilitated engagement between NICIE and the Education Authority (EA) which has expertise in these areas. This has resulted in the advertisement of vacancies for integrated schools via the EA website and APTIS (representing the GMI schools) agreeing to explore a potential solution with the EA in relation to support services. This is the appropriate forum to progress this and the reason I have categorised this recommendation as sitting within NICIE's remit, as the Arm's Length Body funded to promote and encourage integrated education and provide sector specific support, to move forward. My officials will continue to work with NICIE and the EA in support of achieving this.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what action his Department has taken to progress the Independent Review of Integrated Education recommendations 11, 13 and 14.

Mr Weir: The report containing these recommendations was published for information only in 2017, and Area Planning - as well as much of my Department's day-to-day work - was paused by the Covid-19 pandemic from March 2020 until recently. Therefore the particulars of recommendations 11 and 13 have largely not been taken forward.

In relation to recommendation 14 it is relevant to note that the length of time during which schools that transform to integrated status can access funding support has been extended from 3 to 5 years following transformation. My Department has provided updated guidance in terms of transformation to integrated status. It had already provided guidance for any school considering establishing a Jointly Managed school prior to the publication of the Independent Report on the Review of Integrated Education. Anything beyond this is interlinked with recommendations 11 and 13.

In addition, as my officials advised on 25 November 2020, I have agreed that the types of changes in approach proposed through these particular recommendations will be among those to be considered as part of the wider Review of Education. This provides a wholly appropriate forum for the out workings of this type of change to be discussed.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education for an update on Fresh Start funding for Forge Integrated Primary School.
(AQW 11139/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Fresh Start Agreement (FSA) set out a commitment by the UK Government to release up to £500m over ten years of new capital funding to support shared and integrated education, subject to individual projects being agreed between the Executive and the UK Government.

A major capital project for Forge Integrated Primary School to be funded from the Fresh Start Agreement was announced by the Secretary of State in March 2016.

This project will provide a new 14 class school building and associated facilities. The business case for the project was approved by the Department of Finance (DoF) in February 2018. In December 2019 the Education Authority (EA) successfully completed the appointment of an Integrated Consultant Team to carry out the design of the proposed Forge Integrated Primary School. The Integrated Consultant Team is now working on the early stages of the design process.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Education to detail the correct attendance code for a chronically ill pupil who only attends school part-time and comes in mid-morning.

(AQW 11230/17-22)

Mr Weir: DE Circular 2020/08 sets out guidance to schools on how attendance should be recorded. The appropriate absence code for a school to use for a particular pupil is likely to depend on the specific circumstances of that pupil.

Departmental officials would be happy to provide advice to any school regarding this issue. The relevant team can be contacted either by email at: attendance@education-ni.gov.uk or by telephone on 02891 279328.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) when work on the replacement building for Elmgrove Primary school will continue; and (ii) the timescale within which the project will be completed.

(AQW 11340/17-22)

Mr Weir: The tender process for the appointment of a contractor to build a new 21 class primary school, double unit nursery and two learning support units for Elmgrove Primary School on the site of the former Avoniel Primary School has recently been completed and the Department has given its approval to the award of the tender.

The Education Authority in line with government procurement guidelines is currently engaging with the successful and unsuccessful contractors. It is anticipated work will commence on site in March 2021 with an overall contract duration of 30 months.

The initial phase of works would see the contractor put in place modular classrooms, kitchen and dining facilities on the Beersbridge Road site to facilitate all Elmgrove Primary School children in the one location. It is anticipated that this initial phase of works will take 5-6 months permitting all children to be located on the Beersbridge Road site for the new academic year beginning September 2021.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Education how special considerations will be provided for in the awarding of qualifications in 2021, following the public exam series to account for the significant levels of disruption to education due to COVID-19.

(AQW 11350/17-22)

Mr Weir: A range of potential measures to take account of the challenging circumstances and disruption to learning are currently under consideration and I will make details available once decisions have been finalised.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education why preschool and primary school have 22 days to apply for a post primary place, but post-primary only have 15 days with the process opening 5 days before the AQE/GL results, giving only 10 application days for children applying for a place.

(AQW 11391/17-22)

Mr Weir: Pre-school and primary school online applications open at noon on 7 January 2021 and close at noon on 29 January 2021. Post-primary online applications open at noon on 1 March 2021 and close at 4pm on 16 March 2021.

Applications are not considered on a 'first come first served' basis and provided applications are submitted by the deadline, they will be considered as punctual.

With applications for post-primary opening in March, parents will have longer to consider their preferred options; to consult the information available on the transfer procedure from schools, the Education Authority and my Department; and to discuss preferences with their children, prior to the nomination of schools. The move to online applications will provide a similar window for parents of children applying to post-primary school to consider options after the issue of entrance test results as was the case with hard-copy applications.

Department of Finance

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance, following the Public Health England report that identified the COVID-19 death rate for adults with learning disabilities was 3.1 times the rates for adults without, whether his Department will review and produce the death rate in Northern Ireland for people with learning disabilities compared with adults without; and whether priority access to a future vaccine will be provided to this group.

(AQW 10288/17-22)

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): England's COVID-19 Patient Notification System (CPNS) was set up in March 2020 to capture COVID-19 related deaths in hospitals in England. In a recent publication, Public Health England (PHE), using data sourced from CPNS, reported that the death rate for adults with learning disabilities with COVID-19 up to 5 June 2020 was 3.1 times the rate for adults without learning disabilities. COVID-19: deaths of people with learning disabilities - GOV.UK (www.gov.uk). There is no equivalent CPNS data collection system here.

Learning Disability is not captured as part of the death registration process upon which the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) produces death statistics.

NISRA, through the Administrative Data Research-Northern Ireland, is currently developing a research project, to link death registration information to Census 2011. This research, which will commence in early 2021, will provide a greater understanding of the impact of COVID-19 on specific, vulnerable groups. The granularity of this analysis will be limited by anticipated small numbers in certain groups. The work is at the development stage but, depending on the quality of the linkage, is anticipated to report findings by mid-2021.

Responsibility for access to a future vaccine is the responsibility of the Department of Health.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance whether he intends to recruit more staff to help deal with applications for the Local Restrictions Support Scheme.

(AQW 10475/17-22)

Mr Murphy: A good working knowledge of the rating system is required to review and process applications received under the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme. To recruit additional staff would have the effect of slowing down progress while the experienced staff were diverted to train the new recruits.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance whether his Department has considered amending the building regulations to require all new builds to include space for secure off-street storage of bins to help keep public footpaths clear for pedestrians.

(AQW 10589/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Regulation 62 (Solid waste storage) of Part J (Solid waste in buildings) of the Building Regulations requires that adequate provision is made for the hygienic storage of waste from a building, as well as access to the place of storage and from the place of storage to the waste collection point.

Regulation 62 applies to new buildings, alterations or extensions and certain cases of material change of use, including where a greater or lesser number of dwellings is created.

The Department's Technical Booklet J (Solid waste in buildings) provides guidance by referral to the Local Government Waste Storage Guide for Northern Ireland. This covers requirements for the size, siting and design considerations of waste storage areas and notes that "The waste collection point should be such that waste can be presented without blocking vehicular or pedestrian access."

The Department is of the view that Part J is adequate.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment on the number of businesses and individuals who have yet to receive any financial assistance during the COVID-19 pandemic; and whether he plans to work with Executive colleagues to ensure all these businesses and individuals receive urgent financial support.

(AQW 10678/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Huge effort has gone into protecting our local businesses and workers throughout the course of the pandemic. The Executive had already provided over £2.3 billion for the COVID-19 response through a variety of measures and support schemes. This was on top of the Treasury wage support and loan schemes.

However, I have been aware that gaps remained in support for some, and that is why I called on my Executive colleagues to urgently bring forward proposals to address those. Following that, I announced further funding allocations on 23 November of over £338 million across Departments so that we as an Executive can continue to respond to the pandemic (link).

This is a rapidly evolving situation and Executive colleagues and I will continue to monitor and respond to the needs of those sectors, businesses and groups we have responsibility for.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether there is dedicated telephone number or email address for elected representatives to contact with queries regarding the status of current grant scheme applications.

Mr Murphy: Elected representative queries are being directed to the following e-mail:

revenueandbenefitscomplaints@finance-ni.gov.uk

As all available staff are currently engaged on processing applications, LPS has advised it is more efficient to deal with queries via e-mail.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance to detail the outside organisations which are involved in unconscious bias training in the Civil Service.

(AQW 10775/17-22)

Mr Murphy: There are currently no outside organisations involved in unconscious bias training in the Civil Service.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance how much has been spent on unconscious bias training for Civil Service staff in each year since 2016.

(AQW 10776/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Classroom based Unconscious Bias training was delivered to members of the NICS SCS between November 2016 and September 2017.

The breakdown of spend is as below:

Year	Total (£)
2016	Nil
2017	23,725.12
2018	4,979.20
2019	Nil
2020	Nil
Total	28,704.32

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Finance what support will be available to the Belfast International Airport to bridge the gap to a COVID-19 recovery.

(AQW 10798/17-22)

Mr Murphy: I secured Executive agreement to a range of measures to support our airports and airlines over recent months, including the 100% rates relief package I announced in May. This specific support provides rates relief for Belfast International Airport (BIA) until 31 March 2021 and is worth £1.7m to BIA alone.

My Department is continuing to engage with the airports, and indeed the Economy and Infrastructure Departments, who are each responsible for various aspects of aviation. In that regard, I announced in the Assembly last week my intention to bring forward proposals to provide further support to our airports in the coming days.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether the rates support package announced on the 23 November 2020 will be by means of a refund on 2020/21 rate payments.

(AQW 10802/17-22)

Mr Murphy: As part of my announcement I advised that £20 million has been allocated to extend this financial year's 12 month rates holiday to manufacturing businesses. Land & Property Services is currently putting in place the arrangements for awarding this additional relief to those business ratepayers in receipt of industrial derating. Some of the ratepayers who benefit from this additional relief will have already paid some or all of their rates liability for this year. LPS will write to those ratepayers to advise on the refund procedures.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the review of arm's-length bodies, as committed to in New Decade, New Approach.

(AQO 1190/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Executive agreed the Terms of Reference for the review on the 18 June 2020. It is a two-stage review.

The first stage is about gathering background information from Departments, and is complete.

The second stage is desk based within DoF and involves involve looking at the rationale for the arm's-length body and considering whether the functions that it carries out can be delivered in the Department itself. That work is almost complete and will be brought to the Executive when finalised. It will include proposals for the rationalisation, efficiency and effectiveness of arm's-length bodies considered in the review.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Finance to detail the impact on the projected regional rate of the decrease in rates income due to COVID-19.

(AQW 10821/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Land & Property Services has not seen any decrease in the value of the gross rate assessments as a result of the ongoing pandemic. However, you will be aware of the package that I put in place and announced during the summer giving a four month rate holiday to all non-domestic ratepayers, and a full exemption for businesses in the retail, tourism and hospitality sectors. This package, which is estimated to cost up to £317 million, will reduce the net income collected.

Ms Ennis asked the Minister of Finance to detail the business cases that his Department has received relating to paediatric pathology services since 2016.

(AQW 10826/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Business cases are submitted to the Department of Finance (DoF) where they breach a department's delegated authority. These delegations are set out in DoF guidance, DAO (DFP) 06/12.

Since 2016 my Department has not received any business cases related to paediatric pathology services.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Finance when building regulations will be reviewed, updated, and published to ensure all new builds will meet zero carbon targets.

(AQW 10846/17-22)

Mr Murphy: My Department is monitoring proposals currently under consideration in England and Wales for uplifts toward a new 'Future Homes' standard. This is expected to apply carbon performance improvements of some 75-80% to new buildings from 2025, or possibly sooner. Similar proposals for buildings other than dwellings are anticipated in the coming months. These processes would be expected to provide updated software, policy assessments and support necessary to progress such measures here and we will move on their outcome to assess the implications locally, once the position becomes clearer.

In the meantime, my officials are also exploring detailed options with the Department's Building Regulations Advisory Committee (NIBRAC) and other departments to independently improve local energy efficiency standards for new buildings as quickly as possible.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of Finance how many applicants, from East Antrim, to the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme have received their payment.

(AQW 10937/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Statistics are not available by parliamentary constituency so I have provided figures for Mid and East Antrim Council area.

Applications Received	764
Applications approved and paid	415
Applications rejected	112
Applications to be processed	237

These figures are the position at 26th November 2020.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Finance what support or assistance can be provided by Departments when applicants have difficulty using online applications for business grants.

(AQW 11003/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Applicants facing difficulty making an online application can contact the main NI Direct contact number 0300 200 7801. They will transfer them to a team in LPS who will take the applicants' details and complete the online application for them while on the phone.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Finance to detail (i) the reasons for the delay in processing applications for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme; and (ii) what steps his Department has introduced to speed this process up.

(AQW 11062/17-22)

Mr Murphy: LPS is a rates collection agency which has repurposed itself as a grant agency to assist businesses during the pandemic. Information on what businesses would be forced to close were received from the Department for Health shortly before those restrictions were introduced. This meant there was a very short lead in time for a lead Department to be identified and for a support scheme to be set up. Although the Department for the Economy is the lead Department of business support, LPS volunteered to set up a scheme and took on new powers to perform this role.

The various overlapping restrictions which have come into effect during the period the scheme has been open, and the consequent changes, often at short notice, in the eligibility for support and the amounts payable to eligible businesses, has made the new scheme considerably more complex than the previous £10,000 Small Business Grant Scheme administered by LPS.

In addition, many applicants have submitted multiple applications or applications with incomplete or inaccurate information. This has impacted on progress in processing applications.

A number of cases are also awaiting a response from businesses who have been contacted for more information. There are also a number of applications on hold while clarification is needed because it is unclear whether the legislation required the business to close, which is the precursor to eligibility.

Delivering the financial support to businesses affected by the restrictions has been a major undertaking. Land & Property Services is devoting all possible resources to the administration of this Scheme to ensure payments are made to eligible businesses as quickly as possible.

Mr Allen asked the Minister of Finance (i) why some applicants have not received their first Localised Restrictions Support Scheme payment; and (ii) to detail what action he has taken to process the backlog of applications.

(AQW 11071/17-22)

Mr Murphy: To date LPS has received almost 14,000 applications to the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS). The various overlapping restrictions which have come into effect during the period the scheme has been open, and the consequent changes in the eligibility for support and the amounts payable to eligible businesses, has made the new scheme considerably more complex than the previous £10,000 Small Business Grant Scheme administered by LPS.

In addition, many applicants have submitted multiple applications or applications with incomplete or inaccurate information. This has impacted on progress in processing applications.

To date, LPS has approved and paid 6,123 payments and rejected 2,981 applications. Of the remaining 4,984 outstanding at present, 781 relate to new applications from non-essential businesses which have been required to close since Friday 27 November. Some are multiple applications and some are new applications from applicants who have reapplied after being rejected because of an error in their original submission. A number of cases are also awaiting a response from businesses who have been contacted for more information. There are also a number of applications on hold while clarification is needed because it is unclear whether the legislation required the business to close, which is the precursor to eligibility.

Delivering the financial support to businesses affected by the restrictions has been a major undertaking. Land & Property Services is devoting all possible resources to the administration of this Scheme to ensure payments are made to eligible businesses as quickly as possible.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Finance whether retailers who may technically fall under the guise of homeware, but that consider themselves as non-essential, will be entitled to financial support under the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.
(AQW 11077/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme can only provide financial support to those businesses specified in the Health Protection Regulations which have been required to close or have had the business service provided at their premises directly curtailed. It cannot support those businesses which are not required to close by the Health Regulations but nevertheless decide to close.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment of his Department's preparation to deal with the number of applications for Covid Business Restrictions Support Scheme.
(AQW 11092/17-22)

Mr Murphy: As at Friday 27 November, 12,798 applications had been received to the Department of Finance's Localised Restriction Support Scheme. 70% of these applications have been processed with £22.6 million having issued to over 6,000 businesses.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Finance whether IT errors in the delivery of the Localised Coronavirus Business Support Scheme have resulted in businesses being incorrectly deemed ineligible for assistance in (i) the BT33 postcode area; and (ii) other postcode areas.
(AQW 11138/17-22)

Mr Murphy: LPS is not aware of any IT errors with the application process for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme that resulted in businesses being incorrectly deemed ineligible for assistance in BT33 or any other postcode area.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Finance (i) to detail the financial impact of the collapse of retailers Debenhams and Arcadia on the rates base to Land and Property Services in each of the impacted locations; (ii) what incentives he can put in place to help attract new tenants to these locations; and (iii) what support he, in partnership with the Minister for the Economy and the Minister for Communities, are providing to employees impacted what support he is providing to the employees impacted.

Mr Murphy:

- (i) Debenhams and the Arcadia group occupy properties here with a total potential rates revenue in 2020/21 of £2.4 million. However, as these properties have been eligible for the 12 month rates holiday this year, there is no immediate impact to the rates base. The table below provides a breakdown of the total rates assessment by district council.

District Council	Total Assessment
Antrim and Newtownabbey	£60,773
Armagh City, Banbridge and Craigavon	£460,549
Belfast	£787,295
Causeway Coast and Glens	£27,646

District Council	Total Assessment
Derry City and Strabane	£445,837
Fermanagh and Omagh	£25,906
Mid and East Antrim	£130,224
Newry, Mourne and Down	£488,470
Grand Total	£2,426,700

- (ii) As I recently announced I have set aside £150 million for further rates support in 2021/22 and this is currently under active consideration. In particular, I will also consider the restoration of business rate relief for the reoccupation of vacant retail premises.
- (iii) As an Executive we will continue to seek to provide the best possible support to businesses and all employees impacted at this difficult time.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether Local Restrictions Support Scheme applications that are rejected due to errors are prioritised once re-submitted.

(AQW 11358/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Applicants who have received a rejection e-mail because they have mistakenly advised they were closed prior to restrictions taking effect, or that they had not complied with a prohibition notice, are being advised to submit a new application. They have also been advised to forward the reference for their new application to a dedicated e-mail address so these can be picked up and expedited.

Department of Health

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health what steps he will take to implement the recommendations in the Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority review of Specialist Sexual Health Services in Northern Ireland, which was published in October 2013.

(AQW 3168/17-22)

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): The Public Health Agency and Health and Social Care Board had established regional groups involving Health Trust Specialist Sexual Health Services and commissioners to consider how specific recommendations in the RQIA report can be implemented within the context of the long term vision for the service.

Progress has been reported by some, but not all, of the Trusts in implementing a number of recommendations at local level, including staff training, partner notification arrangements and provision of information about services.

Future sexual health service provision will as a necessity form part of the wider rebuilding of hospital services. The RQIA recommendations will, therefore, be considered as this more extensive piece of work evolves.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health whether he will introduce COVID-19 testing on a weekly basis for all carers, regardless of whether they work in residential or domiciliary settings.

(AQW 7623/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing in Northern Ireland continues to be a vital tool in our response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The current position is that all Health and Social Care (HSC) staff who are symptomatic (or whose household contacts are symptomatic) are eligible for testing in Northern Ireland.

This includes domiciliary care workers who, as essential health care workers, are currently able to access testing either through local HSC laboratories or via the National Testing Programme. Should there be an indication of more than one symptomatic individual among a group of care workers, an appropriate risk assessment will be undertaken by the Public Health Agency with testing of all individuals undertaken as deemed appropriate following the risk assessment.

On the 3 November 2020, I announced that regular COVID-19 testing of staff working in care homes would increase from once every two weeks to once a week.

Routine testing of asymptomatic domiciliary care workers and community health staff is kept under review. As our understanding of this new virus continues to evolve and we learn more about the impact of the virus across different settings, and as new testing technologies emerge and are evaluated for use, we may revisit our policy on routine testing health and social care staff, including the testing of domiciliary care providers.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Health for an update on the IVF Operational Group, it's membership and work to date.

(AQW 7649/17-22)

Mr Swann: I announced, prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, plans to establish a Project Board to take forward the welcome New Decade New Approach commitment to increase the number of publicly-funded IVF cycles.

Although membership of the Project Board has been determined, including representatives from my Department, the Health and Social Care Board, the Public Health Agency, the Belfast Trust and the Regional Fertility Centre, progress on this important issue has unfortunately been temporarily delayed due to the ongoing COVID-19 response.

This is an issue that I have informed officials I expect to see significant movement on once the immediate pressures subside.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the need to locate a mobile COVID-19 testing centre in Castlederg town.

(AQW 8421/17-22)

Mr Swann: The location of testing facilities across Northern Ireland, including Mobile Testing Units (MTUs), is kept under constant review and deployed in response to local need. Further information is available at:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/covid-19-coronavirus/testing-and-tracing-covid-19/testing-covid-19>

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health how many contacts were traced to date, via the Public Health Agency's COVID-19 Contact Tracing Service who were primarily resident (i) cross-border on the island of Ireland; (ii) on the Island of Britain; (iii) from within the European Union, excluding the south of Ireland; and (iv) outside the European Union.

(AQW 8440/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Public Health Agency (PHA) has advised that they do not hold the information in the format requested.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health whether the Public Health Agency's text alert service for close contacts can send texts to (i) southern numbers; (ii) European Union numbers excluding Ireland; and (iii) outside the European Union.

(AQW 8441/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Public Health Agency (PHA) has confirmed that the text alert service for close contacts can issue texts to all of these locations.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health what measures have been put in place to ensure the trans community are not left without access to appropriate support and care while the review of the Regional Gender Identity Service pathway is undertaken.

(AQW 9334/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department, through the review of the Regional Gender Identity Services Pathway, is actively working with the Health and Social Care Board and the Belfast Trust to address the issues of waiting times, resources, and to develop a model of care for gender identity services.

Anyone in need of support should in the first instance speak to their GP. In addition, there are a number of voluntary and community groups who are a useful source of support for many individuals transitioning, including their families, and for those waiting to access services.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health what financial or other support is or will be made available to trans individuals forced to access private care overseas, for instance surgical procedures in Britain, Poland and elsewhere.

(AQW 9336/17-22)

Mr Swann: Applications for funding specialist gender reassignment surgery are currently considered for individual patients through the Health and Social Care Board's Extra Contractual Referral (ECR) process, having due regard to the commissioning policies in place elsewhere in the UK. Where an application is approved, patients are referred to a mix of state and private providers elsewhere in the UK.

Where the HSC Board approves the treatment costs through its ECR process, the patient will also be reimbursed for travel related costs.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health what support will be given to community organisations which have been carrying out vital work in supporting and providing services to the trans community over the past two and a half years, in the absence of functioning gender affirming services.

(AQW 9337/17-22)

Mr Swann: The support provided by voluntary and community sector organisations to those undergoing assessment and treatment at the Brackenburn clinic and to those waiting for those services is invaluable.

My Department, working with the Health and Social Care Board, is currently taking forward a review of the gender identity service pathway and a report including findings and recommendations, will be submitted to my Department by summer 2021. The supporting role of those voluntary and community sector organisations and their ongoing contribution to the transgender community will be considered as part of the ongoing review.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of residential respite places provided by each Health and Social Care Trust in each of the last 12 months, broken down by location.

(AQW 9374/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Department does not hold this information centrally and was requested from Health and Social Care (HSC) Trusts.

A breakdown of residential respite places in the last 12 months was provided by South Eastern and Southern HSC Trusts, and partially provided by Belfast HSC Trust for children's and learning disability client groups.

Belfast HSC Trust could not provide the number of residential respite places for older people and physical disability client groups by month. Breakdown of these figures by quarter is provided instead.

Northern and Western HSC Trusts advised that the number of residential respite places could not be provided. The number of clients receiving residential respite care by month has been provided instead.

Information by location is not available and could only be obtained at by a manual trawl at disproportionate cost. However, summary information by HSC Trust is provided.

Please find information detailed below.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health whether people aged over 65 will be affected by the pause of the flu vaccination programme; and what communication he has had with GPs to ensure bookings already made are carried out.

(AQW 9502/17-22)

Mr Swann: There was no pause in vaccinating those aged 65 and over. GPs who had not received their full allocation of vaccine were still able to order capped amounts from central stores whereas GPs that had received their full allocations were asked to continue vaccinating patients in this age group from their unused stock.

Further vaccine has been secured for this age group and this will be sufficient to vaccinate 90% of those aged 65 and over.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the challenges posed by COVID -19 to domiciliary care (i) service users; and (ii) staff.

(AQW 9524/17-22)

Mr Swann: Domiciliary care service users are often amongst the vulnerable in society and are often therefore be at greater risk of covid-19. It was for this reason that many service users and their families temporarily suspended their domiciliary care packages at the onset of the pandemic, although most of these packages have now restarted.

Domiciliary care staff have had to adopt new ways of working, including the more extensive use of PPE as they deliver care.

My Department issued guidance on 9 April 2020 for domiciliary care workers including the proper use of PPE and infection control. It also put in place measures to ensure the financial stability of Domiciliary Care Providers contracted to HSC Trusts and measures to boost sick pay for domiciliary care workers. Throughout the pandemic we have also made sure that domiciliary care providers have access to PPE where they need it, with HSC Trusts continuing to provide millions of items free of charge. I have also recently approved a £5 Million fund against which domiciliary care providers may claim reasonable expenses incurred as a result of the pandemic.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health to detail his plans to raise awareness of blood cancer.

(AQW 9610/17-22)

Mr Swann: Last year coproduction work began on the development of a new 10 year Cancer Strategy for Northern Ireland, with policy makers, health representatives, those with lived experience and charities actively working on its development. This cancer strategy will consider ways to improve support for patients along the whole cancer pathway, including improving awareness of the signs and symptoms of various types of cancer. Work to finalise the strategy has been fully resumed following a pause in development due to the impact of COVID-19.

In the meantime, the Public Health Agency's 'Be Cancer Aware' website, www.becancerawareni.info, which launched in 2015, provides information about cancer signs and symptoms, explains what to do if you are concerned, and signposts individuals to recommended sources of support or further information. This includes specific information on the signs and symptoms of some of the specific blood cancers including Hodgkin's and non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

In September this year I took part in the launch of Leukaemia & Lymphoma NI's Blood Cancer Awareness Month campaign launch. As with all cancers, it is vitally important that anyone experiencing signs and symptoms should seek early medical advice and treatment.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Health when AQW 7649/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 9638/17-22)

Mr Swann: I announced, prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, plans to establish a Project Board to take forward the welcome New Decade New Approach commitment to increase the number of publicly-funded IVF cycles.

Although membership of the Project Board has been determined, including representatives from my Department, the Health and Social Care Board, the Public Health Agency, the Belfast Trust and the Regional Fertility Centre, progress on this important issue has unfortunately been temporarily delayed due to the ongoing COVID-19 response.

This is an issue that I have informed officials I expect to see significant movement on once the immediate pressures subside.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether he has considered introducing training programmes for trans practitioners within the Health Service.

(AQW 9754/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department currently is working with the Health and Social Care Board in taking forward a review of gender identity services. I anticipate that proposals for a new service model will also identify training needs for staff as part of any plan to put in place resilient and sustainable services in the health service for transgender people.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health what engagement he has had with his counterpart in Dublin over the dying with dignity legislation passing through the Dáil.

(AQW 9835/17-22)

Mr Swann: I am aware of the Dying with Dignity Bill passing through the Dáil. I have had no engagement with the Minister for Health on this.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of winter flu vaccines administered to (i) Health Care staff; and (ii) patients, by GP surgeries up to and including 31 October 2020.

(AQW 9844/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- i Apart from their own practice staff, GPs generally do not administer flu vaccine to health care staff. This function is carried out by the Health and Social Care Trusts and by pharmacies participating in the Community Pharmacy Flu Vaccination service. Up to and including 31 October, GPs had administered flu vaccine to 3,125 practice staff, while community pharmacies had vaccinated 12,000 health and social care workers. Trusts had administered flu vaccine to 21,500 frontline health and social care workers by 31 October.
- ii. By 31 October, GPs had administered flu vaccine to 387,241 patients.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister of Health (i) to list the dates, since January 2017, on which the permanent GPs resigned from the Bannview medical practice (ii) to outline the reasons given for their resignation; and how much time elapsed from receipt of notice of resignation before a recruitment process was initiated.

(AQW 9936/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) In the period from January 2017, 6 salaried GPs tendered their resignations on:
 - 3rd January 2019;
 - 9th January 2019;
 - 19th September 2019;
 - 20th July 2020;
 - 24th August 2020, and
 - 27th August 2020.
- (ii) The reasons given for these resignations cannot be disclosed as this constitutes the personal information of the individuals concerned.

Recruitment following the resignations in January 2019 commenced formally one month later on 9th February 2019.

No formal recruitment process was required following the September 2019 resignation as one of the remaining salaried GPs increased their sessions.

Recruitment following the resignation in July 2020 was commenced immediately with an Expression of Interest offered initially to salaried GPs within the Practice during August 2020. As there were no applicants a formal recruitment exercise commenced on 5th October 2020.

Recruitment following the resignations in August 2020 commenced formally six weeks later on 5th October 2020.

In addition, since April 2020, Bannview Medical Practice has had an open advertisement to recruit sessional GPs to a Bank so that GPs are available to work when required.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister of Health to outline the contractual arrangements of Bannview Medical practice based in Portadown Health Centre, including line management responsibility, budget, current number, and the status of GPs working in the practice and the number of patients registered in the practice.

(AQW 9937/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Health & Social Care Board (“the HSCB”) commissions the Southern Health and Social Care Trust (“the Trust”) to deliver General Medical Services (GMS) to patients registered with Bannview Medical Practice.

The Trust has responsibility for the management of the GMS contract in accordance with the Health and Personal Social Services (General Medical Services Contracts) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2004 (SR 2004 No.140).

The line management of the Practice is also the responsibility of the Trust.

The Clinical Lead GP in the Practice is responsible for the clinical and operational management of the Practice. The Clinical Lead GP reports to a Head of Service and upwards to the Assistant Director of Enhanced Services and thereafter to the Director of Older People and Primary Care. Ultimate responsibility is held by the Chief Executive of the Trust.

The HSCB meets regularly with the Trust to discuss the performance of the GMS contract.

Funding is allocated to Bannview Medical Practice on a similar basis to all GP Practices in Northern Ireland and is based on the patient list size and the activity undertaken by the Practice for specific services.

The Trust currently employs a Clinical Lead GP on an interim basis, and a full time block booked GP, within the Practice. Two permanent salaried GPs are currently on maternity leave. Whilst a recruitment process continues to secure permanent GP staff, the remaining GP sessions are filled using Trust Bank GPs and GPs employed through the GP Federation.

The number of patients currently registered with the Practice is 4,945.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health whether he plans a new strategy to address waiting lists, given the second spike in COVID-19 cases; and what is the timescales for the strategy.

(AQW 9944/17-22)

Mr Swann: Elective care waiting times were unacceptable before COVID-19 and regrettably they will be even worse after COVID-19.

The need to redirect HSC resources to respond to COVID-19 has unfortunately had an inevitable and serious impact on waiting lists.

The New Decade New Approach agreement published in January 2020 included a commitment to introduce a new action plan to address waiting times however, this has been delayed due to the need to focus our efforts on responding to the pandemic.

I am committed to the introduction of a new strategy and action plan and I hope that I will have the support of all Executive colleagues in providing the necessary resources

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the impact caused by the suspension of the Southern Health and Social Care Trust Learning Disability Carer Forum.

(AQW 10028/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Southern Health and Social Care Trust have confirmed that they temporarily suspended the Learning Disability Carers Forum in late October following a breakdown of relationships between staff and carers. The Trust are fully committed to involving Carers in delivery of services and decision making, therefore are in the process of commissioning an external facilitator to review the Forum with a view of recommencing meetings at the earliest possible opportunity.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health whether he will release an adult social care infection fund to provide support to all providers of domiciliary care to ensure all people being cared for at home are receiving the same level of protection, care and support as those living in residential or nursing home care.

Mr Swann: I recently approved a £5m fund which in providing tangible support to domiciliary care providers will enable them to claim back reasonable expenses incurred as a result of the Covid-19 pandemic. These reasonable expenses can include the purchase of PPE, enhanced sick pay and additional staffing costs, such as further recruitment and training.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health for a breakdown of staff members on long-term sick absence in intensive care units.

(AQW 10200/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on the percentage of hours lost in intensive care units due to long term staff sickness between 1st October 2020 and 31st October 2020 is detailed below. This information has been provided by each Health and Social Care (HSC) Trust and excludes bank staff and staff who have been redeployed temporarily into Intensive Care Units (ICU) in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Long-term sick absence has been defined as being 29 or more days.

Belfast HSC Trust

The Belfast HSC Trust has ICUs in the Royal Victoria Hospital, the Mater Hospital and the Belfast City Hospital. The overall percentage hours lost due to long-term sickness absence for staff within ICU across the three Trust sites is 8.12%. A breakdown by each site and staff group is detailed below:

Location	Staff Group	% Hours Lost due to Long-Term Sickness Absence
Royal Victoria Hospital (Excludes Cardiac ICU & Paediatric ICU)	Nursing & Midwifery	6.35%
	Medical & Dental	0.40%
	Support Services	0.44%
	Total	7.18%
Mater Hospital 	Nursing & Midwifery	10.46%
Belfast City Hospital 	Nursing & Midwifery	8.74%

Source: Human Resources, Payroll, Travel & Subsistence (HRPTS) system

 Staff within the Mater and Belfast City Hospitals have been recorded under their substantive location, however some staff are working across both sites in response to the Covid-19 Pandemic.

Northern HSC Trust

The Northern HSC Trust has ICUs in Antrim Area Hospital and Causeway Hospital. A breakdown of percentage hours lost due to long-term sickness absence by staff group is detailed below:

Staff Group	% Hours Lost due to Long-Term Sickness Absence
Nursing & Midwifery	2.49%
Medical & Dental	0.00%

Source: Human Resources, Payroll, Travel & Subsistence (HRPTS) system

South Eastern HSC Trust

The South Eastern HSC Trust has an ICU in the Ulster Hospital. A breakdown of percentage hours lost due to long-term sickness absence by staff group is detailed below:

Staff Group	% Hours Lost due to Long-Term Sickness Absence
Nursing & Midwifery	5.32%
Medical & Dental	2.55%

Source: Human Resources, Payroll, Travel & Subsistence (HRPTS) system

Southern HSC Trust

The Southern HSC Trust has an ICU in Craigavon Area Hospital. A breakdown of percentage hours lost due to long-term sickness absence by staff group is detailed below:

Staff Group	% Hours Lost due to Long-Term Sickness Absence
Nursing & Midwifery	7.13%
Medical & Dental	0.00%
Total	5.68%

Western HSC Trust

The Western HSC Trust has ICUs in Altnagelvin Hospital and South West Acute Hospital. A breakdown of percentage hours lost due to long-term sickness absence by location is detailed below:

Location	% Hours Lost due to Long-Term Sickness Absence
Altnagelvin Hospital	3.55%
South West Acute Hospital	10.69%

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Health how many childcare providers have closed down during the COVID-19 pandemic.
(AQW 10222/17-22)

Mr Swann: Health and Social Care Trusts have reported that from March 2020 to 13 November 2020, a total of 48 group childcare settings and 139 childminders have left the Register of Childcare Providers.

HSC Trusts have also advised that a total of 23 group childcare settings and 52 childminders have joined the register during the same period.

When compared to data available for 2018, there has been a slight increase in the number of group childcare settings leaving the Register (48 for the 8-month period since the beginning of the pandemic against 41 in 2018) and a decrease in the number of childminders leaving the Register (139 for the 8-month period since the pandemic began against 289 in 2018).

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether there will be a cost to recipients of a COVID-19 vaccine.
(AQW 10273/17-22)

Mr Swann: There will be no cost for those who receive the COVID-19 vaccine as part of the national vaccination programme.

Mr McCann asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the care home visiting guidance, including the provision for care partners.
(AQW 10289/17-22)

Mr Swann: Managing the impact of the transmission of Covid-19 into care homes by placing protective restrictions on access to residents has been a key strategy in keeping them safe. Throughout the pandemic, a series of restrictions, applied in line with the current Regional Alert Level Position, have been put in place for care home visiting arrangements to prevent, or mitigate, the impact of infection. The full guidance is available here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/Covid-19-visiting-guidance>.

These restrictions are necessary due to the need to maintain safety for all others, including other families, all our health and social care staff and therefore the wider population, through social distancing and ensuring appropriate Infection Control Procedures are followed across all healthcare settings.

My Department continues to seek assurances from Care Homes and HSC Trusts that all care homes have either implemented, or are progressing the implementation of, the Care Partner concept in their care home. This includes discussions with residents and families who could benefit from the concept.

My assessment to date of the introduction of the Care Partner concept is that while recognising that a number of homes have successfully introduced Care Partnering, I would call upon all homes to do the same to allow them to work with families to help protect residents' human rights and mental wellbeing.

My officials continue to engage with a range of stakeholders, including representatives of families and residents, Independent Care Home Providers, Trust staff, including those providing support to care homes and representatives of other statutory organisations involved with the independent care home sector, to listen to concerns regarding the implementation of Care Partner arrangements and to help provide support around the concept.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health for an update on plans to address the shortages across the diagnostic workforce, notably radiologists, gastroenterologists and endoscopists.
(AQW 10321/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department is taking forward two major initiatives which will address shortages in the diagnostic workforce. The Strategic Framework for Imaging Services in Health and Social Care (May 2018) provides the vision for the future configuration of imaging services, ensuring that Northern Ireland continues to deliver high quality health care services and stays at the forefront of technological advances in medical imaging. Of the Framework's 19 recommendations, three focus on strengthening the workforce, including radiologists and radiographers. The Department is in the process of establishing a Medical Imaging Board which will oversee the implementation of these recommendations, including a coordinated regional approach to addressing the current challenges in the radiology and radiography workforce.

In 2019, co-production work began on the development of the 10 year Northern Ireland Cancer Strategy. The Strategy is being developed with policy makers, health representatives and charities all actively working on its development. The Project Steering Group is chaired by the Chief Nursing Officer and is supported by 7 sub-groups, each sub-group is considering issues relating to different areas of cancer. Workforce issues, including the diagnostic workforce, is a key area underpinning all specific operational areas. While Covid-19 has had an unavoidable impact on this work I anticipate that the draft Strategy, including workforce proposals, will be available for consultation before the end of this year.

All of these workforce actions will align with the Health and Social Care Workforce Strategy 2026 – Delivering for Our People.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 6345/17-22, whether he will commit to seeking access to future EU procurement process for influenza vaccinations.
(AQW 10341/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department does not anticipate any changes to the current procurement process for influenza vaccinations. Children's influenza vaccines are procured on behalf of my Department by Public Health England, whereas Business Service Organisation (BSO) procures adult influenza vaccines with advice from Public Health Agency (PHA) for the needs of the citizens of Northern Ireland. The BSO procurement is carried out via a tender process run under a Dynamic Purchasing System which is advertised in the supplement to the Official Journal of the European Union. We intend to continue to procure influenza vaccines for NI through these processes and we are not currently seeking access to any alternative EU procurement processes.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Health whether any plans exist to increase sexual health (i) promotion; (ii) testing; (iii) resources generally when it proves possible to relax or remove COVID-19 public health restrictions.

(AQW 10359/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Public Health Agency is committed to promoting good sexual health. Significant progress continues including public health information campaigns, development of relationships and sexuality training programmes for schools and community organisations, new sexual health services for students in higher and further education settings.

Future sexual health service provision including testing will as a necessity form part of the wider rebuilding of hospital services and will be kept under review as this more extensive piece of work evolves. Additional resources will be bid for as and when required.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many former staff have been recruited back into the Health Service to help with the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10367/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department initiated the Workforce Appeal back in April to assist HSC Trusts tackle the virus and we were overwhelmed by the response. There were over 11,000 applications covering a wide range of roles, including over 3,000 clinical applications. 899 people were appointed and deployed in Trusts; 515 Clinical Appointments were made across a range of professions and there were 384 Non Clinical Appointments.

With this first workforce appeal, a total of 123 doctors and 100 nurses who had left or retired from service made themselves available for employment within the health and social care sector; following assessment of the applicants and of the specific work requirements, 7 doctors and 15 nurses were appointed.

My Department has now re-opened the Workforce Appeal in an effort to try and build capacity again with particular focus on certain roles and positions across hospitals and community care. The total number of appointments made to date, as at 25th November, is 369, covering Health & Social Care (181 appointments), Clerical & Admin (188 appointments).

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health to detail the skill sets of the former staff who have returned to work in the Health Service during the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10368/17-22)

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the extended half-term break on the transmission of COVID-19 in schools.
(AQW 10380/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies (SAGE) published an assessment of the effectiveness and harms of different non-pharmaceutical interventions in October 2020.

This suggested that the closure of all schools would be estimated to result in the reproduction number R falling by between 0.2 and approximately 0.5. Reactive school closures might reduce R by between 0.12 and 0.45.

It is not possible to isolate the precise actual impact of individual interventions. However, there was observed to be an increase in the rate of community transmission of Covid-19 in Northern Ireland following the recent half-term school holiday broadly consistent with the SAGE assessment.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister of Health how many primary school children in each Health and Social Care Trust area are awaiting Autism Spectrum Disorder assessments.
(AQW 10398/17-22)

Mr Swann: The current number of children of primary school age (4-11) who are awaiting an Autism assessment in each Health and Social Care (HSC) Trust is presented in Table 1.

Table 1: Number of primary school children currently waiting on an Autism assessment by HSC Trust.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health whether the 3409 registered social care workers registered since 2019 are new additions to the workforce, or the registration of existing social care workers.

(AQW 10450/17-22)

Mr Swann: From 23rd March 2020 to 30th September 2020, there were 3320 new applications to join the NI Social Care Council register as social care workers. These registrants were either applying to the register for the first time or had returned to the register after a period of absence.

Ms Sheerin asked the Minister of Health how changes to emergency and urgent care will affect services provided by (i) Antrim Area Hospital; (ii) Mid Ulster Hospital; and (iii) Causeway Hospital.
(AQW 10451/17-22)

Mr Swann: Through my Department's 'No More Silos' Urgent and Emergency Care Action Plan, new models of care and pathways are being developed to ensure that patients are able to access the right care, first time. These changes also seek to avoid patients having to wait in crowded ED waiting rooms with the associated risks of increased transmission of COVID-19 and other infectious diseases.

From 1 December, all patients in the Northern HSC Trust who believe they require urgent care are encouraged to use the 'Phone First' service. This is a 24-7, GP led telephone clinical assessment service for patients who are unwell and planning to travel to an Emergency Department (ED) with an injury or illness which requires urgent treatment but is not immediately life threatening. Patients using this service will speak to a health care professional who will assess their condition and make arrangements for them to receive appropriate treatment urgently, without the need to attend ED.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Health how the Western Health and Social Care Trust is progressing plans for 24/7 mental health liaison services in acute hospitals.
(AQW 10455/17-22)

Mr Swann: I provided information on 24/7 mental health liaison services in acute hospitals for each of the Health and Social Care Trusts in my response to AQW 8187/17-22. The position for the Western Trust remains the same.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister of Health what measures have been put in place to provide GP services at Bannview Medical Practice in Portadown.
(AQW 10471/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Southern Health and Social Care Trust ("the Trust") and the Health and Social Care Board are working closely to address the current situation in Bannview Medical Practice, to ensure GMS services are maintained and to put longer term arrangements in place to secure the future provision of GP led services in the Practice.

A number of measures have been put in place which include:

- the provision of 2 sessions per week of Clinical Lead cover provided by the Trust's Associate Medical Directors;
- the appointment of a Clinical Lead GP who commenced work on 4th November 2020;
- the appointment of a full time block booked GP who commenced work on 17th November 2020;
- clinical sessions from a number of other GPs including the Federation GP locum pool;
- maximising the use of remote access to facilitate additional GP sessions;
- the redeployment of a Business Manager into the Practice to assist with continuity of care and quality improvement;
- the utilisation of Trust staff to assist with providing GMS services eg flu clinic;
- the employment of prescribing pharmacists in the Practice;
- a recruitment drive for permanent and bank GPs is continuing;
- contingency arrangements are also in place to enable the Practice to avail of other Trust GPs and medical staff if required.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health to detail the evidence of the rate of transmission in both licensed and non-licensed hospitality settings.
(AQW 10484/17-22)

Mr Swann: The evidence on the effectiveness of different non-pharmaceutical interventions produced by the Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies (SAGE) is available on the Department of Health website: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/covid-19-scientific-evidence>.

The summary assessment of SAGE is that the closure of bars, pubs, cafes and restaurants is expected to have the potential to reduce the reproduction number R by between 0.1 and 0.2, although it is highlighted that precise estimation of the impact is very difficult.

This intervention was included in the list of measures in the SAGE analysis as being expected to have the largest effect on R in the context that there may be synergistic effects from adopting multiple interventions.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health how many changes have been made to how the R number is calculated for Northern Ireland; and to detail these changes.
(AQW 10485/17-22)

Mr Swann: The details of the calculation of the reproduction number R for Northern Ireland are set out in the weekly R Number Paper which is available on the Department of Health website: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/R-Number>.

There have been no significant changes in the methodology used over time to calculate R which continues to be based on a Susceptible-Infectious Recovered (SIR) model.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Health what plans his Department has to treat patients suffering from long covid.
(AQW 10492/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is accumulating evidence to suggest that people who have had both mild and severe symptoms of COVID-19 can experience long-term health effects such as problems with breathing, chronic fatigue and stress.

The National Institute for Care and Health Excellence (NICE) is developing a guideline on long Covid which is due to be published by the end of the year. The guideline will address, among other things, a formal definition of the disease, how to identify on-going symptoms and a definition of best practice investigation and treatment options to support the management of the condition across diverse communities.

When published, the guideline will be fully considered alongside the wider body of emerging research to inform future policy and service decisions in Northern Ireland.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health what action he has taken on foot of the Alzheimer's Society's report entitled Worst Hit: Dementia During Coronavirus.
(AQW 10515/17-22)

Mr Swann: I was recently provided with a copy of this report and also the report entitled "The Fog of Support" by the Alzheimer's Society.

It is important to learn from our experiences during the pandemic and to consider any new ways of working which have been developed. I have therefore forwarded both reports to the Chief Executives of all five Health and Social Care Trusts and have asked them to consider their contents with the view to improving our services going forward.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health whether there are any differences in pay and banding of staffing between intensive care units, including between different Health and Social Care Trusts.
(AQW 10553/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is currently a skills mix of band 5 and band 6 Nurses within Intensive Care Units across the HSC.

Banding of all Agenda for Change roles, including those within nursing, is determined by the duties and responsibilities of a role assessed in partnership with Trades Unions using an agreed job evaluation scheme. Across the UK, jobs are matched to nationally evaluated profiles, based on the roles undertaken.

These profiles work on the basis that similar posts and responsibilities across the UK health services reflect the demands of the job and to ensure equality of pay. This process ensures that the level of post is dependent on the role, not the environment and as there is a difference between roles, for example between a qualified critical care specialist nurse and a nurse working in ICU, a skills mix is necessary.

Due to the global health emergency and local COVID-19 transmission rates, critical care requirements are significantly stretched across the region, resulting in increased pressures on the critical care nursing workforce.

In recognition of this, my Department is currently considering if temporary arrangements can be put in place for progression of Band 5 to Band 6 for critical care nurses who meet agreed criteria.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health how many staff in the care home sector are currently off work due to previous shielding advice.
(AQW 10555/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information on how many staff in the care home sector are currently off work due to previous shielding advice is not available within the Department. This information might only be obtained through an extensive manual exercise which would incur disproportionate cost.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of efforts to retain and upskill intensive care unit staff.
(AQW 10556/17-22)

Mr Swann: In addition to Continuous Professional Development for Registered Nurses facilitated by the HSC Clinical Education Centre (CEC), in partnership with Trust Corporate Nursing, Critical Care Nurses in NI are supported with National Standards of learning and assessment during their career from 'Novice' to 'Expert'.

In the first instance, Registered Nurses newly appointed to Critical Care have a period of focused Clinical Supervision to enable completion of their Critical Care Induction and STEP 1 of the National Competency Framework. Subsequently, after all competencies are complete and consolidated at this level a Post-graduate commissioned programme at Queens University Belfast is available to Critical Care Nurses in the specific area of Critical Care Nursing. Following both of these there are further Professional pathways available for Critical Care Nurses to pursue as appropriate.

Regarding the Registered Nurses who support Critical Care Areas, under the supervision of Trained Critical Care Nurses, in times of Regional Critical Care Escalation, upskilling is supported and facilitated through quality assured programmes delivered by CEC and the Educators & Lead Nurses aligned to the Critical Care Network of Northern Ireland (CCaNNI). CCaNNI link with all Critical Care designated Education Leads to standardise Critical Care programmes of learning and skill acquisition, and share all local, regional and national learning resources.

Learners are signposted to further learning resources relevant to Critical Care Nursing that have been developed and provided by organisations such as; NHS Health Education England: e-LH e-learning programmes, British Association of Critical Care Nurses (BACCN), The Health Care Library of Northern Ireland (HONNI); Queens University Belfast and the Intensive Care Society (ICS).

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Health whether intensive care nurses in the Ulster Hospital are graded as band 6 as in other intensive care units; and to detail the rationale for this decision.

(AQW 10566/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is currently a skills mix of band 5 and band 6 Nurses within Intensive Care Units in the South Eastern Trust and across the HSC.

Banding of all Agenda for Change roles, including those within nursing, is determined by the duties and responsibilities of a role assessed in partnership with Trades Unions using an agreed job evaluation scheme. Across the UK, jobs are matched to nationally evaluated profiles, based on the roles undertaken.

These profiles work on the basis that similar posts and responsibilities across the UK health services reflect the demands of the job and to ensure equality of pay. This process ensures that the level of post is dependent on the role, not the environment and as there is a difference between roles, for example between a qualified critical care specialist nurse and a nurse working in ICU, a skills mix is necessary.

Due to the global health emergency and local COVID-19 transmission rates, critical care requirements are significantly stretched across the region, resulting in increased pressures on the critical care nursing workforce.

In recognition of this, my Department is currently considering if temporary arrangements can be put in place for progression of Band 5 to Band 6 for critical care nurses who meet agreed criteria.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health whether (i) Domiciliary Care workers; (ii) people in receipt of carers allowance; (iii) foster and kinship carers; (iv) people in receipt of Personal Independence Payment or Disability Living Allowance; and (v) all people who provide childcare, including child minders, will be considered part of priority groupings when a vaccination programme is rolled out.

Mr Swann: I refer the member to AQW 10272/17-22, answered on 26 November 2020.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether his Department is considering implementing a large-scale population COVID-19 testing program for Northern Ireland, as is presently underway in Liverpool.

(AQW 10610/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department's Expert Advisory Group on Testing (EAG) is fully linked in to the National Mass Population Testing Programme, which is being led by the Department for Health and Social Care, London.

EAG is monitoring closely and availing of the learning emerging from whole town testing pilots being undertaken across the UK and beyond. This is being used to inform our planning here.

Working with a range of local partners and experts, we are also continuing with implementation of a number of New Testing Interventions (NTIs) across different settings including repeat testing of asymptomatic health care staff, testing of University students and testing in school settings.

The learning arising from these NTIs will help us better understand how these new, asymptomatic testing technologies can be implemented and extended more widely.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health for an update on the timescale under which the Mental Health Strategy will be published.

(AQW 10617/17-22)

Mr Swann: I aim to start a public consultation on a draft strategy before the end of the year.

The full Mental Health Strategy is on course for publication in July 2021.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health what discussions he has had with Executive colleagues with regard to the timescale for bringing forward minimum unit pricing for alcohol legislation, similar to that applying in Scotland.

(AQW 10619/17-22)

Mr Swann: The harms caused by the misuse of alcohol are a major public health issue in Northern Ireland and the introduction of legislation for Minimum Unit Pricing (MUP) for Alcohol has the potential to be a key population-level health measure to address this issue.

I have therefore recently made a commitment to have a full consultation on MUP once the new substance use strategy for Northern Ireland is launched. This new strategy is currently out for public consultation.

There is no predetermined outcome for this consultation, which will examine a range of possible options in respect of alcohol pricing, including consideration of the emerging evidence of the effectiveness of MUP following its implementation in Scotland and elsewhere.

I have already discussed the issue with the Minister for Communities and will engage further with other Departments as this work progresses. Any policies arising from the consultation will be brought to the Executive in due course.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health to detail the timescale under which a permanent uplift from Band 5 to Band 6 will apply to intensive care unit nurses across all Health Trusts.

(AQW 10621/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is currently a skills mix of band 5 and band 6 Nurses within Intensive Care Units across the HSC.

Banding of all Agenda for Change roles, including those within nursing, is determined by the duties and responsibilities of a role assessed in partnership with Trades Unions using an agreed job evaluation scheme. Across the UK, jobs are matched to nationally evaluated profiles, based on the roles undertaken.

These profiles work on the basis that similar posts and responsibilities across the UK health services reflect the demands of the job and to ensure equality of pay. This process ensures that the level of post is dependent on the role, not the environment and as there is a difference between roles, for example between a qualified critical care specialist nurse and a nurse working in ICU, a skills mix is necessary. It is not, therefore, appropriate to simply put in place an uplift to all nursing staff working within Intensive Care Units.

Due to the global health emergency and local COVID-19 transmission rates, critical care requirements are significantly stretched across the region, resulting in increased pressures on the critical care nursing workforce.

In recognition of this, my Department is currently considering if temporary arrangements can be put in place for progression of Band 5 to Band 6 for critical care nurses who meet agreed criteria.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health how many residents of care homes have been transferred to hospital following a positive COVID-19 test in each week since 13 October 2020.

(AQW 10622/17-22)

Mr Swann: The information requested on the number of care home residents transferred to hospital following a positive COVID-19 test in each week since 13 October 2020 is currently not available.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what percentage of the flu vaccination programme has been completed; and what is the target date for completion of the programme.

(AQW 10653/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) The uptake rates of vaccine by the eligible groups are available to the end of October and are set out below:
- Trust-employed frontline health and social care workers – 42%
 - Primary school children – 29%
 - People aged 65 and over – 66%
 - People aged under 65 in at risk groups – 48%
 - Pregnant women – 48%
 - Two to four year olds – 38%
- (ii) The public seasonal flu vaccination programme runs annually from the 1st of October to the end of March. However, for the current season, the rollout of a Covid-19 vaccination programme may have an impact on the duration of some elements of the flu vaccination programme.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how much were nurses, who worked at the Ulster Hospital, charged for on-site parking prior to the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10654/17-22)

Mr Swann: The rates of car parking charges for Health and Social Care staff (including nurses) located at the Ulster Hospital are based on their full-time or part-time status. Staff contracted for 32 hours and above per week pay £15 per month to avail of an allocated space. Staff contracted for fewer than 32 hours per week pay £11 per month.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health to detail the uptake from the latest Health and Social Care workforce appeal. (AQW 10662/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department initiated the Workforce Appeal back in April to assist HSC Trusts tackle the virus and we were overwhelmed by the response. There were over 11,000 applications covering a wide range of roles, including over 3,000 clinical applications.

899 people were appointed and deployed in Trusts, including:

- 515 Clinical Appointments were made across a range of professions; and
- 384 Non Clinical Appointments.

The Workforce Appeal has since been reopened in an effort to try and build capacity again with particular focus on certain roles and positions across hospitals and community care. The total number of appointments made to Trusts to date, as at 25th November, is 369, covering both Health & Social Care (181 appointments) and Clerical & Admin (188 appointments).

In addition, the HSC Appeal has also recently commenced work in recruiting for the vaccination programme. To date, specifically for the vaccination programme, the Appeal has generated 406 Formal Applications from Healthcare Professionals, 11 for Support Workers and 25 for Admin.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Health to detail any joint initiatives his Department has undertaken with the Department of Education under the Children's Services Co Operation Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 since the act received Royal Assent. (AQW 10674/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Children's Services Co-operation Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 places a duty on children's authorities to co-operate. There are several recent examples of initiatives that have been taken forward jointly with the Department of Education in keeping with the principles of the Act. These include the recent measures to ensure that childcare continued to be available during the Covid-19 Pandemic and the Covid-19 Vulnerable Children and Young People's Plan. In addition to the Children and Young Person's Strategy provided for in the Act, my Department is working with the Department of Education in relation to a number of strategies, including the draft Looked After Children Strategy: A Life Deserved; the Childcare Strategy; the Family and Parenting Support Strategy; and the Online Safety Strategy.

The Early Intervention Transformation Programme (2014-2019) was undertaken in cooperation with the Department of Education and other government departments and is a good example of where pooled resources delivered improved outcomes for children and young people.

Work is also ongoing with Education and Justice on the development of proposals for a Regional Care and Justice Campus.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 9705/17-22, what is the average length of time a patient occupies a geriatric inpatient bed. (AQW 10699/17-22)

Mr Swann: Tabulated information on the average length of time a patient occupies a geriatric inpatient bed for the time period 2019/20 has been provided below. The information has been broken down by Health and Social Care Trust.

Average Length of Stay for Geriatric Medicine Specialty¹ in HSC Hospitals in Northern Ireland, 2019/20

Trust	Average Length of Stay (days)
Belfast	13.4
Northern	12.0
South Eastern	11.7
Southern	13.7
Western	14.5
Total	13.1

Source: Hospital Inpatient System, Hospital Information Branch, Information & Analysis Directorate, Department of Health, NI.

1 Specialty Code 430 was used to identify Geriatric Medicine admissions.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 9705/17-22, why beds now excluded from the total displayed on the departmental COVID-19 dashboard were included in the first instance; and for his assessment of the impact of public confidence in data produced by his Department to change the way it counts the number of available beds.

(AQW 10701/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information to inform the pandemic continues to evolve and the dashboard is no exception. Bed occupancy data was initially derived solely from data extracted from the Patient Administration System which included all hospitals and all types of beds. HSC Trust Chief Executives suggested that a more appropriate means of capturing the operational bed pressures faced within the main hospital sites to include the volume of patients waiting to be admitted on any given day should be developed.

The resultant change in methodology was designed to address this issue. The new methodology is now based on daily data obtained from operational control rooms within hospitals. Resource pressures do not allow this metric to be reported in a timely manner from all hospital sites. The new information is therefore based on the twelve main hospital sites, and from wards within those sites, which are most impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Code of Practice for Statistics recognises that producers of statistics may change the methodology or coverage of statistics produced in order to improve their usefulness. Sole responsibility for the production and reporting of official statistics rests with Statisticians who work to a professional code of practice and are independent of the DoH. It is important that changes are communicated openly and transparently to maintain public confidence. In this case the change was clearly and openly communicated and thus, this requirement was met.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail his Department's approach and response to the impacts of loneliness on Health and Social Care Services.

(AQW 10708/17-22)

Mr Swann: I recognise the importance of loneliness and its impact not only on health and wellbeing but also on Health and Social Care Services.

My Department, the HSC Trusts and our arms length bodies, have a range of policies, programmes and initiatives already in place that should help alleviate some of the pressures that people are experiencing.

The Department is also represented on the All Party Group on Loneliness which was formed following a series of all-party roundtables and policy events at Stormont in 2019 and 2020. In addition the Department is now part of a 4-country Group in the UK and we are liaising with counterpart policy leads to learn and share best practice.

The Department are also seeking partnership with counterparts in ROI, and beyond, to learn and share from other's experiences and innovative approaches to tackle loneliness and social isolation in relation to health and wellbeing.

The Institute of Public Health in Ireland is represented on my Department's Reform Board for Adult Social Care. They have carried out research into loneliness on an all island basis. We are liaising with them to further investigate their research and specifically the research that relates to Northern Ireland.

The Department has set up monitoring of loneliness via different surveys for adults and children. This will allow us to look at loneliness in conjunction with other health information, including general health and mental health as well as health behaviours.

A scoping exercise within the Department's policy areas and across the HSC including Trusts and DOH arms length bodies, is underway, to further identify policies; strategies, programmes and initiatives in place (including funding/investment) and those that are under development that contribute to tackling loneliness and isolation that impact on health and wellbeing, aligned to my Department's priorities and outcomes for government.

One of my primary aims will be to ensure the continued delivery of high quality health and social care services, providing of course that it is safe to do so.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health what financial contributions have been set aside for care partners.

(AQW 10709/17-22)

Mr Swann: You will be aware that on the 22 October 2020 I announced an additional £27.3m funding package for the care home sector.

This financial support included £9m of funding to reflect the costs of: the rolling programme of testing for both residents and staff; the costs of overseeing safe visiting and setting up care partner arrangements; and the increased management time needed to oversee homes.

Care Homes do not need to apply for this funding as it will be paid directly to them based on the number of residents in their care, with a set amount per home to recognise some of the additional management overheads. Trusts are currently working to pay out this funding.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail any work his Department has done to develop a cross-departmental loneliness strategy, including any discussions with other departments.

Mr Swann: Loneliness is a vital theme within a number of existing and relevant policies of the Department with the overall objective of improving the health and well being of the population. Whilst the Department does not have one separate policy for loneliness, there are a range of policies; programmes and initiatives in place – that make a positive contribute to tackling loneliness - specifically related to health and wellbeing.

My officials are currently carrying out a scoping exercise to identify and co-ordinate what is currently in place both in the Department and across the wider landscape of the HSC (in our 5 Trusts and our Arm's Length bodies).

It is anticipated that the first phase of this exercise will be completed by early 2021. The findings of which will inform how we move forward from a policy perspective.

It is clear from the preliminary research that loneliness is a key issue and as such cannot be resolved by any one Department, organisation or sector working alone. Therefore a collective and collaborative approach would be beneficial.

This would support a more joined up and co-ordinated working together to rebuild approach and identifying existing policies and synergies across organisations. Going forward we need to be action orientated so as to better target resources that contribute to tackling loneliness for those who are most vulnerable, both now and in the future.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health to detail the current and forthcoming rules for fathers or birthing partners to attend neonatal scans and appointments along with their pregnant partner.

(AQW 10756/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department published updated visiting guidance for maternity services (available here: <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/Covid-19-visiting-guidance>), which took effect from 23 September 2020.

The decision to permit visitors into a facility on a day to day basis remains with the midwife in charge, and will be based on a risk assessment of the ability to ensure safety of patients, staff and the visitor. However, the expectation as set out in the current visiting restrictions is that:

“Birth partners will be facilitated to accompany the pregnant woman to dating scan, early pregnancy clinic, anomaly scan, in the event of pregnancy loss and bereavement, Fetal Medicine Department, when admitted to individual room for active labour (to be determined by midwife) and birth and, to visit in antenatal and postnatal wards for up to one hour once a week.”

While my officials keep the guidance under review, in line with the best available scientific and medical evidence, no significant changes are currently anticipated.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health when AQW 7623/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 10769/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing in Northern Ireland continues to be a vital tool in our response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The current position is that all Health and Social Care (HSC) staff who are symptomatic (or whose household contacts are symptomatic) are eligible for testing in Northern Ireland.

This includes domiciliary care workers who, as essential health care workers, are currently able to access testing either through local HSC laboratories or via the National Testing Programme. Should there be an indication of more than one symptomatic individual among a group of care workers, an appropriate risk assessment will be undertaken by the Public Health Agency with testing of all individuals undertaken as deemed appropriate following the risk assessment.

On the 3 November 2020, I announced that regular COVID-19 testing of staff working in care homes would increase from once every two weeks to once a week.

Routine testing of asymptomatic domiciliary care workers and community health staff is kept under review. As our understanding of this new virus continues to evolve and we learn more about the impact of the virus across different settings, and as new testing technologies emerge and are evaluated for use, we may revisit our policy on routine testing health and social care staff, including the testing of domiciliary care providers.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of patients in each hospital with respiratory problems; and how this figure compares with November (i) 2018; and (ii) 2019.

(AQW 10783/17-22)

Mr Swann: Information relating to reasons for 2020 admissions is not yet available due to a lag in clinical coding data.

Tabulated information on the number of patients in each Health and Social Care Trust with respiratory conditions has been provided below for the time periods November 2018 and November 2019.

The Number of Patients Admitted¹ to HSC Hospitals with a Respiratory Condition² in Northern Ireland in November 2018 and 2019

Trust	2018	2019
Belfast	228	373
Northern	180	239
South Eastern	179	222
Southern	177	254
Western	143	205
Total	907	1293

Source: Hospital Inpatient System, Hospital Information Branch, Information & Analysis Directorate, Dept. of Health, NI.

- 1 Admissions are approximated through deaths and discharges. These figures do not denote individuals.
- 2 The following ICD-10 codes have been used to identify 'respiratory conditions' in the primary diagnostic field of the Hospital Inpatient System:

Asthma	J45	Asthma
	J46	Status asthmaticus
Bronchitis	J20	Acute bronchitis
	J21	Acute bronchiolitis
	J40	Bronchitis, not specified as acute or chronic
	J41	Simple and mucopurulent chronic bronchitis
	J42	Unspecified chronic bronchitis
	J47	Bronchiectasis
Emphysema	J43	Emphysema
COPD	J44	Other chronic obstructive pulmonary disease

Codes within the primary diagnostic field will denote the main condition treated or investigated within a consultant episode; this may not always be the reason for the admission to hospital.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the total resource spend for the health and social care system in (i) 2018/19; and (ii) 2019/20.
(AQW 10795/17-22)

Mr Swann: Details on total resource Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) spend for the Health and Social Care system in (i) 2018/19 and (ii) 2019/20 are as follows:

2018/19	2019/20

2019/20 figures are based on Provisional Outturn.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health what was the maximum hospital bed capacity in each Health and Social Care Trust in 2019.

