Ms McCorley: Go raibh maith agat, a LeasCheann Comhairle. Tá mé buíoch as an deis labhairt sa díospóireacht seo. I am grateful for the opportunity to speak in the debate. I support the motion. Tá mé i bhfách leis an rún seo inniu. Mar atá ráite sa rún, ba mhaith linn comghairdeas ó chroí a ghabháil lenár lúthchleasaithe, mná agus fir, a ghlac páirt sna Cluichí Comhlathais i nGlaschú i mbliana. As the motion states, we wish to extend sincere congratulations to the local sportsmen and sportswomen who competed in Glasgow's Commonwealth Games 2014. Their achievements were outstanding overall. I am sure that no one will mind if we make special mention of the tremendous success of local boxers. I would like to mention all the medal winners, who include Lisa Kearney, who won a medal in judo, and Neil Booth, Neil Mulholland, Paul Daly, Barbara Cameron and Mandy Cunningham who won in bowling. Agus, ar ndóigh, ár ndornálaithe iontacha, and of course, our fantastic boxers Paddy Barnes, Michael Conlon, Joe Fitzpatrick, Michaela Walsh, Steven Donnelly, Sean Duffy, Connor Coyle, Sean McGlinchey and Alanna Audley-Murphy. Despite not making it on to the medal table, other competitors also excelled in sports such as running, badminton, netball, wrestling and triathlon.

Recognition must also go to support staff, trainers, coaches, families and friends, who rightly deserve to be commended for their roles in the great achievements of our athletes. Such achievements are a source of great pride for us all, and we should continue to encourage and support those athletes in whatever way we can in their pursuit of sporting excellence. We should also, as the motion states, seek to identify other sports where possibilities might exist to excel if given the right support and opportunities.

Sport NI is the body whose responsibility it is to promote a culture of lifelong enjoyment and success in sport, which contributes to a healthy, fair and prosperous society. I do not think that we can overemphasise the health aspects of this, particularly given the rise in diseases like diabetes and heart disease. It is important therefore that we encourage everyone to take part in physical activity, whether in competitive sport or not.

Dúirt Antoinette McKeown, príomh-fheidhmeannach, go bhfuil eagraíocht s'aici tiomanta do rath a bhaint amach sa spórt mar an gnáthrud seachas an eisceacht. The chief executive of Sport NI, Antoinette McKeown, stated recently that her organisation is committed to the achievement of success in sport being the norm rather than the exception. She went on to say that a very detailed review of the Commonwealth Games performance would be carried out in order to set targets for future games, identify where resources can be best used and learn particular lessons from the success of boxing in Glasgow this year. This review will be very important and will include participation from the Commonwealth Games Council and the governing bodies of all the sports. As I have stated, a clear focus will be on the boxing success, which was absolutely phenomenal this year.

Mar is eol dúinn agus mar a thuigtear go maith do chách, níor tharla na torthaí seo de thaisme. As everyone involved knows and understands only too well, these results did not come about by accident. The individual boxers, of course, were pivotal to their own success, but without the support structures around them, such as good coaches, training facilities, physiologists, nutritionists, sports psychologists and vital family support, the chances are that they may well not have had such major achievements. That will therefore be hugely central to the forthcoming corporate plan for 2015-19.

The job will be to ensure that all those key support elements are in place for each of the identified sports so that they can, at the very least, be in with the best sporting chance for the 2018 games and any other major competitions in the calendar.

If our sporting network is to reach its full potential, one issue that it will be important to tackle is the under-representation of women as sporting participants, coaches and representatives on sports governing bodies. When it comes to equality, there must be a focus on strategies to increase the involvement of women in local sport.

As the motion states, there needs to be a reassessment of other sports that might be expected to excel in 2018. We fully expect Sport NI's review to flag up the ones that will have most to gain from an injection of appropriate training, resources and facilities. If the appropriate supports are put in place, we should rightly expect that athletes will emerge who will hopefully maximise our medal return in 2018.

Mr Deputy Speaker: Will the Member bring her remarks to a close?

Ms McCorley: I commend the motion to the House. Molaim an rún.

Mrs McKevitt: I support the motion, as I am a firm believer that sporting excellence and achievement should be recognised and celebrated. Each of the 117 local athletes who participated in 14 sports over 11 days of competition in Glasgow deserves recognition. All were very dedicated and trained hard to qualify for the Commonwealth Games team. All played their part and represented Northern Ireland with distinction, pride and commitment. I commend them all.

The motion singles out the boxing team, and so it should. The boxers' haul of two gold, two silver and five bronze medals — a total of nine for the 11 competitors — was phenomenal. Northern Ireland team captain, Paddy Barnes, deserves a special mention not only for winning gold but for leading and motivating the whole team through their best ever Commonwealth Games. I also give special mention to Michaela Walsh, as I believe that she has put the sport of women's boxing on a new level.

It is most appropriate that we are discussing sporting success and recognising achievement today, given the sporting weekend that we have just had. Our top golfers, Rory and Graeme, played a major role in helping Europe retain the Ryder Cup. Maybe even more important, Mr Deputy Speaker, we saw County Down win its first ever All-Ireland Intermediate Ladies' Football Championship against a very good Fermanagh team. Congratulations to them and to the Down camogs, who won the junior intermediate all-Ireland title the weekend before.

The most important part of the motion may be the call on DCAL to reassess urgently other sports and ensure that the appropriate training, resources and facilities are in place to maximise our medal return in 2018. Yes, we did good, but, you know what, we could do better. While recognising and commending coaches, medical personnel, support staff and team management, along with the governing bodies and sponsors supporting our athletes and their families, the House and the Government have a responsibility to play their part in supporting sport. There is no doubt that we could do better. Many sports are underfunded, and facilities are dismal when compared with other Commonwealth nations. I look forward to the assessment, which will, I think, highlight opportunities for improvement, some of which may cost very little if we speed up the sharing of facilities between the likes of Jordanstown and Queen's University, which has been mentioned previously, as well as school and gym facilities and pitches.

Mr McGimpsey: I support the motion. It is a valuable one that highlights the value and importance of sport in our society among our young people and our population as a whole, the importance of strategies around fitness and the need to seriously engage in physical activity to promote good health. When I was in the Department of Health, we had a policy called Fit Futures. It was very much about encouraging our population to engage in physical activity, not least because of the challenge of cardiovascular disease, diabetes and other serious conditions.

The Commonwealth Games are about more than that. They are about promoting elite sports. They are about the best and the brightest in each of the sports coming forward to represent their country. It is important that we invest in that. It is not only about public health and fitness in the general population; it is about targeting and concentrating on the individuals who can represent at that very high level. We have seen that at the Commonwealth Games, and we have seen that not least with Paddy Barnes and the boxers but with other sports as well.

4.15 pm

A key element of this is that we have sports that we show we can do well in. We can be proud of our achievements at the Commonwealth Games, but there is huge potential still waiting to be given the opportunity. For example, at the Commonwealth Games, we had the ability to put in a Northern Ireland rugby team, but that did not appear. Yet, look at the investment that the House has made in rugby in Northern Ireland in the past two or three years — around £15 million in the Ravenhill stadium alone. Hockey is another sport in which our men and women excel and are known internationally. Of course, there has been mention of golf. The Ryder Cup is a biennial tournament and is one of the most important in the world. It was led by two of our golfers — Graeme McDowell and Rory McIlroy, the world number one. That demonstrates that we have huge potential. When you look at our achievements in the past and you look at people like Tony McCoy, the greatest jockey in the world, or Carl Frampton, a world champion, you see that we have a pantheon of achievement in sport.

The key thing is ensuring that barriers to access to sport are broken down, that we have fairness, equality and investment in areas and that no one feels disadvantaged. I have to remind the Minister of the situation of Sandy Row Amateur Boxing Club, which has been subject, over the years, to sustained sectarian and racist abuse, proven by an independent review, on a number of occasions. The point is this: where are we going from here? One of the boxers who achieved a medal in Glasgow was a Sandy Row boxer, and there are youngsters in that area and in other areas who would love the opportunity to represent their country. The fact is that that boxing club is currently not allowed to access funding because it is not affiliated with the boxing federation, which oversaw the sectarian abuse in the first place. We have a situation in which that boxing club is excluded. This is an issue of fairness. I have to say to the Minister that, if it was a boxing club in her constituency, I do not think that I would be talking about it in these terms; I think that it would be dealt with properly.

It seems to me that sport is the key area where our society can come together. It is the key area where we can see partnership, representing our community where we are all proud of the achievements of our sportsmen and women and we can all get behind them. They are such an important cohesive force in our society in bringing our communities together. Fairness is another key element in this and in ensuring that barriers to access do not exist, as far as possible. We invest, and we support. We have much to celebrate and much to be thankful for in the achievement of our sportsmen and women.

Mr Deputy Speaker: Will the Member draw his remarks to a close?

Mr McGimpsey: There is so much more potential there.

Ms Lo: I thank the Members who tabled the motion, which has the Alliance Party's support. First, I offer my warmest congratulations to all our athletes who competed in the Commonwealth Games in Glasgow this summer. The media coverage showed the games to be a fantastic sporting occasion, and it was wonderful to see how well it captured the public's interest. The Northern Ireland team did us proud. Across all sports, there were remarkable achievements, and it is fitting for us today to pay tribute to them. Secondly, I ask the Minister if a feasibility study could be carried out to see if a future Commonwealth Games could be hosted in Belfast. We saw how wonderful and how successful the World Police and Fire Games were, and it would be brilliant to build on that.

As we know, sporting activity is not only valuable in itself but increases confidence, empathy and a sense of community. Of course, it is not just about talent; it is about discipline, training, coaching, resources and a positive mental attitude.

Perhaps one of the most endearing qualities of people in Northern Ireland is that we are self-deprecating. The problem is that when that translates to sport, we tend to see ourselves as the underdogs and, at times, assume that we will never be the best. This is a shame when we consider that there are many sports in Britain in which our athletes are some of the best in the world. A constituent, Peter Hawkins, a professional cyclist who competed for Team Northern Ireland in Glasgow, told me that this is partly down to mentality but is also due to the fact that so many other countries have better support and facilities for their athletes. This, however, comes down to money: better training facilities, good quality full-time coaches and travel to international competitions are all very expensive. In Peter's opinion, however, they make a huge difference.

The ability to make a living as a full-time athlete is rare, and most athletes would need additional financial support in order to focus on their sport. Investment in sport is hard to come by, and I am interested to know what actions the Minister has taken or will take to help our athletes to get to a position where they can concentrate on their sport without having to work part-time. Peter also believes that more should be done to allow athletes to travel to compete against international opposition as that would allow them to get used to competing on the bigger stage. It can also show them that the gap between where they are and where they need to be is often not as big as they think. In an email to me, Peter wrote:

"There are some sports in which Northern Ireland is genuinely world class, for example, golf. I'm sure a young kid taking up golf here would be thinking anything was possible ... whereas I never dreamed I'd even get to where I am now, never mind the very top of the sport. Maybe if it hadn't been made to seem so impossible, I would've progressed a lot faster. One of the things I take most pleasure in is showing how far you can go with hard work, persistence and belief."

We have the talent and the passion — there is no doubt about that. We now need to focus on how we nurture that so that athletes like Peter receive all the support they deserve.

Mr Humphrey: I thank the Members who tabled the motion, and I will speak in favour of it. The names of Michael Conlan and Paddy Barnes now stand alongside those of Philip Beattie, Mike Bull, Davy Larmour, Mary Peters and Barry McGuigan in Northern Ireland's Commonwealth Games hall of fame. I congratulate all our athletes who took part in the Commonwealth Games in Glasgow and commend all the officials who went along to support them.

I watched the opening ceremony when at scout camp on the Isle of Man, and the reception that our team got as it went into the stadium was second only to that of Scotland, the host nation. Two weeks ago, with party colleagues from the Committee for Culture, Arts and Leisure, I met representatives of the Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games Council to discuss a range of issues. On Thursday past, Sport NI was here to discuss the same issues. Participation in the Commonwealth Games is vital. When the representatives of the Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games Council appeared in front of the Committee last year in the Sports Institute at Jordanstown, we were very sympathetic to what they were saying. Clearly, they wanted to do much more. I am sure that the Minister wants to do much more but has a very restricted budget. I pay tribute to the Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games Council. The development of athletes for international competition is absolutely vital. We will maximise the potential that Members talked about only if we maximise our participation. It is great that we have the facility down at the Sports Institute, but we need people who train and work hard for four years. Sadly, however, some of them are not able to compete.

Mr McGimpsey mentioned two sports — rugby sevens and hockey — which I referred to last week in Committee. Northern Ireland is not able to take part in those sports at the Commonwealth Games, which is a huge regret. That is politics with a small "p" interfering in sport, and that should not happen.

I, too, support Northern Ireland hosting the games, but much has to be done with our infrastructure and facilities. Ravenhill is completed; Windsor is under way; there is development to come at Casement; and we have the Aurora swimming facility in Bangor, the Dub and the Odyssey. We have many great facilities, but we still do not have a velodrome, and considerable improvements are required at the Mary Peters Track. If we are ever to do that, we will need a joined-up approach. Realistically, we need DCAL, Sport NI, local councils, universities, education and library boards and private clubs and their facilities to come together to be in a position to host the Commonwealth Games or any such major international sports event. A considerable amount of investment is required.

I appeal to the governing bodies of hockey and rugby. I am proud to be a part of the Northern Ireland green and white army and to support our wee country in international football. I am saddened when a player opts not to play for Northern Ireland, but it is his or her choice. I made this point in Committee on Thursday, and I make it again in the House today. You can swim for Ireland or GB and take part in the Commonwealth Games; and you can box for Ireland or GB and take part in the Commonwealth Games for Northern Ireland. However, you cannot play hockey for Ireland and play for Northern Ireland in the Commonwealth Games; and you can play rugby for Ireland, but you cannot take part in the rugby sevens at the Commonwealth Games. It is about time that the Irish Rugby Football Union, whether in Dublin or the Ulster branch, and the Irish Hockey Association addressed that anomaly.

Sport NI produced a document at our Committee meeting last week, and on page 67, Iain Lewers, a great hockey player from this wee part of the world, is mentioned. He now plays hockey along with Mark Gleghorne for England. He is a GB player. Two other players from Northern Ireland, Ian Sloan and David Ames, have declared for England. They will not play international hockey for three years to enable them to become eligible to play for England. We are missing out on an opportunity; and some sportspeople whom we are developing here are not participating for Northern Ireland at the Commonwealth Games. That needs to be addressed. Angela Platt, the executive manager of Ulster Hockey, was in front of the Committee last week. Members of the Committee will know that I asked her a question.

Mr Deputy Speaker: Will the Member draw his remarks to a close?

Mr Humphrey: I asked her whether she missed out on the opportunity to compete in the Commonwealth Games and whether she would have wanted to. She said that she would, but, sadly, Northern Ireland does not send a team. It is time that that was addressed. I support the motion.

Mr McMullan: Go raibh maith agat. The Commonwealth Games in Glasgow have just finished, with our athletes taking home a very creditable and excellent 12 medals, and our boxers took nine of that total. For the first time at the games, female boxers also took home medals. Athletes in other sports finished well but were just outside the medals. Those sports included wrestling, netball, badminton and athletics. We are already planning for the next games in 2018 and have an expectation to do better. The motion calls on DCAL to urgently reassess other sports that might be expected to excel at the next games and to ensure that appropriate training and facilities are in place.

On 7 August 2014, Antoinette McKeown, the chief executive of Sport NI, a DCAL arm's-length body, stated that a detailed review of how each sport had performed at the games would be undertaken. That review will help to establish where resources can best be used and spent. Sport NI will sit down with the governing bodies of all the sports to understand the factors in the sports that have been successful and those that have not.

It is clear that Sport NI is serious about creating an environment in sport where success becomes routine. I am pleased to hear that targets will be set for the next games in Australia and that, unlike this year, those targets will be made public. Other sports will be encouraged to learn from the successes of our boxing squad, and the tally of two gold medals must be bettered.

4.30 pm

Why are our boxers so successful? What are they doing that is different from other sports? The boxing fraternity developed a high-performance system that the boxing family bought into completely. When you listen to any of the squad talking, you hear that they have total self-belief that they are the best, and that belief is brought into the ring with them. That same high performance must now be installed in other sports like judo, bowls, netball etc. When you go down and see the facilities in Jordanstown, where those high-performance athletes train — the Ulster rugby team has been down there as well — you see that we have got the basis for that.

Sport NI and DCAL have put money into our sports programme, but, next time, the lottery must put funding into sport. That has not been mentioned here today. For the Olympic Games in London, over £60 million was taken from us over six years as our contribution towards the cost of £2.2 billion. If that money can be taken from us for the Olympic Games in London, surely the lottery can put some of that money back to us to build up our sports facilities like a cycling track etc. By the way, the money that was taken from us was not returned. We were told that it would not be returned.

We have to look at all of this. The budget for the Commonwealth Games in Glasgow was £561 million, with around £460 million provided by public funds. The Scottish Government contributed over £380 million, and Glasgow City Council contributed the rest. No money was funded for that. Do we have that budget? We must look outside to get funding brought in, and the lottery has a big part to play. As I said, we contributed £60 million to the Olympics; surely, we can get part of that back. If they were to give us back the percentage that they took out of our total of money that we have here for our lottery, that would help to pay for quite a lot of the infrastructure that we need here to develop our sport. Otherwise, we will be totally struggling. For me, the key to the whole thing is funding.

Mr Deputy Speaker: Will the Member draw his remarks to a close?

Mr McMullan: I ask the House to look at where the lottery can play a major part here.

Mr McCausland: I support the motion. It recognises the tremendous achievements of the entire Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games team. Obviously, it picks out the boxing team, which excelled so much in the competition. It is right that we should recognise it, and it is right that we should congratulate all those involved and go further. Congratulations should be given to all the participants, but especially those who achieved medal success. Also, our congratulations go to the officials, coaches, trainers and all those who supported the athletes.

This is one of the occasions when the name “Northern Ireland” is blazoned on the sporting world. It happens in football, where we have a Northern Ireland football team. It also happens in the United Kingdom School Games, where a Northern Ireland team takes part. The Commonwealth Games is another occasion and is, obviously, a much more high-profile event than the UK School Games. It is a very important occasion when a Northern Ireland team is entered. It is good for the athletes that they are able to enter that competition. It is an opportunity for them to excel and show their excellence. It is good for the sport because it raises the profile of the various sports in the country and encourages people to take up those sports. The more a sport gets exposure in the media and the more local success there is, the more interest there is and the more participants there will be. It is good for the country because it means that the name of Northern Ireland is out there in the media around the world and is identified with success. It is also good for society generally here because, as was pointed out earlier by Mr McGimpsey, we live in age when there are issues with obesity and when many folk have a much more sedentary lifestyle. Role models in sport encourage participation, particularly amongst young people, and that is bound to be good for the health of Northern Ireland.

I want to pick up on the point that was made earlier by my colleague Mr Humphrey. If we are to achieve our very best in the Commonwealth Games, it is absolutely essential that we compete in as many sports as possible. It is just common sense that, if you do not enter as many events, you will not have the same level of success, and it is therefore particularly disappointing that it is not possible to enter a team in hockey and no team was entered in the rugby sevens. Those issues have been around for some time. Mr McGimpsey referred to his experience in the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure, and I go back to my experience in that regard. Then, the issue of hockey was raised. People within the ranks of hockey and who played hockey said that they wanted to be able to enter the Commonwealth Games but could not do so. It would make good sense for us to have a team there, so I encourage all those who can exercise influence here to work with the governing body to see what can be done to remove any obstacles and overcome any difficulties and to ensure that, by the time we get to 2018, Northern Ireland teams enter the hockey and rugby sevens competitions.

The success that we had was testimony to the dedication, skill, perseverance, talent and passion of all those in the team. We did well, but we want to do better. As was pointed out, Sport NI had a deputation in regard to the issue of excellence in sport and elite performance. They were with us at the Committee for Culture, Arts and Leisure last week, and there was a positive response from the chief executive of Sport NI and from the others in that deputation. They were all very positive about ensuring that we can enter teams in hockey and rugby sevens in 2018.

Mr D Bradley: Go raibh míle maith agat, a LeasCheann Comhairle. Tá mé buíoch as an deis labhairt sa díospóireacht seo faoi na Cluichí Comhlathais. Thank you very much for the opportunity to speak in this debate on the Commonwealth Games. The 2014 Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games team achieved its best result since 1986 in the Edinburgh games. In fact, it could be said that the team achieved its best result ever. I say that because the 1986 games, if you remember, was the only time that Northern Ireland achieved a larger medal haul, but the games that year were less competitive. They were shrouded in controversy and subject to a wide political boycott, with 32 of the eligible 59 countries staying away due to Margaret Thatcher's Government's policy of maintaining sporting links with apartheid South Africa.

In any case, thankfully, this year's games and the Northern Ireland team demonstrated the power of sport as a unifying force. The men and women of the team — some of whom compete for Ireland in the Olympics, others for Great Britain and Northern Ireland — brilliantly represented the people of this part of the world. I hope that that spirit will continue and be encouraged across all our sporting codes. For example, I am heartened that the GAA will soon play at Ravenhill rugby ground for the first time in an all-star event that is being spearheaded by Anto Finnegan to raise much-needed funds for motor neurone disease, which, of course, is a hugely important cause. I hope that that is another sign of the burgeoning relationship between Irish rugby and the GAA, which will hopefully bring the Rugby World Cup to Ireland in 2023.

I also note the participation in the Commonwealth Games of Caroline O'Hanlon, the captain of the Armagh ladies' Gaelic football team. She was a Member of the Northern Ireland netball team that also excelled during the Games, even though they were not medal winners.

As other Members have said, there was great teamwork from the Northern Irish competitors at the games, in particular from the bowlers, who came home with two team medals. That teamwork also extended to the preparation for the boxing ring and, as many others have said, culminated in our boxers picking up three more boxing medals than their previous best haul.

With such successes from our athletes, I am happy to support the motion and its call for the:

"appropriate training, resources and facilities ... to maximise our medal return", not just on the Gold Coast in 2018 but in all upcoming global sporting tournaments. I am looking forward to Brazil 2016, when hopefully we will see our former world champion cyclist Martyn Irvine achieve his best, Graeme McDowell and Rory McIlroy make their Olympic debuts and Paddy Barnes and Michael Conlan go for gold.

Gan tuilleadh moille, tá mé an-sásta tacaíocht a thabhairt don rún. With that, Mr Deputy Speaker, I support the motion.

Mr B McCrea: I have to say that I think that we are deluding ourselves. I have listened to the rhetoric in the Chamber and the platitudes about how well we did. You really have to say to yourself that we fund 42 sports — 28 elite sports — and if you were to take boxing out of our medal total, you would have precious little return for that.

I commend the proposer of the motion for tabling it. I was quite taken, as I said in Committee, by what Mr Humphrey had to say. There are a number of issues that we have not addressed. Some really important issues have not been taken on board. I refer to the document that is known as SPLISS. Some issues come out here when we talk about pillar one, finance:

"There is a reasonable argument to suggest that Northern Ireland subsidises the rest of the UK as it benefits less from UK Sport funding than other nations, notably England."

What is the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure going to do about that, as she has been exhorted to do by her party colleagues?

The document continues:

"There is an acceptance that the funding for elite sport in Northern Ireland is modest compared with other nations and does not necessarily match Northern Ireland's ambitions in sport."

That is a failure in our structural approach. Our:

"inability to generate funding from other sources such as sponsorship and media rights" is also a problem. One of the key issues that we could deal with is, I think, the point that Mr Humphrey made — he certainly made it in Committee. It says in the document in front of us here — our strategic approach:

"Many recognised governing bodies in Northern Ireland are actually branches of an all-Ireland or UK national governing body and therefore may present challenges for the planning, coordination and delivery of their sport."

That is the elephant in the room: we have no strategic vision for sport in this land. We have all-Ireland bodies, UK bodies, different bodies, but there is no great vision to take us forward. All we get is empty rhetoric where people try to cling on to the coat-tails of people who succeed in sport, largely because of their own ability.

4.45 pm

There are some suggestions for improvement in this document:

"Greater certainty in the planning process as DCAL and its non-departmental funded bodies are often subject to funding uncertainty from Exchequer funds and also National Lottery ticket sales."

"Greater incentives... to contribute funding to elite sport."

These are issues that DCAL ought to be taking on board. I am really interested to see what support the Minister can gather around the Executive table, because I realise that she can only deal with what she is given. We need to match our rhetoric with financial support.

I mentioned some other issues that I think that we need to address in this debate:

"Breadth of investment in Olympic/Paralympic sport; Commonwealth sport; and culturally significant sports means that policy has a broad rather than a narrow focus."

I think that we need some strategic leadership here, and I hope that the Minister will be able to provide some clarity on that. I also hope that she will tell us how she will tackle one of the other weaknesses brought forward:

"Processes can be perceived as being over bureaucratic and time consuming."

These are issues that we ought to be able to deal with.

The proposer of the motion mentioned wider social objectives linked to public health and obesity in his opening remarks, and those are addressed in Sport Matters. However, sport is not yet seen as an investment; it is seen as a luxury. We have to realise that sport should be something that we invest in because we want to achieve other objectives.

Others touched on the benefit of sport and what it can do. Just look at the passion that we saw when we watched the Ryder Cup, or when Ulster plays rugby, or when I watched the team triathlon come in sixth at Glasgow. There is a breakdown in our society; there is a growth in the importance of "me". Sport should be able to counter that, but sport is not being supported.

Mr Deputy Speaker: Will the Member draw his remarks to a close?

Mr B McCrea: Rather than have these meaningless debates, let us see real, strategic vision; let us see leadership for Northern Ireland; let us see what we can do. I would really like to see the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure step up to the mark, because Northern Ireland needs it.

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure): Go raibh maith agat, a LeasCheann Comhairle. I have listened carefully to the debate and the views expressed on the motion. It is clear that there is widespread support for our local athletes, and I thank Members for providing me with the opportunity to once again congratulate the athletes, coaches, officials and families who were involved in the 2014 Commonwealth Games. I have had the pleasure of meeting those people on a few occasions, particularly when they departed Belfast for the games in July and again when I visited the athletes' village in Glasgow. On those occasions, I saw at first-hand the individual commitment of each of the athletes and the support that they received from the network around them. Those athletes are certainly deserving of the tributes that have come their way today.

Much has been made of the boxers' success, and rightly so: winning nine medals out of 12 is no mean feat. It is clear that there are significant interests here today to ensure that our athletes, current and future, receive appropriate training, resources and facilities in order to maximise medal achievements in all future competitions. Some of those have been mentioned here today: the next Commonwealth Games in 2018 on the Gold Coast in Australia and the Olympic and Paralympic Games in 2016. I believe that the motion is worthy, and I wholeheartedly support it.

The motion also calls on the Assembly to recognise particularly the success of the boxing team and its achievements.

I do not think that any of us are in any doubt that boxing is the leading light in our Commonwealth sports and, indeed, across all sports competitions. The achievements are all the more remarkable when we consider the poor facilities — they are among the worst — that we have to offer our sportspeople. They achieve these successes despite the conditions that they train in. My Department's current investment in boxing will go some way towards addressing some of these issues, but it merely scratches the surface.

