Committee stages of Bills

NIAR 367-11

This research paper has been prepared for the Committee on Procedures. It compares the committee stages of Bills in the devolved legislatures, House of Commons and Dail Éireann. It looks at the role committees play in amending legislation and the use made of committees by the various legislatures in the scrutiny of legislation.

Key Points

- The primary legislation relating to the Scottish Parliament, National Assembly for Wales and the Northern Ireland Assembly contain similar provisions for the stages of a Bill
- However, in Scotland and Wales there is greater involvement for a committee at an earlier stage. In the Scottish Parliament, a Bill must be referred to a committee for general consideration after its introduction. In the National Assembly for Wales, the Business Committee decides whether or not a Bill should be referred to a Committee or go to the Assembly
- The Scottish Parliamentary Bureau sets a timescale within which a committee must report. In Northern Ireland, a statutory committee has up to 30 days to report, although this often has to be extended
- Unlike the Northern Ireland Assembly, committees in the Scottish Parliament and National Assembly for Wales may vote on amendments. In Northern Ireland, the committee may propose amendments for consideration
- In the Scottish Parliament and National Assembly for Wales, any member of the Parliament/Assembly may table amendments at committee stage. In Dail Éireann, only members of the committee or their substitutes may propose amendments

Executive Summary

The primary legislation that established the devolved legislatures in Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales contains similar provisions relating to the legislative process. All three bodies must provide for their Members to:

- consider the general principles of a Bill
- consider and vote on the details of a Bill
- reject or pass the Bill

However, beyond these provisions the Standing Orders and additional guidance of the legislatures differ in how legislation is considered. In particular, there are two key differences between the Northern Ireland Assembly and its counterparts in Scotland and Wales.

Firstly, the statutory committees of the Northern Ireland Assembly can propose amendments for consideration by the Assembly, but cannot amend Bills themselves. This is not the case in Scotland and Wales, where committees may vote on amendments.

Secondly, the Scottish Parliament and National Assembly for Wales make use of committees at an earlier stage in the process compared to the Northern Ireland Assembly. Once a Bill is introduced, the Parliament or Assembly may refer it to a committee for a debate on its general principles. It will then go back to committee for further detailed consideration. Northern Ireland follows the more traditional Westminster model of having one committee stage. This is also the position in Dail Éireann. In addition, the National Assembly for Wales has dedicated legislation committees which deal with the committee stage of Bills.

In the House of Commons, Bills are referred to Public Bill committees. Draft legislation in the Commons may be subject to Programme Motions/Orders, which set the schedule and timings for the passage of a Bill. This feature is unique to the Commons among those legislatures examined. In Northern Ireland, Standing Orders allow 30 days for a Committee to consider a Bill, but extensions to this deadline are sought in the vast majority of cases. In Scotland and Wales, the Parliamentary Bureau (Scotland) and Business Committee (Wales) determine the timings on a case-by-case basis.

1 Introduction

The paper outlines the processes for the Committee stage of Bills in the UK Legislatures and Dail Éireann and highlights issues relating to how Committees scrutinise legislation. It focuses on the most common type of legislation, Public Bills (Government and Executive Bills), and refers to other types, such as Private Members' Bills, where necessary. In addition, Table 1 at the end of the paper provides an overview of the procedures in each legislature.

2 Background

The House of Commons, Dáil Éireann and the Northern Ireland Assembly share common practices in relation to the passage of legislation. This includes referral of a Bill to a Committee after its introduction and second reading or debate by the whole House. The Scottish Parliament and National Assembly for Wales are different in that a Bill may be referred to Committee as soon as it is introduced.

3 House of Commons

The Committee Stage of Public Bills in the House of Commons has undergone significant transformation in recent years. In 2006 the Modernisation Committee produced a report which recommended that the system of standing committees should be replaced by Public Bill Committees. The “old standing committee system, though vital to the legislative process, was deemed ineffective by numerous commentators on parliament and had long faced pressure for reform. Ad hoc and unspecialised, standing committees lacked many of the features characteristic of effective committees found in other parliaments around the world”<sup>1</sup>. These reforms also empowered the new Public Bill Committees to take “evidence and submissions in relation to Bills”<sup>2</sup>.