(AQW 10816/17-22)

Mr Swann: Tabulated information on bed availability for the year 2019 has been provided below. The information has been broken down by Health and Social Care Trust.

Number of Available beds in HSC Hospitals in Northern Ireland, 2019

Trust	Quarter Ending
	Mar-19	Jun-19	Sep-19	Dec-19

Mr Buckley asked the Minister of Health what progress has been made to remove obstacles to rolling out the care partner model in care homes. (AQW 10851/17-22)

Mr Swann: You will be aware that on the 22 October 2020 I announced an additional £27.3m funding package for the care home sector.

This financial support included £9m of funding to reflect the costs of:-

- the rolling programme of testing for both residents and staff;
- the costs of overseeing safe visiting and setting up care partner arrangements; and
- the increased management time needed to oversee homes.

Care Homes do not need to apply for this funding as it will be paid directly to them based on the number of residents in their care, with a set amount per home to recognise some of the additional management overheads. Trusts have written to care home providers seeking confirmation they are happy to receive their proportion of the £9m referred to above. A number of homes have already confirmed this and the first payments should be with homes within the next two weeks.

Health and Social Care Trusts have been asked to work with care homes to provide the support they might require to move forward with risk assessments that facilitate safely managed and meaningful visiting arrangements and implementation of the care partner concept. They have also been asked to provide assurance to my Department, through the Chief Social Work Officer and Chief Nursing Officer, that care homes are implementing the visiting guidance appropriately.

A number of care homes have moved quickly to implement visiting and care partner arrangements. As well as Trusts the HSCB and PHA are working with those homes who are finding implementation more challenging – identifying and sharing good practice.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health for a breakdown of successful applicants to the relaunched Health and Social Care Workforce Appeal by profession. (AQW 10877/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Workforce Appeal was relaunched in an effort to try and build capacity again with particular focus on certain roles and positions across hospitals and community care. The total number of appointments made to date, as at 25th November, is 369, covering Health & Social Care (181 appointments), Clerical & Admin (188 appointments).

Candidates may be unsuccessful in not being offered a post or being appointed for a variety of reasons such as the suitability and availability of the candidates may not always match the requirements to the roles being offered. For example, it is common for some candidates only being able to commit to specific hours on specific days which unfortunately did not match the demands of the positions being offered. Other candidates were seeking permanent employment, however, the Workforce Appeal was always designed with the aim of securing temporary employment in an effort to support the HSC Trusts through the pandemic.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health why the £27 million package for care homes announced on 22 October 2020 has yet to be delivered.

(AQW 10881/17-22)

Mr Swann: As indicated in my announcement on 22 October 2020 regarding an additional funding package, I have set aside important support for care home staff including £27.3m of additional funding for the sector. This includes an allocation of £9m to be paid directly to homes to ensure they can support testing and visiting.

The remaining funds can be claimed back by homes to support additional staffing costs (for instance, because of more acutely unwell residents or the need to support individuals self-isolating), continue with enhanced cleaning and enhanced sick pay, support changes to the physical environment (to support safe visiting, for instance) and meet other increased costs, such as IT.

Trust colleagues are in the process of writing to Care Home Providers setting out clear guidance on how the £9m set out above will be paid directly to providers and on the claims process to enable Providers to access the remaining funding.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health what discussions he has had with counterparts in the Republic of Ireland concerning the Dying with Dignity Bill, currently passing through the Oireachtas, particularly with regard to clarifying the legal position of doctors in Northern Ireland; and what safeguarding mechanisms would be in place for vulnerable people resident in Northern Ireland.

Mr Swann: I am aware of the Dying with Dignity Bill which is passing through the Oireachtas. I have had no discussions with my counterparts in the Republic of Ireland on the Bill.

The Bill is in its early stages and the Oireachtas Joint Committee on Justice has invited written submissions from interested groups and individuals on its provisions as part of its scrutiny of the legislation. Scrutiny is conducted as a separate process, prior to Committee Stage. The purpose of Committee scrutiny is to assess the Bill from a policy, legal and financial perspective with a view to recommending whether the Bill should proceed to Committee Stage or not.

As we do not have the settled text of any potential Act, it is not possible to determine what, if any, response is required in Northern Ireland.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health how many care homes in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust have benefited from the £27 million funding package announced by his Department on 22 October 2020.

(AQW 10893/17-22)

Mr Swann: The additional funding package of £27.3m I announced on 22 October for the care home sector includes an allocation of £9m to be paid directly to homes to ensure they can support testing and visiting.

The remaining funds can be claimed back by homes to support additional staffing costs (for instance, because of more acutely unwell residents or the need to support individuals self-isolating), continue with enhanced cleaning and enhanced sick pay, support changes to the physical environment (to support safe visiting, for instance) and meet other increased costs, such as IT.

Trust colleagues have written to Care Home Providers seeking confirmation they are happy to receive the proportion of the £9m referred to above. A number of homes have already confirmed this and the first payments should be with homes within the next two weeks. A process is already in place for claiming the costs for enhanced sick pay and Trusts are currently processing a number of claims. The letter referred to above also provides details on how to apply for some costs for which homes will need to provide evidence. Further correspondence will follow shortly on the remaining elements of the funding.

A number of discussions with provider representatives have taken place since funding was confirmed on 29th October, in order to inform the process and communications used with care homes.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Health to detail the timetable for the publication of the report on the operation of Mother and Baby Homes and Magdalene Laundries across Northern Ireland from 1922 to 1999.

(AQW 10897/17-22)

Mr Swann: The research report on the operation of Mother and Baby Homes and Magdalene Laundries in Northern Ireland is currently subject to a representations process, which is near completion. On completion of this process, subject to Executive approval, it is intended the research report will be published as soon as possible.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Health how many tutors were trained and approved to deliver Public Health Agency-approved Mental Health First Aid in (i) 2017; (ii) 2018; (iii) 2019; and (v) 2020.

(AQW 10941/17-22)

Mr Swann: Public Health Agency (PHA) is working closely with current Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) Facilitators to finalise the latest rewrite of MHFA NI. The new MHFA Facilitator materials will be used from early 2021. The updated course will be renamed to Standard Mental Health First Aid (SMHFA) as directed by MHFA International. No tutors have been trained and approved to deliver Mental Health First Aid since 2017 due to the re-write and quality assurance of the SMHFA course materials.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Health how many individuals and organizations are currently approved by the Public Health Agency to deliver Mental Health First Aid.

(AQW 10942/17-22)

Mr Swann: PHA currently supports 40 Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) facilitators to deliver MHFA across Northern Ireland. Of these 40 facilitators: 17 MHFA Facilitators work independently to provide MHFA to communities and workplaces; and 23 MHFA facilitators are trained to deliver as part of their organisational remit. Organisations provide MHFA facilitated training to individuals, communities, workplaces and organisations.

Of the above 23 organisations that offer MHFA facilitated training: 8 organisations are commissioned by PHA to deliver MHFA within their respective trust localities; and 15 organisations deliver MHFA as part of their own organisational remit.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister of Health whether the statutory inquiry he announced on 24 November 2020 into the neurology recall will remain under the joint chairpersons Brett Lockhart QC and Prof Hugo Mascie-Taylor.

(AQW 10959/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Independent Neurology Inquiry (INI) will continue to be chaired by Brett Lockhart QC with Professor Hugo Mascie-Taylor as co-panellist.

The Inquiry is at a very advanced stage of its evidence-gathering process and I do not intend my decision to convert the Inquiry to add to or alter the work or timescales of this Inquiry.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health to detail the most common reasons for rejecting applicants to the relaunched Health and Social Care Workforce Appeal.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the effectiveness of the Executive Office's advertising campaign, Limit your Contact, in trying to reduce cases of COVID-19 infection.

(AQO 1220/17-22)

Mr Swann: We have been living with this virus in our communities since March and I think it is fair to say that we were beginning to see a level of complacency emerge. We were seeing attentiveness to public health messaging begin to wane resulting in higher case numbers, increased hospitalisations and sadly deaths.

Therefore the Northern Ireland Executive's Limit Your Contacts campaign came at a critical time in our fightback against COVID-19. This latest phase of the multi-channel campaign which launched earlier this month, highlights how the virus can spread through close personal contact in unregulated settings.

The approach in this phase of the campaign has differed from previous COVID-19 campaigns. It is told from a 1st person perspective which puts the viewer, directly in the shoes of the person portrayed in the advertisement, who is unwittingly bringing the virus home to loved ones. With the ultimate aim of making the threat of Covid-19 much more visible and immediate.

The three month campaign is running across TV, radio, outdoor, press and digital platforms and has already had significant reach.

Up to 22nd November, the Limit Your Contacts element of the campaign has been seen or heard almost 32 million times (31,952,475) and estimated to have reached approximately 98% of the NI population at least once. It is estimated that the average adult will have seen or heard the campaign 21 times.

The latest phase of the public information campaign also includes an advertisement featuring Rhonda Tait, who lost her mother to COVID-19 earlier this year.

Rhonda's powerful testimonial brings home to us all, the devastation caused by the virus and the many families who have been left grieving as a result. Her words asking everyone to follow the basic public health advice to spare others that same grief is particularly impactful. I would of course also like to thank Rhonda for participating in this campaign and for sharing her story at what is a hugely difficult time for her and her family.

In total, since the public information campaign began in March, the campaign has been presented over 261 million times, with the average adult in Northern Ireland seeing/hearing the advertising 174 times.

Indeed we can see from the figures that the campaign has been hugely effective in terms of the number of people it has reached. In terms of its impact and influence, I know that many people have been effected by the campaign and in particular Rhonda's story. It has served as a sober reminder to continue to follow the public health advice and limit contacts to help keep everyone safe.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister of Health what preparations are being made for the reopening of day centres for people with a learning disability.

(AQO 1221/17-22)

Mr Swann: In March 2020, Trust day services were largely stood down to help reduce community transmission of COVID-19. While cognisant of the degree to which many families rely on these supports on a daily basis, this action was considered necessary at that time to minimise the transmission of the virus among adults with learning disability, and ensure adherence to public health guidance. Many families had already chosen to withdraw service users from these services, because of their own concerns about the risk of COVID-19 transmission.

Limited provision of services recommenced in July 2020 across all Trusts and in line with a regionally agreed recovery framework, developed by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB). The framework aimed to restore day services in a consistent manner, taking account of learning and new ways of working developed during lockdown. Trusts have developed plans in line with this framework and updates on progress are being provided through the HSCB to the Department.

HSC Trusts have advised that current requirements mean that day services are not able to operate in the same way or to the same capacity as pre-COVID levels. Reported service provision varies between 30-50% across Trusts, dependent on the availability of physical space, staff and transport. There is also an ongoing risk of having to temporarily scale back day centre provision as a result of staff isolation, for instance.

My officials wrote to Trusts in early October to establish a baseline of service provision for each Trust, to confirm planned increases and to ask Trusts to identify any barriers to further scaling up service provision. Trusts were also reminded of the need for an ongoing dialogue with service users and their families/carers.

Whilst assurances continue to be sought from Trusts that all options are being explored and contingencies and mitigations are in place in relation to service delivery where possible, it is clear that challenging times lie ahead.

Trusts have been asked to build on learning from the past few months to ensure they explore any creative solutions that may be available to aid their rebuilding process. Further to this, a number of approaches are being investigated to gauge if they can help to increase or maintain service provision. In particular, Trusts have been asked to engage with Voluntary and Community Sector to see if there is any scope to expand their provision and to consider the potential to expand their own service provision through the renting of additional premises or recruitment of additional staff.

In the interim period, Trusts are continuously monitoring and assessing their services so that service uptake and unfilled spaces are reallocated where it is possible to do so.

As I am sure members will appreciate, and as with so many issues at this time, we are seeking to find a difficult balance between the risk of infection and physical wellbeing for service users set against their broader wellbeing and that of their families and carers.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Health what assessment he has made of the impact of not adopting further COVID-19 interventions between now and the end of the year.

(AQO 1222/17-22)

Mr Swann: I have listened carefully to the advice provided to me and to my Executive colleagues by the Chief Medical Officer and the Chief Scientific Advisor.

Their assessment was that if we did not have a timely intervention, beginning in late November, it would have been likely that even a full lockdown beginning around the middle of December would not prevent the pressure on Health and Social Care from significantly exceeding the capacity.

The Executive subsequently agreed that two weeks of additional restrictions beginning last Friday was the most effective and most timely course of action to reduce virus transmission.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health to outline his powers to introduce COVID-19 emergency legislation unilaterally.
(AQO 1223/17-22)

Mr Swann: The powers to introduce emerge public health legislation are contained in the Public Health Act (Northern) 1967 and are conferred by sections 25C (1), (3)(c), (4)(d) and 25F(2) of that Act.

These powers are there to enable my Department to make regulations to prevent, protect against, control or provide a public health response to the incidence or spread of infection in Northern Ireland.

While the legislation confers certain powers on the Department of Health, since the beginning of the pandemic my actions have been part of the collective response of the Executive. All the regulations introduced as part of this response have been agreed by the Executive. The Executive is united in its determination to get on top of the pandemic and restore normal life as quickly as we safely can, and we will continue to act together to that end.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health to outline his commitment to a post-COVID-19 independent review of how the pandemic was prepared for and handled.
(AQO 1225/17-22)

Mr Swann: I understand that post-COVID-19 there will be the need for independent review of how the pandemic was prepared for and handled. I am committed to engaging in such a review once we, as a United Kingdom, are through this global pandemic.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the adequacy of intensive care nurses' pay.
(AQO 1226/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is currently a skills mix of band 5 and band 6 Nurses within Intensive Care Units across the HSC.

Banding of all Agenda for Change roles, including those within nursing, is determined by the duties and responsibilities of a role assessed in partnership with Trades Unions using an agreed job evaluation scheme. Across the UK, jobs are matched to nationally evaluated profiles, based on the roles undertaken.

These profiles work on the basis that similar posts and responsibilities across the UK health services reflect the demands of the job and to ensure equality of pay. This process ensures that the level of post is dependent on the role, not the environment and as there is a difference between roles, for example between a qualified critical care specialist nurse and a nurse working in ICU, a skills mix is necessary.

Due to the global health emergency and local COVID-19 transmission rates, critical care requirements are significantly stretched across the region, resulting in increased pressures on the critical care nursing workforce.

In recognition of this, my Department is currently considering if temporary arrangements can be put in place for progression of Band 5 to Band 6 for critical care nurses who meet agreed criteria.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health whether the onset of COVID-19 will alter his response to the Bengoa Report recommendations relevant to acute hospital care.
(AQO 1227/17-22)

Mr Swann: COVID-19 has reinforced the need for the Transformation of our system as highlighted through the Bengoa Report, and the Department's response to it, Health and Wellbeing 2026: Delivering Together.

This roadmap for Transformation, which began in 2016 and which continues today, addresses the need for whole system change, of which the Transformation of acute hospital care is a critical part.

The work currently being undertaken across our acute hospitals must be commended, but the stark reality is that our Emergency Departments are under immense pressure, many of our hospitals are running at, or above, 100% capacity, and we are finding it impossible to maintain planned services at the same time as meeting patients' unscheduled care needs.

The need to transform acute hospital care is therefore stronger than ever. This year almost £95m has been allocated to progress the Transformation of HSC services, which includes significant investments in areas such as intermediate care, elective surgery, acute care at home, unscheduled and ambulatory care.

Funding has also been invested in transforming critical services such as Imaging and Pathology, which are key to the delivery of acute care across the system.

Those service reviews which were being progressed through the Transformation agenda, such as the review of Stroke, Breast Assessment, Maternity, Bariatric and Neurology services have been paused due to the pandemic, however, these will be resumed at the earliest opportunity to ensure that these critical services can continue to be sustainable in the future.

There is no doubt that Covid-19 has, and will continue to have, a profound impact on the delivery of HSC services; the pace, scale and direction of Transformation will be informed by work to manage the current wave of the virus, the subsequent rebuilding of HSC services, and the management of any potential impact of future waves.

Health and Wellbeing 2026: Delivering Together remains the overarching strategy for transforming HSC services, and decisions on the nature and approach to rebuilding services will be considered in adherence to the principles set out within this strategy.

The Transformation of HSC services remains a priority and the only solution to the long term sustainability of our system.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Health whether rapid COVID-19 testing will be rolled out by the Public Health Agency or by Public Health England.

(AQO 1228/17-22)

Mr Swann: We are now continuing with implementation of a number of New Testing Interventions, or NTIs, in Northern Ireland using rapid testing technologies. The tests will be rolled out locally in conjunction with the Public Health Agency.

These NTIs are part of the UK-wide population testing programme, and as we progress with these we will evaluate the new technologies used for testing and we will realise their benefits for our citizens, our services and our wider economy.

Testing of asymptomatic healthcare workers is due to begin this week. This NTI will enable early identification of the SARS-CoV-2 virus in health care staff who do not have symptoms, ensuring frontline staff can self-isolate early and thereby reduce the risk of onward transmission of infection.

Testing of asymptomatic students commenced this week at Queen's University using Lateral Flow Devices. The learning arising from this NTI will be important to help us better understand how asymptomatic testing can be implemented and extended more widely in the future, to other parts of Northern Ireland.

Plans are progressing to offer testing where this is needed to the wider population of students. In this context, asymptomatic testing will form part of a wider strategy to support and enable students to travel home for Christmas. This requires swift and agile planning and rollout over the coming weeks working closely across a number of government departments and other delivery partners.

It is through undertaking NTIs such as these that we can develop fully informed plans for the future, to everyone's benefit.

Department for Infrastructure

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to the North West Greenway Network, to detail (i) a projected completion date for the Strabane section of the project; and (ii) projected dates for the next stages.

(AQW 10241/17-22)

Ms Mallon (The Minister for Infrastructure): My Department is a partner in the North West Greenways Network project along with Donegal County Council and the cycling charity Sustrans. The lead partner is Derry City and Strabane District Council, and as such are best placed at this stage to respond to queries about completion dates for the different stages of the project.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether her Department will be contributing to the research into the impacts of petroleum development in Northern Ireland, commissioned by the Department for the Economy.

(AQW 10245/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am aware of the research the Department for the Economy (DfE) has procured to inform a review of its minerals and petroleum licencing process, as well as decisions on undecided petroleum licence applications before it. DfI has no direct involvement in the research exercise but my officials have asked DfE officials to keep them informed as this work progresses.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the current beneficiaries from the Concessionary Fares Scheme; and (ii) whether she made a bid for additional resources to extend the Concessionary Fares Scheme.

(AQW 10470/17-22)

- (i). Ms Mallon: Beneficiaries of the concessionary fares scheme are those people who qualify for either free travel (everyone aged 60 and over, people who are registered blind and war disablement pensioners) or half fare travel (people in receipt of the mobility component of Disability Living Allowance (DLA), the mobility component of Personal Independence Payment (PIP), those who have had a driving licence refused or revoked on medical grounds, have a learning disability or who are partially sighted). To be eligible for the Scheme, an individual must apply for and receive a concessionary travel card, called a SmartPass. In addition, children and young people up until 30 June following their 16th birthday can also travel for half fare.

In 2019/20, almost 14 million journeys were made by people using a SmartPass, with an additional 9 million journeys made by children under the scheme. Full details of eligibility for the Scheme can be found on NI Direct <https://www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/free-and-concessionary-bus-and-rail-travel>.

- (ii). Between 2015/16 and 2019/20, my department has consistently submitted in-year bids to seek additional funding to support the current Concessionary Fares Scheme. With the exception of 2017/18 and 2019/20 these bids have been successful, however the decision not to allocate additional funding to the scheme in 2019/20 resulted in Translink not being fully reimbursed for fares forgone. This £8.4m deficit has significantly contributed to the company's difficult financial position.

Without additional funding, the current scheme as it stands is unaffordable. I have requested a meeting with Minister Murphy on this issue.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the upcoming road safety strategy.
(AQW 10482/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Officials are working on a new Road Safety Strategy. This work has been delayed by the Covid-19 crisis and more recently by the work on Financial Assistance Schemes. I expect to be in a position to issue a draft Road Safety Strategy for consultation by March 2021, but please be assured that road safety is integral to the work of the Department and it continues each and every day. While this timeframe is challenging I would ask that you note the progress made to date and the planned timescale for moving to the consultation stage.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail how much of this year's budget has been committed to (i) building new roads; (ii) building new walking and cycle routes; (iii) resurfacing of existing roads; and (iv) pothole repairs.
(AQW 10499/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The table below provides a summary of the current 2020-21 budget commitments for the activities requested:

Activity	Current Budget £m
Building new roads – includes both development and construction	103.5
Building and developing new walking and cycling routes	7.7
Resurfacing of existing roads	52.4
Pothole repairs	14.0

The current budget for building new roads includes £80.1m and £3.5m for the A6 and A5 Western Transport Corridor flagship projects respectively. The budget for potholes funds expenditure on patching, however pothole defects may also be remedied as part of a resurfacing project.

I am very keen to deliver on projects to get more people to walk and cycle, as well as building and developing the walking and cycling network. I have actively engaged with local Councils in identifying and delivering active travel and greenway projects as part of my blue/green infrastructure development plans within the £20m capital blue/green fund.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what steps she will take to provide greater consistency across local councils in the information recorded and available in Environmental Impact Assessment public registers.
(AQW 10509/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since the transfer of planning powers to local government in April 2015 councils, in their role as local planning authorities, are the decision-makers for the vast majority of applications for planning permission. The Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (NI) 2017 ("the 2017 EIA Regulations") set out the obligations which apply consistently across all councils in relation to assessing the potential environmental impacts of development proposals submitted to them. Regulation 44 of these regulations specifies information which all councils must include in the publicly available Planning Register which they are statutorily required to maintain. This information includes, for example, EIA screening determinations, scoping opinions and copies of environmental statements.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on planned road safety improvements at Orchard Road and Great Northern link in Strabane.
(AQW 10520/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department currently has no road safety improvements planned for the Orchard Road / A5 Great Northern Link junction.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how much support her Department has provided Belfast International Airport since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic.
(AQW 10546/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

Due to the exceptional circumstances that emerged from the COVID 19 pandemic back in Spring, my Department was, for expediency and logistical reasons, asked to facilitate the distribution of emergency funding on behalf of the NI Executive to George Best Belfast City Airport and the City of Derry Airport (CoDA).

While my Department has not provided support to Belfast International Airport since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, in May 2020, the Minister of Finance announced 100% rates relief for Belfast International, Belfast City & City of Derry airports until 31 March 2021. This financial support is worth £2.2m, and £1.7m to BIA in particular.

Furthermore, whilst civil aviation is a reserved matter for the British Government, the Department for the Economy has responsibility for the development of Northern Ireland's air connectivity and provides support aimed at maintaining connectivity during the COVID 19 pandemic and as part of recovery. The Department for the Economy has secured £2m for marketing support which is being delivered by Tourism Ireland and held recent discussions with Belfast International Airport to develop Trans-Atlantic and Middle East air routes

The Executive's most recent decision to set aside £10million as part of the October monitoring was to provide further support, as and when required, for airports during the Covid19 crisis and it is a matter for the Executive to decide how this funding is allocated. The Department for Finance is leading work on safety and security measures in all three airports and it is proposed that this funding continues to be held for this purpose.

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues, given shared statutory responsibilities, to maintain air connectivity across these islands and further afield.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Infrastructure how much support her Department has provided Belfast City Airport since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10547/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

Due to the exceptional circumstances that emerged from the COVID 19 pandemic back in Spring, my Department was, for expediency and logistical reasons, asked to facilitate the distribution of emergency funding on behalf of the NI Executive to George Best Belfast City Airport and the City of Derry Airport (CoDA). George Best Belfast City Airport was granted £2,192,347 as part of this emergency funding package.

In addition, in May 2020, the Minister of Finance announced 100% rates relief for Belfast City, Belfast International & City of Derry airports until 31 March 2021, which is worth £2.2m across all three airports.

Furthermore, whilst civil aviation is a reserved matter for the British Government, the Department for the Economy has responsibility for the development of Northern Ireland's air connectivity and provides support aimed at maintaining connectivity during the COVID 19 pandemic and as part of recovery. The Department for the Economy has secured £2m to fund marketing support by March 2021 which is being delivered by Tourism Ireland. £0.8m relates to co-operative marketing support for airlines operating to all 3 NI airports with £1.2m on a campaign highlighting all air and sea carriers serving Northern Ireland, and their routes.

The Executive's most recent decision to set aside £10million as part of the October monitoring was to provide further support, as and when required, for airports during the Covid19 crisis and it is a matter for the Executive to decide how this funding is allocated. The Department for Finance is leading work on safety and security measures in all three airports and it is proposed that the funding continues to be held for this purpose.

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues, given shared statutory responsibilities, to maintain air connectivity across these islands and further afield.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail what schools have 50mph or 60mph speed limits outside the school gates.
(AQW 10657/17-22)

Ms Mallon: There are currently 2 schools with a 50mph speed limit and 148 schools with a 60mph speed limit outside their gates.

As Minister responsible for promoting and improving road safety, I want to work actively with partners to reduce death and serious injuries on our roads. I was therefore delighted to be able to commit funding in this year's capital budget towards the introduction of new part-time 20 mph speed limits at around 100 schools. I am determined that using the roads around all of our schools will be safer for everyone, and it is my intention that through future programmes, part-time 20 mph speed limits will apply to roads outside many more schools.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for his assessment on the need to revise planning guidance for windfarms following the Meenbog landslide.

(AQW 10689/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS) requires that the environmental, landscape, visual and amenity impacts associated with, or arising from, renewable energy development, including wind farms, are given proper consideration and that adequate protection is afforded to the region's natural and cultural heritage features.

Planning applications for renewable energy development proposals are considered with regard to the Local Development Plan; the SPPS, Planning Policy Statement 18: 'Renewable Energy' and its associated Best Practice Guidance; local circumstances and characteristics; the advice of statutory consultees, such as DAERA and all other material considerations. DAERA's Natural Environment Division (NED) has published a Practice Guide on "Wind farms and groundwater impacts" (June 2019). Such proposals should also be rigorously assessed for their environmental impact as per the requirements of relevant legislation, including ensuring compliance with the Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2017. Ultimately, the interpretation, relevance and weight to be attached to planning policy and all other material considerations will be a matter of planning judgement for the decision taker.

I am satisfied that the above framework enables planning authorities to properly consider and determine wind energy planning applications.

Mr Blair asked the Minister for Infrastructure what support will be available to Belfast International Airport to bridge the gap to a COVID-19 recovery.

(AQW 10713/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

However, due to the exceptional circumstances that emerged from the COVID 19 pandemic back in Spring, my Department was, for expediency and logistical reasons, asked to facilitate the distribution of emergency funding on behalf of the NI Executive to George Best Belfast City Airport and the City of Derry Airport (CoDA).

In May 2020, the Minister of Finance announced 100% rates relief for all three of our main airports until 31 March 2021. This financial support is worth £2.2m, and £1.7m to the Belfast International Airport in particular.

Furthermore, whilst civil aviation is a reserved matter for the UK Government, the Department for the Economy has responsibility for the development of Northern Ireland's air connectivity and provides support aimed at maintaining connectivity during the COVID 19 pandemic and as part of recovery. The Department for the Economy has secured £2m for marketing support which is being delivered by Tourism Ireland and held recent discussions with Belfast International Airport to develop Trans-Atlantic and Middle East air routes.

The Executive's most recent decision to set aside £10million as part of the October monitoring was to provide further support, as and when required, for airports during the Covid19 crisis and it is a matter for the Executive to decide how this funding is allocated.

The Department for Finance is leading on work on safety and security measures in all three airports and it is proposed that this will be drawn down from this fund.

I have accepted to meet with Belfast International Airport, alongside the Finance and Economy Ministers, given shared statutory responsibilities for airports and connectivity to listen to any case for support which may be brought to the Executive for approval.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 9538/17-22, (i) why her Department allows unauthorised Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) development to continue at the Lough Neagh Special Protection Area; (ii) why her Department permits unauthorised EIA development to become immune from enforcement action; and (iii) for her assessment on how such actions do not breach the EIA directive.

Ms Mallon: My Department issued an enforcement notice on 27 May 2015 in respect of unauthorised sand dredging and I have recently announced my intention to grant planning permission for future dredging operations. This will likely issue in the coming weeks. You will also be aware that operations since November 2017 have been undertaken subject to a series of interim control measures and monitoring.

Given the statutory restrictions on time limits associated with enforcement action, there is a period of several months in 2015 where enforcement action is not possible.

The planning permission to be granted is not for retrospective extraction. The Lough Neagh Sand Traders made an application for the retrospective extraction of sand through the Planning Appeals Commission appeals process and this was refused in May 2019. I am not aware of any further retrospective application having been made.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure who is responsible for enforcing the wearing of face masks on public transport.

(AQW 10728/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Where a passenger on a public transport service or in a public transport station does not wear a face covering and does not have an exemption or a reasonable excuse, the current Face Coverings Regulations provide powers to a "relevant person" to ask them to put on a face covering or ask them to leave the vehicle or premises. A "relevant person" includes police officers and anyone else designated by the Department of Health for this purpose.

Where a person does not comply with the above, a police officer also has the additional power to remove them from the vehicle or station, as well as the power to issue a Fixed Penalty Notice. However the Regulations are clear that such powers should only be used where they are "a necessary and proportionate means of ensuring compliance with the requirement".

My Department has been working closely with Translink, the PSNI and others throughout the pandemic to determine how best to manage the Face Coverings Regulations on the ground. We have a common goal, focusing on high rates of compliance rather than high rates of enforcement.

Evidence from other jurisdictions has shown that education and encouragement are effective tools in increasing awareness and compliance. In this regard, Translink staff are advised to actively encourage passengers to wear appropriate face coverings. Where incidents of non-compliance occur, Translink has instructed staff to note the service, time and boarding point with the aim of using this information to identify issues and specific services where it is necessary to raise awareness and engage with the PSNI to assist with enforcement if required.

This approach, in combination with initiatives such as publicity and social media campaigns; on-board and in-station announcements; posters and signage; availability of face coverings at main stations and interchanges; safer travel guidance; and the establishment of the PSNI Safe Transport Team, have encouraged positive results here, and face coverings compliance levels currently average around 85% on Translink's services.

I am very grateful for the individual and collective responsibility demonstrated every day by passengers on our vital public transport network, the vast majority of whom support the mandatory wearing of face coverings and wear one to protect each other as we travel.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether driving theory tests will be given extensions due to people being unable to get driving tests.

(AQW 10730/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1996 have been amended to allow an eight month extension to the validity of theory test pass certificates, which expired between 1 March and 31 October 2020 and a 6 month extension to the validity of off-road motorcycle test pass certificates, which expired between 1 March 2020 and 31 August 2020.

Further legislation will be brought forward and put in place to help further mitigate the impact on customers due to the cessation of practical driving tests as a result of the latest Covid restrictions. Theory test pass certificates which have already been extended by eight months, will have their validity period extended by a further 4 months. In addition, theory test pass certificates which expire between 1 November 2020 and 30 June 2021, and which have not already benefited from an extension, will have their validity period extended by eight months.

These additional extensions will be applied automatically once the legislation is in place in December 2020.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether the Driver and Vehicle Agency have considered online tests for the driving theory exams.

(AQW 10733/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Driving theory tests are currently delivered here via a network of six theory test centres; Ballymena, Belfast, Derry, Newry, Omagh and Portadown. Test centre staff are required to verify the identity of the candidate and their entitlement to take their test. Candidates are subject to a number of security checks to prevent prohibited items from entering the test room, and test sessions are invigilated in order to prevent misconduct. These requirements are designed to detect and prevent fraud, which has the potential to impact upon the integrity of the test.

The administration and delivery of the driving theory test is currently facilitated by a joint Authority contract with the Driver & Vehicle Standards Agency (DVSA) based in Great Britain. The Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) has been working in partnership with the DVSA on the replacement for the current theory test service contract. As part of that work the possibility of delivering the driving theory test via an online facility has been fully explored and assessed. Those explorations provided evidence that technology is not yet at the stage to provide the necessary assurance that security requirements could be met, and, as the integrity of the test must be protected against fraud and impersonation, this approach is not currently possible. I have asked officials to monitor this situation closely and keep it under review.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the average waiting time for booking a driver theory test; and (ii) how this compares to this time last year.

(AQW 10734/17-22)

Ms Mallon: From 6 July 2020, driver theory tests resumed at all six theory test centres at reduced capacity, in order to comply with PHA advice and guidance on social distancing. Since then, a number of steps have been taken to increase capacity for customers including extending opening hours. The Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) is continuing to work with the theory test provider to monitor the situation, in order to identify what further measures may be required. Theory tests are currently suspended for the 2 week circuit breaker restrictions from 27 November to 10 December.

The table below shows the average waiting time to the first available theory test appointment in November 2020, by test centre location, and comparative waiting times for November 2019.

Theory Test Centre	Average days to first available appointment in November 2019	Average days to first available appointment in November 2020
Ballymena	18	21
Belfast	17	31
Derry	17	26
Newry	20	26
Omagh	18	29
Portadown	19	27

Mr Stewart asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of her Department's performance in processing planning applications deemed regionally significant.

(AQW 10750/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Regionally significant developments (RSD) applications are developments that have a critical contribution to make to the economic and social success of the North as a whole, or a substantial part of the region. They also include developments which have significant effects beyond the North or involve a substantial departure from a local development plan. Applications for these development proposals will be submitted to and determined by my Department.

From Official Statistics, at the end of June 2020 there were six ongoing regionally significant development (RSD) applications. Since then, one application has been determined and a second has been recommended for approval, subject to the completion of a Planning Agreement between my Department and the applicant.

I recognise fully the importance of an effective planning system not only in delivering strategic infrastructure across the North but also in supporting economic recovery as we emerge from the current pandemic. Work is ongoing within the Department that is aimed at improving the effectiveness and efficiency of the planning system, including the recently constituted Planning Forum with particular focus on the role of statutory consultees and performance in the planning process; and the continuing work on a new Regional Planning IT system that will provide a more modern planning service to the public, consultees and staff when it goes operational in 2022 including the ability for the public to submit planning applications on-line.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of how her Department categorises planning applications deemed to be of regional significance, in comparison to similar applications in the rest of the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland.

(AQW 10752/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since 2015, there has been a hierarchy of development based on a 3-tier classification of developments consisting of regionally significant, major and local. Under the Planning Act (NI) 2011, an application deemed to be of regional significance must be made to, and will be determined by, the Department.

I am aware of the different approaches to dealing with regionally significant developments in the UK and Ireland, and recognise that these measures are tailored to meet regional needs and circumstances and particular planning pressures in the respective jurisdictions.

My officials have commenced a legislative review of the Planning Act (NI) 2011, the purpose of which is to consider and assess the objectives intended to be achieved by the Act, and which may identify potential areas for legislative change. It is hoped that the review report will be agreed and published as soon as possible, and before the end of March 2021.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure what process or mechanism exists within her Department whereby a written record is kept of any lobbying of the Minister or special adviser in relation to departmental functions, policies or proposals.

(AQW 10774/17-22)

Ms Mallon: All Ministerial correspondence and invitations are retained in line with NICS Records Management policy and GDPR obligations.

In addition to this, details of all of my meetings with any external organisations and individuals are also provided to the Department of Finance for publication quarterly.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the agenda; and (ii) decisions emanating from her last meetings with (a) Belfast City Council; and (b) Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council regarding further development and investment in the Comber Greenway.

(AQW 10784/17-22)

Ms Mallon: There were no specific decisions on the development and investment in the Comber Greenway at my recent meetings with both Belfast City Council and Lisburn and Castlereagh City Council.

However, my Department continues to invest in the Comber Greenway and in recent years, a total of around £1.5 million has been invested by my Department and other stakeholders. I hope to be in a position early in the New Year to carry out a consultation on the proposed lighting design. Officials in my Department established a steering group, with agreed terms of reference, to consider the matter of a transfer of ownership of the asset to Council and the options are still being explored. The wider powers of Councils in respect of community development and health and wellbeing, puts them in a better place to develop greenways as community assets.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail her (i) strategy; and (ii) timelines for the introduction of speed limits outside schools across Northern Ireland.

(AQW 10786/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As Minister responsible for promoting and improving road safety, I want to work actively with partners to reduce death and serious injuries on our roads. I believe that reducing the maximum speed traffic can travel at on some of our roads can help in this regard.

I am therefore delighted to have committed funding in this year's capital budget towards the introduction of part-time 20 mph speed limits at around 100 schools. These measures will increase driver awareness and achieve reductions in vehicle speeds, ensuring that parents, children and staff will be safer as they go to and from the schools on a daily basis.

Designs are nearing completion and the proposed enabling legislation to allow the new part-time 20mph speed limit measures at schools to be implemented will be advertised shortly as required by the legislative process. Subject to there being no objections received, it is hoped that works on the ground will commence in the New Year.

I am keen to roll out the part-time 20 mph speed limits scheme to more schools in the next financial year. The scale and extent will depend on the funding allocated to my Department.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the number of parking ticket notices issued by her Department in (i) Seapark, Holywood; (ii) Bridge Road South, Crawfordsburn Country Park; and (iii) Fort Road and Church Road, Helen's Bay, broken down by month in each of the last three financial years.

(AQW 10801/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Bridge Road South is not on the schedule for routine deployment, nor has the Department received any requests for enforcement at this location. Details of the number of Penalty Charges Notices issued at the other streets are shown in the table below:

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) why she has stated that taxi drivers would be eligible for the Department for the Economy's Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme grant when they are not; and (ii) what engagements she has had with the Minister for the Economy to resolve this.

(AQW 10809/17-22)

Ms Mallon: When the Executive discussed this scheme originally, I was assured by the Minister for the Economy that no exclusion would be used for taxi drivers and bus operators.

I am very disappointed that an opportunity has been missed to set up a scheme which comprehensively will assist those impacted by the increased restrictions, that being the very purpose of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS), and that instead certain sectors are being allowed to fall through the cracks.

I remain of the view, which is strongly supported by the taxi sector that, in going forward and in managing the effect of any continued restrictions, Part B of the DfE CRBSS should cover the taxi and bus sectors, in that their income and trade has been directly affected by the increased restrictions and they meet the other criteria given they are "dependent on those businesses being open in order to operate". I have significant concerns that the current eligibility criteria does not provide the support that is needed for all impacted businesses.

I have advocated that the Department for the Economy should take responsibility for financial support for taxi drivers since last spring, as they have the legal vires to do so. In relation to the CBRSS specifically, I raised the importance of the inclusion of the taxi sector at the Executive meeting on 22nd October and I have also written to the Minister of the Economy on 21st October, 19th November and 23rd November asking that the exclusion of those who can avail of the DfI Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme and Private Coach and Bus Operators from the CBRSS is removed. I continue to push for their inclusion in this and future schemes.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister for Infrastructure what bids she made to the Department of Finance in the most recent Executive financial support package to provide additional funding and COVID-19 financial support to (i) the West Belfast Taxi Association; and (ii) private taxi drivers.

Ms Mallon: I recently bid for £25m and was allocated £19m to fund the taxi driver financial assistance scheme that was launched on 13 November and the private coach and bus scheme that was launched on 27 November. A further £6m is being held at the centre and it will provide me with some flexibility in keeping under review the circumstances of the sectors, should any further support be needed.

I will also continue to press for the inclusion of the taxi sector in the various other support schemes being taken forward across the Executive, in particular Part B of the Coronavirus Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CBRSS).

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the progression of the right-turning lane scheme at The Cutts, Derriaghy.

(AQW 10820/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I recognise the importance of road safety and in particular the ongoing safety concerns of citizens using the junction at McKinstry Road / The Cutts, Derriaghy. I am aware of the continued public concern and support for an improvement scheme and that a number of meetings highlighting this concern have taken place over the years with a number of elected representatives.

The identified solution is to fully control the right turn movements within the signal phasing and this will require extensive carriageway widening and realignment in order to accommodate the provision of traffic islands to house the required signal equipment.

The preliminary estimate for this scheme is around £1.8m and I am pleased to advise that I have been able to allocate funding of £160k this year to complete the detailed design of the scheme. It is expected that this work will be completed over the coming months and this will identify the land required to facilitate the scheme. Progression of the scheme thereafter will depend on satisfactory completion of the land acquisition process and availability of funding at the time.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) what measures she is taking to consider future hydrogen fuel provision; and (ii) in order to create a sustainable waste water treatment system for Northern Ireland, what consideration she has made for NI Water to play a fundamental role in hydrogen production.

Ms Mallon: My Department has sought to ensure that hydrogen technologies are at the forefront of the introduction of alternative fuels. Over the last few years, the Department has been represented on the Steering Committee of the GenComm project led by Belfast Met. This group has provided the platform for the successful bid to the Office for Low Emission Vehicles Hydrogen Transport Programme which provided £1.9m funding for the introduction of refuelling infrastructure and 3 Hydrogen Buses for the Translink fleet, matched by funding from Energia and DfI. Building on this NIH2 project, I have committed a further £50m to deliver 100 zero emission Translink buses, twenty of which could be powered by Hydrogen Fuel Cell technology.

NI Water is currently undertaking a pilot project to assess the advantages of using elevated levels of oxygen in a simulation of the treatment of wastewater at its Kinnegar works. The project will assess if additional wastewater processing capacity can be obtained, whilst also using less electricity. A small electrolyser is currently being commissioned as part of this project, which will split water in to oxygen and hydrogen. The results of the pilot will help to inform the commissioning of a 1 MW electrolyser, and associated storage and refuelling equipment, to be based at a major wastewater treatment works in the Belfast area. The overall purpose of this project will be to demonstrate any potential benefits from the use of oxygen at scale to enable plant efficiency and in relation to the use of green hydrogen in decarbonising transport. Initially, the focus will be on NI Water's vehicle fleet, but the company will also seek to identify partner organisations to demonstrate the adoption of hydrogen in everyday vehicle use.

I am currently considering how we could build on work to date to provide further electrolyser and refuelling capacity to support the introduction of other zero emission heavy vehicles which may not be suited to using battery technology. The hydrogen future could also bring solutions for ferry operations and rail services, where electrification by overhead power lines is not economically viable.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for Infrastructure, since the introduction of the new arrangements under the Planning Act (Northern Ireland) 2011, and excluding those which have been withdrawn, how many regionally significant planning applications have been determined within the target 30 week period.

(AQW 10857/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Between 1 April 2015 and 30 June 2020, excluding withdrawn applications, four regionally significant applications have been determined. One of these applications was determined within 30 weeks, measuring from the date the application was made valid until the date on which a decision was issued.

I would clarify that the 30 week target period is from the date valid to a Ministerial Recommendation or withdrawal within an average of 30 weeks.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) for her assessment on the CBI's report recommendations on major planning applications in Northern Ireland; and (ii) whether she will accept the recommendations in relation to processing arrangements and statutory timeframes.

(AQW 10858/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I welcome the recent report of the CBI (NI), published in October 2020. I recognise the importance of an effective planning system not only in delivering strategic infrastructure across the North but also in supporting economic recovery as we emerge from the current pandemic.

My officials are preparing advice on the CBI Report including on the recommendations on processing arrangements and statutory timeframes. I will be in a position to make an assessment of the Report when I have received and considered this advice.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for Infrastructure, since the introduction of the arrangements for regionally significant applications under the Planning Act (Northern Ireland) 2011, and excluding those which have been withdrawn, to detail the average time taken to determine those applications which have been concluded.

Ms Mallon: Excluding withdrawn applications, the average processing time for the four regionally significant applications determined between 1 April 2015 and 30 June 2020 was 67.7 weeks.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of statutory timeframes for determining regionally significant applications.

(AQW 10882/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I recognise the importance of an effective planning system not only in delivering strategic infrastructure across the North but also in supporting economic recovery as we emerge from the current pandemic.

The Department has a target for regionally significant applications which is reported on in the NI Planning Statistics which is to process Regionally Significant Planning Applications from date valid to a Ministerial Recommendation or withdrawal within an average of 30 weeks. My officials are considering the potential to introduce statutory timeframes for determining regionally significant applications and will provide advice on this issue to me shortly.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to encourage investment and counteract the effects of COVID-19 on the economy, to detail measures that are being taken in relation to speeding up the planning process.

(AQW 10883/17-22)

Ms Mallon: While responsibility for processing the majority of planning applications falls to councils, my Department has taken a number of steps to assist with the processing of planning applications as expeditiously as possible during the pandemic, such as: temporarily suspending the requirement for a pre-application community consultation public event and encouraging councils to review their schemes of delegation in order to reduce the number of applications which would be required to go before planning committees for decision.

My Department is also working closely with statutory consultees through a cross-governmental Planning Forum to implement recommendations from a report on the role of statutory consultees in the planning process. It is intended that this work will improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the planning process, particularly with regard to major and economically sensitive planning applications.

Going forward, my Department is also undertaking a Review of the Implementation of the Planning Act (NI) 2011. Whilst this is not envisaged as a fundamental 'root and branch' review of the new 2 tier planning system, I am keen that it looks at how the Department can further improve the system for all stakeholders – including councils, developers, and the wider public. There is no doubt that issues with the planning system that have surfaced as a result of the Coronavirus pandemic will also be considered as part of this review.

In addition, I have introduced changes to planning rules on permitted development rights which will benefit businesses and the environment, which were recently agreed by the Infrastructure Committee. These proposals will allow upgrades on masts and antennas enabling better coverage for mobiles and broadband; allow shopkeepers to extend their property and loading bays; and expand recharging infrastructure for electric vehicles, without the need for planning permission. Permitted development rights for oil and gas exploration will be removed.

Finally, my Department and 10 Councils are working together to take forward a new Regional Planning IT system to provide a more modern planning service to the public, consultees and staff including the ability for the public to submit planning applications on-line. This is expected to be operational in 2022.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Infrastructure what measures are planned to ensure statutory consultees respond to planning consultations within 28 days.

(AQW 10884/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department is working closely with statutory consultees to increase the efficiency and effectiveness of the planning consultation process. I have established a cross-departmental Planning Forum to take forward recommendations from a recent report into the role of statutory consultees in the planning process. A key focus of the work of the Planning Forum is to improve the response times to meet the 21 day statutory target, particularly in relation to major planning applications. Statutory consultees are looking critically at existing processes and practices to improve performance and my Department is working with council planning authorities to address issues falling to them.

Going forward, my Department is also undertaking a review of the implementation of the Planning Act (NI) 2011 and whilst this is not envisaged as a fundamental 'root and branch' review of the new 2 tier planning system, I am keen that it looks at how the Department can further improve the system for all stakeholders – including councils, developers, and the wider public.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the (i) legal; and (ii) other costs as a result of challenges to decisions relating to the A6 in the last 10 years.

(AQW 10885/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The decision, in August 2016, by the then Minister for Infrastructure, to proceed with the publication of the vesting orders and construction of the A6 Randalstown to Castledawson dualling scheme was subject to a Judicial Review in September 2016. The Court determined that the decisions reached by the Minister were rational and lawful, with the judgment being upheld in subsequent Court appeals.

However, as a result, the already awarded construction contract for the scheme was delayed by one full year, and consequently the Department incurred significant additional contractual costs of approximately £8.6m for re-sequencing of work, inflation etc. Legal costs were £85k. Along with other additional costs such as consultants' and design fees, the total estimated cost of the challenge was £10.6m.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 10039/17-22, to detail when a road safety and traffic calming assessment had been conducted by her Department on Seapark Road, Holywood.

(AQW 10914/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I can confirm that my Department carried out a traffic calming assessment at Seapark Road, Holywood in October 2019.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 10038/17-22, (i) to detail when the previous traffic calming assessment was conducted on Fort Road, Helen's Bay; (ii) and whether she will lay a copy of her Department's current policy and guidance on traffic calming measures in the Assembly Library.
(AQW 10915/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I can confirm that my Department carried out a traffic calming assessment at Fort Road, Helen's Bay in October 2019.

Road improvement schemes such as traffic management and traffic calming measures are assessed in line with my Department's Road Safety Engineering policy document which can be accessed using the following link;

<https://www.infrastructure-ni.gov.uk/publications/road-safety-engineering-procedures-rsppg-e027>

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure how the £26.3 million allocated to her Department in relation to lost income across Department and arm's-length bodies will be spent.[R]
(AQW 10918/17-22)

Ms Mallon: A number of DfI public services rely on significant levels of customer income which has been impacted by the restrictions that have been in place throughout the year. This funding will address income shortfall in the following areas:

- Driver and Vehicle Agency - £12m
- Translink - £10m
- Parking and Enforcement - £3.7m
- Rathlin Ferry - £0.3m
- Crumlin Road Gaol - £0.2m
- Planning Applications - £0.1m

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the number of renovations of the pedestrian bridge at Lambeg Train Station.
(AQW 10935/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The footbridge from Lambeg train station is currently undergoing extensive repair and re-painting works off-site and has been replaced with a temporary structure in the interim period. The work is due to be completed in early 2021 when the bridge will be reinstalled at the station.

Over the last two years there have been a number of planned maintenance works carried out on the Lambeg footbridge to ensure its safety including:

- (i) structural steelwork repairs supporting the main bridge deck in May 2018;
- (ii) cross beam installations to the half landings in May 2019; and
- (iii) hand rail repairs in October 2019.

In addition the structure is washed down annually in Spring/early Summer to remove corrosive salt deposits and ensure the bridges drainage system remains unblocked.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) whether there are further amendments required to legislation to allow key workers to complete their practical driving tests; and (ii) If so, when these amendments will be completed.
(AQW 10966/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The requirements for practical driving tests are prescribed in the Road Traffic (Northern Ireland) 1981 and in The Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1996. There are no specific legislative requirements relating to driving tests for key workers.

Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that closed from 16 October to 20 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests also ceased over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Driving tests resumed on 21 November but have ceased again for 2-weeks from 27 November to 10 December 2020 due to the circuit breaker restrictions announced by the Executive. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these restrictions.

The DVA has opened up the booking system for those customers whose tests were cancelled between 17 October and 20 November. Testing slots have been released for February and additional booking slots have also been made available in December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners.

The DVA is working on proposals to reopen the booking service for other customers following the circuit breaker restrictions. The DVA will issue further communications to customers through NIDirect and social media channels to advise when the driving test booking service will reopen for all other customers.

When testing resumes the DVA will continue to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

To help further mitigate the impact on customers due to the cessation of practical driving as a result of the latest Covid restrictions, I will be bringing forward further legislation to extend the validity of theory test pass certificates. Theory test pass certificates which have already been extended by eight months and will expire from 1 November 2020 onwards, will have their validity period extended by a further four months. In addition, theory test pass certificates which expire between 1 November 2020 and 30 June 2021, and which have not already benefited from an extension, will have their validity period extended by eight months.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the need to bring back rail services into West Tyrone.

(AQW 10980/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since coming into office, I have been clear that my priority is addressing regional imbalance, better connecting communities and, importantly, ensuring that we shape our places around our people, for our people and with our people.

Recognising that the need for long term development, my Department is currently developing proposals for a new Regional Strategic Transport Network Transport Plan (RSTNTP) which will set out the priorities for future development of the main road and rail networks across Northern Ireland up to 2035. Possible extensions to the existing rail network across the North will be considered in this plan including those to West Tyrone.

Once I have identified my preferred options and priorities, a draft RSTNTP setting these out will be issued for public consultation giving you an opportunity to support or challenge the proposals.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail each occasion on which she has met with representatives of (i) Belfast International Airport; (ii) Belfast City Airport; (iii) City of Derry Airport; and (iv) Sustrans, since March 2020.

(AQW 11000/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since March 2020, I have not had any requests to meet with representatives from Belfast City Airport, nor have I met with officials from Belfast International Airport. However, I have accepted an invitation to meet Belfast International Airport representatives, alongside the Economy Minister and the Finance Minister, given the different statutory responsibilities we each hold in respect of airports, air connectivity and finance. That meeting will be arranged once both Departments confirm availability.

I have met with officials from CoDA and Derry City and Strabane District Council which owns CoDA, on one occasion. This was a joint meeting along with the Minister of Finance and took place on 17 November 2020. It was in response to an invitation from the Council and CoDA to discuss future plans for CoDA with the Minister for the Economy, Minister for Finance and myself. The meeting was convened online due to the ongoing Covid situation.

I met with SUSTRANS on one occasion as an introductory meeting the new SUSTRANS Director on 6th August 2020.

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues to maintain air connectivity across these islands and further afield, and to consider cases for support and other measures required by the Executive to support the aviation sector.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the number of road bonds; (ii) their value; and (iii) what work is going towards the development and adoption of these roads, broken down by local council area.

Ms Mallon: My Department maintains records of roads within private developments that are being proposed for adoption into the public road network. When development roads are proposed for adoption, they are normally constructed and adopted in phases. Developers are required to enter into a legal agreement with the Department for adoption of these roads and this includes a bond to cover the cost of constructing roads in these private developments.

The value of these bonds is reduced as developers progress construction of their private development roads. Details of the remaining value of bonds for each council area, as at 27 November 2020, are set out in the table below:

Council Area	No of Bonds	Value of bonds
Fermanagh and Omagh	249	£ 8,589,025
Derry and Strabane	206	£ 12,530,775
Mid Ulster	309	£ 8,021,815
Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon	459	£ 10,101,031
Ards and North Down	244	£ 8,390,721
Newry Mourne and Down	263	£ 8,284,011
Belfast	241	£ 11,007,054
Lisburn and Castlereagh	398	£ 14,237,002
Antrim and Newtownabbey	241	£ 8,113,780
Mid and East Antrim	182	£ 7,221,740
Causeway Coast and Glens	199	£ 4,951,520
Total Bonds	2991	£ 101,448,474

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many public inquiries have the Transport Regulation Unit booked up to now.

(AQW 11093/17-22)

Ms Mallon: To date nine public inquiries have been scheduled by Transport Regulation Unit. Three of these have been completed, one was adjourned due to a COVID-19 positive test, and the other five are scheduled to be heard in January 2021. In addition to listing hearings, the Unit has also recently closed four cases by means other than a public inquiry.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether financial support will be given through the Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme to those taxi drivers whose taxi insurance expired during the initial lockdown and was temporarily downgraded for a short period of time but have still incurred overhead expenses to return to work.

(AQW 11117/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since March, I have consistently and honestly highlighted that I didn't have the powers to provide financial assistance to the taxi sector, however as a regulator, I have provided over one million pounds of support with a 12 month free of charge renewal of taxi licenses.

When the new powers were finally granted to my Department by the First Minister and deputy First Minister on 3rd November 2020, under section 1(1) and (3) of the Financial Assistance Act (Northern Ireland) 2009, 10 days later on 13th November, I opened the taxi scheme for applications. The application process closed on Friday 27th November and payments will begin to issue this week.

I have made it clear that payments must be made as soon as they are verified. Applications are being processed as quickly as possible to allow payments to be made without delay.

The Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme agreed by the Executive was designed to provide a contribution to overhead costs (including PPE) that have actually been incurred as a result of the Covid-19 pandemic. It is in addition to the support available to self-employed drivers through the Self Employment Income Support Scheme which provides 70% or 80% of average previous profits. My Department has been advised that 3% of drivers (those who were newly self-employed) were ineligible for support for income losses through the self-employment income support scheme.

In this contribution to overhead costs scheme, any taxi-driver who has incurred the overhead expenditure will be eligible for the payment of £1500. In order to ensure value for money, the scheme is dependent on actual expenses being incurred between 22nd March and 30th September 2020. Applicants were required to show evidence of continuous taxi insurance which proved availability to work as a taxi-driver for that period. The requirement for this evidence provides value for money assurance for the use of public money and reduces fraud risks and has been discussed with audit.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given that the Sligo-Enniskillen Greenway was named in New Decade, New Approach, and that the Dublin Government has set aside €500,000 to progress cross-border infrastructural projects, what actions she is taking to progress this greenway.

(AQW 11118/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's Walking and Cycling Champion wrote to Councils in July seeking an update on the status of their greenway projects. Following consideration of the proposals, I provided £3.7 million funding towards the development of six greenway projects, where construction could begin this financial year.

Every Council has been contacted by my Department to encourage them to continue the momentum for delivery of greenways and advance their projects through meaningful local consultation and engagement with landowners. I hope to be in a position to fund further greenway projects in the coming years, subject to budget provision.

The proposal for a greenway between Enniskillen and Collooney, Co. Sligo was identified as a primary route in 'Exercise – Explore – Enjoy: a Strategic Plan for Greenways' which was published by my Department in November 2016. Fermanagh and Omagh District Council is developing a business case for the portion of this greenway along the route of the now dismantled Sligo, Leitrim and Northern Counties Railway from Enniskillen to Belcoo. My officials have been providing assistance to the Council in this work.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure which six schools in North Down her Department is considering for the roll out of part time 20mph speed limits.

(AQW 11254/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I can advise that all schools in the Ards & North Down Borough Council area were assessed using the assessment framework contained within my Department's current road safety at schools policy document.

It is proposed to provide part-time 20mph speed limits at the following locations:

- Abbey Primary School;
- Andrews Memorial Primary School;
- Carrowdore Primary School;
- Kirkistown Primary School;
- Loughries Integrated Primary School; and
- St Patrick's Primary School, Ballygalget.

Unfortunately based on the assessment scores none of the schools within the North Down area were ranked as highly as the schools included within this year's programme. I intend to take forward a further tranche of part-time speed limits at schools in the next financial year and the schools in North Down will be considered for inclusion. The extent and scale of further roll out will be dependent on the funding made available to my Department.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will give consideration to amending the terms of the Taxi Drivers Financial Assistance Scheme to require applicants to have valid taxi insurance covering driving for hire and reward at 22 March 2020 as opposed to the full period of 22 March 2020 to 30 September 2020.

(AQW 11258/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Since March, I have consistently and honestly highlighted that I didn't have the powers to provide financial assistance to the taxi sector, however as a regulator, I have provided over one million pounds of support with a 12 month free of charge renewal of taxi licenses.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on all-island infrastructure.

(AQO 1239/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am fully committed to improving connectivity across the island. I am working with my counterparts in Dublin on a number of all-island projects aimed at improving the lives of people across the island.

This includes enhancing the rail network to create a spine of connectivity on the island, the A5 project, the Narrow Water Bridge and the Ulster Canal; all of which are commitments within 'New Decade, New Approach'.

At the North/South Ministerial Council Transport Sectoral meeting in October I provided my counterparts with a full and comprehensive update on these commitments and my priorities.

Minister Ryan and I have a number of shared ambitions on public transport, active travel and climate action and we are both committed to improving the lives of all our citizens who share this island.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given the ongoing period of COVID-19 restrictions which are having an impact upon town and city centres, whether her Department will instruct traffic attendants to show some flexibility to shoppers and essential traders.

(AQW 11283/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am keenly aware of the difficulties currently being experienced by businesses. These are very difficult times and I am fully committed to doing all I can to help businesses and our communities get through and recover from the current pandemic.

Restrictions are in place to facilitate the safe and free movement of traffic, and to manage on-street car parking in all of our towns and cities. Instructing traffic attendants not to enforce on a consistent basis against vehicles parked in contravention of restrictions would result in increased traffic congestion, instances of inconsiderate or unsafe parking, and reduced turnover and availability of spaces for those wishing to visit our city and town centres. A reduction in the availability of parking during the day could potentially deter rather than encourage shoppers from coming into cities and towns in the first place, to the detriment rather than benefit of traders.

In weighing all of these factors up, I am of the opinion that the current approach represents the fairest and best way forward in terms of achieving a balance that accommodates the varied and competing needs of the different types of businesses and business users and ensures consistency of approach across Northern Ireland. I will however continue to keep this matter under review.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure to outline the funding committed to improving walking and cycle routes.

Ms Mallon: I am very keen to be involved in projects to get more people to walk and cycle. Indeed, I have allocated £20 million capital funding for blue / green infrastructure in 2020/21. The key elements of that funding are to support communities through transformation, promoting active travel and shaping our places to live in the new normal in support of the COVID 19 recovery.

To date, I have already committed £11million from the blue/green fund towards Active Travel projects in 2020/21. This includes the £5million for the Covid Revitalisation programme, to help reimagine and reshape our towns and city centres; £1.4 million for six worthy Greenway projects that are ready for construction in 2020/21; up to £1 million for various pop-ups and pilots and approximately £3.5 million for a programme of cycle and footways delivered by my own Department. In addition, I recently announced £160,000 for an extension of the recently opened Blaris Greenway, linking Sprucefield Park and Ride to Halftown Road. Funding has also been made available to roll out the 20mph speed limit scheme to some 100 schools across the north.

I will be making further announcements on funding allocations shortly. I will continue to develop more opportunities to put walking and cycling at the front of a Green Recovery.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the planning application for the Hightown Incinerator.

(AQO 1243/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My officials are continuing to progress the application in line with planning policy. The applicant voluntarily submitted Further Environmental Information (FEI) to the Department on 27 October 2020 which is currently being reviewed.

I am keen to bring a resolution to this long standing application for all involved, but if a sound decision is to be reached it is important the planning process is completed correctly. The necessary administrative processes are currently being undertaken including advertising the FEI and requesting consultation advice from the necessary interested bodies and public authorities.

As my officials will be making a recommendation to me on the planning application, it is important that I consider carefully, and take into account all views, in reaching any decision that needs to be taken. In the interim, as I hope the Member appreciates it would not be appropriate for me to comment on the individual planning merits or otherwise of this application.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for Infrastructure what progress has been made on the backlog in adoptions of private street developments.

(AQO 1241/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department has undertaken almost 1100 private street adoptions in developments over the last five years and good progress has been made in adopting a significant number of unadopted developments that emanated from the property crash in 2007. The adoption of private streets is a developer led process and the majority of developments progress to adoption without the need for intervention by my Department or NI Water.

I also fully appreciate the concerns of residents in unadopted developments and the difficult situations some find themselves in. My Department continues to work closely with developers, NI Water, financial institutions and residents to get roads and sewerage infrastructure adopted.

My Department has to adopt a balanced approach in dealing with developers. Where developers are seen to be progressing the completion of infrastructure, my officials will afford them every opportunity to do so. Where it is evident that a developer is unwilling or unable to complete infrastructure to the required standard, my Department will consider enforcement action.

I am committed to ensuring that developers provide road and sewerage infrastructure to a standard suitable for adoption in a timely manner and to impress on developers the need to provide safe and adequate infrastructure for residents in the interim period prior to adoption.

Mr Lynch asked the Minister for Infrastructure how she plans to mitigate the impact of Brexit on the validity of drivers' licences in the context of cross-border travel.

(AQO 1238/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Following the transition period, EU rules will no longer automatically apply to NI/GB-issued driving licences. Holders of a valid NI/GB driving licence will need to carry their driving licence with them at all times. In response to the coronavirus pandemic driving licences that expire(d) between 1 February and 31 December 2020 have been extended by eleven months, and drivers are not required to renew in this period. If there is not a negotiated outcome that allows mutual recognition of driving licences, other EU Member States may not recognise extended GB NI-issued licences from 1 January 2021.

My Department is in almost daily contact with the Department of Transport to ensure that the needs of Northern Ireland are taken into account in negotiations with the EU, and that there is as little disruption as possible to drivers for cross border travel. It is the intention of the British Government to publish the future arrangements that are agreed with Member States in respect of driving licences before the end of the transition period.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure to outline her plans to reduce the speed of traffic on the A48 at Cotton.

(AQO 1240/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am aware that a road traffic collision occurred on the A48 Cotton Road on 23 October 2020 and that this is the subject of an ongoing investigation by the PSNI. Details of this investigation will be shared with my Department in due course and this will allow officials to consider if there were any contributing factors which fall within the remit of the Department.

Requests for a change in the speed limit on a road are assessed in accordance with the Department's guidelines, entitled Roads Service Policy and Procedure Guide (RSPPG) E051 'Setting Local Speed Limits in Northern Ireland.' This ensures consistent application of speed limits across Northern Ireland.

I can confirm that officials are to carry out a review of the speed limit in the vicinity of the Cotton and I have asked that, when this review is complete, you are advised of the outcome.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister for Infrastructure what plans she has to upgrade infrastructure in Dundonald.

(AQO 1235/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I fully understand that prior to the current lockdown, congestion affected many of our main traffic routes, not only in Dundonald, but across the wider Belfast area. The problem of dealing with congestion in our main cities and towns is not something I believe can only be addressed through localised road improvements and I am focusing on a recovery where we will have less car travel and more walking and cycling. I believe that by changing travel habits we can transform our communities to inspire a new way of living that will become our new normal.

Prior to lockdown, my officials had been monitoring the traffic in Dundonald and it became evident that, on occasions, traffic queuing to turn right into Cherryhill Road was impeding traffic flow in the outside lane of the Upper Newtownards Road causing traffic to queue back as far as the Dunlady Road/ Robb's Road junction. I am pleased to advise that some modifications have recently been made at this location to encourage and make it permissible for traffic to pass right-turning traffic using the inside lane (which is a bus lane), when it is safe to do so, which should help to improve traffic flows. My Department also has a CCTV camera installed at the Dunlady junction that allows officials to monitor live traffic conditions.