The motion also calls on DCAL to reassess other sports where we may excel in future games. On Tuesday 16 September, I advised the House that I had met the chief executive of Sport NI to discuss plans to review the performance of all our athletes in the Commonwealth Games. Sport NI will carry out debriefs with all the governing bodies of the sports that had athletes competing in the games. It will also talk individually to each athlete, the coaches and their support personnel. It will examine what worked well, what needs to be improved and what had a negative impact on performance. The debriefing process will be completed by the end of this year, hopefully by early December.

When all the information is collected, a review will be undertaken by Sport NI. The review will be used as an appraisal of performances at recent games and as a mechanism to identify the changes and improvements that are required. The review is scheduled to take place in January and February 2015, and it will allow Sport NI to make evidence-based recommendations to the relevant sports' governing bodies and the Commonwealth Games Council. The review will also set targets for the 2018 Commonwealth Games in Australia. It is therefore crucial that the governing bodies involved engage completely in this process with Sport NI.

It is really important, especially in light of the reducing resources that we all face, that the governing bodies focus investment on the athletes capable of delivering a return on that investment. This will, no doubt, require difficult decisions to be made by the sports' governing bodies in the future. They will need to be objective and strong in their assessments, and I know that Sport NI will provide the necessary support and guidance to them as they go through the process. To improve athlete performance across all our competitive sports in the future, it is vital that any identified actions that are required are taken by the relevant governing bodies and their partners. The motion calls for appropriate training and for resources and facilities to be put in place to ensure that we maximise our medal return in 2018, and that is what we intend to do.

In Sport Matters — our strategy for sport and physical recreation — there are 26 high-level targets that set out key strategic priorities for sport and physical education. The strategy is used by DCAL and Sport NI to inform and prioritise investment, including in our high-performance athletes. Sport Matters targets are set around three clear themes of participation, performance and places, all of which provide the building blocks for us to develop systems to help our current and aspiring competitive sportspeople. Preparing athletes for major competitions is not about just a few elements of this strategy. Successful systems for athletes' performance must also include a range of important factors throughout the life of an athlete, namely encouraging initial participation in sport; having effective talent identification systems; having great coaches who will inspire and mentor athletes; providing crucial training and nutrition advice; providing access to suitable training facilities; and having effective governing bodies that will drive athletes forward, which is imperative. We have already achieved many of these factors; however, we recognise that there is much more to do. Sport NI is working closely with the governing bodies, the athletes, coaches and their support personnel who have Olympic and Paralympic aspirations for Rio in 2016 and Tokyo in 2020. As part of this, the Sports Institute at Jordanstown does an excellent job through the provision of direct technical support to sports and athletes as they prepare for major competitions.

Sport NI also provides financial support to sports' governing bodies through its performance-focused and athlete investment programmes. Over the last two financial years, governing bodies that had athletes preparing for 2014 received funding from Sport NI of just over £2.3 million. That is substantial funding. In the same period, total funding of almost £834,000 was provided under the Sport NI athlete investment programme to athletes preparing for 2014. I anticipate that continued Exchequer and lottery funding will be provided through Sport NI to support athletes' preparation for future competitions. There will be a focus on 2018 and the Gold Coast games, and that focus will be shaped by the outcomes of Sport NI's review of the Glasgow games. In 2013, the Sport Matters monitoring group received a report detailing the actions around this target. It agreed that the target had been met and that facilities had been either newly developed or upgraded to support the player and athlete. The group toured nearly 20 projects that may be deemed as directly contributing to the PL23 target, including the 50-metre pool in north Down and new or upgraded facilities for boxing, which have yet to be completed, cycling, basketball, hockey, athletics, rowing and many more sports. However, it was also determined that, although that target had been partially achieved, there was evidence of significant additional need and demand for performance facilities to support sport governing bodies.

As part of that, Sport NI is working in partnership with councils to deliver a sports facilities strategy along with the 11 council areas. The documents will take into account the existing facilities and the demand for new ones. We must, however, where possible, continue the process of developing our sporting infrastructure so that we all have the opportunity to inspire and help those who want to compete. If they do so, they need all our support to realise their full talent and potential. Sport Matters recognises that there is a requirement for additional funding from not just government but stakeholders, including councils. There is much more to be done. As Minister for sport, I remain committed to ensuring that we do all that we can.

I welcome the fact that all Members spoke very positively about our athletes. They made special mention of the boxers, which is right. Mention was also made of all the other roles that we need to fulfil to ensure that the athletes have their opportunity. The role of rugby sevens and hockey was mentioned. As Nelson McCausland and Michael McGimpsey said, this is something that predates us all, but I intend to send a transcript of the debate to the governing bodies of those sports to try to ensure that we have full inclusion. It is regrettable that past athletes missed their opportunity to perform.

I also acknowledge that, despite the personal bests that they achieved, some of the athletes fell short of what they expected of themselves and were very disappointed. I was delighted, even from the tone of the debate, that it was not personal, because those athletes are children and young people with families supporting them. They need our encouragement to participate fully in future competitions.

I welcome the debate and all the contributions that Members have made. There is much more to be done, particularly on the investment that we need in infrastructure for things such as velodromes, track and field, and strength and conditioning. It is great that we hopefully have three stadia that will be developed for those sports to avail themselves of opportunities. There is much more to be done, but I welcome the fact that we have had the debate today.

Mr Hilditch: I add my support to the motion and acknowledge the many positive contributions made by Members this afternoon. I join in the congratulations to all who were successful, compliment those who came close and sympathise with the participants where situations and conditions may have gone against them on the day.

The achievements of the boxing team certainly carried Northern Ireland in the medal table. It was perhaps a wise strategy by the Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games Council not to announce targets prior to the games, thus not pressurising athletes and building expectations. The Northern Ireland medal haul improved from four years ago in Delhi and was only three short of that from the Edinburgh games in 1986.

As a country, we have notably produced talented sportspeople. We seem to have that in-built psyche and DNA for cultivating talent, whether it be in amateur boxing or professional golf. Today's debate has again highlighted that. Indeed, there are many Monday mornings in the House on which the Matter of the Day is on a sports-related topic, where credit has been given and Members have spoken with pride.

It is a quick turnaround to the next games. Three and a half years of preparation can fly by, and today's motion certainly places the Department and the current Minister in pole position to ensure that the appropriate training, resources and facilities are in place to maximise any medal haul in 2018.

5.00 pm

Unfortunately, we are having financial difficulties outlined to us daily. Yesterday, I attended a departmental briefing to the Culture, Arts and Leisure Committee on the monitoring rounds. Perhaps, our expectation of delivery and our confidence in the ability to deliver resources and facilities are not as high as they should be. However, we must look beyond the barriers, and, setting aside the Commonwealth Games targets, we cannot lose sight of sport as one of the vehicles that constantly breaks down barriers in our society and has a major effect on other Departments, such as Health and Education, as Members mentioned.

We must remind ourselves that over half of our population is involved in sports-related activities. That covers those with disabilities, elite performers and those who wish to spectate socially. We have many unsung heroes in our sporting community, and not everyone gets the chance to fill the back pages, lift a trophy or covet a medal. There are hundreds who work away in the background, are dedicated to their sport, contribute to a lasting legacy and encourage others to follow.

Today's motion reminds me of a link between the Commonwealth Games and my home town. In 1998, cricket was introduced as a one-off to the games. Northern Ireland entered a side, even though cricket is usually played internationally on an all-Ireland basis. One local lad from Carrickfergus, Ryan Eagleson, was given the opportunity to compete in the games. That added to his experience and career, and he went on to represent Ireland in 65 internationals. He became a cricketing development officer, and he is now manager of the under-19s side. This year, 16 years later, he helped to lead Carrick to an unprecedented four-trophy haul, including the all-Ireland National Cup, the Ulster Senior League Section 1, the Ulster Shield and the T20 Trophy. Ryan has been an inspiration to local cricketers and is typical of the dedication, enthusiasm and will to succeed shown by many of our sportsmen and women. That is a story that could be repeated in many of the towns and villages across the Province, as those unsung heroes build that legacy.

It would be remiss of me to not revisit the issue of community sports hubs, which has been raised many times before, if we are looking to resource our facilities. I have stated before that sports provision impacts on health, education and the social economy. We can look closely at our neighbours in Scotland and, as was mentioned, how they have maximised their resources with community sports hubs. We are too small a country to provide facilities for individual needs. We must look at bringing together different strands of participation, from elite to community and leisure.

To that end, it is crucial that the new councils and the local government structure have an important part to play. With the new councils in place from next April, a joined-up approach is needed. I will leave it to the experts to decide whether Sport NI will be the conduit to lead that or whether a strategic group will need to be set up with various partners. That is a pending priority as we try to develop our sports facilities.

Turning to the debate, all Members who spoke and the Minister offered their congratulations to the participants in the games. Mr Campbell ably introduced the motion and listed the medallists. He linked future improvement with health issues and the need to tackle obesity and to get greater participation generally. He also sought a strategic plan and used the Scottish model as an example.

Ms McCorley paid tribute to the coaches and the families and friends of the athletes for their support. Again, she linked sport to health and female participation. Ms McKeivitt commended all athletes for their commitment and dedication and noted other recent sporting achievements. Mr McGimpsey used his experience in health promotion and talked of the potential in sports like rugby and hockey. Again, he raised the Sandy Row boxing issue. Ms Anna Lo highlighted the public interest in the games and potential venues, which would need a lot of work. Mr Humphrey listed some past medallists and highlighted recent progressive meetings that have taken place on future opportunities. He also mentioned rugby, hockey and representation issues. Mr McMullan outlined commitments from Sport NI and the sports lottery issues, including funding. Mr McCausland highlighted the Northern Ireland brand and the showcasing opportunity that the country has on these occasions. He also mentioned additional participation in rugby and hockey. Mr Bradley said that sport was a unifying force. Mr Basil McCrea, whilst indicating that we were deluding ourselves, highlighted some structural issues and the benefits of upping the ante in the process. The Minister then gave an account of the interaction with the Northern Ireland team; highlighted the success in boxing, without mentioning any investment for it; made a commitment to review performances along with the governing bodies; and gave a commitment to the terms of the motion.

We look forward to the Minister putting some meat on the bones of any review at a later date. We thank everyone who made a contribution to the debate and commend the motion to the House.

Question put and agreed to.

Resolved:

That this Assembly recognises the tremendous achievement of the entire Northern Ireland Commonwealth Games team at the recent Glasgow games, in particular the boxing team; congratulates all those involved; and calls on the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure to urgently reassess other sports that might be expected to excel in the 2018 Commonwealth Games and ensure the appropriate training, resources and facilities are in place to maximise our medal return in 2018.

Motion made:

*That the Assembly do now adjourn. —
[Mr Deputy Speaker.]*

Adjournment

Sporting Provision: Dungiven

Mr Deputy Speaker: The proposer of the topic shall have 15 minutes, and all other Members who wish to speak will have approximately seven minutes.

Mr Ó hOisín: Go raibh maith agat, a LeasCheann Comhairle. Tá mé breá sásta páirt a ghlacadh sa díospóireacht atrátha seo faoi ionad spóirt faoi dhíon agus áiseanna eile spóirt i nDún Geibhinn agus a cheantar. I am very pleased that my topic was accepted for debate, although that perhaps reflects the anger in the local community about the issue. We had a public meeting in August, and the anger was palpable, so I hope to address some of the outstanding issues that came from that.

First and foremost, I declare an interest as a sports club official, because of my community involvement and because I was part of the management committee of the Dungiven sports pavilion, which is one of the facilities that we are talking about.

Dungiven is rightly famous for its sporting achievements and the wide variety of sporting codes practised in the area, be it athletics, boxing, GAA, soccer, bowls, badminton, handball, tennis, ladies' football, camogie, angling, bocchia, squash, kick-boxing, golf, cycling and, believe it or not, we once had a cricket team as well.

I took exception to what Basil McCrea said about people riding on the coat-tails of some of our better-known sportspeople. Some of them, particularly some of the local ones, cut their teeth in amateur sports, where it was the efforts of volunteers to create the facilities that took them to sporting prowess in later life.

I think particularly of St Canice's ABC in Dungiven, which has had almost an embarrassment of champions down through the years. Probably the most famous is Paul McCloskey, who was Irish, British and European light welterweight champion before he challenged — unfortunately, unsuccessfully — for the WBA light welterweight title in 2012. Likewise, his colleague Eamonn O'Kane — he was not referred to by name earlier — led the Commonwealth team that went to India in 2010 and returned with, I think, five medals, including three gold.

We also had five all-Ireland winners from the parish of Dungiven on the 1993 team: Brian McGilligan, Richard Ferris, Kieran McKeever, Eugene Kelly and Joe Brolly. Three went on to receive all-star awards. Jim McGroarty played professional soccer for Stoke City in England. In the Paralympics, Denis McMacken was the bowls gold medallist and world Paralympic champion. We also have a double amputee, Ryan O'Connor, a great young sportsman, and I want to touch on what he has done later. Of course, we have Special Olympians who competed for Ireland, such as Damien Murphy in swimming and bowls.

The current council facilities in the area are far from ideal. The council owns one pitch, which for much of the season is swamped. It has no floodlights, and the changing facilities are a converted shipping container. Recent building surveys of the sports pavilion building have shown that it is not fit for purpose. It was built in 1984 and is probably due for demolition and replacement shortly. Indeed, one recent survey showed such a deterioration that the showers, which have not been in use for some time, are a potential source of legionella.

The roof is leaking, the floor is lifting, and the entire building is not disability-accessible. Ryan O'Connor, one of our elite Paralympian athletes, cannot even use the sports pavilion.

Estimates are that it would require £1 million to rectify this. In fairness to the council, it had identified the requirement for new facilities some time ago. With that in mind, Limavady Borough Council commenced work on the delivery of replacement facilities, including the potential purchase of additional land adjacent to the existing buildings. A timeline was rolled out for delivery, including the consultation, which had over 200 people in attendance, including 70 clubs, organisations and individuals. An economic appraisal began this year, and a bid was made to DCAL for £2.5 million. That was agreed and accepted by the statutory transition committee.

In May, the Department of the Environment deemed that projects over £250,000 would need shadow council approval. That happened when the council was on the cusp of appointing a design team. We then had the elections, and, at its July meeting, the Causeway Coast and Glens super-council delayed the project for a one-month moratorium. There was a suggestion of an audit of Causeway Coast and Glens council facilities, including the Dungiven project.

Last week, an all-party group visited Dungiven and the Limavady borough and was shocked at the provision of facilities. There was a question mark over the costings of the entire project, but, given the commitments under the Programme for Government, the framework document and some newspaper and media speculation about the costings being up to £7 million, I am not sure how they could have come to such a conclusion, given that, at no point, had a design team been appointed. The costings of the design team are much less than that.

Mr McQuillan: I thank the Member for giving way. How did DCAL decide to give £2.2 million to a project that has not been costed?

Mr Ó hOisín: In answer to the question from the Member opposite, I think that the bid came from the council. Obviously, the overall spend will be more than £2.5 million, but what I am saying is that the figure of £7 million may or may not prove practical. It may — indeed, it should — come in at a lot less than that.

We also have to consider that it is a capital spend over 25 or 30 years. I know that, during my time in council — I am sure that George Robinson will remember this as well — when we delivered the Roe Valley Arts and Cultural Centre for £4 million, that worked out at an increase of about 28p a year to our ratepayers over that time. We also delivered the Scroggy Road 3G pitch for £650,000, which was fully funded. This is all part of an ongoing project that we have been trying to deliver. Unfortunately, some people voted against that. Indeed, some of the people who voted against it do not leave the place now and are very pleased with it, but that is enough about that.

There is some talk of legal challenges, which may happen, but I can assure Members that there is huge local anger because of the lack of provision. We should not involve ourselves in zero-sum politics, because equality delayed is equality denied. I believe that it is totally unreasonable —

Mr Campbell: Will the Member give way?

Mr Ó hOisín: Yes, go ahead.

Mr Campbell: The Member says that there is a lot of anger. If there have been campaigns for sporting provision, one can understand that people want them to be delivered, but is the anger directed against an audit of provision per se to try to ensure equitable treatment across the new council, or is the anger directed in some other way?

Mr Ó hOisín: I think that the anger is directed at the dereliction, which has existed for historical reasons, and the fact that we do not have the facilities that we deserve and require. It is unreasonable for the Causeway Coast and Glens council to refuse to allow Limavady Borough Council to appoint a design team. After all, this is not the issuing of a contract; it is costings —

Mr Swann: Will the Member give way?

Mr Ó hOisín: Yes, go ahead.

Mr Swann: I am looking for a point of information on the appointment of a design team. If there is the potential for a legal challenge — I think that Sean McGlinchey, a Sinn Féin councillor, mooted that legal challenge — would that delay the appointment of a design team in any way?

5.15 pm

Mr Ó hOisín: I am not sure that I got the meaning of the Member's question. I think that the legal challenge might be on disability access, for a start. or it might be on overall sporting provision. That is where the legal challenge will probably come from.

There is also the aspect of the interdependence of funding for the Rugby Avenue project in Coleraine, so I appeal for all-party unity on the delivery of all those projects for all the people of the new council area. I do not want to see any repeat of the deliberate dereliction of responsibility for the provision of sporting and community facilities. It has not been a very auspicious start for the new council, but I hope that it is not beyond redemption. I welcome the Minister's commitment to all the projects. There is a workshop next Wednesday, 8 October, and we encourage our council colleagues to attend and do as the Minister said, in her reply to an oral question from me on 16 September:

"I imagine that that position should be, and will be, sorted out with local representatives in the new council configuration and, indeed, with officials that are there. When I made my investment to Coleraine Borough Council, I was very clear that it was part of a north-west legacy plan. Maybe the officials there, or even the elected reps, did not fully understand the implications and the import of that. I urge all local representatives, along with officials from both council areas, to come together to try to get the matter resolved, because proper sporting facilities are required in the Dungiven area." — [Official Report, Bound Volume 97, p138, col 1].

I hope that other Members concur.

Mr Campbell: As I said to the proposer of the Adjournment debate in my intervention, it is difficult to establish where the anger is directed. I drive past an exhibition of it every day I pass through the town of Dungiven, where a huge banner says, "Dungiven says Yes, but the Causeway Coast and Glens Super Council says No". Of course, there have been a number of very unfortunate comments made by a Sinn Féin councillor, amongst others. They were referred to by Mr Swann. That councillor indicated that, in his view, this was a sectarian decision. I noticed that in the 10 minutes and 30 seconds that Mr Ó hOisín took to propose the debate he did not, on any occasion, mention the S-word. I just wonder whether Sinn Féin has had a rethink. I hope they have, and if so I would welcome it, because I fail to see how trying to establish an audit of sporting provision across the new council area — to establish what is required, where it is required and the best way to deliver it — could be regarded as a sectarian decision. The Member wants to intervene.

Mr Ó hOisín: I thank the Member for giving way. The change of mind perhaps happened when part of that audit was carried out. A visit was made to the facilities in Dungiven and people actually saw the state of the facilities. So, there have certainly been changes of mind.

Mr Campbell: I am not much clearer now on whether there has been a change of mind on the use of the S-word. I thought that I was giving way for the Member to establish that, but I am afraid that he went off on a tangent.

The bottom line here is that every public representative wants to ensure that there is sporting provision across his or her constituency. As regards this Adjournment debate, that applies across East Londonderry. No one wants to see any sporting discipline, group of people, village or town denied sporting facilities. One would imagine that the audit will show what has been provided and where it has been provided. Hopefully, it will show that there are other locations that equally need provision. I hope that, at the conclusion of the debate, there will be consensus that sporting provision should be made across the district, irrespective of who the people are, as has been the case in the past. I noted what Mr Ó hOisín said in relation to my intervention about where the anger is directed.

You could conclude from his response that the anger of local people in Dungiven was directed against what is a nationalist council in Limavady for not providing what it is they are now trying to get through the new super-council. I was seeking to establish where the anger was directed. Was it at the decision to have an audit? It does not appear to be. Yet, he said that it was directed at those whose delivery previously had been some sort of historical underachievement. Of course, the people who deliver in local government are Limavady Borough Council. The largest party in Limavady Borough Council is Sinn Féin. Therefore, I do not know whether we have today a Sinn Féin MLA criticising Sinn Féin councillors for not providing sporting provision in Dungiven, but that is what it sounds like.

Hopefully, we can get to an end where we do have that consensus and there is a determination to reach a position across the constituency and the Causeway Coast and Glens District Council area where that audit is carried out and completed and that the end result of that is equality of provision right across the council area for everyone irrespective of their religious or political belief.

Mr Dallat: I live in the neighbouring council area. I have a lot of sympathy for the people of Dungiven who apparently did not get the nod to go ahead with the design exercise. That is all that it was. Cathal Ó hOisín, in his introduction, mentioned all those famous people in Dungiven. I just want to remind him that we have Hannah Shields, who climbed Everest, and Martin O'Neill, who, of course, needs no explanation to anyone. Every community is proud of their people, particularly their young people, and they want to see the best provision for them. In recent times, because of health issues and so on, sport and such activities have become lifelong. The centre in Dungiven certainly did that.

I know that all of us could regret the past. I spent 33 years in Coleraine Borough Council. I hope that I do not cause offence by saying that it was unionist dominated. Every inch had to be fought for. There were no gifts.

Mr Campbell: You were the mayor.

Mr Dallat: I picked up Gregory Campbell saying that I was the mayor. The council came into being in 1973. It is finishing next year. In that span, there has been one nationalist mayor.

Mr Campbell: How many councillors were there?

Mr Deputy Speaker: Order.

Mr Dallat: I worried about Limavady and Dungiven in particular when the three models were mentioned; the seven-, 11- and 15-council models. I realised that if the seven- or 11-council model was chosen, a nationalist-controlled council was going into a completely new environment. I pleaded with Alex Attwood to support the 15-council model. At the Executive meeting — I hate to say this, but it is true — Martin McGuinness, after 10 minutes of debate, forced a vote, and we were left with the 11-council model. It means that actually only two councils switched — if we need to talk in those terms. They were Limavady Borough Council and Moyle District Council. Both happened to be in the new Causeway Coast and Glens District Council area. I was actually glad to hear Gregory say the name because apparently they cannot even agree on that. No; they cannot agree on that. The “Glens” part somehow causes problems to them and they need to get “Coleraine” into it.

With my 33 years' experience in Coleraine Borough Council, I would not wish that on anyone. Sporting facilities in Coleraine included 22 soccer pitches and no Gaelic games pitches. Only when legal action was threatened did that change. I can tell you that when the councils began to be a little more generous toward GAA clubs, it changed the whole atmosphere of the place. I am sure that the Minister would agree with me that sport is something that should bring people together. My God, it has in recent times. [Inaudible.]

Mr Deputy Speaker: All remarks must be made through the Chair, please.

Mr Dallat: I just find it impossible to accept that the same individuals who sat on Limavady Borough Council supported the project going to the design stage, and then, when they got in with their new cronies in Coleraine, they changed their minds. I would not call anybody a Judas — God forbid, I would never do that — but that is exactly what they did. They put one hand up to support the project in Limavady, and then the other one. You can say what you like, but that is what they did. That is an awfully bad start for a new council, and it certainly did not do anything for the type of unity that we need across the new council area. I do not want to see the new council being a microcosm of what went before.

Mr McQuillan: I thank the Member for giving way. Does he think that the audit that the Causeway Coast and Glens District Council — I will say it as well, John; I have no problem with it — is carrying out is a good thing or a bad thing?

Mr Dallat: I am really grateful to my former colleague from Coleraine Borough Council. I have very fond memories of him sitting on the other side, barging across at me. You need to bear in mind that the shadow council started voting on single projects. Then, when it got down to the last three, which included the Dungiven project, it had a multiple vote. I know that I am being a suspicious person. Why do you think that happened? I will take your advice not to talk across the Floor, although it is very tempting to do it.

Adrian intervened there. Of course audits are very important, but this was not committing the new council to anything; it was only asking it to proceed to design stage. It was not being asked to pay any money; the money was already provided by the old council, which is going out of business next April.

Mr Campbell: I thank the Member for giving way. I thought that Mr McQuillan's question was fairly straightforward: whether Mr Dallat thought that the audit was a good thing or a bad thing. I posed that question to Mr Ó hOisín, but I did not get a response either. I thought that Mr Dallat might have responded about whether he thought that it was a good thing.

Mr Dallat: I would be very surprised if Mr Campbell did not think that his colleague on that Bench was talking an awful lot of sense, whether he was or not.

Audits are very important. Of course they are, but this was stopping a project that had already begun and that several years of planning had gone into. That is the difference. Why pick on it? Why pick on Dungiven? Was there something about that town that they did not like?

Mr McQuillan: Will the Member give way?

Mr Dallat: No. You have had your say, and I will have my couple of minutes of glory as well.

I want to conclude by saying to the ordinary people outside —

Mr Deputy Speaker: The Member should bring his remarks to a close.

Mr Dallat: — whether Protestant, Catholic or of no faith whatsoever, that this is not the way forward.

Mr Swann: First, I will explain to Members and the Minister why I am here today. It comes into the new Causeway Coast and Glens District Council area, which, as it will include Moyle and Ballymoney, will cover part of my constituency.

Mr Campbell: You can say it, too.

Mr Swann: I can say it, too. I have no shame nor embarrassment in saying it.

I think it was back in May when the Member for East Antrim Oliver McMullan brought an Adjournment debate about leisure facilities in Moyle. I thought that this would be along the same lines. At that stage, unfortunately, the Environment Minister responded because somehow they had put that responsibility under Environment rather than DCAL, even though it was about sporting provision. We got round that debate anyway. One of the things that I realised between that debate and today's, and which I think is important in regard to the audit, was that the motion that Sinn Féin brought about the lack of sporting provision and facilities in Moyle and the glens was on the same basis as they are talking about the lack of sporting provision in Dungiven. I thought that that is where an audit of the entire Causeway Coast and Glens area would bring those two problems together. At that stage, by conducting that audit, which I think was proposed by my party colleague Councillor William McCandless, the entire sporting provision would be looked at.

When you look at some of the recommendations of Sport NI, there are some areas in the Causeway Coast and glens that are oversubscribed with pitches and facilities. We should look towards an equality —

5.30 pm

Mr Ó hOisín: I thank the Member for giving way. I want to refer to something that was said earlier. A number of the projects went through and were approved, so what was the problem with the remaining ones? What were the issues there? Did they have to be seen, especially when they came from the old councils and not the new council, and, as others alluded to, at no cost to the new council?

Mr Swann: I thank the Member for bringing that up. It also explains another reason why I am here today. It was not just Dungiven that was stopped. That should be made clear. It is not the victimisation of Dungiven that this debate should be focused on. The four projects that were stopped were Dungiven, Benone, the Riada playing fields and the Joey Dunlop centre in Ballymoney in my constituency, which comes under the Causeway Coast and Glens District Council. This is not about nationalists or unionists stopping one facility or another; it was about establishing an audit of a number of new councils coming together —

Mr Dallat: Will the Member spare me just a moment?

Mr Swann: Certainly.