The website of the House of Commons provides the following guidance on the Committee stage of Public Bills<sup>3</sup>:

Committee Stage - Line by line examination of the Bill

Committee stage is where detailed examination of the Bill takes place. It usually starts within a couple of weeks of a Bill's second reading, although this is not guaranteed. Government Bills are usually formally timetabled after they have received a second reading. Most Bills are dealt with in a Public Bill Committee. If the Bill starts in the Commons the committee is able to take evidence from experts and interest groups from outside Parliament. Amendments (proposals for change) for discussion are selected by the chairman of the committee and only members of the committee can vote on amendments during committee stage. Amendments proposed by MPs to the Bill will be published daily and reprinted as a marshalled list of amendments for each day the committee discusses the Bill. Every clause in the Bill is agreed to, changed or removed from the Bill, although this may happen (particularly under a programme order) without debate. A minority of Bills are dealt with by a Committee of the Whole House (takes place on the floor of the House of Commons), with every MP able to take part. Bills fast tracked through the House of Commons will receive less consideration. Consolidated Fund Bills do not have a committee stage at all.

A public bill committee:

generally has about 17 members though this can vary (the Committee of Selection must nominate between 16 and 50 Members to serve on each general committee) and its membership reflects the party composition of the House. At least one Minister from the Government Department in charge of the bill will be on the committee, as will a front-bench spokesman from each of the opposition parties represented. A new public bill committee is appointed for each bill and the membership of each committee is discharged when it has reported its bill to the House. There may be several public bill committees appointed at any one time and they are named after the bill that they examine e.g. the Welfare Reform Bill Committee<sup>4</sup>.

Programme Motions/Orders

Programme Motions and Orders are unique to the House of Commons among the legislatures examined. A “programme motion in the House of Commons is usually agreed to immediately after a Bill's second reading and then becomes known as the 'programme order'. Programme orders help to make a Bill's progress through its various stages much more predictable”<sup>5</sup>. The Cabinet Office provides a useful overview<sup>6</sup> of the process and its impact on committee stages of bills:

- Most Government Bills are subject to programming in the Commons. Programming allows the House, following consultation through the usual channels, to determine a timetable for proceedings in Public Bill Committee and the duration of remaining stages on the floor of the House.
- The Bill team needs to provide a reasonable assessment of the time required in Committee, based on their knowledge of the Bill, its complexity and degree of controversy, and experience with similar Bills.
- Parliamentary Counsel drafts the required Programme Motion setting out the completion date for Public Bill Committee and outline provision for later stages, which is taken immediately after Second Reading.
- For Bills being considered by a Public Bill Committee, the Programming Sub-Committee can recommend detailed proposals for particular witnesses and for the internal division of time between oral evidence sessions and clause by clause consideration and between different parts of the Bill within the overall time for Committee stage (“knives”). They may also recommend to the House that the out-date is changed, if this is felt necessary.

- As for how the programme motion provides for clause by clause consideration, on minor Bills the Programming Sub-Committee may simply have to suggest the order of consideration and the number of Committee sittings required to deal with the business, the time at which those meetings will take place and the time for conclusion of proceedings at the last meeting. On others, the order of consideration and the business for each sitting may be specified in detail. For larger Bills there are usually regular 'knives' to ensure that all parts of the Bill are dealt with in the time allotted. 'Knives' are the cut-off points at which debate on particular sections of the Bill must be completed. Importantly, these affect votes as well as debates.

Private Members' Bills

Private Members' Bills are also considered public bills. If a PMB is granted a second reading it will be committed to a Public Bill Committee. The Member in charge of the Bill must provide the Selection Committee with the names of other Members willing to serve on the Committee.

4 Scottish Parliament

Following the introduction of the Scotland Act 1998, the Consultative Steering Group (CSG) was established to determine how the Scottish Parliament would carry out its business. It was largely responsible for drafting the Standing Orders of the Parliament and its proposals were endorsed by all the main political parties. The CSG recommended the following in relation to the scrutiny role of committees<sup>7</sup>:

10. We recommend that Stage 1, debate and vote on the principles of the Bill, should be conducted in Plenary. A Bill, once introduced, should be referred to the relevant Committee, which should consider and report on the general principles in the Bill, to inform a debate and vote on the principles of the Bill in the Plenary session.

11. The role of the Committee as proposed would be to provide a report to the Parliament as to whether or not the Bill should be approved in principle. It would not at this stage be a detailed consideration on a line by line basis of the Bill's content. At this stage, the Committee would also be able to comment on the Memorandum accompanying the Bill, in particular on the extent of consultation undertaken, and to recommend whether further evidence should be taken to inform the next stage of consideration of the Bill.