I can advise that officials are also considering options for new Park & Ride facilities at Newtownards and Comber. Implementation of these schemes would lead to a reduction in traffic volumes through Dundonald and help to address the problems being experienced however you will appreciate that progression of these facilities is subject to availability of funding.

In the longer term, my officials are developing new integrated plans which deliver support for public transport, encourage more walking and cycling, better manage car commuting and promote sustainable development - all in an effort to improve the environment and people's lives. To this end, my officials are currently preparing, for my consideration, a new Belfast

Metropolitan Transport Plan, which will build on these commitments. This is still in development and will be subject to full public consultation.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Infrastructure what financial support has been provided to airports throughout the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQO 1236/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department's statutory remit in relation to airports is quite limited. These are powers to control noise, control land in the interests of the safe and efficient use of airports, make byelaws, provide for airport constabularies and airport consultative committees and to give grants to assist capital expenditure.

Due to the exceptional circumstances that emerged from the COVID 19 pandemic back in Spring, my Department was, for expediency and logistical reasons, asked to facilitate the distribution of emergency funding on behalf of the NI Executive to George Best Belfast City Airport and the City of Derry Airport (CoDA).

In May 2020, the Minister of Finance announced 100% rates relief for Belfast International, Belfast City & City of Derry airports until 31 March 2021. This financial support is worth £2.2m.

Furthermore, whilst civil aviation is a reserved matter for the British Government, the Department for the Economy has responsibility for the development of Northern Ireland's air connectivity and provides support aimed at maintaining connectivity during the COVID 19 pandemic and as part of recovery. The Department for the Economy has secured £2m for marketing support which is being delivered by Tourism Ireland and held recent discussions with Belfast International Airport to develop Trans-Atlantic and Middle East air routes

The Executive's most recent decision to set aside £10million as part of the October monitoring was to provide further support, as and when required, for airports during the Covid19 crisis and it is a matter for the Executive to decide how this funding is allocated.

Following an Executive decision, I announced in November £1.23 million in additional support for City of Derry Airport. This short term support grant is to help City of Derry Airport to remain operational and will be drawn down from the £10 million set aside to give support for airports during the pandemic.

The Department for Finance is leading work on safety and security measures in all three airports and it is proposed that this funding continues to be held for this purpose.

I remain committed to working alongside my Executive colleagues, given shared statutory responsibilities, to maintain air connectivity across these islands and further afield.

Department of Justice

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice for an update on her Department's position and future funding for regional support hubs.

(AQW 10578/17-22)

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): My Department is fully committed to supporting Support Hubs and recognises they are a valuable resource within communities in providing cohesive wraparound support to reduce vulnerabilities of people identified by partner agencies. Support Hubs are an exemplar of collaborative working by bringing together key partners to facilitate early intervention which provides public safety both on an individual and community basis.

To assist in the establishment of the Support Hubs, my Department agreed to provide each council with a funding contribution towards administration costs of up to £3,600 per annum, per Hub, for a three year period from date of establishment. At that time, it was anticipated funding would be subsumed within normal running costs. This was agreed by councils at the point of accepting the funding support.

The agreed three year period for four of the ten existing hubs came to an end in September 2020. Due to current unprecedented circumstances, my Department has agreed to extend existing funding for a further six months, to the end of this financial year whilst longer term options are discussed. Funding for the other six existing hubs will continue to be provided under the initial terms, with some Support Hubs being able to avail of this until 2022. It should be noted that some Support Hubs do not claim the available funding from my Department.

Discussions are currently ongoing with relevant partners, in relation to how the administrative running costs associated with Support Hubs can be subsumed and met going forward, in order to ensure they can continue to carry out their vital work with no detrimental impact on their running.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of the work of regional support hubs since their inception.

(AQW 10579/17-22)

Mrs Long: The first Support Hub was established by Derry and Strabane Policing and Community Safety Partnership in 2016, with other Support Hubs established on a staggered basis following this date. There are currently ten Support Hubs in operation, aligned with each council area, with a Belfast Support Hub currently in the process of being established.

Support Hubs form an important part of the Problem Solving Justice (PSJ) approach being taken forward by my Department and are one of a number of initiatives aimed at reducing harm and vulnerabilities for individuals which is particularly important in the current climate.

A PSJ 5 Year Strategic Plan has been developed to facilitate decisions regarding the rollout of those initiatives shown to be effective. As part of the PSJ portfolio, Support Hubs are included in this work and subsequent plans for further analysis.

As set out in the PSJ 5 Year Strategic Plan, my Department is currently taking forward an independent evaluation of the Support Hub approach with Analytical Services Group, in terms of how the Support Hubs operate; what is working well; and what changes could be made for improvements. The aim is to identify common issues of vulnerability to assist future early intervention considerations and provide information that can help in developing a level of consistency across all Support Hubs. We have had good engagement from Support Hub participants who have noted the value in such an evaluation.

It is intended that the above evaluation will be completed by the end of the financial year. The results will be shared with the newly established Support Hub Steering Group which comprises of senior representatives from the multi agencies involved and with an understanding of the operational work of the Support Hubs. The Steering Group, of which my Department is a member, will use the evaluation results to assess the overall performance of the Support Hubs including consistency, to identify thematic issues for response and to facilitate problem-solving solutions relating to harm and vulnerability.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice (i) for her assessment of current protections of children against all forms of violence, including physical punishment in the home; and (ii) whether she will introduce a ban on smacking in this Assembly mandate.

(AQW 10639/17-22)

Mrs Long: I am fully supportive of taking steps to remove the defence of reasonable chastisement in Northern Ireland and am of the view that the current law creates uncertainty and can, in effect, provide shelter to abusive parents and fail to provide equal protection to children. Whilst I recognise that some people have concerns that the removal of this defence may lead to prosecutions and the potential criminalisation of parents, I do not believe this to be the case.

The current law on the physical punishment of children is based on the concept of "reasonable chastisement". Article 2 of the Law Reform (Miscellaneous Provisions) (NI) Order 2006 has the effect of restricting the grounds on which the defence of reasonable chastisement can be used.

In essence, this means that if a parent or adult smacks a child and is prosecuted, they can defend themselves in terms of "reasonable chastisement" but only provided that the harm is "minor". Anything which causes more than transitory or minor discomfort is unlawful and can currently result in prosecution.

The issues engaged are broader than criminal justice alone, and any change to the law will require Executive agreement, particularly in areas such as health, parenting strategy and family law.

I have therefore began to engage with key Executive colleagues who share policy responsibility for this issue, in order to seek agreement on a way forward. I believe that the focus going forward has to be a positive one of improving parenting whilst ending the shelter of abusive parents under the current system.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice what plans her Department has to strengthen the law regarding online harassment and cyber bullying.

(AQW 10651/17-22)

Mrs Long: Telecommunications legislation is a reserved matter but many of the harms covered in the Government White Paper on Online Harms relate to devolved matters. On that basis my officials have been liaising with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport [DCMS] to ensure the interests of Northern Ireland are fully met in the process.

Alongside the work on the Online Harms legislation, the Law Commission in England and Wales is conducting a review to ensure the criminal law is fit for purpose to deal with online communications. The Commission will provide final recommendations to DCMS in early 2021, which could inform the government's future position in relation to illegal online abuse. Officials here will continue to keep in touch with the DCMS as this work progresses.

I took the opportunity to raise this issue when I met with Priti Patel during the summer. The Home Secretary expressed her commitment to working closely with us on this issue.

In Northern Ireland, Judge Marrinan's Independent Review of Hate Crime legislation, set up to consider the effectiveness of the justice system in dealing with criminal conduct motivated by hate, was extended to consider issues of online hate crime and abuse. Judge Marrinan recently presented his independent Review of Hate Crime legislation to the Department and, while recognising that legislation in this area is a reserved matter, it includes a number of recommendations relating to online harms.

Whilst the review did not duplicate the issues covered in the White Paper, it can provide a valuable contribution to further the debate.

I am well aware of the impact that malicious social media can have on an individual. It is totally unacceptable that some people can hide behind a device and continually abuse and cause harm to others without accountability. There must be safeguards in place to ensure that those people who are intent on causing harm online are prevented from doing so and critically that we can protect all those who are vulnerable.

I am fully committed to playing my part in addressing this issue where I can.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice to detail the (i) cost; and (ii) breakdown of legal aid to date, in respect of Christine Connor's conviction and appeal before the courts.

(AQW 10652/17-22)

Mrs Long: The granting of legal aid in criminal proceedings is a matter for the court. Christine Connor was granted legal aid for the initial trial, the appeal and the subsequent retrial.

I can confirm that at 26 November 2020 the legal aid costs paid to date by the Legal Services Agency are £934,425.25 inclusive of VAT. At this time, not all costs arising from the most recent trial have been processed.

The breakdown below provides the costs thus far of the various criminal court proceedings in respect of Christine Connor's conviction and appeal:

Magistrates Court Pre Trial	£116,352.96
First trial	£295,729.46
Court of Appeal	£441,493.51
Retrial	£80,849.32
Total	£934,425.25

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice whether the PSNI involvement of the ROXANNE programmes breaches the PSNI Code of Ethics (2008).

(AQW 10735/17-22)

Mrs Long: PSNI engagement in the EU Horizon 2020 funded research ROXANNE project is an operational matter for the Chief Constable, for which he is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of whether the PSNI's involvement with the ROXANNE research project breaches any human rights that her Department is committed to.

(AQW 10736/17-22)

Mrs Long: I understand that ROXANNE is an EU Horizon 2020- funded research project involving 24 partners from across Europe and as such is required to fully comply with relevant INTERPOL and EU legal and ethical frameworks.

PSNI engagement in this project is an operational matter for the Chief Constable, for which he is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister of Justice for her assessment of recommendation 13 of the Public Accounts Committee's Report on Major Capital Projects in relation to costs associated with judicial reviews of planning applications.

(AQW 10751/17-22)

Mrs Long: My officials are considering recommendation 13 of the PAC Report and a Memorandum of Reply will be published in due course.

My Department keeps under review the costs of judicial review fees in Northern Ireland. It has also legislated to ensure compliance with the obligation under the Aarhus Convention that the costs of court reviews of decisions subject to the Convention must not be prohibitively expensive.

It should be noted that the Judiciary are independent of the Department of Justice and I am bound and committed to respect and uphold that independence.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the future of Castlederg police station.

(AQW 10763/17-22)

Mrs Long: The management of the PSNI estate is an operational matter for the Chief Constable, for which he is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

As I mentioned in my previous response to you in July 2020, you may, therefore, wish to direct your question to the PSNI.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the level of enforcement that will be undertaken on roads and travel during the two week lockdown beginning 27 November 2020.

(AQW 10822/17-22)

Mrs Long: Decisions relating to the Police Service of Northern Ireland's enforcement of the COVID-19 health protection regulations are an operational matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board, and I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the both Chief Constable and the Board.

The Executive decided that the public message of encouraging people to stay at home to help curb the spread of the Coronavirus should be placed in guidance and it has not therefore been legislated for as an amendment to The Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020. As with all guidance, it is not subject to enforcement: however, I and Executive colleagues encourage everyone to adhere to this guidance. The PSNI will also ensure an appropriate focus on the stay at home message as part of their public information and safety campaigns over the coming weeks.

We all have a collective responsibility to adhere to the guidelines and to comply with the restrictions that are in place, both of which are designed to help protect ourselves, our families and others.

However, in circumstances where an individual or a business has been found to breach the Public Health Regulations, a range of enforcement sanctions are available to be used by organisations with the relevant powers, including the PSNI, local Councils and Border Force. Details of the levels of enforcement activity carried out by the PSNI is published weekly and can be found at www.psnipolice.uk

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice what arrangements her Department has begun in relation to the implementation of the Counter-Terrorism and Sentencing Bill.

(AQW 10856/17-22)

Mrs Long: Following the UK Government's confirmation of their intention to progress the Counter-Terrorism and Sentencing Bill, my officials are currently analysing the provisions to assess the potential operational implications for criminal justice organisations to inform their consideration to how best to give effect to the provisions within the Bill.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the rationale behind only inviting members of existing tribunals to apply for membership of the Victims' Payments Board; and (ii) how this sits with the commitment of appointment on merit and in an open and transparent process.

(AQW 10956/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Northern Ireland Judicial Appointments Commission (NIJAC) is responsible for the appointment of members to the Victims' Payment Board in line with The Victims' Payments Regulations 2020.

The NIJAC is committed to making appointments on merit and is making arrangements for an open and public process to recruit Board members.

In order to ensure that the Troubles Permanent Disablement Payment Scheme could open for applications in March 2021, my Department considered it appropriate that NIJAC put in place a process to appoint interim Board members on a short-term basis. The most appropriate means of achieving that was to invite applications from the existing membership of Tribunals.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Justice whether she will commit to engaging with the Coroner's Service to find a more sensitive, appropriate and anonymised way of describing a life lost by suicide on death certificates.

(AQW 11018/17-22)

Mrs Long: I am mindful that every loss of life to suicide is tragic and I extend my sincere sympathies to any family that has experienced such a loss.

It may be worth noting that the Coroner's Service does not issue a death certificate: they do, however, provide the Registrar of Deaths with a Coroner's notification to enable a death to be registered.

That notification provides the cause of death, recorded as the disease or significant condition that directly lead to the death, and can include any other significant condition that contributed to the death, but not related to the condition or disease causing it.

In the case of a suicide, the notification to the Registrar of Deaths will include the mode of death, ie the means by which a person ended their life but it would not use the terminology "suicide".

Additionally, I am advised by my officials that "suicide" does not appear on any notifications or findings by a Coroner.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice, in respect of the Legacy Inquest Unit's serious data breach in the McConville Inquest, how many security force and ex-security force personnel's personal data was unlawfully disclosed.

(AQW 11147/17-22)

Mrs Long: On 2 October 2020, the Legacy Inquest Unit (LIU) was contacted by the Crown Solicitors Office (CSO) to advise that the Unit had inadvertently disclosed the names of security forces personnel involved in the McConville inquest to the CSO and to the legal representatives acting on behalf of the family. The CSO notified the PSNI of the incident.

LIU staff took immediate steps, in line with data security procedures, in order to track the information and ensure its immediate and permanent deletion. The PSNI have advised that this concerned 19 ex police officers and one former security forces personnel.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice (i) what foolproof assurance exists for the victims of the unlawful data protection breach by the Inquest Legacy Unit in the McConville Inquest that their security has not been compromised; and (ii) does any such assurance rely solely on assurances from the recipients of the improperly disclosed material.

(AQW 11334/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Legacy Inquest Unit took immediate steps, in line with data security procedures, in order to track the inadvertent release of electronic information in the McConville Inquest and ensure its immediate and permanent deletion. Immediate steps were also taken to retrieve and destroy very limited hard copy information which was inadvertently disclosed. Written assurances have been provided by the legal representatives on behalf of the recipients that the information was not further disseminated and no copies exist. The LIU accepts the assurances provided which were given by officers of the court with concurrent legal and ethical obligations.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Justice what specific action her Department is taking to address the issue of rural crime.

(AQO 1250/17-22)

Mrs Long: Rural crime is a cross-cutting issue which requires partnership working in the areas of prevention, protection and enforcement. My Department has a commitment to make Northern Ireland, including rural communities, safer by reducing opportunities to commit crime.

At a strategic level my department supports the work the Rural Crime Partnership, whose membership includes Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI); Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs; the Ulster Farmers' Union; NFU Mutual; Federation of Small Businesses; Young Farmers' Club of Ulster and the Policing and Community Safety Partnerships (PCSPs).

The primary focus of the Partnership is to develop a collaborative response to address crime concerns which is specific to rural areas i.e. agricultural crime. The partnership aims to promote effective crime prevention techniques to enable the rural community to become more self-resilient in preventing and deterring crime, and to assist them in protecting their property and assets.

Most recently my Department has supported this work through the promotion of key crime prevention messages using a variety of media platforms including delivery of social media campaigns to raise awareness of general farm security, vehicle, machinery and livestock theft, and to encourage the reporting of crime or suspicious activity to the PSNI, or Crimestoppers.

At a local level, PCSPs, which are funded by my Department, play a key role in building confidence locally, through engagement and consultation with communities, including rural areas, on the issues that matter to them. Specific actions they are taking forward in response to local needs to deter rural crime include, support for trailer and farm machinery marking schemes; fitting of tracker security devices for quad bikes; promotion of the Farm Watch Scheme which aims to reduce crime and the fear of crime in farming and rural communities; No Cold Calling; Neighbourhood Watch; and Text Alert schemes providing up-to-date information on suspicious behaviours to be aware of.

In relation to EU Exit we are taking strategic and operational steps at a multi-agency level to mitigate risks, as far as possible. That is happening across relevant agencies.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the development of a new streamlined advocacy support service for victims of domestic and sexual abuse.

(AQO 1251/17-22)

Mrs Long: My officials, in conjunction with key statutory and voluntary sector partners, have developed an operational advocacy service model, to support victims of domestic and sexual violence and abuse across Northern Ireland.

Preparation is currently being made to commence an open tender competition, through which I hope to secure a suitable service provider to deliver the new service. Subject to smooth transition of this process, I intend to introduce the new service in the autumn of next year.

The new advocacy service will build on existing services, by providing a co-ordinated response to the individual needs of victims. On introduction, it will be made available to those engaging with the criminal justice system, as well as those whose case forms part of the Multi-Agency Risk Assessment Conference arrangements and/or those availing of the Rowan Sexual Assault Referral Centre. The service will be accessible to victims regardless of the level of risk posed to them, their gender, age, or where they live within Northern Ireland, thereby plugging a number of gaps identified in current service provision.

In time, and depending on the availability of funding from strategic partners, I would hope to provide scope to extend the breadth of the new service to support a wider pool of victims.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the planned recruitment of 600 new PSNI officers.

(AQO 1252/17-22)

Mrs Long: In the New Decade New Approach Document the British and Irish governments set out a number of priorities for the Executive, including increasing police numbers to 7,500. The Strategic Outline Case for increasing PSNI officer numbers has been approved by the Department of Finance to proceed to Outline Business Case and the PSNI are progressing this now.

Delivery of additional police numbers is largely dependent on the availability of Executive funding. There are also other considerations such as discussions with PSNI around ongoing requirements and operational considerations which are a matter for the Chief Constable.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Justice for an update on when the Troubles-related incident Victims Payments Scheme will open for applications.

(AQO 1253/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Department of Justice was designated by the Executive Office on 24 August 2020 to administer the Troubles Permanent Disablement Payment Scheme. A dedicated project team within my Department is actively working on implementation of the Scheme with the aim of opening for applications in March 2021.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the penalties relating to the enforcement of COVID-19 regulations.

(AQO 1254/17-22)

Mrs Long: At the request of the Strategic Compliance Group established by the Executive, my Department took the lead in a rapid review of the offences and penalties available in respect of breaches of the public health regulations. On the basis of the review, the Executive decided at its meetings on 8 and 15 October to increase the level of certain existing fixed penalties and to introduce a number of new offences. The Minister of Health subsequently indicated, on 30 October, that he wished to pause any changes to the existing penalties in respect of failing to provide information after international travel.

The regulations to give effect to the changes agreed by the Executive, as amended to take account of the changes paused by the Minister of Health, were made by the Department of Health on 12 November and the new suite of penalties took effect from that date.

In accordance with the agreed procedures, these amendments to the health protection regulations were considered by the Committee for Health on 26 November and will be shared with the Committee for Justice before I lead the debate in the Assembly Chamber on 8 December.

The increase in certain penalties and the introduction of new offences were designed to recognise the seriousness of the current public health situation and to encourage compliance with the restrictions that have had to be put in place to keep us all safe.

The changes that took effect on 12 November were:

- to replace all but one of the fixed penalties that previously started at £60 with a single fixed penalty of £200, reducing to £100 if paid within 14 days;
- to put in place fines of up to £10,000, including fixed penalties starting at £1,000, for owners or premises and organisers of events; and
- to create new offences of not implementing measures to maintain social distancing in retail and hospitality settings, and organising or participating in a large gathering or unlicensed music event.

The amendment regulations also provide that the recipient of a £200 fixed penalty notice cannot be issued with another one in respect of the same offence and may instead face summary prosecution for a repeat offence.

As at 24 November, the PSNI had carried out a total of 4,527 actions associated with enforcement of the restrictions. The PSNI figures are published weekly on a Monday at www.psnipolice.uk.

Local councils have collectively carried out 58,501 acts associated with the public health restrictions for the period 1 May-31 October.

Mr Butler asked the Minister of Justice to outline the most recent long-term and short-term sickness absence figures for the Northern Ireland Prison Service.

(AQO 1256/17-22)

Mrs Long: The most recent sickness absence figures are for the 2019/20 year and were published by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency on 25 June 2020.

Those statistics show that the average working days lost in the Northern Ireland Prison Service totalled 20.1 days per officer (the overall figure for the DOJ was 15.5 days, and the overall figure for the NICS was 12.9 days).

23.2% of prison grade staff had a long-term absence spell in 2019/2020, this was an increase on the 2018/2019 figure of 22.4%. The average duration of Prison Grade absences was 65.6 working days, which was higher than the overall NICS average of 62.8 working days.

34.1% of prison grade staff had a short-term absence spell in 2019/20, this was an increase on the 2018/2019 figure of 31.5%. The average duration was 5.6 working days which was higher than the overall NICS of 4.7 working days.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister of Justice what steps her Department is taking to ensure good mental healthcare provision for prisoners.

(AQO 1257/17-22)

Mrs Long: The care of vulnerable people is of paramount importance and is taken very seriously across the Justice system. This is particularly important in the context of the work of the Northern Ireland Prison Service, as we seek to care for and support a significant number of people with complex and challenging health needs who find themselves in custody.

Healthcare services for people in custody in Northern Ireland are provided on behalf of the Department of Health by the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust. This includes primary healthcare, mental healthcare and addictions services.

While responsibility for mental health services sits with the Department of Health, I recognise that everyone has a role to play in supporting people to look after their mental health. My Department is engaged with a number of initiatives that are aimed at improving mental health for people in Northern Ireland and these include:

- My role within the Executive Working Group on Mental Wellbeing, Resilience and Suicide Prevention
- Engagement with the Interim Mental Health Champion, whose role jointly funded by all Departments
- The development of a new 10 year Mental Health Strategy for Northern Ireland
- Engagement with Health and others on the consultation document for the Preventing Harm and Empowering Recovery – A Strategic Framework to tackle the Harm from Substance Use
- Representation on the Protect Life 2 Steering Group
- The Review of Vulnerable People in Custody

While the people in our custody in Northern Ireland are supported by good mental healthcare, there is more to be done and through working together we will provide good outcomes for those in our care.

Department for the Economy

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for the Economy what plans she has to address the possible decrease in footfall on the high street as we approach the Christmas period.

(AQW 7362/17-22)

Mrs Dodds (The Minister for the Economy): Responsibility for footfall in our towns and cities is for the Executive to address collectively, as there are many aspects to this issue. Much of this will be driven by our local councils, for whom the Department for Communities (DfC) have policy and operational lead responsibility.

In July 2020, DfC, along with the Department for Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (DAERA) announced the launch of the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme. DfC allocated £10m in capital to councils to allow them to invest in their town and city centres to create spaces that were safer and more inviting to shoppers, visitors and workers.

DAERA also provided £1m to allow the programme to be delivered in smaller rural settlements. The first tranche of £5.9m issued to councils in August, and is being used to provide urgent and immediate interventions, such as small grants to allow businesses to introduce social distancing measures, the provision of hand sanitiser stations and signage, and other infrastructure. An element of this funding is being used by some councils to fund media campaigns and animate town centres in the run-up to the Christmas period.

On Thursday 19th November, the Executive took a collective decision to introduce new and extended restrictions from Friday 27th December 2020 for at least two weeks. This very difficult decision was deemed necessary in light of the increased spread of Coronavirus throughout our communities, and was heavily influenced by the latest information and advice provided by the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Scientific Adviser for the Executive.

On Monday 23rd November 2020, the Executive announced a number of new and significant financial support packages, totalling £213 million, to help protect jobs in the immediate timeframe and stimulate the economy as we look to create a pathway to economic recovery in 2021.

As part of this new offer of support, I am introducing a NI-wide High Street Stimulus scheme to encourage people to shop local and visit local retailers, putting much needed revenue straight into these businesses in our towns and cities throughout Northern Ireland.

Officials from my Department are currently developing the scheme including the voucher amount and how it will be delivered. It is anticipated that it will to 'go live' in the New Year and will be subject to public health guidance.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what support she will provide to travel agents in the current context of COVID-19 travel restrictions.

(AQW 7793/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I appreciate the difficulty and stress that the Covid-19 public health crisis has placed upon local businesses and our economy at large and I am fully aware that the travel industry has been impacted particularly hard, both locally and on a global scale.

To date, 11 Travel Agencies have received support via the £25,000 Retail, Hospitality, Tourism and Leisure Grant scheme and a further 32 received support via the NI Microbusiness Hardship Fund. Travel Agents would also have been eligible to apply for the £10,000 Small Business Support Grant Scheme, however I am unable to provide a figure for grants provided for them.

Travel Agencies operating in retail premises have also benefitted from 100% rates holiday for 12 months in 2020/2021. Businesses employing staff would also have been able to claim for 80% of workers' wage costs via the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme. Any self-employed Travel Agents would also have been able to claim for 80% of profits via the Self-Employed Income Support Scheme.

A further £9.9 million of tourism support was allocated by the Executive to the Department on 24 September, along with a further £8.5 million allocated for assistance to business.

I have met with representatives of the travel industry to hear the challenges facing the industry directly and I am supportive of a specific financial support package being developed for the industry which is facing ongoing hardship due to the ongoing travel restrictions and the resulting reduction in travelling by the public.

The First Minister, deputy First Minister, accompanied by the Finance Minister, also met with representatives from the Association of Northern Ireland Travel Agents on 4 November to discuss how the sector has been impacted by the pandemic and have agreed to explore financial support for the sector. I await their recommendations following that engagement.

Any decisions on further support measures for this sector, and the wider economy, will be agreed collectively by the Executive.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for the Economy to detail her Department's strategy to market Northern Ireland as a tourist destination.

(AQW 7835/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Marketing Northern Ireland as a tourist destination is the responsibility of two of the Department for the Economy's (DfE) sponsor bodies, Tourism Northern Ireland and Tourism Ireland. Under the strategic direction of DfE, Tourism NI promotes Northern Ireland in the Republic of Ireland (RoI) and at home to the domestic market, and Tourism Ireland markets the island of Ireland in Great Britain and in more than 20 markets overseas.

The marketing activity of Tourism NI and Tourism Ireland is based on extensive market research, and comprises TV, radio, press, outdoor promotions, digital and social marketing as well as engagement with tour operators etc.

Tourism Ireland also works with air and sea carriers in respect of co-operative marketing opportunities.

The COVID-19 crisis has presented challenges in respect of marketing Northern Ireland as a tourist destination. As we recover from COVID, we will need to maximise the potential of the Embrace a Giant Spirit experience brand. It will also be important to focus on closer to home markets, in particular Great Britain.

In response to COVID-19 pandemic, Tourism NI launched a Recovery Marketing Campaign to support industry with a focus on key visitor segments in Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland. The campaign went live on 30th June 2020 and ran for 16 weeks, providing maximum exposure for the tourist industry.

I have secured an additional £4 million to enable Tourism NI to plan the next stage of promotional activity for the remainder of the financial year. This will also focus on both Northern Ireland and the RoI, in order to maximise opportunities in both markets and support the needs of the tourism industry.

Tourism Ireland began 2020 with the roll-out of an extensive global marketing campaign to build on the success of 2019, and continue to grow overseas tourism to Northern Ireland this year. However, following the outbreak and spread of COVID-19, almost all of Tourism Ireland's paid-for promotional activity has been cancelled or postponed.

Tourism Ireland has conducted extensive research (including sentiment analysis) in preparation for a return to full marketing activity as we begin to recover from COVID. Tourism Ireland will continue to focus on Screen tourism, leveraging the global success of Game of Thrones in particular, and highlighting the show's strong connection with Northern Ireland.

Tourism Ireland will also promote Northern Ireland as a top golf destination, capitalising on the global success and recognition of champion golfers Rory McIlroy, Darren Clarke and Graeme McDowell.

Co-operative marketing activity with the airlines will continue with, Tourism Ireland inviting all of Northern Ireland's airports, airlines and sea carriers to engage in marketing activity to attract new routes and sustain existing ones.

Mr Catney asked the Minister for the Economy what discussions her Department has had with the hospitality sector regarding the potential number of (i) job losses; and (ii) failing businesses due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 8245/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I am very aware of the challenges facing our hospitality businesses as a result of COVID-19. The pandemic has had a major impact on Northern Ireland's hospitality sector, and the wider tourism industry.

I, and my officials, have had extensive engagement with the hospitality sector as we collectively seek to mitigate the challenges presented by COVID. In May 2020, I established a Tourism Recovery Steering Group, which I chair, and supporting Working Group, to help address the challenges of COVID and plan for recovery. The hospitality sector is represented on both Groups. A dedicated hospitality Task and Finish Group has also been established.

The best way to support hospitality businesses is to provide them with the ability to open and generate essential revenue from customers. My Department worked closely with the sector to develop social distancing guidance which enabled hospitality businesses to re-open over the Summer period.

Unfortunately, the Executive has had to take the decision to close the hospitality sector again as we seek to contain the spread of the virus. However, we are acutely aware of the pressure this places upon hospitality businesses and the Department of Finance is providing top-up support to those businesses. In addition, the Executive has allocated an additional £10.6 million to support non-food pubs, and my Department will shortly launch a grant scheme aimed at large hospitality and accommodation businesses.

These interventions are in addition to UK Government support, especially the Job Retention Scheme, and Executive mitigations such as the extension of the Business Rates Holiday for hospitality businesses until 31 March 2021.

While these interventions are important, it is essential that we plan ahead and support the hospitality sector by driving tourism demand. I have therefore secured more than £11 million COVID funding from the Executive which will be used on a number of initiatives to stimulate demand, including:

- marketing NI at home and in the Republic of Ireland;
- extending co-operative marketing support for individual businesses in partnership with the NI Hotels Federation;
- providing co-operative marketing funding for our crucial air and sea access;
- introducing a Holiday at Home Voucher Scheme to boost domestic tourism; and
- a support programme to ensure that NI businesses are connected with international tour operators and Destination Management Companies to secure business for the 2021 and 2022 seasons and beyond.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy what plans her Department has to help the tourism and hospitality industry in North Down.

(AQW 8470/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: COVID-19 has had a major impact on Northern Ireland's tourism and hospitality industry. Since the onset of the pandemic, the NI Executive has introduced a number of grant schemes (in addition to UK Government interventions such as the Job Retention Scheme) aimed at assisting the business community in addressing the impact of the virus, all of which have been available to tourism and hospitality businesses in the Ards and North Down area. These have included:

- £10k COVID Business Support Grant;
- 25k Grant for the Tourism, Hospitality and Leisure Sector;
- £10k Small Business Hardship Fund;
- a Business Rates Holiday until 31 March 2021 for businesses in the tourism, hospitality (and retail) sectors; and
- support for those tourism and hospitality businesses required to close as a result of the current restrictions.

My Department also plans to introduce grant schemes (totalling £15 million) aimed at the bed and breakfast sector, as well as large hospitality and tourist accommodation businesses.

A range of initiatives have also been introduced which will have benefited tourism and hospitality businesses in Ards and North Down. For example:

- development of extensive guidance on how the tourism and hospitality sector could re-open safely whilst ensuring that the health of the public remained paramount;
- implementation of the WA 313 Were Good to Go industry standard supported by a marketing campaign to drive awareness and build confidence with consumers;
- the introduction of Tourism NIs Business Support Helpline and COVID-19 Support Hub;
- a Website Development Grant Scheme to support tourism businesses to market and sell their services online (tourism businesses from the Ards and North Down area have applied to this scheme);
- an Experience Development Programme to support the tourism industry to develop new compelling experiences to support their medium to longer term recovery plans from 2021 onwards (tourism businesses from the Ards and North Down area have applied to this scheme).
- a £1 million Business and Financial Planning Programme to help businesses plan their response to the ongoing pandemic and support their recovery in what will be a very competitive marketplace going forward.

I have also secured more than £11 million COVID funding from the Executive which will be used on a number of initiatives to stimulate demand, including:

- marketing NI at home and in the Republic of Ireland;
- extending co-operative marketing support for individual businesses in partnership with the NI Hotels Federation;
- providing co-operative marketing funding for our crucial air and sea access;

- introducing a Holiday at Home Voucher Scheme to boost domestic tourism; and
- a support programme to ensure that NI businesses are connected with international tour operators and Destination Management Companies to secure business for the 2021 and 2022 seasons and beyond.

Tourism NI has a close working relationship with each of the eleven Local Authorities across Northern Ireland and meets regularly with Councils to discuss areas such as COVID-19 recovery, business support and key local tourism projects.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy what plans there are for additional grants to support local businesses.
(AQW 8471/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive agreed restrictions that came into effect on 16 October 2020 in order to reduce the concerning rise in the transmission of COVID-19. While this will be a difficult time for everyone across Northern Ireland, I am acutely aware of the particular impact the restrictions will have on businesses and employees, not only in the hospitality sector but across the economy.

The Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) seeks to support those businesses in commercial premises severely restricted in use or now forced to close directly by the new Regulations. The scheme launched for all council areas on 19 October 2020 and provides up to £1,200 per week to eligible businesses for the duration of the restrictions. The scheme has been extended to include the period of restrictions from 27 November 2020. Further information and applications can be made at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/coronavirus-localised-restrictions-support-scheme>.

I recognise that not all businesses which have been affected by the restrictions are able to access support through this scheme. I have therefore introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme which operates in two parts.

Part A of the scheme, which opened on 28 October 2020, is targeted at those businesses required to close or cease trading as a result of the restrictions and are not eligible for the LRSS. The initial payments under this scheme were issued on 6 November 2020. Further details are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/covid-restrictions-business-support-scheme-part>.

Examples of businesses that may be eligible for Part A of the scheme include businesses that deliver their product or service on a mobile basis or operate from their home, or their customers' homes; for example a driving instructor or mobile hairdresser or beautician. Self-employed individuals and sole traders, who may not have been covered by previous schemes are eligible to apply.

Part B of the scheme opened for applications on 19 November 2020 and provides support to businesses that are not named in the regulations but which supply goods or services to such a named business, or are reliant upon such a business being open and fully operational in order to trade. Further details are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/covid-restrictions-business-support-scheme-part-b>.

Applications under both elements of the scheme will be processed as soon as possible and eligible businesses will be paid automatically for the period of extended restrictions.

Businesses can also claim a proportion of salary costs through the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme. The UK Government has announced an extension to the scheme to March with employees receiving 80% of their salary for hours not worked, up to a maximum of £2,500. Under the extended scheme, the cost for employers of retaining workers will be reduced compared to October.

I announced on 21 October 2020 that my Department would be developing support schemes for the newly self-employed as well as large tourism and hospitality businesses. On 23 November, the Executive agreed a £213m package of support for businesses which includes further funding for the Department for the Economy to adapt current support schemes, deliver on schemes already announced and develop new interventions to support businesses. This will include support for sole limited Company Directors, large tourism, hospitality, retail and leisure businesses, wet pubs, local online sales support and a High Street Voucher Scheme.

Further details on these schemes will be made available in due course.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will request Queen's University Belfast and Ulster University to follow the example of other universities in producing regular and updated information on numbers of COVID-19 cases.
(AQW 8537/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: While my Department is responsible for higher education policy, as autonomous institutions, the universities are ultimately responsible for their own response to the Covid pandemic, including the recording and collection of data on the numbers of cases in their student and staff populations.

That said, I am aware that the universities do collect regular and detailed information on the number of Covid cases at their institutions, and that they share this information as and when it is requested.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 7948/17-22, whether she will provide the report of the capability assessment review of Ulster University conducted by her officials to members of the Committee for the Economy on the confidential agenda.

(AQW 8784/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Due to ongoing commercial sensitivities relating to the review, I am not prepared to share at this time.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister for the Economy what consideration he is giving to a longer term package to assist breweries.

(AQW 8999/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The economic impact of COVID-19 is unprecedented. Huge economic impacts that might normally take months or years to unfold occurred within weeks as a result of lockdown and industry shutdowns. I am acutely aware of the difficulties and pressures faced by businesses and individuals across the economy as a result of the pandemic and the subsequent restrictions.

The Executive introduced an unprecedented range of financial support to help businesses impacted by Covid-19 with the objective of protecting jobs, preventing business closures and promoting economic recovery.

The Department for Economy has paid out more than £340million collectively across three grant schemes. Breweries were eligible to apply for both the Small Business Support Grant Scheme and the NI Microbusiness Hardship Fund.

Breweries would also have benefitted from the four month rates relief introduced by the Department of Finance, with no rates being payable from 1 April 2020 to 31 July 2020.

As a result of the restrictions that came into effect on 16 October 2020, I have introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to provide support in two stages:

Part A - businesses named in the health protection regulations and are not eligible for the LRSS.

Part B - Businesses not named in the regulations, but which supplies goods or services to such a business, or is reliant upon such a business being open and fully operational in order to trade.

Breweries may apply for support through Part B provided the eligibility criteria are met. Further details of Part B are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/covid-restrictions-business-support-scheme-part-b>.

Businesses can also claim a proportion of salary costs through the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme. The UK Government have announced an extension of the scheme until the end of March with employees receiving 80% of their salary for hours not worked, up to a maximum of £2,500. Under the extended scheme, the cost for employers of retaining workers will be reduced compared to October.

I will continue to examine and pursue further means to support the local economy and business sectors in whatever way possible. In considering further interventions, including additional funding or packages of financial support, it will be for the Executive collectively, to determine how this will be allocated to best support economic recovery moving forward.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the financial support available for breweries, hospitality workers and cider producers.

(AQW 9060/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The economic impact of COVID-19 is unprecedented. The Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) seeks to support those businesses in commercial premises severely restricted in use or now forced to close directly by the new Regulations. These include hospitality businesses covering cafes, pubs and restaurants that have been temporarily forced to close or limit their services to a takeaway or delivery only, hotels, guesthouses and registered Bed & Breakfast establishments that have been temporarily forced to limit the provision of services for certain residents only.

The scheme launched for all council areas on 19 October 2020 and provides up to £1,200 per week to eligible businesses for the duration of the restrictions. Further information and applications can be made at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/coronavirus-localised-restrictions-support-scheme>.

I recognise that not all businesses who have been effected by the restrictions are able to access support through this scheme. I have therefore introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to provide support to restricted businesses who do not qualify for support through LRSS and businesses in the supply chain of restricted businesses.

Part A of the scheme, which opened on 28 October 2020, is targeted at those businesses required to close or cease trading as a result of the restrictions and are not eligible for the LRSS. Eligible businesses under this part of the scheme will received a flat grant payment of £600 per week, paid in one lump sum.

Further details and the application portal are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/covid-restrictions-business-support-scheme-part>.

Part B of the scheme opened on 19 November and provides support to businesses not named in the Regulations but supply goods or services to such a business, or is reliant upon such a business being open and fully operational in order to trade. Further details on Part B are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/covid-restrictions-business-support-scheme-part-b>.

Eligible businesses who pay business rates will receive a grant of up to £800 per week based on the Net Annual Value (NAV) of the premises they operate from. Eligible businesses who do not pay businesses rates will receive a grant of £300 per week.

Breweries and cider producers may apply for support through Part B provided the eligibility criteria are met.

Businesses can also claim a proportion of salary costs through the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme. The UK Government have announced an extension of the scheme until the end of March with employees receiving 80% of their salary for hours not worked, up to a maximum of £2,500. Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what actions her Department is taking to promote digital inclusion in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 9063/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I fully appreciate the importance of access to good broadband services, particularly in the current circumstances.

As you are aware, my Department has developed Project Stratum which will utilise funding of £165m to deliver gigabit-capable broadband infrastructure to more than 76,000 premises across Northern Ireland.

Following a robust and competitive procurement process, the contract for Project Stratum has now been awarded and deployment activities are underway. The project team will be engaging with the successful bidder, Fibrus Networks, to ensure that citizens and businesses can access further information regarding deployment plans and project implementation updates. Departmental officials have engaged with local council representatives to ensure that key aspects of the project are communicated clearly and that all questions relating to deployment are addressed in a transparent manner.

My Department also produced a detailed ICT-Digital foresight report in 2016, which has helped shape DfE policy for the sector, and the outworking of which remains ongoing, including in relation to skills. The Matrix Panel, supported by my Department, is in the process of conducting foresight studies, specifically looking at future opportunities in the key areas of Artificial Intelligence and Cyber Security. Work is also progressing on developing an AI Centre of excellence to help raise awareness and use of technologies such as machine learning and natural language processing, and also in delivering against the need to raise awareness and develop skills in cyber security.

I can also advise that Invest NI has a team of 5 ICT advisors operating across Northern Ireland, providing advice to their customers on a range of ICT solutions used within businesses. This is a well-established service, providing 1:1 advice to over 500 businesses per year and can also offer financial support to eligible businesses. The team has also helped to develop online video and reading material available through www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/IT to help small businesses to move online and grow.

InvestNI has also completed the 1st call of the Digital Selling Capability Grant (DSCG), aimed at moving more NI retail/wholesale businesses online. The scheme has offered funding to over 100 businesses to engage professional expertise to help them plan and/or improve their online selling presence, including upskilling their staff on online marketing/e-commerce techniques.

It is also important to note that, following the cessation of on-site training and learning due to Covid-19 in March 2020, Further Education (FE) colleges moved quickly to adapt their provision to meet the needs of their learners with over three-quarters of learners able to access provision on-line, thereby enabling students and staff to work remotely from home during this period of uncertainty and complete learners' vocational qualifications. Additional funding of over £3.1 million was allocated to colleges for additional IT equipment, peripherals and licences to allow continued access from home for both college staff and students.

My Department's Essential Skills Strategy aims to provide opportunities for adults to update their essential skills, including ICT provision. Essential Skills qualifications in Information and Communication Technology at Level 1 and Level 2 are available free of charge to all learners.

Courses are delivered by FE colleges, private training providers and community organisations.

You may also wish to explore the work underway by the Digital Inclusion Unit established within the Department of Finance and the action taken within the Department for Communities to promote digital inclusion in the delivery of its services.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether the Tourism Recovery Steering Group intends to bring forward a plan and programme to connect the Causeway Coast and Wild Atlantic Way in terms of joint promotion, other joint marketing and route signage.

(AQW 9229/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The role of the Tourism Recovery Steering Group is to help the tourism and hospitality industry address the impact of COVID-19, and to plan for recovery. The Group has not considered any potential linkage between the Causeway Coast and Wild Atlantic Way.

The economic rationale for creating a new coastal tourist trail, linking the Wild Atlantic Way and the Causeway Coastal Route would need to be fully understood and have the agreement of the industry, Tourism Northern Ireland, Fáilte Ireland and the local authorities on both sides of the border.

In addition, the implementation of a new coastal tourist trail would have to be undertaken in a way that makes sense from a consumer perspective and executed in a way that would not dilute the new Northern Ireland brand (Embrace a Giant Spirit) or convey conflicting messages to the tourism industry, trade operators or consumers.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy, following the Chancellors announcement of additional financial support to businesses in the hospitality, accommodation and leisure sector in high alert level areas in England, whether she will be seeking the full Barnett consequential from this to expand the COVID-19 Restrictions Business Support Scheme.

Mrs Dodds: I will continue to examine and pursue further means to support the local economy in whatever way possible. In considering further interventions, including additional funding or packages of financial support, it will be for the Executive collectively to determine how this will be allocated.

In addition, I will continue to engage with the UK Government, in order to provide the support that will be required to help businesses and the economy to respond to this pandemic, and then start to rebuild and recover as we move forward.

I launched the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to provide support to businesses affected by the restrictions set out in the NI Health Protection Regulations, which came into effect on 16 October, that are not eligible for the Localised Restrictions Business Support Scheme. I have announced that this scheme will be extended to provide assistance to businesses affected by the additional restrictions from 27 November to 11 December.

I announced on 21 October 2020 that my Department would be developing support schemes for the newly self-employed as well as large tourism and hospitality businesses. On 23 November, the Executive agreed a £213m package of support for businesses which includes further funding for the Department for the Economy to adapt current support schemes, deliver on schemes already announced and develop new interventions to support businesses. This will include support for sole limited Company Directors, large tourism, hospitality, retail and leisure businesses, wet pubs, local online sales support and a High Street Voucher Scheme.

Further details on these schemes will be made available in due course.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment (i) of painters and decorators who have been impacted by COVID-19 in that their businesses were not told to close but whose customers are now reluctant to have them in their homes; and (ii) whether they are eligible for support under her Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme.

(AQW 9457/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I am aware of the particular impact that the COVID-19 pandemic and the subsequent restrictions has had on businesses and employees across the economy. The Executive agreed restrictions that came into effect on 16 October 2020 in order to reduce the concerning rise in the transmission of COVID-19.

The Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) seeks to support those businesses in commercial premises severely restricted in use or now forced to close directly by the new Regulations.

I recognise that not all businesses who have been effected by the restrictions are able to access support through this scheme. I have therefore introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to provide support to restricted businesses who do not qualify for support through LRSS, businesses who provide goods or services to restricted businesses and those who are reliant on affected businesses being operational in order to trade.

Part A of the scheme is designed for businesses named under the Health Regulations as required to close or cease trading but not eligible for LRSS. I acknowledge that painters and decorators may face reduced demand due to health concerns. However, as they are not named in the Health Regulations, they would not qualify for Part A of the scheme.

I would encourage each business to review the guidance and eligibility criteria for Part B, and to use the online eligibility checker to determine eligibility. Each application will be assessed on a case by case basis and should a painter or decorator meet the criteria, they may qualify for support.

Support is available via UK-wide schemes. The Chancellor has announced an extension to the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme until the end of March 2021 with employees receiving 80% of their current salary for hours not worked.

For the self-employed, the Chancellor has also announced an extension to the Self-Employed Income Support Scheme to run until the end of April 2021 with eligible applicants receiving 80% of trading profits for November to January. Further detail on the support for February to April will be announced in due course.

I will continue to examine and pursue further means to support the local economy and business sectors in whatever way possible with the limited funding envelope available. In considering further interventions, including additional funding or packages of financial support, it will be for the Executive collectively, to determine how this will be allocated to best support economic recovery moving forward.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy, in light of COVID-19 regulations, what is the position on outdoor markets. (AQW 9489/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: This is not within the remit of my Department to answer. COVID regulations sit under Department for Health.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment on whether outdoor markets are retail or hospitality. (AQW 9490/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Standard Industrial Classification of economic activities produced by the Office for National Statistics indicate that outdoor markets are considered as retail as shown below:

Section G Wholesale and Retail Trade; Repair of Motor Vehicles and Motorcycles

47 Retail trade, except of motor vehicles and motorcycles

47.8 Retail sale via stalls and markets

47.81 Retail sale via stalls and markets of food, beverages and tobacco products

47.82 Retail sale via stalls and markets of textiles, clothing and footwear

47.89 Retail sale via stalls and markets of other goods

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) her Department's programme for the recovery of overpayments of COVID-19 £10,000 Small Business Support Grants; and (ii) any targets for how quickly overpayments will be collected. (AQW 9546/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The £10,000 Small Business Support Grant Scheme closed formally on 20 October 2020. The Department is now focusing on post closure activities associated with assurance and recovery. This work will include the development of a process for dealing with payments that have been wrongfully paid

At 11 November 2020, 95 payments had been recovered, three of which were partial payments, totalling £937,000.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the Financial Transactions Capital write-off of £9 million by InvestNI; and what actions are being taken to recoup investments made. (AQW 9679/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Under the Sustainable Utilisation of Poultry Litter (SUPL) Scheme*, Invest NI, alongside a private investor, provided funding towards the build and operation of an Anaerobic Digestion (AD) plant.

The aim of the project was to help resolve a significant local environmental and economic issue, and to help Northern Ireland comply with EU nitrates targets to positively impact the poultry sector and the wider Northern Ireland economy. Invest NI's support was by way of a £9.3m commercial loan.

Initial indications show that the project might not reach an outcome that fully covers the investment in the project. Therefore, we have included a provision of £9 million in our accounts should we not be able to achieve a return on our investment. This provision is in line with current accounting standards.

*SUPL is a Department for the Economy and Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs scheme, operated by Invest Northern Ireland.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the criteria that was set for the (i) 2019/20; and (ii) 2020/21 Student Hardship Fund. (AQW 10157/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Student Hardship funding provided through Further Education (FE) Colleges is the responsibility of FE Division, DfE, with Higher Education Division, DfE being responsible for Student Hardship funding provided through NI Higher Education Institutions (HEIs). FE Colleges are non-departmental public bodies of the Department, while HEIs are autonomous bodies. As such, the approach to budgeting is different, with different mechanisms between the institutions for distributing Hardship Funding. The information below regarding FE is provided on an academic year basis, while information related to HE is provided on a financial year basis.

The criteria set for both the 2019/20 and 2020/21 Further Education Student Hardship Fund are published in the Hardship Fund Circulars. The criteria set in both years' circulars is unchanged other than for relevant dates. Additionally in 2020/21, an Addendum highlights updates to the 2020/21 circular in relation to COVID 19, but did not change eligibility criteria.

The Hardship Fund Circulars are available online, and can be accessed through the following links:

2020/21: <https://www.economy-ni.gov.uk/publications/fe-circular-0520-hardship-fund>

2019/20: https://www.src.ac.uk/images/files/about_us/policies/Nov19/EC1_19_0182928_Hardship_Fund_Circular_2019-20.pdf

The conditions of funding for the Higher Education Support Funds are available online at <https://www.economy-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/economy/higher-education-ni-support-funds.pdf>. These conditions have remained the same for both 2019/20 and 2020/21.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the amount of funding each higher and further education institution received in (i) 2019/20; and (ii) 2020/21, broken down by location.

(AQW 10158/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Student Hardship funding provided through Further Education (FE) Colleges is the responsibility of FE Division, DfE, with Higher Education Division, DfE being responsible for Student Hardship funding provided through NI Higher Education Institutions (HEIs). FE Colleges are non-departmental public bodies of the Department, while HEIs are autonomous bodies. As such, the approach to budgeting is different, with different mechanisms between the institutions for distributing Hardship Funding. The information below regarding FE is provided on an academic year basis, while information related to HE is provided on a financial year basis.

Hardship funding received by Further Education Institutions is detailed below.

	Academic Year 2019/20	Academic Year 2020/21
Belfast Metropolitan College	£634,735	£824,568
Northern Regional College	£119,135	£124,744
North West Regional College	£381,096	£386,601
South Eastern Regional College	£162,566	£166,613
Southern Regional College	£351,001	£359,361
South West College	£258,467	£235,314

For Higher Education, hardship funding is paid to institutions on the basis of claims received. Financial information for 2020/21 is up to and including 16th November 2020. Hardship funding received by HE Institutions is detailed below:

	2019/20	2020/21
QUB	£1,351,000.00	£1,913,475.00
UU	£1,344,000.00	£1,344,000.00
St Mary's	£35,000.00	£70,000.00
Stranmillis	£36,000.00	£54,000.00
OU	£15,563.26	£0.00

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy how many students in each higher and further education institution received funding in (i) 2019/20; and (ii) 2020/21.

(AQW 10159/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Student Hardship funding provided through Further Education (FE) Colleges is the responsibility of FE Division, DfE, with Higher Education Division, DfE being responsible for Student Hardship funding provided through NI Higher Education Institutions (HEIs). FE Colleges are non-departmental public bodies of the Department, while HEIs are autonomous bodies. As such, the approach to budgeting is different, with different mechanisms between the institutions for distributing Hardship Funding. The information below regarding FE is provided on an academic year basis, while information related to HE is provided on a financial year basis.

In 2019/20 Further Education Division provided funding to 1,688 students in further education colleges via the Hardship Fund.

The table below shows a breakdown of the number of students supported by each college. Figures are not yet available for 2020/21

Number of Further Education Students who received Hardship Funding in 2019/20

	No. of Students
Belfast Metropolitan College	519
North West Regional College	326
Northern Regional College	60
South Eastern Regional College	126
South West College	263
Southern Regional College	394
Total Students 2019/20	1,688

For Higher Education, the institutions, as autonomous bodies, are responsible for making awards of hardship funding to students. Information on the number of students who received awards in 2019/20 is not due for submission to the Department until 31 December 2020, and information on the number of students who received awards in 2020/21 is not due for submission to the Department until 31 December 2021.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy (i) how much departmental funding to each higher and further education institutions was unspent in 2019/20; (ii) how much of this unspent funding was returned to her Department; and (iii) whether this funding was reallocated.

(AQW 10160/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Student Hardship funding provided through Further Education (FE) Colleges is the responsibility of FE Division, DfE, with Higher Education Division, DfE being responsible for Student Hardship funding provided through NI Higher Education Institutions (HEIs). FE Colleges are non-departmental public bodies of the Department, while HEIs are autonomous bodies. As such, the approach to budgeting is different, with different mechanisms between the institutions for distributing Hardship Funding. The information below regarding FE is provided on an academic year basis, while information related to HE is provided on a financial year basis.

For each of the further education institutions, colleges have the option to either roll any unspent Hardship Funding forward into the next year, or to surrender back to the Department for potential reallocation to another college, depending on need.

	Unspent in Academic Year 2019/20	Reallocated to Another College	Rolled Forward to Academic Year 2020/21	Returned to the Department
Belfast Metropolitan College	£190,201	£ -	£190,201	£ -
Northern Regional College	£60,550	£ -	£ -	£60,550
North West Regional College	£43,669	£ -	£ -	£43,669

For Higher Education, all hardship funding was claimed in 2019/20, no funding was returned to my Department, and therefore, no funding was reallocated.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy what actions (i) are being taken; and (ii) will be taken to reframe the criteria for funding to reflect the changed circumstances that students face in 2020/21 in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10161/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Student Hardship funding provided through Further Education (FE) Colleges is the responsibility of FE Division, DfE, with Higher Education Division, DfE being responsible for Student Hardship funding provided through NI Higher Education Institutions (HEIs). FE Colleges are non-departmental public bodies of the Department, while HEIs are autonomous bodies. As such, the approach to budgeting is different, with different mechanisms between the institutions for distributing Hardship Funding. The information below regarding FE is provided on an academic year basis, while information related to HE is provided on a financial year basis.

I am aware of the financial challenges faced by Further Education (FE) students as a result of Covid-19, which include barriers to education for some, due to the need to introduce remote learning and concerns regarding the ability to maintain and extend financial support arrangements.

There are a range of permanent student financial support arrangements that have been in place over many years for eligible FE students. These include FE Grants, College Hardship Fund (both of which include childcare support), Care to Learn, Free School Meals and Home to College Transport.

During the pandemic, my Department ensured that current FE student support arrangements continued to operate effectively, or were adapted to direct support to students in need. For example, administrative criteria for FE Grants and Hardship Fund have been updated to facilitate claimants participating in distance learning, paying childcare retainer fees during the initial lockdown, assistance with childcare costs for the new blended delivery of virtual and classroom based study once the childcare providers reopened, acceptance of electronic applications and evidence, and extension to the closing date for FE Grant applications.

An additional £430k has been allocated to fund direct payment of Free School Meal Allowances into the households of almost 1,900 eligible school-age FE students for the remainder of the 2019/20 academic year and to facilitate summer payments when students were not able to attend college. For 2020/21 Term 1 I have allocated an additional £171k to fund direct payment of Free School Meal Allowances into the households of eligible school-age FE students to ensure students are not disadvantaged by distance learning. This arrangement will be reviewed for Term 2.

My Department will continue to keep FE student support arrangements under review and adapt these as required in response to evolving needs.

For Higher Education, (i) in response to the Covid-19 pandemic, I have doubled the amount of support funds available to students facing genuine financial hardship from £2.8m in 2019/20 to £5.6m in 2020/21. (ii) The criteria for the Higher Education Support Funds are deliberately minimal. Students need only be eligible in terms of their residency status, enrolled at a designated course at a Northern Ireland HE Institution and facing genuine financial hardship to be considered for an award. As such, I have no plans to amend the criteria for the Higher Education Support Funds at this time.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy when Part B of the COVID Restrictions Business Support Scheme will be opened for applications.

(AQW 10186/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: An online eligibility checker and guidance notes for Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme opened on 18 November 2020. The Scheme opened for applications via nibusinessinfo.co.uk on 19 November 2020.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the reasons for the delay in the roll-out of Project Stratum.

(AQW 10192/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: There has been no delay to Project Stratum. All targeted premises will benefit from this intervention in the previously stated timeframe of end March 2024, under the terms of the contract.

Mr McHugh asked the Minister for the Economy what support is available for companies to set up a remote working base in rural areas.

(AQW 10243/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: A company setting up a remote working base in Northern Ireland would be eligible for support from Invest Northern Ireland if this was a new export focussed start up. This would include indigenous start-ups and FDI start-ups. However if this is an existing export focussed business located in another part of Northern Ireland, support could be provided to set up a base in rural areas if this was an expansion of its core business operation in another part of Northern Ireland.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will work with the Minister of Health to provide greater clarity and certainty for childminders and nurseries on the rules relating to whether children under two are included in the calculations for numbers of people gathered, with the objective of supporting these sole traders and other businesses to continue to trade.

(AQW 10257/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The current restrictions to combat the spread of coronavirus particularly in relation to the mixing of households do not apply to childcare settings, including childminding. Childcare settings must continue to comply with the Department of Health Minimum Standards as they relate to ratios, that is, with the specified maximum number of children who may be cared for as identified on the Registration Certificate. Departmental guidance for childcare settings, including childminders has been regularly updated throughout the pandemic in line with the latest available public health advice and is available at:

<https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/covid-19-childcare-guidance>.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the reason for the £22.2 million underspend relating to the Annually Managed Expenditure for the Renewable Heat Initiative; and (ii) how farmers are being supported in place of these subsidies.

(AQW 10294/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

i) In early 2015 the projections of the cost of the NI RHI Scheme rose above the available budget for 2015/16 and future years. The Department has taken a number of actions since then, including suspension of the Scheme to new applicants in 2016, extension of the tiered tariff structure and annual usage limit to all small and medium biomass installations in 2017 and a revision of small and medium biomass tariffs in 2019. I acknowledge that at present not all of the budget made available from HM Treasury to fund RHI tariffs is being drawn down however, we cannot simply adopt a tariff that maximises use of the available budget. This was an attitude and approach that was rightly criticised by the Public Inquiry. As Minister I have a responsibility to all taxpayers.

ii) The RHI Scheme is not a farmer subsidy scheme, it is an incentive scheme designed to increase the proportion of heat generated from renewable sources by payment of a tariff. It was open to applications from all business and domestic sectors.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy to detail and explain the difference in the size of maintenance grants given to Northern Irish students studying in Great Britain compared to students from Great Britain also studying in Great Britain.

(AQW 10296/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department provides a means tested, non-repayable maintenance grant to eligible Northern Ireland domiciled students through Student Finance NI up to the value of £3,475 for the 2020/21 academic year.

England provide a means tested, non-repayable maintenance grant of up to £3,489 for students whose courses commenced before 1 August 2016. No maintenance grant is provided for students whose courses commenced after this date.

Wales provide the Welsh Government Learning Grant, a means tested, non-repayable grant providing up to £10,124 for the 2020/21 academic year.

Scotland do not provide a specific maintenance grant product, but do provide a means tested, non-repayable bursary of up to £2,000 to eligible students.

The difference between the availability and level of maintenance grants for students across the UK is a direct result of the devolved nature of higher education, which allows the regions to develop their own student support products in response to the needs of their students, their Higher Education sector, and the budget available to them.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for the Economy when applications will open to Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme.

(AQW 10310/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: An online eligibility checker and guidance notes for Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme opened on 18 November 2020. The Scheme opened for applications via nibusinessinfo.co.uk on 19 November 2020.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister for the Economy what provisions her Department will make for PhD students in medical or biological disciplines who need an extension of their current funding beyond September 2021 to complete their fieldwork.

(AQW 10320/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department allocated £2m to NI universities to provide funded extensions for final year PGA Scheme students whose funding is due to finish by 31st March 2021.

There is recognition that many students other than final year students, most notably second year students, on the PGA scheme may also require funded extensions in order to be able to complete their studies to an appropriate standard. The Department is keen to facilitate such extensions and will seek additional budget in 2021/22 to cover the associated cost. The process of administering the funded extensions is managed by the universities on the Department's behalf.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the roll-out of smart meters to domestic premises.

(AQW 10360/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The roll-out of smart metering is being considered through the development of the new Energy Strategy for Northern Ireland. The Energy Strategy Options Consultation is due to be published in March 2021.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy to detail her plans to support social enterprises when funding from the European Social Fund ends.

(AQW 10388/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The European Social Fund Programme currently provides important support to a large number of individuals who face a range of barriers to employment. Priorities 1 and 2 currently support 66 projects which are due to conclude in March 2022, while the support under priority 3, which part funds the Department's Apprenticeship NI programme, continues until 2023. Social enterprises play an important role in the delivery of the European Social Fund Programme. A joint project with the Department for Communities has been established to consider the range of future policy and delivery options in relation to priorities 1 and 2.

A key consideration for any replacement programme will be access to the necessary funding. This is being progressed by the Department of Finance on behalf of the NI Executive.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy (i) how many people are employed in the social economy sector; and (ii) what plans she has to help the sector recover from the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10389/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) There is no definitive data regarding the size and scale of the NI social economy sector. The most recent published statistics can be found in the 2019 Report on Social Enterprise entitled "Re-balancing the NI Economy", written by Stratagem on behalf of Social Enterprise NI (SENI). It states that during the period 2013-2018 the employment base for the social economy sector has grown from 12,200 to 24,860.
- (ii) My Department leads on social economy policy and chairs the Social Economy Policy Group (SEPG), which includes departments, agencies and local government. SEPG's focus is to consider how departmental policies / programmes support sector growth across Northern Ireland and to contribute to the development of an integrated strategic approach to the social economy. For example, in response to COVID 19, the Department for Communities has launched their Social Enterprise Fund to support social enterprises whose ability to trade has been impacted in recent months.

My Department also currently funds Social Enterprise NI (SENI) to represent the collective interests of the social economy sector in delivering a Social Economy Work Programme, which seeks to identify and implement a programme of initiatives to enable the continued growth of a sustainable social economy sector across Northern Ireland.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the number of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) visits per constituency, in each of the last three financial years; (ii) the amount of financial support provided by Invest NI for jobs created per constituency, in each of the last three years; and (iii) the number of FDI jobs created per constituency, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 10390/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The information requested has been provided in the tables below. It should be noted that the information in these tables is not directly comparable as different reporting methods, and time periods, have been applied.

Attracting new investors to Northern Ireland, while important, is only a proportion of the work of Invest NI and the 11 councils, to grow the economy across Northern Ireland. Over the last three years, 93% of offers of support made by Invest NI were to locally-owned customers.

This support ranges from expert advice and guidance to a wide portfolio of financial support towards productivity improvement, skills development, strategic planning, job creation, Research & Development, technical capability and exporting.

Table 1 shows the number of visits by potential inward investors to constituency areas hosted by Invest NI in each of the years between 2017-18 and 2019-20.

As a result of this change the agency now measures the impact of its support based on key performance indicators (KPIs) gathered from a cohort of businesses which it works most intensely with. The agency now tracks the number of additional jobs these companies create each calendar year. Table 3 shows the number of additional jobs created in the 2017, 2018 and 2019 calendar years by inward investment companies supported by Invest NI.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 6571/17-22, for an update on (i) issues that exist within further education colleges regarding capacity and social distancing; (ii) any new delivery models introduced to assist remote learning; and (iii) what steps have been taken to address capacity issues regarding schools' partnership programmes with colleges.

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) In compliance with the Framework for Safe Resumption of On-Site Education and Related Activity (Framework Document), which was developed by the Advisory and Oversight Group (AOG) established by the Department, the FE colleges are maximising the number of learners as it is safe to facilitate on-site and delivering virtual learning when social distancing requirements restricts capacity. Current delivery models include a blend of both face-to-face and virtual learning, with the colleges balancing the delivery to take account of the level of the provision, needs of the course and the maturity of the learner. Since 16 October 2020, the NI Executive has introduced a number of additional, time bound Covid-19 related restrictions which require FE colleges to adjust their delivery models to ensure that they are delivering distance learning to the maximum extent possible, with face-to-face learning taking place when it is a necessary and unavoidable part of the course. These restrictions ended at midnight on 19th November 2020, but will be introduced again at midnight on 26th November 2020 for a further two weeks. When these time bound restrictions end, assuming no further restrictions are introduced, FE colleges will make plans to return to face-to-face onsite delivery for as many learners as it is safe to do so in accordance with the Framework Document.
- (ii) A working group has been set up to develop a sector-wide approach to the development and delivery of on-line learning across colleges. This enables the sharing of knowledge and skills between colleges and the adoption, where possible, of standard communication tools such as MS Teams which facilitates the sharing of standard e-learning packages for staff and learners between colleges.
- (iii) Department for the Economy officials have met with colleagues from the Department of Education over the last number of months in order to develop a shared understanding of the needs of schools and the pressures and implications for Further Education colleges, and to seek a resolution to these. As a result of these discussions, local solutions between colleges and schools at an individual level have been identified, implemented in many cases, and appear to be working well.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for the Economy whether there will be a review of BTEC qualifications this year in light of the impact of COVID-19.