Mr Dallat: One of the features of the Dungiven project was that the funding from various sources was time-limited. In fact, I think that it was limited to September. Refusing to allow it to go to design stage put the project in jeopardy.

Mr Swann: That is the point that I was trying to make to Mr Ó hOisín earlier. When it was put in jeopardy, do you start to talk about legal proceedings? As far as I am aware, the audit concludes this month. I will stand corrected if any Member in the House can inform me of anything different. The funding being in jeopardy is the big thing. I am glad that the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure is here because I think that the DCAL funding was part of it.

I do not think that anybody here opposes support for sport; Mr Ó hOisín will know that from our time in the Committee for Culture, Arts and Leisure. When it came to the provision of libraries in rural communities, he fought for Dungiven as much as I fought for Kells, and we fought for a similar cause at that stage. The provision of sport across the entire Causeway Coast and glens is where the audit should be based and where we should be focusing for the ratepayers and the constituents in that area.

One thing that was highlighted — I know that Mr Campbell referred to the banner — I would almost take it personally that the decision by my council colleague was referred to as sectarian. If anybody here knows William McCandless, they will know that the man is far from sectarian. That is something that I want to clarify.

Mr McQuillan: I thank the Member for bringing the debate. I will give you a wee bit of background to the debate, but, before I start, I have to say that it tells you something about the debate today when we have Gregory Campbell calling for consensus and Mr Dallat and Mr Ó hOisín using the S-word. There is something powerfully wrong about that.

Mr Ó hOisín: On a point of order, Mr Deputy Speaker. At no point was the S-word used in my supposition.

Mr McQuillan: It should not matter whether it is Catholic or Protestant; it is a sporting facility that we are talking about here. John Dallat is the guy who brought it into the conversation.

A feasibility study was conducted by Otium Leisure Consultancy on behalf of Limavady Borough Council in 2012. Proposals therein included three main elements: the refurbishment or development of Dungiven Sports Pavilion; the relocation of an indoor community sports facility to an alternative site; and the need for and development of an outdoor sports facility. The report was intended not to identify a preferred option for development but to put forward a range of solutions. Its basis included a consultation with the local sports club and community groups. It claimed that a consultation meeting was attended by 160 people representing 21 sports clubs and 23 community groups. Local sports clubs have a membership of 3,200, so it was not that well attended if you take that into consideration. Seven options were outlined, ranging in capital outlay from £1.95 million to £7.22 million. It said that a full economic appraisal was required to further test the options and identify the preferred solution. It went on to suggest observations in its conclusions. Those include the assessment of need — demand clearly demonstrates the need — for indoor sports and community facilities and outdoor sports facilities. That points to options that deliver indoor and outdoor facilities on one or separate sites. It also recommended that the site at Ballyquin Road/Main Street could be enhanced with the inclusion of the ground that has the PSNI station on it presently.

We move forward to this year and to the Causeway Coast and Glens District Council. A capital workshop held in Flowerfield on 16 July recommended that the new council would have a capital spend programme of £8.8 million. The £7.1 million version of the Dungiven scheme came before the new shadow council on 24 July — it has not been costed, but it is still £7.1 million; I do not know where that came from — at its second meeting, along with other capital schemes from across the legacy councils. It was decided that decisions on all capital projects should be suspended for one month to enable officers to have more time to present more complete information on existing leisure provision in the area, other pipeline projects of significance to the new council area, population densities, travel times, demand and the impact that such schemes would have on rates etc. It was implied that a significant DCAL grant would be lost if the decision to proceed to the £250,000 design stage was not taken there and then. Our party felt that there was not enough information available to make an informed decision and that, on the face of it, spending £7 million to serve a population of 7,800 in Dungiven and district was disproportionate. There are modern leisure facilities in Limavady, Londonderry and Maghera, each 12 miles or less from Dungiven. Portstewart has a similar-sized population but has no council sporting leisure facilities, and we are not seeking to spend a similar sum on provision there.

Sinn Féin led calls for a special emergency meeting of Limavady Borough Council to discuss the situation — the meeting was held on 5 August — and of the Causeway council on 7 August. Ms Hickey endorsed the notice, giving Sinn Féin the eight names that it required to get the meeting called. It was agreed that decisions on all major capital projects not yet in contract should be deferred until October, giving the council officers time to put together a full appraisal of the current sport and leisure provision in the new council area and the impact of proposed projects on existing and other planned provision. The review would also examine population densities and travel times.

It should be noted that, when the decision to postpone making a commitment to the Dungiven scheme was taken, extension and improvement projects at the Joey Dunlop Leisure Centre were also postponed to allow the council to take a fully informed decision from objective and relevant information. This is good governance and a responsible attitude to ratepayers' money. It also caused some pain in our party grouping, as representatives from Ballymoney were keen to see the Joey Dunlop centre plan taken forward.

Mr Campbell: Will the Member give way?

Mr McQuillan: Yes.

Mr Campbell: The Member is outlining what Mr Swann outlined, which is that some of the other projects were also put on hold pending the audit. Is he aware of any campaigns or accusations or banners being put up at any of the other locations, all of which require sporting provision as well? I am not aware of that; perhaps the Member could outline it if he is aware of it.

Mr McQuillan: I thank the Member for his intervention. I do not know of any at all, so it is very odd that it is just Dungiven that has taken this stand.

The proposed scheme at Dungiven has not been refused; it is on hold pending completion of the sport and leisure facilities and services strategy development work for the new council area. The same type of work on leisure and sports projects in the Ballymoney and Coleraine areas is similarly on hold. It is not about Catholics and Protestants; it is about all the sporting facilities. There is nothing sectarian about it at all.

Mr Ó hOisín: I thank the Member for giving way. Does he realise that the Dungiven project was not only attracting moneys from a different source — namely DCAL, through the City of Culture legacy moneys — but had money set aside in Limavady Borough Council for the same projects? It was much further advanced than many of the other projects, including some of those that received approval.

Mr McQuillan: I thank the Member for that, but I am not sure what projects received the go-ahead on that night. I am talking about the three main projects, the three that will take up the most spending. We also have to be mindful of areas such as Moyle, which has no sport and leisure facilities at all. They will be looking for help to build something there. I also know that Loughgiel GAA is looking to the Causeway council to help it to develop its ground.

As I said, the total capital spend for the Causeway council is £8.8 million. If it spends £7.2 million on the Dungiven project, the rest of the region will lose out. There is no doubt in my mind or the mind of anybody else who has visited the site that Dungiven needs some sort of facility, but it is about getting agreement on the facility that is required.

Mr G Robinson: Mr Deputy Speaker, I am pleased to speak in the debate. First, Dungiven has leisure facilities, and I will not argue that some facilities need to be updated. In March 2013, when I was a member of Limavady Borough Council, I opposed such large expenditure on a replacement facility in Dungiven. If that project had gone through, it would have cost ratepayers in the Limavady area a substantial rates hike. Secondly, I will tell the Assembly of some facility provision that exists within a four-mile radius of Dungiven. There are the Gortnahey GAA pitches; the Burnfoot pitches; the Curragh Road football pitches; the Curragh Road play facilities; St Canice GAC in Dungiven town; the Drumrane Road GAC pitch; the O'Brien's state-of-the-art GAC facilities and council-provided play area; St Mary's Banagher GAC in Feeny, which has just received planning permission for an extension; and the main leisure centre in Dungiven town, to name but a few. Does that sound like an area — Dungiven and its hinterlands — in which there is a lack of sports facility provision for a population of approximately 3,000?

The so-called sectarian decision, as it was referred to by a Sinn Féin councillor, to put on hold the redevelopment of a new replacement facility at a cost of approximately £7.2 million to ratepayers was not, in fact, sectarian but one of a series of projects deferred by the newly elected Causeway Coast and Glens District Council owing to capital costs. Those also included projects in Ballymoney and Coleraine that have been deferred until October of this year. How that project was deemed sectarian completely baffles me.

I believe that sport offers great benefits for the population, and facilities are required to ensure maximum engagement. However, those facilities cannot be built regardless of cost, especially when there is an economic crisis created by the party of the Member who proposed the topic and the SDLP. Perhaps the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure will state where the proposed grant aid will come from, as her budget will undoubtedly be cut as a result of the current political posturing. If there is no grant aid, the likelihood of the project reaching fruition will diminish. My concern is that, although other suitable options for the redevelopment of Dungiven leisure centre were presented, the most expensive option was pushed through by a nationalist-controlled council with little thought of the economic consequences to the local ratepayers.

I believe that a workable and sensible accommodation on the size and price of the project can eventually be reached when other overall projects throughout the new Causeway Coast and Glens District Council area are appraised. Let Sinn Féin and the SDLP be positive for once and bring the matter to a conclusion by behaving responsibly and by reaching consensus for an area that, in my opinion, is reasonably well catered for with sports facilities.

From a constituency point of view, I have no problem with facilities in any part of the Limavady borough area, but, in the present economic climate, with so many constituents unemployed, the new council has a massive task and needs to be prudent when making decisions on the whole area's needs, economic and sporting. The facilities that I mentioned are just the facilities in the Dungiven area.

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure): Gabhaim buíochas le Cathal Ó hOisín as an díospóireacht. I thank Cathal Ó hOisín for bringing forward the Adjournment debate to the House and the five other Members who contributed to the debate. All the contributors spoke about the need for facilities in the new council area. I will bank that, because we need to move forward. I appreciate the fact that Robin Swann, through representing other aspects of the council, contributed to the debate, but, for me, this is primarily around the capital investment legacy of the City of Culture. I might not go into detail about projects in his constituency, but that is not to say that I am oblivious or agnostic about them, because I am not.

Mr Swann: Will the Minister give way?

Ms Ní Chuilín: Certainly.

5.45 pm

Mr Swann: I think that Mr Ó hOisín said that this was connected to the Coleraine project. Just for clarity, what is the timeline on the funding for the legacy projects?

Ms Ní Chuilín: I imagine that the capital needs arising from the City of Culture in the city of Derry and the surrounding areas of Coleraine, Limavady, Dungiven and Strabane will not only come to the end of this mandate but, potentially, go into the next. Given that money is not flush, we may need to prudently organise and plan around having those facilities fulfilled if we can.

Mr McQuillan: Thank you, Minister, for giving way. Do you not agree that the Causeway Coast and Glens council is doing that? It is being prudent by asking for this audit and being careful.

Ms Ní Chuilín: I am trying to be generous, and I hope that that is the case. Coming out of this debate, very soon, I will ask Limavady and Coleraine councils and the Causeway Coast and Glens shadow council to come together for a meeting with me and my officials and their officials and elected representatives. I think that we need to assure each other that we are serious about sports provision regardless of where it comes from. It needs to be on the basis of need and not creed. So, if we are all agreed on that, that is a good way forward. I could lift a whole pile of stuff on sports provision in each of the constituencies that some of the sporting codes have brought themselves without the help of Sport NI or the lottery. That is not a good thing, but the fact is that, despite what was said about the population there, the population is growing. We have all been involved in debates about sporting provision, and we had one recently about the Commonwealth Games and even a velodrome. There is a wee bit of 'Field of Dreams' here: build it and they will come. You have to inspire people to become physically active, and you have to provide access to participation for them. If we can agree that that is a good way forward, we need to move forward.

People are suspicious about labels, and, if they feel that someone is potentially using bureaucracy to score points or potentially to be sectarian or to exclude, even if they are proved wrong, no one has the right to say that they have no right to say that even if they disagree. So, people have a right. Equally, I have a right to say to John Dallat, who I have huge respect for, without being patronising, that the Executive meeting that John described that Alex Attwood was at is not the same one that I was at. I will say no more than that.

The issue is that we have an opportunity. I want to go to my colleagues in the Executive as well, because it will involve working with my colleague Mark Durkan. I want to take the opportunity to wish him and Anne all the best on the birth of their baby daughter. Comhghairdeas daoibh. I want to talk to and work with Mark on planning what we need to do. I want to work with Mervyn Storey now in DSD, and, indeed, I want to work with other Departments. The bulk of this money will, hopefully, come from DCAL, with Executive colleague support.

Let us be honest: in that whole constituency over decades, there has not been the investment that it was entitled to. There has not been, and my constituency and other constituencies can also claim that. By claiming it, we throw it out and walk away. We need to do something with it. With the councils coming together, I do think that we have an opportunity to provide sport and physical activities, but we need to look at this with a can-do attitude. Two and a half million pounds is no mean feat, and £1.5 million in Coleraine is no mean feat. We are looking at Strabane, Derry and the outskirts in-between. I went and visited cricket facilities in Magheramason and other areas. I believe that the work that is done through sports is fantastic and needs support, but I do not think that our constituents need us coming here with big bust out crying faces and scoring political points. OK, stuff happened, and we need to move forward. In moving forward, the test for us all is this: what can we do?

I have visited Coleraine, Dungiven, Limavady and many areas in the constituency. There is a need for sporting facilities. How much it will cost and what those needs are for this mandate and future mandates is something that we need to work through, but, as sure as the day is long, there will be sporting facilities in those constituencies. Nobody is getting dragged to the table, but we can come with a collegiate approach from officials in the council areas, elected representatives and DCAL officials. We will have a meeting and work out what we need to do, where we need to go and how, collectively, we can provide constituents in the north-west with sporting facilities that are fit for purpose. The population in the area is growing, and doing that will provide a good stamp. It will be a stamp of value showing that there has been investment, and I believe that it will not only provide local employment, in the construction and post-construction phases, but will hopefully give people an opportunity to be healthier. It will provide a further opportunity for people, in that it has been proven that investment attracts more investment.

I welcome the debate, but, for me, the challenge is what we do next, and I am looking forward to working with you to achieve those facilities in the north-west.

Adjourned at 5.51 pm.

Education

Regulation of the Teaching Profession

Published at 10.00 am on Tuesday 12 August 2014

Mr John O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): I wish to make a statement to Members about an issue that has arisen in respect of the regulation of the teaching profession in the North. I have been advised that the Department has repealed its power to remove a teacher's eligibility to teach. The power, which was contained in the Education & Libraries (Northern Ireland) Order 1986 (the 1986 Order), was repealed in 2009 without replacement provisions having been put in place. I want to apologise to the House and the wider public for this issue which has recently come to light.

When the General Teaching Council was established in 2002, it was intended that it would assume responsibility for the regulation of teachers. It was also intended that the Department's existing teacher eligibility powers would be repealed and provision was made for this in the Education (Northern Ireland) Order 1998 (the 1998 Order). The transfer of this function to the Council did not take place within the timeframe originally envisaged. However, the Department is now taking this work forward in the proposed General Teaching Council Bill.

In 2009 the Department made a Commencement Order which enacted the repeal of the Department's powers under the 1986 Order. However, a breakdown in communication within the Department resulted in a lack of wider awareness of the implications in respect of teacher regulation. This has resulted in a gap in the powers to regulate teachers since 2009 which was not identified nor addressed.

The current legislative position is that teachers cannot have their eligibility to teach removed or restricted by the Department on the grounds of misconduct. In addition the Department cannot obtain or share information with employers relating to individual cases. However, since 2009 the Department continued to exercise its powers under the 1986 Order in a very small number of cases.

I want to reassure Members that the gap in provision does not affect an employer's ability to dismiss a teacher for gross misconduct. More importantly, separate legislation already exists for the barring from teaching of persons deemed unsuitable to work with children and young people.

When informed, I immediately asked officials to provide me with options to resolve the issue quickly and effectively. Therefore to provide assurance to this House, parents and the wider public, I propose introducing regulations using the limited powers available under the 1998 Order. This will enable me to put in place procedures for the General Teaching Council to investigate and adjudicate on cases of teacher professional misconduct. The regulations would provide the Council with the power to remove teachers from the register following an investigation. This will complement the powers already available to other statutory authorities and employers. I will also address the longer term regulation of the teaching workforce more comprehensively in primary legislation.

I hope that all Members will agree that, while the issue is a serious one and extremely regrettable, it is right to ensure that the Department has the necessary legislation in place to provide additional safeguards for the young people in our schools.

Planning Policy Statement 15 — Planning & Flood Risk

Published at 12.30 pm on Tuesday 23 September 2014

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): I am pleased to inform Assembly members that the Executive, at its meeting on 9 September 2014, agreed to the publication of Revised Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 15, titled 'Planning and Flood risk', which I am now issuing in final form.

Revised PPS 15 sets out the Department's planning policies to minimise flood risk to people, property and the environment. Its primary aim is "to prevent future development that may be at risk from flooding or that may increase the risk of flooding elsewhere".

In June 2006, when PPS 15 was first issued, a commitment was given to review this important policy document within 5 years of its publication. The purpose of this commitment was to make sure planning policy on flood risk remains relevant and up to date taking into account evolving information on climate change as well as new evidence and experience of implementing flood risk policy.

Since 2006, there have been a number of important changes in the policy context that have underpinned this review of existing planning policy on flood risk. The European Directive on the Assessment and Management of Flood risks (the Floods Directive) came into force in November 2007 and was transposed into local legislation in 2009. This has led to significant improvements in regard to the quantity and quality of flood risk information now available through the ongoing implementation of the EU Floods Directive in Northern Ireland by DARD, as the competent authority.

Other significant developments include ongoing inter-departmental work aimed at promoting the use of sustainable drainage systems within Northern Ireland. Furthermore, a Reservoirs Bill is due to be enacted next year that will set out provisions for the management of this new source of flood risk highlighted by the Floods Directive.

The Review of this PPS is, therefore, well-timed and I am pleased to be issuing it today in final form.

The revised document contains 5 operational policies. Four of these policies, FLD 1 to FLD4 are carried forward from the existing PPS 15. While the overall thrust of the policies remains the same, some amendments have been made to provide greater clarity or to take account of current best practice. There is one new policy, FLD 5, which sets out planning policy for development in proximity to reservoirs. The revised PPS continues the core PPS 15 policy in setting out a presumption against development in flood plains. The revised PPS also enhances public awareness of flood risk and encourages preparedness through referring to the flood risk information now available and providing new and updated guidance. This includes a review of the guidance on sustainable drainage systems (SuDS) and new guidance on flood proofing of buildings.

In terms of the more detailed changes to the existing policies some will introduce additional constraint to development in flood risk areas and others will introduce additional flexibility where this is proportionate and the flood risks can be adequately mitigated and managed.

The key changes to the existing policies that will introduce additional constraints to development in flood risk areas, include:

- Within defended areas of the flood plain (ie those areas protected by adequate flood defences), the allowance for development of previously developed land is now expressly curtailed in regard to specific types of development because of the residual flood risk. Thus, there is now a stronger presumption against development which involves essential infrastructure, storage of hazardous substances, bespoke accommodation for vulnerable groups (eg residential / nursing homes) and for any development located close to the flood defences;
- Within undefended areas of the flood plain, the existing 'exception' allowing for the use of land for sport and outdoor recreation or amenity space is now amended so as to exclude playgrounds for children, thereby improving safety for this vulnerable group;
- Within undefended areas of the flood plain, the existing 'exception' allowing for the use of land for seasonal occupation by touring caravans and / or camp sites is now removed as an 'exception'. This takes account of changing weather patterns and the vulnerable nature of this form of development.
- Increased protection of flood defence and drainage infrastructure (including watercourses) against development likely to impede operational effectiveness;
- Strengthening of the presumption against the artificial modification of watercourses, for example through culverting.

In addition, a new policy is now introduced that will carefully manage new or replacement development in proximity to reservoirs. This will apply to the potential flood inundation areas of reservoirs above a threshold size of 10000 cubic metres. The policy will require the developer to provide assurance about reservoir safety before planning permission will be granted. In addition, the policy will preclude certain types of development considered inappropriate in these areas (eg bespoke accommodation for vulnerable groups and essential infrastructure) and also any development in which there is a risk of exposure to deep or fast flowing flood water (eg in areas close to the reservoir impoundment).

Changes that will introduce additional flexibility for development in flood risk areas include:

- In addition to the existing provision for consideration of development proposals in the flood plain which are of overriding regional importance, the revised PPS also makes provision for proposals of overriding sub-regional economic importance to be considered, subject to satisfactory Flood Risk Assessment;
- Some changes in regard to the prescribed 'Exceptions' to the policy allow additional flexibility for development in flood plains, subject to meeting the policy criteria and satisfactory Flood Risk Assessment. These are:
 1. A new 'exception' allowing for new development in settlements in the undefended coastal flood plain (eg in areas such as Titanic Quarter in Belfast), provided that the building(s) is elevated to an appropriate level above the flood plain and subject to a number of other policy caveats to ensure safe and sustainable forms of development;

2. An amendment to the existing 'exception' for development within the undefended flood plain where such a location is essential for operational reasons; to allow expressly for agricultural development, where the farm unit is located wholly or largely within the flood plain and alternative suitable sites elsewhere are not available.
- A clearer presumption in favour of development in areas outside flood plains that may be susceptible to surface water flooding. The new policy permits development subject to a satisfactory Drainage Assessment (where this is required), and otherwise, where there is no evidence of a history of surface water flooding;

While flooding is a natural phenomenon that cannot be entirely eliminated, we in government need to do all we can to address this recurring problem which can have devastating impacts on the individuals and communities affected. I believe it is important to ensure that the planning system continues to manage new development so as to further reduce the risk of flooding to people and property.

I am delighted that there is much joined-up work in tackling flooding currently being progressed. Revised PPS 15 is one important example of this. I would like to record my thanks to the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development whose officials from DARD Rivers Agency have made an invaluable contribution to the review of the existing policy and in helping to bring forward this revised policy document.

My Executive colleagues have welcomed Revised PPS 15. I now commend it to you.

Copies of this written statement have been placed in Assembly Member's pigeon holes. A copy of Revised PPS15 is available to view or download from the Departmental website www.planningni.gov.uk/pps15revised

Finance and Personnel

2013-14 Provisional Outturn/2014-15 June Monitoring Round

Published on Thursday 31 July 2014.

Mr Hamilton (The Minister of Finance and Personnel):

The purpose of this written statement is to inform the Assembly of the outcome of the Executive's deliberations on Provisional Outturn for the 2013-14 financial year and the June 2014-15 in-year position. I am doing this by written statement due to the Assembly currently being in recess.

Before moving into the detail of these two issues, it is critical to put on record that I remain gravely concerned about the current financial environment.

Normally, June Monitoring Rounds are benign events whereby the Finance Minister announces how much has been carried over from the previous financial year and, added to the reduced requirements received, the Executive make a number of allocations.

That is not the case this year. Unfortunately this Monitoring Round signals the radical change in the public expenditure environment that I have been warning about for some time. Whilst this pressure on public finances is due to a range of factors, the situation is not assisted by the ideological intransigence displayed by some parties that is going to have serious consequences for every single person within Northern Ireland.

I have, for many months now, been registering my concerns about the need to address welfare reform locally, move forward with the legislation and thereby avoid increasing financial penalties. Instead, dogma and political opportunism have prevailed and this will undoubtedly impact on public services here over the rest of this financial year and beyond.

Today I find myself having to announce immediate in-year budget cuts for all departments, excluding health and education. These cuts will see spend in departments like Regional Development, Justice, and Enterprise, Trade and Investment immediately decreasing by 2.1 per cent. That is only the start with further cuts to be processed in the forthcoming October Monitoring Round. This means less money to create jobs, police our streets and create safer roads.

The local economy is now showing growth and recovery and I am very keen that we as an Executive do everything we can to support our private sector in expanding, competing globally and creating jobs. The fact that the public expenditure position has needlessly been put in jeopardy is all the more frustrating as it inhibits the Executive's ability to support growth in the local economy.

I will expand on the in-year position and our economy later but will first set out the outturn position for last year.

2013-14 Provisional Outturn

The Provisional Outturn outcome is critically important for the Executive and this Assembly. Not only does it provide a strong indication of departmental budget management performance during the last financial year, it also determines the amount of resources that the Executive can plan to carry forward through the Devolved Administration Budget Exchange Scheme.

This scheme allows the Executive to carry forward end of year underspends up to certain limits. For 2013-14 these limits amount to £51.1 million in terms of non-ringfenced Resource DEL and £12.5 million in respect of Capital DEL. Both these limits exclude the Department of Justice (DOJ), which is subject to separate end of year arrangements. Members should note that any underspends recorded above these amounts would be lost to the Executive.

Before detailing the Budget Exchange carry forward, it is necessary to highlight the individual departmental position. As usual the Executive's focus was on the non-ringfenced Resource DEL, which will be referred to as Resource DEL for simplicity hereafter. The non-cash ringfenced Resource DEL element is handled separately since this is strictly controlled by HM Treasury and cannot be used for any other purpose.

Departmental Outcome

The departments registered total underspends of £29.7 million in terms of Resource DEL and £34.8 million in respect Capital DEL. This is detailed in the tables attached to this Statement.

In terms of Resource expenditure, DHSSPS exceeded its Control Total by £13.1 million. This was, in my view, due to poor budget management within the department. The DHSSPS had more than three years since the Budget for 2014-15 was set to ensure it could live within its budget and in that context it was hugely disappointing that it then registered such as significant overspend. Fortunately underspend across other departments was sufficient to ensure that the Executive remained within its HM Treasury Control Total.

In terms of Capital underspends, DHSSPS reported an underspend of £10.2 million, which was due to slippage on Banbridge and Ballymena Health and Care Centre projects and extension to the shelf-life of some vaccines. Again, the budget management displayed by DHSSPS was extremely disappointing.

It should also be noted that the DETI Capital underspend includes £5.7 million relating to the Super Connected Cities scheme and can be carried forward into 2014-15 outside of the Budget Exchange Scheme.

Budget Exchange Scheme

The Budget Exchange Scheme carry forward is determined at the Northern Ireland Block level and excludes a number of elements, including the UK wide Super Connected Cities funding and the Department of Justice. Adjusting for these items reduced the total underspend to £19.4 million in terms of Resource DEL and £14.7 million in respect of Capital DEL. This corresponds to just 0.2 per cent and 1.4 per cent for Resource DEL and Capital DEL respectively.

It is also necessary to adjust for a number of 'Centre' items, which on the Capital side included a downward adjustment of £4.1 million to our RRI borrowing. This means that the Executive can now plan to carry forward £10.9 million of Capital DEL into 2014-15.

On the Resource side there were four such 'Centre' adjustments. The Regional Rate Provisional Outturn outcome was £0.7 million higher than forecast at January monitoring. There was also a £24.8 million overcommitment following the January Monitoring Round. The Executive also paid out £0.1 million less in RRI interest payments than forecast. Finally, the Executive set aside £15.0 million in January Monitoring to meet the estimated Welfare Reform penalty. However this adjustment was actioned by HM Treasury in the 2014-15 year and as a consequence this funding was carried forward from 2013-14. The impact of all of these issues is that the Executive can now plan to carry forward £10.4 million of Resource DEL into 2014-15.

Department of Justice

As already indicated, DOJ has separate End of Year Flexibility arrangements covering this Spending Review period. Under these arrangements DOJ can carry forward an unlimited amount of resources from one year to the next. However, any funding carried forward must first be used to address additional security pressures, although with certain exceptions applying in each particular year. The amounts to be carried forward will be agreed with HM Treasury ahead of the UK Supplementary Estimates later in the year. Members will note that this is the final year of the separate arrangement for DOJ.