12. Following a debate and positive vote in Plenary on the principles of the Bill, the Bill should be referred again to Committee for detailed consideration. Where there are 2 or more interested Committees, one Committee should be identified as the "lead" and other interested Committees should submit their views to the lead Committee within a specified time.

As noted in the introduction, the Committee stage of legislation in the Scottish Parliament differs somewhat from the model in the House of Commons, Dail Éireann and Northern Ireland Assembly. Section 36 of the Scotland Act 1998 and Chapter 9 of Standing Orders outline the process for Public Bills in the Scottish Parliament.

Scotland Act 1998

Section 36 Stages of Bills

(1) Standing orders shall include provision—

- (a) for general debate on a Bill with an opportunity for members to vote on its general principles,
- (b) for the consideration of, and an opportunity for members to vote on, the details of a Bill, and
- (c) for a final stage at which a Bill can be passed or rejected.

In particular, rules 9.5 to 9.9 of Standing Orders<sup>8</sup> detail the various stages of a Bill. Below is a summary of that process:

Stage 1

- Once introduced, the Parliamentary Bureau refers the Bill to whichever Committee has the Bill within its remit – known as the ‘lead committee’. If the Bill could go to more than one Committee, then the Bureau must recommend to Parliament which should be the lead Committee
- The Bureau also sets a timescale within which the lead committee is expected to report

Stage 1 report

- The lead committee’s role is to report to the Parliament on the general principles of the Bill – that is, on the principal purposes of the Bill, rather than the fine detail. It is normal (but not obligatory) for a Stage 1 Report to include a recommendation to the Parliament as to whether the general principles of the Bill should be agreed to
- The Committee can take evidence from witnesses and may issue a call for written evidence
- The lead committee must include in the Stage 1 Report consideration of the Financial Memorandum, taking into account any report on that document that may (but need not) be made to it by the Finance Committee. In the case of an Executive Bill, the Report must also include consideration of the Policy Memorandum. This enables the lead committee to consider, for example, whether sufficient consultation was undertaken before introduction.

Stage 2 Committee

- The minimum period that must elapse between the day on which Stage 1 is completed and the day on which Stage 2 starts is 11 sitting days. If the

<sup>8</sup> Standing Orders of the Scottish Parliament, April 2011: http://www.scottish.parliament.uk/business/so/so\_final.pdf

Parliament agrees to the general principles of the Bill at Stage 1, the Bill proceeds to Stage 2. (If the general principles are rejected, the Bill falls.) The Parliamentary Bureau may refer the Bill back to the Stage 1 lead committee for Stage 2 or propose (by motion) that a different committee or committees take that Stage. The Stage 2 committee can be a Committee of the Whole Parliament, of which all MSPs are members and the Presiding Officer is the convener. For example, the stage 2 debate on Criminal Procedure (Legal Assistance, Detention and Appeals) (Scotland) Bill in October 2010 took place in a Committee of the Whole House. The Bureau may also propose that the Bill be divided among two or more committees for Stage 2 consideration – preferably with each committee being allocated whole Parts or Chapters to deal with.

- The Bureau may set a timescale within which Stage 2 is to be completed. Except for Budget and Emergency Bills, there must be at least eleven whole sitting days between the completion of Stage 1 (i.e. the decision at the end of the Stage 1 debate) and the beginning of Stage 2
- The principal role of the Stage 2 committee is to consider and dispose of amendments. Any MSP may lodge an amendment – not just members of the relevant committee. And there is no limit to the number of amendments that each MSP may lodge. The convener of a committee may lodge (or support) an amendment on behalf of the committee if the committee has made a formal decision during a meeting to that effect. Such “committee amendments” are printed in the name of the convener followed by the words “(on behalf of the [name] Committee)”. There is no procedural distinction between committee amendments and amendments in the name of an individual member, but the stated endorsement of the committee may be helpful as an indication of cross-party support. It is also open to the committee, within the timescale available, to take further evidence on the Bill at Stage 2.

Stage 3

- Stage 3 takes place at a meeting of the whole Parliament. Except in the case of a Budget or Emergency Bill, the day on which Stage 3 begins must be at least nine whole sitting days after the day on which Stage 2 ends

Private Members’ Bills

The first stage for a PMB in the Scottish Parliament is similar to that for Executive Bills. However, the lead committee at Stage 1 can recommend that the general principles of the Bill should not be agreed to on one of three grounds:

- the consultation on the draft proposal, or the published material referred to in the statement of reasons, does not demonstrate a reasonable case for the policy objectives of the proposal or does not demonstrate that legislation is necessary to realise those objectives;

- the Bill appears to be clearly outwith the Parliament’s legislative competence and it is unlikely that this could be rectified by amendment;
- the Bill has deficiencies of drafting that make it unfit to be passed and which are so serious that they would be difficult or impractical to resolve by amendment at Stage 2 or 3.