(AQW 10444/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: To mitigate the ongoing impact of COVID-19, Pearson awarding organisation has reviewed its BTEC qualifications and a range of adaptations have been put in place, including changing how and when BTEC assessment takes place to alleviate pressures on schools and colleges and learners taking these qualifications.

The adaptations for each BTEC qualification are different to take account of their specific vocational context and assessment practices. Examples of adaptations include:

- making more teaching and learning time available by considering alternative conditions or by streamlining assessments;
- changing the way in which assessments are delivered, for example by using an online or remote assessment; and
- adapting assessment methods to take account of social distancing and public health guidance by using a practical simulation in place of an observation, or professional discussion in place of practical demonstrations.

BTECs are uninitiated qualifications. For learners who started two-year BTEC courses in September 2019, and intended to have completed some of the assessment requirements in the first year, a grade will be awarded for those units through the Extraordinary Regulatory Framework (ERF) which was implemented as part of the Summer 2020 Awarding Series. Unit grades were awarded in Summer 2020 and will account for all assessment that was due to take place between March - July 2020. Learners will therefore not be required to undertake any additional assessment for those units during the 2020/21 academic year.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for the Economy what support is being given to students undertaking BTEC qualifications to reduce the workload burden given the impact and the disruption caused by COVID-19.

(AQW 10445/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: To mitigate the ongoing impact of COVID-19, Pearson awarding organisation has reviewed its BTEC qualifications and a range of adaptations have been put in place, including changing how and when BTEC assessment takes place to alleviate pressures on schools and colleges and learners taking these qualifications.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for the Economy whether all BTEC coursework from the previous academic year will have to be completed by the end of this academic year.

(AQW 10446/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: To mitigate the ongoing impact of COVID-19, Pearson awarding organisation has reviewed its BTEC qualifications and a range of adaptations have been put in place, including changing how and when BTEC assessment takes place to alleviate pressures on schools and colleges and learners taking these qualifications.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy what support she will make available to sole traders who do not have tax returns for the entire periods of 2016/17, 2017/18 and 2018/19.
(AQW 10465/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Coronavirus global pandemic continues to present health, social and economic challenges that none of us have encountered in our lifetime.

The Executive and UK Government have responded with an unprecedented range and volume of financial support packages and continue to do so, in order to protect as many jobs and livelihoods as possible.

With the introduction of the recent restrictions and updated health regulations, once again, the Executive responded with a number of new financial support schemes to assist those most affected by these necessary public health decisions.

Following on from the introduction of the Local Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS), I announced a further package of support, the Coronavirus Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS), which aims to support those businesses directly impacted by the restrictions but who did not meet the eligibility criteria for the LRSS. Many sole traders are entitled to apply for either of these new schemes, depending on their specific business circumstances, and both of these schemes have now been extended in line with the period of continued restrictions.

Officials from my department are also developing a new scheme for the more recent self-employed, including sole traders, with an emphasis on those who have been excluded from previous offers of support, including the UK Government's Self-Employment Income Support Scheme.

Finally, in response to a bid that I have made to the Executive, a further £20 million of budget has been allocated to support company directors who have been without support up until now. I would encourage all stakeholders to monitor the NI Business Info website for details on these schemes in the near future.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy (i) how her Department is taking forward the recommendations of the OECD Skills Strategy report in relation to careers advice and guidance; and (ii) how she is working with ministerial colleagues to provide a more coherent and integrated approach to careers guidance.
(AQW 10468/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I have been briefed on the OECD's assessment of skills in Northern Ireland and I am aware that the findings will inform the new Skills Strategy, which is currently being developed.

The specific recommendations on careers advice and guidance have been incorporated will inform the draft Skills Strategy consultation document, which my Department is developing and which will be launched, subject to Executive agreement, in the New Year.

My Department's Careers Service, the Department of Education and the Careers Advisory Forum are aware of these recommendations from the OECD.

A coherent and integrated approach to careers education and guidance is crucial in ensuring learners make informed choices and are aware of the available pathways into higher education, further education, training and employment including apprenticeships. In addition, supporting people to develop their skills, especially those most in demand by employers, has never been more important.

My Department has a joint careers strategy in place with the Department of Education which will be reviewed by both Departments next year and will take account of the OECD recommendations and findings emerging from overarching strategies including the new Skills Strategy and the Transition of Young People into Careers (14-19) Project.

The Careers Advisory Forum which comprises representatives from education, business, and other key stakeholders including parents and the community and voluntary sector, provides advice to both Ministers.

In addition, my Department's Careers Service also works closely with colleagues in the Department for Communities to ensure careers guidance is provided to those who are facing redundancy or unemployment. The two Departments have jointly developed and launched a new Jobs & Skills campaign page on NI Direct which brings together all relevant information and services in a single, easy to navigate location. The new page can be accessed at: www.nidirect.gov.uk/campaigns/jobs-and-skills.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) what oversight and governance arrangements she has put in place to oversee the delivery of Project Stratum through construction phase; (ii) whether she has a mechanism for householders or businesses who will not benefit from the programme at present to be included in the scheme; and (iii) whether her Department will engage with the Department for Infrastructure to ensure that roads and streets, subject to any construction works, are left in an acceptable state when works are complete.

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The management structure for Project Stratum contains suitable tiers of coordination and project oversight, including a Project Board, a project management team and a number of dedicated officers to deliver specialised work packages. The structure follows HM Government best practice guidance and is based on PRINCE2™ methodology for project control and governance.

The Project Board will monitor progress and guide development in line with the provisions of the contract. The Project Management team will maintain and record information enabling the tracking of project outputs and outcomes.

In addition, external expertise will be secured to provide the necessary technical, commercial and financial assurance required throughout the implementation phase of the project.

- (ii) My Department will seek to address the 3% of premises from within the target intervention area that are currently out of scope. Discussions have already been advanced with the Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport and, now with Fibus Networks appointed as the preferred bidder, we are working to identify the solutions and costs to bring those premises into this intervention.
- (iii) Fibus Networks has an established line of engagement with the Department for Infrastructure and is a member of Northern Ireland Road Authority and Utility Committees. It is important to note that Fibus Networks intends to make significant use of existing infrastructure. My Department is satisfied that any streets or roads which are subject to construction work will be left in an acceptable state.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) when Fibus will be mobilised and commence work on delivering Project Stratum; (ii) whether she, in partnership with Fibus, will publish a detailed plan for construction works by postcode to include when works will start; and (iii) the number of properties that will benefit per postcode as an outcome of Project Stratum.

(AQW 10505/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) Fibus Networks Ltd has already commenced work on Project Stratum.
- (ii) A deployment plan will be published shortly by Fibus Networks on its Project Stratum-dedicated website at www.hyperfastni.com.
- (iii) Over 76,000 premises covering 12,096 postcodes will benefit from Project Stratum. An on-line postcode/address checker will be available in due course that will enable citizens and businesses to confirm when their premises are included for upgrade.

My Department will seek to address the 3% of premises within the target intervention area that are currently out of scope. Further details will be available in due course.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister for the Economy (i) how many properties are anticipated to benefit from Project Stratum in the South Antrim constituency; and (ii) whether the postcodes of those South Antrim properties have been published.

(AQW 10528/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The project will deliver gigabit-capable broadband infrastructure to more than 76,000 primarily rural premises across Northern Ireland, 5,203 of which are in the South Antrim Constituency.
- (ii) The postcodes containing those premises have not been published. A deployment plan and anticipated schedule, as agreed by my Department, will be published shortly by Fibus Networks on its Project Stratum dedicated website at www.hyperfastni.com. This will include an on-line postcode/address checker that will enable citizens and businesses to confirm when their premises are included for upgrade. The website will be updated and expanded in the weeks ahead.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for the Economy (i) whether she has suspended the RHI 2020 tariff review; (ii) the reasons for this; and (iii) whether a Ministerial Direction was issued.

(AQW 10534/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- i) As I previously advised you in my response to AQO 771/17-22, the tariff review has been paused.
- ii) The reason for pausing the work on the tariff review is to allow work on closure of the scheme to proceed. The Cornwall tariff recommendations together with analysis of recent fuel price movements are being taken into account in options relating to scheme closure.
- iii) A Ministerial Direction has not been issued in relation to the tariff review.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister for the Economy, as part of the economic recovery from COVID-19, and learning from new ways of working adopted over the course of the pandemic in terms of virtual working and working from home, whether she will consider work hubs in towns across Northern Ireland which would provide workspace and virtual meeting facilities.

(AQW 10549/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive policy throughout the time of this public health crisis has been to advocate that where people can work from home, they should. This has resulted in the provision of modern and suitable Information Technology equipment and software for tens of thousands of workers across the public and private sectors, with only those that are required to attend their place of work, being asked to do so.

I believe that these enforced actions have changed the working environment landscape of the future, especially for workers who can work remotely and from their own homes. Although much too early to be certain, there are indications that this new way of working can have regional economic benefits, especially for our towns and cities out with Belfast.

My immediate economic focus and that of my Executive colleagues at this time, is on supporting the businesses, people and places most heavily impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic, and creating a foundation on which to promote economic recovery and deliver a greener, competitive and inclusive economy.

Beyond this, I will be bringing forward a longer-term vision for the economy, which will set out the economic policy objectives that demonstrate how we will seek to drive economic growth and prosperity for the benefit of all.

In addition, a High Street Taskforce has been established by The Executive Office, with representation from many external stakeholders from a range of sectors, working alongside officials from relevant government departments and other public bodies. The issue of work hubs in our local towns throughout Northern Ireland has been raised at a very early stage in these discussions, so I believe that this is something that will be explored further as we move collectively from economic response towards a pathway of sustained recovery and rebuilding for our entire economy.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister for the Economy what plans she has to develop a comprehensive strategy for students to support and advance their higher and further educational journeys and to address issues such as (i) mental health; (ii) student housing; and (iii) financial support.

(AQW 10558/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

Mental Health

Mental health is a key priority for the Department, the Executive and all of Northern Ireland. My Department is represented on a cross-departmental working group, recently established to support the development of a Mental Health Strategy for those struggling with mental health issues, including students.

As autonomous bodies, the Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) are responsible for their own policies and procedures in relation to mental health provision. Each university takes the health and safety, including mental wellbeing, of students very seriously and each has an extensive variety of mental health provision available for students. Additional funding of £1.4m was granted during the early stages of the pandemic for additional hardship funds for HEIs. They have the use of this money and they oversee its expenditure. My officials also conducted an internal review of Mental Health provision within the HE sector and we were pleased to note a robust and proactive offering available across the institutions. I am pleased that the Mental Health of our student population is treated so seriously and this level of service is provided.

Higher fee charging HE providers are required to use at least 10% of their additional fee income to fund outreach and retention activities that help disadvantaged and under-represented students to continue their studies. This includes students with a disability, including mental health conditions. HE providers have demonstrated through their annual Widening Access and Participation Plans that they recognise growing concerns in relation to mental health and have a number of programmes in place, some of which are specific to mental health conditions and some which offer support more generally. HE Providers have flexibility to use this additional fee income as they choose, subject to the Department's approval, which could be on additional mental health provision.

All Further Education (FE) colleges continue to have in place a range of learner support arrangements aimed at promoting the health and wellbeing and ensuring safeguarding of all learners by providing them with access to appropriate guidance and support. A range of college staff are qualified to identify, provide support for and direct learners, who are considered to be at risk, to the appropriate help and advice.

This work has been stepped up in response to COVID-19 to ensure support is available for learners in this period of challenge.

Student Housing

While my Department is responsible for higher education policy in relation to teaching and research, as autonomous institutions, the HEIs are ultimately responsible for their own policies in relation to student accommodation. This includes setting the cost and also ensuring there are robust protocols in place to minimise the spread of Covid 19. My Department has no role in determining the cost of student accommodation, whether that is for university-managed Halls of Residence or private rental.

Financial Support

I am aware of the financial challenges faced by both HE and FE students which include barriers to education for some. Each year my Department makes available Support Funds to the local HEIs, for distribution to students who can demonstrate genuine financial hardship. Priority should be given to the following groups of students: Mature students; to lone parents and those students who are not eligible for Childcare Grant; to disabled students who are not in receipt of Disabled Students' Allowance (DSA); to care leavers; to students who are homeless or who are living in Foyers (these provide accommodation, guidance and support for homeless young people); and final year students who are experiencing financial difficulty.

Following my successful bid to the Executive for £1.4m in additional support funds, and subsequently matching that amount from within my own Departmental budget, the total available for support funds in the financial 2020/21 year has now doubled to £5.6m.

Postgraduate Student Support Review

You may also be interested to note that my officials are currently undertaking a review of postgraduate student support. The Postgraduate Loan Review is a complex piece of work comprising differing strands of the postgraduate funding systems in Northern Ireland. The appropriateness of the current postgraduate fee loan, of up to £5,500 towards the cost of taught postgraduate courses, will be reviewed alongside a range of potential options for maintenance loans or grants. Separate from that, there will be a review of the Postgraduate Awards Scheme. It is anticipated that my Department will publish a full public consultation regarding potential options in relation to the Postgraduate Loan Review in the coming weeks.

Digital Poverty

I fully recognise the importance of alleviating digital poverty amongst higher education students especially given the importance of online teaching in the current situation. My Department already provides a non-repayable maintenance grant to students from lower income households, which can be used to purchase the necessary IT equipment to complete their course. As well as this grant, the HEIs have a range of measures in place to help reduce digital poverty among their students.

For example, Ulster University provides access bursaries to students from families on income support; students can decide how to spend the bursaries themselves, including on technology. Ulster University also uses the Department's Widening Access Funds to stock its libraries with laptops, for students from a widening access background to use on a loan basis. Ulster University has also created a Technology Support Fund, whereby the University procures and provides securely imaged laptops for its most disadvantaged students, to enable them to adapt to teaching and learning in the hybrid, dual teaching mode envisaged for the 2020/21 academic year. The University has committed to supplying 1,000 laptops free to students who meet the eligibility criteria.

Queen's University has recently introduced a long-term laptop loan scheme, with no loan or hire fees to the student, to enable and support students who may be unable to access the relevant equipment to study online due to financial hardship, digital exclusion, or circumstances specifically related to Covid-19. Queen's is also seeking to ensure that students will have access to digital resources on-site, for example in the library, where Public Health regulations permit.

Students at Stranmillis University College have ready access to significant IT equipment and infrastructure across its campus, including a number of dedicated IT rooms. IT facilities are also available in the University College's library. As well as being able to access on-campus IT equipment, students at St Mary's University College can borrow laptops from the institution if needed.

Following the cessation of on-site training and learning due to Covid-19 in March 2020, further education (FE) colleges moved quickly to adapt their provision to meet the needs of their learners with over three-quarters of learners able to access provision on-line, thereby enabling students and staff to work remotely from home during this period of uncertainty and complete learners' vocational qualifications. Additional funding of over £3.1 million was allocated to colleges which will provide additional IT equipment, peripherals and licences to allow continued access from home for both college staff and students.

For eligible FE students, there are a range of permanent student financial support arrangements that have been in place over many years. These include FE Grants, College Hardship Fund (both of which include childcare support), Care to Learn (NI) Scheme, Free School Meals, Home to College Transport and Clothing Allowance.

During the pandemic, my Department ensured that current FE student support arrangements continued to operate effectively, or were adapted to direct support to students in need. A comprehensive review of the collective package of FE Student Support is currently underway and my Department will continue to keep FE student support arrangements under review and adapt these as required in response to evolving needs.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for the Economy what plans her Department has for the reintroduction of face-to-face learning at further education colleges.

(AQW 10559/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: From 1 September 2020, all Further Education (FE) colleges resumed on-site educational provision and related activity following its cessation in March due to the COVID-19 pandemic. In compliance with the Framework for Safe Resumption of On-Site Education and Related Activity (Framework Document), which was developed and published by the Advisory and Oversight Group established by my Department, the FE colleges maximised the number of learners for whom on-site learning could safely be provided.

Since 16 October 2020, the NI Executive has introduced a number of additional, time bound Covid-19 related restrictions which require FE colleges to adjust their delivery models to ensure that they are delivering distance learning to the maximum extent possible, with only essential face-to-face learning where that is a necessary and unavoidable part of the course. These restrictions ended at midnight on 19th November 2020, but will be introduced again at midnight on 26th November 2020 for a further two weeks. When these time bound restrictions end, assuming no further restrictions are introduced by the Executive, FE colleges will make plans to return to face-to-face onsite delivery for as many learners as it is safe to do so in accordance with the Framework Document.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether examinations for students at regional technical colleges will go ahead this academic year.

(AQW 10644/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: From the outset of the pandemic, my Department has been working closely with key stakeholders, including the further education sector, through a Departmental Task & Finish Group, to respond to the emerging challenges with regard to the safe and effective delivery of vocational qualifications.

It is anticipated that examinations will proceed this year as these are the fairest and most reliable means of assessment and awarding organisations have put in place flexible contingency measures and adaptations for providers to be able to respond appropriately to changing needs throughout the academic year and to effectively support learners to complete their courses of study.

The Department will continue to closely monitor the situation in conjunction with key delivery partners in anticipation of any further emerging needs.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will consider introducing statutory bereavement pay for employees following the death of a close relative or partner.

(AQW 10671/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I am committed during this Assembly mandate to bringing forward legislation for the introduction of parental bereavement leave and pay; I am not currently considering a more general right to statutory paid bereavement leave.

That said, I do recognise and understand that bereavement has a detrimental impact on those suffering the loss of a loved one. Many employers already offer paid compassionate or special leave as a way of supporting staff in these circumstances and I would encourage more to do so.

Even in the event of an employer not offering paid bereavement leave, all employees have a 'day 1' right to unpaid time off to deal with emergencies involving dependents, which includes the death of a dependent. This right extends to attending the funeral of a dependent and for arranging the funeral or making any other necessary practical arrangements.

I am also aware that this issue has been raised in the UK Parliament and I have asked my officials to keep me informed of developments.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for the Economy who will own the broadband infrastructure asset that will be in place upon delivery of Project Stratum.

(AQW 10707/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The infrastructure deployed under Project Stratum will be operated by Fibrus Networks Ltd. Some of the infrastructure will be owned and maintained by Fibrus Networks Ltd, and some will be leased or rented by Fibrus Networks Ltd, under commercial arrangements, from other telecommunications infrastructure providers who may already have physical infrastructure deployed in an area.

Any new infrastructure built by Fibrus Networks Ltd will be an Open Access Network, where other telecommunications companies will be able to rent or lease the new infrastructure or services on a wholesale basis, thereby enabling them to provide consumers with retail broadband services.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what role her Department has in regulating the Liquefied Petroleum Gas market in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 10741/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has no role in regulating the Liquefied Petroleum Gas market in Northern Ireland, and there are no plans to introduce regulation.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for the Economy whether the High Street Voucher Scheme will be able to be spent in all high streets across Northern Ireland, including rural towns and villages.

(AQW 10745/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The delivery of a Northern Ireland wide High Street Stimulus Scheme will inject £95m into our local economy. The multiplier effect of this innovative scheme – from people spending more than the value of the card and the ripple effects from purchases – will deliver even greater economic benefits and make a significant step to kick-starting our recovery.

The scheme will provide individuals with a prepaid card to be spent at 'bricks and mortar' businesses including retail, restaurants and hotels before the end of March 2021. It will not be available for online sales.

The Department for the Economy has been provided with a financial allocation and has a clear policy objective for this funding, it is now assessing how this funding can best deliver the policy intent, including the card value and how it will be delivered.

In developing the Northern Ireland High Street Stimulus scheme, the Department will implement learnings from Jersey, Malta and other jurisdictions that have rolled out similar initiatives.

It is anticipated that the scheme will to 'go live' in early 2021 and will be subject to public health guidance.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister for the Economy how apprenticeships in areas such as hospitality are continuing in the context of the latest COVID-19 restrictions.

(AQW 10779/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: We are all in an unprecedented situation and my Department will be closely monitoring programme activity to ensure the continued delivery of the Apprenticeships programmes across all sectors - including Hospitality. In relation to sustaining training, my Department has published information for employers and apprentices in respect of COVID-19. This information reflects the current guidance and is updated as the situation evolves. Going forward, updated Key Messages will be shared with the Further Education Colleges and Training Contractors delivering the ApprenticeshipsNI Programme as and when is necessary. Apprenticeship training will continue to be delivered in line with government guidelines and, in the meantime, training suppliers have been asked to facilitate online learning and learning portfolio building work where possible. Alternative assessment/awards measures for vocational qualifications have been developed in conjunction with the Department of Education, CCEA, Awarding Organisations and other key stakeholders. An Apprenticeship Recovery Package has also been developed that will channel financial support to local businesses – including hospitality - to help our apprenticeship system respond to the impact of the COVID-19 crisis. This Package includes short term interventions, which are intended to minimise apprenticeship job losses, maintain and grow the supply of apprenticeship opportunities and support apprentices who have been displaced and lost their apprenticeship.

Dr Archibald asked the Minister for the Economy (i) what financial support she has made available specifically to support businesses to prepare for Brexit; and (ii) what additional financial support she will be making available specifically to support businesses to prepare for Brexit.

(AQW 10782/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Support is available to businesses to prepare for EU Exit through both Invest NI and InterTradeIreland.

Invest NI's Brexit Preparation Grant was launched in 2019. The scheme provides assistance of up to £50,000 at a maximum grant rate of 50%. It is flexible and can be used to address a range of EU Exit issues and opportunities with an individual business. Invest NI also provides a wide range of advisory supports to help businesses prepare for EU Exit, including access to one to one advice from specialist advisors. These supports are available to all businesses.

InterTradeIreland's Brexit Advisory Service offers £2k fully funded voucher support, giving businesses impacted by EU Exit access to a consultant who will work with the business to help them prepare.

I have also submitted a bid through Department of Finance to Treasury for additional support for business in this and the next financial year. However, we are still waiting for formal confirmation of the outcome.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy whether there will be restrictions on what the High Street Voucher Scheme can be used for.

(AQW 10815/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The delivery of a Northern Ireland wide High Street Stimulus Scheme will inject £95m into our local economy. The multiplier effect of this innovative scheme – from people spending more than the value of the card and the ripple effects from purchases – will deliver even greater economic benefits and make a significant step to kick-starting our recovery.

It is anticipated that the scheme will to 'go live' in early 2021 and will be subject to public health guidance.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy how the £95 million voucher scheme announced will be distributed.

(AQW 10818/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The delivery of a Northern Ireland wide High Street Stimulus Scheme will inject £95m into our local economy. The multiplier effect of this innovative scheme – from people spending more than the value of the card and the ripple effects from purchases – will deliver even greater economic benefits and make a significant step to kick-starting our recovery.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy, in light of the announcement of £44.3 million for one-off heating payments of £200 for disabled people on higher rate Disability Living Allowance or Personal Independence Payment, whether an individual has to be in receipt of both the higher rates of the daily living and mobility components, or just one or the other component, to qualify for this payment.

(AQW 10819/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: This question has been transferred to me, as Minister for Communities, to respond as the issue falls within my area of responsibility.

The Covid-19 Heating Payment will be made to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children.

Those in receipt of Disability Living Allowance will be eligible for the Covid-19 Heating Payment if they receive either the highest rate care element or the higher rate mobility element, or both.

Those in receipt of Personal Independence Payment will be eligible if they receive either the enhanced rate daily living element or the enhanced rate mobility element, or both.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for the Economy why the regulation of the cost of Liquid Petroleum Gas does not come under the remit of the NI Utility Regulator.

(AQW 10831/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The remit of the Utility Regulator in relation to the energy sector is established by legislation through the Energy (NI) Order 2003, and through provisions in the Gas (NI) Order 1996, and the Electricity (NI) Order 1992. The remit does not provide for the regulation of Liquid Petroleum Gas. Any change to this remit would be a matter for the Assembly.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for the Economy (i) how many undergraduate and post-graduate teaching degrees her Department will be making available in Northern Ireland for students to enter in 2021/22; (ii) for a breakdown of how her Department has come to decide on that number; and (iii) for a breakdown of where those degrees will be delivered.

(AQW 10844/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: While the Department for the Economy has responsibility for the administration and funding of Initial Teacher Education (ITE) in Northern Ireland, it is the Department of Education that has responsibility for the determination of student intake allocations to the Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) each year.

My Department is not yet in a position to provide details for the 2021/22 academic year. Work is ongoing to gather the necessary information needed to make a decision on next year's intake numbers and consideration will be given to this in due course, with a view to notifying the HEIs of the outcome in early 2021. The decision making process will be based on a number of relevant factors, including the predicted future need for teachers across the NI education system.

Once the final figures have been decided and the HEIs informed, the details will be published on the Department's website here: <https://www.education-ni.gov.uk/articles/approved-intakes-initial-teacher-education-courses>.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy, given that the Scottish government has recently created a £5 million fund to address digital poverty in colleges and universities, and the ROI government has announced that 17,000 laptops will be made available for third level students, what her plans are to address the digital divide in Further Education and Higher Education in the new academic year.

(AQW 10863/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I fully recognise the importance of alleviating digital poverty among further and higher education students, especially given the importance of online teaching in our current situation.

With 42% of FE learners in Northern Ireland coming from the two lowest deprivation quintiles, digital poverty is a real issue for learners in FE colleges. Following on from the additional £1.078m which I secured during the initial lockdown period to support colleges to purchase laptops, related equipment and software for financially vulnerable learners, I have now secured and allocated a further £2.1 million to the FE colleges to provide staff and students with the necessary equipment in the 2020/21 academic year.

Alongside this, FE colleges are working together to develop a shared best practice approach which will help learners to build up their skills and confidence in the online environment, and to ensure they have access to the best possible online learning experience. This approach will also be informed by the findings from a survey which is due to take place in December 2020 to capture the experience of learners in both online and on-site provision.

In relation to higher education, my Department already provides a non-repayable maintenance grant to students from lower income households, which can be used to purchase the necessary IT equipment to complete their course. As well as this grant, the universities have a range of measures in place to help reduce digital poverty among their students.

For example, Ulster University provides access bursaries to students from families on income support; students can decide how to spend the bursaries themselves, including on technology. Dr Archibald asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the postcodes in the East Derry constituency which will be included in the roll out of Project Stratum.

(AQW 10896/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Project Stratum will deliver gigabit-capable broadband infrastructure to more than 76,000 primarily rural premises across Northern Ireland. Of these, 2,883 are in the East Londonderry Constituency. The postcodes containing those premises have not been published. A deployment plan and anticipated schedule, as agreed by my Department, will be published shortly by Fibrus Networks on its Project Stratum dedicated website at www.hyperfastni.com. This will include an on-line postcode/address checker that will enable citizens and businesses to confirm when their premises are included for upgrade. The website will be updated and expanded in the weeks ahead.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail eligibility of stores for the £95 million High Street Voucher Scheme.

(AQW 10932/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department for the Economy has been provided with a financial allocation for a Northern Ireland wide High Street Stimulus scheme and has a clear policy objective for this funding.

The scheme will provide individuals with a prepaid card to be spent at 'bricks and mortar' businesses including retail, restaurants and hotels before the end of March 2021. It will not be available for online sales.

The delivery of the scheme will inject £95m into our local economy. The multiplier effect of this innovative financial support offering – from people spending more than the value of the card and the ripple effects from purchases – will deliver even greater economic benefits and make a significant step to kick-starting our recovery.

In developing the specifics of the Northern Ireland High Street Stimulus scheme, the Department will implement learnings from Jersey, Malta and other jurisdictions that have rolled out similar initiatives. This will include considerations such as the card value, and how the card will operate in practice.

It is anticipated that the scheme will to 'go live' in early 2021 and its implementation will take into account all public health guidance.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will advise Northern Ireland universities to deliver teaching online until Easter to help prevent the spread of COVID-19.

(AQW 10948/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: While my Department is responsible for higher education policy in relation to the funding of teaching and research, as autonomous institutions, the universities are ultimately responsible for their own policies regarding how they deliver provision, and my Department has no formal remit to intervene. That said, I would expect any provision to be entirely in line with Public Health Agency advice.

I and my officials are in regular contact with our universities and university colleges, and each of them have confirmed that the health, safety and wellbeing of their staff and students is their first priority.

Mr O'Dowd asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the number of the COVID-19 cases reported in further education colleges, broken down by campus.

(AQW 10963/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The table below sets out the self-reported positive COVID-19 cases in each Further Education college from 1 September 2020 to 20 November 2020. A break down by campus is not available.

Cohort	Belfast Metropolitan College	Northern Regional College	North West Regional College	South Eastern Regional College	Southern Regional College	South West Regional College	Total
Staff	19	15	28	11	15	18	106
Learners	136	46	92	83	87	46	490

Northern Ireland Assembly Commission

Miss Woods asked the Assembly Commission whether it is mandatory to wear face coverings within (i) Parliament Buildings; and (ii) the Assembly Chamber.

(AQW 10563/17-22)

Mr Butler (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): Since 18 March 2020, the Assembly Commission has implemented a wide range of COVID-19 mitigation measures throughout Parliament Buildings. These measures stem from the extant Regulations (including those that specially deal with wearing face coverings) and guidance and from the risk assessments that have been carried out within Parliament Buildings.

At all times, the Assembly Commission has ensured that its COVID-19 response has been in accordance with the Regulations issued by the Executive and the guidance issued by relevant agencies such as the Public Health Agency.

The Regulations that deal with face coverings do not include a provision that it is mandatory that face coverings must be worn in Parliament Buildings. The guidance that accompanies the Regulations strongly recommends that face coverings are worn in indoor public settings where social distancing of 2 metres or more cannot be maintained consistently.

The Assembly Commission has consistently maintained a regime of 2 metres social distancing in all areas of Parliament Buildings, including in the Assembly Chamber. This proactive action and the absence of a requirement in the Regulations means that the wearing of face coverings is not mandatory in Parliament Buildings.

Even though it is not mandatory to wear face coverings in Parliament Buildings or in the Assembly Chamber, the Assembly Commission will continue to respond to the challenges posed by COVID-19 through adherence to the prevailing Regulations and guidance.

Written Answers to Questions

The Executive Office

Mr McGrath asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what representations they have made to the US Government, through the Northern Ireland Bureau, relating to the actions of the police against the Black community and peaceful demonstrators.

(AQW 4691/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): We are saddened by what we have seen taking place across the US and the underlying issues that have led to this. The particular issue of racial inequality is one that we all need to tackle and peaceful protests are an important part of a free Society.

In that context, the Bureau is continuing to work on behalf of the Executive, as it has done for many years, to promote the regions capability in policing, including community policing and reform, to US stakeholders, including the US Government.

The Bureau has engaged very recently with NI-CO, the not-for-profit public body that exports public sector capability abroad, to explore ways in which our public sector capability in this area could be highlighted at Federal or State level, particularly in current circumstances.

We have a virtual meeting with US Special Envoy, Mick Mulvaney, to discuss a number of issues of common concern.

Mr McGrath asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what reviews of fair employment legislation have been carried out since publication of the Racial Equality Strategy 2015-2025.

(AQW 5174/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The Racial Equality Strategy 2015-2015 committed the Department to a review of our Fair Employment legislation to examine the case for requiring registered employers here, in addition to monitoring the community background and sex of their employees and job applicants, to collect monitoring information on nationality and ethnic origin.

The Strategy also committed the Department to examine where ethnic monitoring should be introduced. This is a process to collect, store and analyse data about people's ethnic background, which is critical for monitoring service usage and ensuring services are meeting users' needs.

To fulfil these commitments, research commissioned by the Department into ethnic monitoring also examined the case for amending Fair Employment legislation to require registered employers to collect monitoring information on nationality and ethnic origin.

The final research report is expected in the coming weeks and its findings will be considered by the Department to inform future policy proposals.

Mr O'Toole asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when the Executive plans to discuss the provision of abortion services in Northern Ireland in line with the new legislative framework.

(AQW 10647/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: The timing of any discussion on this matter would be subject to the submission of specific proposals by the Health Minister.

Dr Archibald asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the implementation of the provisions of section 19 of the Employment Act 2016, including reporting on the gender pay gap and other statistics on workers such as ethnicity and disability across pay bands.

(AQW 11009/17-22)

Mrs Arlene Foster and Mrs Michelle O'Neill: Policy responsibility for gender matters rests with the Department for Communities (DfC) following the departmental reorganisation in 2016. DfC is currently working to develop a new Gender Strategy. The timing of the Employment Act did not allow for the allocation of the gender pay provisions to the DfC, however a Transfer of Functions Order to transfer responsibility for the gender pay provisions to the DfC is currently making its way through the Assembly.

Under the Racial Equality Strategy 2015-2025 TEO committed to review the need for ethnic monitoring. A report was commissioned and officials will consider the recommendations and any connectivity with section 19 of the Employment Act.

Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what plans he has to strengthen legislation on graffiti.

(AQW 10705/17-22)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs): There are powers available to district councils to tackle graffiti which the formal guidance stipulates they should use in the first instance so that they can claim the costs of removal from the perpetrators and pursue offenders. The pertinent legislation relating to graffiti is Article 18 of the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) (NI) Order 1985. This legislation was transferred from the former Department of the Environment to the Department for Communities under the Departments (Transfer of Functions) Order (NI) 2016 (Schedule 5, Part 1).

The Clean Neighbourhoods & Environment Act (NI) 2011 enables district councils to serve a 'defacement removal notice' ("DRN") on the owners, occupiers, operators of 'relevant surfaces', statutory undertakers and educational institutions whose property is defaced with graffiti. However, DRNs are not intended to be used to deal with new cases of graffiti, rather to enable district councils to clear surfaces defaced by graffiti over time.

While I currently have no plans to amend the DRN legislation, DAERA is responsible for the anti-litter and dog fouling provisions of the Clean Neighbourhoods & Environment Act (NI) 2011 and my officials are currently completing a review of the Fixed Penalty Notices available to district councils for litter and dog fouling offences. The findings of this review will be included as part of the draft 'Environment Strategy for Northern Ireland' which will be consulted upon in the spring.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs, pursuant to AQW 5710/17-22, for an exact date on which we can expect the updated Biodiversity Strategy for Northern Ireland.

(AQW 11012/17-22)

Mr Poots: In my previous response, I highlighted that a first draft of the Biodiversity Strategy was anticipated to be complete by late 2021.

This timescale is dependant on a number of factors, including agreement of new post 2020 international targets; the level of detail and support from other Departments and a wide range of organisations in developing strategic objectives. Also, the range and timing of other initiatives which will have a bearing on the strategy and the internal resources available for developing the document.

Once a draft is developed, it will require formal consultation with all stakeholders; detailed scrutiny including the AERA Committee and, as the strategy is cross cutting, Executive agreement.

Given the above, it may be the beginning of 2022 before we will be in a position to publish a final Biodiversity Strategy for the period up to 2030. Therefore, unfortunately, it is not possible to provide you with an exact date for finalising a new strategy at this time.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what recent progress has been made on the designation of (i) the East Coast (Northern Ireland); and (ii) Carlingford Lough marine proposed Special Protection Areas.

(AQW 11351/17-22)

Mr Poots: Recent progress related to the designation of these sites has been the ongoing liaison with officials in the Republic of Ireland to agree boundary delineation for the Carlingford Lough SPA extension. When completed, this and East Coast (Northern Ireland) marine SPA will be classified as soon as practicable.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs (i) what engagements he has had with the British Government regarding preparations of the implementation of a customs IT system for dealing with trade between the north of Ireland and GB from 1 January 2021; and (ii) for his assessment on the impacts on trade if the customs IT system is not ready post-Brexit.

(AQW 11401/17-22)

Mr Poots: My officials have regular and ongoing engagement with Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs regarding preparations of the implementation of a customs IT system for dealing with trade in relation to goods requiring Sanitary and Phytosanitary inspections between Northern Ireland and Great Britain from 1 January 2021.

DAERA officials have some concerns that the relevant HMRC systems may not be fully functional on 1 January 2021 however they have ensured that contingency plans are in place which will minimise the impact on the trade for goods requiring Sanitary and Phytosanitary controls.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs how many complaints in relation to hedge cutting during the bird breeding season were received by his Department for the years (i) 2018; (ii) 2019; and (iii) 2020 to date. (AQW 11432/17-22)

Mr Poots: The Department can receive complaints from the public about hedge cutting during the bird-breeding season in relation to The Wildlife (Northern Ireland) Order 1985 as amended and the Cross Compliance Verifiable Standards.

Departmental officials have no legal powers of entry onto land to investigate reports of nesting bird disturbance. This part of the legislation is enforced by the PSNI and thus my Department's role is advisory. When appropriate, the Department advises complainants to contact the PSNI to log an official incident. The Department does not have access to PSNI statistics on officially logged incidents.

My Department has developed guidance for the public for wildlife crime reporting in conjunction with the PSNI and other stakeholders. This can be viewed at: <https://www.wildlifecrimeni.org/>

Cross-compliance Verifiable Standards relate to farm businesses in receipt of Area-based Scheme payments, and require their adherence to Statutory Management Requirements (SMR's) and Good Agricultural and Environmental Conditions (GAEC's).

GAEC 7 of the cross-compliance verifiable standards relates to Retention of Landscape Features. Amongst the various requirements of GAEC 7 is included the requirement for a farm business not to cut hedges, trees or scrub (with certain exceptions) between 1 March and 31 August.

My Department records incoming cross-compliance complaints centrally and issues these to relevant divisions and units for consideration and investigation. However, potential incidents from the public are not categorised and logged formally at this initial stage in a way that permits determination of numbers by SMR / GAEC type. Only when investigation of incidents have been considered and confirmed as breaches, are incidents formally assigned to the relevant Cross-compliance categories in a manner that permits determination of the number of incidents involved. The number of incidents that were confirmed breaches and penalised in relation to cutting hedges, trees and scrub between 1 March and 31 August for the years 2018, 2019 and 2020, were: 6, 8 and 13 respectively.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for an update on the recently announced Forest for our Future programme. (AQO 1262/17-22)

Mr Poots: I announced the 'Forests for Our Future' programme, in March, which aims to plant 18 million trees to create 9,000 hectares of new woodland over the next decade. The programme has commenced and includes working across government departments and councils, encouraging and supporting public and private landowners, communities and individuals to plant trees to help meet the UK government net-zero carbon target. In addition, it will provide opportunities for economic growth, enhancement of biodiversity, and enable more people to improve their health and wellbeing through access to woodland.

Forests for our Future will be a foundation programme of the Executive's Green Growth strategy in which my Department is leading development. This aims to transform our society towards net zero carbon by 2050, protect and enhance our environment and to sustainably grow the economy.

I launched the 'Forests for Our Future' programme at a public tree planting event in March at which 500 school pupils planted the first 1000 trees.

I opened a revised Forest Expansion Scheme, in June, with a reduced minimum eligible area of 3 hectares. The response is encouraging with 92 applications received for 547 hectares of new woodland, approximately double the applications made last year. I visited a recent tree planting project in the Mourne supported by the Forest Expansion Scheme where a landowner has created 40 hectares of new native woodland (about 100,000 trees) in partnership with the Woodland Trust. I also planted a tree on NI Water land nearby, which signals the commencement of a large tree planting programme on their estate to off-set their carbon footprint.

I have commissioned the development of an additional Small Woodland Grant Scheme and established an Afforestation Forum to make plans for planting suitable public and council land.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to outline the amount of public expenditure that has been allocated to the Lough Neagh Fishermen's Co-operative Society since 2010. (AQO 1267/17-22)

Mr Poots: The Lough Neagh Fishermen's Co-operative Society Ltd has received public money annually for the stocking of juvenile eels, referred to as glass eels, into Lough Neagh, which are sourced from other stocks in the UK or the European Union. This is an approved conservation measure to help conserve stocks of the 'Critically Endangered' European eel.

Since 2009/10 the Department has contributed over £850,000 in public funding and the European Union has contributed over £1.1 million. The Lough Neagh Fishermen's Co-operative Society Ltd has also made a significant financial contribution of over £1.3 million to this conservation measure.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of the health of marine life in Belfast Lough.

(AQO 1266/17-22)

Mr Poots: My Department undertakes a comprehensive marine monitoring programme assessing chemical and biological indicators across Northern Ireland. Assessments within Belfast Lough show that marine life is at good or high status, with over 1,000 benthic species recorded. Outer Belfast Lough Marine Conservation Zone was deemed at unfavourable status in 2015 as a precaution due to observed damage and slow recruitment of the long-lived Ocean quahog. Assessments are on a six year rolling cycle with an overall classification for each water body given at the end of each cycle.

There are numerous Harbour seals in the sheltered waters of Belfast Lough. Grey seal populations are increasing on the Copeland Islands, in line with overall increases across Northern Ireland in the past 20 years. Dolphins and porpoises are regularly seen in the Lough.

Belfast Lough is also an internationally important site for wintering waterbirds and is protected by several designations. Some bird species are currently in unfavourable condition. However, these declines are on an international scale although site-specific factors may play some role too. In contrast, some species have increased substantially within the Lough since designation, particularly Eider and Black-tailed Godwit.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs what measures are being taken to protect and encourage the resurgence of native wildlife species.

(AQO 1265/17-22)

Mr Poots: There are a range of measures in place to protect and encourage native wildlife and the habitats they depend on. Legislation protects a number of native species, both directly and indirectly, by controlling the pressures and threats to them, such as illegal killing, disturbance and the spread of invasive alien species.

My Department's primary measure to protect and encourage native wildlife is the designation and management of habitats and species in areas important for nature conservation, such as Areas of Special Scientific Interest (ASSIs) and Special Areas of Conservation (SACs). These areas and their features are afforded special protection.

In addition, conservation actions for enhancing habitats and species are provided through my Department's Environmental Farming Scheme and Management of Sensitive Sites scheme (MOSS). My Department is currently progressing a comprehensive programme to develop conservation management plans for our SACs, which will define the necessary conservation measures to move the sites towards favourable condition.

My Department maintains lists of priority habitats and priority species which require conservation action and which can occur beyond designated (ie, protected) sites. These are used for regulatory and advisory purposes, e.g, for statutory planning advice and to target incentives for positive action, such the Environmental Farming Scheme and provision of grant-aid to conservation bodies for nature conservation projects through the Environment Fund.

My officials will work with stakeholders, including landowners, conservation bodies, local authorities and other Government Departments to ensure that key actions and practices are encouraged to protect and support our native species.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of damage caused to waterways in West Tyrone as a result of a peat slide at Meenbog, County Donegal.

(AQO 1264/17-22)

Mr Poots: I visited the Meenbog site in the aftermath of the incident, and clearly the Mourne Beg and Derg rivers have each been affected by the landslide. It is not yet possible however to determine the full impact on the flora, fauna or fish stocks due to the high turbid flows in both rivers.

The Northern Ireland Environment Agency has commenced a programme of water sampling on the Mourne Beg and Derg Rivers to assess the impact on water quality. A further investigation into the impacts on the aquatic invertebrates will take place once water levels have subsided sufficiently to allow access to the rivers.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs for his assessment of how the £34 million reduction in rural funding, proposed by the Treasury, will impact on rural affairs policy and the rural policy framework locally.

(AQO 1263/17-22)

Mr Poots: As you know I strongly disagree with the UK Government proposal to reduce the level of funding that Treasury should be providing in the coming budget period. I wrote to the Minister of Finance in October highlighting the concerns in respect of these Treasury proposals. More recently along with Devolved Ministers - Lesley Griffiths MS, Minister for Environment, Energy and Rural Affairs in the Welsh Government and Fergus Ewing MSP, Cabinet Secretary for Rural Economy and Tourism in Scotland – we have written collectively to the UK Government calling for assurances that all lost EU funding will be fully replaced to provide certainty for the rural economy.

My officials have been drafting a new Rural Policy Framework which I hope to launch for public consultation early in the New Year. This work along with the developmental and preparatory work on the need to support agriculture and the environment will continue and I will work to secure the necessary resources to fund much needed interventions that are clearly evidenced.

Rural areas and rural communities make an important contribution to the social and economic life of the region and it is important that sufficient funding is made available to rural communities going forward to help sustain them; support balanced regional growth; and to help tackle rural disadvantage.

Department for Communities

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities whether those people in receipt of Tax Credits, who applied unsuccessfully for Universal Credit during lockdown and subsequently lost their legacy benefit, will receive compensation.

(AQW 6491/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister for Communities): The Department has updated public information, in particular for those who are receiving Tax Credits, before they make a claim to Universal Credit, that they cannot claim Universal Credit and Tax Credits at the same time, and if they are in receipt of Tax Credits they will stop when they or their partner applies for Universal Credit.

With regards to support for those impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic the Department is committed to supporting people at this difficult time and a series of changes have been put in place to ensure that the social security system is more flexible, to relieve hardship and to ensure people most in need get the help and support they require.

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, on 24 March 2020 the Assembly approved the introduction of an amendment to the Discretionary Support legislation, which provides for a grant payment for short-term living expenses for people affected by COVID-19. Further enhancements to the Discretionary Support scheme include increasing the amount of individual living expenses awards by increasing the rate of benefit used when calculating awards and allowing discretion to pay for longer periods. All of these changes came into effect from 25 March 2020. Further information and an online application is available at www.nidirect.gov.uk/articles/extra-financial-support.

Ms P Bradley asked the Minister for Communities, from the Common waiting list as of 25 August 2020, how many applicants have been awarded intimidation points, broken down by the criteria set out by the Housing Selection Scheme points which is confirmed by the PSNI or Base 2 Northern Ireland Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders.

(AQW 6582/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following table which details the number of Applicants with Intimidation Points on the Waiting List as at 1 September 2020, by Intimidation Reason under Rule 23 of the Housing Selection Scheme.

Intimidation Description	Number of Cases
Intimidation Paramilitary	234
Intimidation Sectarian	12
Intimidation Racial	<10*
Intimidation Sexual Orientation	<10*
Intimidation Disability	<10*
Intimidation ASB	23
Total Number of Applicants	283

Note: Numbers less than 10 and type of intimidation cannot be reported as to do so would potentially identify individuals.

Since Waiting List data is not available on a daily basis the question has been answered using the relevant data extracted from the most recent download (1 September 2020) closest to the 25 August 2020.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities to detail the timescales for the publication of the report of the innovation day held in March regarding the Syrian Vulnerable Persons Resettlement Scheme.

(AQW 6765/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: This question is being answered by the Department for Communities as the report being referred to in the question was commissioned by us. To inform policy making in relation to the long-term integration of refugees here, a Strategic Insight Lab was held on 3rd and 4th March 2020 to consider 'How we enable refugees and the communities in which they live build a cohesive sustainable future together.'

The event was attended by 50 stakeholders, including the voluntary and community sector. The Report was circulated to all attendees on 1 June 2020 and has been published on the Department for Communities website at: <https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/publications/syrian-vulnerable-persons-relocation-scheme>.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities on what date she had her first meeting with officials regarding a bespoke scheme for Northern Ireland, rather than implementing the Kickstart scheme announced by the Chancellor.

(AQW 6865/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I discussed my department's Labour Market Recovery response with officials on the 24th June 2020. On 8th July 2020, the Chancellor announced the Kickstart Scheme for Britain. This scheme does not apply here. Employability and Employment Schemes are a devolved matter and we cannot simply sign up to a British Scheme. Therefore, I communicated with my officials following the Chancellor's announcement, with regards to developing a bespoke Kickstart scheme.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities for her assessment of Universal Credit.

(AQW 7038/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: When Universal Credit was first discussed, there was widespread agreement on the need to make the benefit system more accessible and less complicated for people using it.

Unfortunately, over time it became clear the welfare reform policy was having a negative impact on some of the most vulnerable and marginalised people across society. My predecessor had already informed the British Prime Minister about the negative impact Welfare Reform was having on people living here. My party and I have consistently called for an end to an austerity driven Welfare Reform agenda from London.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the removal and replacement of dangerous cladding on social housing accommodation; and how many social housing tenants are currently living in accommodation that uses cladding that is at risk of fire.

(AQW 7075/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: For the purposes of this response I have interpreted that "dangerous cladding" as of the ACM (Aluminium Composite Material) type which was used on the Grenfell Tower. Based on this definition both the Housing Executive and Housing Associations have confirmed that to the best of their knowledge none of their accommodation has this type of cladding.

The Housing Executive also has a dedicated fire safety team currently reviewing all cladding types on its buildings, this is an ever evolving matter with updated guidance and information being issued on a regular basis.

Fire safety is of paramount importance not just to myself but to all social housing providers.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she plans to abolish the Universal Credit five week wait.

(AQW 7096/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Universal Credit is paid in arrears and entitlement is calculated during an assessment period of 1 month. This allows for a Universal Credit award to be adjusted on a monthly basis to reflect an individual's circumstances such as any relevant household income for example, earnings, capital, or income from other benefits. Consequently a person has to wait at least 5 weeks before they receive their first payment.

However, no person has to go five weeks without receiving support, as advances, worth up to 100 per cent of a person's indicative award, are available up front, if there is need. Anyone experiencing financial difficulties can apply for an Advance Payment (an interest free payment).

Advance payments are deducted over a period of 12 months and from October 2021, the payback period for these advances will be extended further, up to 16 months.

From 22nd July 2020, people who move to Universal Credit will have their existing legacy benefit continue for two weeks with no requirement to repay the overlay. A similar run-on is already in place for Housing Benefit claimants who move to Universal Credit as a result of a change of circumstances.

In addition a person can apply for a Contingency payment, which is a grant and is not repayable. From 1st January 2020, the Department removed the requirement that people must take out a Universal Credit advance payment before being eligible for a payment from the Universal Credit Contingency Fund.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she plans to replace advance payments of Universal Credit with non-repayable grants instead of loans.

(AQW 7097/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: All payments from the Universal Credit Contingency Fund are in the form of non-repayable grants.

The requirement to have claimed a Universal Credit Advance Payment before accessing the contingency fund was removed on 1 January 2020.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities to detail the programme of legislation she intends to bring forward in the remainder of this mandate.

(AQW 7137/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In addition to the Pension Schemes Bill 2020, which is currently at Committee Stage, I am also progressing the Licensing and Registration of Clubs (Amendment) Bill, which completed its second stage on 3 November 2020.

My officials are progressing other potential legislative proposals, in line with my Department's New Decade New Approach and Programme for Government Commitments. Introduction of any new Bills to the Assembly will require Executive approval.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities how many people in Lagan Valley on (i) employment support allowance; (ii) personal independence payments; (iii) universal credit; and (iv) job seekers allowance, have been added to the welfare assistance schemes since 1 April 2020.

(AQW 9174/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department publishes benefit statistics on a quarterly basis. The table below shows the number of Universal Credit (UC), Employment and Support Allowance (ESA), Jobseekers Allowance (JSA) and Personal Independence Payment (PIP) claimants in Lagan Valley at February, May and August 2020. Further details can be found at:

Benefits statistics | Department for Communities (communities-ni.gov.uk)

The next edition in this series will be released on 24 February 2021 and will cover the period ending November 2020.

Number of Claimants	February 2020	May 2020	August 2020
Universal Credit	2,350	5,330	5,700
ESA	4,830	4,780	4,810
JSA	470	560	580
PIP	5,790	5,820	5,960

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Communities what consideration is being given to an independent inquiry into the Charity Commissioners NI, in light of the Baume report.

(AQW 9391/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I have decided to commission an independent review of charity regulation in NI, including the effectiveness of the current regulator. A panel of experts is currently being assembled to take forward this important work which is scheduled to begin in the New Year.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities to detail the programme of legislation she is planning to introduce over the remainder of this mandate.

(AQW 9629/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In addition to the Pension Schemes Bill 2020, which is currently at Committee Stage, I am also progressing the Licensing and Registration of Clubs (Amendment) Bill, which completed its second stage on 3 November 2020.

My officials are progressing other potential legislative proposals, in line with my Department's New Decade New Approach and Programme for Government Commitments. Introduction of any new Bills to the Assembly will require Executive approval.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities how many people in each constituency are waiting for a Personal Independence Payment appeal.

(AQW 10009/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department does not record information based on constituency. However, the table below details the number of Personal Independence Payment appeals pending per town as at 31 October 2020.

Town	Number of Personal Independence Payment Appeals Pending as at 31 October 2020
Armagh	87
Ballymena	322
Ballymoney	96

Town	Number of Personal Independence Payment Appeals Pending as at 31 October 2020

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for Communities (i) for an update on the regeneration of the Triangle area of Derry and the plans for the improvement of properties in Clooney Terrace, Dungiven Road and Duddy's Court, including the nature of outstanding challenges and their resolution; and (ii) whether sufficient funds for completion of the necessary work have now been obtained.

(AQW 10047/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) The business case for these improvements has been approved by both my Department and the Department of Finance.
- (ii) The Waterside Triangle scheme is currently programmed to start on site in late 2021/22, subject to the approvals mentioned above being secured and a successful tendering exercise being completed. Implementation of the scheme will extend beyond a single financial year and funding for the scheme will therefore be included in the annual bids made to my Department. Should these not be successful the scheme would be funded from the Housing Executive's Rental Income or its Reserves.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities how much money has been spent by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive to accommodate tenants temporarily in (i) hotels; (ii) bed and breakfasts; and (iii) hostels in the last five years, and broken down by broad rental market area.

(AQW 10313/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Temporary accommodation is predominantly provided to persons accepted as being 'statutorily homeless'. This includes the following accommodation types:

- a) Single Let properties (properties rented from the private sector)
- b) Hotel accommodation
- c) Bed and Breakfast accommodation
- d) Hostel accommodation (which can include either Housing Executive or externally run hostels)

By exception, temporary accommodation is used for Housing Executive tenants in instances where invasive works are being undertaken to their properties.

A summary of the cost of temporary accommodation for both statutorily homeless persons and Housing Executive tenants is included in the table below. For completeness this also includes costs payable for Single Let temporary accommodation. Please note the Housing Executive does not hold this information by broad market rental area.

Table 1 - Costs Associated with Temporary Accommodation (Statutorily Homeless persons and NIHE Tenants)

	2015/16 £'s	2016/17 £'s	2017/18 £'s	2018/19 £'s	2019/20 £'s	5 Year Total £'s

Notes:

- 1 It is not possible to separately split out the costs of hotel and B&B Accommodation.
- 2 Costs associated with Hotels/B&B's and External Hostels are shown as gross and exclude any HB income that may be receivable on behalf of the occupant.
- 3 The above excludes running costs associated with the provision of NIHE run hostel accommodation which caters for approximately 172 bed spaces.

Mr M Bradley asked the Minister for Communities when the current 15 person restriction on outdoor sporting events will be reviewed.

(AQW 10329/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Executive has announced that from Friday, 11 December, outdoor sports events can take place, subject to a risk assessment if more than 15 people attending and with measures in place to limit risk of virus transmission. An upper limit of 500 spectators is permitted. However, inter-school competitive sporting events are not permitted.

The review of the ongoing restrictions are a matter for the Executive and will be cognisant of the medical and scientific advice available at that time.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities how many people have received £500 or more from the COVID-19 Discretionary Support Grant.

(AQW 10494/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Analysis of the self-isolation grants awarded for the quarter ending 30 September 2020 shows that 1,543 grants were paid totalling £225k with 98% of these payments less than £500. The figures all relate to single payments and do not take account of people availing of more than one award.

In the majority of the cases examined, awards were made to single non-householders which attracts a lower daily rate, with average payments of £106. In 37% of awards, payments were made to families with children, with average payments of £221. The period of award in those cases averaged just below 8 days.

It is important to note that the scheme here provides for awards of up to 35 days depending on individual circumstances, with for example a couple with three children receiving £683 for a two week period. That is why I announced, on 16 November, greater flexibility to consider longer periods of awards, alongside increases to the daily rates payable.

It is also vitally important that people seek help as early as possible once self-isolating in order to maximise the awards available. The important work I announced with the Department of Health to include information on how to apply for Discretionary Support in self-isolation notifications will help to ensure, alongside the enhancements to the scheme, that the full range of support available is reaching all those in need.

The management information included in this response while accurate at the time it is provided may change when subjected to final reconciliation/verification checks prior to publication as applicable.

Further statistical information is available at <https://www.communities-ni.gov.uk/sites/default/files/publications/communities/dfc-management-information-dfc-since-covid19-061120.pdf>

Mr Allen asked the Minister for Communities how many Housing Executive staff are currently on sick leave.

(AQW 10539/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised that as at 30 October 2020, 108 employees were absent due to sickness, which equates to a percentage absence of 5.09% for the organisation for the month of October 2020.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether she has considered a rating system for appropriate standard in private rented sector housing.

(AQW 10585/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As set out in my statement to the Assembly, I will bring forward a range of measures to improve the standards of homes in the private rented sector.

Firstly, I will amend the Landlord Registration regulations to incorporate a fitness declaration at the point of registration. In time this will then be underpinned by a change to the fitness standard to improve the standard of these properties.

Legislation will also be brought forward in this mandate which will make it a mandatory requirement for private landlords to provide smoke and carbon monoxide detectors and to carry out periodic electrical checks.

Provisions in this Bill will also make an enabling power in primary legislation to take forward work so that any rented property has to have a minimum

Energy Performance Certificate rating. This work could commence with the potential to develop further detail later in secondary legislation.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Communities whether she has considered a further community-based fund for local groups to help them develop COVID-19 resilience, training and operational adjustments.

(AQW 10659/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department recently launched a £3.3m Voluntary, Community and Social Economy Sector (VCSE) Covid Recovery Fund. This fund is currently open for applications and will provide essential support to organisations to enable safe re-opening and continued delivery of vital community services in addition to support for organisations to move services online and increase digital connectivity.

In addition my Department has administered a number of emergency funds which have supported Voluntary and Community Sector organisations throughout the pandemic including the COVID-19 Charities Fund and a dedicated £7m COVID Social Enterprise Fund. This was oversubscribed and following a successful bid to the Executive increased to £9.25m.

Although the Covid-19 Charities Fund closed on 21 August 2020, I am aware of the ongoing financial challenges. I plan to launch a further phase of funding in December 2020 with £6.7 million remaining from the first phase plus an additional allocation of £5 million approved by Executive colleagues on 23 November 2020. I would encourage as many charities as possible to apply for this funding.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of people under 35 in receipt of the Shared Accommodation Rate.

(AQW 10665/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The most recent statistics show that the number of people aged under 35 currently in receipt of the Shared Accommodation Rate is 4,557.

This is made up of 862 Housing Benefit claimants and 3,695 claimants receiving the housing costs element of Universal Credit

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of Housing Executive properties renovated in each year from 2015 to 2019; and the associated cost.

(AQW 10667/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Given the difficulty in determining what number of improvements constitutes a renovated property the Housing Executive has provided the following tables detailing the total numbers of elemental improvements completed to its properties from 2015 to 2019, and the associated costs. This is not the number of individual dwellings.

It should be noted that Kitchen replacement and Bathroom replacement schemes were reported under revenue replacement until 2018/19.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities how many claimants' housing benefit payments are in arrears.
(AQW 10731/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has advised that there are 6,052 housing benefit claimants who have an outstanding housing benefit overpayment which is currently being recovered from ongoing housing benefit entitlement.

In addition there are 23,697 debtors who have an outstanding housing benefit overpayment but are no longer in receipt of housing benefit. Recovery in these cases is mainly being achieved via a voluntary agreement, or recovery from other social security benefits.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Communities what initiatives she has created to help older and more vulnerable people better use online technology to keep in touch with friends and family and access goods and services.
(AQW 10757/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has created a number of initiatives to help older and more vulnerable people better use online technology to keep in touch with friends and family, and to access goods and services as set out below:

My Department leads on the Executive's Active Ageing Strategy, which contains a number of actions from across departments focused on the digital inclusion of older people. These can be found on pages 22-23 of the Strategy (available at www.communities-ni.gov.uk/publications/active-ageing-strategy-2016-2022).

£800k has been ring-fenced for the purchase of digital devices within VCSE COVID-19 Recovery Fund that I launched recently and will be available to organisations seeking to support older and vulnerable people within our community.

As part of the rollout plan for Universal Credit to support people and to improve their digital skills, a series of events were held in Jobs & Benefits offices. My Department worked in partnership with advice organisations and LibrariesNI to provide digital support. Staff in Jobs & Benefits offices provide help to people to improve their digital skills on a daily basis, and work closely with grass roots organisations to improve digital inclusion across our communities.

The Housing Executive has been involved in delivering or partnering a number of initiatives aimed at assisting older and more vulnerable people to become or remain connected online, such as the 2016/17 Digital Inclusion Pilot exercise, part-funded by the DFP/Digital Inclusion Unit & DSD (DfC). Supporting Communities provided training to tenants and residents including the elderly on using social media platforms and engaging with public services online, as well as encouraging them to use online services, for example, to report repairs.

Community Grants and COVID-19 Response funding supported the provision of digital equipment to a range of community organisations and residents.

83 refurbished laptops were made available to the Housing Executive's Housing Community Network organisations, and tablets were provided to Central Housing Forum (CHF) members who represent a network of over 500 community organisations. This helped older and vulnerable people to access to online services.

Housing Executive provided the 12 members of the Disability Housing Forum with new tablets and digital training sessions during late June 2020.

Supporting People (SP) service providers have used online activities such as virtual classes, online socialising, newsletters, befriending schemes and referrals to community support to help service users.

This year, the Housing Executive has been involved in the ONSIDE (Outreach and Navigation for Social Inclusion and Digital Engagement) project aimed at supporting individuals with a disability to improve their health and wellbeing through increased social and digital involvement in the community, and to reduce social isolation by creating community connections in their local area and digital connections online. This is a cross border funded project led by Disability Action NI in partnership with the Housing Executive, the Independent Living Movement Ireland (ILMI), and Supporting Communities (SC). Since June, the Housing Executive has placed 300 digital devices with individuals who are now completing online training sessions aimed at supporting individuals to use IT to complete tasks and remain connected.

In 2020/21 the SP Provider Innovation Fund was specifically aimed at innovative projects that support clients to make the best use of technology, with £0.5m of funding provided annually. It has been evident through successful applications to the fund that greater levels of digital connectivity and digital inclusion have been realised.

The Housing Executive has implemented an 'Assisted Living' pilot scheme in Derry with the aim of improving the quality of life and social interaction for tenants who are living with disabilities or mobility issues, aged between 16 and 68. This pilot is a joint initiative with the Health and Social Care Trust Occupational Therapy Service and Hive Studios for a group of 18 households with elderly, disabled and/or vulnerable tenants. Working together to identify assisted technologies to support the circumstances of each individual tenant, the partnership has deployed a range of fully customisable, broadband-enabled 'smart devices' to each of the scheme's participants.

A further project is currently being developed, involving Assisted Living Technology in a vacant block of flats in Lisnafin in Strabane. I understand that the business case for the scheme will shortly be referred to my Department for consideration.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Communities to detail the level of departmental investment to address loneliness in East Belfast; and by which channels this investment is delivered.

(AQW 10785/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has invested directly in a range of services to address loneliness in East Belfast, the detail of which is set out below.

Housing Support Services:

Services delivered by the Housing Executive through the Supporting People (SP) Programme which can promote confidence and independence include:

- practical interventions such as access to local transport and signposting service users at risk of being lonely and/or socially isolated to support such as groups, clubs and activities etc.;
- internet connectivity to maintain contact online;
- activities such as virtual classes, distant socialising, newsletters, befriending schemes and referrals to community support.

In 2019/20 in the Belfast City council area, the SP programme funded;

- 211 accommodation based services for disabled, homeless, older and young people with a total spend of over £18.9m; and
- 16 Floating Support services with a total spend of over £2.9m to deliver housing related support.

A total of £11,200 in COVID-19 Grants has been awarded to community based organisations within the East Belfast community,

Community based programmes

£1,058,752 of funding in 2019/2020 and £1,067,324 in 2020/2021 has been awarded to the East Belfast area through various community based programmes:

Community Investment Fund (CIF): a total of £327,808 in the last two years to provide support for core costs of local community development groups, particularly where this leads to improved services to local communities.

Oasis Good Morning Fund: funding of £24,067 to Oasis Good Morning Service in East Belfast which is a telephone service to around 290 vulnerable and elderly residents providing practical and emotional support.

Women's Centre Childcare Fund (WCCF): funding of £118,303 to WCCF for the provision of free childcare places to those on a low income and to help a significant number of parent's access employment and training opportunities.

Regional Support for Women in Disadvantaged and Rural Areas (W-RISP): A total of £611,139 to the 'Women's Regional Consortium for Women in Disadvantaged and Rural Areas', which comprises seven established women's sector organisations who deliver support to women in disadvantaged urban areas and rural areas. While Training for Women Network, located in East Belfast, is the lead partner, these funds are distributed across Northern Ireland.

Other funding and support

My Department also supports a range of other programmes delivered by strategic business partners which groups in East Belfast may have benefitted from directly or indirectly, including:

The Volunteering Infrastructure Support Programme (VISIP) – we have provided funding of £909,480 over the last two years to Volunteer Now to deliver this programme.