Provisional Outturn Conclusion

Despite some poor budget management in one particular department, it is crucial to note that no money was surrendered to HM Treasury.

2014-15 JUNE MONITORING

I will now turn to the 2014 in year position, which was influenced by a range of issues and all of these will be covered next.

'Centre' Items

The starting point for this monitoring round is the overcommitment position, which resulted from the Capital Reallocation exercise agreed by the Executive last year. This led to a starting overcommitment of £76.7 million on the Resource side and £51.6 million on the Capital side.

There were a number of 'Centre' items, which along with the starting overcommitment and the Reduced Requirements surrendered by departments, impacted on the overall financial position in this monitoring round. These 'Centre' items are detailed next.

The Chancellor's 2013 Autumn Statement and 2014 UK Budget had implications for our budget position in this financial year. The combined impact was an increase of £53.2 million on Resource DEL and £15.0 million on Capital Investment.

As already highlighted the Executive can now plan to carry forward £10.4 million Resource DEL and £10.9 million Capital DEL from 2013-14 under the Budget Exchange Scheme. However, as part of the 2014-15 Capital reallocation exercise undertaken last year, the Executive included an assumption that £10.0 million of Capital DEL would be carried forward from 2013-14 under the Budget Exchange Scheme. As a consequence only £0.9 million Capital DEL could be made available for reallocation in this monitoring round.

The Executive previously agreed that in 2014-15 the savings of £5.2 million arising from changes to the Education Maintenance Allowance scheme should be returned to the 'Centre' to offset the £4.6 million pressure relating to Student fees. The residual balance of £0.6 million Resource DEL was available for reallocation.

The Executive previously set aside £5.0 million in 2014-15 to meet the cost associated with the devolution from Westminster of powers enabling the Northern Ireland Assembly to set the rate of Air Passenger Duty on long-haul flights. HM Treasury has now advised that the actual cost to Northern Ireland in this year will be £2.1 million. As a consequence £2.9 million Resource DEL was released for reallocation in this monitoring round.

There was also an additional £9.5 million Resource funding available due to lower RRI interest payment liabilities than anticipated when the Executive's four year Budget was first agreed. This was primarily due to ongoing low interest rates charged by the National Loans Fund and the fact that the Executive borrowed some £45 million less in 2012-13 than originally planned as part of the flexibility negotiated in respect of the A5 road scheme.

HM Treasury has also now commenced the process of reducing the Executive's Resource DEL budget as a consequence of not implementing welfare reform. The Chief Secretary to the Treasury has imposed reductions to the Executive's Resource DEL of £13.0 million in 2013-14 and £87.0 million in 2014-15. The £13.0 million penalty has already been removed from the Executive's 2014-15 Resource DEL Control Total. Of course, the Resource DEL carried forward from 2013-14 under the Budget Exchange Scheme is inclusive of the £15.0 million set aside by the Executive for this purpose, which offsets the budgetary impact in 2014-15.

The latest Regional Rate forecast suggests that income in this financial year is now projected to be £5.0 million below the level included in the budget position, which then created a £5.0 million Resource DEL pressure.

There were also a number of smaller 'centre' pressures, including £0.4 million for statutory salaries, £0.2 million for the Coastal Communities Fund and £0.3 million for the Carrier Bag Levy.

In total, taking into account all of these items resulted in an overcommitment of £19.0 million in terms of Resource expenditure and £35.7 million on Capital investment. This was before departmental reduced requirements were factored in.

Reduced Requirements

Departments declared Reduced Requirements in this monitoring round of £5.3 million resource expenditure and £224.0 million capital investment. Full details are provided in the tables accompanying this Statement. The Executive previously anticipated £132.8 million of capital reduced requirements in the review of 2014-15 capital budgets carried out last year, leaving £91.2 million available for reallocation in this round.

Internal Reallocations

It is good practice that departments seek to manage any emerging pressures within their existing allocations before bringing forward bids for additional allocations. The public expenditure control framework stipulates that internal departmental movements across Spending Areas in excess of the de minimis threshold require the Executive's approval. Details of the internal reallocations approved in this round are detailed in the tables accompanying this statement.

Reclassifications

Departments may also, for a number of reasons, seek to reclassify expenditure from Resource to Capital or vice versa. All such reclassifications need Executive approval and these are also shown in the tables accompanying this Statement.

Departments may also, subject to DFP approval, seek to move budget between the ringfenced and non-ringfenced Resource DEL categories. The impact of these moves is shown in the table detailing the ringfenced Resource DEL position.

Welfare Reform

I have, for some considerable time now, been alerting the Assembly to the dire financial consequences of inaction and delay on addressing welfare reform roll-out. As mentioned earlier, the first penalty instalment for 2013-14 has already been processed by HM Treasury.

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury, in his 31 March 2014 letter to me, indicated that the penalty for this financial year would be £87.0 million rising to £114.0 million next year. The longer we delay in implementing welfare reform, the greater will be the damage that we impose on public services here. I will shortly detail the enormous pressures confronting our key public services. Yet, in spite of these, some in the Executive continue to countenance inaction that wastes £87.0 million. Indeed the damage related to non-delivery of welfare reform will increase dramatically in the coming months. I am at a loss to justify to the public the possible loss of 1,400 social security related posts in Belfast and Londonderry or the need to pay what will undoubtedly be exorbitant amounts for bespoke IT systems.

If there is no agreement on welfare reform the entire £87.0 million penalty will need to be addressed in this financial year. There is absolutely no doubt about this and it will have serious implications for public services here. The Executive's agreed approach to addressing this issue will be set out towards the end of this Statement.

Resources Available

All the above adjustments impacted on the total amount of resources available to the Executive in this monitoring round.

Setting aside the £87.0 million welfare reform penalty for now, the Executive had £51.6 million of Capital DEL available to allocate but a Resource DEL overcommitment of £10.4 million. Of course, with no agreement on welfare reform this would increase to £97.4 million.

Bids for Additional Resources

Departments submitted bids totalling £344.0 million in respect of Resource expenditure and £236.3 million in terms of Capital expenditure. The individual bids are also included in the detailed tables attached to this Statement.

Delivering Social Change/Social Investment Fund/Childcare Strategy

The Executive, as part of Budget 2011-15, set aside £11.0 million Resource and £15.0 million Capital in respect of the Social Investment Fund in this financial year. The Executive has also agreed that Delivering Social Change projects should be funded from this centrally held fund. In addition, the Executive also set aside £3.0 million Resource for this year to fund Childcare Strategy initiatives.

A number of allocations under the Delivering Social Change banner have been processed in this monitoring round. This includes £1.4 million Resource to DHSSPS, £5 million Resource to DE, £0.7 million Resource to DSD, £0.8 million Resource to DEL and £1.2 million Resource to OFMDFM.

There were also a number of allocations under the Social Investment Fund processed in this round. This included £1.9 million Resource and £1.5 million Capital to OFMDFM; and £0.5 million capital to DSD.

Furthermore an allocation of £1.5 million Resource to OFMDFM from the Childcare Fund has been processed in this round. It was also agreed that £0.15 million Capital from the Social Investment Fund should be transferred to OFMDFM for the purpose of the Childcare Strategy.

Since this is funding accessed from existing central funds set aside by the Executive for this purpose, these transactions were handled as technical transfers rather than allocations. These transfers mean that there is now £12.9 million Capital DEL remaining in the Social Investment Fund for 2014-15, with all Resource DEL relating to the Social Investment Fund now allocated. A total of £1.5 million Resource DEL relating to the Childcare Strategy remains unallocated.

Ringfenced Financial Transactions Capital Funding

The Executive started this financial year with £31.3 million of ring-fenced Financial Transactions Capital. In the 2014 January Monitoring Round, the Executive agreed to provide the University of Ulster with £10.0 million in 2014-15 for its Greater Belfast Development scheme, supplementing the £25.0 million provided in 2013-14.

The Chancellor's 2013 Autumn Statement and 2014 March Budget resulted in additional 2014-15 Barnett consequentials relating to Financial Transactions Capital totalling £3.5 million. The Executive also carried forward £5.9 million from 2013-14. As a consequence, the Executive now has £30.6 million of Financial Transactions Capital available for allocation in 2014-15.

The Executive agreed an allocation to DETI of £0.4 million this year and a further £2.1 million next year for the Northern Ireland Science Park. Following these allocations, the Executive exited the June Monitoring Round with £30.2 million of ring-fenced Financial Transactions Capital unallocated in the 2014-15 year.

Departments are progressing a range of proposals, which should hopefully facilitate further allocations in the October Monitoring Round.

Resource Expenditure Position

I will now return to the significant challenges facing the Executive's Resource expenditure position.

The Departments submitted £344.0 million of bids, which included a number of items totalling £30.4 million that the Executive had previously committed to fund in this year. The Executive agreed to honour those commitments and details of these are also shown in the tables.

Meeting these Executive commitments increased the Resource DEL overcommitment at the 'Centre' to £40.8 million, again excluding the welfare reform penalty.

2014-15 Resource Baseline Reductions and Allocations

The Executive agreed that it was necessary to agree an immediate percentage reduction to departmental budgets in 2014-15. The Executive carefully considered the basis upon which the percentage reduction should be applied to departmental budgets and there were calls to respond to the pressures within the key public services of health and education.

The Executive remains extremely concerned by the deteriorating financial position of the health sector in Northern Ireland. Having incurred a Resource DEL overspend of £13.1 million last year, DHSSPS has now registered Resource pressures of £160.0 million in this financial year. While it was not part of my initial recommendation, some within the Executive also sought protection for DE albeit without offering any justification. This was not and is not my preferred approach. However, in order to obtain Executive agreement on the overall June Monitoring position, it was agreed that DE as well as DHSSPS will be protected from any 2014-15 baseline reductions, along with NI Audit Office and the NI Assembly Ombudsman and Complaints Commissioner. The decision to protect DE in addition to DHSSPS will have significant implications for other departments.

Whilst the Northern Ireland Assembly has not been exempted from the reductions at this stage, the Executive recognises that it needs sufficient funding to perform its functions effectively. Given the Assembly Commission's independence, the Executive therefore agreed to review its decision not to exempt the Assembly Commission from the reductions as part of the October Monitoring Round and will adjust the Assembly budget at that time as necessary.

The Executive also agreed to set aside an additional £20.0 million at the 'Centre' to support pressures in DHSSPS. Access to the £20.0 million will be subject to DHSSPS demonstrating that it is taking the necessary actions to address the residual pressures it faces in this year to ensure that it remains within its Budgetary Control Total.

In addition, the Executive agreed a number of allocations in line with its priorities totalling £17.1 million and details of these allocations are set out in the tables accompanying the Statement.

The outworking of this protection for some departments and the additional allocations meant a greater percentage baseline reduction for other departments. The level of reduction required now to afford protection and meet the bids agreed by the Executive was 2.1 per cent for all other departments. The impact of this on departmental Resource baselines is also shown in the tables attached to this Statement.

Welfare Reform Penalty

The Executive has agreed to further Resource DEL reductions in the October Monitoring Round to cover the welfare reform penalties. If there is no agreement on Welfare Reform this would amount to the full £87 million penalty, which would be a further 2.3 per cent reduction for those departments not protected. Any reduced requirements declared in the October Monitoring Round by individual departments will be used to reduce the level of any adjustments applied to that department in the October round.

My personal preference would have been to apply the additional £87 cut now, instead of waiting until the October Monitoring round. With departments also conveying their concerns that their budgets are under severe pressure, I am also increasingly worried that the NI Executive's overall block position runs the risk of being breached. A decision to adjust departmental budgets by the full amount now would have given departments the certainty about how much their control totals were being reduced and would have permitted far better planning around savings. However, it was not possible to obtain political agreement to that approach. Whilst prudent planning now was not possible and a further reduction to departmental budgets in October is far from ideal, non-agreement to the June Monitoring Round would have been a disastrous outcome. The mature and sensible way forward was therefore to seek to reach an agreement that would at least allow us to move forward and to action what are critically important public expenditure adjustments.

There is no doubt that this immediate 2.1 per cent reduction, along with further reductions in October, will have a serious detrimental impact on individual departments. I have expressed very clearly to all Ministers the need to now ruthlessly enforce the immediate 2.1 per cent reduction. I have also set out the critical need to plan carefully for a further 2.3 per cent reduction in October.

Capital Allocations

In terms of Capital Investment, the Executive agreed allocations totalling £90.2 million. This is a significant reallocation of resources, which will inject capital into key Executive priority areas.

The capital allocations included £23.0 million to DFP for delivery of the Executive's Asset Management Strategy. The Strategy outlined the significant potential to deliver savings in the provision of office accommodation for the public sector through tackling fragmentation in the office estate through the imposition of property controls. SIB's Asset Management Unit, along with DFP Properties Division, has been working to identify a range of options with the potential to deliver recurrent savings to the resource budget as a consequence of an upfront capital investment. Given the significant Capital funding available in 2014-15, the Executive believes that is now well placed to provide support to initiatives aligned to its Asset Management Strategy in this year. Importantly, this investment would deliver future resource savings in an environment of increasing resource budget constraint.

There was also £26.3 million allocated to DRD, which will allow the department to take forward additional roads structural maintenance, coastal defence works and street lighting renewal, amongst other capital works.

Another significant beneficiary is DSD who have been allocated £23.5 million for expansion of the Co-Ownership programme and completion of a number of Urban Regeneration and Community Planning projects ahead of transfer of responsibility to local councils.

These significant capital allocations are not only good news for our construction industry but should also support in excess of 200 first time buyers looking to get on to the property ladder.

Full details of all the capital allocations are detailed in the tables accompanying this Statement.

June Monitoring Outcome

Setting aside the welfare reform issue, the Executive's decisions in this Monitoring Round resulted in a zero overcommitment in terms of Resource DEL. However, the welfare reform penalty must be addressed in this financial year. If there is no agreement on welfare reform the effective overcommitment would be £87.0 million, which would translate into a further 2.3 per cent baseline reduction for all the departments not protected from the cuts. Ministers affected must now plan to deliver these additional cuts in October.

I have also made it clear to all Ministers that they must adhere to their Budget control totals. I do not want a repeat of any department overspending against its budget at the end of this financial year. This will require difficult decisions but these must be made. The blame for this negative impact on public services can be laid firmly at the parties that continue to oppose welfare reform.

On the Capital side, the Executive left June Monitoring with an overcommitment of £38.6 million, a position that is manageable at this stage of the year. This allowed some £90.2 million of capital allocations to the departments, which will provide a significant boost for the local economy.

Whilst the public expenditure environment is extremely difficult, I am pleased with the ongoing recovery in the local economy. Our private sector continues to expand and this was reflected in the latest Ulster Bank PMI Index. This indicated that business activity here rose sharply and actually outstripped the UK average in June. This was also the thirteenth consecutive increase in new business being reported by local companies.

Our construction sector should also start to benefit from improvement in property prices. The Northern Ireland Residential Property Price Index rose 3% between Q4 2013 and Q1 2014. The recent sale of NAMA's Northern Ireland portfolio to US investment firm Cerberus should hopefully lead to increased activity in the local commercial property sector.

Our labour market also continues to improve with the number of people seeking unemployment benefit having fallen for eighteen months in a row, with a reduction almost 5,000 claimants over the last 6 months alone.

All of these indicators have been reflected in a number of job announcements over recent months. In the last month alone, my colleague Arlene Foster has been able to announce over 800 new jobs for Northern Ireland. An expansion at Moy Park will create 628 new jobs across three sites in Dungannon, Craigavon and Ballymena. Other developments include 80 new jobs in Belfast created by Financial Transparency Utility Ltd, 40 new jobs at HeartSine Technologies in Belfast and 50 new jobs at CDE Global in Cookstown.

In conclusion, in light of the many positive developments for our local economy, it is deeply disappointing that I have to deliver such a bleak assessment of our public expenditure position. The reductions of £77.9 million to departmental budgets now are harsh but necessary. They are to assist in paying for over £30 million of commitments already agreed by the Executive as well as a much needed allocation of £20.0 million to DHSSPS. The reductions that Departments face in October – and must begin to plan for now – will be every bit as harsh but they are completely avoidable. They are harsh because the impact they will have upon public service in Northern Ireland will be devastating because of the inability of some parties within the Executive to show the leadership required in welfare reform. Those parties are solely responsible for the damaging impact that welfare reform penalty related reductions in October will have on vulnerable people and on the economy. That damaging impact could be avoided by progressing with welfare reform. I have for some time warned that inaction on welfare reform would have dire consequences for our public services and today is the start of those consequences being felt.

I have no doubt that the months ahead will be extremely challenging as the impact of budget reductions across our public services is felt on the ground. It is gravely concerning that the public expenditure position looks set to deteriorate further as the penalties for inaction on welfare reform continue to escalate. I would urge those opposed to welfare reform to carefully consider the impact their inaction will have for those most in need of our public services and urgently reconsider their position.

I commend this statement to the Assembly.

- 1 The DETI underspend includes £5.7 million in relation to the UK-wide Super Connected Cities scheme. This funding is channelled from the Department of Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) through DETI to the Northern Ireland Councils and DETI has no role in managing this funding. The capital underspend directly under DETI's control was therefore only £0.5 million.

Evaluation of the Individual Funding Request Process

Published at 10.00 am on Wednesday 24 September 2014

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): Members will recall that during a debate in the Assembly on 6th May 2014 I announced I had instructed my Department to carry out an evaluation of the Individual Funding Request (IFR) process. The purpose of this statement is to provide an update to the Assembly on the evaluation and to outline the next steps in taking this work forwards.

I originally initiated this evaluation because I want to test whether the IFR process is effectively meeting its objectives of providing access to unapproved specialist drugs where there is an agreed clinical need.

There are a large number of new licensed drugs coming to the market each year. In order to determine which of these new treatments offers the best prospect of improvement over standard therapy it is essential that they are assessed for clinical and cost effectiveness and approved before they are made routinely available.

The NHS and the HSC in Northern Ireland are guided in this process by the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE). The NICE process of assessment and approval has an international reputation of excellence in terms of its scientific rigor, independence and objectivity. The technical expertise and role of NICE in conducting cost-effectiveness assessments is regarded as world class.

However, a consequence of this necessarily rigorous approach to appraisal is that some more expensive treatments that do not meet the thresholds for value for money or which have not yet been assessed by NICE have not been approved for routine use in the HSC. The IFR process is intended to bridge this gap by providing access to specialist drugs which are not normally commissioned within Northern Ireland in circumstances where there is an agreed clinical need.

I have listened to concerns raised by stakeholders from cancer sufferers and survivors, charities, political representatives and the pharmaceutical industry that the current process could be improved and also to their calls for the establishment of a cancer drugs fund similar to that in place in England. As a result, I have decided to widen the scope of the evaluation.

The evaluation will include consideration of factors influencing access to specialist medicines including:

- The IFR process itself; including consideration of clinical exceptionality;
- Arrangements for access to specialist drugs in other UK jurisdictions;
- The Early Access to Medicines Scheme (EAMS);
- The Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS);
- The potential for the reintroduction of prescription charges to finance a specialist drugs fund.

I want to deliver an evaluation of the IFR process which will be definitive in terms of concluding if the process is meeting its objectives. The evaluation will also make recommendations as to whether the IFR should continue in its current form or whether a new process should be considered. It is also worth noting that this is a wider issue than access to cancer drugs and includes access to specialist medicines for patients with other serious conditions. Full terms of reference for the evaluation are attached at Annex A.

A project management structure has been established under the leadership of the Chief Medical Officer Dr Michael McBride to take forward this work. The Project Board includes membership from the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust, the Health and Social Care Board, the Public Health Agency, the Northern Ireland Cancer Network and the Department.

The Project Team will engage with a range of stakeholders and will organise workshops to inform the evaluation which will be held during October/November 2014. In addition the project team will conduct a literature search and gather evidence from clinicians and practitioners across the HSC, commissioners, the industry and from patient representative groups. I expect the initial findings of the evaluation to be available from late November 2014 and the evaluation will be completed by the end of the year.

I have met many patients who have undergone trauma and stress related to their treatment. I empathise entirely with them and I want to assure them that my aim is to ensure that they receive the most effective treatment possible and that our health service will continue to strive to provide the best service it can in terms of access to specialist medicines.

Annex A

Terms of Reference for the Evaluation of the Individual Funding Request process

- To assess whether the IFR is meeting its objective as a process to determine if a clinically supported request for specialist drugs should be funded rather than as a clinical decision making process.
- To consider the impact of the concept of Clinical Exceptionality in the IFR process in providing access to specialist drugs.
- To give consideration to policies and processes that England, Scotland and Wales have adopted in their approach towards providing access to specialist drugs.
- To evaluate the IFR process in terms of its impact on access to drugs on the Cancer Drugs Fund list, in England, and the related potential impact of the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS).
- To consider the implications for access to specialist drugs arising from the implementation of the Early Access to Medicines Scheme (EAMS) in Northern Ireland.
- To consider the implications of the NICE-led value based assessment process and its proposals to incorporate two new "value elements" into NICE appraisals.

Paediatric Congenital Cardiac Services

Published at 4.00 pm on Wednesday 24 September 2014

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): Members will recall that in an oral statement to the Assembly on 9th December 2013 I announced that in conjunction with Dr James Reilly TD, then Minister for Health in the Republic of Ireland, I had appointed a team of international clinicians to provide an assessment of a potential model for Cardiac Surgery and Interventional Cardiology for Congenital Heart Disease to meet the needs of Northern Ireland and also the Republic of Ireland. The International Working Group (IWG) was subsequently appointed, chaired by Dr John Mayer from Boston Children's Hospital and also consisting of Dr Adrian Moran from the Maine Medical Centre, USA, and Dr John Sinclair from Yorkhill Children's Hospital, Glasgow. Nursing expertise and advice was provided to the IWG by Dr Patricia Hickey, also from Boston Children's Hospital.

The purpose of this statement is to provide an update to the Assembly on the assessment and to outline the next steps in taking this work forward. The IWG has presented its report to my Department and to the Department for Health in the Republic of Ireland (ROI). Both Departments are currently considering the report and I would expect to be able to announce the IWG's full recommendations together with the Minister for Health in the ROI and Dr Mayer within the next month.

I am however aware that the families who use this service and the clinical staff who deliver it are anxious to learn the IWG's recommendation as to whether this service should continue to be delivered in the Belfast Trust. I want to end that uncertainty and therefore inform the Assembly that the IWG has recommended that children's heart surgery and interventional cardiology should cease to be delivered in the Belfast Trust. The IWG has reached this conclusion because of an insufficient volume of patients.

This recommendation is made within the context of the terms of reference set for the IWG to give consideration to an overall model for delivering both children's and adult congenital heart services on the island. This model would allow Belfast and Dublin clinicians to sustain and build upon the respective strengths of both cardiac teams. As the IWG's report needs to be carefully considered by both Departments I am not yet in a position to publicly release the report or to indicate what my decision is likely to be on its recommendations. However, I considered it important that I should announce as soon as possible the IWG's recommendation on the key issue of concern to Northern Ireland in respect of the future of children's cardiac surgery and interventional cardiology at the Belfast Trust.

Committee for Employment and Learning
1 October 2014

Work and Families Bill [NIA 34/11-15]

Members present for all or part of the proceedings:

Mr Robin Swann (Chairperson)
Mr Sammy Douglas
Ms Anna Lo
Ms Bronwyn McGahan
Mr Pat Ramsey
Mr Alastair Ross

The Chairperson: I advise the Committee that this is the Committee's formal consideration of the clauses of the Bill. I also remind members that the Committee deliberated on the clauses at last week's meeting and was content. Again, I remind members that formal clause-by-clause consideration is the last opportunity to discuss the clauses, and any decisions will be final. On completion of the formal clause-by-clause consideration, I will go through the issues that are outside the strict remit of the Bill. On that basis, I will go through the Work and Families Bill and group the clauses about which the Committee has previously indicated that it is content.

Starting with clause 1, I will invite members to indicate whether they are content with the clause as drafted, whether there are any issues they wish to highlight and/or any amendments they wish to propose or whether they wish to reject the clause in its entirety. DEL officials are present to answer any questions that members may have.

Clause 1 (Defined expressions in this Act)

The Chairperson: Clause 1 provides definitions of terms and expressions used throughout the Bill.

Question, That the Committee is content with clause 1 put and agreed to.

The Chairperson: Part 2, comprising clauses 2 to 14, deals with shared rights to leave and pay. I seek members' views on part 2, which consists of 13 clauses considering three broad areas: shared parental leave, statutory shared parental pay and other statutory rights. Members, are you content with those three areas and the clauses?

Question, That the Committee is content with clauses 2 to 14 put and agreed to.

The Chairperson: Part 3, comprising clauses 15 to 18, deals with time off work for antenatal care and adoption appointments. I seek members' views on part 3, which consists of four clauses, including rights to attend antenatal appointments and the right for agency workers not to be subjected to detriment. Are members content?

Question, That the Committee is content with clauses 15 to 18 put and agreed to.

The Chairperson: Part 4, comprising clauses 19 and 20, deals with other miscellaneous employment rights. This is two clauses on flexible working and the procedure for regulations as to a prescribed amount of annual leave. I seek Committee members' views on that.

Question, That the Committee is content with clauses 19 and 20, put and agreed to.

The Chairperson: Part 5, comprising clauses 21 to 24, is the general provisions. I seek members' views on part 5, which contains four clauses, including repeals and commencement dates. Are members content?

Question, That the Committee is content with clauses 21 to 24 put and agreed to.

Schedules 1 and 2 agreed to.

Long title agreed to.

The Chairperson: Thank you, members. That was painless.

We will now go through the issues raised by respondents and considered at last week's meeting. The Clerk's paper, which is at page 245, summarises the issues raised and provides recommendations to the Department for inclusion in the Committee report.

The first issue — these are mostly in regard to regulations rather than the Bill itself — is that the two-week negotiation period may not be long enough. From last week's Committee meeting, the Committee feels that the Department's response is adequate but seeks the Department's assurance that the associated guidance has been reviewed by key stakeholders. Are members content with that recommendation?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, a further issue is that of employees making and then withdrawing a request for shared leave. Last week, the Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, next is the process for requesting leave. The Committee felt that the Department's response was adequate but sought the Department's assurance that the associated guidance has been reviewed by key stakeholders. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: The cut-off point for parents taking shared parental leave should be 52 weeks from the start of maternity leave, rather than from the birth of the child. Members, at last week's meeting, the Committee accepted the Department's position on this issue. The detail is listed there. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, next is the right to return to the same or a similar job when returning from periods of leave totalling up to 26 weeks. Members, at last week's meeting, the Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, next is the day-one right to shared parental leave and pay. At last week's meeting, the Committee accepted the Department's position on this issue. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, on the keeping-in-touch days, the Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue last week as well. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Arranging cover for employees on shared parental leave — again, last week, the Committee accepted the Department's position. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: On allowing parents to take leave in one-week blocks, the Committee felt that the Department's response was adequate but did seek DEL's assurance that the associated guidance has been reviewed by key stakeholders. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, the amount of statutory pay available — again, the Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue but wished to receive further information on how and when the Department will review uptake of shared parental leave, including the terms of reference. Are members content with that?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Flexible working — again, the Committee accepted the Department's position on this issue last week.