If the motion is agreed to, the Bill falls. The use of this power effectively allows a committee to curtail Stage 1 consideration and, in particular, not to produce a report on the general principles<sup>9</sup>.

5 National Assembly for Wales

Section 111 of the Government of Wales Act 2006 relates to Bill proceedings in the Assembly:

Government of Wales Act 2006

Section 111 Proceedings on Bills

(1) The standing orders must include provision—

- (a) for general debate on a Bill with an opportunity for Assembly members to vote on its general principles,
- (b) for the consideration of, and an opportunity for Assembly members to vote on, the details of a Bill, and
- (c) for a final stage at which a Bill can be passed or rejected.

Standing Order 16.1 of the Assembly states:

The Assembly must establish committees with power within their remit to:

- (i) examine the expenditure, administration and policy of the government and associated public bodies;
- (ii) examine legislation;
- (iii) undertake other functions specified in Standing Orders; and
- (iv) consider any matter affecting Wales.

Legislation introduced into the Assembly is referred to a Legislation Committee: “the Legislation Committees consider proposals for new legislation by taking evidence, usually from the member who put forward the legislation, stakeholders and other experts”<sup>10</sup>.

Standing Order 26 deals with the passage of legislation through the Assembly (Assembly Measures) and the Assembly has produced guidance on the legislative process. The table below draws on elements of these documents to provide an overview of the Committee stage of Bills (draft Measures):

<sup>10</sup> Website of the National Assembly for Wales: <http://www.assemblywales.org/bus-home/bus-committees.htm>

Stage 1 – Consideration of General Principles

- Once a proposed Measure has been introduced, the Business Committee will decide if it should be referred to a responsible committee. If it is referred, the Committee must consider and report on the general principles of the Bill subject to a deadline decided by the Business Committee. If it is not, it may go to the Assembly for agreement on general principles

Stage 2

- Stage 2 starts on the first working day after Stage 1 is completed
- At least 15 working days must elapse between the start of Stage 2 and the date of the first meeting at which the responsible committee considers amendments to the proposed Measure
- Stage 2 may take place in the original committee or be referred to a Committee of the Whole House
- A proposed Measure may be amended in Stage 2 proceedings
- Any Assembly Member may table amendments to the Bill and there is no limit to the number of amendments that can be tabled. However, only committee members may vote on amendments. This stage ends when all the amendments have been considered.

Private Members' Bills

Guidance produced by the National Assembly for Wales advises that Bills introduced by Assembly Members will generally follow a similar procedure to that (for Government Bills)<sup>11</sup>.

6 Dáil Éireann

Standing Orders 126 to 132 of Dail Éireann detail the procedure for the committee stage of Bills<sup>12</sup>. Bills in Dail Éireann may be introduced in one of two ways: presentation or introduction. In the Dáil, only the Government, and groups provided for in standing orders (seven or more deputies), may present Bills (one Bill at a time from each group). Leave of the House is sought for publication of Bill. In the Dáil any member may seek leave to introduce a bill. In the Seanad introduction requires three Senators to sponsor the bill. As a general rule, Bills may be initiated in either the Dáil or the Seanad. Exceptions to general rule are:

- Money Bills (Dáil only)
- Bills to amend the Constitution (Dáil only)
- Private Bills (Seanad only)<sup>13</sup>

Standing Orders of the Dail do not specify timings between stages. However, Standing Order 139 states: “The making of an Order fixing the date for the next Stage of a Bill shall be decided without amendment: Provided that, in a case where the Order is not made, the Bill shall remain on the Order Paper”<sup>14</sup>.

Committee stages of bills take place within the relevant select committee of the Dail. They have “the power to seek submissions and take evidence on bills but rarely do so”<sup>15</sup>. Only members of the committee or their substitutes may table amendments, although only members of the government can table amendments that impose a charge on the revenue or on the people. Relevant amendments may be made to the Bill. Amendments which are not relevant may, however, be made if the House has given an appropriate instruction to the committee. Members may speak more than once on each question (i.e. on each section or amendment) but the proposer usually replies.