The Innovation and Research Fund (Skills Match Programme) – we have provided funding of £159,346 over the last two years to Business in the Community and Volunteer Now to deliver this programme, which will focus on building relationships between all sectors that will last beyond an initial skills match project.

Warm Well Connected Fund

Emotional wellbeing issues are affecting communities across the region, and I am keen to understand and respond to the impacts at a local level within communities like those in East Belfast. I will be allocating additional funding to help bolster existing programmes of work and new interventions aimed at supporting those in most acute need with specific targets relating to those experiencing loneliness over winter 2020/21

COVID-19 Community Support Fund

This fund was introduced in March 2020 to address anticipated needs of those impacted by the pandemic and included support towards food, finance and connectivity.

Independent Advice Sector

Significant annual funding in the region of £6.4million has been allocated by my Department for the provision of independent community based advice services to citizens which is critical in providing support and reassurance to people experiencing loneliness and social isolation.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Communities to detail the amount of funding allocated to each local Council since the COVID-19 pandemic began.

(AQW 10828/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Executive has allocated £85.3m to my Department to support local councils with their financial pressures as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. In June 2020 my Department allocated £20.3m to councils and on 26 November 2020 a further £20m was allocated to councils. The remaining £45.0m will be allocated to councils when my Department has carried out an analysis of the figures provided by each council reflecting their projected financial losses and COVID-19 costs for the period October 2020 to March 2021 and updated estimates / actual spend.

My Department also activated the Scheme of Emergency Financial Assistance (SEFA) - COVID-19 for the period 3 April 2020 to 3 October 2020, and then from 4 October 2020 to 31 March 2020 to reimburse councils with other costs due to the Covid-19 crisis. My Department has allocated £75k to councils under this scheme.

Councils have also received funding from my Department of £3.25m for a COVID-19 Community Support Fund through the existing Community Support Programme.

Payments totalling £10.6m for the COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme have been made to councils by my Department to provide much needed support to local businesses as they recover and adapt to the impact of Covid-19.

Details of the allocations to each council are shown below:

Council	COVID-19 Allocation	SEFA	Community Support Fund	Recovery Revitalisation Scheme
Antrim & Newtownabbey	£2,421,837	£4,812.63	£164,981.46	£456,000

Newry Mourne & Down	£2,188,059	£3,555.55	£241,924.86	£918,000
Total	£40,300,000	£75,439.03	£3,251,263.59	£11,600,000

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Communities how many people are currently on the Housing Executive waiting list in South Antrim for new-build, bespoke accommodation due to having severely complex physical needs.

(AQW 10904/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following table detailing the current waiting list figures for those applicants in South Antrim requiring bespoke accommodation due to having severely complex physical needs.

Applicants requiring bespoke accommodation*	62
Applicants pending final decision for bespoke accommodation	9*

*Cases which require either wheelchair or bespoke accommodation due to having severely complex physical needs.

These cases are still pending a final decision, however it is likely that they will require a bespoke new build solution.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for Communities what the process of consultation will look like for existing Housing Executive tenants who will be affected by the move to a mutual/cooperative.

(AQW 10919/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My revitalisation plans are at an early stage, but I want to reassure tenants that I am committed to a co-design approach in developing these options, and engagement with tenants and their representatives will be central to this process.

My officials have commenced work to assess options to effect this change. I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for Communities whether tenants will be automatically allocated full membership within the body should the Housing Executive move to a mutual/cooperative body.

(AQW 10920/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My officials have started work to assess options to take forward this work. I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I am committed to a co-design approach in developing these options and engaging with tenants. These plans are in their early stages, and will consider issues such as the one you raise. I can assure you that I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for Communities why the restriction on borrowing for the Northern Ireland Housing Executive was not lifted through extending the Prudential Borrowing rules as introduced in 2011 for local authorities.

(AQW 10921/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As the Housing Executive Landlord function is classified by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) as a Central Government-controlled Public Corporation, in line with the Consolidated Budget Guidance, any borrowing it undertakes scores against the Capital budget of the sponsor Department. Hence the need to restrict borrowing activities.

Local Councils are classified outside of Central Government and as such any borrowing they undertake does not impact on the Executive Budget.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities to detail any capital investment plans Libraries NI has for the next three years.

(AQW 10954/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Libraries NI have an extensive asset management plan which assists the organisation in bringing forward capital investment proposals to the Department for consideration. Subject to approval of appropriate business cases and the availability of funding, Libraries NI plan to advance the development of a range of capital investment projects over the next three years.

It is anticipated the following projects will be substantially delivered by 2024:

- Upgrading and replacement of I.T infrastructure including public access services
- Replacement library facilities in Enniskillen and Fivemiletown.

Libraries NI also plan to bring forward business cases for a number of projects aimed at improving the public library infrastructure including:

- A replacement library facility for Newtownards town
- Redevelopment of the Banbridge library provision
- Relocation of Chichester library (Belfast)
- Restoration and upgrading of Belfast Central Library
- Replacement of out of life library vehicles
- Addressing various minor works improvement schemes

Over the next three years Libraries NI plan to evaluate and develop options for the upgrading or replacement of a range of local library facilities. Working in conjunction with local Councils and other partner agencies they plan to take forward work on:

- Exploring with Armagh, Craigavon and Banbridge Council options for consolidating library services in Armagh City which are currently delivered across a number of sites
- Developing accommodation proposals for Colin Glen, Coalisland, Ardoyne, Ballycastle and Carryduff libraries.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities when she plans to bring alternative proposals for dealing with intimidated or harassed applicants for social housing.

(AQW 10955/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I have publicly stated that I want to see alternative mechanisms to significantly strengthen the verification of intimidation points. I want to prevent abuse and ensure those who are being intimidated receive the priority they deserve.

I will soon publish the consultation outcome report on the Fundamental Review of Social Housing Allocations which includes a preliminary timeframe for implementation. Officials will now work with the Housing Executive to explore options as part of the implementation phase. Once options have been developed, I will consider the best way forward.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities to detail the average success rate of personal independence payment claims via (i) telephone assessments; and (ii) face-to-face assessments.

(AQW 10990/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As a result of the COVID -19 outbreak and in order to safeguard vulnerable people, face-to-face assessments for all benefits were suspended and from 23 March 2020 assessments for Personal Independence Payment (PIP) were undertaken by telephone.

The IT system used to administer PIP records successful and unsuccessful PIP claims but does not capture by category how the assessment was completed i.e. by Paper Based review, face to face or telephone assessment.

Prior to telephone assessments being introduced, figures from the PIP published statistics which covered the period from June 2016 up to 28 February 2020, showed an average PIP award success rate of 48%.

The most recent PIP statistics were published on 25 November 2020, covering from June 2016 up to 31 August 2020, show an average success rate of 48%.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities to detail her Department's projections on the level of homelessness over the next 12 months.

(AQW 10992/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has statutory responsibility for responding to homelessness and has provided the following information.

The Housing Executive has published its response to the ongoing pandemic, which includes modelling assumptions that will inform the delivery of homelessness services over the next 12 months. This can be found in 'The Way Home - Homelessness response to Covid-19' on <https://www.nihe.gov.uk/Documents/Homelessness/homelessness-reset-plan-the-way-home>

Pages 8 to 11 of this document outline the impacts of Covid-19 and the homelessness response to it. Pages 14 to 21 outline the modelling assumptions that will inform the delivery of homelessness services over the next 12 months.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities whether she will take measures to extend the one-year personal independence payment supplementary mitigation payment limit, in light of the extension that has been made to the payment of welfare mitigations.

(AQW 10993/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Several of the existing welfare mitigation payment schemes include a maximum entitlement period of 12 months. This is in accordance with the recommendations of the Welfare Reform Mitigations Working Group.

The twelve month limit applies to payments for people who are affected by:

- A loss of entitlement to carer's benefits
- A loss of a disability premium(s)
- The time limiting of contribution-based Employment and Support Allowance
- An award of Personal Independence Payment at a rate of at least £10 per week less than the previous award of Disability Living Allowance.

The Welfare Mitigation schemes were due to end on 31 March 2020 however the Executive committed to extending the current schemes beyond this date in the New Decade, New Approach Deal. The extension of the existing welfare mitigation schemes will ensure that people continue to receive mitigation payments after 31 March 2020 if they are eligible under the current policy. However, the extension does not provide for the maximum period of entitlement of 12 months to be extended. There are currently no plans to change this policy for any of the affected mitigation schemes.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of people in housing stress in the Foyle constituency, broken down by patch area.

(AQW 11007/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following table detailing the number of applicants in housing stress in the Foyle Parliamentary Constituency. As the Housing Executive does not record this information by patch area it has instead provided this by housing need area, as at September 2020.

Housing Need Area	Applicants in Housing Stress

NB: It is the practice of the Housing Executive not to release data which has the potential of identifying an individual – e.g. those on the waiting list or who have identified their community background. The Housing Executive normally classify any number of applicants or individual households that amounts to less than 10 as <10.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for Communities how she plans to deal with the shortage of one bedroom properties in the social housing sector.

(AQW 11011/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The housing waiting list indicate that there is a need for one bedroom properties as this is the largest household type requiring accommodation.

In previous years, the delivery of small units of accommodation, especially one-bedroom properties, has been challenging.

In 2019/20, my Department re-introduced a target for a minimum of 200 new one-bed social housing Starts, to be delivered annually through the Social Housing Development Programme (SHDP), to address the challenges around provision of one bedroom properties. Although this target was not achieved in 2019/20 due to the overall number of SHDP Starts being curtailed by the Covid-19 pandemic, starts were secured for a further 120 new one-bed social homes.

The target for new social housing to be delivered through the SHDP in 2020/21 is a minimum of 1,850 starts, including a target for 200 new one-bed social homes. Based on the current delivery risk assessment, it is expected that around 350 new one-bed units will start on-site before the end of March 2021.

The Housing Executive will continue to work closely with housing associations to support sustainable levels of one-bed provision through the SHDP over the next programme period (2021/22 – 2023/24).

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities whether she will drop the criteria for charities grants for those charities that have reserves who cannot apply.

(AQW 11020/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am pleased to say that charities haven't been excluded from seeking or receiving financial support from the Covid-19 Charities Fund because they held reserves. Where a charity has exercised proper governance in the creation of reasonable reserves to meet liabilities and this is supported by a clear documented policy, then a funding application should not be adversely affected.

However, where a charity held unrestricted reserves which were well in excess of their written policy, an assessment was made in the Covid-19 Charities Fund to determine (a) financial need, and (b) the amount of the available reserves that it was reasonable in the circumstances to use to meet the funding gap. Depending on the excess level of reserves, this may have resulted in no grant award being made on some occasions.

I am pleased to say that I will shortly announce a further phase of Covid-19 Charities funding. In advance of this, I am looking again at the policy framework, including around reserves, to see if any further adjustments should be made.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities (i), in the event that the Northern Ireland Housing Executive becomes a housing mutual, whether it will be outside of ministerial control; and (ii) whether she will ensure ring-fenced funding for new builds will be spent on housing.

(AQW 11031/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The objective set out in my statement is to change the landlord part of the Housing Executive so that it may borrow, invest and provide a sustainable future for its homes. I am clear that I want to maintain the maximum degree of public accountability consistent with that objective. Hence my preference for a mutual or co-operative model.

I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate which will include details for implementation of the new proposed structures.

A key element of my plan to increase the supply of social housing to deal with areas of acute demand is to ring-fence part of the housing budget for those areas. Ring-fenced social housing budgets will be spent on social housing.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities how many (i) households; and (ii) households with children, are affected by the bedroom tax and do not qualify for mitigation payments.

(AQW 11061/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The latest available information is that is approximately 227 households in receipt of Housing Benefit are affected by the "bedroom tax" policy and do not qualify for a mitigation payment. This includes 170 Housing Executive tenants and an estimated 57 Housing Association tenants.

A breakdown of the number of affected households with children is not currently available.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities (i) from whom the new mutual housing organisation will borrow money; (ii) whether it will issue corporate bonds; and (iii) whether it will engage with private equity firms.

(AQW 11097/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In my recent Housing Policy Statement to the Assembly, I set out my plans to deal with the very significant investment challenge facing the Housing Executive. The objective is to change the landlord part of the Housing Executive so that it may borrow, invest and provide a sustainable future for its homes. It is vital that we invest in current stock as well as building more social homes.

My officials have commenced work to update the analysis of the scale of the investment challenge required, and then to explore options for revitalisation.

I intend to bring a recommendation to the Executive before the end of this mandate which will include details for implementation.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether the new mutual housing organisation will have a private, full market development company.

(AQW 11098/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My revitalisation plans are at an early stage. My officials have commenced work to update the analysis of the scale of the investment challenge required, and then to assess options. I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I can assure you that I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities how many social, affordable and full market homes the new housing body will build; and to detail the timeframe for this.

(AQW 11099/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: When work is more advanced and when it may foresee how the investment challenge of the Housing Executives existing 85, 000 social homes may be met, then it may also be possible to consider how, at what rate, and at what scale, the revitalised landlord may develop new homes.

I can assure you that I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Heritage Recovery Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment was made; (iii) how many applications from organisations in each constituency were made up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what was the total amount paid.

(AQW 11106/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Applications to the Heritage Recovery Fund have been received from 62 organisations and 42 individuals. The Fund opened on 2 November 2020 and closed on 27 November 2020. You will appreciate that it will take some time to complete initial processing of the applications and carry out initial checks to determine eligibility; I am therefore not at this stage in a position to provide you with a geographic breakdown of applications.

When eligibility checks has been completed, applications will be assessed during December and early January, with final decision made by the end of January 2021. I anticipate that payments will reach bank accounts in February 2021. A list of all awards made from the Fund will be published at that stage.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities whether her Department intends to introduce a carer's allowance supplement, similar to the one-off payment rolled out in Scotland, to provide additional support for carers impacted by the pandemic.

(AQW 11135/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I recognise the vital contribution made by carers in supporting the most vulnerable in society and value their dedication to those whom they care for, especially during these unprecedented times.

In direct response to the coronavirus pandemic my Department introduced temporary measures in Carer's Allowance, to help unpaid carers through the current emergency. These included waiving restrictions on breaks in care and ensuring 'emotional' support would be counted towards the care threshold in the benefit. With the continuing impact of the coronavirus pandemic, these temporary easements in Carer's Allowance have been extended until 12 May 2021.

In addition, those in receipt of Carer's Allowance here may, depending on their circumstances, be eligible to access the range of other emergency financial support that my Department is providing during the COVID-19 crisis, including Discretionary Support.

These measures have included the introduction of a specific Self-Isolation grant through Discretionary Support to financially support those who are impacted by having to self-isolate. Payments can also be made to people who live in the same household as a person showing symptoms of COVID-19. To be eligible for this non-repayable grant a person must be in a crisis situation and have an annual income of less than £20,405.

I have also recently introduced further enhancements to the Self-isolation grant that should ensure that people receive more appropriate financial support during a time of crisis. There is also no limit on the number of Self-isolation grants that can be awarded.

It is anticipated that longer term financial support for carers will be considered as part of the upcoming welfare mitigations review and, until the review is finalised, my Department will continue to examine how we can best support carers throughout this COVID-19 pandemic.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities (i) whether further funding will be made available for the Business Adaptation and Improvement Grants administered by local councils; and (ii) whether she will consider including flexibility in the town centre boundaries to enable businesses to apply for support that are not located within a town centre.

(AQW 11164/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department's COVID-19 Recovery Revitalisation Programme has allocated £17.6 million to councils to enable them to create a safer environment for shoppers, visitors and workers. Every council has included a small grant scheme to help businesses make adaptations and improvements to their premises to provide a more COVID-secure environment for customers. The feedback from councils is that these grant schemes have proven very popular and are often oversubscribed. I will be providing councils with an additional £1.7m in capital towards their grant schemes to meet this additional demand.

My Department has been very flexible in its approach to eligibility for this Programme. We have advised councils that we do not expect a rigid adherence to town centre boundaries, and the inclusion of DAERA funding in the Programme has allowed the interventions to extend to the smaller rural settlements. However, the eligibility criteria and value of these grants is determined by each council in consultation with local stakeholders.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister for Communities what steps her Department is taking to reduce the number of people who find themselves homeless this Christmas.

(AQW 11170/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has statutory responsibility for homelessness. It has set out its approach to assisting those who are homeless or threatened with becoming homeless in the Homelessness Strategy 2017-22, which can be accessed at

https://www.nihe.gov.uk/Documents/Homelessness/homelessness-strategy-northern-ireland-2017-2022.aspx?ext=.

The strategy outlines how, in order to prevent homelessness, Housing Executive staff will provide person centred services which are tailored to meet the needs of individual customers and support them to achieve sustainable housing solutions. They also seek to address homelessness when it cannot be prevented. Staff in the Housing Solutions and Support Teams will work with clients and avail of the necessary support from other agencies to ensure clients are supported as necessary. This support can include floating support to prevent homelessness or temporary accommodation in cases where emergency accommodation is required.

Over the Christmas period the Housing Executive will continue to deliver homeless services through an out-of-hours emergency homelessness service on evenings/weekends and any days on which their offices are closed.

For any individuals who are identified as rough sleeping the Housing Executive confirms that the 'Everyone in' approach continues to be adopted including for those with no recourse to public funds. The 'Everyone In' approach seeks to ensure that any individual sleeping rough is offered appropriate support and accommodation if required.

As part of the Housing Executive Homelessness Prevention Fund, the Housing executive has provided £838k of funding to 39 projects. These projects support a range of organisations across the voluntary and community sectors to deliver homelessness prevention activities during 2020/21.

Ms Hunter asked the Minister for Communities what steps her Department is taking to reduce the number of people living in fuel poverty.

(AQW 11172/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Communities' approach has been to tackle the effects of fuel poverty both through direct interventions and behavioural changes within households.

Current Programmes include the Affordable Warmth Scheme, Boiler Replacement Scheme, the Energy Advice Service, Winter Fuel Payments, Oil Buying Clubs and the School Education Programme.

I have recently approved changes to the eligibility criteria for the Affordable Warmth Scheme increasing the income threshold from £20,000 to £23,000 and removing disability benefits from the calculation of income for the Scheme. Work is now ongoing to amend the relevant Scheme Regulations and these changes to scheme eligibility will then be implemented.

A Covid-19 Heating Payment will be issued as a one-off payment to provide financial support to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children.

This payment is in addition to any other payments, including the annual Winter Fuel Payment. There is no application process; the payment will be made automatically via existing payment channels.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities what quality standard is being used for clearing the backlog of repairs and maintenance by the new mutual housing organisation.

(AQW 11182/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The commitment within New Decade, New Approach to tackle the maintenance backlog for Housing Executive's properties reflects a much wider revitalisation programme aimed at securing the long term future of social housing stock.

My revitalisation plans are at an early stage. My officials have commenced work to update the analysis of the scale of the investment challenge required, and then to assess options. I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I can assure you that I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether the new housing executive mutual body will have tenants and employees on its board; and whether there will be any other reserved places on the board.

(AQW 11183/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My revitalisation plans are at an early stage, but I want to reassure tenants and staff that I am committed to a co-design approach in developing options. Engagement with tenants and staff including their representatives and Trade Unions will be central to this process.

My officials have commenced work to assess options to effect this change. This work will include considerations of governance arrangements. I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether tenants and employees of the new housing executive mutual body will have a right to vote on the change of structure.

(AQW 11184/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My revitalisation plans are at an early stage, but I want to reassure Housing Executive tenants and staff that I am committed to a co-design approach in developing these options, and engagement with tenants, staff and their representatives will be central to this process.

My officials have commenced work to assess options to effect this change. I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether the the reclassification of the Housing Executive will happen as one body, or will the landlord function be broken into smaller business units.

(AQW 11185/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My officials have commenced work to assess revitalisation options and, while these plans are at an early stage, I am clear that in order to be considered, options must maintain the regional scale of the current landlord function, i.e. not break up the Housing Executive's stock portfolio, and must not transfer the landlord function and stock to another organisation.

I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister for Communities (i) for an update on work within her Department to help with the prevention of loneliness; and (ii) whether her Department would be supportive of the development of a preventing loneliness strategy.

(AQW 11188/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) My Department leads on the development of the social inclusion strategies referenced in "New Decade, New Approach". These strategies may include actions which contribute to addressing loneliness and social isolation issues faced by their target groups.

Through its Neighbourhood Renewal Investment Fund my Department provides funding of around £284k to 'Good Morning' projects in Belfast and Derry with the aim of reducing a feeling of isolation by elderly and vulnerable citizens, by providing practical and emotional support.

Supporting People (SP) promotes confidence and independence and offers practical and signposting support where someone is isolated. Online support has been maintained during the pandemic.

Additionally, service users have been positively impacted through projects funded through the SP Provider Innovation Fund, providing greater levels of digital connectivity and digital inclusion helping with loneliness and isolation.

The ONSIDE (Outreach and Navigation for Social Inclusion and Digital Engagement) project is a cross border funded project led by Disability Action NI in partnership with The Housing Executive, the Independent Living Movement Ireland, and Supporting Communities. The aim of the ONSIDE project is to improve the health and well-being of disabled people through increased social and digital involvement in the community. Since June, The Housing Executive has placed 300 digital devices with individuals.

Anyone in need of support, including those who are experiencing loneliness, can contact the COVID-19 Community Helpline (Freephone 0808 802 0020, Email: covid19@adviceni.net, Text: ACTION to 81025) which will provide personalised advice and referral to appropriate support depending on an individual's circumstances.

- (ii) Whilst my Department has no statutory remit to deal with loneliness, I am supportive of the development of a strategy to prevent loneliness. The lead department for a preventing loneliness strategy would be a matter for the Executive to decide.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Heritage Recovery Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the Upper Bann constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11209/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Heritage Recovery Fund have been received from 62 organisations and 42 individuals. The Fund opened on 2 November 2020 and closed on 27 November 2020. You will appreciate that it will take some time to complete initial processing of the applications and carry out initial checks to determine eligibility; I am therefore not at this stage in a position to provide you with a geographic breakdown of applications.

I anticipate that payments will reach bank accounts in February 2021. A list of all awards made from the Fund will be published at that stage.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Stability and Renewal for Arts Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the Upper Bann constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11210/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Stability & Renewal Programme for Organisations opened for applications on 28th October 2020 with a closing deadline for applications of 27th November. To date no payments have been made. Decisions will be made at the end of January 2021. Up to and including Friday 27th November 2020 three applications have been received from the Upper Bann constituency.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Heritage Recovery Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications from organisations were made up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11215/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Applications to the Heritage Recovery Fund have been received from 62 organisations and 42 individuals. The Fund opened on 2 November 2020 and closed on 27 November 2020. You will appreciate that it will take some time to complete initial processing of the applications and carry out initial checks to determine eligibility; I am therefore not at this stage in a position to provide you with a geographic breakdown of applications.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Stability and Renewal for Arts Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications were made up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11216/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Stability & Renewal Programme for Organisations opened for applications on 28th October 2020 with a closing deadline for applications of 27th November. To date no payments have been made. Decisions will be made at the end of January 2021. Up to and including Friday 27th November 2020 197 applications have been received.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities how many people will be eligible for the one-off COVID-19 heating payment; and on what date the first payments will be made.

(AQW 11217/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: There are currently 220,780 people eligible for the Covid-19 Heating Payment. My Department plans to make the payments during the week commencing the 25 January 2021.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to 10317/17-22, whether there was Ministerial input to the Consultation on Regulation of Gambling in Northern Ireland that opened in December 2019.

(AQW 11225/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I can confirm that the consultation on the "Regulation of Gambling" which launched on 16 December 2019, had no Ministerial input as no Ministers were in post at that time. However, I have since fully considered the consultation responses and published the Outcome Report on 2 November.

I intend to announce the way forward shortly as soon as I have secured Executive approval to my proposals.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities whether she intends to consult the public on her legislative proposals for a new regulatory framework for gambling.

(AQW 11226/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Communities undertook a public consultation on areas for consideration for future regulation of gambling between December 2019 and February 2020.

As part of the legislative development process, I anticipate the Assembly's Committee for Communities will issue a call for evidence as part of their scrutiny of the proposed Bill. This will give the public a further opportunity to make their views known about my proposed changes.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities why the Gambling (Licensing and Advertising) Act 2014 permits online operators to advertise to the public in Northern Ireland, provided they hold the appropriate Gambling Commission licence, when the Betting, Gaming, Lotteries and Amusements (NI) Order 1985 does not permit online gambling in this jurisdiction.

(AQW 11227/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As stated in my answer to AQW 6953/17, the Betting, Gaming, Lotteries and Amusements (NI) Order 1985 predates the introduction of the internet. Therefore, in order to afford consumers here the same protections as elsewhere,

Section 5 of the Gambling (Licensing and Advertising) Act 2014 was extended, with the agreement of the Assembly (by virtue of a Legislative Consent Motion) to include consumers here.

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to 9494/17-22, whether the Committees of Advertising Practice and Advertising Standards Authority are subject to statutory regulation.

(AQW 11228/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) is an independent self-regulatory body, the Committee on Advertising Practice is a sister organisation responsible for writing the Advertising Codes.

The ASA works within a regulatory framework primarily driven by the EU consumer protection directive the Unfair Commercial Practices Directive, designed to prevent misleading or unfair trading practices. This Directive has been translated into law by the Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008 and the Business Protection from Misleading Marketing Regulations 2008 - both of which apply here.

The Advertising Standards Authority is able to refer advertisers who persistently break the Advertising Codes and who do not work with them to other bodies for further action, such as Trading Standards (or Department for the Economy).

Further information is available from their website:-

<https://www.asa.org.uk/about-asa-and-cap/about-regulation/self-regulation-and-co-regulation.html>

Mr Butler asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 9494/17-22 how the Committees of Advertising Practice and Advertising Standards Authority are funded.

(AQW 11229/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Committee on Advertising Practice (CAP) is the sister organisation of the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) and is responsible for writing the Advertising Codes. The ASA is an independent self-regulatory body, funded by a voluntary levy on advertising space.

Further information is available from their website:- <https://www.asa.org.uk/>

Mr Catney asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Heritage Recovery Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the Lagan Valley constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11240/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Applications to the Heritage Recovery Fund have been received from 62 organisations and 42 individuals. The Fund opened on 2 November 2020 and closed on 27 November 2020. You will appreciate that it will take some time to complete initial processing of the applications and carry out initial checks to determine eligibility; I am therefore not at this stage in a position to provide you with a geographic breakdown of applications.

When eligibility checks has been completed, applications will be assessed during December and early January, with final decision made by the end of January 2021. Mr Catney asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Stability and Renewal for Arts Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the Lagan Valley constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11241/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Stability & Renewal Programme for Organisations opened for applications on 28th October 2020 with a closing deadline for applications of 27th November. To date no payments have been made. Decisions will be made at the end of January 2021. Up to and including Friday 27th November 2020 seven applications have been received from the Lagan Valley constituency.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Communities whether she will consider adding a needs assessment to the eligibility criteria for the Winter Fuel Payment.

(AQW 11250/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Winter Fuel Payment is made on a near-universal basis and most payments are sent out automatically with no need to claim. This is the most simple and efficient way of administering the payment and ensures that vulnerable older people do not miss out. Means-testing or needs assessment of the payment would introduce both complexity and cost in to the system.

However, customers who wish to opt out of receiving a Winter Fuel Payment are free to do so.

Further information on the Winter Fuel Payment can be found at: <https://www.gov.uk/winter-fuel-payment>

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for Communities how many applications for National Insurance numbers are awaiting processing for the period 17 March 2020 to 30 November 2020; and what is the increase for the same corresponding time period in 2019.

(AQW 11264/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: On 30 November 2020 there were 855 applicant's awaiting the allocation of a National Insurance Number, an increase of 653 compared to the same date last year.

In order for a National Insurance Number to be allocated an individual's identity needs to have been verified.

My Department has continued to allocate National Insurance Numbers to those who require one for benefit purposes and for those who are entitled to Student Finance.

We are also offering a National Insurance Number allocation service to non EU individuals who enter on a visa and have already had their identity verified as part of that process.

Due to the pandemic, face to face interviews for what is known as employment related National Insurance Number application have been suspended as Jobs & Benefits Offices have been closed except for specific emergencies although work is currently ongoing to review that position.

However, you can start work without a National Insurance Number if you can prove you have the right to work and it is not needed as evidence for the EU Resettlement Scheme.

It is hoped a digital solution will be in place for residents here during 2021.

The Department's National Insurance registration helpline is recording applicant's contact details who require a National Insurance Number for employment purposes and will progress applications as soon as we are able to resume face-to-face interviews.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for Communities whether she has explored the option of moving face-to-face interviews in the National Insurance number application process to an online video-calling platform.

(AQW 11265/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In order for a National Insurance Number to be allocated an individual's identity needs to have been verified.

My Department has continued to allocate National Insurance Numbers to those who require one for benefit purposes and for those who are entitled to

The application process for National Insurance Numbers requires a face to face interview which is carried out in a Jobs and Benefits Office as staff have to physically examine documentary evidence provided to ensure it is both genuine and relevant to that person. That part of the process cannot be carried out through a video calling platform.

Due to the pandemic, interviews have been suspended as Jobs & Benefits Offices have been closed except for specific emergencies although work is currently ongoing to review that position. People do not need a National Insurance Number to start work or as evidence for the EU Resettlement Scheme. It is hoped a digital solution will be in place during 2021.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities when the COVID-19 Charities Fund will be open for applications.

(AQW 11270/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Winter Fuel Payment

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of recipients in North Down of the Winter Fuel Payment in each of the last five years.

(AQW 11281/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The number of recipients in North Down of the Winter Fuel Payment in each of the last five years is provided in the following table.

Year	Recipients in North Down
2015-16	20,490
2016-17	20,220
2017-18	20,000
2018-19	19,670
2019-20	19,550

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether tenants of the new housing executive mutual body will have the same rights as they currently have, including secured tenancies.

(AQW 11284/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My officials have commenced work to assess options to revitalise the Housing Executive and I have stated my preference for a co-operative or mutual model or one which enhances the role/ownership of tenants.

I do not anticipate that this work will involve changes to tenants' rights including secure tenancies, I have set out my intention to consult on the Housing Executive's House Sales Scheme to deal with the inequity in social tenants' rights as a consequence of the Housing (Amendment) Act 2020.

I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister for Communities whether employees' pension rights will be protected in the new mutual body being created for housing.

(AQW 11286/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My revitalisation plans are at an early stage. My officials have commenced work to update the analysis of the scale of the investment challenge required, and then to assess options.

I will ensure that guarantees and protections are included in the proposals that I bring back to the Executive. I will also give assurances that staff and their representatives will be consulted on the changes.

I intend to bring proposals to the Executive before the end of this mandate.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister for Communities whether he plans to introduce a regulatory debt respite scheme, similar to the scheme in the Breathing Space Moratorium & Mental Health Crisis Moratorium England & Wales Regulations 2020, which gives people more access to professional debt advice services and allows for more time by pausing creditor enforcement action, interest and charges.

(AQW 11298/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Communities has agreed to answer this question as policy responsibility for a debt respite scheme lies within its remit of debt advice.

Discussions are currently ongoing between my officials, the Department of Finance and Treasury regarding provision of a 'Breathing Space' equivalent debt respite scheme. Implementation of a debt respite scheme will have impacts across Government departments, both in respect of delivery and as creditors in any scheme.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Communities what contact she has had with (i) musicians; and (ii) the UK Parliament's Digital, Culture, Media and Sport Select Committee regarding the economics of music streaming, as well as the state of revenue distribution on streaming platforms, to ensure that local musicians are receiving fair remuneration for the work they produce.

(AQW 11305/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I have had no contact with musicians or DCMS regarding the economics of music streaming, or the state of revenue distribution on streaming platforms.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Communities (i) for a definition of elite sports as per the current COVID-19 regulations; (ii) whether clay pigeon shooting may be allowed to continue under current guidelines; and (iii) to detail the rationale for this decision.

(AQW 11306/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I can advise that under the current regulations, an "Elite athlete" means an individual who meets one of the following criteria:

- (i) derives a living from competing in a sport,
- (ii) plays in a professional league or competition,
- (iii) is a senior representative nominated by a relevant sporting body,
- (iv) is a member of the senior training squad for a relevant sporting body, or
- (v) is aged 16 or above and on an elite development pathway.

The Executive agreed to introduce a two-week circuit breaker to slow the spread of Coronavirus in the community and protect the health service. The new restrictions will cover two weeks from November 27. Under these new restrictions, indoor and outdoor sporting activities including clay pigeon shooting are not permitted, other than at elite level.

For further information and guidance on the regulations including a comprehensive definition of an 'elite athlete' please visit the following link on the Sport NI website: FAQ-Guidance-for-sports-for-new-regulations-19-Oct-2020.pdf (sportni.net)

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Heritage Recovery Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the West

Tyrone constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11312/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Heritage Recovery Fund have been received from 62 organisations and 42 individuals. The Fund opened on 2 November 2020 and closed on 27 November 2020. You will appreciate that it will take some time to complete initial processing of the applications and carry out initial checks to determine eligibility; I am therefore not at this stage in a position to provide you with a geographic breakdown of applications.

When eligibility checks has been completed, applications will be assessed during December and early January, with final decision made by the end of January 2021. I anticipate that payments will reach bank accounts in February 2021. A list of all awards made from the Fund will be published at that stage.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Stability and Renewal for Arts Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the West Tyrone constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11313/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Stability & Renewal Programme for Organisations opened for applications on 28th October 2020 with a closing deadline for applications of 27th November. To date no payments have been made. Decisions will be made at the end of January 2021. Up to and including Friday 27th November 2020 six applications have been received from the West Tyrone constituency.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of (i) children deemed to be living in poverty; and (ii) individuals deemed to be living in fuel poverty in every year between 2015 and 2020, broken down by constituency.

(AQW 11322/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) Official measures of absolute and relative poverty are derived from the Family Resources Survey (FRS). Both measures can be presented on a before and after housing costs basis. The number of children estimated to be living in poverty are presented in the table below.

Child Poverty Type	2015/16	2016/17	2017/18	2018/19
Relative Poverty Before Housing Costs	93,000	99,000	85,000	107,000
Relative Poverty After Housing Costs	103,000	118,000	102,000	122,000
Absolute Poverty Before Housing Costs	78,000	82,000	69,000	92,000
Absolute Poverty After Housing Costs	92,000	94,000	87,000	109,000

Households below Average Income Northern Ireland 2018/19 | Department for Communities (communities-ni.gov.uk)

- (ii) Figures relating to Fuel Poverty are published every five years by the Housing Executive via the House Condition Survey. The 2016 report (most recently reported results) estimated that approximately 22% (160,000) households were in fuel poverty. These figures are not currently available at the constituency level.

Further information regarding the House Condition Survey can be found at the link below.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Heritage Recovery Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the South Down constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11325/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Heritage Recovery Fund have been received from 62 organisations and 42 individuals. The Fund opened on 2 November 2020 and closed on 27 November 2020. You will appreciate that it will take some time to complete initial processing of the applications and carry out initial checks to determine eligibility; I am therefore not at this stage in a position to provide you with a geographic breakdown of applications.

When eligibility checks has been completed, applications will be assessed during December and early January, with final decision made by the end of January 2021. I anticipate that payments will reach bank accounts in February 2021. A list of all awards made from the Fund will be published at that stage.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities (i) on what date the Stability and Renewal for Arts Fund opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications have been received from the South Down constituency up to and including Friday 27 November 2020; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11326/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Stability & Renewal Programme for Organisations opened for applications on 28th October 2020 with a closing deadline for applications of 27th November. To date no payments have been made. Decisions will be made at the end of January 2021. Up to and including Friday 27th November 2020 six applications have been received from the South Down constituency.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities how many people in South Down are eligible for the one-off heating payment of £200 for disabled people on higher rate allowance and older people in receipt of pension credit; and when this payment will be made.

(AQW 11327/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: High level analysis shows there are approximately 221,000 people eligible for the Covid-19 Heating Payment. The qualifying week for this payment is the 30th November to 6th December 2020 inclusive. Data is not yet available for this period to indicate the number of eligible recipients, including any geographical breakdowns. Once this information is available, my Department will be happy to provide this.

My Department plans to make the payments during week commencing the 25 January 2021.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities (i) how many applications were made from the South Down constituency to the Social Enterprise Fund; (ii) how many were approved; (iii) how many were declined; and (iv) how many payments have been made.

(AQW 11329/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Social Enterprise Fund opened on 28 September 2020 and closed on 23 October 2020; in total it received 394 applications. I am unable to provide a breakdown of information by constituency but I am able to provide this by district council area.

In the Newry, Mourne and Down district council area, there were 45 applications received with 33 of these being approved and 12 being declined. As of 3pm on Thursday 3 December 2020, 21 of the approved applications had been paid out, 7 were awaiting payment and 5 were awaiting return of the letter of offer by the applicant.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Communities when the development brief on Writers Square will be published.

(AQW 11341/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am currently giving consideration to Writers' Square and wish to consider carefully. This includes consideration of much needed Social and Affordable Housing in the city centre. I will make my decision in due course.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister for Communities to detail any plans to lower the age limit for those considered an elite athlete.

(AQW 11342/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I can advise that under the current regulations, an "Elite athlete" means an individual who meets one of the following criteria:

- (vi) derives a living from competing in a sport,
- (vii) plays in a professional league or competition,
- (viii) is a senior representative nominated by a relevant sporting body,
- (ix) is a member of the senior training squad for a relevant sporting body, or
- (x) is aged 16 or above and on an elite development pathway.

That being said, Sport NI has advised that if an athlete is under the age of 16 but can meet other aspects of the elite athlete definition they may be able to claim elite status.

If elite status is claimed, the High Performance Director/Manager in the sport's Governing Body can make a submission to Sport NI explaining why the named athlete should be granted this status. Sport NI will ask for evidence that this athlete is a realistic candidate for a major international competition in 2021/22, for example, the Olympics, Paralympics, Commonwealth Games, European Championships or World Championships.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Communities how many cases of anti-social behaviour have been recorded by the NI Housing Executive over the last three years in North Down.

(AQW 11370/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Housing Executive has provided the following figures for the number of anti-social behaviour cases it has registered in North Down over the last three years.

- Year 17/18 – 73 cases registered.
- Year 18/19 – 100 cases registered.
- Year 19/20 – 47 cases registered.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities whether she has any plans to extend the £200 Fuel Grant announced by the Minister of Finance to those in receipt of (i) Universal Credit; (ii) the COVID-19 Support Grant; or (iii) families entitled to free school meals.

(AQW 11387/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Covid-19 Heating Payment will be issued as a one-off payment of £200 to people in receipt of Pension Credit as well as those receiving the highest rates of Attendance Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Disability Living Allowance, including children. There are no plans to extend the Scheme to other groups.

The Scheme has been approved by the Executive, and high level analysis shows there are approximately 221,000 people eligible for the payment.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for Communities whether people have to receive both the Carer and Mobility elements at the higher rate to qualify for the Covid Winter Heat payment of £200, or whether a recipient on Higher Carer Rate, not the Mobility element be included.

(AQW 11394/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Those in receipt of Disability Living Allowance will be eligible for the Covid-19 Heating Payment if they receive either the highest rate care element or the higher rate mobility element, or both.

Those in receipt of Personal Independence Payment will be eligible if they receive either the enhanced rate daily living element or the enhanced rate mobility element, or both.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities to detail the number of (i) children deemed to be living in poverty; and (i) individuals deemed to be living in fuel poverty, in the South Down constituency in each of the last five years.

(AQW 11413/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) Official measures of absolute and relative poverty are derived from the Family Resources Survey (FRS). Both measures can be presented on a before and after housing costs basis. The number of children estimated to be living in poverty are presented in the table below. Due to the uncertainty around estimates at lower levels, the Department does not present results for child poverty at constituency level.

Child Poverty Type	2014/15	2015/16	2016/17	2017/18	2018/19
Relative Poverty Before Housing Costs	109,000	93,000	99,000	85,000	107,000
Relative Poverty After Housing Costs	122,000	103,000	118,000	102,000	122,000
Absolute Poverty Before Housing Costs	100,000	78,000	82,000	69,000	92,000
Absolute Poverty After Housing Costs	116,000	92,000	94,000	87,000	109,000

Mr Middleton asked the Minister for Communities to detail how her Department is engaging with the High Street Task Force.
(AQW 11423/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Since the announcement by the Executive, on the 6th of August 2020 to establish a High Street Task Force, officials from my Department have been fully engaged with The Executive Office and others in taking forward the necessary preparatory work.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Communities, pursuant to AQW 11038/17-22, whether she will remove the £21,405 threshold from the COVID-19 Discretionary Support Grant.
(AQW 11478/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I would direct you to my response of 2 December 2020.

To be eligible for a Discretionary Support Self-isolation grant a household's annual income must be no higher than £20,405. This income threshold was increased in response to the pandemic and means that more people in low paid employment can access Discretionary Support.

The Self-isolation grant is designed to assist with short term living expenses where a person, or any member of their immediate family, is diagnosed with COVID-19 or has been advised to self-isolate in accordance with the latest guidance from the Public Health Agency. Importantly, there is no limit on the number of Self-Isolation grants that can be awarded.

I announced enhancements to the Self-isolation grant on 17 November 2020 and I am continuing to review the Discretionary Support scheme to ensure that it delivers financial support to those most in need during the pandemic.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Communities how many people in Upper Bann are eligible for the one-off heating payment of £200 for disabled people on higher rate allowance and older people in receipt of pension credit; and when this payment will be made.
(AQW 11492/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: High level analysis shows there are approximately 221,000 people eligible for the Covid-19 Heating Payment. The qualifying week for this payment is the 30th November to 6th December 2020 inclusive. Data is not yet available for this period to indicate the number of eligible recipients, including any geographical breakdowns.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for Communities how many charities have received funding from the COVID-19 Charities Fund.
(AQO 1280/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am pleased to say that five hundred and one (501) applicants received a total of just under nine million pounds (£9m) from the Covid-19 Charities Fund.

All eligible charities that applied were supported. The Fund opened for applications on 15 June 2020 for four weeks and again for three weeks from 3 August 2020.

The Fund was administered by the National Lottery Community Fund and I am grateful to their team for the work they did to support charities during this difficult period.

Individually tailored awards were made to provide enough funding for each charity to meet essential, unavoidable costs in the period 1 April to 30 September 2020 to stabilise their reserves position.

The majority of the 129 ineligible charities which applied were not in financial difficulty. Others did not meet the basic eligibility criteria required.

This support helped preserve vital charities and ensure that their services can continue now and in the future.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Communities for an update on her plans for the Sub-Regional Stadia Programme for Soccer.
(AQO 1282/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Sub Regional Stadia Programme is a priority in the New Decade New Approach Deal. The delivery of the Programme provides a real opportunity to contribute to the delivery of wider government priorities and to address a range of social, economic and cultural needs, whilst also meeting the needs of the football family.

Currently my officials are undertaking work to provide a robust and up-to-date evidence base for the Programme. This includes a club survey and a series of strategic discussions with the key stakeholders who oversee the game, operate the facilities, support football and play the sport at all levels.

A Working Group has also been established with representatives from the key stakeholders involved, including Councils, IFA, NIFL, SportNI and the Department. This will ensure a collaborative approach to developing the shape and scope of the programme.

This work aims to ensure that the programme reflects the current and future needs of local football.

A full analysis of the outcomes of both of these exercises, along with benchmarking and research, will inform my proposals on the future of this Programme.

Following this work I will present recommendations to Executive colleagues on the future implementation of the Programme including the timetable for delivery.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister for Communities for her assessment of the importance of Scrabo Tower.
(AQO 1283/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The tower sits upon an Iron Age Hillfort (c. 500 BC - AD 300) and adjacent to an earlier Bronze Age (c. 2500-1500 BC) settlement, making the site of considerable archaeological importance.

Due to the significance of the tower and its setting, the site is afforded statutory protection, being a scheduled historic monument under the Historic Monuments and Archaeological Objects (NI) Order 1995, as well as a B+ listed structure under the Planning Act (NI) 2011. It is also a monument in state care.

The tower holds great importance for the local community and is a popular location for outdoor recreation, in conjunction with the DAERA-operated Scrabo Country Park which is immediately adjacent.

The site is also an important local tourist attraction; between 2017 and 2019 the average annual visitor numbers were 4,454 persons.

From 2017 opening of the tower during the summer months has been facilitated through a successful partnership arrangement between my Department and the National Trust. This partnership was set to continue in 2020, but opening has been prevented by the COVID-19 pandemic. It is intended to continue to build upon this relationship with the National Trust, once restrictions are lifted.

My Department is aware that substantive work is required to address water ingress which has been a persistent problem at the tower, dating back to changes to the design which were implemented during its construction to reduce the cost. We aim to seek resources to address this issue in the coming years.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Communities whether she will consider postponing Personal Independence Payment award reviews until at least April 2021.
(AQO 1284/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Earlier in the year I suspended reviews for 4 months and in order to ensure those impacted continued to receive their PIP payments, I extended their awards for a further 6 months.

When PIP award reviews restarted in July it was in a measured and controlled manner. The issue of all award review forms was pushed back by 4 months

As an additional safeguard I extended all PIP awards by 9 months.

These actions are intended to ensure that vulnerable people continue to receive financial protection and have enough time to fill in their forms before their existing award ends.

It also ensures that there is no spike in workloads for those independent groups who support people in the PIP process and for the Department in making decisions.

All people with a scheduled PIP review have already been notified of their new award end date.

To suspend reviews until April 2021 and to issue further letters would only cause additional difficulties for people, with many at different stages of this process.

All PIP recipients will continue to receive their normal PIP payments while they are going through the award review process.

Many people may receive an increased award following this review.

Mr Buckley asked the Minister for Communities for an update on the provision of Winter Fuel Payments.
(AQO 1285/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department for Work and Pensions administers Winter Fuel Payments on behalf of my Department.

Winter Fuel Payment notification letters issued to customers between 12 October and 27 November.

These notification letters inform customers of their Winter Fuel Payment amount in advance of payments being made to provide customers with notice to inform the Department for Work and Pensions if they think the decision is incorrect. This means that an original decision can be revised if necessary before a payment is issued reducing the likelihood of an under/overpayment.

Winter Fuel Payments commenced on 9 November 2020 with all automatic payments due to be received by customers by 23 December 2020.

As at 27 November 2020, approximately 50% of automatic Winter Fuel Payments had been made.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Communities whether she will expand support for home insulation and energy efficiency schemes, to address fuel poverty and the climate crisis.

(AQO 1286/17-22)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Affordable Warmth Scheme is the Executive's main fuel poverty scheme. It provides a range of energy efficiency improvement measures which include cavity and loft insulation as well as new and replacement heating systems and windows where appropriate.

I have recently approved changes to the eligibility criteria for the Scheme. Increasing the income threshold from £20,000 to £23,000 and removing disability benefits from the calculation of income will increase the number of households eligible for support. Work is ongoing to amend the relevant Scheme Regulations to enable these changes to be implemented.

This Scheme is delivered in partnership between the Department, all eleven local Councils and the Housing Executive. It has a targeted approach, aimed at private sector households most at risk of fuel poverty.

The Boiler Replacement Scheme also provides a grant of up to £1,000 to eligible households towards the cost of replacing old and inefficient boilers over 15 years old.

The Housing Executive is aware of the significant level of funding that will be required to bring its stock up to a standard at which it can make a marked contribution to addressing climate change.

The Housing Executive recently commissioned research into the cost of retro-fitting housing to improve energy efficiency standards here (regardless of tenure). The research findings will help to inform policy going forward, but the common challenge for all providers remains the availability of funding to facilitate works to deliver improved energy efficiency standards.

A new Fuel Poverty Strategy, which is in the early stages of development, will align with the new Energy Strategy and associated Energy Efficiency Strategy and Clean Air Strategies.

Department of Education

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education to detail the total figure of COVID-19 cases in schools.

(AQW 8204/17-22)

Mr Weir (The Minister of Education): The PHA publishes information on COVID-19 cases including those in schools in their weekly bulletin which is available here:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/publications/coronavirus-bulletin>

To date there has been 2054 cases in pupils, this does however only represent 0.6% of school aged children in Northern Ireland. The figures give confidence that the range of mitigating factors put in place are working and school remains a safe place for pupils and staff.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) in what circumstances parents may withhold their children from attending school during the COVID-19 crisis; (ii) whether they should stop their children attending if an adult in their home is isolated as they may have become infected; (iii) whether they should stop their children attending if an adult in their home is regarded as vulnerable or high risk; and (iv) what resources schools will be required or expected to provide if a child is not attending school in order to protect an adult at home.

(AQW 9737/17-22)

Mr Weir:

- (i) If someone is showing symptoms of COVID-19 (a new continuous cough or fever or loss of taste/smell) or has someone in their household who is displaying symptoms, they should not be in an educational setting. These individuals should be at home, in line with the guidance for households with possible coronavirus infection, and should follow guidance on the Public Health Agency website. In summary, pupils should not attend school if they are ill and have any COVID-19 symptoms. As per DE Circular 2020/08, if a pupil chooses not to attend school or parent chooses not to send their child to school on the advice of a medical professional as the child is self-isolating due to a significant underlying medical condition, and the pupil is learning remotely, then Code 8 should be used. This will not impact on the pupil's attendance record as it is an Approved Educational Activity. In such cases, medical evidence is required by the school to authenticate circumstances. Only in extreme circumstances and on the advice of a medical professional should this code be used where the parent has a significant underlying medical condition which would warrant the child having to learn from home. Unless the child is ill, is displaying symptoms of COVID-19, or has tested positive, there are no other circumstances that a child should refrain from school.

- (ii) If someone is showing symptoms of COVID-19 (a new continuous cough or fever or loss of taste/smell) or has someone in their household who is displaying symptoms, they should not be in an educational setting. These individuals should be at home, in line with the guidance for households with possible coronavirus infection, and should follow guidance on the Public Health Agency website.
- (iii) The New School Day guidance states that if a child or young person lives with someone who is clinically vulnerable, including those who are pregnant, they can attend their education or childcare setting. If in doubt, advice should be sought from the Hospital Consultant or GP of the clinically vulnerable person. For pupils living with someone who was previously shielding (clinically extremely vulnerable people), these restrictions eased over time and as of 1 August 2020 'shielding' has been paused. Such pupils should have an individual risk assessment conducted before return. Individual risk assessments should be conducted in conjunction with parents, health professionals and school leaders. The Education Authority (EA) Health and Safety Team have developed risk assessment templates for Clinically Extremely Vulnerable (CEV) pupils and also for those pupils who are living with someone who is CEV during the Covid-19 pandemic.
- (iv) Due to the continuing impact of the pandemic, we have asked all schools to have contingency plans in place to deliver remote learning in the event of a school closure, or that a class or group of pupils need to self-isolate. Feedback from our Inspectorate indicates that all schools they surveyed have contingency plans in place and the majority have enacted them at some point. My key priority is keep our children in school wherever and whenever possible but to support and empower schools to deliver high quality remote learning when it is required. Last week, all schools were provided with a checklist of readiness for remote learning. The EA and Catholic Controlled Maintained Schools (CCMS) have developed this in conjunction with Principals to support schools to plan and reflect on their remote learning, i.e. what they have in place and key areas of development.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education whether his Department has any plans to gather relevant, comprehensive disaggregated data about the adverse equality impacts upon children with disabilities the COVID-19 pandemic has caused, particularly due to the closure of schools and the isolation of children.

(AQW 10299/17-22)

Mr Weir: Throughout June 2020, the Education and Training Inspectorate met with reference groups of curricular coordinators, Heads of Departments and leaders on a cross-sectional basis from across Northern Ireland to seek their views on the challenges of remote learning and teaching, and what approaches they might take in moving towards the return to school with as many children and young people as possible, complemented by blended learning where necessary.

The findings are available at: <https://www.etini.gov.uk/sites/etini.gov.uk/files/publications/special-schools-curricular-challenges-and-approaches-taken.pdf>

As part of the ongoing work between health and education the Joint Health/Education Oversight Group is currently considering plans for a review of learning from experiences of parents of vulnerable children, particularly those with the most complex needs, during COVID 19.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister of Education how many pupils across Northern Ireland have been unable to access remote learning during the lockdown period.

(AQW 10330/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Department does not hold information about access to remote learning at individual pupil level. However, in April, during the lockdown period, my Department conducted a survey of school principals which included questions on distance learning. The survey found that all schools which responded to the survey were using online or hard copy approaches to distance learning.

Overall, 96% of schools reported they were using online learning - 100% of post primary settings, 95% of schools in the primary phase and 92% of special schools. Each of the settings that were not using online learning reported that they were providing pupils with alternative versions of resources, such as hard copies or textbooks.

In responding to feedback from the survey I introduced a scheme to lend devices and provide access to a broadband solution for those learners who need it most. To date, 10094 devices, 2727 BT hotspot vouchers and 417 MiFi devices have been provided to pupils.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what percentage of pupils are accessing the recommended two hours per week of statutory curriculum physical education, broken down by primary and post-primary.

(AQW 10408/17-22)

Mr Weir: Questions about pupils' access to PE in the curriculum are included in the Young Persons Behaviour and Attitude Survey (YPBAS) and in the School Omnibus Survey.

The YPBAS is a school-based survey carried out among year groups 8 – 12. It covers a wide range of topics relevant to the lives of young people and includes a question about PE lessons in school. The most recent survey, conducted between September 2019 and February 2020, found that 62% of young people were normally involved in PE for 2 hours or more each week.

Information about the amount of time schools allocate to Physical Education (PE) is also collected via the School Omnibus Survey. The last survey was conducted in 2018 and information provided by schools which responded to the survey, broken down by primary and post primary, is set out in the tables below:

Primary Schools

	2018
0-59 mins per week	37.8%
60-119 mins per week	57.4%
120 or more mins per week	4.8%

Based on responses from 248 primary schools

Post-Primary Schools

	2018
0-59 mins per week	26.8%
60-119 mins per week	63.5%
120 or more mins per week	12%

Based on responses from 67 post-primary schools

The 2020/21 Omnibus Survey will issue to schools early next year and will include questions on the provision of PE in schools.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education, given the growing poverty brought about by the presence of COVID-19, whether he will provide free school meals over the Christmas holiday period.

(AQW 10691/17-22)

Mr Weir: At its meeting on 19 November the Executive agreed to support my proposal to fund a School Holiday Food payment scheme to alleviate the hardship experienced during school holidays by the families of children who are in receipt of free school meals when at school. The scheme will make payments to the average value of a free school meal of £2.70 per child per day for 5 days a week. The payment will be issued to families of children entitled to free school meals when at school during school holidays up to Easter 2022.

For the purposes of the School Holiday Food payments it was decided to cover the period when most schools plan their school Christmas holidays this year from 22 December to 4 January. It is the intention that the payments will be made during the week of 14 December to ensure that the money will be available to families ahead of Christmas and that families have the means to plan their food shopping at this very busy time.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Education when question AQW 8611/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 10719/17-22)

Mr Weir: AQW 8611/17-22 was answered on 26 November. The response was late due to an administrative oversight within my Department. I would be grateful if you could please accept the apologies of my Officials.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education what advice has been sought from behavioural scientists into the possibility of higher-risk parents sending children, who are meant to be self-isolating, or have potential COVID-19 symptoms, to complete post-primary transfer tests.

(AQW 11029/17-22)

Mr Weir: It is a matter for individuals to ensure that they act in accordance with any restrictions set out in the relevant health protection legislation and to ensure they follow the advice of the Chief Medical Officer and Public Health Authority.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education when the next Department of Education employer and Trade Union consultation subgroup meeting will be.

(AQW 11032/17-22)

Mr Weir: There are currently no plans for a further meeting of the subgroup.

At the last meeting on 8 September 2020, it was agreed that any further meetings would be held only if required. Since then, a number of written updates have been issued to the subgroup, including the circulation of draft documents for comment. Subgroup members remain available to comment by correspondence, or to convene a meeting if required.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Education to detail the advice sought from behavioural scientists in relation to the potentiality of guidance to be breached with regards to post-primary transfer tests.

(AQW 11101/17-22)

Mr Weir: It is a matter for individuals to ensure that they act in accordance with any restrictions set out in the relevant health protection legislation and to ensure they follow the advice of the Chief Medical Officer and Public Health Authority.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the date schools will close for the Christmas Holidays; (ii) the last day school meals will be available in schools; (iii) the rationale for the free school meal payment beginning on 14 December; and (iv) when he will give certainty to school principals on this issue.

(AQW 11110/17-22)

Mr Weir:

- (i) Schools plan their school holidays in advance of the school year starting and these are submitted to the Education Authority to note. Consequently, there can be considerable variation between schools regarding when they decide to finish for Christmas. The EA has identified nine non-operational days throughout the Christmas period (22 December 2020 to 1 January 2021) when EA services will not be available. For the purposes of the School Holiday Food payments it was decided to cover the period when most schools plan their school Christmas holidays this year from 22 December to 4 January inclusive.
- (ii) School meals will continue to be served up to and including Monday 21 December as normal and the School Holiday Food payments will cover the period 22 December to 4 January.
- (iii) The School Holiday Food payments announced on 19 November are to alleviate the hardship experienced during school holidays by the families of children who are in receipt of free school meals when at school. The food payments for the schools' Christmas holidays will cover the period 22 December to 4 January. It is however the intention that the payments will be made during the week of 14 December to ensure that the money will be available to families ahead of Christmas and that families will have the means to plan their food shopping at this very busy time.
- (iv) I wrote to Principals on 8 December to give certainty on this issue.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what action his Department has taken to ensure the Area Planning process encourages and facilitates integrated education.

(AQW 11131/17-22)

Mr Weir: My Department funds the Northern Ireland Council for Integrated Education (NICIE) to provide information, analysis and advice on Development Proposals impacting on integrated schools, to engage with the planning authorities (the Education Authority and the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools) in identifying innovative, creative and shared solutions for sustainable provision and to engage with all other sectors with a view to adding to quality and viability of provision.

NICIE is facilitated to fulfil this role through its representation at all levels of the area planning structures (Area Planning Steering Group (APSG), Working Group (APWG) and Local Groups (APLG)).

Where Development Proposals are brought forward for provision in the integrated sector, they are assessed in line with the statutory duty, considered on a case by case basis and balanced against other relevant statutory and policy requirements.

Additionally the views of the Department's sponsor branch for Irish-Medium and Integrated Education, (IMIE), are sought and reflected in recommendations brought to me as decision-taker.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education to detail the percentage of schools which have had COVID-19 cases, broken down by Assembly constituency.

(AQW 11206/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Department of Education does not collect any information on COVID-19 cases in schools. This information is collected and reported on by the Public Health Agency (PHA) and can be accessed on their website at the following location: Coronavirus bulletin | HSC Public Health Agency (hscni.net). Contained within each weekly bulletin is a section on schools and analysis by council area. Unfortunately analysis by Assembly constituency is not published in this report.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 9296/17-22, whether funding will be made available to schools to enable them to honour pre-arranged hours for external tutors which have not been able to go ahead due to COVID-19 restrictions in schools.

(AQW 11213/17-22)

Mr Weir: The need for additional funding will depend on how the school normally pays for the services of the external tutors. If the tutors were normally paid from existing funding streams (e.g. Extended Schools allocations), then the funding for these hours should already be in place. However, if the external tutor costs were funded, or supplemented, by parental or other income which has now stopped, this would be seen as a COVID-19 related cost.

To help schools address many of the new pressures arising as a result of COVID-19, I announced significant funding to help support the safe reopening of schools.

The allocations made to schools to date are to mitigate additional costs due to COVID-19, beyond teacher substitution costs. The Education Authority (EA) has advised schools to code additional expenditure incurred as a result of COVID-19 to specific COVID-19 function codes. This is to allow robust monitoring of COVID-19 related expenditure and to facilitate the disaggregation of normal school expenditure from that specifically related to COVID-19 responses. Importantly, schools' use of COVID-19 function codes will assist the EA in monitoring schools' funding requirements as the pandemic progresses in order to inform potential future Departmental bids for additional resources, as required.

That said, regardless of my Department's success in securing additional funding to tackle COVID-19 to date, there is no guarantee of further additional funding. It is for this reason that schools have been advised to exercise spending restraint in line with their current funding allocations.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what action his Department has taken to implement the Fresh Start panel report on the Disbandment of Paramilitary Groups recommendation that ambitious targets and milestones be set to measurably reduce segregation in education as quickly as possible.

(AQW 11214/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Fresh Start Panel recommended that the NI Executive should accelerate and build on its existing good relations strategy to measurably reduce segregation in education and housing and set ambitious targets and milestones to achieve measurable progress as quickly as possible. The Executive responded that it is committed to continuing to build on existing strategies and will give ongoing consideration to this going forward.

The NI Executive's Together: Building a United Community (T:BUC) Strategy, included a headline action to commence 10 new shared education campuses by 2018. This headline action is being taken forward by my Department under the Shared Education Campuses (SEC) Programme which provides capital assistance to applicant schools to facilitate shared education.

The SEC projects contribute to the desire to enhance the quality and extent of Shared Education provision within Northern Ireland, improving community relations and continuing the journey towards a more united and shared society. There have been three Calls to the SEC Programme to date, with four projects having been approved to proceed in planning. The Third Call generated eight applications.

The Strule Shared Education Campus in Omagh involves significant capital investment into the region's post-primary and special education sectors for the construction of six new schools and associated shared education facilities. I remain fully committed to delivering this educationally and strategically significant Programme and my officials and I are working diligently to progress to the next stage in the procurement process.

Significant work is being undertaken within my Department which contributes to wider Fresh Start (Tackling Paramilitarism) outcomes, including a number of programmes that are funded by the Tackling Paramilitarism Programme. My Department also has a large number of policies, interventions and programmes in place to raise standards and reduce educational underachievement. These include but are not limited to: the work of the Expert Panel to examine the links between educational underachievement and socio-economic disadvantage; School Attendance, Parental Engagement, Extended Schools, Targeting Social Need, geographic (needs based) programmes; Youth and Early Years interventions, Special Educational Needs and Shared Education.

In relation to Shared Education, my Department's aim is to provide all pupils with an opportunity to participate in a programme of high quality Shared Education on a continued and progressive basis. In June 2019, 61% of primary, post primary and special schools were involved in the current Shared Education programmes, with approximately one quarter of the school population across these phases engaged in sharing.

My Department is currently developing proposals for a long term sustainable strategy aimed at embedding Shared Education across the wider education sector on a phased basis. Proposals for new programmes under Peace Plus are being developed and will seek to engage those settings which have not as yet had the opportunity to be involved in Shared Education.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Education whether a pedestrian entrance and exit will be available to the pupils of Elmgrove Primary School located on the adjacent site when the redevelopment of the former Avoniel Leisure Centre is completed.

(AQW 11339/17-22)

Mr Weir: The Education Authority has advised me that it does not have the authority to create a pedestrian entrance and exit located on the adjacent site for the pupils of Elmgrove Primary School when the redevelopment of the former Avoniel Leisure Centre is complete.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the number of Boards of Governors MLAs may sit on; and (ii) the number of schools that currently have MLAs on their Board of Governors.

(AQW 11390/17-22)

Mr Weir: Article 12 of the Education and Libraries (Northern Ireland) Order 1986 (as amended) provides that, except with the approval of the Department of Education, no person shall at the same time hold office as a member of more than three Boards of Governors of grant-aided schools.

Depending on the school sector, a Board of Governors can comprise members elected by parents and teachers; foundation governors or members nominated by transferors or trustees; and members appointed or nominated by the Department and the Education Authority.

My Department holds details only in respect of governors that it appoints or nominates and is therefore unable to detail the number of schools that currently have MLAs on their Board of Governors.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister of Education how his Department will work with local schools to mark the centenary of Northern Ireland.

(AQW 11425/17-22)

Mr Weir: The UK Government has made a commitment in the New Decade, New Approach document to work with the Executive to mark the centenary of Northern Ireland in 2021; and to make available funding for related projects. I intend to participate in Executive discussions with the Secretary of State about the implementation of the UK Government's commitment to support and fund projects. The quantum and method of allocation of these funds have not yet been determined.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister of Education how many pupils in the Foyle constituency have received electronic devices to assist them with remote learning during COVID-19.

(AQW 11426/17-22)

Mr Weir: The current scheme for lending devices aims to ensure that resources are targeted where there is greatest need. I have been advised that 702 electronic devices have been allocated to pupils in the Foyle constituency in response to requests from their schools.

The form to request devices remains open on the C2k exchange and the EA is continuing to process requests as a matter of urgency.

I hope you find this information helpful.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Education whether Pre-School Education Programme places, previously provided by the Big Red Balloon Nursery in Bangor, will be fully allocated to other local nurseries.

(AQW 11451/17-22)

Mr Weir: My Department was notified by the Education Authority (EA) that Big Red Balloon Day Nursery closed with effect from Monday 16 November 2020.

The EA has advised that Big Red Balloon Pre-School had 11 funded pre-school children and these children have all been offered alternative funded placements in the local area. Sufficient spare capacity was available within existing funded non-statutory pre-school settings to ensure the placement of the children displaced due to the sudden closure of Big Red Balloon.