New right to begin for parents of children expected to be born or adopted in April 2015. This was in regard mostly to the time frame of the Bill. The Committee felt that the Department's response was adequate but will seek DEL's assurance that the associated guidance has been reviewed by key stakeholders. Are members content with that?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: The issue of user-friendly processes came through from a number of stakeholder submissions that we received. Last week, the Committee felt that the Department's response was adequate, but, again, it seeks DEL's assurance that the associated guidance has been reviewed by key stakeholders. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, arrangements will be in place for recouping overpayments and allowing employers to communicate to verify information. The Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: On fear of being open to sex discrimination, the Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, in regard to guidance, the Committee felt that the Department's response was adequate but sought the Department's assurance that the associated guidance will be reviewed by key stakeholders. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, on alignment with legislation in GB, the Committee again accepted the Department's position on the issue. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Another individual as a person with whom parental leave could be shared — again, members of the Committee accepted the Department's position.

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: On the issue of paid leave for partners to attend antenatal appointments, again, the Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue. Are members content?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: Members, one of the issues that Pat raised was kinship carers. Again, there was quite a lengthy response on that. Last week, the Committee accepted the Department's position on the issue.

Mr P Ramsey: Separate to that, is it possible to get some research paper on kinship care and how it is acknowledged or recognised in other places? It is a hugely relevant subject here for future reference.

The Chairperson: We can do that, Pat, separate from this. Are members content with the recommendation that we accepted last week?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: OK, members, those are all the queries and concerns that were raised at last week's meeting. Are members content with the recommended actions?

Members indicated assent.

The Chairperson: That is us, members. Thank you. There is nothing else on the Work and Families Bill. Members, there will be a draft report to formalise and agree at next week's meeting. Are members content with that time frame?

Members indicated assent.

Written Answers to Questions

Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister

Ms McGahan asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why AQW 31991/11-15 has not been answered.
(AQW 33466/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): We refer the Member to the answer issued on 27 May.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what foreign trips representatives of the Victims Commissioner's Office, including representatives of the Victims' Forum, have undertaken in the last year; and for what purpose.
(AQW 33910/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The table below details the foreign trips undertaken by representatives from the Commissioner's Office in the last year.

Date	Representative	Destination	Purpose
26 August – 3 September 2013	Commissioner	Rwanda	To inform research on comparing perspectives for victims and survivors.
2 – 9 November 2013	Commissioner	Nigeria	Participation in Forum Cities in Transition 2013 which included research on approaches for dealing with victims and survivors.
9-15 March 2014	Commissioner & Head of Corporate Services	New York & Washington	Invitation from President Obama to attend White House St. Patrick's Day Reception. Remainder of trip used as a research visit and included a meeting with 911 victims.

No members of the Victims Forum have attended Forum related international trips or engagements in the past year.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the boundary of the area to be included in the (i) Colin; and (ii) Lower Newtownards Road Urban Villages, under the Together: Building a United Community strategy.
(AQW 34369/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We announced Colin and Lower Newtownards Road as the first two Urban Villages on 25 February 2014. Since then, the Department for Social Development, as the lead department for these projects, has been developing delivery proposals. These two projects are at very different stages.

The Colin Town Centre is well developed with an existing plan having been launched, with support across a number of government departments.

The Colin Town Centre Urban Village is located within the Colin neighbourhood of West Belfast. The site is approximately 57 acres in total, lying South West of the Michael Ferguson roundabout. The site spans across both sides of the Stewartstown Road, and includes approximately 27 acres of the Laurel Glen parkland on the Poleglass side of the Stewartstown Road as well as 30 acres on the Twinbrook side; 96% of the site is currently in public ownership.

In contrast, the urban village proposed for the Lower Newtownards Road is at a less advanced stage. It is envisaged that the area covered will run from Ballymacarrett to Hollywood Arches.

Development of both Urban Villages will include the establishment of a local project board. The local board will then be tasked with co-ordinating and overseeing the planning, design and delivery of all aspects of each urban village.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline the criteria against which (i) Colin; and (ii) the Lower Newtownards Road were selected as urban villages under the Together: Building a United Community strategy.
(AQW 34370/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The aim of the commitment to create four urban villages is to build shared culture, spaces, and identity.

In order to establish locations that have the potential to create community space, improve the area and its aesthetics and include community focus, the following high level selection criteria has been used to establish need and capacity.

- (i) Community relations issues
- (ii) Anti-social behaviour
- (iii) Deprivation
- (iv) Limited commercial heart/services
- (v) Community appetite and infrastructure for improvement

Colin has been chosen as an Urban Village because of the specific challenges it faces as a large urban area with a high population of roughly 26,000, which suffers from a distinct lack of social infrastructure.

The Lower Newtownards Road has been chosen as an Urban Village as it is a recognised area of high urban deprivation and suffering from dereliction and cross-community tension, and it is issues such as these that the Urban Village vision is designed to assist.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how regular meaningful contact between people of different backgrounds will be facilitated by the (i) Colin; and (ii) Lower Newtownards Road urban villages under the Together: Building a United Community strategy.
(AQW 34371/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We announced Colin and Lower Newtownards Road as the first two Urban Villages on 25 February 2014. Since then, the Department for Social Development (DSD), as the lead department for these projects, has been developing delivery proposals.

There has already been extensive engagement and consultation within the Colin community around Colin Town Centre proposals. DSD will build on this across all existing groups of interest, to include the views of a wide range of people of different backgrounds and will create a network of connections to facilitate ongoing contact with all of the people of the area. People's opinions have been and will be fully recorded and considered before moving the Colin Town Centre Urban Village initiative forward through planning and development.

In developing the Lower Newtownards Road concept, DSD has engaged with the East Belfast Partnership, as the representative body in the area, to explore their potential role and how best to capture the local community's views. The exact mechanism for community involvement has not yet been established but local consultation and community engagement will be critical in the development of the concept.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether they are aware of the impact of not providing funds to successful group applicants approved grants of £75,000 or less for the 2014/15 financial year through the Victims and Survivors Service is having on the operational delivery of key services by the groups involved.
(AQW 34515/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We are aware of the importance of Victims and Survivors groups and the work that they do in representing the needs of and providing services for Victims and Survivors.

The Victims and Survivors Service has submitted a bid for additional funding in June Monitoring for the Victims and Survivors Programme.

Funding will depend on available resources. All our funds are finite and decisions always must be taken within that context. However, it should be noted we tripled funding to support victims and survivors here since devolution in 2007.

Mr Campbell asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, on the basis of past costs to date remaining similar in the future, for an estimate of the approximate cost of the (i) maintenance; (ii) security; (iii) flood defences; and (iv) other associated costs of the Ballykelly Army Base since handover from the Ministry of Defence until the time of the relocation of the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development headquarters.

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The costs in relation to the former Ballykelly Army Base from 7 October 2011 and estimated costs to 31 March 2015 are detailed below:

	11/12 (6 months)	12/13	13/14	Estimated 14/15	Total
(i) Maintenance	£ 96,041	£164,614	£ 53,363	£ 53,000	£367,018
(ii) Security	£139,778	£264,989	£257,497	£258,000	£920,264
(iii) Flood Defences	£0	£ 50,100	£ 30,200	£ 20,000	£100,300
(iv) Other costs	£109,355	£118,345	£135,176	£141,000	£503,876

Executive approval has now been given to progress the work to move the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development Headquarters to Ballykelly.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what mechanisms they will put in place for redress for survivors and victims of institutional abuse, including potential compensation.

(AQW 34899/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Terms of Reference say that the Historical Institutional Abuse Inquiry, in its report, will make recommendations and findings on four matters, including "The requirement or desirability for redress to be provided by the institution and/or the Executive to meet the particular needs of victims".

They go on to say "However, the nature or level of any potential redress – financial or the provision of services – is a matter that the Executive will discuss and agree following receipt of the Inquiry and Investigation report".

We will not pre-empt the work of the Inquiry or any future decisions that the Executive may make by speculating now about redress.

Mr G Kelly asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the funding that their Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: AQW 34975/11-15

The table below details funding invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014 by our Department and the Community Relations Council.

Fund	Investment (£) May 2011 – May 2014
Central Good Relations Fund	319,325
District Council Good Relations Fund	194,180
Summer Interventions Programme	181,045
North Belfast Good Relations Programme	2,327,184
Contested Spaces/Interface Programme	1,122,084
Community Relations Council Core funding	874,984
Total	5,018,802

Notes:

- 1 Figures relate to the sum of total yearly spend between 2011 and 2014. Projects are often funded over financial years or other annual time framings that, while in the main covering a 12 month period, do not necessarily start or end in May of any given year.
- 2 The definition of North Belfast as a geographical area to invest in can vary between funding programmes, and therefore the figures may include funding that in a geographical context could be referred to as North Belfast funding by some programmes but not by others.
- 3 The Community Relations Council provided additional funding on a Belfast wide basis totalling approximately £2.1m and some of this would be invested in North Belfast.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what consideration has been given to interim compensation payments to survivors and victims of historical abuse in advance of Sir Anthony Hart's report, given the report has been delayed by one year and the age and ill health of a number of the victims.

(AQW 34980/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We do not underestimate the complexities of dealing with institutional abuse and every opportunity must be provided for those impacted by the allegations of abuse to be heard in an open forum.

The Historical Institutional Abuse Inquiry Chairman has reluctantly made a very persuasive and compelling case for a one year extension to the timeframe. However, it would be neither realistic nor reasonable to expect the Inquiry to reach conclusions without completing its work of gathering and considering all the evidence and distilling the findings by which its recommendations would be informed.

For the Inquiry Panel to reach conclusions in an interim report, without hearing and investigating all of the evidence, its credibility would be called into question by those it had yet to see.

In addition, the Historical Institutional Abuse Inquiry Terms of Reference state “the nature or level of any potential redress – financial or the provision of services – is a matter that the Executive will discuss and agree following receipt of the Inquiry and Investigation report”.

We will not pre-empt the work of the Inquiry or any future decisions that the Executive may make by speculating now about redress.

Mr Weir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the departmental projects or funding schemes available to community organisations to help tackle low educational achievement.

(AQW 35004/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: A number of projects funded by the Social Investment Fund are designed to address unemployment, provide training, or build or refurbish facilities for the provision of training, and therefore are likely to contribute to tackling low educational achievement.

A full list of projects is available at:- <http://www.ofmdfmi.gov.uk/index/delivering-social-change/social-investment-fund/sif-projects.htm>

At this point, within our Department, there are no funding schemes open to community organisations to specifically tackle low educational achievement.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what funding has been made available to the Northern Ireland Phoenix Project in each year since it was established.

(AQW 35087/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Northern Ireland Phoenix Project has received the following funding from the Victims and Survivors Service

Year	Award
2013-15	£91,619.48
2012-13	£18,628
2011-12	£4,320
2010-11	£4,488

It has also been in receipt of European funding.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what discussions they have had with the Northern Ireland Phoenix Project to ensure that it can continue to support the needs of victims and survivors.

(AQW 35089/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: In keeping with the support offered to all groups funded under the Victims Support Programme (VSP), Victims and Survivors Service (VSS) Project Officers assigned to the Northern Ireland Phoenix Project continue to meet with the organisation on a quarterly basis. These regular meetings enable VSS to monitor and support the organisation in achieving its objectives, in terms of delivering services to victims and survivors via its activities funded under the VSP.

Department of Agriculture and Rural Development

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail (i) the permissions she has provided, or intends to provide, to InfraStrata to undertake oil and gas exploration in Woodburn Forest in Co. Antrim; and (ii) all other locations, under her Department’s ownership, where proposals have been made to conduct exploratory oil or gas drilling.

(AQW 34582/11-15)

Mrs O’Neill (The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development): Licences granted for petroleum exploration is a matter for the Department of Enterprise Trade & Investment. The land at Woodburn forest, proposed by InfraStrata for exploratory drilling, is owned by NI Water (NIW). The trees on the land are managed by my Department under a Management Agreement with NIW. Any permission for access to the land is a matter for NIW.

I understand that since 2008, DETI has granted Prospecting Licences to Lonmin NI Ltd for mineral exploration in counties Antrim, Derry, Tyrone and Fermanagh. The areas licensed by DETI include forests on the Antrim Plateau, Sperrins, Bann Valley, and in some parts of Fermanagh and Tyrone, owned by my Department.

Forest Service agreed a licensing framework with Lonmin NI Ltd, for the period 2010 to 2015, under which access arrangements are managed. To date access permission has been pursued by Lonmin NI Ltd for two sites at Gortnamoyagh and Grange Park forests, in the north Sperrins area. I am aware that exploratory works were undertaken at Gortnamoyagh forest in 2011 and 2013.

In 2012, Dalradian Gold made an initial approach to my Department regarding access to Gortin Glen forest for mineral exploration works. However, no access arrangements were agreed or works undertaken.

Previously in the period 2002 to 2003, Forest Service had agreed access arrangements with Evergreen Resources Ltd, licensed by DETI, to undertake petroleum exploration works in West Fermanagh.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the action she has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to her Department.

(AQW 34853/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: In September 2012 I announced the intention to relocate staff from the Department's headquarters in Belfast to Ballykelly. In March 2013 I received notification from the Speaker of a petition relating to a campaign for Jobs in Strabane.

The petition was not specifically in relation to my Department's relocation but reflected the petitioner's wider perception that the Strabane area was being "bypassed by government" with subsequent social and economic impacts.

The petition did not require any specific action from my Department which is already committed to relocating jobs in rural areas.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the funding that her Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34879/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: My Department, and its arm's length bodies, invested approximately £219,237 in North Belfast. Further details are provided in the table below:

Nature of Funding	Amount	Funding Body
Carrs Glen (Water Works) Culvert Replacement	£10,000 (approx)	Rivers Agency.
General watercourse inspection and maintenance – (£10k per annum)	£30,000 (approx)	Rivers Agency.
Forestry Grants Schemes	£14,259	Forest Service
Agri-Environment Schemes	£61,637	Core Department
Less Favoured Areas Compensatory Allowances (LFACA)*	£103,340	Core Department

* LFACA payments to applicants whose farm business address is in the North Belfast constituency.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development (i) whether there is a requirement for her to consult prior to redesignating forestry land for petroleum exploration or extraction; and if so, to detail all consultations in the last three years; and (ii) whether there is a requirement for her to provide notification following the redesignation of forestry land to petroleum exploration or extraction; and if so, to detail the notices have been issued in the last three years to inform the local community of the redesignation of forestry land to petroleum exploration or extraction.

(AQW 34885/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Any determination including consultation and public notice requirements regarding the re-designation of forestry land to an alternative land use e.g. petroleum exploration or extraction is subject to Department of Environment considerations under its planning policy.

Therefore, as these responsibilities are not matters for my Department, it has not undertaken any consultations or issued any notices in this regard over the last 3 years.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the discussions she has held regarding banning wild animals in circuses.

(AQW 34925/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: I hosted a meeting on 21 January 2013 to discuss the issue of animals in circuses. The meeting was attended by representatives from the Born Free Foundation, Animal Defenders International, and the Captive Animals Protection Society.

I raised the issue of wild animals in travelling circuses at the North South Ministerial Council (NSMC) Agriculture meetings on 10 July 2013 and 13 November 2013. Minister Coveney and I agreed that officials would investigate the possibility of an All-island approach to the issue of these animals in travelling circuses, and that the findings and proposals would be reported at a future NSMC Agriculture meeting.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development, in the light of the delay in the Common Agricultural Policy reform process, how her Department will meet the targets for woodland creation in the next twelve months.

(AQW 35040/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: On the 2 July Forest Service re-opened the Forestry Challenge Scheme to bridge the gap between the end of the 2013-14 Rural Development Programme and the start of the new programme. The scheme aims to encourage planting of larger scale woodland areas by inviting bids from landowners to plant at least 5 hectares. Applications must be submitted by Friday 10 October 2014. In addition to the Challenge Scheme, Forest Service will also re-open the Woodland Environment Grant to support replanting woodland affected by Chalara ash dieback and restocking grants.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development when she will announce the launch of a woodland challenge fund; and to detail the funding set aside to support the fund.

(AQW 35041/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The Forestry Challenge Scheme was launched on 2 July 2014 and detailed information and guidance is available on the DARD website.

Up to £0.3 million grant support is available for the Scheme and completed bids must be received by Forest Service by 3:00pm on 10 October 2014 to enter into an assessment process.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development whether she aware of the initiative being led by the Woodland Trust to create a First World War Centenary Wood; and whether her Department can offer any direct assistance to the Woodland Trust to help make the Centenary Wood a success and a fitting and lasting memorial.

(AQW 35045/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: I am aware of a variety of initiatives to mark the Decade of Centenaries from 2012-2022 including the Woodland Trust's First World War Centenary Woods project.

The Woodland Trust had applied for and received from my Department a conditional offer of funding under the Forestry Grant Schemes to support planting and provision of public access to this new native woodland in the Faughan Valley however they decided not to take up this offer because they were unable to source site native species of local provenance required because of the special designation of nearby woodland. The Woodland Trust has informed my officials that they will make a new application this year under the re-opened Forestry Challenge Scheme.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any public-private partnership projects that her Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35107/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: My Department is not associated with any ongoing investigations relating to Public Private Partnership projects.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the Gross Value Added contribution of the local marine sector, for the most recent consecutive five years for which data is available.

(AQW 35148/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The estimated value added to the economy of the north of Ireland by those businesses engaged in the processing of both farmed and caught fish for human consumption is as follows:

2007	£14.4 million
2008	£14.1 million
2009	£13.8 million
2010	£15.2 million
2011	£17.3 million

This data is published by the Department in its annual statistical publication 'Size and Performance of the NI Food and Drinks Processing Sector'. The Department does not collate data on the value added by the fish catching sector.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the (i) targets; and (ii) strategies in place for woodland creation in 2016.

(AQW 35183/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Planting targets for 2016 will be published in the Forest Service Business Plan 2016/17 and will take account of support for woodland creation under the Rural Development Programme 2014-2020 and what is affordable given budgetary constraints. The Forestry Strategy for Sustainability and Growth, published by Forest Service in 2006, provides the framework for intervention via forest policy in woodland expansion.

Department of Education

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education why only four organisations have been invited to respond to the Elective Home Education consultation; and why Education Otherwise was not invited to respond.

(AQW 34315/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): The Education and Library Boards (the Boards) have advised that consultation on the draft home education guidance document has been undertaken in line with the Consultation Strategy document (developed by all five boards). This was published alongside the draft guidance document, and sets out the range of methods through which the Boards have sought to facilitate engagement and consultation with all those who have an interest in elective home education.

This included a range of stakeholder organisations in the wider education community such as the Commissioner for Children and Young People (NICCY); the Children's Law Centre (CLC); and the Special Educational Needs Advice Centre (SENAC). In addition, 343 Section 75 Consultees were contacted by the Boards to advise of the consultation process.

The Boards have advised that they identified Home Education in the north of Ireland (HEdNI) at the outset as the main regional representative group and, whilst Education Otherwise was not identified at that point, I understand the Boards subsequently provided a copy of the consultation documents to Education Otherwise for consideration and comment.

The consultation process has sought to provide an opportunity for views and ideas to be provided to the Boards - by organisations and members of the public - on how they best strike the balance between ensuring that the rights and needs of children themselves are appropriately protected and facilitating parental preference for home education.

As part of the Boards' consultation I have made clear that I expect the Boards to ensure engagement with as wide a range of stakeholders as possible and to ensure also that the feedback they receive is considered very carefully in reviewing the draft guidance.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Education (i) which organisations were invited to respond to the consultation on elective home education; (ii) why they were selected; (iii) who made the decisions in respect of the those invited to respond; (iv) will these organisations form the Stakeholder Group; and (v) whether other organisations with a specific interest in elective home education can apply to join the Stakeholder Group.

(AQW 34577/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards (the Boards) have advised that consultation on their draft elective home education guidance document has been undertaken in line with the Consultation Strategy document (developed by all five boards) which was published alongside the draft guidance document. This details the range of methods through which the Boards have sought to facilitate engagement and consultation with all those who have an interest in elective home education.

I understand that the North Eastern Education and Library Board (NEELB), on behalf of the five Boards, identified and contacted a range of key stakeholder organisations in the wider education community which included the Commissioner for Children and Young People (NICCY); the Children's Law Centre (CLC); Home Education in the north (HEdNI) and the Special Educational Needs Advice Centre (SENAC), to advise of the consultation process and invite feedback. In addition, 343 Section 75 Consultees were contacted by the Boards in this regard.

The Boards have advised that there is no formal "Stakeholder Group."

As part of the Board's consultation I have made clear that I expect the Boards to ensure engagement with as wide a range of stakeholders as possible including young people and their families and to ensure also that the feedback they receive is considered very carefully in reviewing the draft guidance.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Education (i) why Education Otherwise was not invited to respond to the consultation on elective home education; (ii) whether this decision follows best practice of taking responses from a primary stakeholder; and (iii) whether he will revise the previous decision and invite Education Otherwise to take part in the consultation.

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards (the Boards) have advised that consultation on the draft home education guidance document has been undertaken in line with the Consultation Strategy document (developed by all five boards). This was published alongside the draft guidance document, and sets out the range of methods through which the Boards have sought to facilitate engagement and consultation with all those who have an interest in elective home education.

I understand that a range of stakeholder organisations in the wider education community were identified and contacted by the Boards to advise of the consultation process and invite feedback. In addition, 343 Section 75 Consultees were contacted by the Boards in this regard.

The Boards have advised that they identified Home Education in the north of Ireland (HEdNI) at the outset as the main regional representative group and, whilst Education Otherwise was not identified at that point, I understand the Boards subsequently provided a copy of the consultation documents to Education Otherwise for consideration and comment.

As part of the Boards' consultation I have made clear that I expect the Boards to ensure engagement with as wide a range of stakeholders as possible and to ensure also that the feedback they receive is considered very carefully in reviewing the draft guidance.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Education how many meetings have taken place over the last twelve months between officials from the Central Procurement Directorate (CPD), representatives of his Department and the Education and Library Boards in regard to handing over responsibility for Goods and Services to CPD.

(AQW 34769/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Since June 2013 there have been four meetings in regard to handing over responsibility for procurement of Goods and Services to the Central Procurement Directorate (CPD) involving representatives from CPD, DE and the Education and Library Boards (ELBs).

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Education, in relation to the legal issue he referred to as being the reason for the disparity between his two announcements at those times of £180 million and £170 million schools capital costs, at what time between 3.15pm on Monday 23 June 2014 and 11.30am on Tuesday 24 June 2014 was this legal issue relayed to him; and by whom.

(AQW 34834/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I am glad of the opportunity to clarify these figures. The disparity between the two figures is simply a function of the level of accuracy that is possible at this early stage in the development of the projects. In my response to a question from Mr Brady, MLA on Monday 23 June I said that the announcement would be in the region of £180 million and on Tuesday 24 June 2014 I announced that the capital investment for the projects was in the order of £170 million. These projects are all at a very early stage of development (i.e. prior to completion of an economic appraisal) and hence it is impossible to provide an accurate estimate of the aggregate cost of all the school builds. The figures that I stated can only be and are only an indicator of the likely total cost, currently estimated as being between £170 and £180 million.

The legal matter I referred to was a judicial review regarding the amalgamation of Newtownbreda and Knockbreda High Schools. I received notification of Senior Counsel's advice from an official in my Department at around 18.10 hours on Monday 23 June. This advice was that a decision on the new build for Newtownbreda/Knockbreda should not be announced until the judicial review process related to the amalgamation of the two schools was complete.

The judicial review was later dismissed and I have since announced the new build for the amalgamated Newtownbreda/ Knockbreda High Schools on 3 July.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 34623/11-15, for a breakdown of where the budget allocated to Education Other than at School was spent in each Education and Library Board area in the 2013/14 financial year.

(AQW 34840/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Ear-marked Education Otherwise Than At School (EOTAS) funding for the 2013/2014 financial year in each of the Education and Library Board (ELB) areas was spent to deliver education to young people who have social, emotional and behavioural difficulties who, without its provision, cannot sustain access to suitable education.

EOTAS provision is delivered through specific EOTAS centres, Community providers, Pupil Referral units and for home tuition for young people who are unable to attend school due to illness or to expelled pupils who are awaiting a new school placement.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Education to detail the capital investment in schools in North Antrim in each year since 2007.

(AQW 34861/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The following table details capital expenditure in schools in the North Antrim constituency in each of last seven financial years:

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education what community projects or programmes of work are used to measure parental demand for integrated schools, in areas that do not have integrated provision.

(AQW 34891/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My Department does not fund community projects on the basis of parental demand for integrated education. However, I take my Department's statutory duty to encourage and facilitate the development of integrated education very seriously and will continue to encourage growth in this area.

I have commissioned the Education and Library Boards (ELBs), working in conjunction with the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools (CCMS) and engaging with other sectors, including the N I Council for Integrated Education (NICIE), to co-ordinate strategic planning in each board area to shape the future provision of education in that area.

Given the respective roles of the organisations involved, it is clear that planning for new integrated education provision is dependent on collaboration between NICIE, the ELBs and the CCMS.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Education when the cycle to work scheme will be available to staff in the South Eastern Education and Library Board.

(AQW 34898/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The decision whether to offer a 'Cycle to Work' Scheme to employees is a matter for individual employers.

The SEELB inform me that in the context of a challenging financial climate and in light of anticipated changes to organisational structures within the Education and Library Boards (ELBs), the Boards' determined some time ago that it was not possible to participate in any new scheme. The matter has and is being kept under regular review by the ELBs.

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of Education how many pupils in each Education and Library Board benefited from the Vision Support Service in the 2013/14 academic year.

(AQW 34924/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards have advised that the number of pupils who benefitted from the Vision Support Service in the 2013/14 academic year is as follows:

BELB	175
NEELB	215
SEELB	238
SELB	121
WELB	132

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of staff employed in each Education and Library Board's Vision Support Service, including the hours of any part-time employees.

(AQW 34926/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The number of staff employed in each Education and Library Board's Vision Support Service is as follows:

NEELB	4 Part Time
SELB	1 Full Time and 2 Part Time
SEELB	2 Full Time
WELB	2 Full Time
BELB	1 Full Time & 1 Part time

The Department is unable to provide the information in relation to hours worked of any part-time employees as the number of staff involved is relatively small. Given this fact, release of the information requested may lead to an individual being identified which would constitute a breach the Data Protection Act 1998.

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of Education (i) how many new referrals were made to the Vision Support Service in each Education and Library Board in the 2013/14 academic year; (ii) how many of these pupils received a home visit; and (iii) how many were (a) self referrals; (b) from ophthalmology; (c) from the low vision clinic; (d) from a voluntary organisation; and (e) from another source.

(AQW 34927/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards have advised as follows:

The number of new referrals that were made to the Vision Support Service in the 2013/14 academic year, and of those the number who received a home visit, are as follows:

	New Referrals	Home Visits
BELB	n/a*	n/a*
NEELB	37	5
SEELB	57	15
SELB	26	7
WELB	16	4

* BELB has advised that it is unable to source this information currently.

 Pre-school referrals – other children may have received a home visit depending on need but SEELB is not currently able to provide that number.