Previous research has highlighted perceived shortcomings in committees’ ability to influence legislation:

Oireachtas select committees play an important role in the legislative process...the third stage of that process is the committee stage. At this stage the bill is sent to the most relevant committee. Clearly then, committees have a critical role in the legislative process...at committee stage, it is possible for detailed amendments to be made and there are certainly examples over time of Irish governments allowing amendments to bills at committee stage...the clear pattern, however, is of government dominance of the legislative process at all stages. Once the cabinet has approved the contents of a bill, it is normally very unusual for the Oireachtas to have any substantive input into changing those contents...the dominance of political parties in the Irish parliamentary process and the unwillingness to accept opposition party amendments means that few bills fundamentally change...during the legislative process<sup>16</sup>.

7 Northern Ireland Assembly

As with the Scottish Parliament and National Assembly for Wales, the legislative process for the Northern Ireland Assembly is set out in the first instance in primary legislation. The Northern Ireland Act 1998 states:

<sup>13</sup> Website of the Houses of the Oireachtas: A Brief Guide to the Legislative Process, retrieved 12 August 2011

<sup>16</sup> MacCarthaigh & Manning (eds) The Houses of the Oireachtas: Parliament in Ireland, Institute of Public Administration 2010

Section 13 – Stages of Bills

Standing orders shall include provision—

- (a) for general debate on a Bill with an opportunity for members to vote on its general principles;
- (b) for the consideration of, and an opportunity for members to vote on, the details of a Bill; and
- (c) for a final stage at which a Bill can be passed or rejected but not amended<sup>17</sup>.

Standing Orders 30 to 43 of the Assembly detail the process for public legislation. A key difference between the Assembly and the other devolved legislatures in Scotland and Wales is that in Northern Ireland the process is more closely modelled on that in the House of Commons and Dail Éireann. Rather than referring a Bill to a Committee after its introduction, a Bill will not go the relevant committee until after the second stage.

At the Second Stage of a Bill being agreed, the Bill is referred to the appropriate statutory committee, unless the Assembly orders otherwise. The relevant statutory committee, may, within the period of 30 working days from date of referral, consider and take evidence on the provisions of the Bill, and report its findings to the Assembly<sup>18</sup>.

A report made to the Assembly may include proposals for amendments to the Bill that may be proposed at Consideration Stage, but the committee cannot vote on amendments. Due to the legislative drafting resources available to the Departments, the committee normally persuades the relevant Minister and department officials to draft and table the amendments sought by it. However, where the department won't draft the amendment, the committee can and will table its own amendments.

In a 2002 report on the legislative process, the Committee on Procedures considered whether committees should be given the power to amend Bills. The Committee concluded that there would need to be an extensive period of consultation, particularly with the Executive, before any such change was introduced<sup>19</sup>.

Of 69 Bills receiving Royal Assent during the 2007-11 mandate, 47 had a Committee Stage of which 43 were extended (91%). The other 22 Bills progressed by Accelerated Passage (no Committee Stage)<sup>20</sup>.

Save as provided in Standing Order No. 92 (Consideration on report of certain bills by a general committee) every bill committed to and reported from a public bill committee, whether amended or not, shall be considered on report by the House
Report stage - gives MPs an opportunity, on the floor of the House, to consider further amendments (proposals for change) to a Bill which has been examined in committee	Detailed consideration, by the Assembly, of the Bill and any amendments proposed by Assembly Members	Consideration by Parliament	Consideration in Plenary of amendments arising from Committee stage	Committee reports its findings and proposed amendments to Assembly Plenary. All amendments and the clauses and Schedules of the Bill voted on at this stage. Bill reprinted if necessary.
Third reading is the final chance for the Commons to debate the contents of a Bill. It usually takes place immediately after report stage as the next item of business on the same day	This is the last stage of the process and follows the completion of stage 3. At this stage, there is a vote by the Assembly to pass the final text of the Bill.	Reconsideration stage – this only occurs where a Law Officer or the Secretary of State considers the Bill to be incompatible with legal obligations	General debate on the Bill	A second opportunity for the Bill to be amended in the Assembly Plenary. All amendments proposed voted on at this stage. Bill reprinted if necessary
Consideration of amendments – Commons and Lords have to agree final text of Bill	Bill becomes Act	Bill becomes Act	Bill sent to Seanad for further scrutiny	Bill referred to the Speaker to confirm that it may proceed to Final Stage
Bill becomes Act			Bill becomes Act	Reconsideration stage
				Bill becomes Act