The key aim of the Pre-School Education Programme is to ensure there is a funded pre-school place for every child whose parents wish it. The Pre-School Education Group (PEG) reviews pre-school provision on an annual basis to ensure that sufficient funded pre-school provision is available to address demand.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Education to detail his Department's plans and timeline to provide additional modular classrooms and associated facilities at the Dean Maguire College, Carrickmore.

(AQW 11573/17-22)

Mr Weir: A Business Case is currently being reviewed by my Department's Finance Team for the:

- replacement of a Music double mobile (132m²) and Drama/6th Form/general classroom units (136m²) with two 160m² double modular units; and
- the replacement of two general classroom double units (99.47m² & 124.99m²) with two prefabricated double modular units (160m² each).

All the new units have support spaces, pupil toilets and ambulant WC's.

Pending Business Case approval, it is anticipated that the design development, planning approval, procurement and construction works will take eleven months to complete.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education for a breakdown of the absence rates of teaching staff by (i) nursery; (ii) primary; and (iii) post-primary, broken down by September, October and November for 2018, 2019 and 2020.

(AQW 11575/17-22)

Mr Weir: The requested information is given in the table below.

Working days lost per teacher due to sickness absence.

		Nursery		Primary		Post-Primary
		No. of working days lost due to sickness	No of working days lost per teacher	No. of working days lost due to sickness	No of working days lost per teacher	No. of working days lost due to sickness	No of working days lost per teacher

The sickness absence records of teachers' are reported to the Department by all schools except voluntary grammar schools and recorded on the Teachers' Payroll System the month after an absence has occurred. Therefore, only absences that occurred up to the end of October 2020 are currently available. Teacher sickness absence data for November 2020 will be available from mid-January.

Covid 19 absences are not included in sickness absences recorded on the Teachers' Payroll System as these absences are not considered sick absences for teachers' pay purposes.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education whether the non-attendance of a pupil isolating due to COVID-19, when recorded on the C2k attendance system in schools, marks that child present or absent.

(AQW 11577/17-22)

Mr Weir: As set out in DE Circular 2020/08, a pupil who is self-isolating due to someone in close proximity testing positive should be coded as a Code 8. This code is used for Intensive Learning Support and Self-isolating and has a statistical meaning of an Approved Educational Activity. Therefore, it will be treated a present mark and will not affect the pupil's attendance.

If a pupil is self-isolating because they have tested positive or display symptoms then Code I should be used as the pupil would be deemed as ill, even if asymptomatic.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Education whether he will seek the co-operation of the Minister of Health in prioritising the provision of the COVID-19 vaccine to staff in schools, to enable this key service to operate effectively in the new year.

(AQW 11578/17-22)

Mr Weir: As you can appreciate the prioritisation of the rollout of the vaccine is carried out at a UK level by the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI). Northern Ireland, along with the other Devolved Administrations, will adhere to the JCVI advice on prioritisation of the vaccine.

JCVI have advised that "the first priorities for any COVID-19 vaccination programme should be the prevention of COVID-19 mortality and the protection of health and social care staff and systems. Secondary priorities could include vaccination of those at increased risk of hospitalisation and at increased risk of exposure, and to maintain resilience in essential public services."

Phase 1 of the programme will therefore offer vaccination to care home residents and staff, frontline health and social care workers, and those 80 years of age and over.

However, I intend to formally write to the Health Minister noting whilst it may be outside his jurisdiction, that prioritisation be considered for staff who work in schools or education settings, when vaccines become available.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education for a breakdown of the gender of children enrolled in schools which have a statement of special educational needs.

(AQW 11586/17-22)

Mr Weir: Please see table below for information requested.

Pupils recorded as having a statement of Special Educational Needs broken down by gender – 2019/20

School type	Gender
	Female	Male	Total
Voluntary and private preschool centres	8	22	30
Nursery schools	25	40	65
Primary	1,683	4,611	6,294
Post primary	1,866	5,151	7,017
Special	1,698	4,096	5,794
Total	5,280	13,920	19,200

Note: Figures for primary include nursery classes, reception and year 1 – 7 classes.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Education whether any consideration is being given to a variation providing flexibility in the age a child must be enrolled in school.

(AQW 11660/17-22)

Mr Weir: I appreciate that there may be circumstances when it may be beneficial for a child to defer entry to Year One. In determining the best way to proceed, I want to assess the impact any change might have on the overall number of years a pupil spends in compulsory education.

I want to fully assess the options presented to ensure any change brought forward represents the most appropriate way to proceed, including any change in legislation.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Education what discussions he has had with the Minister of Health in relation to the introduction of rapid testing for COVID-19 in schools, particularly in year groups undertaking key examinations.

(AQO 1303/17-22)

Mr Weir: I can confirm there have been no discussions held with the Minister of Health in relation to rapid testing for COVID-19 in schools.

COVID-19 testing should continue to be accessed through the established testing program in the community and follow the advice of the Public Health Agency when a positive case is notified.

On 19 November my Department published Public Health – Guidance to Support Public Examinations for schools and educational settings. This guidance applies to the conduct of public examinations in November 2020 and the rest of the 2020/21 academic year and enables schools to progress in a way which significantly reduces the risk of coronavirus (COVID-19) transmission.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister of Education to outline any statutory obligations in place with regard to employing school traffic patrol officers.

(AQO 1308/17-22)

Mr Weir: The provision of a school crossing patrol service is a non-statutory function. School Traffic Patrol Officers are recruited and employed by the Education Authority (EA) and like other employees, are entitled to a range of statutory employment rights derived from national or European legislation. It is up to their employer to ensure that these are implemented.

I have been advised by the EA that in providing the non-statutory School Crossing Patrol scheme the EA, like other managing authorities across the UK, apply the guidelines set out in the 'School Crossing Patrol Service Guidelines – Revised November 2013' which have been produced by Road Safety GB.

The guidelines are compiled based on existing legislation, best practice, health and safety and case law.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister of Education to outline his Department's policy on the use of seclusion and restraint in schools.

(AQO 1307/17-22)

Mr Weir: All schools should have a clear written policy about the use of reasonable force to restrain or control pupils as a last resort.

The Department does not have specific guidance in relation to seclusion. The use of quiet spaces, sensory rooms and chill out rooms are used in schools which allow pupils with special educational needs to enter (on a voluntary basis) and to return to class as and when they are ready. This supervised 'time out' is viewed as a 'reasonable adjustment', as a means of supporting the child's emotional self-regulation.

I have asked officials to consider the issues of seclusion and restraint, including the appropriateness of existing guidance, in conjunction with stakeholders and to report back in due course.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Education in light of the COVID-19 pandemic, to outline the engagement he has had with schools regarding arrangements for the 2021 transfer test.

(AQO 1309/17-22)

Mr Weir: The transfer tests are not administered by my Department and arrangements for the tests are between the test providers and those post-primary schools hosting the tests.

However, the circumstances we find ourselves in this year are unprecedented and we can all agree that the health and safety of pupils sitting the tests is of paramount importance. I have already written to the tests providers, and by extension to the selective schools, asking them to ensure that all available medical and public health guidance is followed fully and that advice on those arrangements is communicated early and clearly to parents and pupils. I have asked to be kept informed of the measures being put in place.

I have also written to the Boards of Governors of selective post-primary schools to highlight the importance of considering contingency arrangements should entrance tests not be available for any child. I have also encouraged Boards of Governors to review their special circumstances to ensure they remain robust and are able to deal with any increase in the number of cases, for example, where test results may not be available for a proportion of applicants required to isolate and being unable to sit the tests.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Education for an update on the new build for Dunclug College.

(AQO 1310/17-22)

Mr Weir: I am pleased to advise that the procurement process for the appointment of an Integrated Supply Team (IST) is well underway.

Tender returns are currently being evaluated and it is anticipated that the contract will be awarded in Spring 2021.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Education whether he will introduce legislation to provide for a flexible school starting age.

(AQO 1311/17-22)

Mr Weir: The requirement for children who have reached the age of 4 by the 1st July to start primary school in September of that year is set out in Article 46 of the Education and Libraries (Northern Ireland) Order 1986.

I have previously stated that I would consider whether changes to provide for a legal deferral is the most appropriate way forward and I have asked my officials to bring forward a paper to update previous proposals for deferring school starting age for my consideration.

In determining the best way to proceed, it is essential that an in-depth analysis is undertaken to consider the immediate and longer term effects, including assessing the impact any change might have on the overall number of years a pupil spends in compulsory education.

I will want to fully assess the options presented and I will then set out how I intend to proceed, including any possible requirements in terms of legislation.

Ms Bailey asked the Minister of Education for his assessment of the Education Authority's delegation of budgets to special schools.

(AQO 1312/17-22)

Mr Weir: Funding for special schools, which is allocated to the Education Authority's block grant, is determined by the Education Authority, and therefore any further delegation of budgets to these schools would be a matter for the Education Authority to consider in the first instance.

I am aware that the Education Authority is carrying out a review of the methodology underpinning the element of budgets that are currently delegated to special schools under Article 60, to ensure that this is operating as efficiently and effectively as possible.

I would urge special schools to continue to engage with the Education Authority on this, and I look forward to the outcome of the proposed 2021-22 pilot.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Education to outline how his Department is progressing projects as part of the School Enhancement Programme.

(AQO 1313/17-22)

Mr Weir: There are currently 74 schools being progressed under the second call to the School Enhancement Programme (SEP2) comprising 43 primary schools, 19 post-primary schools and 12 special schools.

The delivery teams in the Department and the Education Authority are currently working with the 74 schools to progress these projects.

Design teams have been appointed for 31 projects and work is ongoing to develop detailed designs for those schools. The other projects are at earlier stages of scoping and design.

Business Cases for the projects are being developed to ensure the projects provide a value for money solution to the needs of each individual school.

Mr M Bradley asked the Minister of Education what steps his Department is taking to assist pupils, particularly in examination year groups, that have been forced to self-isolate on more than one occasion.

(AQO 1314/17-22)

Mr Weir: It is my priority that examinations to award CCEA qualifications should go ahead as planned in 2021. The suite of adaptations which I announced on 9 October and 6 November are designed to take account not only of lost learning during the period from March to June 2020 but also to reflect the ongoing disruption that we are currently experiencing during the 2020/21 academic year.

However, I been keeping the situation under review, and my officials have been working closely with CCEA to develop a range of further mitigations and contingencies to respond to the fluid public health situation. This work is at an advanced stage and I hope to be in a position to provide more information very soon.

Mr Catney asked the Minister of Education, in light of the Minister of Finance's statement on 23 November 2020, what additional funding will be allocated to Special Educational Needs to deal with current pressures.

(AQO 1315/17-22)

Mr Weir: Glastry College

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Education to outline the timescale for a new school building at Glastry College, Ballyhalbert.

(AQO 1316/17-22)

Mr Weir: Glastry College, Ballyhalbert, was included in the list of projects I announced on 14 January 2020 to advance in design under the second call to the School Enhancement Programme (SEP2).

Under the SEP2 protocol, schools which secure investment under SEP2 will not be considered for a wholly new build project for seven years.

The Education Authority has advised that the verification process for the SEP2 scheme is underway to provide the project brief and accommodation analysis. It is anticipated this will be completed by the end of January 2021.

I anticipate that the facilities provided under the SEP2 project will have a positive impact on the community at Glastry College, Ballyhalbert.

Department of Finance

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Finance whether he plans to work with Executive colleagues to establish a COVID-19 hardship fund that could assist individuals and businesses in settling debts, including interest payable, incurred due to the delay in distributing financial support during the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10679/17-22)

Mr Murphy (The Minister of Finance): The Executive has been working hard to put an unprecedented amount of support in place for businesses and individuals impacted by COVID-19, but I fully understand the frustrations with the speed at which some payments are being made from these schemes.

While in some cases these are taking longer to issue than I would hope, be assured that officials are working as fast as they can to process these payments. It is also important to understand that these schemes would usually be designed and implemented over a matter of months – however they are being turned around in days given the situation we find ourselves in and that many Government Departments, including Finance and Infrastructure, have repurposed themselves to provide grant support.

Economic support is the responsibility of the Department for the Economy and I would be happy to work with Executive colleagues should a proposal for a hardship fund come forward.

Ms Ennis asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 9752/17-22, how many baby and child deaths occurred in each year since 2016.

(AQW 10825/17-22)

Mr Murphy: A table containing deaths by single year of age for each year since 1955 up to 2018 is available at https://www.nisra.gov.uk/sites/nisra.gov.uk/files/publications/deaths_by_age_1955_2018.xls. Table 1 is based on that information and provided below for ease of reference.

Table 1: Deaths Registered in Northern Ireland by Age, 2016-2020P

Age	2016	2017	2018	2019 ^P	2020 ^P
0	112	88	97	112	68
1-5	14	21	13
6-14	17	22	19
(1-14)				26	20
15+	15,287	15,905	15,793	15,620	12,741
Total	15,430	16,036	15,922	15,758	12,829

- 1 For purposes of request 'child' has been defined as children up to pre-school age of 5 years old
- 2 Information for 2019 and 2020 is not yet published by single age and therefore not available in the form requested.

Provisional quarterly information on deaths by specific age groups is currently available in table 4a for 2019 (<https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/registrar-general-quarterly-tables-2019>) and quarters 1 to 3 in 2020 (<https://www.nisra.gov.uk/publications/registrar-general-quarterly-tables-2020>).

2019 figures presented by single year of age will be available via the Registrar General's Annual Report 2019 which is due to be published on 16th December 2020.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Finance (i) to detail any rates holiday or rates relief support packages he has announced as part of the Executive's response to COVID-19; and (ii) to detail (a) the number of properties expected to benefit; (b) the total amount of funds allocated to each initiative; and (c) any oversight mechanisms he has put in place to ensure only the appropriate recipient benefits from the support.

(AQW 10840/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The table below sets out details of the main announcements made in relation to rates support measures in response to the pandemic for the current rating year. In addition to these specific support packages, on 31 March, as part of my Budget announcement, I announced a reduction in the Regional Rate for all businesses equating to an 18% reduction on the 2019/20 rate.

Announcement	Rates Support	Properties expected to benefit	Total amount allocated to each initiative
17 March – 3 months rate holiday 19 May – further 1 month rate holiday	4 months rates relief for all businesses (excluding public sector and utilities)	Currently assessed as 50,105	Cost currently assessed as £138m
19 May – targeted rates support	8 months rate relief for specified business uses within retail, hospitality, leisure, tourism, childcare sectors, and airports	Currently assessed as 22,555	Cost currently assessed as £132m
23 November – additional relief for the manufacturing sector	8 months rate relief for manufacturing premises (4 months relief & industrial derating already applied)	Estimated as 4,650	Estimated £20m

- (i) & (ii) (a) & (b) Rates Relief Announcements
- (ii) (c) Oversight arrangements

LPS automatically awarded the 4 month holiday or 12 month holiday where it had the information to determine eligibility. Where it did not have the information to award the holiday, LPS asked businesses to make an application to allow the ratepayer to submit evidence to determine eligibility.

As the relief is not a cash payment, but a credit to the rate account, LPS has processes in place for billing and recovery where any change of use in the property affects eligibility to the relief. The balance on the rate account is adjusted accordingly and where the adjustment creates an arrears on the rate account the ratepayer is billed for the outstanding amount.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance for his assessment of the benefits of a National Investment Bank for Northern Ireland, such as has been created recently in Scotland.

(AQW 10917/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The Scottish National Investment Bank was only launched in November of this year and as it is in its early stages, it is too soon to make any proper assessment of it.

Although funded and structured differently, we have our own Northern Ireland Investment Fund (NIIF) here in the North which was launched in January 2018 and which provides debt funding for commercial property, regeneration and low carbon projects. A total of £100m in Financial Transactions Capital has been provided by the Executive for the Fund. The Executive have recently agreed to review the Investment Fund to examine whether it can consider a broader range of investment opportunities.

More broadly, the Executive will of course continue look strategically at how we support investment, and learning from others and drawing on any best practice will be an important part of that.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Finance, pursuant to AQW 1196/17-22, how many discussions he has had with the Secretary of State in relation to the finance for the increase in police numbers to 7500.

(AQW 10938/17-22)

Mr Murphy: The New Decade, New Approach document sets out a number of priorities including increasing police numbers to 7,500. However the accompanying funding package does not support the delivery of all the priorities. I have had a significant number of interactions with the British Government with a view to them honouring their financial commitments. I will continue to press the British Government to provide sufficient funding to deliver all NDNA commitments, including the increase in police numbers.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the progress of introducing a Social Value Bill to the Assembly; and whether he will commit to attempting to pass such legislation before the end of this Assembly Mandate.

(AQW 10950/17-22)

Mr Murphy: A key priority for me is to deliver maximum social value from public procurement and that includes a Social Value Act.

Procurement resources have been focused on responding to the outbreak of COVID-19 to source PPE and manage contractors to continue delivering essential public services in challenging times.

This has impacted on progressing the legislation and I will have my officials explore if it is still possible to bring a Social Value Bill to the Assembly during the current term.

Unfortunately it is not simply a matter of replicating Britain's 2012 Social Value Act. A 2015 review found that following the legislation "the incorporation of social value in actual procurement appears to be relatively low". It is therefore important that legislation introduced here learns the lessons from the 2012 legislation, and social value legislation in other jurisdictions so that it is effective.

I will be bringing a proposal to the Procurement Board to make inclusion of social value a mandatory policy of public procurement exercises when it meets on 16 December. When the proposal is finalised with the Procurement Board I will be seeking agreement from Executive colleagues for all Departments to comply with this policy. I will also be discussing Social Value legislation with the Board, which includes Colin Jess of Social Enterprise.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister of Finance to detail the amount Departments have spent in providing (i) civil servants; and (ii) those employed by arm's-length bodies with electronic equipment to facilitate working from home since March 2020, broken down by organisation.

(AQW 10957/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Since March 2020 the Department of Finance has spent £5,065,368 to facilitate working from home for civil servants and those arm's length bodies who are supported by Digital Shared Services (DSS).

That amount can be broken down into Increased Internet Bandwidth (£50,000), Equipment (£4,310,113) and Software (£705,255).

It is not possible for the Department of Finance to break these figures down by Department as some of these costs are shared across DSS customers and some equipment has been purchased for stock to meet future requests.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Finance, following the Spending Review announced by the Chancellor, whether he will give public sector workers, who worked throughout the pandemic to ensure public services remained viable, a pay rise.

(AQW 11059/17-22)

Mr Murphy: I fully recognise the vital role played by public sector workers in delivering public services throughout the pandemic.

It is therefore hugely disappointing that the Chancellor has sought in the Spending Review to effectively freeze our resource budget and the pay of many hard working public sector employees outside of those in the health service in 2021/22.

Public sector pay policy and its management is devolved here, but it was a requirement on the transfer of those powers in 2007 that this must be within the overarching parameters set by Treasury. My Department is seeking urgent clarification on what exactly the Spending Review announcement will mean for public sector pay here in 2021/22.

It will be for individual Ministers to make decisions on pay awards for their areas of responsibility within the parameters of the pay policy agreed by the Executive.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Finance to detail (i) how many applications for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme his Department has received from the Foyle constituency; and (ii) how many have of these have been processed successfully. (AQW 11060/17-22)

Mr Murphy: It is not possible to give figures for the Localised Restriction Support Scheme for a constituency area, all figures are recorded based on District Council area.

As of 11th December 2020, for the Derry City & Strabane District Council Area there were:

Applications received:	1,491
Payments made:	639
Applications rejected:	745
Cases to be processed:	107

Of the outstanding unprocessed applications, Land & Property Services has been in contact with a large number of applicants to request further information to make a decision on the application. This group also contains a number of duplicate applications which will need to be rejected. Therefore, it is not expected that all 107 cases still to be processed will result in payment.

The majority of rejected applications (96%) have been rejected for one of the following reasons:

- The business does not occupy the address used in the application.
- The business type is not one required to close.
- It is a duplicate application.
- The business indicated on their application that they were not open prior to the restrictions taking effect.

In many cases, the business has submitted the application against the wrong address or wrongly advised they were closed and resubmitted and been paid against the new application.

Since the Scheme was expanded to include non-essential retail businesses, LPS has received a further 139 applications from businesses in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area, and 28 of these have been paid out to a value of £50,000.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Finance what discussions he has had with Treasury about the proposed Government-backed 95 per cent loan-to-value mortgages which the Prime Minister announced in October 2020. (AQW 11180/17-22)

Mr Murphy: My officials have sought further details on this proposal directly from Treasury, but these are not yet available.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether the Local Restrictions Support Scheme application form has been reviewed since the scheme was launched to reduce common errors found in applications.

(AQW 11354/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Yes. Changes have been made to the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme application portal to reduce the likelihood of the common forms of error in submissions. In particular, it has been updated to prevent applicants indicating they were closed prior to restrictions taking effect, when in fact they were open. LPS has also updated the address input fields to restrict the option for manual address input which has led to applications with poor quality information which are difficult to validate and added validation checks to prevent invalid bank account details from being entered.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Finance (i) whether he has any plans to review the valuation of wind turbines to ensure that none of the owners of these structures receive Small Business Rates Relief; and (ii) how much such a decision would generate in additional rates.

(AQW 11396/17-22)

Mr Murphy:

- (i) Any plant and machinery used for the generation of electricity which has an installed capacity greater than 50 Kilowatts (kW) is rateable under the Rates (Microgeneration) Order (NI) 2012. The receipts and expenditure (R&E) method of valuation is used for the valuation of wind turbines for rates purposes. This is an industry standard approach used throughout the UK which considers income, outgoings, the number of Renewable Obligation Certificates (ROC's) granted for the generation type, the date of accreditation, a turbine's capacity factor and installed capacity.

All business properties here were recently revalued for rates as part of the Non Domestic Revaluation 2020 exercise. LPS has no plans to change the method of valuation used for the assessment of Net Annual Values (NAV) on this property type, or to review those NAVs which came into force on 1 April 2020.

The majority of single turbines, as distinct from wind farms, by and large have NAV's less than the threshold for Small Business Rates Relief (SBRR) here and are entitled to it under the regulations currently in place. I am advised similar provisions are also in place in other UK jurisdictions.

The exclusion of wind turbines from eligibility for Small Business Rates Relief could only be lawfully achieved by changing the Rates (Small Business Hereditament Relief) (Amendment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020. Those regulations will expire on 31 March 2021 and require to be renewed annually.

- (ii) The value of Small Business Rates Relief awarded to wind turbines in Northern Ireland in 2019/20 was £358,741.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Finance whether businesses based in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area who have already received remittance for the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme covering the period 16 October 2020 to 13 November, also receive payment for the 2 week period of restrictions which commenced on 5 October 2020.
(AQW 11410/17-22)

Mr Murphy: For the two week period commencing 5th October 2020, businesses in the following sectors were eligible for support within the Derry & Strabane District Council area because they were required to close.

- Cafes, pubs and restaurants.
- Hotels and guesthouses.
- Other businesses including cinemas, museums, galleries, trampoline parks, inflatable parks, escape rooms, bowling alleys and ice rinks.
- Libraries.

Any applicants who fall into the above listed categories in the Derry & Strabane District Council area who were required to close from 5th October 2020 and who have not yet been paid but can be determined as eligible, will be paid from that date.

From 16th October 2020, restrictions were extended to all districts and the restrictions included some additional business types, most notably close contact services.

Those businesses in the Derry & Strabane District Council area which were only required to close from 16th October 2020 when wider restrictions took effect are not entitled to any payment for the period between 5th October 2020 and 16th October 2020 and so will not receive payment for that period.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Finance (i) to detail the immediate policy priorities he is asking the newly appointed Procurement Board to address; and (ii) whether consideration will be given to a policy on green procurement.
(AQW 11515/17-22)

Mr Murphy: I will be chairing a meeting of the Procurement Board on 16 December.

The immediate policy priorities that I am bring to the Board are in regard to improving social value by including targeted outcomes in contracts and building resilience in government supply chains.

To support the Executives public procurement policy, which requires environmental benefits to be integrated into procurement to achieve best value for money, the targeted outcomes on social value will include measures to support environmental protection and climate change.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance for an update on the additional £150 million set aside for further rates relief.
(AQW 11519/17-22)

Mr Murphy: My officials are working closely with the Ulster University Economic Policy Centre and other Executive Departments to identify those business sectors most severely impacted by the economic consequences of the pandemic. This will allow me to determine how this relief can be applied to the best effect to support local businesses.

I fully appreciate that businesses need as much clarity as possible on major costs such as rates in the longer-term and I intend to make a further statement on this in the near future.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister of Finance what conversations have taken place between Land and Property Services and major supermarkets concerning the return of rates holiday funding.
(AQW 11525/17-22)

Mr Murphy: To date, Tesco and Asda are the only supermarket chains to have made contact directly to say they would like to return their rate relief. However, I am aware that other large retail chains operating here, including Sainsbury's, Lidl and B&Q, intend to repay the relief.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance, ahead of the January monitoring round, how the relative importance of inescapable pressures are assessed.

(AQW 11599/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Departments are required to prioritise their bids as inescapable, pre-committed, high priority or desirable and to also rank them in order within each of these categories. For example, inescapable and pre-committed priorities include bids for additional firm legal or contractual obligations, which if not met, may lead to proceedings being taken against the Department. Executive priorities are also taken into account.

Department of Finance officials will then make an assessment of the bids received and provide a recommendation as to which should be met taking into account the level of available funding for allocation. It is likely, for example, that inescapable bids are recommended to be met if funding is available.

It is for the Executive to decide where to allocate funding, taking into account all of the above and any wider considerations.

If a pressure is truly inescapable, and the Executive does not agree an additional allocation, the department concerned will have to reallocate funding from a lower priority area of its existing budget.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Finance whether a public register of publicly-owned land and property exists.

(AQW 11600/17-22)

Mr Murphy: A register of publicly owned assets is currently being compiled.

In January 2019, the NICS Board endorsed a proposal from the Department of Finance to create a single central database of Government land and property. Land & Property Services (LPS), working with the Asset Management Unit, has established a programme, known as The Government Land and Property Asset Management Programme, to deliver the proposal.

The programme is working to identify and accurately map property by department. The results for each department are released when they become available. To date, land owned or occupied by the Department for Communities has been mapped and released for viewing. Land owned or occupied by the Department of Finance and The Executive Office will be released shortly. There are over 7,000 items mapped currently which require to go through a validation process by other departments. As information is validated it will be added to the register for viewing. The register can be viewed by accessing this link <https://apps.spatialni.gov.uk/PublicLandandPropertyAssets/>

Dr Aiken asked the Minister of Finance how many times he has attended meetings of the Committee for Finance since 11 January 2020, broken down by (i) Committee meetings attended in person; and (ii) Committee meetings attended remotely.

(AQW 11626/17-22)

Mr Murphy: Since 11th January 2020, I have attended the Committee for Finance on the four occasions it has asked me to do so. Of those four occasions I attended (i) four Committee meetings in person; and (ii) no Committee meetings remotely.

Department of Health

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health to detail the different formats that are available for the instructions on at-home COVID-19 testing kits.

(AQW 7196/17-22)

Mr Swann (The Minister of Health): All Home Test Kits used in Northern Ireland are provided through the National Testing Programme managed by the Department of Health and Social Services London (DHSC). The Home Test Kits are provided with instructions in English.

DHSC has advised that instructions are also available for translation in the following languages by calling the 119 number.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for an update on mobile COVID-19 testing in West Tyrone.

(AQW 8136/17-22)

Mr Swann: The location of testing facilities across Northern Ireland, including Mobile Testing Units (MTUs), is kept under constant review. Further information is available at:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/covid-19-coronavirus/testing-and-tracing-covid-19/testing-covid-19>

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health whether Queen's University will ensure that all students currently residing in the halls of residents are tested for COVID-19.

(AQW 8190/17-22)

Mr Swann: In line with current public health advice, Queen's University students residing in halls must come forward for a test if they have symptoms of COVID-19. Testing is available for symptomatic students on campus, in the testing centre beside the Physical Education Centre.

Queen's University is also offering testing to asymptomatic students using lateral flow devices (LFD). This is as part of a wider programme to offer LFD testing to all asymptomatic university students who wish to avail of a LFD test, helping them to return home for Christmas safely.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to allow domiciliary care staff in the community to access routine testing, as part of efforts to expand the care home testing program to cover wider social care services.

(AQW 8599/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing in Northern Ireland continues to be a vital tool in our response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The current position is that all Health and Social Care (HSC) staff who are symptomatic (or whose household contacts are symptomatic) are eligible for testing in Northern Ireland.

This includes domiciliary care providers who, as essential health care workers, are currently able to access testing either through local HSC laboratories or via the National Testing Programme. Should there be an indication of more than one symptomatic individual among a group of care workers, an appropriate risk assessment will be undertaken by the Public Health Agency with testing of all individuals undertaken as deemed appropriate following the risk assessment.

Routine testing of asymptomatic domiciliary care workers is kept under review. As our understanding of this new virus continues to evolve and we learn more about the impact of the virus across different settings, and as new testing technologies emerge and are evaluated for use, we may revisit our policy on routine testing health and social care staff, including the testing of domiciliary care staff.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Health what COVID-19 testing is provided for domiciliary care and other community health workers.

(AQW 8669/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing in Northern Ireland continues to be a vital tool in our response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The current position is that all Health and Social Care (HSC) staff who are symptomatic (or whose household contacts are symptomatic) are eligible for testing in Northern Ireland.

This includes domiciliary care providers and other community health workers who, as essential health care workers, are currently able to access testing either through local HSC laboratories or via the National Testing Programme. Should there be an indication of more than one symptomatic individual among a group of care workers, an appropriate risk assessment will be undertaken by the Public Health Agency with testing of all individuals undertaken as deemed appropriate following the risk assessment.

The priority groups for testing are reviewed on an active basis and adjusted appropriately as priorities change as this pandemic progresses. As our understanding of this new virus is continuing to evolve and we learn more about the impact of the virus across different settings, and as new testing technologies emerge, we may revisit our policy on testing HSC staff.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Health whether he will work with his colleagues in the Department of Education and the Public Health Agency to increase phone helpline capacity and availability to provide appropriate support to school principals.

(AQW 8709/17-22)

Mr Swann: As an integral part of the overall Education Restart Programme in September, the Public Health Agency (PHA) established a specific Schools Cell, as a direct response to the pandemic, to provide a dedicated single point of contact for School principals to call in the event of a positive case in their school.

The PHA Cell also carries out contact tracing of cases who attend a school in collaboration with PHA Contact Tracing Service. Clusters are investigated as necessary by the Schools Cell in liaison with local partners.

An Education Assurance Group was also established which brings together officials from the Departments of Health and Education, the Public Health Agency (PHA) and the Education Authority, to help ensure appropriate processes and procedures with respect to management of COVID-19 are in place in schools.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the effectiveness of the Public Health Agency contact tracing system.

(AQW 8900/17-22)

Mr Swann: Our contact tracing service has faced many challenges, not least the three fold increase in numbers of positive cases notified to the service over a very short period during October.

This rapid increase in cases undoubtedly strained the contact tracing system. It is also clear that contact tracing services in many other countries have experienced similar strains in recent months, large numbers of positive cases have been notified for tracing as a consequence of increased transmission and disease activity.

The performance of the system has improved over recent weeks following the introduction of a number of digitally enabled solutions including a new digital self-trace platform and the introduction of enhanced contact tracing.

The combination of conventional and enhanced contact tracing will increase the contribution of the Contact Tracing Service to the control of the community transmission of Covid-19 across Northern Ireland.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister of Health for an update on the development of patient flow and infection control guidelines to allow GPs to manage COVID-19 patients within their premises during a second surge.

(AQW 9256/17-22)

Mr Swann: On 13th November 2020 the Health and Social Care Board issued the NI GMS Standard Operating Procedures on Infection Control to all GP Practices in Northern Ireland. Practices were asked to ensure that everyone within the Practice is familiar with these Procedures.

Whilst these procedures would assist GPs manage the flow of patients with and without symptoms of Covid-19, within their premises, practices are continuing to refer patients with COVID-19 symptoms to the Primary Care COVID centres to be treated separately from those patients who have other conditions which require assessment or treatment in primary care.

These Centres are critical in ensuring GP practices continue to deliver vital face to face non-COVID services to patients and have greatly reduced the flow of patients to emergency departments.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health (i) whether Health and Social Care Trusts have sufficient resources for repeat COVID-19 testing; (ii) whether there is a delay to the testing procedures in care homes due to a lack of resources; (iii) how soon additional resources will be in place.

(AQW 9349/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Testing capacity in Northern Ireland has increased significantly since the beginning of the pandemic. Demand for testing and testing capacity is subject to continuous review by my Department. Optimising available testing capacity across all aspects of our COVID-19 testing programme will continue to be a key priority for me and my officials.
- (ii) & (iii) The regular programme of COVID-19 testing for all residents and staff in care homes across Northern Ireland is in operation. This aspect of the overall care home testing programme is delivered through the UK-led National Testing Programme. There is also an enhanced testing protocol in place for care homes with a suspected or confirmed COVID-19 outbreak. In such circumstances, Health and Social Care Trusts provide support to care homes to undertake and complete a full round of testing of residents and staff. On 21 October 2020, I announced a new £27m funding package for the care home sector. This funding package importantly includes additional financial support for care homes to effectively facilitate the ongoing regular programme of testing.

Ms Bunting asked the Minister of Health how many hospital patients across the Health and Social Care Trusts who tested as COVID-19 free upon arrival, tested positive after seven days in hospital.

(AQW 9394/17-22)

Mr Swann: Up to the 25 October there were a total of 234 patients with COVID-19 across Health and Social Care Trusts who had tested positive between day 7 and day 14 of their hospital stay, or after 14 days in hospital. These figures were provided by the Trusts.

Information on the number of those patients who had tested negative upon admission to hospital could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Due to the incubation period of the virus it is not always possible to ascertain with accuracy where or when these patients contracted COVID-19.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health how many (i) cancer; and (ii) heart procedures have been postponed since the beginning of the pandemic.

(AQW 9519/17-22)

Mr Swann: Data on the number of cancer and heart procedures postponed is not centrally available. Trusts were approached to provide data in response to this Assembly Question using appointments cancelled as a proxy for procedures postponed.

Given the differing interpretations of the question posed, comparisons across HSC Trusts cannot be made, however the Trusts have indicated as follows:

Belfast Trust: 1006 cancer appointments and 174 cardiac appointments cancelled; this excludes patients with procedures cancelled due to either confirmed or suspect COVID-19, COVID-19 fears, the procedure having already been completed or is no longer required.

Northern Trust: There have been no confirmed cancer appointments cancelled since the beginning of the pandemic, however 658 red flag suspect cancer appointments were cancelled between 18th March and 2nd November 2020 due to COVID-19 and related pressures. A response was not provided on the number of cardiac appointments cancelled during this period.

South Eastern Trust: There have been 429 suspect cancer appointments cancelled between 18th March and 2nd November 2020, 358 of which were cancelled by the hospital with the remaining 71 cancelled by the patient. There were 92 cancellations within the cardiology speciality during this period.

Southern Trust: There have been no confirmed cancer appointments cancelled, however 393 red flag suspect cancer appointments were cancelled between 18th March and 2nd November 2020 due to COVID-19 and related pressures. A response was not provided on the number of cardiac appointments cancelled during this period.

Western Trust: There have been 941 suspect cancer appointments and 145 appointments within the cardiology speciality cancelled between 18th March and 2nd November 2020.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health how many (i) cancer; and (ii) heart screenings have been postponed since the beginning of the pandemic.

(AQW 9520/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Information on the number of cancer screenings that have been postponed since the beginning of the pandemic has been sourced from the Public Health Agency (PHA) and provided in Table 1 below. The Northern Ireland cancer screening programmes were paused from mid-March 2020 in order to reduce the risk of Covid-19 infection to participants and staff, and to redirect healthcare and laboratory resources to the pandemic response.

Table 1: Number of persons who had their screening invite delayed as a result of the pause in the programme from mid-March.

Screening programme	Number of persons
Breast	25,465
Bowel	93,838 ¹
Cervical	51,563

Source: Public Health Agency (PHA)

¹ Includes persons due their first invite during the period of the pause who were deferred for 21 weeks in addition to persons due their 2 year recall also deferred for 21 weeks.

- (ii) Information on the number of heart screenings postponed since the beginning of the pandemic is not centrally available. Trusts were approached to provide data in response to this Assembly Question for the period 18th March to 2nd November 2020. Given the differing interpretations of the question posed, comparisons across HSC Trusts cannot be made, however the Trusts have indicated as follows:

Belfast Trust: There have been 390 cardiac screenings cancelled. This does not include patients who had appointments cancelled due to COVID-19 and related pressures, appointments where the patient cancelled the appointment or appointments cancelled due to the patient being ill.

Northern Trust: There have been 3,506 cardiac screenings cancelled for all reasons. These include the following screening types: ECG (ambulatory), MPI, Tilt table test, Echocardiogram, Exercise ECG, MRI, Radionuclide test, CT.

South Eastern: There have been 1,205 cardiac screenings cancelled for all reasons. These include the following screening types: R-Test, Oximetry (CIU), Exercise Stress Echo, 24H Blood Pressure, Electrocardiogram, Loop Recorder Check, Dobutamine Stress Echo, DWT Echo, 48H Holter Monitor, 24H Holter Monitor, Exercise Stress Test, Echocardiogram, Pacemaker Check, ECG, Echocardiogram, Echocardiogram DWT, Exercise ECG.

Southern Trust: No response provided.

Western Trust: No cancer echocardiograms have been cancelled or postponed since the beginning of the pandemic. We currently and always have in place allocated slots for cancer patients to ensure that they have received an echocardiogram prior and during treatment. At the beginning of the pandemic the number of appointments for investigations were reduced to ensure adherence to government guidelines to maintain social distancing. Our overall appointment allocations for cardiac investigations have been reduced by 62 per week which has been a decrease of 34.83%. Echocardiogram reduced by 35 slots which has been a decrease of 36.84%. ECG monitoring reduced by 10 slots which has been a decrease of 25%. BP monitoring reduced by 7 slots which has been a decrease of 46.67%. Cardiac Event monitoring reduced by 6 slots which has been a decrease of 33.33%. Exercise stress test reduced by 4 slots which has been a decrease of 40%.

Mr Stalford asked the Minister of Health to detail the procedures, other than cancer and heart procedures, that have been postponed since the beginning of the pandemic.

(AQW 9521/17-22)

Mr Swann: Data on the number of procedures, other than cancer and heart procedures, postponed is not centrally available. Trusts were approached to provide data in response to this Assembly Question using appointments cancelled as a proxy for procedures cancelled for the period 18th March to 2nd November 2020. Given the differing interpretations of the question posed, comparisons across HSC Trusts cannot be made, however the Trusts have indicated as follows:

Belfast Trust: The number of appointments cancelled by Specialty is provided in Table 1. These data exclude patients with procedures cancelled due to either confirmed or suspect COVID-19, COVID-19 fears, the procedure having already been completed or no longer required, and patients having their procedure in the Regional Assessment and Surgical Centre.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health when he will receive the business case for specialist perinatal mental services; and when it will be signed off to enable funding to be released.

(AQW 9819/17-22)

Mr Swann: The business case for specialist perinatal mental health services is still being finalised by the Public Health Agency. On receipt of the finalised business case my officials will complete a final review and forward to me for consideration. Implementation of the Business Case will require funding and any investment in this area will have to be balanced against other service priorities, in the context of the Department's financial settlement.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health whether he has considered replacing Serco with a publicly-run testing system.

(AQW 9836/17-22)

Mr Swann: The National Testing Programme is managed by the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC), London, working in partnership locally to implement the programme with the Public Health Authority and the Department of Health in Northern Ireland.

Serco is contracted by DHSC to provide a facilities management service at testing sites.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Health to detail the rationale for not introducing shielding; and whether further guidance will be issued for those who are in the vulnerable category.

(AQW 9866/17-22)

Mr Swann: Shielding for those who are clinically extremely vulnerable was paused from 31 July. Following a review and assessment of the approach to the risks presented by COVID-19, a statement was issued by the Chief Medical Office on 23 October which advised that the resumption of shielding arrangements was not considered necessary and shielding would remain paused. The statement can be accessed at <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/news/shielding-remain-paused>

This decision reflected the context of a greater understanding of COVID-19 and its clinical outcomes and how to prevent its transmission, as well as an appreciation of the impact of shielding on many people's physical and mental well-being.

Since shielding for clinically extremely vulnerable people was paused our understanding of COVID-19 has increased further. A number of important changes have also taken place in the approach to managing COVID-19, to reduce its transmission, since shielding was originally advised. These include a greater awareness of the importance of social distancing, the requirement to use face coverings, COVID secure workplaces and greater adherence to respiratory and hand hygiene.

The wider advice for those who were previously shielding continues to be that they do not need to remain indoors and can go outside for exercise if they are able to do so, provided that social distancing is observed. Similarly, the current regulations and guidance for our community as a whole in relation to households mixing and bubbling also continues to apply to clinically extremely vulnerable people. It remains particularly important that those who were shielding continue to be extremely careful because they remain more vulnerable than the general population.

Anyone who is clinically extremely vulnerable or vulnerable should be particularly careful in following restrictions and guidance on limiting household contacts, social distancing, hand washing and wearing a face covering.

In terms of what is best for an individual, they should assess the risk in light of the above and take advice from their GP, clinician/specialist Consultant as necessary.

The Department of Health continues to monitor the number of positive cases and the rate of transmission of COVID-19 and is very mindful of the risk posed by community transmission and the need to reduce the levels of community transmission to help protect those who are most vulnerable.

The Northern Ireland Executive recently put temporary additional restrictions in place to help limit the spread of the virus. These restrictions, in addition to the general guidance that continues to be in place in relation to household mixing, travel, wearing of face coverings and hand hygiene, should offer protection from exposure to COVID-19 across a wide range of settings.

The decision to retain the pause in shielding is kept under continual review and a range of evidence is considered to inform this.

Advice for clinically extremely vulnerable people will be reviewed again in line with the wider review of those restrictions ending on 11 December. This review will also likely encompass advice to clinically extremely vulnerable people covering the Christmas period.

If in the future the position on shielding changes, further guidance will be issued and we will communicate directly with clinically extremely vulnerable people to ensure they have the information they need. In the meantime people who are clinically extremely vulnerable should continue to scrupulously follow the advice we have given to keep themselves safe.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 8712/17-22, whether he will consider introducing an opt-in shielding system.
(AQW 9882/17-22)

Mr Swann: Following a review and assessment of the approach to the risks presented by COVID-19, a statement was issued by the Chief Medical Officer on 23 October which advised that the resumption of shielding arrangements was not considered necessary and shielding would remain paused.

This decision reflected the context of a greater understanding of COVID-19 and its clinical outcomes and how to prevent its transmission, as well as an appreciation of the impact of shielding on many people's physical and mental well-being. A number of important changes have taken place in the approach to managing COVID-19 and reducing its transmission since shielding was originally advised. These include a greater awareness of the importance of social distancing, the requirement to use face coverings, COVID secure workplaces and greater adherence to respiratory and hand hygiene.

The decision to retain the pause in shielding is kept under continual review. A CEV Cell has been established in my Department which meets regularly to review the advice in relation to clinically extremely vulnerable (CEV) people. The most recent meetings were held on 19 November and 1 December.

The Cell considers a range of evidence before making recommendations on the advice to clinically extremely vulnerable people, including information on the spread of the virus in Northern Ireland, levels of hospital and community infection and the capacity of hospitals to adequately care for CEV people should they fall ill to COVID-19. In addition, Cell members take account of the restrictions that are in place across Northern Ireland and advice to clinically extremely vulnerable people that is in effect across the rest of the UK.

Following their consideration of the evidence, the CEV cell has concluded that the general guidance that is in place in relation to household mixing, travel, wearing of face coverings and hand hygiene, and the restrictions agreed by the Executive which came into force on 27 November, mean that clinically extremely vulnerable people should be protected from exposure to COVID-19 across a wide range of settings. On this basis, the Cell recommend that advice to clinically extremely vulnerable people should not change at the current time.

Advice for CEV people will be reviewed again in line with the wider review of restrictions, which are due to end on 11 December. This review will also likely encompass advice to clinically extremely vulnerable people covering the Christmas period.

If in the future the position for people who are clinically extremely vulnerable changes, further guidance will be issued and full details of any changes to advice will be made available on the NIDirect website.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health what are the rates of (i) false positive COVID-19 tests; and (ii) inconclusive tests, broken down by 10-year age ranges.
(AQW 9931/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Given the different testing platforms and kits that are in use for SARS-CoV2 testing, it is not possible to ascertain accurate overall false positive test rates.

To prevent the reporting of false positives, the laboratory will assess all positives using criteria that may indicate a false positive may be occurring. This criteria includes:

- If only 1 gene target out of 2 or 3 gene targets are positive
- Weak Ct values (viral load) close to the limit of detection

When these indicators occur repeat testing or testing the sample on a different platform with a different specificity profile is undertaken. This confirmatory testing clarifies the result in most cases.

- (ii) Inconclusive test rates are recorded in the Covid-19 Daily Dashboard, at page 6. I have included a link below for your convenience. <https://www.health-ni.gov.uk/articles/covid-19-daily-dashboard-updates>

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health (i) what percentage of COVID-19 testing to date has shown a false positive result in tests carried out (a) at COVID-19 testing centre; and (b) at home; and (ii) for his assessment of the method for collecting swabs from those with COVID-19.

(AQW 9933/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) The Public Health Authority advises that self-swabbing is a recognised method of collecting samples for testing.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health to detail the scientific evidence for the current guidance for clinically vulnerable people in Northern Ireland differing from the formal shielding notification issued by the UK Government applying until 2 December 2020.

(AQW 9948/17-22)

Mr Swann: Following a review and assessment of the approach to the risks presented by COVID-19, a statement was issued by the Chief Medical Officer on 23 October which advised that the resumption of shielding arrangements was not considered necessary and shielding would remain paused.

Advice for CEV people will be reviewed again in line with the wider review of restrictions, which are due to end on 11 December. This review will also likely encompass advice to CEV people covering the Christmas period.

The approach to protecting people from COVID-19 is tailored for each nation, depending on its circumstances and the guidance in place for each of the 4 nations reflects this.

If in the future the position for people who are clinically extremely vulnerable changes, further guidance will be issued and full details of any changes to advice will be made available on the NIDirect website.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health when fast testing for COVID-19 will be introduced.
(AQW 10057/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department's Expert Advisory Group on Testing is fully linked in to the national Mass Population Testing Programme, which is being led by the Department for Health and Social Care (DHSC) in England.

Plans are progressing with a range of local partners and experts to implement a number of New Testing Interventions (NTIs) across a range of different settings. The learning arising from these NTIs will help us to better understand how new rapid testing technologies can be implemented and extended more widely across a range of settings.

It is important to be aware that these NTIs are still at an early stage of development, and consequently these new tests must be rolled out with careful planning and evaluation.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the percentage of Pillar 2 COVID-19 test results that were received (i) within 24 hours of a test being booked; (ii) between 24 hours and 48 hours of a test being booked; (iii) between 48 hours and 72 hours of a test being booked; and (iv) after 72 hours of a test being booked.
(AQW 10107/17-22)

Mr Swann: It is not currently possible to accurately report the time taken to report Pillar 2 test results.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of Pillar 2 COVID-19 tests results that were received (i) within 24 hours of a test being booked; (ii) between 24 hours and 48 hours of a test being booked; (iii) between 48 hours and 72 hours of a test being booked; and (iv) after 72 hours of a test being booked.
(AQW 10108/17-22)

Mr Swann: It is not currently possible to accurately report the time taken to report Pillar 2 tests results.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of Pillar 2 COVID-19 tests results that were received (i) within 24 hours of a test being administered, (ii) between 24 hours and 48 hours of a test being administered, (iii) between 48 hours and 72 hours of a test being administered; and (iv) after 72 hours of a test being administered.
(AQW 10109/17-22)

Mr Swann: It is not currently possible to accurately report the time taken to report Pillar 2 tests results.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Health for an update on the outcome of the Reshaping Stroke Care Consultation; and how this will impact upon provision of Acute Stroke Services at the Ulster Hospital.
(AQW 10120/17-22)

Mr Swann: My officials have now completed the analysis of the consultation responses received to the Reshaping Stroke Care consultation. It is clear that residents in the North Down area have a number of concerns about any potential changes to stroke services at the Ulster Hospital. I can assure you that I will give careful consideration to those concerns going forward.

In addition to the consultation analysis, I have asked my Officials to conduct some further analysis regarding the staffing requirements for the hyperacute stroke network proposed in the consultation and this work is currently underway. I intend to consider this analysis, alongside the consultation responses and the wider evidence base in reaching my decisions. I will update the House accordingly in due course.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister of Health, given respite and day-care services are not in place, whether he will provide a carer's fund of £500 per carer in recognition of the level of care and support since the outbreak of COVID-19.
(AQW 10148/17-22)

Mr Swann: I have already placed on record my heart-felt appreciation for the significant role carers play in our community, particularly during the pandemic.

While short break and day care provision has been reduced as a result of the pandemic, the HSC Trusts are offering such provision to service users, where possible. In those instances where service provision is not able to meet the assessed need, the Trusts are instead offering Direct Payments and Carer Grants to facilitate the service user/family to source their own short break provision.

In addition, I have asked my officials to draft an options paper for my consideration, which will include a range of possible additional supports to all health and social care staff. As part of the options to be explored, I have also asked that a payment to carers be included. Whilst any decision would likely need Executive approval due to the impact on the overall Northern Ireland budget, I do believe it would be appropriate to recognise the extraordinary efforts and sacrifices of staff and carers.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health whether there is a paediatric and adult eating disorder service in Northern Ireland; and whether the service operates centrally or at the discretion of Health and Social Care Trusts.

(AQW 10255/17-22)

Mr Swann: Each Health and Social Care Trust has a specialised community based Eating Disorder Service for both young people and adults. Services exist independently, but are all part of a regional group known as the Regional Eating Disorder Network Group (REDNG), which includes clinicians and senior managers from all Trust Eating Disorder Teams, Health and Social Care Board, Public Health Agency and Service User representation from the Eating Disorder Association.

REDNG ensure local developments are coherent and standardised as far as possible. Their role is to promote the uniformity of approaches to patients across Trusts and share best practice and learning from service developments.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health for an update on the roll-out of the flu vaccine to clinically vulnerable people under the age of 65 and their carers.

(AQW 10318/17-22)

Mr Swann: Due to high levels of demand for the flu vaccine this year, some GP practices used all their stock early in the season and had to wait until further supplies arrived into Northern Ireland in order to continue vaccination their eligible patients. These additional vaccine supplies, which were ordered in the summer, were delivered in mid-November.

A total of 231,000 vaccine doses have been distributed to GPs practices for vaccinating those in the under 65 year old "at risk" groups and their carers. As at 1st December, GP practices had administered 179,000 vaccine doses to clinical risk patients and their carers.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health for an update of the recommendation to the Chief Medical Officer from the shielding advisory group; and whether it recommended reissuing COVID-19 shielding advice.

(AQW 10438/17-22)

Mr Swann: The CEV Cell meets regularly to review the advice in relation to Clinically Extremely Vulnerable people. The most recent meetings were held on 19 November and 01 December.

The Cell considers a range of evidence before making recommendations on the advice to CEV people, including information on the spread of the virus in Northern Ireland and the capacity of hospitals to adequately care for CEV people should they fall ill to Covid-19. In addition, Cell members take account of the restrictions that are in place across Northern Ireland, and the advice to CEV people that is in effect across the rest of the UK.

On this basis, the Cell recommend that advice to CEV people should not change at the current time.

Advice for CEV people will be reviewed again in line with the wider review of restrictions, which are due to end on 11 December. This review will also likely encompass advice to CEV people covering the Christmas period.

Full details of any changes to advice will be made available on the NIDirect website.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health how many people are eligible for the flu vaccination; and how many have indicated they wish to receive the vaccination.

(AQW 10486/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Due to the significant degree of overlap between the groups eligible for vaccination through the public seasonal flu programme, it is not possible to provide a definitive figure for the overall number of people eligible for the free-of-charge vaccine. For example, many people in the cohort of household contacts of those who shielded during the Covid-19 pandemic will also likely be in the cohorts of carers, those aged 65 and over, and those clinically "at risk". Based on the Department's knowledge of the numbers in the various eligible groups, the overall number of people who are eligible is estimated to be at least 1 million.
- (ii) There is no system for recording how many people have indicated they wish to receive the vaccine.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health (i) whether all nursing and care home residents are considered vulnerable for both COVID-19 and seasonal flu; (ii) how many nursing and care home residents have not received a flu vaccination this year; and (iii) what this number is as a percentage of the total nursing home population.

(AQW 10513/17-22)

Mr Swann: (i) All nursing and care home residents are considered vulnerable to seasonal flu and COVID-19 and are eligible for vaccination through the public seasonal flu vaccination programme. Nursing and care home residents are currently top of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) interim prioritisation list to receive the COVID-19 vaccine.

- (ii) This information is not available as the majority of nursing/care home residents are included within other categories including those aged 65 & over and those aged under 65 who are clinically at risk.
- (iii) Using the recently published Adult Social Care Statistics at the 30th June 2020, there were 11,808 placements in Care Homes - 8,191 in Nursing Homes and 3,617 in Residential Homes but as stated at (ii), it is not possible to advise on the number of those vaccinated

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health why some health and social care staff working in high-risk settings have never been tested for COVID-19.

(AQW 10527/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing in Northern Ireland continues to be a vital tool in our response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The current position is that all Health and Social Care (HSC) staff who are symptomatic (or whose household contacts are symptomatic) are eligible for testing in Northern Ireland.

The priority groups eligible for testing are kept under constant review by my Department's Expert Advisory Group on Testing and are updated in line with emerging scientific and medical evidence, and as new testing technologies emerge and are evaluated for use.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health how many staff within the Health and Social Care Board and Public Health Agency previously availed of the Voluntary Exit Scheme before taking up a new role within those organisations.

(AQW 10627/17-22)

Mr Swann: No staff within the Health and Social Care Board or the Public Health Agency who left under the Voluntary Exit Scheme returned to take up a new permanent role.

One employee was asked to come back to the Health and Social Care Board for a temporary period of six months from 04/05/20 until 30/10/20 to support work with Covid-19.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the total number of staff from the Health and Social Care Board and the Public Health Agency who availed of the Voluntary Exit Scheme over the past 5 years, including total remuneration associated with these retirements.

(AQW 10628/17-22)

Mr Swann: In the Health and Social Care Board 56 staff availed of the Voluntary Exit Scheme over the past 5 years at a cost of £3,473,000.

In the Public Health Agency 35 staff availed of the Voluntary Exit Scheme over the past 5 years at a Cost of £2,040,000.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, further to the 27 November 2020 COVID-19 restrictions, (i) whether sport massage therapists are allowed to provide services during the specified two week period; and (ii) to define the exemptions of those ancillary to medical, health and social care services: and elite-sport therapeutic services.

(AQW 10684/17-22)

Mr Swann: There is an exemption in the regulations, following the Executive's latest decision, to allow sports massage therapists to continue to provide their services.

If a service is commissioned by the HSC it is considered ancillary to medical, health and social care services. There is no restriction on close contact services relating to essential health needs, as defined in the regulations, such as; dental services, opticians, audiology services, chiropody, chiropractors, osteopaths, podiatry and other medical services, including services relating to mental health.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of access to ear syringing treatment in GP surgeries during the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10791/17-22)

Mr Swann: Under the terms of their contract all GPs are required to provide essential primary medical services to their registered patients and the current COVID-19 pandemic does not in any way negate this requirement. GPs will however use their clinical judgement to decide how best to prioritise patients to provide this core service whilst maintaining patient safety.

GP practices are open and are providing face to face appointments for those patients who are assessed as requiring them. All practices have been provided with a supply of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to allow them to do so safely.

In 2018 the National Institute for Clinical Health Excellence (NICE) issued guideline 98 which recommended that the manual syringing method for ear wax removal should no longer be used.

It recommended that GPs should offer ear wax removal using an electronic irrigator, micro-suction or another method of earwax removal (such as manual removal using a probe) for adults in primary or community ear care services, if the practitioner, such as a community nurse or audiologist:

- has training and expertise in using the method to remove earwax;

- is aware of any contraindications to the method, and
- the correct equipment is available.

GPs are free to decide whether they wish to contract with the HSCB to provide this particular service, having firstly met the relevant NICE recommendations. Where a GP does not provide the service, they would make the necessary referrals to ENT/Audiology in a Health and Social Care Trust, for which there will be no charge. However, rather than wait, patients may prefer to seek, and pay for, private treatment.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to prioritise any under-65 group, such as teachers, for the flu vaccine.

(AQW 10792/17-22)

Mr Swann: The current groups in the under 65 age cohort eligible for a free flu vaccination are those in clinical “at risk” groups, pregnant women, all children aged 2 to 4, all primary school and year 8 pupils, frontline health and social care workers, household contacts of those who received shielding letters during the COVID-19 pandemic and people who are in receipt of a carer’s allowance, or are the main carer of an elderly or disabled person whose welfare may be at risk if the carer falls ill.

Advice on priority groups for eligibility for the public flu vaccination programme is provided to the four UK health departments by the independent Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI). Teachers are not included in the list of eligible groups advised by JCVI. In keeping with JCVI advice, the Department of Health has not included teachers as one of the eligible groups for the free-of-charge flu vaccine.

Ms Mullan asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of children and young people currently waiting on a referral to a speech and language therapist.

(AQW 10797/17-22)

Mr Swann: It is not known how many people are currently waiting on a referral to a speech and language therapist. However, at 31 October 2020, there were 2,125 children and young people, under 18 years old, who had been referred to and were waiting for their first appointment with a speech and language therapist in Northern Ireland.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health to detail the direction given to Health and Social Care Trusts around COVID-19 flexibility for direct payments.

(AQW 10805/17-22)

Mr Swann: Guidance for Direct Payments was published online on 3 August 2020 and is available at:

www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/guidance-direct-payments

Sean Holland, the Chief Social Work Officer, wrote to HSC Trust Chief Executives on 4 August to encourage the application of the flexibilities outlined in the guidance to support Direct Payment recipients.

Furthermore, my Department also provided funding of up to £500k to the HSC Trusts via the HSC Board to help mitigate those extra Direct Payment costs for recipients which arise during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister of Health what direct measures his Department and Health and Social Care Trusts will put in place to support carers over the Christmas period.

(AQW 10807/17-22)

Mr Swann: Guidance for carers and young carers was published online by my Department on 10 April 2020 and revised again this month to include information and advice for carers on preparing for the winter months. This guidance is available at:

www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/advice-informal-unpaid-carers-and-young-carers-during-covid-19-pandemic

Health and Social Care services will continue over the Christmas period with all Health and Social Care Trusts offering additional supports for carers during December. The attached appendix contains the list of activities Trusts are undertaking to support our carers during the Christmas period.

Appendix 1

Belfast Health and Social Care Trust

Key workers will liaise with carers and families, as they do for every holiday period, to establish their preferences during the Christmas period; support will be given as per assessed need/care plan. Many families chose not to have services over the Christmas period, unless necessary, as this is a family time.

Across services, including Older Peoples and Physical and Sensory Services, Carers Assessments have been prioritised so that waiting times have been reduced. The fourteen Day Centres within this service area are now open and are providing a mixture of in-reach and outreach services. Any urgent requests will have an immediate response.

In Learning Disability, in the event of support being required out-of-hours, a senior manager will be available on-call and referrals can be made to the Regional Emergency Social Work Service.

In Children's services, Belfast Trust are providing toys and food to any family requesting this type of support.

Mental Health services recognise that holiday times can be very challenging and the needs of carers are addressed through individual care plans. Contact details for the out-of-hours services are provided to service users and their carers.

The Community Mental Health Team for Older People will be operating a full service over the Christmas and New Year period, with the exception of the 3 statutory days. They provide emergency and urgent care for service users with dementia, their carers and those over the age of 65 years with functional mental illness, so they can be supported and sustained in the community.

Northern Health and Social Care Trust

The Northern Trust Carers Newsletter will be posted to all 2,000 carers on the Trust's Carer Register in December with updated information.

The Trust is also working closely with Barnardo's to support Young Carers this Christmas and a new project is commencing in January to help young carers and their families at the commencement of the new year.

South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust

Key workers will continue to work with people on an individual basis and support will be provided in line with the care and support plan drawn up for each individual based on their assessed needs.

The Carer Support Team will continue to send out regular support updates to those on the Carer Register (over 2,000 carers) and will provide details of emergency Trust contact numbers to use if required over the Christmas period.

Southern Health and Social Care Trust

Similar to previous years, key workers will liaise with carers and families to establish their preferences for over the Christmas period and support will be given as per assessed need/care plan. It should be noted that many families choose not to have services over the Christmas period unless necessary, as this is seen as a family time.

Emergency support will be available via the Regional Emergency Social Work Service, available each evening 5pm to 9am, including Christmas, New Year and from 9am on Bank Holidays.

In Southern Trust, there will be a roll out of the carers Mental Wellbeing programme via the Recovery College, in the run up to Christmas.

The Trust will continue to provide all of its emergency/24 hour care services during the Christmas period (e.g. Crisis Response and Home Treatment Services in Mental Health and Learning Disability, Supported Living, a full range of Acute In-Patient Services in Mental Health and Memory Services and on-call support).

Emergency Support will also be available from Home Treatment/ Crisis Response on a 7 day basis, including bank holidays, Christmas and New Year, made available through the switchboard and direct line from 9am to 1pm over the Christmas period for all Disability Services.

In Learning Disability, day centres will close from 24th December 2020 and re-open on Monday 4th January 2021. In lieu of these services, other supports on offer include:

- Creative cards for Christmas,
- Coping with Christmas,
- Christmas Wellness toolbox – Caring for you at Christmas,
- Free Online Christmas Concert on 28.11.2020.

The Southern Trust Carers Coordinator continues to update carers on a regular basis with upcoming events, training programmes, information and advice through the SHSCT Carers Register, the SHSCT website and social media platforms. All events and activities for carers are free of charge. Details of all out of hours services for the Christmas period will be provided through the aforementioned channels.

Carers Trust are contracted by the Southern Trust to provide a community-based support service for adult carers. An example of the key supports provided by Carers Trust are:

- A request has been made to the Ulster Bank Community banker to provide an information session for carers - 'Reducing Money Stress for Christmas' on topics such as budgeting for Christmas, handling debt and recognising and dealing with scams.
- A number of events and training targeting the physical and mental health and wellbeing of carers are scheduled by Carers Trust in the weeks leading up to Christmas, to assist carers to prepare for the additional stresses Christmas brings.

All activities are advertised through the Carers Trust carers register and forwarded to SHSCT Carers Coordinators for distribution through the SHSCT Carers Register, SHSCT Website and social media platforms.

The Southern Trust commission Action for Children, who have been and continue to provide support to young carers and young adult carers over the Christmas period by means of:

- Pre-recorded online activities to enable young carers to access these at a time that suits them,

- Team quiz, which is also being shared with other support organisations,
- Pre-recorded stories,
- Young Carers Inclusive group (YISC) is a group of young carers who meet regularly to discuss concerns and highlight their roles in the community. YISC have been involved in a public campaign to encourage social distancing and the wearing of face masks, and
- Planning the young carers sections of the 10 year mental health strategy.

Western Health and Social Care Trust

The Western Trust Carers Support Team provides an information update prior to Christmas to all 1,800 carers on their mailing list, which includes information on pre-Christmas and New Year online Zoom activities, and information regarding the social work duty system available during office hours. Out of hour's GP and regional social work telephone numbers will also be listed.

Weekly email updates to the carer's mailing list will continue up until Christmas week and will recommence in the first week of January.

Key workers will liaise with carers and families, as they do for every holiday period, to establish their preferences during the Christmas period; support will be given as per assessed need/care plan.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health whether he is planning to follow English guidelines and set up Post-Covid assessment clinics with an allied health professional workforce to help with the effects of long-COVID.

(AQW 10813/17-22)

Mr Swann: The National Institute for Care and Health Excellence (NICE) is currently developing a rapid guideline on the management of the long-term effects of Covid-19 which is due to be published by the end of the year. The guideline will address, among other things, a formal definition of the condition, how to identify on-going symptoms and a definition of best practice investigation and treatment options to support the management of the condition across diverse communities.

When published, the guideline will be considered alongside the wider body of emerging research to inform future policy and service decisions in Northern Ireland. This is expected to include consideration of the establishment of a post-Covid syndrome assessment clinic locally, in line with those recently announced for England.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health what range of treatments and medications are currently available to patients admitted to hospitals suffering from COVID-19; and whether the full range of treatments and medications that are available throughout the UK are available in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 10871/17-22)

Mr Swann: There are now several medicines used for the treatment of COVID-19 by patients admitted to hospital. Remdesivir is a licensed treatment for adults who are hospitalised with Covid-19. Other medications include Dexamethasone and Tocilizumab which are licensed medicines that are used 'off-label' as they are treatments not specifically licensed for COVID-19.

I can confirm that all COVID-19 treatments available in the UK are also available for use in Northern Ireland.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many GPs have been come out of retirement to help with the pandemic.

(AQW 10924/17-22)

Mr Swann: In regard to the number of GPs who came forward we do not hold that level of detail.