 Early years referrals - other children may have received a home visit depending on need but SELB is not currently able to provide that number.

The breakdown of the new referrals is as follows:

	Self-referrals	Ophthalmology	Low Vision Clinic	Voluntary Organisation	Other Source
BELB	n/a*	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
NEELB	0	29	5	0	3
SEELB	2	9	0	3	43
SELB	0	24		0	2
WELB	0	4	0	0	12

* BELB has advised that it is unable to source this information currently.

 Four referrals directly from an ophthalmologist and 25 from the Eye Clinic Liaison Service (ECLS) which is funded by RNIB. The ECLS referrals originate from ophthalmologists.

 SELB is unable to split this number.

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of Education how many referrals to the Vision Support Service were not accepted by each Education and Library Board in the 2013/14 academic year; and to outline the reasons in each case.

(AQW 34928/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: All Education and Library Boards, with the exception of the South-Eastern Education and Library Board (SEELB), have advised that all children who were referred to the Vision Support Service in the 2013/14 academic year were accepted where parental permission was given.

SEELB has advised that it is unable to provide this information currently.

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of Education how many pupils, who were supported by the Vision Support Service in the 2013/14 academic year, received (i) weekly visits; (ii) one visit each term; (iii) a bi-annual visit; (iv) an annual visit; (v) no visits; and (vi) any other periodical visits.

(AQW 34930/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards have advised that the breakdown of visits is as follows:

	Weekly	Termly	Bi-annual	Annual	None	Other
BELB	0	53	0	81	0	41
NEELB	0	18	0	196	0	1
SEELB	N/A*	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
SELB	0	30	6	29	2	54
WELB	1	38	12	78	0	3

* SEELB has advised that it is unable to source this information currently.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of Education what is the completion date for the Belvoir Youth Centre; and how much is being spent on the Centre.

(AQW 34956/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: As Belvoir Youth Centre is a controlled Youth Centre, the South Eastern Education and Library Board (SEELB) is responsible for the capital work.

The SEELB has advised that the target completion date for Belvoir Youth Centre is 26 September 2014.

The projected capital expenditure is approximately £1.4million; however the final figure cannot be confirmed until the project has been completed.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of Education what is the official opening date of the Belvoir Youth Centre; and how many young people the Centre will accommodate.

(AQW 34958/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: As Belvoir Youth Centre is a controlled Youth Centre, it is the responsibility of the South Eastern Education and Library Board (SEELB).

The SEELB has advised that no official opening date for the Centre has yet been agreed.

The SEELB has confirmed the primary objective would be to provide adequate and suitable youth provision for approximately one thousand young people on an annual basis (one hundred users/young people at any one time) within the Minnowburn and Carryduff areas.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Education what measures his Department is taking to promote digital technology skills within (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools.

(AQW 34993/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The curriculum has been designed to provide flexibility for schools to develop experiences that suit the needs of their pupils. Embedding mandatory, cross curricular skills and keeping prescribed content to a minimum, allows schools to choose the most appropriate approach to take to ensure that pupils are engaged and challenged, to reach their full potential.

ICT is a cross curricular skill, which is an integral part of all Areas of Learning which make up the curriculum. Computer Coding/Science is a specific and more specialised subject and the flexibility in place within the curriculum enables schools to teach Computer Coding/Science in any Key Stage, including at primary school level, if they feel it appropriate.

My Department participates on the ICT Working Group established in response to the ICT sector's concerns in relation to skills shortages and skills mismatches here. As a member of this group, we have been exploring ways to increase pupil awareness of potential career opportunities in the ICT sector with the aim of increasing the numbers of pupils studying computer science at GCSE and GCE.

I have commissioned the development and delivery of a bespoke computer programme of practical pupil engagement activity covering Key Stage 2 – Post 16. The programme, 'IT's Your Choice – A Computer Programming Continuum for Schools', has been designed with the assistance of the sector, will engage over 10,000 pupils annually, and was launched into schools in September 2013.

The Council for Curriculum Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) has also developed a new GCE qualification in 'Software and Systems Development' as part of its expanded portfolio of 'Applied' qualifications and is also currently reviewing the need to develop a progression route from GCSE to the new GCE in Software and Systems Development.

My Department will continue to examine the current provision and range of school computing/ICT qualifications to ensure it meets the needs of our economy and to develop awareness programmes aimed at encouraging more pupils to choose to study relevant subjects such as Computer Science and Maths at A level.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education to list the schools in each sector that have been closed in (i) 2011/12; (ii) 2012/13; and (iii) 2013/14.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education when the Community Relations, Equality and Diversity programme will be evaluated. (AQW 34998/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: A series of focus groups involving teachers, youth workers and young people took place in 2012 as part of the evaluation of the effectiveness policy.

The Department also commissioned a module in the 2012 Young Life and Times on young people's experience of the policy, an exercise which is to be repeated in the 2014 Young Life & Times Survey.

An independent review of the Community Relations, Equality and Diversity policy, to be undertaken by the Education Training Inspectorate, is scheduled for autumn 2014.

Mrs McKeivitt asked the Minister of Education whether there are trained professionals in each Education and Library Board available to oversee the provision of educational support to students with a muscular dystrophy condition who attend mainstream education.

(AQW 35015/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: As muscular dystrophy is a medical condition primary responsibility for the care of pupils rests with the local health trust. Health professionals provide an individual Care Plan for a child which will specify how the child's medical needs are to be met. Health professionals will also train school staff so that they are competent in dealing with all aspects of the Care Plan.

The Education and Library Boards (ELBs) have advised that school Principals, teachers and allied health professionals work together as active partners to ensure the educational and allied health needs of the pupils are successfully met.

At the core of ELB support services is an understanding that the needs of each pupil will be unique depending on the specific presentation of their condition. In all services the nature and extent of the support which is made available to schools is determined by the severity of the special educational needs of the pupils. A range of levels of support are available which are aimed at capacity building for educational professionals and the development of collaborative working practices between schools, ELB services and health trusts.

The Southern Education and Library Board also has a primary and a post-primary Educational Centre for Children with Physical Difficulties (ECPD) attached to mainstream schools. These ECPDs are specifically designed to cater for pupils with physical difficulties, including muscular dystrophy, who have a Statement of Special Educational Needs. ECPDs are resourced with their own full-time teacher and two full-time classroom assistants and the Principal has overall responsibility for the educational support within the setting.

Mrs McKeivitt asked the Minister of Education to list the special educational needs schools with a hydrotherapy pool on school grounds.

(AQW 35016/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The special schools with a hydrotherapy pool on school grounds are:

	Special School
BELB	Fleming Fulton, Belfast
NEELB	Jordanstown, Newtownabbey Kilronan, Magherafelt Castle Tower, Ballymena Sandelford, Coleraine

	Special School
SEELB	Knockevin, Downpatrick Clifton, Bangor Parkview, Lisburn
SELB	Lisanally, Armagh
WELB	Willowbridge, Enniskillen oyleview, Derry

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education what advice he has received from his departmental officials on the allocation of Peace IV funding for integrated education, which is currently out to public consultation.

(AQW 35032/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Officials in my Department have been liaising with the European Division of the Department of Finance and Personnel and the Special EU Programmes Body (SEUPB) regarding the Peace IV EU Funding for 2014-2020 for education and youth projects. My officials have been keeping me informed as the proposals for the Peace IV programme develop.

I welcome a public consultation by the Special EU Programmes Body on its proposals for European Territorial Co-operation 2014-2020. The draft Peace Co-operation Programme 2014-2020 does not specifically reference integrated education, although it does identify Shared Education as a strategic investment area. I particularly welcome the proposed support for Shared Education which carries a potential European Funding allocation of €45million. Shared Education is a key priority for me and it is also a shared commitment in the Executive's Programme for Government.

As the programme is currently subject to public consultation prior to being submitted to the European Commission for negotiation and final approval, it is too early in the process to consider allocation areas. The consultation document indicates that SEUPB will be the managing authority for the programme and consequently decisions on the allocation of Peace IV funding would be for SEUPB and not my Department. Discussions are still at an early stage as to what, if any, role my Department may have.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education to detail the amount of funding the Community Relations, Equality and Diversity in Education scheme, or its similar preceding policy, received in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35043/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I can confirm that the amount of funding allocated to the Community Relations, Equality and Diversity programme is as follows:

Year	Allocation
2010/11	£1,190,000
2011/12	£1,139,000
2012/13	£1,163,000
2013/14	£1,195,000
2014/15	£1,228,000

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that his Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35108/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My Department is not associated with any ongoing investigations relating to its Public Private Partnership projects.

Department for Employment and Learning

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the number of vacancies currently listed on the job centre website within each District Electoral Area in the Fermanagh District Council area.

(AQW 34552/11-15)

Dr Farry (The Minister for Employment and Learning): Current vacancy information (30th June 2014) details 32 unfilled vacancies (offering 36 positions) within Fermanagh Local Government District. Official Statistics analysis for 2014 by District Electoral Area will be available in August 2014.

Notes:

1. All statistics are derived from data extracted from the Department for Employment and Learning Client Management System (CMS) on 30th June 2014. Figures are subject to validation and thus should be treated as provisional.
2. These vacancies are current unfilled vacancy positions notified and added to JobCentres / Jobs & Benefits Offices of the Department for Employment and Learning.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Employment and Learning, given there is no provision for zero hour contracts in the Northern Ireland Civil Service, to detail (i) why service providers contracted by Departments use zero hour contracts; (ii) whether tenders issued by the Executive for service providers make reference to zero hour contracts; and (iii) whether he intends to address these points in any forthcoming proposals.

(AQW 34654/11-15)

Dr Farry: The Department of Finance and Personnel, Central Procurement Directorate's (CPD) standard Conditions of Contract require contractors to perform the contract in accordance with the law. The strategy chosen by the contractor to resource the contract appropriately must therefore comply with employment legislation. Tenders issued by CPD do not make reference to zero hours contracts.

I launched a consultation on 23 June 2014 that seeks to determine the extent of the use of zero hours contracts and to provide a clearer picture of their impact within our economy. I have also commissioned quantitative and qualitative research to provide a better understanding of the numbers of zero hours contracts and the sectors in which they are most prevalent.

The consultation and parallel research will allow me to determine whether there is a need to bring forward legislative proposals or provide clearer information, advice and guidance for employers and employees availing of these contracts, whether within the Northern Ireland Civil Service or otherwise.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail how many Further Education Colleges and Higher Education Institutes have (i) been operating a budgetary surplus; and (ii) overspent, in each of the last three years.

Dr Farry: For the year ended 31st July 2013 three further education colleges and four higher education institutions reported a historic cost surplus while three further education colleges and no higher education institutions reported a historic cost deficit.

For the year ended 31st July 2012 four further education colleges and four higher education institutions reported a historic cost surplus while two further education colleges and no higher education institutions reported a historic cost deficit.

For the year ended 31st July 2011 four further education colleges and four higher education institutions reported a historic cost surplus while two further education colleges and no higher education institutions reported a historic cost deficit.

These details are taken from the annual audited accounts of the further education colleges and higher education institutions. Further details on these annual financial statements are available on the colleges' and universities' websites.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what steps he has taken to reduce administration and the associated costs in his Department and its arm's-length bodies.

(AQW 34732/11-15)

Dr Farry: In response to Budget 2010 commitments, a Workforce Plan for the Department was developed which included a financial saving of around £2.8 million to be achieved through a reduction of around 97 Full Time Equivalent posts across a range of grades over the term of Budget 2010.

The Department has a number of arms length bodies and the measures taken to reduce administration and the associated costs in these are outlined below.

Ulster Supported Employment Limited (USEL)

USEL has introduced digital assistance where staff can take real time notes and email them back to the office using iPhones. This reduces administration time in the office while adding time for their client interaction.

USEL also introduced client trackers, hosted centrally on the USEL servers, so each office and member of staff can keep client data up to date. This reduces back office administration time and removes the need for additional administration resource.

Labour Relations Agency (LRA)

The Agency is independent of Government and is funded mainly in the form of a grant from the Department for Employment and Learning. The Department reduced the LRA's annual budget by £200,000 in 2011/12, and has maintained it at the reduced baseline level in 2012/13 and 2013/14.

Construction Industry Training Board (CITB)

Following a formal staffing review, staff numbers reduced from 55 to 30 in 2010 and the core administration functions of the organisation are now carried out electronically using electronic communications.

BACS payments made to suppliers have increased year on year and are currently 96% and direct debit payments are actively encouraged and are currently at 56%.

CITB- ConstructionSkills has also been undertaking internal projects since 2012 to introduce a culture of continuous improvement including process mapping of administration processes. The overall reduction in administration and associated costs over the last three years totals £48,000, 3.4% (this includes pension and social security costs).

Further Education Colleges

Administration and associated costs of the further education colleges are an operational matter for the colleges themselves. However, as part of the Budget 2010 Savings Delivery Plan, the Department required the colleges to achieve efficiencies of £4m per annum over the period 2011-2015.

Higher Education Colleges

In the higher education sector I have initiated a project under Graduating to Success. One of the aims of the project is to achieve £30m of efficiency savings by the end of 2014-15. The project is on track to deliver these efficiencies.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the administrative cost of each regional college, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 34734/11-15)

Dr Farry: Full details of the income and expenditure of further education colleges are contained in the annual reports and financial statements that are audited by the Comptroller and Auditor General. These are laid before the Northern Ireland Assembly and, therefore, are available in the Assembly Library. They are also published on the individual college websites.

Administration costs are included within staff costs and other operating expenses. The totals for staff costs and other operating expenses, excluding exceptional costs, are detailed in the tables below. The figures are taken from the audited financial statements of the further education colleges.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether he will consider taking steps to reduce the administration cost of Further Education Colleges, to deliver the Executive's education and training targets.
(AQW 34735/11-15)

Dr Farry: Administration and associated costs of the further education colleges are an operational matter for the colleges themselves. However, as part of the Budget 2010 Savings Delivery Plan, the Department required the colleges to achieve efficiencies of £4m per annum over the period 2011-2015.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Employment and Learning why applicants for positions at Queen's University are asked to declare their nationality; and whether his Department has considered the potential impact this has on fair employment.
(AQW 34815/11-15)

Dr Farry: My Department provides funding to the Higher Education Institutions for teaching and learning and research purposes. The Universities are responsible for their own policies and procedures, including their recruitment processes.

However, departmental officials contacted Queen's University Belfast in relation to this matter and it advised that the University is required to make an annual return, on all staff employed, to the UK's Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA). This return includes the completion of a number of specific fields, including the nationality of staff. This information is gathered at the job application stage of the recruitment process.

HESA is the central source for the collection and dissemination of statistics and management information relating to all UK higher education institutions.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Employment and Learning, following the article in The Times Higher Education on 26 June 2014 providing a further reference by Queen's University academics to a non-existent book they had claimed to have edited, for his assessment of the damage to the reputation of the university and whether all relevant steps have been taken to deal effectively with this situation; and if so, to detail the steps.

(AQW 34817/11-15)

Dr Farry: I would advise that this is not a matter for me or my Department to provide comment on, nor would I have any remit to intervene.

This is an internal matter for Queen's University, Belfast and it is up to that institution and the individuals involved to assess the impact of the article and take any relevant action deemed necessary.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to outline the main distinctions between Steps 2 Success and Steps to Work.

(AQW 34821/11-15)

Dr Farry: The Steps2Success (S2S) programme has been designed to improve the performance of the Department's employment programmes for eligible jobseekers.

While Steps to Work has had a positive impact there is a need to focus even more on positive outcomes. Steps 2 Success will do this by:

- introducing a stronger emphasis on output related funding for Contracted Providers; and
- reducing the prescriptive elements of the previous programme, allowing Contracted Providers to work with individual clients to agree on a range of supports to assist them to find and keep work.

The following table outlines the main differences between Steps 2 Success and Steps to Work.

	Steps 2 Success (NI)	Steps to Work
Entry to Programme
Entry points for Jobseekers Allowance (JSA) 18 – 24 year olds.	Mandated after 9 months.	6 months
Entry points for JSA 25+.	Mandated after 12 months.	18 months
JSA early entry	After 3 months for identified groups or clients with significant barriers. Offered from Day One for ex-offenders	Voluntary entry to Step 1 provision from day one of claim. Voluntary entry to Step 2 provision after 13 weeks although Employment Support Adviser discretion is allowed for entry before this.
Employment & Support Allowance (ESA) Work Related Activity Group (WRAG) clients.	Employment Service Adviser discretion identifies suitable provision e.g. S2S, Condition Management Programme, Work Connect	Voluntary entry from day one of claim.
Voluntary access for non-benefit clients	No	Yes

Programme Approach	Steps 2 Success (NI)	Steps to Work
	Providers given flexibility to agree practical support(s) with client.	The Department prescribed the range of supports that can be delivered. These include First Start, Step Ahead 50+, Employer Subsidy, work experience placements, qualifications, help with essential skills and help for those who wish to become self employed.
	Service Guarantee for each conditionality group (JSA/ESA)	Service prescribed by Department. Includes up to 16 weeks advice and guidance by ESA
	Childcare support provided for lone parents.	Childcare support provided for lone parents or those with partners on specific benefits/ programmes.

Programme Approach	Steps 2 Success (NI)	Steps to Work
	Additional funding for providers when participants enter employment and gain recognised qualification .	Specific funding streams for qualifications.
	ESA provision to be in line with current Work Connect provision.	ESA can participate in all elements on a voluntary basis.
Programme duration	Steps 2 Success (NI)	Steps to Work
	Length of time on programme will be 12 months for JSA groups and 18 months for ESA WRAG and harder to help early entry JSA clients.	Most participants will undertake between 8 and 26 weeks. Some participants can avail of up to 78 weeks on Step 2 provision.
	Hours of participation to be agreed between provider and participant. Minimum covered in service guarantee.	Sets hours of participation - 30 per week while on Step 2 provision.
	Benefit Based Training Allowance (BBTA) will only be paid when participants complete more than 30 hours per week.	JSA participants BBTA. All other benefit participants e.g. IS, IB, ESA retain their current benefit and receive a top-up.
Contracting	Steps 2 Success (NI)	Steps to Work
	Northern Ireland divided into three contract areas.	Northern Ireland divided into ten contract areas.
	One lead contractor per area.	One lead contractor per area.
	Contract period four years with option to extend for a further two years.	Contract period three years with two one year extension options.
	Two stage procurement process. Stage 1 selection of organisations to bid in Stage 2; Stage 2 a formal assessment of bids to deliver Steps 2 Success.	One stage procurement process.
	Using price as an element of the procurement process	Price not a determinant.
Supply Chain Management	Steps 2 Success (NI)	Steps to Work
	The breadth and depth of supply chain marked as part of the procurement process.	The breadth and depth of supply chain marked as part of the procurement process.
	A Code of Conduct for lead and sub-Contractors will be included as part of the contract.	No formal Code of Conduct.
	Quality of service will be marked as part of the procurement process.	Quality of service was marked as part of the procurement process.
Balance of Service and Outcome Funding	Steps 2 Success (NI)	Steps to Work
	Baseline performance based on previous performance levels achieved on other Departmental provision e.g. Steps to Work and Pathways to Work.	Baseline performance based on previous performance levels achieved on New Deal programme.
	The funding regime is based on providers receiving 50% of funding as attachment fees and 50% as Output Related Funding if baseline performance is achieved.	It was estimated that providers would receive 60% of funding from attachment fees and 40% from performance related funding.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister for Employment and Learning (i) what was the annual expenditure on food in (a) Higher Education Institutes; and (b) Further Education Colleges, in each of the last three years; (ii) of this total expenditure, what was the expenditure on food produced in Northern Ireland; and (iii) whether this food is clearly identified as having been produced in Northern Ireland on menus and at point of service.

(AQW 34847/11-15)

Dr Farry:

Higher Education Institutes

The Department for Employment and Learning does not hold the information requested in respect of higher education institutions. The institutions, with the exception of Stranmillis University College, are not classified as public bodies by the Office for National Statistics. Funding provided to the higher education institutions by my Department is for teaching and research purposes only.

In the case of Stranmillis University College, which is a Non-Departmental Public Body, I have referred the question to the Director of the College, who will respond directly to the Member.

Further Education Colleges

The Department for Employment and Learning does not hold the information requested in respect of further education. I have therefore referred the question to the Directors of the six further education colleges, who will respond directly to the Member.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the action he has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to his Department.

(AQW 34851/11-15)

Dr Farry: Two public petitions have been presented and forwarded to my Department.

In April 2013 a public petition was presented by Pat Ramsey MLA expressing concern at the proposed closure of the crèche facilities at the University of Ulster. The petition referred to job losses, the inconvenience to parents and the adverse impact of the closure on widening participation in higher education.

My officials contacted the University and received assurances that the majority of students with childcare needs choose to avail of the direct financial support available in order to source childcare services closer to their homes and that this financial assistance would continue to be available at current levels.

They were also assured that staff members at the crèche were to be offered alternative employment within the University, with redundancy as a last resort.

Given the continuing levels of financial assistance to student parents there was no recognised detriment to my Department's widening participation agenda. However, in my response to the petition I advised that as part of the delivery of the Access to Success strategy my Department will require each higher education provider to produce a detailed Widening Access and Participation Plan annually which will clearly set out its activities and expenditure to support students from disadvantaged backgrounds and that my officials will continue to monitor the situation to ensure that the closure does not impact adversely on my Department's objectives to widen participation in higher education.

In June 2013 a public petition entitled "Magee Expansion: Time to Make it Happen" was presented by Maeve McLaughlin MLA. This called for the expansion of the Magee campus along the lines of the vision set out in the regeneration plan, "One City, One Plan, One Voice". You will know that there is an interim target within the "One Plan" for an additional 1,000 undergraduate places by 2015. I have worked to increase the number of undergraduate places throughout the Northern Ireland higher education sector. By June 2013 I was able to secure an additional 572 places for the Magee campus. In the 2013-14 academic year I was able to increase this to 625 and in the coming year that number will increase to 652. I believe that this represents good progress towards the 2015 target.

I remain fully committed to the expansion of higher education provision in Northern Ireland and continue to seek opportunities to secure the resources necessary to increase the numbers further. I believe that my approach to the expansion of the Northern Ireland higher education sector, together with the University of Ulster's commitment to deploy its additional places at the Magee campus will benefit all institutions, our economy, and best assist Magee in realising the interim target of 1,000 additional places by 2015.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister for Employment and Learning, in relation to the Graduate Acceleration Programme, to detail (i) the number of applications received; and (ii) the number of graduates who have taken up positions in each of the last two years; and how many places are currently available.

(AQW 34859/11-15)

Dr Farry: The Graduate Acceleration Programme is an integral part of the Department's Steps to Work programme. The Department does not capture information on the number of referral made to or the number of places available on these aspects of Steps to Work provision.

A total of 510 graduates commenced the Graduate Acceleration Programme in the last two years i.e. 250 between April 2012 and March 2013, and 260 between April 2013 and March 2014.

Referrals to the Steps to Work programme, including the Graduate Acceleration Programme, ceased on 30 May 2014. Those graduates referred to the provision up to and including the 30 May 2014 can commence a Graduate Acceleration Programme opportunity until Tuesday 26 August 2014.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34883/11-15)

Dr Farry: The tables below set out quantifiable Departmental funding invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014, or as close to these dates as possible. The figures reflect payments made to suppliers, companies and individuals located within the Belfast North Constituency, and can be separated into Programme Spend, Further Education recurrent Grant Funding, and, ESF-Funded Projects.

Programme Spend:

Training for Success	8,821,424
ApprenticeshipsNI	4,108,300
Skills Solutions Customised Training	58,108
Management Leadership Development Programme	51,518
INTRO Graduate Management Development Programme	27,950
Management Analysis & Planning Programme	16,182

Further Education recurrent Grant Funding:

Figures for the Further Education Colleges relate to recurrent grant funding generated by students domiciled in the Belfast North constituency. These figures are not available for the precise months requested but are given for academic years (NB: the 2013/14 figure is provisional at this stage):

2011/12	6,881,830
2012/13	7,062,806
2013/14	6,904,207

ESF-Funded Projects:

Priority 1 of the Northern Ireland ESF Programme 2007-13 is entitled 'Helping People into Sustainable Employment' and aims to reduce unemployment and economic inactivity among unemployed people. Of the 95 projects currently funded under Priority 1, thirteen projects are specifically located in North Belfast. The total eligible project cost is detailed below for each relevant project during the period 1 April 2011 to 31 March 2015. In addition, the Department funds support activity under Priority 3, the technical assistance strand of the ESF programme. This activity is delivered by PROTEUS, an organisation based in North Belfast - funding for this is also listed below.

Ashton Community Trust: Women's Training Project	524,844
Ashton Community Trust: Progress to Employment	1,270,356
Ashton Community Trust: North Belfast Works	1,022,243
Insight Accessibility: Skills to Succeed	421,596
North Belfast Employment Centre: Re-Start	787,570
North Belfast Employment Centre: Improving Your Future Prospects	762,019
North Belfast Partnership: Local Employment Access Partnership (LEAP)	461,711
North City Business Centre: The E-Skills Programme for North Belfast	299,845
North City Training: Young Person's Employability Initiative	1,048,893
North City Training: Grey Workers Programme	475,439

Visual Access NI (Ltd): Skills for Future Employability	228,774
Women's Tec: Extending Training in Communities	1,034,077
Groundwork: REACH	399,455
Proteus: Essential	428,224

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Employment and Learning, pursuant to AQW 27940/11-15 and AQW 27938/11-15, what date Queen's University, Belfast first become aware that the chapter, Personalised Classroom Learning by School of Education lecturer, Dr Ron Smith and Professor Tony Gallagher published in the book Education for Inclusion & Diversity did not exist; and to outline the steps taken to address conduct in relation to policy on the use of the research portal and conduct and integrity in research given the assurances he has provided.

(AQW 34908/11-15)

Dr Farry: As previously advised in my responses to AQW 27938/11-15 and AQW 27940/11-15, the accuracy of the bibliographical details contained in any academic publications and the investigation of cases of alleged academic misconduct are not within the remit of my Department.

This is an internal matter for Queen's University Belfast.

Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how much her Department has spent on each of the main five Signature Projects since their introduction.

(AQW 34463/11-15)

Mrs Foster (The Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment): The Northern Ireland Tourist Board's (NITB) Strategic Framework for Action 2004 – 2007 (SFA) identified five Signature Projects.

These projects were identified for their uniqueness to Northern Ireland, their potential to deliver world-class excellence, and their ability to draw visitors from home and overseas. These were major capital projects which required significant investment from a variety of sources and funding programmes supported and delivered by a wide range of stakeholders. These projects are now mostly complete.

Signature Project:	Total Spend: (to the nearest million)
Titanic & Maritime Belfast (See Table 2 below)	£50m
Causeway Coast & Glens (including Giants Causeway Visitor Experience)	£14m
The Walled City	£11m
St. Patrick & Christian Heritage	£ 2m
The Mourne	£ 3m
Total:	£80m

Titanic & Maritime Belfast:	Total Spend: ('million)
Titanic Signature Building (including Belfast Harbour Commissioners land donation)	£43.1m
Thompson Dock & Pump-House	£ 0.9m
Re-development of the SS Nomadic	£ 1.6m
Belfast Harbour Pontoon Mooring System	£ 0.5m
Titanic Trails	£ 0.2m
Lagan Legacy	£0.15m
Drawing Offices (on behalf of DETI)	£ 3.6m
Subtotal:	£50m

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what was the total cost of hospitality provided by InterTradelreland and its secretariat in 2013/14.

(AQW 34527/11-15)

Mrs Foster: In the financial year 2013-14, the total cost of hospitality provided by InterTradelreland amounted to £6,149.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment whether her Department has received notification of the intention by Infrastrata to undertake exploratory drilling in County Antrim; and if so, to detail the content of the notification.

(AQW 34565/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Yes, the company has informed DETI that a prospect underlying Woodburn Forest has been chosen for an exploratory well on Northern Ireland Water owned land 3km northwest of Carrickfergus.

The exploratory drilling will be undertaken under Permitted Development Rights as approved by Department of Environment Planning and is expected to take place this coming Autumn/Winter.

There are three phases in the wellsite operations proposed under permitted development. A brief description and approximate timescales for each phase are as follows:

- (i) The construction of the wellsite and the improvement of the existing access track - expected to take up to 8 weeks;
- (ii) the assembly and installation of drilling equipment and facilities and drilling of the exploratory well - expected to take up to 8 weeks;
- (iii) the well will then be plugged and abandoned and the wellsite restored.

InfraStrata has not yet submitted an Application for Consent to Drill to my Department.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what assessment has been made of the value of youth hostels to the economy; and how her Department is promoting and supporting youth hostels.

(AQW 34609/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Statistics & Research Agency (NISRA) does not hold any data on the number of visitors from outside Northern Ireland who stayed in youth hostels in Northern Ireland. However, the estimated number of overnight trips taken by Northern Ireland residents in hostels is available from the Continuous Household Survey. Due to small sample sizes, figures are subject to large confidence intervals.

In 2013, the estimated number of overnight trips by NI residents in NI hostels was 51,000 with an associated 100,000 nights and £4 million expenditure. Please note that the number of trips and nights are rounded to the nearest thousand and expenditure to the nearest £million.

The past two decades has seen a rise in the youth travel market (which incorporates but is not limited to backpacking) and the Northern Ireland Tourist Board (NITB) recognises the importance of promoting and supporting youth hostels.

There are currently 46 Hostels certified in Northern Ireland all of which are advertised on the Northern Ireland Tourist Board's consumer website www.discovernorthernireland.com.

Hostel providers have the option to participate in the voluntary NITB quality star rating scheme, which is a useful source of business and marketing advice. The scheme offers a one to five star rating which the Hostels can use to promote their offering to potential guests. NITB has recently awarded the first five star rating to a Hostel in Portrush.

NITB has invested in Hostel quality development training for its advisory staff and is currently undertaking a series of advisory visits to Hostels throughout Northern Ireland to encourage participation in this scheme.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how much core funding Craigavon Industrial Development Organisation has accessed in the last five years; and the source of the funding.

(AQW 34688/11-15)

Mrs Foster: As Craigavon Industrial Development Organisation is a Local Enterprise Agency over which Invest NI has no financial or operational responsibility, no core funding has been provided from Invest NI over the past 5 years.

The Regional Start Initiative (RSI) is delivered by Enterprise Northern Ireland (ENI) on behalf of Invest NI, following a successful tender competition. RSI has been operational since October 2012 and CIDO delivers the programme in the Craigavon District Council area on a subcontract basis from ENI. Since the inception of RSI, CIDO have completed 214 business plans (to May 2014) at a total cost of £71,904 (including Vat).

Ms Boyle asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment (i) for an update on the trade missions she has planned for the next twelve months; (ii) whether she will include the Strabane district as a priority area given the high levels of unemployment, lack of investment and the land available at the 40 acre InvestNI business park; and (iii) whether she will consider including key stakeholders in the economic regeneration of Strabane in any future trade missions.

(AQW 34740/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Invest Northern Ireland has scheduled over fifty Trade Missions on their current calendar for the fifteen months from Jan 2014 to March 2015 and publish an up to date list on their website. As Minister I seek to support these missions and travel on selected missions to support specific activities in the market.

I promote the whole of Northern Ireland as an attractive, viable location for inward investment opportunities in what is a very competitive global market. The Northern Ireland proposition is based on the availability of a talented workforce, advanced telecoms infrastructure, high skilled business clusters, a pro-business environment, competitive operating costs and proximity to major markets. Ultimately, the investor makes the decision as to where they visit and locate in Northern Ireland, based on their specific business needs and having considered all the options available to them.

The Trade Mission focus is the development of appropriate sales channels for local businesses to sell Northern Ireland products and services in international markets and so would not be the correct vehicle for stakeholders seeking to secure inward investment.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 34690/11-15, to detail why the information requested on InvestNI's performance in (i) AQW 32727/11-15; (ii) AQW 32720/11-15; (iii) AQW 32719/11-15; and (iv) AQW 32718/11-15 has not been provided.

(AQW 35117/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Invest NI has just released information on the regional breakdown of its 2013-14 end of year results. I have asked them to prepare responses to your questions and I will write to you separately with the information you requested.

Department of the Environment

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the external reports or consultations commissioned and funded by his Department in each of the last three years; and the cost of each report or publication commissioned.

(AQW 34077/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): The Department's work involves regular consultation exercises and commissioning scientific and other research, some of which leads to the production of reports. Some of these reports may be internal, some circulated amongst specialists in the area concerned, and some published for wider availability. The tables attached provide a list of consultations and readily identifiable external research exercises which will have led to the production of reports, although not all of these reports would have been destined or designed for wider publication or circulation.

Also some of the research will have been carried out under the terms of composite research contracts with academic institutions and other research bodies. In these instances the costs are incorporated within the overall expenditure on the relevant contract(s).

In those cases where a consultation exercise was managed as an in-house exercise using departmental staff, the costs of these aspects of their work cannot be readily separated from their other work and thus have not been costed separately.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of the Environment what consideration was given to Driver and Vehicle Agency staff with cardiac and severe respiratory conditions, when determining exemption from transfer to other areas of work.
(AQW 34427/11-15)

Mr Durkan: All surplus staff affected by the decision to centralise vehicle licensing services in Swansea were given the opportunity to submit a DOE Relocation Disability Assessment form if they believed they had a disability or significant medical condition which might restrict their mobility in a redeployment situation.

The assessment form made clear that up-to-date medical evidence should be provided which would identify the individual's specific medical condition and support a claim for restricted mobility.

In most cases the medical evidence was provided in sealed envelopes which were passed on to the Occupational Health Service (OHS) to allow it to carry out the assessments. My Department would not therefore be able to comment on the consideration given to specific medical conditions as the assessments were carried out by an independent body.

However in the assessment form it was confirmed that the OHS adviser's assessment will be based on the specific medical evidence submitted by the employee assessed against set criteria. I am satisfied that this process ensures that assessments are carried out on a consistent basis.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33483/11-15, to set out the legacy and systemic issues referred to in his answer.

(AQW 34537/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The issues referred to relate to structures, resources and procedures within and between parts of my Department. As set out in the previous answer I am taking measures to address these issues.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33483/11-15, whether his proposal to include a review of extant permissions on a phased basis is because the approach set out in his answer to AQW 29460/11-15 did not comply with the Habitats Regulations; and whether this review will be completed for all European sites before planning responsibilities are passed over to the new local authorities.

(AQW 34538/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department's approach to the timing and phasing of a review has been a consequence of constraints around the availability of resources within the Department. As set out in my previous answer, I am taking measures to address these issues.

It is unlikely that the review will be completed before the transfer of planning powers to Councils. The Department is currently working through the arrangements around the transfer of particular functions to councils, including the Minerals function.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33483/11-15, why his Department did not comply with its own Habitats Regulations which required the review of extant planning permissions likely to affect European sites; and what assurances he can give that no liabilities will be placed on the new local authorities as a result of this legacy.

Mr Durkan: The Department's approach to the timing and phasing of a review has been a consequence of constraints around the availability of resources within the Department. As set out in my previous answer, I am taking measures to address these issues.

The Department is currently working through the arrangements around the transfer of particular functions to councils, and this issue forms part of that consideration.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment how he will address the needs of non-farming rural dwellers under the new Strategic Planning Policy Statement.

(AQW 34592/11-15)

Mr Durkan: In recognition of the continued interest on this issue I agreed to reconsider it as part of the consultation on the new single Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS). I aim to ensure that the rural planning policy set out in that document will adequately manage growth in the countryside to achieve appropriate and sustainable patterns of development that meet the needs of current and future generations of farming and non-farming rural dwellers.

The consultation on the SPPS has now closed and my officials are currently analysing the responses that have been received, including those that raise rural planning policy issues. When this work is concluded I will advise members on my policy position as regards non-farming rural dwellers.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of the Environment how many schools in each constituency are yet to be enrolled in the Eco-Schools programme.

(AQW 34598/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Eco-Schools Programme is now operating in 1,159 schools across Northern Ireland, which represents 96.5% of all schools. By constituency, the number of schools still to register is shown in the table below:

Number of Schools to Register	Constituency
0	East Londonderry
1	Belfast North
1	Newry and Armagh
1	East Antrim
1	Upper Bann
1	Belfast East
1	Belfast West
2	West Tyrone
2	South Down

Number of Schools to Register	Constituency
2	Mid Ulster
3	South Antrim
3	Fermanagh & South Tyrone
3	Belfast South
3	Lagan Valley
4	Foyle
4	North Down
5	North Antrim
5	Strangford

Work will continue in September when the new school year commences to encourage the remaining 42 schools to register with the Programme.

Mr Ó hOisín asked the Minister of the Environment to outline the relationship between the Driver and Vehicle Standards Agency and the Driver and Vehicle Agency, including accountability mechanisms on governance, operational independence and recruitment.

(AQW 34625/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Driver and Vehicle Standards Agency (DVSA) and the Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA) are operationally independent organisations with separate accountability mechanisms, governance structures and recruitment practices. However, both organisations co-operate on issues of mutual interest, including the application of similar driver and vehicle testing standards, where appropriate.

The DVA Chief Executive is responsible for the day to day delivery of services, including driver and vehicle testing, driver and operator licensing and related enforcement activities. DVA's Chief Executive is accountable through the Department of the Environment's Permanent Secretary to the Minister of the Environment. DVA staff are employees of the DOE and are recruited in accordance with the Northern Ireland Civil Service recruitment policies and procedures.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of the Environment, following the introduction in January 2015 of the Power of Seizure regulations regarding taxi licensing, what additional resources and posts will be required to implement these new powers.

(AQW 34666/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Powers of Seizure regulations will be administered through the Driver and Vehicle Agency's existing Public Service Vehicle enforcement teams in Belfast and Newbuildings. There are no immediate plans to increase resources or to create additional posts, however, DVA will continue to monitor and review its wider resourcing requirements as the remaining aspects of the Taxi Act are implemented.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, further to his statement on the proposed taxis amendment, how he intends to enhance facilities for the consumer, when some providers will be affected and suffer loss.

(AQW 34669/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The changes that will be made in implementing the provisions of the Taxis Act (NI) 2008 include:

- the reform of the taxi licensing regime, including single tier licensing throughout Northern Ireland, replacing the current differing provisions in Belfast;
- the reintroduction of a taxi test for new drivers and new periodic training for all taxi drivers;
- a mandatory requirement for taxis to have taximeters and printers installed and also adhere to a new maximum fare; and
- a new, improved, specification for wheelchair accessible taxis.

The proposals will have many benefits for the consumer, including:

- increasing choice for consumers in terms of which taxi they can use;
- improving the availability of taxis in Belfast city centre, particularly at peak times;
- lessening public confusion as to which taxis can be hailed in different circumstances;
- raising standards through testing and periodic training, with a mandatory requirement to undertake training in disability awareness;
- more transparent pricing and protection against overcharging; and
- more accessible wheelchair accessible taxis.

The proposed changes will enhance the reputation of the taxi industry as a whole, increasing the confidence of the public in Northern Ireland using taxis.

I am convinced that any sector of the industry that provides a good quality and price-competitive service will be able to thrive in the improved regulatory regime that the Taxis Act provides for.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of the Environment what are the consequences of a tour bus operator habitually departing from the route specified in its licence.

(AQW 34672/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Any changes to the licensed services by a tour bus operator are required to be approved in advance by the Department otherwise the operator would be in breach of a condition of their licence.

In the event of such breaches, there are a range of measures available to the Driver and Vehicle Agency (DVA), commencing with interviewing the operator regarding compliance issues. The DVA can take prosecution actions on foot of licence breaches, and ultimately may curtail, or revoke operator licences.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of the Environment, in light of his Department's responsibility for issuing route-specific licences to tour bus operators, what consultation the Department of Finance and Personnel held with his Department before it was determined that tour buses could no longer enter and leave the Stormont Estate by the Massey Avenue entrance.

(AQW 34673/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Driver & Vehicle Agency was not consulted on this issue. However I can confirm that discussions between my Department and the Department of Finance and Personnel have resolved this issue and the decision to stop tour buses entering and leaving the Stormont Estate by the Massey Avenue entrance has been rescinded.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of the Environment why it is not possible to pay vehicle excise duty fees for vehicles which have a Statutory Off Road Notification at all Post Office branches.

(AQW 34674/11-15)

Mr Durkan: By way of background, vehicle licensing is an excepted matter, and is the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Transport. It is administered in Northern Ireland by the Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) under a formal agreement between the Department of the Environment and the Department for Transport (DfT). The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) is responsible for vehicle licensing policy matters across the United Kingdom and provides the necessary funding for the vehicle and registration services delivered by DVA in Northern Ireland.

Indefinite SORN was introduced on 16 December 2013 and removed the requirement for customers to renew a SORN every year. A SORN declaration now remains in force until the vehicle is taxed, sold, permanently exported or scrapped (via an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF)). This change was introduced throughout the United Kingdom and removed the need to send out renewal reminders for vehicles with a SORN declaration in force.

While the introduction of Indefinite SORN removed the unnecessary burden of annual renewal, this also means that customers who wish to licence a vehicle with a SORN declaration must do so using a 'V10 (NI) – Vehicle Licence Application' form. This service is currently available from any DVA local motor tax office, by post to Coleraine or from a limited number of Post Office branches.

The DVA has, for many years, pressed DVLA to provide funding to develop online and other improved services for motorists in Northern Ireland, including enhanced Post Office services, to bring them into line with what is available in Great Britain. However, DVLA has robustly resisted such changes and believes the most effective and economical way to deliver these services in Northern Ireland is by developing a fully integrated IT system for the whole of the United Kingdom.

You will be well aware that the Department for Transport in London is introducing new arrangements for vehicle licensing and registration services in Northern Ireland. After 17 July 2014 the DVA in Northern Ireland will no longer tax and register vehicles. This will become the responsibility of the DVLA in Swansea from Monday 21 July 2014. From this date customers will be able to tax a SORNed vehicle using DVLA's online relicensing facility, via its automated telephone system or at all Post Office branches that offer vehicle relicensing services.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of the Environment whether training concerning driving in close proximity to cyclists will be included in the new taxi driver test and future taxi driver training requirements.

Mr Durkan: A taxi driving test for new taxi drivers is scheduled to be introduced in October 2014. The test will be in two parts, a theory test and a practical driving test. These tests have been developed to take account of a candidate's knowledge of driving theory, the rules of the road, best driving practice and a candidate's ability to cope with all on-road situations encountered during the practical test. The tests are designed to assess a driver's knowledge, ability and skills to drive safely. Both the theory test and practical driving test place a high importance on cyclist safety.

Taxi periodic training is scheduled to be introduced in September 2015 and will require all taxi drivers to complete 21 hours periodic training every three years. The training will be delivered by approved training providers who will develop and register their training courses with the Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA). One of the subject areas to be covered by the training is 'vulnerable road users' and as such, training providers can develop courses to include driving in close proximity to cyclists.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of the Environment how many illegal taxis were detected in (i) Limavady; and (ii) Coleraine in each of the last three years; and what action was taken in each case.

(AQW 34708/11-15)

Mr Durkan: DVA Enforcement Officers inspected 3331 taxis for compliance with legal requirements in the Limavady and Coleraine areas in the last three years. The tables below identify numbers of vehicles detected and the nature of the enforcement action taken.

Limavady

Sanction Imposed	11/12 (Apr-Mar)	12/13 (Apr-Mar)	13/14 (Apr-Mar)
Prosecution	1	0	0
Fixed Penalty Notice	0	4	3
Prohibition Notice*	2	1	5
Defect Notice	4	8	9

Total Inspections	48	81	103

1 Figures are DOE Official Statistics.

* A Prohibition Notice is issued where one or more serious defects are identified in order to restrict the continued use of the offending vehicle on a road.

 A Defect Notice is issued where minor defects are identified and requires the owner of the vehicle to present it at a Vehicle Testing Centre within 14 days for further inspection.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment for his definition of the term 'mini fall off' as used by Rathlin Energy.
(AQW 34729/11-15)

Mr Durkan: A 'mini fall off test' is a method for determining potential oil and gas reservoir properties, such as the permeability of a reservoir.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment whether he has had any discussions with UNESCO on the future designation of the Giants Causeway as a world heritage site should planning application E/2013/0093/F be approved.
(AQW 34730/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I have had no discussions with UNESCO concerning this planning application or the designation of the Giant's Causeway as a world heritage site. The application is in respect of a site some 10 kilometres from the Giants Causeway and would not therefore be expected to have any implications for the designation of the world heritage site.

Ms Boyle asked the Minister of the Environment, in light of the recent transfer of public sector jobs within DOE to Coleraine and Derry, what plans he has to transfer posts within his Department to the Strabane area.
(AQW 34747/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The recent transfer of posts to the Coleraine and Derry area is primarily to meet the immediate needs of those DVA staff directly affected by the decision of the Westminster government to centralise vehicle licensing work in Swansea. These DVA job losses will have a detrimental effect to the economy in Coleraine and further afield. To alleviate this I have arranged to relocate 70 jobs to Coleraine and 24 posts from DOE Planning, including the Chief Planner, DOE Marine Division, and some posts from my own Private Office to Ebrington in Derry.

My Department has no offices in Strabane to which staff could be located and currently has no plans to open offices in Strabane. However, my Department will continue to seek to relocate Civil Service jobs out of the Greater Belfast area, including to Strabane and west of the Bann, so ensuring that a larger proportion of the north of Ireland can benefit from the economic prosperity that local jobs can bring for local people.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 34143/11-15, whether full compliance was found on both occasions; if so, (ii) why a second visit was required so soon, but none since; and if not (iii) to detail the nature of any issues, including how they were addressed.

Mr Durkan: The first visit was conducted at the operator's premises on 3 October 2013, during which a number of booking records were inspected to establish how taxi arrangements were being conducted at Ravenhill Rugby Ground. The operator was deemed to be compliant with legal requirements.

The second visit conducted on 6 February 2014 was to undertake a general compliance audit and was scheduled as part of the Agency's annual compliance audit programme.

Given that the operator was deemed fully compliant on 6 February 2014 it will not be necessary to carry out a further visit until the next round of compliance audits are planned.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment, given that he told a resident of Ballinlea that any attempt at exploratory drilling, which is necessary in advance of hydraulic fracturing should be subject to a full Environmental Impact Assessment, whether planning application E/2013/0093/F constitutes exploratory drilling in advance of hydraulic fracturing; and whether this planning application will be subject to a full Environmental Impact Assessment.

(AQW 34800/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The development proposed under application E/2013/0093/F constitutes a conventional borehole and is not for the unconventional exploration of hydrocarbons, neither does it propose to use any unconventional testing techniques.

The application is currently being screened against the Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (NI) 2012 and a determination from the Department will be issued imminently.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment whether he is aware of any inaccurate comments made by Planning Service or Rathlin Energy to statutory consultees or members of the public during the planning process for application E/2013/0093/F.

(AQW 34802/11-15)

Mr Durkan: DOE Planning operates an open and transparent policy in relation to the processing of any planning application.

DOE Planning has sought clarification from RPS, the agent acting on behalf of Rathlin Energy, with regards to information submitted originally with the planning application. All the information received has been placed on the Planning Portal which is available to both the public and consultees to view at any time.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment whether Planning Service has informed any statutory consultees that planning application E/2013/0093/F does not contain any proposals for hydraulic fracturing.

(AQW 34803/11-15)

Mr Durkan: DOE Planning did advise consultees that the proposal was not an application to undertake hydraulic fracturing.

This statement was provided in the covering letter which was submitted with the application and was understood to be in reference to 'unconventional high volume' hydraulic fracturing.

The development proposed under application E/2013/0093/F constitutes a conventional borehole and is not for the unconventional exploration of hydrocarbons, neither does it propose to use any unconventional testing techniques.

At the extended testing phase, should the operator have difficulty obtaining the natural flow of the gas/oil, a conventional hydraulic stimulation fracture may need to be conducted.

Information on the extended testing phase and proposed works have been detailed in the Operational Statement provided by the company which has been uploaded onto the Planning Portal for consultees to review and comment on.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of the Environment how much money was released to Ballymena residents from the flooding relief scheme for the flooding that occurred in June 2014.

(AQW 34809/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Flooding in the Toome Road and Galgorm Road areas of Ballymena was reported to my department on 8 June 2014. I activated the Scheme of Financial Assistance to Councils immediately.

Ballymena Borough Council has until 8 September (three months after the incident) to seek reimbursement for any payments it has made under the Scheme. To date no claims have been received.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33970/11-15 and given that the Minister for Regional Development's answer to AQW 33656/11-15 states that figure was based on estimates provided by traffic attendants and that in carrying out their duties, traffic attendants do not record the nature of business in which vehicles are involved, and given that the answer to AQW33644/11-15 states that the nature of business that any particular vehicle may be involved in, including taxis, is not recorded, (i) how this purports to support what his officials told the Committee for the Environment, when all the information is based on estimates and there is no evidence to substantiate that all such alleged vehicles involved were taxis; and whether he is content to bring forward proposals or amend legislation using estimates as evidence in lieu of recorded fact.

Mr Durkan: I would refer the member to my answer to AQW 34047/11-15.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33401/11-15, (i) how many times in previous years the issue of unregulated sand extraction from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area has been raised with his Department; (ii) who raised the matter; (iii) for what reasons did his Department not pursue enforcement action; and (iv) who is responsible for taking the decisions not to pursue enforcement action.

(AQW 34826/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department's records indicate that the matter was discussed during the production of the Lough Neagh Development Study Report in 1991.

It is unclear from the Department's records what decisions were made concerning the pursuit of any potential enforcement action and who was responsible for taking decisions concerning this.

You will be aware that I am now engaged with officials to regulate this development.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of the Environment what environmental protection permissions are required before instigating a test borehole for oil or gas.

(AQW 34835/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The environmental protection permissions required for an exploratory oil or gas borehole are decided on a case by case basis, specific to each individual operator's proposed working practices and location.

As a minimum, a Groundwater Authorisation is usually required.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33267/11-15, to detail the 17 applications still to be reviewed; and given that an immediate review was ordered a year and a half ago, why the environmental impact assessment determinations for these cases have not been re-examined.

(AQW 35050/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department has identified 16 applications which now remain to be reviewed. (Please see the table in annex one.) Of these remaining 16 applications, 8 applications are nearing completion of the review process. The review of Environmental Impact Assessment Determinations is an ongoing process. Extra resources have recently been allocated to Minerals Management and Compliance as part of the process of re-structuring for RPA. This exercise is now largely complete so that the review of applications may be concluded.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 25467/11-15, how many times, since 2000, minerals permissions have been reviewed to assess the environmental impact on a newly declared candidate for Special Area of Conservation or other designations of international importance.

Mr Durkan: While no applications have been assessed to date, as set out on previous responses to you I am taking measures to address this issue which include putting the correct structure, resources and processes in place that will ensure compliance with obligations to assess any environmental impact on a newly declared candidate or other designations of international importance.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33267/11-15, how many of the 103 applications reviewed have been issued as (i) approvals; and (ii) refusals.

(AQW 35116/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department does not have the required information easily to hand. My officials are currently reviewing the relevant statistics and a response will be issued as soon as this information is available.

Department of Finance and Personnel

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how much (i) Peace III; and (ii) departmental funding has been allocated to the Bushmills Trust in each of the last three years.

(AQW 33794/11-15)

Mr Hamilton (The Minister of Finance and Personnel): No PEACE III or DFP departmental funding has been allocated to the Bushmills Trust in the last three years. There is no record of the organisation having applied for PEACE III funding.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel when rates were last paid on the commercial property at Bryan Street, Ballymena which last traded as What Everyone Wants.

(AQW 34267/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Under the Data Protection Act, LPS cannot release the information requested.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether the First Minister or deputy First Minister have made him aware of the difficulty which their Department is facing in honouring successful applications submitted by groups for funds under £75,000 for the 2014/15 financial year through the Victims and Survivors Service.

(AQW 34518/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: While I have not been directly approached by the First Minister or the deputy First Minister on this issue, OFMDFM did submit a bid for additional funding for the small grants element of the Victims Support Programme as part of the June Monitoring exercise.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel why permission has been withdrawn from the operators of the open top bus tours of Belfast to access Stormont Estate by the Massey Avenue entrance.

(AQW 34607/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: This was an operational decision made to control the traffic flow on Massey Avenue. However, due to licensing issues with the Tour Operators, we have withdrawn this restriction and are again allowing entrance via Massey Avenue.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how many visitors have stayed in youth hostels in each of the last three years, broken down by visitors from within and from outside of Northern Ireland.

(AQW 34610/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: NISRA does not hold any data on the number of visitors from outside Northern Ireland who stayed in youth hostels in Northern Ireland. However, the estimated number of overnight trips taken by Northern Ireland residents in hostels is available from the Continuous Household Survey. Due to small sample sizes, figures in the attached table are subject to large confidence intervals.

The estimated number of overnight trips taken by Northern Ireland (NI) residents within NI in hostels over the last three years is detailed in the attached table.

Overnight trips by Residents in NI Hostels (2011-2013)

	Overnight Trips
2011	38,000
2012	24,000
2013	51,000

Source: Continuous Household Survey, 2013

Data is rounded to the nearest thousand

Background Note

- Information on the number of visitors to youth hostels in NI is not readily available from either the hostels themselves or the HINI (Hostelling International Northern Ireland). However, NISRA's CHS measures the number of overnight trips by NI residents in NI and what type of accommodation they stayed in during this trip.

- 2 The Continuous Household Survey is a voluntary sample survey carried out by interviewing individuals in private households. One module of the interview relates to overnight trips and day trips taken by Northern Ireland residents.
- 3 Figures taken from the CHS are subject to an associated sampling error that decreases as the sample size increases. It is the nature of sampling variability that the smaller the group whose size is being estimated, the (proportionately) less precise that estimate is. The estimates in this answer are based on small sample sizes and therefore should be treated with caution.
- 4 The CHS asked all those aged 16 and over if they took a trip over the last four weeks and what accommodation was used during this trip. The estimates in this answer relate to those who stated they stayed in 'hostels' during their trip. It is not possible to distinguish how many such visits related to 'youth hostels'.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what engagement he has had with the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development on conditions in the Reservoirs Bill that will allow her Department not to pursue full cost recovery for services delivered.