In respect of nurses who have come out of retirement I refer the member to my previous answer to AQW 10370/17-22.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health how many nurses have come out of retirement to help with the pandemic.

(AQW 10926/17-22)

Mr Swann: In regard to the number of GPs who came forward we do not hold that level of detail.

In respect of nurses who have come out of retirement I refer the member to my previous answer to AQW 10370/17-22.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health what plans he has for developing a new oral health strategy.

(AQW 10973/17-22)

Mr Swann: The current Northern Ireland Oral Health Strategy (OHS) was published in 2007 and, despite its age, the main oral health problems described in the document and the approaches to prevention advocated by it remain valid today.

The challenges facing the HSC and DoH today mean that, unfortunately, the significant resources required to develop a new wide-ranging OHS are not available at this time. However, the importance of analysing the oral health status of the population and recommending evidence-based approaches to health improvement is recognised. Therefore, as soon as there is sufficient capacity available, my officials will complete the work which began in late 2019 of establishing two oral health options groups. One group will be dedicated to improving the oral health of children while the other will specifically look at how elderly oral health may be improved.

I have provided approximately £0.97 million in level 1 PPE which was delivered in July to Northern Ireland dental practices and £3.8 million of funding was added to the GDS budget to cover additional PPE costs incurred by practitioners in the August to November period. These levels of funding will continue for the rest of the year and the position remains under review.

The introduction of the new Northern Ireland dental operational guidance in October has significantly reduced the fallow time for the average Northern Ireland practice. This has meant that the ventilation issue is less crucial in determining dentists' activity. Furthermore, practice ventilation system technology is evolving and significant investment at this stage would for most practices be premature.

The general UK IPC guidance and the specific dental annex draw heavily upon the work of leading UK dental academics in the fields of virology, aero biology, health protection and ventilation engineering. The highest level of expertise in these fields is only accessible through the various UK IPC networks into which Northern Ireland is connected. There is some scope for Northern Ireland to operationalise the UK IPC guidance differently but, given the gaps in our knowledge in relation to SARS-CoV-2, there are inherent risks in any significant deviation from the official UK IPC guidance.

The new Northern Ireland guidance allows fallow periods which are approximately 50% less than those required under the previous guidance. It also specifies minimum fallow periods dependent upon clinical circumstances. It is the Department's current position that going below these minimum times would lead to an unacceptable increase in the risk of Coronavirus transmission.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health what plans he has to (i) provide funding to dentists to pay for personal protective equipment and new ventilation equipment that would enable a reduction in fallow times; (ii) create a more nuanced plan for local dentists rather than relying on the UK-wide recommendations; (iii) reduce the fallow time between appointments; and (iv) commission an audit of practices' ventilation capacity to establish a baseline and to see where capital investment may be required for surgeries that will require additional ventilation measures.

(AQW 10975/17-22)

Mr Swann: The current Northern Ireland Oral Health Strategy (OHS) was published in 2007 and, despite its age, the main oral health problems described in the document and the approaches to prevention advocated by it remain valid today.

The challenges facing the HSC and DoH today mean that, unfortunately, the significant resources required to develop a new wide-ranging OHS are not available at this time. However, the importance of analysing the oral health status of the population and recommending evidence-based approaches to health improvement is recognised. Therefore, as soon as there is sufficient capacity available, my officials will complete the work which began in late 2019 of establishing two oral health options groups. One group will be dedicated to improving the oral health of children while the other will specifically look at how elderly oral health may be improved.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Health whether prevention and treatment of gambling-related harm will be included in his Department's 10-year mental health strategy.

(AQW 10996/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Department for Communities recently undertook a public consultation on the Regulation of Gambling in Northern Ireland. They are considering proposals to reform gambling law, including whether the gambling industry should help fund research, education and treatment of problem gamblers including the possibility of a statutory levy.

I aim to start a public consultation on a draft Mental Health Strategy before the end of the year and would encourage and welcome comments on the content once it is published for consultation.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for an update on (i) the current delivery of services; (ii) the current staffing situation; and (iii) the status of the detailed plan on stabilising and supporting the delivery of services, at Muckamore Abbey Hospital.

(AQW 11010/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) My Department, in conjunction with the Belfast Trust and the RQIA, continues to monitor the safety and effectiveness of service delivery at Muckamore Abbey Hospital.

The Belfast Trust has introduced a number of measures to ensure that the services currently being provided at Muckamore are safe. This includes the restructuring and enhancement of the Trust senior management team responsible for the hospital. Other measures include the installation of CCTV in all wards, day care and the swimming pool and the introduction of contemporaneous CCTV footage viewing of one shift per ward per week which is selected at random and viewed by an independent group of staff. The hospital had introduced an open visiting policy for families of in-patients but this has had to be suspended due to the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic. In addition, a Safety Report on patient safety metrics is prepared weekly and reviewed by the senior management team in Muckamore, shared with the multi-disciplinary team and shared and discussed at the monthly Directors' Assurance Meeting, chaired by the Chief Executive. I understand that the most recent report demonstrates significant improvements in care delivery and most notably a reduction in the overall use of restrictive practices, including a reduction in the number of seclusion events.

- (ii) Current nurse staffing levels, with the combination of substantive nursing staff, long-term agency staff and nurse bank staff, are providing a safe level of care. The Trust has signed a 12-month Service Level Agreement with Direct Health Care agency to provide 50 whole – time - equivalent registrants on a block booked basis to help stabilise the nursing registrant workforce. A weekly staffing report is provided to my Department and this is reviewed by professional nursing colleagues in the Department.
- (iii) The Muckamore Departmental Assurance Group (MDAG) monitors implementation of the Muckamore Abbey Hospital HSC Action Plan which sets out the HSC system's response to the recommendations in the Level 3 SAI report "A Way to Go". The recommendations from the recent report of the Leadership and Governance Review of Belfast Trust's management of Muckamore Abbey Hospital have been included in the Action Plan and are also monitored by this Group.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health whether he will (i) implement the UK Chancellor's pay award to health service staff of £250 per annum for those in the NHS earning below £24K per annum; and (ii) give a commitment that all health service staff will also receive an annual pay rise.

(AQW 11021/17-22)

Mr Swann: With the restoration of pay parity with effect from 1 April 2019, all Agenda for Change staff in NI are on the same pay rates as their counterparts in England and Wales. This is a position I fully intend to maintain in 2021/22, and will work closely with Executive colleagues in preparing what will be a challenging budget for Northern Ireland.

Please be assured that both I and my Department remain committed to a fair pay settlement for all our healthcare staff going forward.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Health what provisions are in place for people who are symptomatic of COVID-19 but do not have access to means of travel to visit a test site or to return a postal test kit.

(AQW 11040/17-22)

Mr Swann: Where an individual is unable to travel and has no-one who can help them return a home testing kit, the relevant HSC Trust will ensure appropriate support is provided to the individual in their own home.

Ms Dolan asked the Minister of Health whether the Health and Social Care Board provides funding to cognitive behavioral therapy for those who are completing placements locally but study in Scotland.

(AQW 11048/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Health and Social Care Board does not fund cognitive behavioural therapy for students completing placements locally that study in Scotland.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Health when AQW 8669/17-22 will be answered.

(AQW 11063/17-22)

Mr Swann: Testing in Northern Ireland continues to be a vital tool in our response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The current position is that all Health and Social Care (HSC) staff who are symptomatic (or whose household contacts are symptomatic) are eligible for testing in Northern Ireland.

This includes domiciliary care providers and other community health workers who, as essential health care workers, are currently able to access testing either through local HSC laboratories or via the National Testing Programme. Should there be an indication of more than one symptomatic individual among a group of care workers, an appropriate risk assessment will be undertaken by the Public Health Agency with testing of all individuals undertaken as deemed appropriate following the risk assessment.

The priority groups for testing are reviewed on an active basis and adjusted appropriately as priorities change as this pandemic progresses. As our understanding of this new virus is continuing to evolve and we learn more about the impact of the virus across different settings, and as new testing technologies emerge, we may revisit our policy on testing HSC staff.

Mr Middleton asked the Minister of Health whether Northern Ireland has sufficient supply of egg-free flu vaccines for the winter period.

(AQW 11072/17-22)

Mr Swann: For anyone aged 9 years of age or older who has had confirmed anaphylaxis to egg (requiring intensive care) a cell-grown Quadrivalent Influenza Vaccine (QIVc) should be used.

As at 30 November 2020, 356 doses of QIVc are being held in central stock to address this requirement and GP practices have been informed that they are available to order for suitable patients.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Health what percentage of patients who have been hospitalised with COVID-19 have returned home and recovered from the virus.

(AQW 11073/17-22)

Mr Swann: It is not currently possible to accurately report the number who have recovered from the disease.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister of Health, pursuant to AQW 5867/17-22, for an update on the Serious Adverse Incident Review into inadequate fit testing of staff for personal protective equipment; and whether he will publish the findings.

(AQW 11116/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Serious Adverse Incident (SAI) review in relation to fit testing remains ongoing.

An Independent Serious Adverse Incident panel was appointed in August 2020 and commenced the review. The panel reviewed Health & Social Care Trusts' (HSCTs') records around their processes for procuring, commissioning and managing fit-testing. The panel also sought clarity around a series of questions, all which have been answered by HSCTs. In addition, all HSCTs have also participated in on-line interviews with the chair of the panel as part of the review of incidents.

The SAI panel had planned a visit to Northern Ireland at the end of October to carry out face to face interviews with HSCTs, Fit-Testing Service Providers and staff affected. However, given the introduction of COVID-19 lock down restrictions across the UK regions, this was unable to proceed. Whilst some teleconference communications have taken place with the chair and the panel, the chair has highlighted the importance of carrying out face to face interviews with fit testing service providers and staff once COVID-19 restrictions have been eased. The panel intends to carry out these interviews early next year and present their findings shortly thereafter.

In the interim, the Public Health Agency issued an Early Learning Letter in July 2020 outlining a number of key actions and processes that Health and Social Care Trusts were required to implement. Consequently, robust auditing and monitoring processes have been put in place by all HSCTs to ensure fit testing is carried out to the correct standard.

While we await the outcomes of the SAI review the Public Health Agency have been working with HSCTs to develop a regional Fit Test Standard Operating Procedure (SOP). The SOP is currently in draft format and will be shared with the SAI panel for their comments in the coming days.

Once the panel has concluded its work, the findings of the SAI review will be published.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health (i) what plans he has for the establishment of a regional commissioning pathway on insulin pumps; (ii) whether funding will be made available; and (iii) what steps he is taking to address the current waiting list for insulin pumps for diabetics.

(AQW 11123/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Strategic Framework for Diabetes in Northern Ireland was launched in 2016 as part of a series of initiatives to support "Health and Well-Being 2026, Delivering Together". The Framework was published in conjunction with the formation of a Diabetes Network which enables people living with diabetes and frontline experts to co-design services to bring improvements for people living with the condition.

The Diabetes Commissioning Team within the Health and Social Care Board and the Public Health Agency commission the purchase of insulin pumps in line with Trust requirements. HSC Trusts undertake an annual needs assessment exercise to inform pump requirements, which takes into account their available staffing capacity to educate new patients on the use of the pump.

I can confirm that funding continues to be made available to purchase insulin pumps for those patients who have not had one to date; to provide for consumable costs associated with the pumps; and for the purchase of replacement pumps where the manufacturer's warranty has expired on pumps previously provided to patients.

Insulin pumps are not however clinically suitable for everyone and I understand that other factors often contribute to the delay in a patient getting access to an insulin pump including the suitability of this type of treatment for the patient concerned, adherence to NICE guidelines, patient readiness and clinical priority.

The Diabetes Network has made access to insulin pumps a high priority and has recognised the importance of a sustainable regional approach to the acquisition, utilisation and replacement of insulin pumps with an emphasis on equity and safety. The Diabetes Network has established a Task and Finish group with involvement of Diabetes UK and HSC Trusts to consider and scope a regional service model for insulin pumps.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health to detail the number of rural GP health centres currently closed due to the pandemic.

(AQW 11125/17-22)

Mr Swann: GP practices are open and are providing face-to-face appointments for those patients who are assessed as requiring them. All practices have been provided with a supply of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to allow them to do so safely.

GPs have a responsibility to provide core services to their registered patients and the pandemic does not negate this requirement. GPs will however use their clinical judgement to decide how to best prioritise patients to provide this core service while maintaining patient safety.

GP practices are operating a telephone first triage system which allows patients to seek medical advice from their GP for both routine and urgent problems. The GP then uses their clinical judgement to decide if the patient can be safely managed over the telephone or whether a face to face appointment is required. Some practices have also utilised other technologies such as video conferencing and allowing patients to send photographs by text to facilitate diagnosis of, for example, a skin rash.

This approach ensures that patients are only required to visit surgeries where it is absolutely essential and helps to ensure infection control and social distancing keeping both patients and staff safe.

The telephone first triage system also allows GPs to identify those patients who may be infected with coronavirus. These patients can then be referred for face-to-face assessment to one of the primary care COVID-19 centres. That ensures that these patients do not attend the GP practice or community pharmacy and are seen in an appropriate environment as well as ensuring that GP services are maintained with minimum disruption. There were 109,697 COVID related queries in General Practice across Northern Ireland from 6 April to 22 November 2020.

The pandemic has meant change across a range of services, including in health and social care and General Practice has rapidly changed its working patterns in order to cope with the current pandemic and the need to protect the public and staff from the virus.

Despite the need to ensure infection control and social distancing and the demands and capacity limits that COVID has created, including recently an expanded flu vaccination programme and the pilot Phone First services, GPs have maintained over 80% of general practice services. Around 30% of all consultations still take place face to face, compared to 50% at the same time last year.

In rebuilding the capacity of the HSC in Northern Ireland we are continuing to develop new and innovative ways of working to support the development of sustainable, safe and accessible primary care services, to meet patient needs.

The Health and Social Care Board wrote to GP practices in Northern Ireland on 30 July asking that, if this had not been done recently, practices undertake a review of arrangements for patients who were accessing their services in order to ensure that they are continuing to provide services at times that are appropriate to meet the needs of patients. Practices were advised to communicate to patients about the practice services that are available and how to access them with the recommendation that these communications make clear that GP practices are open.

On 7 September GP leaders from the Health and Social Care Board, the Royal College of General Practitioners (RCGP) and the British Medical Association issued a statement to reassure patients that while patients may be seen in a different way, by phone or video link, GP practices are still open to treat patients, provide advice and to issue prescriptions. GPs want anyone who has a health concern to feel reassured that they will be able to get an appointment and see a GP if necessary.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health how his Department is addressing mental health problems in rural West Tyrone.

(AQW 11127/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Western Health and Social Care Trust continues to work with service commissioners at the Health and Social Care Board, and the Department of Health in the design and delivery of statutory mental health services to meet the needs of the population including those in rural west Tyrone.

I intend to publish a 10 year Mental Health Strategy in 2021 which will take into consideration the needs of the rural population of Northern Ireland. The draft strategy is expected to go to public consultation this month.

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister of Health what proposals he will bring forward aimed at improving the safety of fire fighters arising from the recommendations in the University of Central Lancashire's interim report entitled Minimising firefighters' exposure to toxic fire effluents.

(AQW 11142/17-22)

Mr Swann: My Department welcomes research that supports enhancing the health, safety and wellbeing of firefighters.

This report is being considered by Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service. The report is also under review by the National Fire Chiefs Council (NFCC) Health and Safety and NFCC Health and Wellbeing Committees. NFCC are the body responsible for the maintenance of national fire operational guidance and learning.

Northern Ireland is represented on the NFCC by the interim Chief Fire and Rescue Officer. I await the outcome of their deliberations.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Health to detail each Serious Adverse Incident investigation (SAI) that is currently ongoing, including (i) the level; (ii) the general issue; and (iii) start date of the SAI.

(AQW 11153/17-22)

Mr Swann: Details of all Serious Adverse Incident (SAI) reviews currently open as at 01 December 2020 are provided in Tables 1 and 2 below.

Table 1 - Level of the SAI being undertaken by year reported

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for an update on the Home Accident Prevention Strategy 2015-2025, including the funding allocated for each year since 2015 and the progress in achieving each of the four objectives identified.

(AQW 11157/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Public Health Agency (PHA) is responsible for the implementation and evaluation of the Home Accident Prevention Strategy 2015-2025, with the assistance of a multi-agency Implementation Group. The Group has developed a rolling Home Accident Prevention Action Plan (HAP) and reports progress to the Department of Health on an annual basis. Progress to date on the Strategy's four main objectives includes:

- production of an annual calendar of events which sets out monthly messages and themes to be shared by all partners through social media campaigns, press releases and other communication channels;
- campaigns on blind cord safety; burns and scalds prevention; falls prevention for older people, and choking in the under-5s;
- production of the 'Keeping Well at Home (NI)' booklet – encouraging the public to be mindful of the dangers in and around the home, particularly during lockdown;

- implementation of the home safety checks scheme (HSCS). (The PHA has continued to work closely with councils to ensure the continuation of the HSCS during lockdown and restrictions);
- City and Guilds home safety training and refresher courses for Home Safety Officers, and
- provision of a Health Intelligence Brief, which includes data on injuries and deaths and the impact of socio-economic status, to inform the targeting of resources.

The first review of the Strategy was due to fall during the 2019/20 business planning year. This has been put on hold due to ongoing Covid-19 response pressures.

The following funding has been allocated by the PHA to support HAP work in local councils and Trusts.

	2015-16	2016-17	2017-18	2018-19	2019-20	2020-21*	Total
Councils	£465,390	£562,708	£519,300	£499,231	£525,743	£524,795	£3,097,167
Trusts	£54,130	£95,385	£140,352	£146,652	£168,978	£176,683	£782,180

Grand total - £3,879,347

*Funding allocated to end of March 2021 – full spend anticipated.

In addition, my Department currently allocates funding to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents (RoSPA) to promote the reduction of accidents in the home through education, training and raising awareness. Since 2015 RoSPA has received the following grant allocation from the Department of Health:

2020-21 (March 2020 – Oct 2020)	41,265
2019-20	70,745
2018-19	70,745
2017-18	70,745
2016-17	70,745
2015-16	94,327
2014-15*	23,580

Grand total - £442,152

(*Proportion of grant relating to 2015)

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Health (i) for an update on the adoption and children's bill; and (ii) when it will be introduced in the Assembly.

(AQW 11162/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Work with the Office of Legislative Counsel to finalise the Adoption and Children (Northern Ireland) Bill is almost complete.
- (ii) As previously indicated, I intend to seek the Executive's agreement to introduce the Bill in the Assembly in the current mandate.

Mr Muir asked the Minister of Health what steps his Department is taking to ensure there is adequate provision of Health Service Dental Services readily available to the public.

(AQW 11166/17-22)

Mr Swann: Routine dental care resumed on 20 July 2020 however, enhanced infection prevention and control measures including additional Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) requirements, fallow time and cleaning after Aerosol Generating Procedures (AGPs) limit the number of patients that can be seen each day.

To ensure that this limited treatment capacity is targeted appropriately, guidance issued to all Northern Ireland General Dental Practitioners recommends that patients are seen on the basis of need and that patients requiring emergency and urgent care are given the highest priority.

Updated operational guidance was issued to General Dental Practitioners (GDPs) on 21 October 2020 and included details of a marked reduction of fallow times. While the new guidelines should allow for an increased number of appointments per day, overall patient throughput is expected to remain below normal levels for the foreseeable future.

To support the sustainability of practices through this difficult time the Department established the General Dental Services Financial Support Scheme (FSS). The total level of FSS and net IoS payments made between April and November 2020 is around £43.3 million (£32.7 million FSS) which represents a 32% increase compared with the net IoS payments made over this period in 2019-20.

General Dental Services has received an additional £14.73 million in funding since April 2020. This has included, £0.97 million in Level 1 PPE, £3.76 million for Level 2 PPE and £10 million for the provision of FSS payments on a gross basis. The financial support has been, and will continue to be, conditional on dentists providing care to registered Health Service patients on the basis of need.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health whether he plans to distribute free vitamin D supplements to vulnerable and elderly people.

(AQW 11176/17-22)

Mr Swann: I would point out that vitamin D supplements are already being prescribed to patients in circumstances where it is deemed clinically appropriate to do so.

Furthermore, on 29 October 2020 the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) asked National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE) and Public Health England (PHE) to produce recommendations on vitamin D for the prevention and treatment of COVID-19 in light of growing concerns that many people may have poorer vitamin D levels than usual as a result of staying indoors for longer periods during the pandemic. The outcome of this is awaited and my Department will consider its applicability once finalised.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Health (i) for an update on work within his Department to help with the prevention of loneliness; and (ii) whether his Department would be supportive of the development of a preventing loneliness strategy.

(AQW 11190/17-22)

Mr Swann:

- (i) Loneliness is a vital theme within a number of existing and relevant policies of the Department with the overall objective of improving the health and well being of the population. Whilst the Department does not have one separate policy for loneliness, there are a range of policies; programmes and initiatives in place – that make a positive contribute to tackling loneliness - specifically related to health and wellbeing. My officials are currently carrying out a scoping exercise to identify and co-ordinate what is currently in place both in the Department and across the wider landscape of the HSC (in our 5 Trusts and our Arm's Length bodies). It is anticipated that the first phase of this exercise will be completed by early 2021.
- (ii) It is clear from the preliminary research that loneliness is a key issue and as such cannot be resolved by any one Department, organisation or sector working alone. Therefore a collective and collaborative approach would be beneficial.

This would support a more joined up and co-ordinated working together to rebuild approach and identifying existing policies and synergies across organisations and sectors. The findings of the ongoing scoping exercise within my Department will inform how we in DOH and across the HSC move forward, from a policy perspective.

Ms P Bradley asked the Minister of Health for his assessment of the increased risk of abuse when older people are lonely and socially isolated.

(AQW 11231/17-22)

Mr Swann: I recognise there is a potential increased risk of abuse for lonely and socially isolated older people, particularly during the challenges of the pandemic. Although there are a number of initiatives that may help to alleviate some of the pressures that older people are experiencing, it is important that we remain vigilant to their needs and the potential for abuse. My Department are currently conducting a scoping exercise of policies that include actions that may address loneliness and isolation to identify gaps and needs strategically.

On 10 September 2020 I announced my intention to consult before Christmas on legislative proposals to inform the development Adult Safeguarding legislation. I hope to launch the consultation into proposals to develop an Adult Protection Bill in the coming weeks. The resulting draft Bill will be intended to strengthen protections for adults considered to be at risk.

Ms P Bradley asked the Minister of Health what is being done to address increased social isolation and loneliness experienced by older people.

(AQW 11232/17-22)

Mr Swann: I recognise the particular challenges of these key issues particularly for older people and for those who are already vulnerable during the pandemic.

Addressing loneliness and social isolation is a vital theme within a number of existing Department of Health policies which have the overall objective of improving the health and wellbeing of the population. Whilst the Department does not have one separate policy for loneliness and social isolation, there are a range of policies; programmes and initiatives in place – that make a positive contribute to tackling these issues - specifically related to health and wellbeing.

The Department is represented on the All Party Group on Loneliness which was formed following a series of all-party roundtables and policy events at Stormont in 2019 and 2020. In addition the Department is now part of a 4-country Group in the UK and we are liaising with counterpart policy leads to learn and share best practice.

The Department are also seeking partnership with counterparts in ROI, and beyond, to learn and share from others experiences and innovative approaches to tackle loneliness and social isolation in relation to health and wellbeing.

The Institute of Public Health in Ireland is represented on my Department's Reform Board for Adult Social Care. They have carried out research into loneliness on an all island basis. We are liaising with them to further investigate their research and specifically the research that relates to Northern Ireland.

The Department has set up monitoring of loneliness via different surveys for adults and children. This will allow us to look at loneliness in conjunction with other health information, including general health and mental health as well as health behaviours.

A scoping exercise within the Department's policy areas and across the HSC including Trusts and DOH ALBs, is underway, to further identify policies; strategies, programmes and initiatives in place (including funding/investment) and those that are under development that contribute to addressing loneliness and isolation that impact on health and wellbeing, linked to the Department's priorities and outcomes.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister of Health what the capacity currently is in each neonatal unit; and what is the current number of inpatients in these units.

(AQW 11243/17-22)

Mr Swann: The capacity and occupancy of neonatal units in HSC Hospitals in Northern Ireland has been tabulated below.

The Current Capacity and Occupancy in Neonatal Units in HSC Hospitals in Northern Ireland.

Mr Blair asked the Minister of Health how many hospitals have onsite incinerators to destroy clinical waste.

(AQW 11244/17-22)

Mr Swann:

No hospitals within Northern Ireland have onsite incinerators. The disposal of clinical waste is carried out under a regional contract by a licensed contractor. The majority of this waste is processed locally by the contractor using alternative treatment and a small proportion, which requires high temperature incineration, is transported to GB for disposal.

Mr Harvey asked the Minister of Health why managers of general practices are being asked to submit figures of administered influenza vaccines, when this information has already been submitted to the Health and Social Care Board.

(AQW 11249/17-22)

Mr Swann: While influenza vaccine uptake data are currently submitted monthly to the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB), these data are based on submission of monthly claims for influenza vaccination payment by GP practices and do not provide details on the remaining influenza vaccines within practices.

The influenza vaccination programme is even more critical this year than in a usual winter, with the virus which causes COVID 19 also circulating. I have therefore requested weekly updates on flu vaccine from GP practices. To facilitate this request the HSCB developed a short survey to collate the data required from GP practices. The survey asks practices to provide details on remaining vaccine available.

My Department requires more frequent updates in order to establish if and when the vaccination programme can be rolled out to those in the 50 to 64 year old cohort on a population basis in line with England and Wales, and to provide more up-to-date information to inform the management of the programme in the face of the unprecedented demand this year.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, given that maximum bed capacity in hospitals has remained at a similar level since May 2020, why there are approximately 800 beds unoccupied.

(AQW 11267/17-22)

Mr Swann: Prior to the 18th October, the average figure for unoccupied beds was approximately 800. However, after this date the methodology used to calculate bed occupancy for the COVID-19 dashboard data had changed. This was due to the prior bed occupancy figures being static figures which did not reflect the dynamic nature of bed modelling and flow of patients being admitted and discharged from hospital over the course of a day. Due to this, data prior to the 18th October should not be compared with current data available on the dashboard.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health to detail the cost of treatment of alcohol abuse for the last four year period.

(AQW 11269/17-22)

Mr Swann: A total of £24.25 million was allocated to alcohol and drug services in 2019/20, with similar investment over the preceding years. It must be noted that substance use services cover treatment and support for alcohol and other drugs, and it is therefore not possible to disaggregate the costs for treatment of alcohol use only.

Mr K Buchanan asked the Minister of Health what (i) medical; and (ii) scientific evidence is available to indicate that grassroots sport, especially sport for primary school aged children, is a significant element for the spread of COVID-19 in the community.

(AQW 11274/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Executive, when making decisions on restrictions, takes into account not only the scientific and medical evidence but also the evidence of impacts of the restrictions on the economy and society, including education. The Executive weighs up the totality of the effect each restriction can have in combination with other restrictions in reducing the rate of infections of COVID-19. It is very difficult to disaggregate the precise impact on virus transmission of each restriction on its own.

In light of the high rate of spread of the virus which causes COVID-19, and the pressure this is placing on vital health and social care services, the Executive considered a wide range of activities which could impact on the rate of transmission of the virus. The Executive's decision was that certain businesses and activities, including gatherings such as grassroots youth sports training and matches, would have restrictions placed on them to help to suppress the transmission of the virus within the population. The current combination of restrictions reduces the pressure on our health services, protects the elderly and the vulnerable and allows other essential services to be maintained during the current pandemic.

The Executive maintains an ongoing process of review of the coronavirus restrictions regulations, which considers both the current level of the pandemic and the impact the restrictions have on the economy and society, and it is the Executive's clear intention not to retain the restrictions for any longer than is absolutely necessary.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister of Health whether he will review the Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC) policy on the Health and Social Care Workforce Appeal, that only nurses who retired after 2015 be considered for addition to the NMC register, so that a maximum number of qualified persons are available to administer COVID-19 vaccines.

(AQW 11302/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Government introduced emergency legislation in March 2020 which allowed the Nursing Midwifery Council (NMC) to open a temporary register for returning professionals who wished to support the Covid-19 emergency situation.

Only those who left the permanent NMC register between 1 March 2015 and 29 February 2020, can apply to join the Covid-19 temporary register. The NMC considered this criteria to be fit and proper by reason of their previous recent period of registration without concern, and suitably experienced by reason of their recent registered practice.

Ms P Bradley asked the Minister of Health whether there are any plans in place to prevent a possible surge in abuse of older people under lockdown restrictions.

(AQW 11315/17-22)

Mr Swann: Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic the Health and Social Care Trusts, Adult Safeguarding procedures have remained in place to respond to referrals about adults who may be in need of protection.

In addition the current COVID-19 Care Homes guidance in respect of visits by Health Care Professionals states that providers must ensure relevant Health and Social Care professionals continue to have access to residents where they need to in order to carry out any essential assessments or deliver care.

My Department also continues to fund and raise awareness of the Domestic and Sexual Abuse Helpline in partnership with the Department of Justice and the Department for Communities. The Helpline, which is available to both women and men, received £20,000 in additional funding to ensure that it continues to operate 24/7 during the COVID-19 pandemic.

On 10 September 2020 I announced my intention to consult before Christmas on legislative proposals to inform the development of Adult Safeguarding legislation. I hope to launch the consultation into proposals to develop an Adult Protection Bill in the coming weeks. The resulting draft Bill will be intended to strengthen protections for adults considered to be at risk.

Mr Durkan asked the Minister of Health whether his Department will consider the introduction of a thank you COVID-19 payment for full time Health Service and adult carers, similar to the scheme being rolled out in Scotland.
(AQW 11321/17-22)

Mr Swann: I am on record as to the value I place on the skill, dedication and hard work of health and social care staff. I have seen at first hand the magnificent job that all HSC workers perform, the risks that they take, and the sacrifices that they make.

I have already requested my Department to develop an options paper, to include a range of possible additional supports to all health and social care staff. I have also asked that a payment to carers to be explored within the development of possible options. Whilst any decision would need to be approved by the Executive due to the impact on the overall Northern Ireland budget, I welcome any opportunity to recognise the extraordinary efforts and sacrifices of staff and carers.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health to detail the membership, including the number of positions, of the cross-departmental Preventing Harm, Empowering Recovery Programme Board.
(AQW 11347/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Substance Use Strategy consultation proposes the establishment of a new governance structure that includes a Preventing Harm, Empowering Recovery Programme Board. It is anticipated that this new structure will be put in place once the strategy has been finalised, subject to the feedback received from the consultation process. However, it is proposed that the new Programme Board membership will cover health, justice, academics, community/voluntary sector, local government and vitally service users, their families, and other experts by experience. It should be noted the governance structures for the existing strategy will remain in place until the new strategy is published.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health whether (i) domiciliary care staff; (ii) care home staff; and (iii) unpaid carers have access to the COVID-19 Psychological Support Helpline.
(AQW 11366/17-22)

Mr Swann: Since the early stages of the pandemic the HSC Trust Psychological Support Helplines (which are staffed by psychologists and psychological therapists) have been made available to staff in the independent sector.

Helpline numbers and other resources are available on the PHA website at:

<https://www.publichealth.hscni.net/covid-19-coronavirus/guidance-hsc-staff-healthcare-workers-and-care-providers/staff-health-and>

My Department has also collaboratively developed a piece of guidance, Advice for Carers and Young Carers during Covid-19 Pandemic which was published on 10 April and most recently updated on 3 December 2020. This guidance includes a number of resources for managing stress, mental health and emotional well-being. It also includes links and contacts that are helpful to carers and young carers. The guidance can be accessed at: www.health-ni.gov.uk/publications/advice-informal-unpaid-carers-and-young-carers-during-covid-19-pandemic.

Whilst unpaid carers do not have access to the COVID-19 Psychological Support Helpline, there are a range of crisis response helplines in Northern Ireland for adults or children who are experiencing distress or despair. Helpline services are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week to listen and help, in confidence. The Helplines NI website provides a directory of over 60 helpline services operating across Northern Ireland. The helplines provide information, support, advice and guidance on a wide-range of health and wellbeing needs. The website also includes details of both national and local Coronavirus (COVID-19) specific helplines which may be useful for carers: <https://helplinesni.com/>

For carers reaching crisis point, calls to Lifeline, the Samaritans and Childline are free of charge and open 24 hours a day. In addition, all trust areas have a mental health crisis team with psychiatric nurses, social workers and support workers available.

For carers within the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust, a listening ear service is available which provides a confidential listening service to carers, providing reassurance and comfort as well as relaxation and mindfulness advice. Similarly, carers within the Southern Health and Social Care Trust can access a listening ear service through the Carers Trust, which provides support, advice, activities and training, along with opportunities to meet with other carers. The service has trained and experienced outreach workers who will respond to carers' needs by signposting to services and programmes which may support them in their caring role. Within the South Eastern Trust, various listening ear services are available to carers. An out-bound telephone support service called Good Day Good Carer has been introduced during the COVID-19 period to provide carers with ongoing support, a listening ear service, information and advice, and a link to other support services. Carers can also avail of AGE North Down and Ards Good Morning Call which provides daily calls to those aged 50 and over who live alone and require support or a listening ear service. Similarly, Good Morning Colin Telephone Service offers daily calls to carers and citizens over 65 years of age in the Colin area who feel isolated and vulnerable and require a listening ear service. Furthermore, Carer Support provides a listening ear service for carers, offering information, signposting and referrals to other HSC Trust's voluntary and community supports.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister of Health what training is offered to Health and Social Care staff relating to addiction, including (i) the type of training; (ii) the length of time it takes to complete; and (iii) whether a qualification is gained.
(AQW 11367/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Public Health Agency (PHA) commissions a range of substance use related training programmes which are open to Health & Social Care (HSC) staff including:

Substance Misuse Workforce Development Training Programme

Substance Misuse Awareness	1 Day
Understanding Alcohol	Half Day
Understanding Illicit Drugs	Half Day
Understanding Medicines Misuse	Half Day
Understanding New Psychoactive Substances	Half Day
Foundation Module – Adults and Family Members	3 Days
Advanced Module – Level 3 Certificate in Tackling Substance Misuse	12 Days
Supporting Family Members affected by Substance Misuse	2 Days
Working with Substance Misuse in a Homeless Setting	4 Days
Foundation Module – Children, Young People and Families	3 Days
Working with Young People and Substance Misuse	2 Days
Young People, Substance Misuse and Mental Health	2 Days
The Regional Initial Assessment Tool for Young People (RIAT)	Half Day
The Regional Hidden Harm Protocol	1 Day
Parental Substance Misuse	2 Days

Both the Advanced (Level 3) course and the Foundation courses are accredited, although there is also an option to do the Foundation courses without accreditation if the learner prefers. All courses have been scrutinised and approved in terms of all aspects of content by an e-panel that has been expressly established for this purpose. The panel consists of practitioners, academics and trainers who possess a wealth of experience and knowledge in relation to substance use and related issues; the PHA is also represented on this panel. These courses are available to those working on drugs and alcohol issues across the statutory, voluntary and community sectors.

Substance Misuse Workforce Development Motivational Interviewing Training Programme

Intermediate and Advanced Courses in Motivational Interviewing (MI) and Mentoring to support advanced MI training – Intermediate Training is 3 days, while Advanced Training is 2 days with six months one-to-one and group mentoring follow-up during which practitioners are given the opportunity to reflect upon integration of MI in client contacts. Both courses are accredited through The Motivational Interviewing Network of Trainers. This training is available to anyone working in Drug/Alcohol Treatment Services across the region.

Substance Misuse Workforce Development Harm Reduction Training Programme

Programmes include:

- Working with People Who Inject Drugs (1 day)
- Administration of Naloxone, including Overdose Awareness (1 day)
- Training for Trainers – Administration of Naloxone (1 day)
- Needle and Syringe Exchange Training (1 day)

These courses are not accredited, however the Training for Trainers – Administration of Naloxone is a requirement for anyone providing naloxone to service users, and the Needle and Syringe Exchange Training is a requirement for those providing Needle Exchange Services. These courses are available to those working on drugs and alcohol issues across the statutory, voluntary and community sectors.

Dual Diagnosis Course

There is a funding allocation for HSC staff across the region to attend the Dual Diagnosis Course in QUB. This is part of funding for psychological therapies to build capacity of practitioners and promote and sustain evidence-based, cross-boundary inter-professional training and education across the region to ensure a regional standardised provision of high quality and effective services that improve outcomes for service-users and their families. Whilst the funding for this is held and managed by HSCB, the programme is jointly agreed and monitored by both HSCB and PHA.

Nicotine Addiction:

All staff (including HSC staff), providing specialist stop smoking advice and support, are required to have attended a minimum of a 2-day recognised training programme or a recognised training course. This training must be in keeping with the NI Regional Training Framework for Specialist Stop Smoking Services, developed by the Public Health Agency. To ensure continued competency in delivering the service, staff are responsible for ensuring they complete refresher/update training every three years. The 2-day Stop Smoking Specialist Training course is available online. An online ½ day Brief Interventions in Smoking course is also available for anyone wishing to provide brief opportunistic support to others in their care who want to stop smoking. These courses have been developed for the NI Stop Smoking Services providers, but are not accredited.

Opioid Substitute Treatment:

GPs and other clinicians who support opioid substitute treatment undertake the Royal College of General Practice (RCGP) Certificate in the Management of Drug Misuse Part 1. This is an accredited course for GPs and other healthcare professionals intending to provide treatment to drug users at a generalist level as part of a shared care scheme.

In addition to the above, there is specific training related to substance use and addiction built into the professional training and qualification process for psychiatrists, general practitioners and social workers.

Mr Carroll asked the Minister of Health, following the specific advice to clinically extremely vulnerable people in tiered regions in Great Britain and the supply of Vitamin D to 2.7 million vulnerable people in England, what plans his Department has to provide further bespoke advice and resources to our most vulnerable.

(AQW 11379/17-22)

Mr Swann: Vitamin D supplements are being prescribed to vulnerable patients in Northern Ireland in circumstances where it is deemed clinically appropriate to do so.

Vitamin D is important for bone and muscle health although it has also been hypothesised that vitamin D may have a role in the body's immune response to respiratory viruses. However, vitamin D supplements are not specifically licensed for preventing or treating any infection, including the novel coronavirus infection that causes COVID19.

The Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) has however asked the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE) and Public Health England (PHE) to produce recommendations on vitamin D for the prevention and treatment of COVID-19 in light of growing concerns that many people may have poorer vitamin D levels than usual as a result of staying indoors for longer periods during the pandemic. The outcome of this is awaited and my Department will consider its applicability once finalised.

In the meantime, people are asked follow the advice of the Public Health Agency (PHA) which has been recommending that everyone take vitamin D supplements during the lockdown period to help keep bones, teeth and muscles healthy.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health whether all hospital workers will receive free parking in each Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 11405/17-22)

Mr Swann: Yes. On 29 October I announced that with immediate effect, all Health and Social Care (HSC) staff would receive free car parking to 31 March 2021.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister of Health for an update on the future of the vacant properties owned by his Department or its arm's-length bodies.

(AQW 11406/17-22)

Mr Swann: The Department and its Arm's Length Bodies record vacant property assets, along with rationalisation plans, in annual Property Asset Management Plans. Only vacant property assets which have a clear foreseeable health need are retained. Assets with no foreseeable health need will first be offered to the public sector and then disposed of in accordance with current Land & Property Service Central Advisory Unit guidance.

Mr Gildernew asked the Minister of Health for an update on the status of the Valley Care Home, including plans to support the continuation of service.

(AQW 11439/17-22)

Mr Swann: As a result of serious concerns identified in October during an unannounced inspection at Valley Nursing Home, Clogher, RQIA has taken enforcement action to cancel the registration of the responsible individual of Health Care Ireland in respect of this home. This action is focused on achieving better long-term care for those currently living at this home. RQIA is working closely and collaboratively with the Health and Social Care Board and the Southern and Western trusts to find a solution that best meets the individual needs of every patient and their families.

Letters have been sent by the Trusts to residents and their families to let them know what is currently happening in relation to their care and the future of the home. Plans are already in place for a substantial number of the residents to move to other homes. This has been done with the participation of residents and families. Conversations are ongoing with residents and their families where there is not yet an agreed plan.

All HSC agencies involved are mindful of the challenges of moving residents and are sensitive to this happening during the Covid-19 pandemic and the approaching Christmas period. All agencies are working together to find a constructive way forward that ensures that residents are cared for appropriately.

This is a fast moving situation and I am being kept informed of developments.

Trusts have staff in the home daily and are therefore content that residents are safe and being cared for appropriately at this time.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health whether he will give a £500 bonus to health staff for Christmas to recognise their work during the pandemic.

(AQW 11534/17-22)

Mr Swann: I am on record as to the value I place on the skill, dedication and hard work of health and social care staff. I have seen at first hand the magnificent job that all HSC workers perform, the risks that they take, and the sacrifices that they make.

I have already requested my Department to develop an options paper, to include a range of possible additional supports to all health and social care staff. I have also asked that a payment to carers to be explored within the development of possible options. Whilst any decision would need to be approved by the Executive due to the impact on the overall Northern Ireland budget, I welcome any opportunity to recognise the extraordinary efforts and sacrifices of staff and carers.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister of Health how many times he has attended meetings of the Committee for Health since 11 January 2020, broken down by (i) Committee meetings attended in person; and (ii) Committee meetings attended remotely.

(AQW 11535/17-22)

Mr Swann: Since 11 January 2020 I have attended the Committee for Health on 11 (eleven) occasions.

I have attended (i) 7 (seven) occasions in person; and (ii) 4 (four) occasions remotely.

Department for Infrastructure

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, pursuant to AQW 10119/17-22, on what date her Department informed the European Commission of her intention to (i) not enforce against unauthorised Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) development taking place in Lough Neagh Special Protection Area; and (ii) permit unauthorised EIA development to become immune from enforcement action.

(AQW 10913/17-22)

Ms Mallon (The Minister for Infrastructure): My Department has provided relevant information to the European Commission in relation to the Lough Neagh case at different stages in the process, and will continue to provide it with information as appropriate and necessary.

Updates to the European Commission are managed by DEFRA. The most recent update to DEFRA was in December 2019. Officials are currently preparing a further update to DEFRA and hope to issue this early in the New Year.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure what engagement she has had with the Minister for the Economy over the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme and the transport sector.

(AQW 10929/17-22)

Ms Mallon: When the Executive discussed this scheme originally, I was assured by the Minister for the Economy that no exclusion would be used for taxi drivers and bus operators.

I am very disappointed that an opportunity has been missed to set up a scheme which comprehensively will assist those impacted by the increased restrictions, that being the very purpose of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS), and that instead certain sectors are being allowed to fall through the cracks.

I remain of the view, which is strongly supported by the taxi sector that, in going forward and in managing the effect of any continued restrictions, Part B of the DfE CRBSS should cover the taxi and bus sectors, in that their income and trade has been directly affected by the increased restrictions and they meet the other criteria given they are "dependent on those businesses being open in order to operate". I have significant concerns that the current eligibility criteria does not provide the support that is needed for all impacted businesses.

I have advocated that the Department for the Economy should take responsibility for financial support for taxi drivers since last spring, as they have the legal vires to do so. In relation to the CBRSS, I raised the importance of the inclusion of the taxi sector at the Executive meeting on 22nd October and I have also written to the Minister of the Economy on 21st October, 19th November and 23rd November asking that the exclusion of those who can avail of the DfI Taxi Driver Financial Assistance Scheme and Private Coach and Bus Operators from the CBRSS is removed. I continue to push for their inclusion in this and future schemes.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will bring forward further support to the taxi sector.

(AQW 10930/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As you are aware I secured £25m of funding from the Executive, of which £19m has been provided to fund the taxi and private coach and bus schemes. The remaining £6m is being held centrally which provides me with some flexibility to keep under review the circumstances of the sectors should any further support be needed. I will also continue to press for the inclusion of the taxi sector in the various other support schemes being taken forward across the Executive.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given the lengthy waiting times experienced by many applicants, how her Department is increasing capacity around driver testing.

(AQW 10936/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that closed from 16 October until 20 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests also ceased over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Driving tests resumed on 21 November but ceased again for 2 weeks from 27 November to 10 December 2020 due to the circuit breaker restrictions announced by the Executive. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these restrictions.

The Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) has opened up the booking system exclusively for those customers whose tests were cancelled between 17 October and 20 November and 27 November to 10 December. Testing slots have been released for February and March and additional booking slots have also been made available in December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. When the DVA is in a position to reopen the booking service for all other customers they will issue further communications through nirect and social media channels, and write to all Approved Driving Instructors to confirm this position.

When testing resumes the DVA will continue to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

To increase driving test capacity the DVA is in the process of recruiting an additional 27 temporary and permanent vehicle examiners, which will free up the dual role examiners to conduct more driving tests over the coming months. The DVA is also planning to launch a further driving examiner recruitment competition early next year.

To help further mitigate the impact on customers due to the cessation of practical driving as a result of the latest Covid restrictions, I will be bringing forward further legislation to extend the validity of theory test pass certificates. Theory test pass certificates which have already been extended by eight months and will expire from 1 November 2020 onwards, will have their validity period extended by a further four months. In addition, theory test pass certificates which expire between 1 November 2020 and 30 June 2021, and which have not already benefited from an extension, will have their validity period extended by eight months.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure what actions her Department is taking to address the issues within the Transport Regulation Unit.

(AQW 11094/17-22)

Ms Mallon: To ensure that public inquiries could recommence, my Department has worked with Land & Property Services (LPS), PSNI, and the Security Surveyor to access a suitable hearing room, for the short term. Deputy Traffic Commissioners from GB have been engaged to provide immediate support as skilled and experienced presiding officers. In addition, the historical MSI report has been received from DVSA allowing a complete picture of an operator's historical compliance to be taken into consideration. To ensure that the impact of Covid-19 is limited, online hearings have been established to support the more traditional face-to-face hearings.

As a result of these steps my Department has successfully recommenced public inquiries and work will continue to clear the backlog over the coming months. The historical MSI data is being assessed to determine what further regulatory action might be required against operators appearing on that report.

In the longer term, my officials are working with LPS to identify a permanent location for hearings, and a weekly report has been arranged with DVSA to notify infringements to Transport Regulation Unit on a timely basis. To ensure that the Department enacts its statutory duties effectively in the long term, my Department will be strategically reviewing the role, responsibilities and functions of the Transport Regulation Unit.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on planned road safety improvements at the Killeter Road and Cavan Road junction, Castlederg.

(AQW 11128/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The junction of the Killeter Road with the Cavan Road is within the 30mph speed limits of Castlederg, however there is an issue with vehicles on the Killeter Road approaching the junction at speed when driving towards the town. Consequently, consideration is being given to enhancing the signage and road markings to heighten drivers' awareness on the approach to this junction.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) for an update on work within her Department to help with the prevention of loneliness; and (ii) whether her Department would be supportive of the development of a preventing loneliness strategy.

(AQW 11189/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department delivers a number of transport measures which are focused on people most at risk of loneliness through social exclusion.

One of the most important measures in tackling social exclusion is the delivery of our extensive public transport system which aims to connect people safely and enable access to social and economic opportunities, particularly for our more vulnerable citizens and deprived communities. This access to public transport is further supported by the NI Concessionary Fares Scheme which was established to promote access to public transport through discounted fares for specific categories of users, a number of whom are at risk of loneliness and social isolation.

There are also a range of services delivered through the Rural Transport Fund and the Transport Programme for People with Disabilities including the Dial-a-Lift scheme, Disability Action Transport Scheme, Shopmobility and Easibus.

The Blue Badge Scheme is another initiative which is supported by my Department, providing an important service for people with severe mobility problems, enhancing access to our towns and cities, and addressing a key barrier to social inclusion.

In addition, my Department helps to ensure sustainable accessibility to key local services by providing good walking and cycling facilities.

As well as transport, my responsibility for the planning system means that I also have a key role in tackling loneliness and social isolation by encouraging good design and the creation of places which promote community cohesion and inclusion.

I am fully supportive of the work that the All Party Group on Loneliness has progressed towards the development of a cross-departmental Loneliness Strategy for Northern Ireland. To assist with this work, I have arranged for the relevant policy leads from within my Department to attend the forthcoming APG meeting on 9 December 2020.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to attract more people into town centres, what plans she has to make Northern Ireland's town and city centres more people-friendly, including pedestrianising.

(AQW 11200/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department is engaged in a range of schemes to attract people into towns and city centres. This includes the COVID-19 Town Revitalisation Programme which I announced on 28 October 2020, in conjunction with the Communities and DAERA Ministers.

Through that programme, my Department is investing £5 million in towns and cities across all Council areas in initiatives which will make it easier and more inclusive and attractive for people to access shops and services by enabling them to make more short journeys by walking, wheeling and cycling rather than travelling by car. The projects being taken forward through my Department's element of this programme include improvements to walking and cycling infrastructure, the installation of parklets and the creation of pedestrian areas.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the rural roads fund.

(AQW 11203/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As the Member is aware, I announced an investment of £75m in the structural maintenance of the road network in 2020/2021. Recognising the importance of investment in the roads network to improve connectivity, help communities and tackle regional imbalance, I instructed officials to allocate £12m to a Roads Recovery Fund, £10m of which is to be directed towards rural roads.

Although the COVID 19 pandemic led to some initial delays in the commencement of the 2020/21 Road Recovery work, Divisional teams are now progressing their programmes. These improvements are targeting many short lengths of rural roads that are in particularly poor condition and it is estimated that over 500 locations on the rural road network will benefit from these improvements.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for Infrastructure, given her Department's oversight and scrutiny role of the planning system, for her assessment of whether the practice of some local councils in withholding Environmental Impact Assessment determinations and Habitats Regulations Assessments from the planning portal, including during the restrictions imposed due to COVID-19, is in breach of the Aarhus Convention and the public's right to access to environmental information.

(AQW 11252/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am content that the statutory obligations for public access to information set out in planning legislation meet the requirements of the Aarhus Convention. Councils, in their role as local planning authorities, determine the vast majority of applications for planning permission. As such, they are best placed to determine how and when relevant information on environmental impact assessment and assessments required under the Habitats Regulations is made available in order to meet their statutory obligations.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on the Special Events on Roads consultation arising from the Roads (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 2010.

(AQW 11255/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The exercise to gather views and data relating to the operation of the Roads (Miscellaneous Provision) Act (Northern Ireland) 2010, closed on 24 September 2020. There were almost 800 responses to the Department's online questionnaire, along with 14 pieces of correspondence.

Detailed analysis of the information submitted is currently underway, and when this is complete I will be discussing next steps with my officials.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for Infrastructure when those individuals who have had driving tests cancelled due to the two week lockdown will receive an new appointment.

(AQW 11278/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Driving instructors were included in the Executive's regulations on businesses that closed from 16 October until 20 November to help stop the spread of Covid-19. Following this Executive decision, driving tests also ceased over this period of increased restrictions based on public health and scientific advice. Driving tests resumed on 21 November but ceased again for 2-weeks from 27 November to 10 December 2020 due to the circuit breaker restrictions announced by the Executive. Motorcycle lessons and tests are not affected by these restrictions.

The DVA has opened up the booking system exclusively for those customers whose tests were cancelled between 17 October to 20 November and 27 November to 10 December. Testing slots have been released for February and March and additional booking slots have also been made available in December and January as the DVA increases capacity by recruiting additional examiners. When the DVA is in a position to reopen the booking service for all other customers they will issue further communications through nidirect and social media channels, and write to all Approved Driving Instructors to confirm this position.

When testing resumes the DVA will continue to offer driving tests on a Saturday and following consultation with key stakeholders is planning to offer driving tests for Heavy Goods Vehicles on Sundays, where it is suitable to do so without compromising the integrity of the test. The DVA will also use overtime to rota off-shift dual role driving examiners to provide additional capacity and to provide cover for scheduled driving tests, where due to a variety of unforeseen reasons such as sick absence or the requirement to self-isolate, driving examiners are unable to attend work.

To help further mitigate the impact on customers due to the cessation of practical driving as a result of the latest Covid restrictions, I will be bringing forward further legislation to extend the validity of theory test pass certificates. Theory test pass certificates which have already been extended by eight months and will expire from 1 November 2020 onwards, will have their validity period extended by a further four months. In addition, theory test pass certificates which expire between 1 November 2020 and 30 June 2021, and which have not already benefited from an extension, will have their validity period extended by eight months.

The DVA acknowledges that learner drivers are keen to take their driving tests at the earliest opportunity and will continue to work hard to maximise the availability of test slots. However, all driving test services across these islands are experiencing high demand with longer than usual waiting times. Like all public facing services, the Covid-19 restrictions mean that the DVA has had to adapt its services to ensure that they can be provided safely and they would ask customers for their patience at this difficult time.

It is my priority to ensure that our staff and customers remain safe and the DVA will continue to be guided by the latest public health and scientific advice as we work as quickly as we can to serve all our customers.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many vehicles have failed an MOT test as a result of diesel emissions which were below acceptable levels, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 11301/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The table below shows the number of vehicles that have failed an MOT test as a result of excessive diesel emissions in each of the last five years. This includes vehicles which have failed the test either through a metered smoke test or a visual assessment of smoke emitted from the vehicle.

Year	2015/16	2016/17	2017/18	2018/19	2019/20	Total
No. of vehicles	478	490	420	448	373	2,209

In addition, 8,248 vehicles have failed the related emissions control system test, since its introduction on 20 May 2019. This element of the test comprises a check of the engine Malfunction Indicator Lamp (MIL), which illuminates to indicate a fault in an engine's emissions control systems.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in light of increased housing in the area, whether consideration has been given to reopening the railway halt at Craigavad. [R]
(AQW 11356/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am committed to improving transport connectivity for the benefit of our economy and communities across the North. Our rail network, whilst relatively small, does present a unique opportunity to improve the sustainability of the Department's transport operations. Investment decisions need to include network optimisation, in terms of operational and financial viability, and the wider role of rail in assisting the growth of the Belfast Metropolitan Area.

In line with that, my Department is currently developing proposals for a new Regional Strategic Transport Network Transport Plan which will help inform priorities for future development of the main road and rail networks, as well as the Belfast Metropolitan Transport Plan, which will look at transport links across the Belfast Metropolitan Area, including North Down.

When published, these draft Plans will give the public an opportunity to respond, and share their view on the proposals being brought forward. I would welcome any local feedback on the desire for a feasibility study into the re-opening of the railway halt at Craigavad through this process.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Infrastructure for an update on plans to improve road safety for drivers at Craigantlet crossroads.
(AQW 11368/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I can confirm my Department has developed plans to upgrade the junctions at Ballymiscaw Road / Whinney Hill and Dunlady Road / Holywood Road / Craigantlet Road / Whinney Hill in Holywood. It is recognised that this scheme would bring important benefits in terms of road safety and traffic progression.

However due to the scale and cost of the project and in light of current budgetary constraints, it is not possible to progress the scheme at this time.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in relation to the North-South Interconnector, whether she is aware that the procurement process for design and supply of the pylon towers and associated materials was ongoing for a number of years prior to her planning approval.
(AQW 11373/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The Department was not aware that the procurement process for the design and supply of the pylon towers and associated materials was ongoing prior to my decision to grant planning permission for the North-South Interconnector. The procurement process is entirely a matter for the developer, SONI.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure (i) how she will ensure that the 28 conditions attached to the planning approval for the interconnector will be adhered to; and (ii) to detail how full compliance with each planning condition will be fully enforced.
(AQW 11374/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Conditions attached to any planning permission generally reflect the parameters of the proposal and mitigation proposed by the developer via submissions including the Environmental Impact Assessment. As such, conditions should not pose any unfamiliar or unnecessary burden and compliance is therefore anticipated. It is the responsibility of applicants to implement their planning permission in accordance with the conditions stipulated. However, where breaches are apparent and it is expedient to do so, enforcement action under the provisions of the Planning (Act) NI 2011 can be commenced.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the reasons for her decision to approve the over-heading of the North-South Interconnector on 14 September 2020.
(AQW 11375/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My decision on the North South Interconnector of 14 September 2020 was based on the evidence presented to me and as submitted in relation to the planning applications. The detailed planning reasons are evident from the relevant submissions from officials which I considered and approved. The decision notices and associated documentation, including the independent report from the Planning Appeals Commission and the Development Management Reports from my officials, may be viewed at the Planning NI Web Portal via Public Access at <http://epicpublic.planningni.gov.uk/publicaccess/> using planning reference numbers O/2009/0792/F and O/2013/0214/F.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for Infrastructure how many planning applications which were recommended for refusal by planning staff were subsequently granted approval by the Planning Committee, broken down by local council, in each of the last five years.
(AQW 11395/17-22)

Ms Mallon: Between 1 April 2018 and 31 March 2019, 114 planning applications which were recommended for refusal by the planning officer were subsequently approved by the Planning Committee. The table below breaks this down by local council.

Council	Number of applications
Antrim and Newtownabbey	5
Ards and North Down	3
Armagh City, Banbridge and Craigavon	6
Belfast	0
Causeway Coast and Glens	28
Derry City and Strabane	8
Fermanagh and Omagh	27
Lisburn and Castlereagh	9
Mid and East Antrim	4
Mid Ulster	2
Newry, Mourne and Down	22
Total	114

Official data from my Department relating to your request is currently only available for 2018/19, although this information is publicly available through councils Planning Committee minutes. Comparable data for 2019/20 will be available once the Northern Ireland Planning Monitoring Framework 2019/20 is published in December 2020.

Mr Wells asked the Minister for Infrastructure what proportion of the one million trees that will be planted on Northern Ireland Water land will be native species.

(AQW 11397/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I have confirmed with NI Water that all of the one million trees planted will be native species. Native species are not only best for our local landscapes, and animals, but also best for water quality protection and improvement.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she would consider establishing a dedicated unit within her Department for the development of greenways.

(AQW 11398/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department provides a strategic focus, as outlined in 'Exercise – Explore – Enjoy: A Strategic Plan for Greenways'. This document provides a framework to assist Councils and other bodies to develop their own local schemes as part of a regional greenway network. I believe that it is important that Councils have ownership of the projects and that they engage with local communities and local landowners. Successful greenways have demonstrated the importance of local consultation for these projects.

As a demonstration of my commitment to assist Councils, I have already provided £3.7 million capital funding for six greenway projects and I would expect to make further investments in greenways in the future, subject to the budget provided to my Department. I am also willing to give consideration to whether there are other ways of assisting Councils in delivering their greenways.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail (i) the current extent of street lighting outage in the East Belfast constituency; and (ii) the average time from report of a fault to repair of the outage.

(AQW 11428/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My Department is unable to provide this information by constituency. However, I can confirm that in Roads Eastern Division, which includes the East Belfast constituency, as of 3 December 2020 there are 496 street lighting outages currently recorded as outstanding on the street lighting maintenance system.

Following an initial delay in April 2020, due to the COVID-19 crisis, the Department is now providing a full street lighting maintenance service, with outages generally being attended to within the required 5 working days.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for Infrastructure when she expects to have concluded the study of bat life on the Comber Greenway.

(AQW 11431/17-22)

Ms Mallon: A bat study was completed in 2018 in preparation for a public consultation on lighting the Comber Greenway which I expect to be carried out in the coming months. The study will be made available during this consultation.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister for Infrastructure for her assessment of the level of risk to public safety that exists and which cannot be addressed until the transfer order is processed which will pass statutory responsibility for the Reservoirs Act from the Department of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs to her Department.

(AQW 11475/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The EU Floods Directive required member states to conduct a preliminary flood risk assessment, to identify areas of potential flood risk that could pose a risk to the public. As a result of this work the Department has estimated that there are approximately 83,000 people living or working within the inundation zones of controlled reservoirs.

The Reservoirs Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 provides for the regulation of reservoir safety in Northern Ireland. The Act, when fully commenced, will introduce a proportionate regulatory framework for the management and maintenance of reservoirs capable of holding 10,000m³, or more, of water above the natural level of the surrounding land in order to protect people, the economy, the environment and cultural heritage from the risk of flooding from an uncontrolled release of water due to reservoir failure. These are defined as controlled reservoirs.

As you are aware, my Department currently does not have statutory responsibility for the Reservoirs Act. A Transfer of Functions Order is being progressed through the Executive Office to transfer the statutory responsibility for the provisions under the Reservoirs Act from DAERA to my Department. Once statutory responsibility is transferred, I will be in a position to consider the necessary secondary legislation required to implement the reservoir safety policy envisaged in the Act.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure what engagement she and her officials have had with taxi operators; and what work is being undertaken to develop a financial support scheme for them.

(AQW 11482/17-22)

Ms Mallon: As part of the stakeholder engagement process for the financial support schemes, officials and I held meetings with taxi operators on 30th September and 27th October. Officials also met with taxi operators on 20th October and 27th November.

In looking at the available financial support schemes and sector eligibility for those, because taxi drivers did not have premises, they did not qualify for the NI Executive support schemes for businesses. However, taxi businesses/operators that did have premises, could have availed of one or other of the business support grants or loan schemes available.

For these reasons, the scheme I put in place is designed to assist taxi drivers who could not avail of the existing schemes but still incurred overhead costs from March until September of this year. Taxi operators advised that providing financial support to drivers would also provide indirect support to them, by helping taxi drivers remain in business.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for Infrastructure to detail the nine reservoirs that require urgent interventions.

(AQW 11522/17-22)

Ms Mallon: A Reservoir Audit carried out in 2016 of some of Northern Ireland's controlled reservoirs identified 45 reservoirs in Poor or Very Poor condition. A further survey carried out by a specialist consultant reservoir engineer in 2019 identified nine reservoirs that require urgent interventions. The locations of these are:

- One in the Antrim and Newtownabbey Borough Council area;
- One in the Ards and North Down Borough Council area;
- Two in the Armagh City, Banbridge and Craigavon Borough Council area;
- One in the Belfast City Council area;
- Two in the Causeway Coast and Glens Borough Council area;
- One in the Mid and East Antrim Borough Council area; and
- One in the Newry, Mourne and Down District Council area.

I cannot be more precise in relation to their location as 'Guidance within the National Protocol for the Handling, Transmission and Storage of Reservoir Information and Flood Maps (June 2018)' prevents the release into the public domain of detail that may expose potential vulnerabilities in a reservoir.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Infrastructure whether she will work with her ministerial counterpart Minister Ryan to restore the Dublin to Belfast bus service to its original service levels.

(AQW 11536/17-22)

Ms Mallon: I am committed to securing island-wide transport services, including between Belfast and Dublin, and in light of Bus Éireann's decision to cease its cross-border services, I approved Translink's request to provide some of these cross-border services to ensure the connectivity between the two major cities on our island.

This is something I will monitor closely, in line with government restrictions, as safety and social distancing are fundamental in considering a resumption to original service levels. I will also continue to liaise with Minister Ryan as we navigate the challenges presented by COVID-19.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for Infrastructure, in order to help preserve Newry's maritime heritage and to safeguard shipping access to the Albert Basin and Newry Canal, whether she has considered the possibility of the Southern Relief Road, Newry, incorporating a lifting bridge over the shipping canal as part of the design.

(AQW 11555/17-22)

Ms Mallon: The development of Newry Southern Relief Road has progressed on the basis of a fixed bridge over the Newry Ship Canal, however, at this stage I have not ruled out the option of an opening bridge.

Whilst the current fixed bridge proposal will facilitate access for vessels under 12 metres, I am aware of concerns about the proposed bridge structure on Newry Ship Canal potentially restricting access for taller vessels, including tall ship navigation, to the Albert Basin. As such, I am currently considering potential options for an opening bridge and I am keen to understand the costs and benefits to the local area of an opening structure.

To inform my considerations, I am also keen to engage with local groups and listen to the views of the local community before I come to a final decision on this matter. I recently met with a delegation of local elected representatives and officials from Newry Mourne and Down District Council who highlighted the strong maritime history associated with Newry and the potential long term development opportunities for the area. I also plan to meet with other local stakeholders to discuss this important issue.

Miss McIlveen asked the Minister for Infrastructure for a date for the resumption of Approved Driving Instructor testing.

(AQW 11558/17-22)

Ms Mallon: My officials in the Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) have been working hard to safely reinstate all categories of driver testing, including the Approved Driving Instructor (ADI) qualifying tests. Risk assessments have concluded that these driving tests can be delivered in compliance with Public Health Agency (PHA) guidance in relation to hand hygiene, face coverings and social distancing. The DVA is now in a position to resume the ADI qualifying tests from 11 December, once the circuit breaker restrictions end.

This has been communicated directly to the industry, and NIDirect and social media channels have been updated with this new information. In addition, officials in the DVA have contacted affected part-qualified Potential Driving Instructors (PDIs) to provide them with an update and make suitable arrangements for testing.

Department of Justice

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Justice whether her Department has considered a ban on fireworks which do not include lower noise emissions to minimise disruption to pets and vulnerable people.

(AQW 10788/17-22)

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): The determination of the maximum noise levels of fireworks is a product safety issue and is a reserved matter which rests with the UK Government. The current maximum noise level that fireworks must not exceed is 120 decibels. As a result of petitions against the misuse of fireworks the UK Government tasked the Office for Product Safety and Standards (OPSS) to establish an evidence base to inform possible future controls of fireworks. OPSS published the Fireworks Evidence Base report in October 2020 and has commissioned a further programme of testing to determine the average decibel level for common fireworks which will help to identify which types of fireworks are associated with the highest noise levels, and which have a lower decibel level. The Department will follow up on any relevant recommendations.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Justice whether her Department will look at stricter regulation around the sale of fireworks.

(AQW 10789/17-22)

Mrs Long: The current regulations provide a robust framework that seeks to ensure fireworks are sold and bought responsibly for use by the public.

In Northern Ireland it is illegal to sell fireworks unless the seller holds a certificate of registration or a licence issued by the Department of Justice under the Manufacture and Storage of Explosives Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2006. In addition, the Pyrotechnic Articles (Safety) Regulations 2015 make it an offence for a registered or licensed retailer to sell fireworks to anyone under the age of 18 and the Explosives (Fireworks) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2002 make it an offence for anyone who does not hold a fireworks licence issued by the Department of Justice to possess, purchase, sell, acquire, handle and use fireworks.

A valid fireworks licence is required for an individual to purchase, possess and use fireworks in Northern Ireland.

I would also refer you to the answer provided in response to AQW 10790/17-22.

Ms Rogan asked the Minister of Justice how she intends to tighten up the sale of fireworks and put more stringent measures in place given the increase in use of Halloween, resulting in a massive spike of anti-social behaviour in the South Down constituency.

(AQW 10790/17-22)

Mrs Long: The current regulations provide a robust framework that seeks to ensure fireworks are sold and bought responsibly for use by the public.

In Northern Ireland it is illegal to sell fireworks unless the seller holds a certificate of registration or a licence issued by the Department of Justice under the Manufacture and Storage of Explosives Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2006 (MSER). In addition, the Pyrotechnic Articles (Safety) Regulations 2015 make it an offence for a registered or licensed retailer to sell fireworks to anyone under the age of 18 and the Explosives (Fireworks) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2002 make it an offence for anyone who does not hold a fireworks licence issued by the Department of Justice to possess, purchase, sell, acquire, handle and use fireworks.

A valid fireworks licence includes conditions on use, including date and time restrictions on when the fireworks can be used. Existing legislation provides for penalties for possessing and selling fireworks without a licence which can range from a fine not exceeding £5000, or imprisonment for a maximum term of three months, or both.

Where the Department is made aware of a retailer who is failing to comply with the requirements of his/her registration or licence they will be investigated and where appropriate, I will consider taking action to revoke their registration or licence.

In preparation for Halloween, the Department issues letters to retailers advising them of their responsibilities under the Regulations. The Department also publishes information on the NI Direct website advising of the legal requirements for the purchase and use of fireworks along with information on the safe use and handling of fireworks. Members of the public are encouraged to report incidents of fireworks misuse and any suspected illegal selling of fireworks to the PSNI.

While enforcement measures are vital in helping to tackle the illegal and dangerous use of fireworks, it is also important that preventative and diversionary measures, delivered in partnership with local communities, are in place as part of the overall approach to addressing anti-social behaviour.

Ms Dillon asked the Minister of Justice how much funding has been allocated by her Department to the NI Courts and Tribunals Service each year since the devolution of policing and justice powers.

(AQW 10953/17-22)

Mrs Long: The final year end funding allocated by the Department of Justice to the NI Courts and Tribunals Service each year since the devolution of policing and justice powers is as follows:

Year	Net Resource DEL £m	Net Capital DEL £m
2010-11	54.4	6.9
2011-12	49.1	4.1
2012-13	53.6	2.3
2013-14	49.6	1.8
2014-15	47.4	2.0
2015-16	51.2	2.2
2016-17	51.0	2.2
2017-18	47.5	1.1
2018-19	49.5	3.7
2019-20	54.3	4.9

Mr Beattie asked the Minister of Justice how many grievance complaints have been submitted by Prison Officers, broken down by prison, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 11049/17-22)

Mrs Long: The NICS Grievance Procedure aims to promote good employee relations and deliver fair and equal treatment. Total grievances lodged in the last 3 years are as follows:

	2018	2019	2020
Hydebank	1	1	1
Maghaberry	5	7	10

	2018	2019	2020
Magilligan	9	3	4
PECCS	8	11	0
Prison Service College	0	0	1
Total	23	22	16
Total Staff in Post at November	1,247	1,282	1,309
% lodged grievances	1.8	1.7	1.2

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AWQ 10079/17-22, further to her conversations with the Chief Constable and given the wider impact on work within her remit, for her assessment of the number of reported incidences of anti-social behaviour (i) since the beginning of lockdown in March 2020; and (ii) for the same period in each of the past two years.

(AQW 11054/17-22)

Mrs Long: Based on the PSNI statistics for the period March to October of 2018, 2019 and 2020, published on the PSNI website (<https://www.psnipolice.uk/inside-psni/Statistics/anti-social-behaviour-statistics/>), there were 40,443 incidents of anti-social behaviour (ASB) recorded in 2018, and over the same period in 2019 there were 40,059 incidents recorded, representing a fall of 1%.

Reporting trends for ASB incidents up to March 2020 appear to follow a similar pattern to those of the previous 12 months. Since the introduction of the COVID-19 restrictions (on 23rd March this year), levels of ASB have remained high compared with the same period in the two previous years, with 54,448 incidents recorded between March and October 2020. This figure represents an increase when compared to the same period in 2018 and 2019 of 35% and 36% respectively.

The PSNI have noted that the introduction of COVID-19 lockdown measures led to a substantial increase in levels of ASB.

While I would not draw definitive conclusions from these statistics, they do reflect the direct impact which breaches of COVID restrictions have had on ASB statistics, and provide an indicator of the wider impacts which COVID may have had on general ASB incidents.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice (i) how many applications there have been under the provisions of the Policing and Crime Act 2017 for pardons for homosexual offences; and (ii) how many of these have been successful, in each year since the Act came into operation.

(AQW 11066/17-22)

Mrs Long: Applications to have convictions for abolished homosexual offences disregarded are made under the Protection of Freedoms Act 2012. Since the introduction of the scheme in June 2018, there have been three applications.

Two applications were made in 2018, neither of which met the eligibility criteria.

One application, made in 2020, is under consideration to determine eligibility.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the number of unregulated car washes in (a) Northern Ireland; and (b) Belfast; and (ii) what actions the police have taken against the owners of the establishments.

(AQW 11074/17-22)

Mrs Long: The Department of Justice does not hold information in relation to the number of unregulated car washes in Northern Ireland or Belfast.

My department has dealt with a number of questions from Executive colleagues raising concerns about the car wash industry and I have responded detailing the work that PSNI's Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Unit (MSHTU) does to determine whether trafficking and slavery is ongoing in this area.

The MSHTU conducts regular safeguarding visits to car wash businesses across Northern Ireland and has led in excess of 60 such operations in Northern Ireland since 2015, and has interviewed over 270 workers. The vast majority of these workers have stated that they were not working under duress and no evidence of human trafficking was uncovered.

Such operations have however raised concerns around poor and unsafe working conditions, the illegal use of electricity, water and chemicals, non-payment of rates and other non-trafficking concerns, which may include the under payment of the living wage, National Insurance number issues, contractual offences and potential counterfeit documents.

These are all issues that other agencies hold discrete legal powers to counter and it is paramount that relative departments and agencies investigate any concerns around such regulatory matters.

It is important to note that not all hand car washes violate labour, employment, health and safety and environmental regulations.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister of Justice (i) for an update on work within her Department to help with the prevention of loneliness; and (ii) whether her Department would be supportive of the development of a preventing loneliness strategy. (AQW 11114/17-22)

Mrs Long: The impact of Covid-19 and ongoing steps taken to reduce the risk of infection will have exacerbated the feeling of loneliness for many people who already feel isolated and vulnerable.

My Department undertakes a number of activities which, although primarily are to address our community safety mandate, also have an indirect impact on loneliness.

Some initiatives which may help with the prevention of loneliness include those progressed by Policing and Community Safety Partnerships (PCSPs) funded by my Department and the Northern Ireland Policing Board, which support local organisations and groups to provide a range of intergenerational support, services and initiatives. For example, the provision of Good Morning Schemes, staffed by volunteers, provides daily contact with mainly elderly local residents and signposts services that helps to address isolation, loneliness and fear of crime. PCSPs also provide support for approximately 778 accredited neighbourhood watch schemes across Northern Ireland, covering nearly 42,000 homes to support vulnerable neighbours. Involvement in these schemes may help to support those feeling lonely.

Other activities facilitate early intervention which can support vulnerable people, many of whom are affected by loneliness which can manifest in behaviours such as alcohol and drug abuse. Examples of these include Problem Solving Justice initiatives, such as Substance Misuse Courts and Support Hubs; supporting the multi-agency Scamwise Partnership which aims to prevent scammers who often prey on people who are lonely or socially isolated; supporting and helping to fund a 24 hr domestic abuse helpline for those affected to ease their sense of loneliness and supporting those in custody including through introducing virtual prison visits and provisions for a range of activities on site to help ease isolation at this time.

I would be supportive for the development of a preventing loneliness strategy, noting this and the provision of services to address this concern should be taken forward by the most relevant Department. I do not envisage any new initiatives being taken forward by my Department to specifically address this issue.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice what social distancing measures are in place when it comes to (i) jury selection; and (ii) the calling of potential jurors to the courthouse. (AQW 11143/17-22)

Mrs Long: To facilitate COVID-19 secure jury trials, significant work has been undertaken to make sure court buildings are kept safe, secure and clean and that social distancing occurs in line with the HSC Public Health Agency (PHA) guidance.

Steps taken include:

- limiting the number of people coming into the court building and the courtroom,
- regularly cleaning frequently touched surfaces (e.g. door handles) throughout the day,
- providing hand-sanitisers,
- making sure social distancing measures are followed in and out of the courtroom,
- putting up screens in the courtroom where these are required,
- ensuring there is enough space in jury deliberation rooms to maintain social distancing

Jurors are called at intervals and Coleraine County Hall, Marlborough House Craigavon and the Inn of Court Belfast have been sourced as support centres for juror identity checks and viewing the juror training video.

When a trial is due to begin the jurors are seated in a large jury assembly area or, if these are not available, in additional courtrooms until the jury is selected and sworn. Sworn juries use the jury assembly area or a second courtroom for deliberation.

Each venue has their own "housekeepers" who ensure that the courtrooms and jury deliberation rooms are cleaned at regular intervals throughout the day.

Those called for Jury Service are provided with guidance, in line with that provided by PHA, not to attend should they have COVID-19 symptoms or if they have been advised to self-isolate. The guidance includes a detailed information checklist on how to remain safe when attending court, including social distancing. Further information is available on the Department of Justice website at <https://www.justice-ni.gov.uk/articles/jury-panel-information>.

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice (i) how many non-molestation orders have been made under Article 20 of the Family Homes and Domestic Violence (Northern Ireland) Order 1998 each year, for the past ten years; (ii) how many applications for non-molestation orders there have been each year, for the past ten years; and (iii) how many applicants for non-molestation orders have been able to avail of the waiver of financial eligibility limits for civil legal aid under Article 10 of the Civil Legal Services (Financial) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2015, each year since it was introduced. (AQW 11253/17-22)

Mrs Long:

(i & ii) The information requested is set out in the table below:

Non-molestation and Occupation Orders & Applications

Year	(i) Orders Made¹	(ii) Applications Disposed²
2010	6,069	4,876
2011	6,518	5,248
2012	6,120	5,065
2103	5,499	4,809
2014	5,568	4,776
2015	5,089	4,224
2016	5,014	4,240
2017	4,607	4,436
2018	4,238	3,889
2019	3,959	3,527

1 - Non-Molestation and Occupation Orders Made at Application level

2 - Non-molestation / Occupation applications disposed

Source: Integrated Court Operations System (ICOS)

Includes final and interim non-molestation and occupation orders made, and applications disposed under the Family Homes and Domestic violence (Northern Ireland) Order 1998

The information presented includes non-molestation orders granted under Article 20 and non-molestation and occupation orders under Article 23 of the Family Homes and Domestic Violence (Northern Ireland) Order 1998.

An occupation order may be used as a complementary order to the non-molestation order or as a stand-alone order. When it is granted alongside a non-molestation order it offers added protection to victims by preventing the alleged perpetrator from living in the family home and a breach of any such orders is deemed to be a criminal offence.

(iii) The information on the number of Domestic Violence Waiver granted for the financial years 2010-11 to 2018-19 is not readily available.

A new Legal Service Agency case management system was introduced on the 1 July 2019 and data is available from then onwards.

For the financial years 2010-11 to 2018-19 figures are available for the number of files which had been retained separately as they involve a contribution payable under the Domestic Violence waiver where part or all of the contribution was made from the applicants capital. The Legal Services Agency cannot readily identify the number of cases in which the Domestic Violence waiver was based on a contribution solely from income as these cases were not retained. As such for these years the number of cases is understated. For the financial years 2019-20 and 2020-21 (year to date) the figures reflect the totals number of Domestic Violence Waiver granted.

This information is set out in the table below.

Mr Chambers asked the Minister of Justice how many times she has attended meetings of the Committee for Justice since 11 January 2020, broken down by (i) committee meetings attended in person; and (ii) committee meetings attended remotely.
(AQW 11615/17-22)

Mrs Long: Since 11 January 2020, I have attended the Committee for Justice on five occasions: On four occasions I attended in person on the following dates - 27 February 2020, 30 April 2020, 3 November 2020 and 8 December 2020. On the other occasion on 12 November 2020 I attended remotely.

Department for the Economy

Ms Bradshaw asked the Minister for the Economy what specific assistance her Department has provided to people resident in Northern Ireland who have been made redundant as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, but have been unable to avail of training and assistance programmes equivalent to the JobCentre Plus Rapid Response Service in England.
(AQW 6688/17-22)

Mrs Dodds (The Minister for the Economy): My Department is committed to supporting people who have been made redundant and has already delivered a very successful virtual redundancy clinic for Thompson Aero Seating Ltd as well as an on-site redundancy clinic for Collins Aerospace. On-line resources have also been shared with both Easyjet Airline Company Ltd and Jet2.com for their impacted employees.

In addition to Redundancy Services my Department continues to provide Recruitment Services, including JobCentre Online and recruitment events which people facing redundancy can avail of as well as a range of other supports and services including a scheme called the Adviser Discretion Fund. The objective of the Adviser Discretion Fund is to provide resources of up to £300 to eligible persons for the purchase of goods or services in order to remove a barrier to employment. The scheme may also be used as a measure to support those who are required to complete a short training course in order to progress into work. I can confirm that the scheme has recently provided assistance to people who have unfortunately been made redundant to retrain for work in other sectors as well as assisting with costs associated with courses and medicals required to allow people to compete for future employment opportunities in their respective profession.

In addition, the Department for Communities and Department for Economy have launched a new Jobs & Skills campaign page on NI Direct as part of the response to COVID-19. The Departments have been working collaboratively on developing employability, skills and training responses to address the economic and labour market impact on people caused by the pandemic and this new page brings together all relevant information and services in a single, easy to navigate location. The new Jobs & Skills campaign page can be found at www.nidirect.gov.uk/campaigns/jobs-and-skills.

As part of my Department's response to the Covid-19 pandemic and subsequent recession, a review of the Adviser Discretion Fund is underway and will include giving consideration to the current funding limits and flexibilities in terms of support which can be provided.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy what financial support will be provided to (i) businesses; and (ii) staff in the hospitality sector forced to close as a result of new restrictions made by the Executive to slow the spread of COVID-19.
(AQW 8776/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy what support will be put in place to support people who do not own a business, like a hairdresser who rents a chair in a salon, but are forced to close due to the latest COVID-19 restrictions
(AQW 8957/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for the Economy what support packages are available for the self-employed who are impacted by a further four week closure.
(AQW 8961/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Beattie asked the Minister for the Economy whether soft play areas will have access to grants and the Jobs Support Scheme extension, even though they are not on the list of businesses closed by COVID-19 restrictions.

(AQW 9078/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive agreed restrictions that came into effect on 16 October 2020, for an initial period of four weeks, in order to reduce the concerning rise in the transmission of COVID-19. The Department of Finance (DoF) introduced the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) to support those businesses in commercial premises severely restricted in use or forced to close directly by the Health Protection Regulations.

As soft play areas were not required to close under the Regulations from 16 October 2020 they may not qualify for support through LRSS from this date. However, if due to their circumstance businesses feel they meet the eligibility criteria, they should contact DoF for further information.

The Minister of Finance has announced an extension to LRSS for the restrictions in place from 27 November to 11 December 2020 to include non-essential retail, leisure, and entertainment businesses that are forced to close. It is anticipated that soft play areas would fall into this category. I would therefore encourage businesses in these sectors and that operate from commercial premises to apply to this scheme.

In order to ensure that support was provided to as many businesses as possible affected by the restrictions, I launched the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS) to support businesses that are required to close or cease trading under the Health Protection Regulations but are not eligible for LRSS. This scheme also supports businesses which are not named in the Regulations but are in the direct supply chain of a named business, or are reliant upon a named business being open and fully operational as they would not meet the eligibility criteria for these schemes.

I would encourage each business to review the guidance and eligibility criteria for the scheme, and to use the online eligibility checker to determine eligibility. Each application will be assessed on a case by case basis and should a soft play area meet the criteria, they may qualify for support.

All businesses are eligible to apply for a proportion of salary costs through the Coronavirus Job Retention Scheme. The UK Government has announced an extension to the scheme up to March 2021 with employees receiving 80% of their salary for hours not worked, up to a maximum of £2,500. Under the extended scheme, the cost for employers of retaining workers will be reduced compared to October.

I will continue to examine and pursue further means to support the local economy and business sectors in whatever way possible. In considering further interventions, including additional funding or packages of financial support, it will be for the Executive collectively, to determine how this will be allocated to best support economic recovery moving forward.

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy whether she intends to make any financial support available to driving instructors who have been forced to cease working due to COVID-19.

(AQW 9085/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for the Economy what support her Department will provide to those impacted by COVID-19 restrictions who are not eligible to avail of the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.

(AQW 9096/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will bring forward a grant support scheme to assist driving instructors affected by the latest COVID-19 regulations.

(AQW 9118/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy what support she will provide the self-employed who have had to close their businesses due to the latest COVID-19 restrictions.

(AQW 9130/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mrs Barton asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will reconsider her decision not to provide the Small Business Support Grant and the Retail, Hospitality, Tourism and Leisure Grant to premises where businesses operate multiple properties.

(AQW 9159/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Both the £10,000 Small Business Support Grant scheme and the £25,000 Retail, Hospitality, Tourism and Leisure Grant scheme closed for applications on 20 May 2020 and formally closed on 20 October 2020 for appeals.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will bring forward a support package to assist (i) sole-traders; and (ii) businesses operating from domestic premises.

(AQW 9223/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will bring forward financial support for sole traders, self employed and mobile businesses whose business has been forced to close or has been curtailed due to the current COVID-19 regulations.

(AQW 9228/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy what support her Department will provide for (i) sole traders; and (ii) businesses operating from domestic premises, such as hairdressers.

(AQW 9241/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 8471/17-22.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy (i) whether a report into governance in her Department with regards to energy has been commissioned; (ii) if so, when this was commissioned; and (iii) when it will be published.

(AQW 9452/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My department grant-funded academics in the University of Exeter to carry out a research think piece on 'Energy Governance for the NI energy transition'. The purpose of this work is to complement the existing evidence base in place and inform the new Energy Strategy.

We agreed to fund this particular think piece on 30 March 2020. For external grant-funded research think pieces such as this, we anticipate that the independent academics will seek to publish these reports through their own routes. In doing so, they can contribute to the evidence base alongside all other evidence and data being considered.

Ms Anderson asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will introduce financial assistance for those small, independent retail businesses in Derry who have had their trade virtually wiped out since additional restrictions came into force.

(AQW 9551/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) seeks to support those businesses in commercial premises severely restricted in use or now forced to close directly by the new Regulations.

I recognise that not all businesses who have been directly affected by the restrictions are able to access support through this scheme. I have therefore introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to provide support to restricted businesses which do not qualify for support through LRSS and businesses in the supply chain of restricted businesses.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy when applications for Part B of the COVID-19 Restrictions Business Support Scheme will open.

(AQW 9574/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme scheme opened for applications on 19 November 2020.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy what action her Department is taking to ensure that the application process for the COVID-19 Restrictions Business Support Scheme is simplified, so not to exclude businesses that would otherwise qualify for support.

(AQW 9575/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme has been developed to support as many viable business as possible that have been impacted by the Executive's decision to impose the additional restrictions that initially came into effect on 16 October 2020 and are not eligible for support under the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.

I fully understand the need to make the application process as accessible as possible to ensure it reaches all eligible businesses and individuals. I can assure you that the Department has taken on board all initial feedback, will continue to monitor future feedback and will review the application process and its associated guidance, as appropriate, to ensure it is as streamlined and comprehensible as possible.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for the Economy what provision will be made for self employed people currently unable to avail of any other government income support schemes.

(AQW 9698/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Newly Self-Employed Support Scheme opened for applications on 3 December 2020 and will provide £10 million in financial support to newly self-employed individuals (sole traders and those in partnerships) whose business is adversely impacted by Covid and who have not been able to access support from the UK government's Self-Employed Income Support Scheme.

A one-off taxable grant of £3,500 will be provided. This will enable support to be provided to approximately 2,900 newly self-employed individuals.

Further eligibility details and an eligibility tracker are available at

<https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/newly-self-employed-support-scheme>

Additionally, the Executive has agreed a funding allocation of £20million to support sole limited company directors who have been impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic but were not eligible for the UK Government's Self Employed Income Support Scheme.

My Department continues to work on bringing forward further details of this scheme as a matter of a priority and these will be made available on the NI Business Info website in due course.#

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of whether the recommendation that applicants to the COVID-19 Restrictions Business Support Scheme provide a form completed by a registered accountant, will disadvantage small businesses unable to pay for this service.

(AQW 9908/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Applicants to the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme may supply a template completed by a registered accountant in order to independently verify the eligibility criteria. Although not mandatory, this may strengthen an application and quicken the verification process. However, it is only a recommendation and, where necessary, applicants will be contacted if additional information is required to confirm eligibility.

It is acknowledged that many businesses are facing hardship at present and may incur a cost to provide a completed template. However, this option allows the application process to be streamlined and for much needed payments to be made to businesses more quickly.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy whether the money reclaimed from ineligible businesses that received COVID funding or grants will be redistributed to businesses which were eligible for funding but which (i) mistakenly applied for the wrong grant; (ii) applied beyond the cut-off point; (iii) missed out on funding because they were not the named ratepayers on the properties their business operated from; or (iv) missed out on funding due to any other oversight of Land and Property Services.

(AQW 9934/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The £10,000 Small Business Support Grant scheme, £25,000 Retail, Tourism, Hospitality and Leisure grant scheme and the NI Microbusiness Hardship Fund have all closed to applications and appeals. As this is the case, any recovered payments cannot be redistributed within the schemes. Further allocation of funding for Covid business support measures is a matter for collective Executive agreement.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the actions her Department is taking to ensure businesses in the Derry City and Strabane District Council area receive their COVID-19 support grants.

(AQW 10005/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Invest NI aim to make payments as quickly as possible to successful applicants that have met the eligibility criteria for the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme and Newly Self Employed Support Scheme. I have asked officials in Invest NI and my Department to be as flexible and inclusive as possible in the administration of the scheme, to accelerate the processing of applications. I have been encouraged by the progress made to deliver support to eligible businesses to date. Whilst I appreciate the need to ensure funding is allocated in a timely manner, it is imperative that as custodians of public money, reasonable requirements are in place to ensure that funding is directed to those that need it most and to safeguard against fraud.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the number of applications received to the Social Enterprise Fund; (ii) the amount allocated to each recipient; and (iii) the number of successful and unsuccessful applications.

(AQW 10069/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Covid Social Enterprise Fund opened for applications on 28th September 2020 and closed four weeks later on 23rd October. 394 applications were received and Community Finance Ireland (CFI) who are administering the fund completed a tailored assessment of each application against the published eligibility criteria.

The fund originally had a budget of £7m which was oversubscribed. In recognition of the valuable role Social Enterprises play in our community, I bid to the Executive for a further £2.25m to allow all eligible applicants who were assessed as being in need to receive an award and I am delighted this has now been approved. This will result in an average award of just over £29k with 313 successful applications and 81 unsuccessful.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for the Economy what plans are in place to ensure that additional resources allocated to economic recovery.

(AQW 10090/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: In June of this year I published 'Rebuilding a Stronger Economy', a framework to build a more competitive, inclusive and greener economy that delivers higher paying jobs, a highly skilled workforce and a more regionally balanced economy. Guided by the "Rebuilding" framework, and having secured over £92 million in additional funding for this financial year through the various financial exercises, my Department has identified and in many cases is now delivering a range of schemes to assist individuals, businesses and the economy adapt to and recover from the combined challenges of Covid-19 and EU Exit. These schemes will provide assistance across the economy in areas such as Innovation; Apprenticeships & Skills; Supply Chain / Product Resilience and Diversification; Access to Finance for early stage businesses; and Business and Financial Planning. Looking forward, as part of the Spending Review process, I will continue to work with the Minister for Finance and his officials to secure the additional resources necessary to assist economic recovery. If we are serious about rebuilding our economy, we need to invest in the key drivers of economic growth by enhancing our skills base, embedding innovation in our economy and growing our external sales. I remain committed to working with Executive colleagues to identify and deliver the support necessary to assist our businesses and citizens through this most difficult time

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy why most businesses that meet the criteria under Part A of the COVID-19 Restrictions Business Support Scheme have not yet received their grants.

(AQW 10129/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: It is not accurate to say that most businesses who meet the criteria of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme have not received payment. Eligibility can only be determined after applications are assessed and verified. To date, well over half of all applications have either received payment or been rejected.

As of 2 December 2020, 3,441 applications have been received to Part A of the scheme. A total of 1,978 payments have been issued valuing over £7.2 million of support. 192 applications have been rejected.

Every effort has been made by my Department and Invest NI to ensure that applications are assessed and payments issued as soon as possible.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy whether she intends to bring forward a financial support scheme for businesses with turnover negatively impacted by heightened COVID-19 restrictions, but not required to close, or in the direct supply chain of a business required to close.

(AQW 10205/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme (LRSS) seeks to support those businesses in commercial premises severely restricted in use or now forced to close directly by the new Regulations. This scheme will support the majority of businesses directly affected by the restrictions.

I recognise that not all businesses which have been affected by the restrictions are able to access support through this scheme. I have therefore introduced the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme to support businesses named in the Regulations but not supported by LRSS and for businesses but which supplies goods or services to such a business, or is reliant upon such a business being open and fully operational in order to trade.

Further to this support for business affected by the restrictions, my Department has introduced the Newly Self-Employed Support Scheme who may not have been able to access support to date. Similarly a scheme to support limited company directors is currently under development.

To provide additional support to our hospitality industry, schemes are currently being developed for wet pubs, bed and breakfasts and for large tourism and hospitality businesses.

The Department has also been provided with a financial allocation for a Northern Ireland wide High Street Stimulus scheme which will inject £95m into our local economy.

Any decisions on further support measures for this sector, and the wider economy, will be agreed collectively by the Executive.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on her plans to support the newly self-employed who have not received any support from the Executive since the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic.

(AQW 10391/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I have introduced the Newly-Self Employed Support Scheme to provide support newly self-employed individuals who have been adversely impacted by COVID-19.

The scheme opened for applications on 3 December 2020. Details are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/newly-self-employed-support-scheme>.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will give consideration to enhanced support for hotels and accommodation providers either (i) required to close due to COVID-19 public health restrictions; and (ii) suffering a downturn in trade generally as a result of COVID-19 pandemic, taking into account bed places as opposed to merely Non-Domestic Rateable Value.

(AQW 10460/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I have asked my officials to develop support schemes for bed and breakfasts and for large tourism and hospitality businesses. Further details of the schemes will be announced in due course.

These schemes will supplement support measures already available. Details of support measures are available at <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/campaign/coronavirus-updates-support-your-business>

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment as to whether every effort has been made to simplify the application process for Part A and Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme.

(AQW 10461/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW 9575/17-22.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy to provide an estimated timeframe from application to the payment of grants, under Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme.

(AQW 10588/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: All applications to Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme will be assessed and verified as soon as possible. Part B opened for applications on 19 November 2020. The first payments were issued on 8 December 2020.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) why there were significant differences between the terms of Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme as advised in the distributed initial press statement and the revised press statement released later on the same afternoon of 18 November 2020; (ii) whether the Minister changed the terms of the support scheme at the last moment; and (iii) if so, the reasons for that decision.

(AQW 10645/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The initial press statement published on 18 November regarding Part B of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme included the value of payments for the initial four week period of restrictions from 16 October 2020.

A revised press statement was released on the same day which included the value of payments that reflected the additional two week period of restrictions announced by the Executive on 12 November 2020.

The updated statement reflected the decision to extend support to the additional period of restrictions in keeping with Part A of the scheme and the Department of Finance's Localised Restrictions Support Scheme.

Ms S Bradley asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) what financial support is planned for self-employed individuals who have lost income due to COVID-19; (ii) how any such payments will be made; (iii) when payments will be made; and (iv) whether payments will be paid retrospectively to cover the prolonged period of having no income.

(AQW 10681/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive has agreed a funding allocation of £10million to support the newly self-employed. The Newly Self-Employed Support Scheme (NSESS) opened at 6pm 3 December 2020 and will provide financial support to newly self-employed individuals (sole traders and those in partnerships) whose business is adversely impacted by Covid and who have not been able to access support from the UK government's Self-Employed Income Support Scheme.

The NSESS will provide a one-off taxable grant of £3,500 enabling support for approximately 2,900 newly self-employed individuals. Invest Northern Ireland will deliver the scheme on behalf of the Department for the Economy and the scheme will close to applications at 6pm on 7 January 2021.

Applications will be assessed and payments made to eligible businesses as quickly as possible.

Details of the eligibility criteria along with an eligibility checker can be found here:

Newly Self-Employed Support Scheme (nibusinessinfo.co.uk)

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy (i) what communication she has had with universities in Great Britain regarding the repatriation this Christmas of Northern Irish students studying in Great Britain; and (ii) to detail her plans for facilitating this, including (a) timescale, windows; (b) testing requirements; and (c) alternative travel arrangements should bus, rail, air and boat services be unavailable due to overbooking.

(AQW 10758/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has no responsibility for the return of students to Northern Ireland nor for their transport arrangements and therefore there have been no discussions with any universities in Great Britain on this subject. Any such advice and guidance must therefore be provided by the relevant public health authorities, and I have made this case to both the Minister of Health as well as my Executive colleagues.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy what plans he has in place to financially support businesses as they emerge from the current restrictions and as we seek to rebuild the economy.

(AQW 10841/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The lead Department for business support is the Department for the Economy. My Department's main role is to allocate available resources to Departments on the basis of bids received. Huge effort has gone into protecting our local businesses and workers throughout the pandemic. On 23 November 2020 I announced further funding allocations of over £338 million across Departments so that the Executive could continue to support those impacted by COVID-19 (link). This is on top of the £2.3 billion the Executive has already provided for a variety of COVID-19 rating measures and support schemes, as well as the wage support and loan schemes put in place by the Treasury.

My Department does have responsibility for rates policy and I have set aside £150 million for consideration of longer term rates support. This is a rapidly evolving situation and Executive colleagues and I will continue to monitor and respond to the needs of those sectors, businesses and groups we have responsibility for as we emerge from restrictions and look to our recovery.

Mr McNulty asked the Minister for the Economy (i) to provide details of how she anticipates the £20 million assistance package for Company Directors will operate; (ii) when she anticipates the details of the programme to be made public; (iii) who will administer the scheme; and (iv) when she expects the scheme to open.

(AQW 10842/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive has agreed a funding allocation of £20million to support sole limited company directors who have been impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic but were not eligible for the UK Government's Self Employed Income Support Scheme. However, new schemes such as this one take time to develop and they need to undergo the necessary preparation and scrutiny to ensure that the process will run as smoothly as possible when it does go live, and also that the support is appropriately targeted to those for whom it is intended. My Department continues to work on bringing forward further details of the scheme as a matter of a priority and these will be made available on the NI Business Info website in due course.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department will ensure directors of small family-owned companies are not excluded from applying for the forthcoming Company Directors Support Scheme.

(AQW 11025/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive has agreed a funding allocation of £20million to support sole limited company directors who have been impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic but were not eligible for the UK Government's Self Employed Income Support Scheme (SEISS).

My Department continues to work on bringing forward further details of this scheme as a matter of a priority and these will be made available on the NI Business Info website in due course.

I understand this is a difficult time for many businesses, including small family –owned companies, and my Executive Colleagues and I remain committed to ensure the maximum number of businesses are eligible for support within the funding envelope available.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) how many applications for the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme Parts A and B her Department has received from the Foyle constituency; (ii) how many have been processed successfully; (iii) how many have been rejected; (iv) a breakdown of the reasons for rejections; and (v) what action is being taken to speed-up payment to businesses that meet the criteria for payment.

(AQW 11167/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: (i) to (iii) Scheme Parliamentary constituency Applications received Payments issued Applications rejected CRBSS Part A Foyle 220 175 11 CRBSS Part B Foyle 31 9 0 (iv) There are three broad reasons why CRBSS applications have tended to be rejected, including those businesses resident within the Foyle constituency. They are as follows:

1. The business was eligible for support under the Local Restrictions Support Scheme,
2. Insufficient evidence provided to demonstrate the business was required to close or cease trading as a result of the Health Protection Regulations,
3. Income lost as a result of the business having to close or cease trading was not the main source of income and did not account for more than 50% of total income. (v) Invest NI aim to make payments as quickly as possible to successful applicants that have met the eligibility criteria. Any delays in the process have not been caused by payment delays, but rather delays in the processing of applications, due to incomplete or missing information. I have asked officials in Invest NI and my Department to be as flexible and inclusive as possible in the administration of the scheme, to accelerate the processing of applications. I have been encouraged by the progress made to deliver support to eligible businesses to date. Whilst I appreciate the need to ensure funding is allocated in a timely manner, it is imperative that as custodians of public money, reasonable requirements are in place to ensure that funding is directed to those that need it most and to safeguard against fraud.

Ms Flynn asked the Minister for the Economy what financial support will be made available to those who have been self-employed and running their own business for less than three years.

(AQW 11173/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive has agreed a funding allocation of £10million to support the newly self-employed. The Newly Self-Employed Support Scheme (NSESS) opened at 6pm 3 December 2020 and will provide financial support to newly self-employed individuals (sole traders and those in partnerships) whose business is adversely impacted by Covid and who have not been able to access support from the UK government's Self-Employed Income Support Scheme.

The NSESS will provide a one-off taxable grant of £3,500 enabling support for approximately 2,900 newly self-employed individuals.

Invest Northern Ireland will deliver the scheme on behalf of the Department for the Economy and the scheme will close to applications at 6pm on 7 January 2021.

Applications will be assessed and payments made to eligible businesses as quickly as possible.

Details of the eligibility criteria along with an eligibility checker can be found here:

Newly Self-Employed Support Scheme (nibusinessinfo.co.uk)

Mr McGrath asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the date the Business, Planning & Financial Support programme for tourism businesses opened for applications; (ii) the date the first payment was made; (iii) how many applications were received from the South Down constituency up to and including Friday 27 November; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) the total amount paid.

(AQW 11224/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The Tourism NI Covid Business and Financial Planning Support Programme 2020-2021, was launched on 6th October 2020 and opened for applications from tourism businesses on 7th October 2020. Full details of the scheme including nature of support and eligibility are published on Tourism NI's dedicated industry website: <https://covid19.tourismni.com/support-centre/business-support-advice/financial-support/covid-tourism-recovery-planning-support-programme/>
- (ii) The programme is designed to work directly with eligible tourism providers to develop business and financial plans to help their businesses to recover and compete as we emerge from the impact of the current pandemic. The programme does not provide direct financial payments to businesses, but is delivered as part of a managed service framework, which Tourism NI has in place to provide support and mentoring to the tourism industry. Applicants to the programme will be able to draw down support from experts on the framework to support them with the development of their business and financial plans.
- (iii) Two applications have been received from the South Down constituency.
- (iv) As detailed in the answer to point (ii), no payments will be made directly to businesses through this programme.
- (v) No direct payments to businesses will be made from this programme. Applications for business and financial planning support are currently being assessed and as such, the individual cost of support to individual businesses has not yet been determined. However, the programme allows for support to individual businesses up to a maximum cost of £8k per business.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for the Economy what work has been conducted into the significant difference in price of Liquefied Petroleum Gas in Northern Ireland compared to elsewhere in the United Kingdom.

(AQW 11276/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has contacted Liquefied Petroleum Gas (LPG) suppliers in Great Britain (GB) and Northern Ireland (NI), which has confirmed that average tariffs for LPG provided via a bulk tank to domestic consumers in NI remain higher than in GB.

The LPG market in NI is much smaller than the market in GB, and there are transportation and storage costs which may contribute to the price differential. However, the LPG market in NI is not regulated in the same manner as the natural gas sector, and there are no current plans for legislation to provide for LPG regulation.

Mr Givan asked the Minister for the Economy what cost controls and regulations are in place for Liquefied Petroleum Gas in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 11277/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Liquefied Petroleum Gas (LPG) market in Northern Ireland is not subject to regulation and cost controls in the same manner as the natural gas market which is regulated by the Utility Regulator. Existing energy legislation does not include provision for regulation of LPG, and there are no current plans to introduce a regulatory regime for the LPG market in Northern Ireland.

However, the Competition and Markets Authority (CMA), as an independent competition authority, has a role in monitoring the LPG market in the UK.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 10296/17-22, to detail the difference in the size of maintenance loans available to students from Northern Ireland studying in Great Britain compared to students from Great Britain studying in Great Britain.

(AQW 11307/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The following table illustrates the maximum Maintenance Loan amount available to students living away from home and living in London across the four UK jurisdictions. Domicile Living Away from Home Living in London Northern Ireland £4,840 £6,780 England £9,203 £12,010 Wales £8,810 £11,260 Scotland £5,750 £5,750 The differences in maintenance loan amounts available are a direct result of the devolved nature of higher education across the UK which allows the UK regions to set their own levels of student support in response to the needs of their students, their political priorities and the budget available to them.

Mr Allen asked the Minister for the Economy to detail (i) the application process; (ii) the eligibility criteria for the £20 million fund announced to support company directors; and (iii) when the fund will be open for applications.

(AQW 11335/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: The Executive has agreed a funding allocation of £20million to support sole limited company directors who have been impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic but were not eligible for the UK Government's Self Employed Income Support Scheme.

However, new schemes such as this one take time to develop and they need to undergo the necessary preparation and scrutiny to ensure that the process will run as smoothly as possible when it does go live, and also that the support is appropriately targeted to those for whom it is intended.

My Department continues to work on bringing forward further details of the scheme as a matter of a priority and these will be made available on the NI Business Info website in due course.

Mr Newton asked the Minister for the Economy what support is available to small essential businesses which remain open to provide a service to a small number of customers but whose main customer base has gone into lockdown.

(AQW 11336/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 18th November, I launched Part B of Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme (CRBSS). This is aimed at businesses that supply goods and services to businesses defined in the Health Protection (Coronavirus, Restrictions) (No.2) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2020. Therefore, if the turnover of a business has been directly impacted by the closure of businesses named in these Health Regulations, they may be eligible to apply for Part B of the CRBSS. Further details on this specific aspects of the scheme can be found on the link below: <https://www.nibusinessinfo.co.uk/content/covid-restrictions-business-supportscheme-part-b> Part B of the CRBSS opened for applications on Thursday 19th November. I have now extended the closing date for both parts of the scheme until 16th December 2020. I appreciate that many businesses have seen demand for their services or products decrease due to the necessary restrictions that have been put in place. My focus is firmly on helping local businesses mitigate the impact of these restrictions and be positioned to resume trading and contribute to the economic recovery. This is a live and fluid situation and I would encourage everyone to continue to monitor the NI Business Info website and to listen for any future announcements through the various media outlets.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy (i) on what date the Covid Restrictions Business Support Part A and Part B schemes opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment under each part of the scheme was made; (iii) how many applications were received for each part of the scheme from the Foyle constituency up to Friday 27 November; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11359/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) Part A of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme opened for applications on 28 October 2020. Part B opened on 19 November 2020.
- (ii) First payments relating to Part A of the scheme were issued on 6 November 2020. First payments of Part B were issued on 8 December 2020.

See below table for information in response to parts (iii) to (v). Information correct as of 8 December 2020.

Scheme	Parliamentary constituency	Applications received	Payments issued	Value of payments
CRBSS Part A	Foyle	220	175	£749,400
CRBSS Part B	Foyle	31	9	£16,200

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 9650/17-22, given that her officials were not involved in drafting Transform to Deliver and proposals to reform the industrial relations framework and lecturer contract, why her Department has refused to release information to the University and College Union under a Freedom of Information Act request relating to her Department's role in the development of government policy with regard to the industrial relations framework and the lecturer contract.

(AQW 11362/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: As previously stated in my response to AQW 9650/17-22, the role of Departmental officials in this area is limited to the carrying out of its sponsorship responsibilities for Further Education (FE) colleges including the assessment of any Business Cases submitted by colleges for ministerial approval. This role can include the consideration of information which would have financial and policy implications if made available publicly.

My Department considers any requests received under the Freedom of Information Act in line with that legislation and any applicant who is dissatisfied with the outcome is free to pursue the statutory route of appeal as advised in the Department's response.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy whether the further education industrial relations framework is solely a matter for bilateral agreement between the college employers and the trade unions and that her Department has no role in this.

(AQW 11363/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: As set out in my response to AQW 9650/17-22, Further Education (FE) colleges are responsible for setting the terms and conditions of their staff including the development of any proposals to reform these. As such, discussions on staff pay, terms and conditions are a matter for negotiation and agreement between the Lecturers Negotiating Committee of the College Employers Forum (CEF), which represents the six FE colleges, and Trade Union Side.

If an agreement is reached as a result of those negotiation, the CEF will then develop and submit a business case to seek approval from the Department for the Economy as sponsor department for any additional resources required.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy to detail the planned roll-out of Project Stratum.

(AQW 11402/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Project Stratum will deliver gigabit-capable broadband infrastructure to more than 76,000 primarily rural premises across Northern Ireland. Of these, 9,591 are in the West Tyrone Constituency.

A Portal has been developed by Fibrus Networks to provide key information throughout the development phase of the project, which is being accelerated across a period of some 40 months. This can be accessed at www.hyperfastni.com and will enable citizens and businesses to confirm if/when their premises are included for upgrade. The website will be updated and expanded in the weeks ahead.

Mr McCrossan asked the Minister for the Economy when work on Project Stratum will commence in West Tyrone.

(AQW 11403/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Project Stratum will deliver gigabit-capable broadband infrastructure to more than 76,000 primarily rural premises across Northern Ireland. Of these, 9,591 are in the West Tyrone Constituency.

A Portal has been developed by Fibrus Networks to provide key information throughout the development phase of the project, which is being accelerated across a period of some 40 months. The website will be updated and expanded in the weeks ahead.

Mr Muir asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on the Oxygen and Hydrogen Demonstrator Project.[R]

(AQW 11450/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: There are two hydrogen and oxygen demonstrations projects being taken forward by NI Water, and I am delighted to have been able to support one of these projects to help stimulate the development of a hydrogen economy.

A small scale trial of new electrolyser technology is currently underway at the Kinnegar waste water site for NI Water. This initial trial will be followed up by a much larger commercial scale electrolyser project in early 2021, which I have provided funding for.

This commercial scale electrolyser will not only produce green hydrogen, but also increase efficiency and capability of the adjacent waste water treatment process for NI Water.

Beyond this, the installation will provide key skills and experience to all involved to carry forward to future projects. It will also provide a hands on training opportunity to support the growth of advanced engineering apprenticeships and third-level education.

Ms Kimmins asked the Minister for the Economy whether her Department has made any grant support available for those who are at risk or have lost jobs as a result of the pandemic to assist them with retraining and upskilling to access new job opportunities.

(AQW 11455/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I am committed to doing all that I can to support individuals and companies to develop the skills base across Northern Ireland, particularly those most adversely affected by COVID-19. My Department has moved quickly in its skills-response to the pandemic and introduced new initiatives to complement the existing programmes.

I have allocated funding to support the provision of free, flexible, training, aimed at supporting up to 5,000 individuals who have been directly impacted by the pandemic to improve their skills in economically relevant areas, and thus employment opportunities. Courses are available in all of the Further Education colleges and in Queen's University, Ulster University and the Open University. Some are currently recruiting, with the rest to go live between now and February 2021 and I would encourage anyone, of any age, whose employment has been hit by the pandemic to explore the opportunities open to them.

20 of these places are for a pilot scheme to support women returners undertake a training course in ICT, with a guaranteed interview with some of Northern Ireland's most high profile employers in the digital sector. A further 200 opportunities are to provide graduate placement opportunities for those recently leaving university, blending training in Leadership and Management, and Digital, with an internship at a local employer.

With a longer-term view on future skills my Department has funded an online PgCert in Software Development for 150 places, delivered by Queen's University, which was open to people whose careers were impacted by the pandemic. While these skills will be essential to longer term economic growth, they are currently in demand by our employers. In addition the Skills Focus programme, delivered by the six Further Education Colleges, is now offering fully funded upskilling for employees, including those who are furloughed. I have removed the 25% cost to businesses (SMEs with fewer than 250 employees), until 31 March 2021.

The Assured Skills and Bridge to Employment programmes, continue to offer pre-employment training opportunities in the skills areas needed by companies recruiting. Since April, 203 people have been upskilled through Assured Skills Academies and 192 of those have gained employment in areas such as cyber security, financial services and data analytics.

My Department is also working on the development of a new Skills Strategy for Northern Ireland which is due for consultation and publication in 2021. The overarching focus of the Strategy is on developing a skills system which drives economic prosperity and tackles social inequality.

I have also been mindful of the need to protect those on apprenticeships who have been affected by the Covid-19 crisis. As part of that response my Department has developed an Apprenticeship Recovery Package which includes financial incentives for employers to return and retain apprentices who have been furloughed and to recruit new apprentices or those previously made redundant. It seeks to minimise apprenticeship job losses, maintain and grow the supply of apprenticeship opportunities and support apprentices who have been displaced and lost their apprenticeship.

The Return, Retain, Result incentive provides up to £3,700 per apprentice to employers, through 3 incentive payments:

- Return - £500 per returned furloughed apprentice payable for the first full month of paid employment from 1 November 2020
- Retain – a maximum £2,000 comprising £500 per month for up to four months per retained apprentice after the “return” month; and
- Result - £1,200 for successful full framework achievement of a returned furloughed apprentice.

The Recruitment incentive offers employers up to £3,000 for each new apprenticeship opportunity, including the recruitment of apprentices who have been made redundant, created between 1 April 2020 and 31 March 2021. This incentive will apply to all new apprenticeship opportunities created in this period.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 10258/17-22, whether the Tamboran Resources (UK) Limited proposed revised work programme rules out high volume hydraulic fracturing for a limited period, or permanently.
(AQW 11458/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) Tamboran Resources (UK) Limited has indicated that the purpose of the proposed revised Work Programme is to remove the need to use high volume hydraulic fracturing from the Work Programme. This Work Programme, or Term One of a Petroleum Licence, covers a period of five years.
- (ii) After Term One, a Licensee would have to inform the Department in writing whether they wish to proceed to the Second Term or relinquish the Licence, in accordance with the legislation.
If the Licensee wishes to proceed to the Second Term, they must -
 - a Prepare and submit an outline Work Programme for the Second Term.
 - b Produce a report summarising the results of the Work Programme for the Initial Term.
- (iii) This new Work Programme for Term Two would have to be approved by the Department.

Ms McLaughlin asked the Minister for the Economy, pursuant to AQW 10256/17-22, (i) whether she has shared the legal advice she has received with any other members of the Executive; (ii) whether she has shared the legal advice she has received with all other members of the Executive; and (iii) if she has not shared it with all members of the Executive, whether she will now do so.

(AQW 11459/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) No;
- (ii) No; and
- (iii) As I indicated in the Assembly debate on 13 October, a review is underway into petroleum licensing and that policy review process needs to take its course. Decisions on future petroleum policy and the award or otherwise of petroleum licences will be matters for decision by the Executive. At the appropriate time, when referring those issues to the Executive, I will set out the legal basis underpinning any recommendations.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for the Economy for an update on preparations for the Northern Ireland centenary celebrations.
(AQW 11468/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Next year is a significant historical milestone for Northern Ireland which we will celebrate wholeheartedly.

The Northern Ireland Office will shortly publish their programme of events for 2021 and our economy will be at the forefront of this programme. These events will also celebrate our history and our wider role in the United Kingdom as well as promoting Northern Ireland globally as a dynamic and forward looking place in which to invest and grow.

My officials continue to develop a range of events in conjunction with Tourism NI and Invest NI to celebrate the centenary of Northern Ireland and to promote Northern Ireland both locally and internationally.

The Northern Ireland Centenary Forum hosted by the Northern Ireland Office continues to meet regularly and is attended by Officials from the Department of the Economy who assist in the development of the economic elements of the programme.

The anniversary of the creation of Northern Ireland represents a timely opportunity to promote Northern Ireland on a global stage as a place to invest.

A key element of our economic recovery will be the creation of jobs through inward investment, consequently my officials are currently working to develop proposals for a major inward investment conference and showcase event to be held in October of next year.

The Anniversary of Northern Ireland will be a year of celebration in which we will exhaust every avenue to build for our future.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for the Economy whether businesses that trade with the rest of the United Kingdom have to register with the Trader Support Service in order to move their goods.

(AQW 11533/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Businesses do not have to register with the Trader Support Service (TSS). I am however encouraging businesses to register and avail of the free support and training that is being made available. Guidance from the UK Government provides detail. <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/trading-and-moving-goods-in-and-out-of-northern-ireland-from-1-january-2021>

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for the Economy (i) on what date the Business, Planning and Financial Support programme for tourism businesses opened for applications; (ii) on what date the first payment was made; (iii) how many applications were received from the South Belfast constituency up to and including Friday 27 November; (iv) how many payments were made by this date; and (v) what is the total amount paid.

(AQW 11608/17-22)

Mrs Dodds:

- (i) The Tourism NI Covid Business and Financial Planning Support Programme 2020-2021, was launched on 6th October 2020 and opened for applications from tourism businesses on 7th October 2020. Full details of the scheme including nature of support and eligibility are published on Tourism NI's dedicated industry website: <https://covid19.tourismni.com/support-centre/business-support-advice/financial-support/covid-tourism-recovery-planning-support-programme/>
- (ii) The programme is designed to work directly with eligible tourism providers to develop business and financial plans to help their businesses to recover and compete as we emerge from the impact of the current pandemic. The programme does not provide direct financial payments to businesses, but is delivered as part of a managed service framework which Tourism NI has in place to provide support and mentoring to the tourism industry. Applicants to the programme will be able to draw down support from experts on the framework to support them with the development of their business and financial plans.
- (iii) 4 applications have been received from the South Belfast constituency.
- (iv) As detailed in the answer to point (ii), no payments will be made directly to businesses through this programme.

- (v) No direct payments to businesses will be made from this programme. Applications for business and financial planning support are currently being assessed and as such, the individual cost of support to individual businesses has not yet been determined. However, the programme allows for support to individual businesses up to a maximum cost of £8k per business.

Mr Stewart asked the Minister for the Economy to outline the powers her Department possesses to reclaim or place conditions on grants issued to companies.

(AQO 1296/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department has sought legal advice from Senior Counsel in order to understand what powers it has to recover grant payments that were issued in error. Counsel has confirmed my Department can seek repayment of monies which have been paid in error if it can demonstrate that a recipient did not meet the specific criteria for the grant scheme which they received funding from. My Department is currently focusing on post payment validation activities associated with assurance and recovery in relation to the £10,000 and £25,000 Business Support Schemes and the NI Micro-business Hardship Scheme. This work includes the development of a formal process for dealing with payments that have been wrongfully paid, ensuring erroneous payments are recovered appropriately.

Miss Woods asked the Minister for the Economy how many businesses, that have applied for the various schemes administered by her Department, are yet to received any funding.

(AQO 1292/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I would like to start by clarifying the support schemes being delivered by my Department. The Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme is the responsibility of my Department. It supports those businesses negatively impacted by the restrictions which are not covered by the Localised Restrictions Support Scheme. The Localised Restrictions Support Scheme is administered by the Department of Finance. Part A of the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme has provided over £9.3 million of support to local businesses. To date, 3,536 applications have been received, with a total of 1,978 payments having been issued. Over 450 applications have been received under Part B of the scheme. Payments under this part of the scheme will be issued as soon as possible. The processing of applications is largely a manual system and has required contacting a many applicants to seek additional information to enable their applications to be verified and recommended for payment. The remaining applications to both parts of the schemes will be assessed and verified as soon as possible. This scheme supplements the £340 million of support to more than 32,000 businesses already paid by my Department. Further support will be provided by the High Street Voucher Scheme, which will provide a £95m stimulus package to our local businesses.

Mr T Buchanan asked the Minister for the Economy to outline any departmental bids, submitted to the Department of Finance, to assist businesses during the current period of lockdown.

(AQO 1294/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: On 19 November, the Executive agreed a further two week circuit breaker from 27 November to 11 December. To assist businesses during this period of further restrictions I have adapted the Covid Restrictions Business Support Scheme ("CRBSS") to provide extended support for those businesses already eligible for the scheme; and to make the scheme available to the businesses, who were not previously affected by the Health Protection Regulations, but who are now impacted by the extension to the regulations for the two week circuit breaker. The estimated cost of the extended CRBSS remains within the £40m funding envelope previously agreed by the Executive on 27 October and therefore no further bids have been made in this regard. However, the member will be aware that having recently submitted bids totalling approximately £400m to support business, individuals and the wider economy through this on-going health and economic crisis, my department has been allocated an additional £137.7m to support: · Company Directors (£20m); · A Top-up of the Tourism & Hospitality Scheme (£5m); · Wet Pubs (£10.6m); · Bed & Breakfasts (£4.1m); · An extension of Digital Selling Capability Grant (£3m); and · A High Street Stimulus Scheme (£95m).

Ms Flynn asked the Minister for the Economy whether she intends to bring forward legislation to provide additional paid leave entitlements for workers that are victims of domestic abuse.

(AQO 1295/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: I recognise that there is support for the introduction of paid leave entitlements for victims of domestic abuse from both within the Assembly and among some key stakeholders. I am also aware that there is growing recognition among employers of the need to provide better support for employees who are victims of domestic abuse, and I would agree that this should be the case. I understand that some progressive employers already have pay and leave arrangements in place for employees who face this distressing circumstance. However I also recognise that this is not universal and there are obvious gaps in employer provision. As such I have asked officials to consider this important issue alongside a range of other employment related matters when planning for the medium to long term. My officials are also maintaining a watching brief over the ongoing BEIS review into support in the workplace for survivors of domestic abuse and I'm glad to say that our NI stakeholders were able to contribute directly to this. Before making any decision to change the employment law framework a full impact and cost analysis needs to be conducted, and ultimately, it will be a decision for the Executive if this type of measure is to be introduced, of which I am supportive.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for the Economy how the recently announced High Street Voucher scheme will operate.
(AQO 1297/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: My Department's High Street Voucher scheme will provide individuals with a prepaid card to be spent at 'bricks and mortar' businesses including retail, restaurants and hotels before the end of March 2021. It will not be available for online sales. The delivery of the scheme will inject £95m into our local economy. The multiplier effect of this innovative financial support offering – from people spending more than the value of the card and the ripple effects from purchases – will deliver even greater economic benefits and make a significant step to kick-starting our recovery. In developing the specifics of the scheme, my Department will implement learnings from Jersey, Malta and other jurisdictions that have rolled out similar initiatives. This will include considerations such as the card value, and how the card will operate in practice. As the scheme is under development, further details will be released in due course. It is anticipated that the scheme will 'go live' in early 2021 and its implementation will take into account all public health guidance.

Mr O'Toole asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will introduce COVID-19-related rescue measures to assist Northern Ireland's newspapers.
(AQO 1299/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Throughout this pandemic, the Executive and UK Government have provided unprecedented financial support to help those individuals and businesses who have been affected by the consequences of COVID-19. The Department for the Economy has led in paying out over £340 million in support grants to almost 32,000 businesses across Northern Ireland. Following the decision by the Executive to introduce restrictions from 16th October 2020, a number of new schemes were announced. On 23rd November 2020, the Executive committed a further £213 million of additional support packages, much of which is targeted at businesses and individuals who have missed out on previous financial help. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has recently announced further measures to protect jobs and support businesses over the coming months, at a time when the Covid-19 pandemic will unfortunately continue to have significant public health and economic implications for our society. There are many business sectors calling for additional support at this time. Therefore, in considering further interventions, including any new funding or packages of financial support, it will be for the Executive collectively to determine how this will be allocated to best support economic recovery.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the virtual learning offered currently by further and higher education providers.
(AQO 1300/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Further Education colleges rose quickly to the challenges presented by the sudden transformation to on-line learning in March 2020 with over 75% of learners able to access their courses on-line within the first two months. A learner survey commissioned across FE colleges in June 2020, highlighted that while learners value the on-line provision, they miss the overall campus experience with 75% indicating they viewed studying on campus as being important or very important as opposed to 33% for fully on-line delivery. On its own therefore, I believe that on-line learning, does not provide the totality of the further education experience which is available through on-site or blended delivery. A further survey of learners has now been commissioned to seek feedback on their experience of both on-site and on-line learning provision. My Department will continue to work with FE colleges and the Education and Training Inspectorate to consider how we can provide additional support to enable learners to achieve their full potential. The Higher Education institutions in Northern Ireland have also adapted their teaching practices by developing a blended learning package in order to continue to deliver their commitments to students. Higher Education students should be able to leave with qualifications that are a fair reflection of their abilities, whilst maintaining quality and standards.

Ms Armstrong asked the Minister for the Economy whether she will commission a report to assess the potential contribution of offshore and marine technologies to the future of renewable electricity generation in Northern Ireland.
(AQO 1298/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: Work is already ongoing to assess the potential contribution of offshore and marine technologies. My Department is currently working with The Crown Estate, through its Key Resource Areas initiative, to identify the potential for fixed and floating offshore wind development in NI waters. The first report under this initiative, looking at technical aspects, was published at the end of November. The initial results are promising but this is only the first step in a process that will also have to take account of the economic and environmental characteristics of the identified areas. In relation to marine technologies, we are already aware of the potential through the two tidal projects at Fair Head and Torr Head which were granted rights to develop in 2012. How best to accelerate these projects and encourage more developments of this nature will be considered as we develop a new Energy Strategy.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister for the Economy for her assessment of the impact of alternative grading arrangements, as a result of COVID-19, on further and higher education admissions.
(AQO 1301/17-22)

Mrs Dodds: As autonomous bodies, universities are responsible for their own policies and procedures on admissions. Data HE, a specialist higher education data analysis company, recently produced for the local universities an assessment of the impact of the current pandemic on admissions in Northern Ireland. This report indicates that both universities admitted 5% more of the 18-year old population in 2020 than in 2019 - in line with the Department's specified Maximum Student Number (MaSN) for each of these years. The report also suggests that the universities helped potential first year students in Northern Ireland, by confirming offers early and confirming more offers than would normally be the case. It is my assessment that, despite the initial confusion and uncertainty following the announcement of the alternative grading arrangements, the universities responded well to ensure that no one would be disadvantaged as a result. The impact on admissions to Further Education colleges is still unclear, as there is always an element of volatility during the early months of the academic year, as learners review their learning pathways. However, while final enrolment figures are not yet available, early indications are that they are likely to reduce this year. It is not yet possible to say the extent to which this is due to the impact of the alternative grading arrangements, or whether there are other factors which have influenced learner choices. Alternative assessment arrangements for summer 2020 have led to grades being issued for both general qualifications (GQs) and vocational qualifications (VQs) that are in line with government policy in NI, using school/college calculated grades. Work to support learners receiving grades ensured that all GQs and around 83% of VQs were awarded in summer 2020. The remaining VQs not yet awarded/delayed are mostly technical competence-based qualifications that are not generally used for admission to higher education. These learners have been able to progress to HE using these grades in the same way as for previous years.

Department of Justice

In this Bound Volume, page WA 78, replace the answer given for AQW 8374/17-22 with:

Miss Woods asked the Minister of Justice (i) how many prisoners have been committed to Care and Supervision Units (CSUs) within the Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS), each year for the last ten years; and (ii) how many prisoners have been committed to CSUs for more than 15 days within the NIPS, each year for the last ten years.
(AQW 8374/17-22)

Mrs Long (The Minister of Justice): The tables below outline (i) how many prisoners have been committed to Care and Supervision Units (CSUs) with the Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS), each year for the last ten years; and (ii) how many prisoners have been committed to CSU's for more than 15 days within NIPS, each year for the last ten years.

(i) Number of prisoners committed to Care and Supervision Units (CSUs) within the Northern Ireland Prison Service.

8.1 Motion: Ammonia Levels in Northern Ireland

Proposed:

That this Assembly notes with concern the scale and complexity of the ammonia problem in Northern Ireland; further notes that critical loads of nitrogen deposition at which ecological damage occurs have been exceeded at 98 per cent of Northern Ireland's Special Areas of Conservation, in some cases by 300 per cent or more; recognises the need to halt further overloading of critical thresholds; notes Northern Ireland's legal obligations under Article 6 of the EU Habitats Directive; and calls on the Minister for Infrastructure to conduct an urgent review of approved planning applications for ammonia emitting projects that are within 7.5km of a Natura 2000 site; and further calls on the Minister to implement a moratorium on planning approvals for any project which proposes to increase discharges of ammonia into the environment until such time as a report is produced by the Department for Infrastructure that determines whether Article 6 of the EU Habitats Directive is being complied with in Northern Ireland.

Ms Clare Bailey

Miss Rachel Woods

AmendmentProposed:

Leave out all after '300 per cent or more;' and insert:

'recognises the need to reduce further overloading of critical thresholds; acknowledges that emissions do not recognise borders; and calls on the Minister for Infrastructure to conduct a review of the planning application process to ensure planners have all the appropriate guidance on ammonia and are led by science and data to mitigate ammonia emissions; and further calls on the Minister for Infrastructure to consult fully with the farming and agri-food industry and the Minister of Agriculture, Environment and Rural Affairs on this review, to ensure that the impact on the farming and agri-food industry is fully understood.'

Division 6

Consideration Stage: Functioning of Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill (NIA Bill 01/17-22) – Amendment 15

Proposed: New Clause

After clause 8 insert -

‘Record of being lobbied

8A.(1) In the event of a minister or special adviser, other than as provided for in section 8, being lobbied, then, the minister or (as the case may be) special adviser must provide at the earliest opportunity a written record to their department of all such lobbying and the department must retain such records.

(2) In this section “being lobbied” means to receive personally a communication, either oral or written, on behalf of the person making the communication or another person or persons, relating to:

- (a) the development, adoption or modification of any proposal of the department to make or amend primary or subordinate legislation;
- (b) the development, adoption or modification of any other policy of the department;
- (c) the making, giving or issuing by the department of, or the taking of any other steps by the department in relation to, —
 - (i) any contract or other agreement,
 - (ii) any grant or other financial assistance, or
 - (iii) any licence or other authorisation; or
- (d) the exercise of any other function of the department.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2), it does not matter whether the communication occurs in or outwith the United Kingdom.

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to a communication —

- (a) made in proceedings of the Northern Ireland Assembly or the Executive Committee, or
- (b) arising in the course of liaison with the minister’s political party.’

Consideration Stage: Functioning of Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill (NIA Bill 01/17-22) – Amendment 16

Proposed:

Leave out clause 9 and insert -

‘Use of official systems

9. (1) A minister, special adviser or civil servant when communicating on official business by electronic means must not use personal accounts or anything other than devices issued by the department, systems used by the department and departmental email addresses.

(2) If out of necessity it is not possible to comply with the requirements of subsection (1) the minister or (as the case may be) special adviser or civil servant must within 48 hours, or as soon thereafter as reasonably practicable,

- (a) copy to the departmental system any written material generated during the use of non-departmental devices or systems; and
- (b) make an accurate record on the departmental system of any verbal communications relating to departmental matters.

(3) It shall be an offence for any minister, special adviser or civil servant to fail to comply with the requirements of subsection (2).

(4) In proceedings in respect of a charge against a person (“A”) of the offence under subsection (3), it is a defence for A to show that the course of behaviour was reasonable in the particular circumstances or was in the public interest.

(5) A person is taken to have shown the fact mentioned in subsection (4) if —

- (a) evidence adduced is enough to raise an issue as to whether the course of behaviour is as described in subsection (4), and
- (b) the prosecution does not prove beyond reasonable doubt that the course of behaviour is not as described in subsection (4).

(6) A person guilty of an offence under this section is liable on conviction

- (a) on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years;
- (b) on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both.’