(AQW 34643/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: I have not had any engagement with the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development on the specific conditions in the Reservoirs Bill that will allow her Department not to pursue full cost recovery for services delivered.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the visitor numbers for each local country park over the last twelve months.

(AQW 34657/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Visitor numbers to Northern Ireland country parks are collected by the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency (NISRA) Visitor Attraction Survey. This is a voluntary survey and the results are based solely on the visitor numbers provided by the country parks choosing to participate. The estimated number of visitors to responding country parks or forest parks during the calendar year 2013 is listed overleaf.

Visitor Numbers in Participating Country Parks/Forest Parks/Parks/Gardens (2013)

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what consultation was held with the Department of the Environment, which issues route-specific licences to tour bus operators, before the edict was issued that tour buses could no longer enter and leave the Stormont Estate by the Massey Avenue entrance.

(AQW 34670/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: No consultation with the Department of the Environment took place.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what consultation was held with the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, given its tourism responsibilities, before the edict was issued that tour buses could no longer enter and leave the Stormont Estate by the Massey Avenue entrance, in order to check if the resulting addition to the duration of City tours would reduce the number of such daily tours on offer.

(AQW 34671/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: No consultation with the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment took place.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to outline the regional variations in lung cancer mortality rates in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 34719/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: the attached table details (i) the number of registered deaths due to lung cancer (2013); and (ii) the death rate per 1,000 population due to lung cancer (2013) for each local government district.

Mr McNarry asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to what extent HM Treasury is supplementing structural funds in Northern Ireland in the period 2014-2020; and by how much EU structural funding has been cut for the same period.
(AQW 34737/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: HM Treasury are not supplementing EU structural funds in Northern Ireland.

EU structural funding to Northern Ireland has been cut by €46m, which is 4.49% of the value of the 2007-2013 programmes at 2013 prices.

Mr McNarry asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether he has had any discussions with HM Treasury on the likely impact on Northern Ireland of the devo-max option for Scotland.
(AQW 34738/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: I have not had any specific discussions with HM Treasury on this matter.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel, pursuant to AQO 4245/11-15, for an update on his Department's review of the recommendations of the Law Commission in respect of the regulation of apartment management agencies.
(AQW 34748/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The recommendations in the Commission's final report are wide-ranging and the Executive has established an Apartments Report Implementation Group, which is comprised of senior officials from the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, the Department of Finance and Personnel, the Department of the Environment, the Department of Justice and the Department of Social Development. The Group has been considering how a regulation scheme for managing agents would operate in this jurisdiction and it has gathered sufficient information to allow for the preparation of the final policy proposals, which will have to be agreed by the Executive.

In due course the Group will be turning its attention to the broader recommendations in the Commission's report. However, at this stage, I should point out that an initial assessment has suggested that some of those broader recommendations could be more difficult to implement, particularly where they envisage the revision of existing property rights.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what has been the expenditure by the Special EU Programmes Body on hospitality in 2013/14.

Mr Hamilton: The response to the Member in AQW 34139/11-15 dated 1st July 2014 provides the requested information.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether he has been alerted to any issue around proposed contract undercharging by G4S in relation to security provision for local courts.

(AQW 35001/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: I have not been made aware of an issue of proposed contract undercharging by G4S in relation to the contract for security services for local courts.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the action he has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to his Department

(AQW 35061/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: No public petitions have been referred to my Department.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel, pursuant to his response to AQO 6287/11-15, for an update on the issue of equal pay for NIO and PSNI staff.

(AQW 35099/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: As I have previously stated, it has been clearly established that there is no valid equal pay claim upon which to base a settlement for this group, so this is not an 'equal pay issue'. However, I hope that the paper I circulated to Executive colleagues a number of weeks ago recognises the moral argument put forward and will satisfactorily resolve the issue for this group of staff. I now await the agreement of Executive colleagues for the paper to be brought forward for discussion since my recommendation and any expenditure will require their agreement. While I appreciate the frustration of staff affected, the matter is now in the hands of the Executive.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how many people in the (i) Coleraine; (ii) Limavady; (iii) Ballymoney; and (iv) Moyle council areas were in rates arrears in the last full rating year.

(AQW 35136/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: As at 31 March 2014, the number of occupancies with an outstanding rating debt for properties in each of the (i) Coleraine; (ii) Limavady; (iii) Ballymoney; and (iv) Moyle Council areas are provided in the table attached. An occupancy represents a liable ratepayer at a property at a given time. The figures include occupancies with domestic or non-domestic debt.

District Council	Number of Occupancies in Debt as at 31 March 2014
Coleraine	3,334
Limavady	2,113
Ballymoney	1,310
Moyle	805

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how many tenants are being pursued for rates payments when their rental agreement has stipulated that rents would have been inclusive of rates and that rates would have been payable by the landlord.

(AQW 35140/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The information requested is not available.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the cost of prescriptions issued in (i) 2009; and (ii) 2013.

(AQW 34199/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): The published cost of prescriptions, as provided on the Business Services Organisation (BSO) website (<http://www.hscbusiness.hscni.net/services/1806.htm>), is as follows:

- In 2009, the published cost was £412.5m before discounts were applied; and
- In 2013, the published cost was £409.0m before discounts were applied.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the progress made in the delivery of Supported Living schemes.

(AQW 34468/11-15)

Mr Poots: Supported Living encompasses a range of health and care provision, health-related adaptations, housing accommodation and housing support services that are designed to help vulnerable people to retain their independence in the community

Planning for supported living schemes takes place within three to five year periods, with the current period ending in March 2016. The numbers of proposed developments are driven by trusts' assessments of local demand as part of ongoing service delivery.

This is a process which in my assessment is working well, with needs identified locally and schemes delivered in order to meet those needs.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the expenditure on hospitality by the Food Safety Promotion Board and its secretariat in 2013/14.

(AQW 34529/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Food Safety Promotion Board's financial year is the calendar year rather than the British financial year. The hospitality element of the costs of FSPB meetings in 2013 amounted to £2,385. The hospitality element of the costs of FSPB meetings in 2014 to date amounts to £2,448.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33961/11-15, (i) how many patients attended the Renal Unit at the Belfast City Hospital over the last twelve months; (ii) how many consultant's patients are attached to the unit; and (iii) given that all transplant surgery takes place at the Belfast City Hospital, why records are not kept of those patients who are repatriated from these consultants to renal units within other Health and Social Care Trusts.

(AQW 34544/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on the number of patients who have attended the Belfast City Hospital and the number of consultants attached to the unit has been provided by the Belfast HSC Trust.

- (i) In the twelve months from April 2013 to March 2014, a total of 615 patients attended the renal unit transplant clinic at the Belfast City Hospital.
- (ii) There are a total of 5 consultants attached to the unit transplant clinic.
- (iii) Since the Belfast HSC Trust's previous response to AQW 33961/11-15, a manual review of all patients who have attended the Belfast City Hospital from April 2012 until March 2014 has been completed. In total, 101 renal transplant recipients have been repatriated to other units from Belfast City Hospital (BCH). This is always by agreement of all parties (patient, BCH consultant, non-BCH consultant).

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he plans to introduce the small prescription charge which he has indicated would raise sufficient resources for the establishment of a cancer drugs fund; and if so, when the charge will be introduced.

(AQW 34546/11-15)

Mr Poots: I have indicated that I do not consider it unreasonable for those who can afford it, to make a small contribution towards the cost of their prescriptions, particularly in light of the challenges of funding high cost specialist medicines including cancer drugs.

As recently as last month, I made this view known to the Assembly because the reintroduction of a small prescription charge in Northern Ireland, which could be directed towards a new specialist drugs fund, would require Executive approval and would be subject to full public consultation.

There has been substantial lobbying for a fund similar to the Cancer Drugs Fund available in England. I am sympathetic to the establishment of a Specialist Drugs fund which would not only be available for Cancer Drugs but would apply to other serious conditions.

I could only establish such a fund by cutting existing services or raising money. One means I am considering is a prescription charge. This would be subject to public consultation and Executive approval. Any charge should be modest and not punitive to individuals who are sick.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he has conducted an Equality Impact Assessment on access to cancer drugs under the current exceptionality clause.

(AQW 34548/11-15)

Mr Poots: The equality screening of the Individual Funding Request (IFR) policy, concerning access to cancer drugs, is the responsibility of the Health and Social Care Board as commissioner of specialist drugs. The Board has carried out an equality screening of the IFR policy. The screening document was published in April 2012 and is available at this website: <http://www.hscbusiness.hscni.net/services/2263.htm>

Mrs Overend asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on plans to implement staff car parking charges at the Causeway and Antrim Area Hospitals.

(AQW 34556/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are no immediate plans to implement staff car parking charges at the Antrim Area Hospital and Causeway Hospital sites.

Earlier this year, the Northern Health and Social Care Trust carried out a consultation on its proposed introduction of staff car parking charges at both Hospital sites and has been considering the responses received.

The outcome of this consultation exercise will also be subject to Trust Board approval and therefore until this process is complete, decisions on the introduction of staff car parking charges will not be finalised.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the recent appointment of the (i) Chief Executive; and (ii) Chairman of the Northern Health and Social Care Trust; and how many people (i) applied for the posts; and (ii) were interviewed for the posts.

(AQW 34562/11-15)

Mr Poots: The process for the recruitment of the Chief Executive of the Northern Health and Social Care Trust was managed by an external recruitment agency on behalf of the Trust. Seven applications for the post were received of which two, following a preliminary process, were brought forward to final interview. A successful candidate was identified and Dr Tony Stevens will take up this position in August 2014

The post of Chair of the Northern Health and Social Care Trust was advertised in February 2013, in response to which four applicants were received. The post was re-advertised in August 2013 resulting in a total of eight applications for consideration. Three applicants assessed as having met the criteria being sought were invited for interview in October 2013. I appointed Mr Bob McCann as non executive Chair of the Northern Health and Social Care Trust with effect from 20th January 2014.

The appointment competition was carried out in accordance with the Code of Practice issued by the Commissioner for Public Appointments for Northern Ireland.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what steps are being taken by Health and Social Care Trusts to respond to the reports of increasing dementia cases.

(AQW 34581/11-15)

Mr Poots: The increase in the numbers of persons being diagnosed with dementia in Northern Ireland is reflective of demographic trends and improved interventions by professionals' working within dementia services.

For example, a key objective for the regional Dementia Strategy Implementation Group and the agencies involved would be to raise diagnosis rates to 75% and above, across all Trusts. This objective has been built into the frail elderly specification for Integrated Care Partnerships and will be monitored as part of that process.

All five Trusts are committed to providing timely diagnosis and services are being developed to include pre and post diagnostic counselling, comprehensive assessment, support and education. Work is also on-going with GPs to enhance referrals to memory clinics which will, in turn, contribute to an increase in diagnostic rates.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety why expectant mothers with elevated BMI or diabetes are being advised to transfer their care from the South West Acute Hospital in Enniskillen to Altnagelvin Hospital.

(AQW 34593/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Western Health and Social Care Trust has advised that there have been recent changes to the criteria in the South West Acute Hospital following the receipt of a Safety and Quality Learning Letter on Patient Selection and Intrapartum Care in Maternity Units issued by the Public Health Agency and Health and Social Care Board.

Given the above evidence it was agreed that women with a BMI greater than 40 were at high risk and not suitable for delivery at the South West Acute Hospital and should be referred to Altnagelvin Hospital at booking.

Type 1 insulin dependent women with diabetes have and will continue to deliver in Altnagelvin Hospital. Women with gestational diabetes will continue to have their antenatal care and to deliver in the South West Acute Hospital.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what steps he has taken in the last three years to support people diagnosed with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy.

(AQW 34616/11-15)

Mr Poots: I fully support the recommendations contained in the Report of the All Party Group on Muscular Dystrophy. The Health and Social Care Board and Public Health Agency are taking forward the implementation of the Report's recommendations.

Progress has been made in a number of areas and I attach at Annex A information in respect of the services available to people with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy and details of planned service improvements.

Annex AServices for people with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy

Services for people with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy are provided by Health and Social Care Trusts on the basis of assessed need and may involve hospital and/or community based services.

The Belfast Health and Social Care Trust provides a regional neuromuscular clinic for all age groups at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast. As the management of neuromuscular conditions also requires input from other specialties such as cardiology, orthopaedics and respiratory medicine, a one-stop-shop with these specialties present has been piloted at Belfast City Hospital.

A specialist paediatric neuromuscular nurse is now in post within the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children. This post provides specialist nursing skills and knowledge in the management of those affected by a neuromuscular condition, their families and the professionals working with them.

Planned Service Improvements

Plans to improve services for people with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy include:

- The appointment of two care advisors in the Belfast Trust to provide advice, support and information to people living with neurological conditions including neuromuscular conditions.
- The development of clinical networks with specialist centres in other parts of GB is a priority for specialist children's services including formalising links with a specialist neuromuscular service so that clinicians can develop expertise in neuromuscular conditions and experts from the specialist centres can provide input into the service in Belfast.
- The modernisation of adult neurology services to include: review medical capacity development of 'one-stop-shops'/ multidisciplinary clinics for patients accessing a range of specialist services in Belfast Trust; the development of referral protocols linked to care pathways including GP referrals; and the use of telemedicine and virtual clinics. Any additional investment required will be subject to prioritisation within the resources available.
- The development of a patient journey for Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy which will focus on patients and their carers before and after diagnosis. The patient journey will be informed by the forthcoming GAIN care standards for Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy.
- The development of the NI Implementation Plan in response to the UK Strategy for Rare Disease. Any additional investment required will be subject to prioritisation within the resources available.
- The HSC Board has commenced a review of the regional eligibility criteria for the provision of wheelchairs through the Northern Ireland Wheelchair Service and steps have been taken to ensure the views of people with muscular dystrophy and neuromuscular conditions are considered as part of this review.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to list the locations of the local alcohol and drug rehabilitation centres; and whether there is capacity to increase the number of such centres.

(AQW 34621/11-15)

Mr Poots: Inpatient (Tier 4) alcohol and drug services – encompassing detoxification, stabilisation, and rehabilitation – are currently available at the following locations: Holywell Hospital in Antrim; Downshire Hospital in Downpatrick; St. Luke's in Armagh; and the Tyrone and Fermanagh Hospital in Omagh. It should be noted that there is variation between these units in terms of hours of operation, role/function, and focus upon detoxification and/or rehabilitation. These services are only for the most vulnerable/difficult cases and they are accessed through the local Trust Community Addiction Teams. In addition, Tier 4 rehabilitation services are commissioned by the HSC from Carlisle House in Belfast and Northlands in Londonderry.

The Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) recently consulted on the future of Tier 4 service provision. Subsequent to this, the HSCB has announced that current Tier 4 provision will be reconfigured over three sites with a total of 30 beds (all full time), encompassing both inpatient detoxification and rehabilitation provision. The existing contracts with the independent sector for inpatient rehabilitation service will be maintained. HSCB's commissioning intentions are summarised at: www.hscboard.hscni.net/news/Health%20and%20Social%20Care%20Board%20approves%20Revised%20Plans%20for%20the%20Future%20Development%20of%20Inpatient%20Based%20Addiction%20Treatment%20Services.html#TopOfPage

A full range of addiction services is also available in each Health and Social Care Trust area covering prevention, early intervention, harm reduction and treatment and support (including rehabilitation). Details of these services, broken down by Trust area, can be found on the Public Health Agency's website at the following link:

<http://www.publichealth.hscni.net/publications/drug-and-alcohol-directories-services>

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the 15 recommendations contained in the McCollum report.

(AQW 34627/11-15)

Mr Poots: I attach at Annex A an update from the Health and Social Care Board on each of the 15 recommendations contained in the McCollum Report.

AQW 34627/11-15 – Annex A

McCullum Report – Access to Specialist Neuromuscular Care in NI

Recommendation 1: A lead for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions is appointed from within Health and Social Care in Northern Ireland to take overall control and be accountable for identifying and fixing the gaps in specialist multidisciplinary neuromuscular care, which require urgent service development.

Ms Michelle Tennyson, Assistant Director, Allied Health Professions and Public Patient Involvement at the Public Health Agency, has been identified as the lead for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions in Northern Ireland.

Recommendation 2: The Northern Ireland Executive and HSC define and fully recognise neuromuscular services as specialist services in order to distinguish the complex muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions as requiring specialist support, which includes different specialisms.

Services for people with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy are provided by HSC Trusts on the basis of assessed need and may involve hospital and/or community based services.

There is a generic, regional neuromuscular clinic for all age groups provided by the Belfast Trust which is led by an adult neurologist and a paediatric neurologist with an interest in neuromuscular conditions. The clinic may also be attended by a clinical geneticist, neuro-physiotherapist, orthotist and occupational therapist. The management of neuromuscular conditions also requires input from other specialties such as cardiology, orthopaedics and respiratory medicine and a one-stop-shop with these specialties present is being piloted.

Where a clinical need has been identified for treatment which cannot be provided in Northern Ireland, appropriate patients may receive treatment outside Northern Ireland, subject to the HSC Board's approval via the Individual Funding Request (IFR) process.

Recommendation 3: The Northern Ireland Executive ensures that the care advisor post in Northern Ireland is secured long term within HSC, and takes urgent steps to create more of these posts. These steps will provide the best possible support and advice for people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions and will reduce unplanned emergency admissions by investing small amounts to save a large amount in the long term.

The HSCB / PHA are supportive of this recommendation and have secured funding to appoint two neurological care advisors during 2014/15. The care advisors will provide advice, support and information to people living with neurological conditions including neuromuscular conditions. The posts will be regional and will be based in Belfast Trust. The HSCB is working with Belfast Trust to finalise the investment proposals.

The need for the appointment of care advisors to support people living with neurological conditions has also been highlighted as a result of HSCB / PHA engagement with services users and carers and other key stakeholders.

A specialist paediatric neuromuscular nurse is in post within the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children. This is a regional post which provides specialist nursing skills and knowledge in the management of those affected by neuromuscular conditions, their families and the professionals working with them.

The provision of a neuromuscular nurse specialist for adults is supported by HSCB but is subject to the identification of appropriate additional funding as well as competing priorities regarding services for people living with neurological conditions

Recommendation 4: Health and Social Care Board and the Northern Ireland Executive create a steering group for developing specialised neuromuscular services which incorporates the views of people affected by muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions, health professionals, commissioners and the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign.

A priority for the Health and Social Care Board's Neurological Conditions Subgroup is to establish robust engagement mechanisms with service users and carers, clinical staff, Trust management, voluntary and community organisations and other statutory organisations. This is in acknowledgement of the fact that people with muscular dystrophy, related neuromuscular conditions and also neurological conditions require access to a range of services that can cross boundaries between health and social care, employment and benefit services, housing and education.

In support of this the HSCB established a Neurological Conditions Advisory Group with membership from a service users and carers; voluntary and community organisations; health professionals; commissioners and Trust management. As part of this process nominations have been sought from the Northern Ireland Rare Disease Partnership which includes the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign. The first meeting of the Group took place early in 2013 and it will continue to meet on at least an annual basis.

The HSCB/PHA have also put in place arrangements to meet with Action Duchenne and the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign on a quarterly basis and will continue to engage with people living with neuromuscular conditions, health and social care professionals and other interest groups.

Recommendation 5: Health and Social Care Board initiate steps to ensure that a network approach for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions is formally developed for adult services, following the announcement of increased coordination of paediatric services.

The Health and Social Care Board agreed 3 year funding for a fixed term clinical network manager to develop and formalise network arrangements both at local, regional and national level. Neuromuscular conditions are covered within this role. The network manager took up post in September 2012.

It is acknowledged that adult neurology services require further modernisation. In support of this the HSCB is planning a process of clinical engagement to:

- benchmark services with other providers in the UK;
- consider the need for additional staff both in terms of medical, nursing and AHP staff in order that specialist neurological expertise can be fully utilised;
- consider the development of 'one stop shops' / multidisciplinary clinics for patient accessing a range of specialist clinics in Belfast Trust;
- develop the referral protocols linked to care pathways including GP referrals; and,
- extend the use of telemedicine and virtual clinics.

Any additional investment required will be subject to prioritisation within available resources. Opportunities will also be identified to develop and formalise network arrangements at local, regional and national level.

Recommendation 6: Health and Social Care Board and Health and Social Care Trusts use the specialist expertise within Belfast Health and Social Care Trust to develop further a 'hub and spoke' model of service provision, with Belfast Trust at the centre of the set-up at which core specialists are located.

A hub and spoke model for specialist neuromuscular and neurological care already exists with Belfast Trust at the centre. Local services are also in place in each of the local hospitals for general neuromuscular care. The Health and Social Care Board will continue to explore opportunities to further develop these hubs and spoke arrangements.

Recommendation 7: Health and Social Care Trusts appoint transition workers to facilitate patients' transition from paediatric to adult services.

This is being considered as part of the work of the Health and Social Care Board's Neurological Conditions Subgroup. However, delivery will be subject to the identification of appropriate additional funding.

Recommendation 8: Health and Social Care Board and Social Care Trusts develop a more streamlined and efficient genetic testing system to reduce delays.

Northern Ireland gains access to specialist genetic testing for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular disorders via the UK Genetic Testing Network (UKGTN). This network provides advice throughout the UK on genetic testing and aims to ensure the provision of high quality equitable genetic testing services.

One of the challenges in diagnosing neurogenetic disorders is that there can be a clinical overlap between many conditions and it can be difficult to distinguish them on the grounds of clinical features alone. In addition, conditions that appear clinically identical can have a large number of genetic causes. For example, the condition hereditary motor sensory neuropathy (Charcot Marie Tooth disease) can be caused by mutations in a number of different genes. Until now it has been difficult to get a genetic diagnosis for many of these patients as it would have involved doing a number of single gene tests each of which would cost several hundred pounds and it was often difficult to know which gene to test first.

There has been a recent change in this process in the form of panel tests. This is a result of the introduction of Next Generation Sequencing which enables a number of genes to be looked at together. This includes panel tests for Charcot Marie Tooth (hereditary motor sensory neuropathies) and congenital myopathy.

The panel test for Charcot Marie Tooth will enable genetic diagnosis to be established which will assist in the prognosis and future management of the patient and their family. This group of conditions can be inherited in a number of different ways and so establishing the exact diagnosis is important for giving advice to at risk family members. Being able to make a definitive diagnosis will provide information about the natural history of the condition and may avoid the need for other tests. At present patients are reliant on sequential single gene testing which may take up to one year to complete. The new panel test will provide a more rapid result with a much greater chance of finding a diagnosis.

The main benefits of the panel test for congenital myopathies are to provide an overall higher mutation detection rate in a faster time for patients with a congenital myopathy, compared with the current service. The higher detection rate will be as a result of testing a more comprehensive repertoire of genes, as well as the potential for the detection of large rearrangements, which is currently unavailable for the majority of these genes. The faster turn-around time is based on the simultaneous analysis of the gene set, as opposed to the previous strategy of sequential analysis. In addition, this test is predicted to provide an overall reduction in costs per patient, which will help to provide additional resources to other areas of the service. The cost of providing this service is predicted to decrease with time as the next generation sequencing reagents become less expensive. By doing the panel tests earlier in the patient pathway may reduce the need for further invasive tests.

The new UKGTN tests for 2014 have been available from 1 April 2014 and have been endorsed by Health and Social Care Board Specialist Services Commissioning Team.

Recommendation 9: Health and Social Care Trusts address the need to increase clinical time dedicated to specialist neuromuscular care

The Health and Social Care Board and Public Health Agency will consider this as part of the planned clinical engagement exercise to explore opportunities to reform and modernise services.

Recommendation 10: The Health and Social Care Board develops a neuromuscular registry for both the paediatric and the adult services in Northern Ireland to ensure the most efficient delivery of specialist care.

The HSCB/PHA are working with the HSC Online project team to establish how a high level directory of services for people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular services can be developed and integrated into HSC Online.

Recommendation 11: The Duchenne Standards of Care guidelines are made widely available to those commissioning, planning and delivering services so that high quality standards of care are achieved in a multidisciplinary approach for all muscular conditions. As new guidelines emerge for other neuromuscular conditions, these should also be made widely available so that commissioning, planning and delivery of these services can be improved.

The Duchenne Standards of Care Guidelines do not have any official status here in Northern Ireland but rather they might be regarded as good practice. In the future, in the event that DHSSPS endorses any NICE guidance in this area, this status may change.

Recommendation 12: The Northern Ireland Executive addresses the inequalities of wheelchair service provision so that there is consistency and that people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions are not forced to resort to private purchases of suitable wheelchairs.

The HSC Board has commenced a review of the regional eligibility criteria for the provision of wheelchairs through the Northern Ireland Wheelchair Service.

This Review has been commissioned by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) on behalf of DHSSPS to consider the current Eligibility Criteria for the Provision of Wheelchairs.

The Terms of Reference for the Project are:

- To review current Eligibility Criteria in collaboration with key stakeholders to take into account other 'best' practice models of provision both nationally and internationally; and,
- Analyse current Eligibility Criteria and consider opportunities for further standardisation, improved efficiency/ effectiveness and quality improvement.

It is anticipated that the findings of the review will be finalised in Summer 2014. Steps have been taken to ensure the views of people with muscular dystrophy and neuromuscular conditions are considered as part of this review.

Recommendation 13: The Northern Ireland Executive, in conjunction with HSC, improves the level of recognition and knowledge of muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions at GP level.

HSCB/PHA will fund and host a training event for health and social care professionals to raise awareness of living with a neuromuscular condition in 2014. The HSCB/PHA will work in partnership with Action Duchenne and the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign to plan and deliver event.

HSCB / PHA will work with Integrated Care Directorate to explore opportunities to raise awareness amongst GPs of living with a muscular dystrophy, related neuromuscular disorders and wider neurological conditions.

Recommendation 14: The Health and Social Care Board implements a structured long term succession planning system so that key neuromuscular posts are recruited for and appointed quickly to prevent a detrimental gap in services for people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular condition.

Every effort is made to ensure effective succession planning for doctors across a range of specialties. Generally, where possible, medical posts where the post holder is approaching retirement age are highlighted and identified to the Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency in order for them to allocate a junior doctor to a specialist training programme. Similarly, where it is apparent that a specialist nurse/AHP is approaching retirement, steps can be taken to begin to train staff with generic skills.

However, as specialist medical training can take up to 5 years and retirement age is not fixed, it can prove challenging to coordinate the completion of training with the retirement of a senior consultant in specialties where the number of consultants is small. Both the Health and Social Care Board and Trusts are aware of these challenges and aim to address via advance planning where possible.

Recommendation 15: Health Trusts and Northern Ireland Councils develop structured joint planning provision so that there is a seamless transition and coordination between health and social care services.

This recommendation is not relevant in a NI context as an integrated health and social care system exists here.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on implementation of the 18 recommendations of the Review of Children's Palliative Care and End of Life Care; and whether a funded strategy will be produced for this implementation within a set timescale.

(AQW 34629/11-15)

Mr Poots: Public consultation on the 18 recommendations in the review document closed on 28 March 2014. My Department is currently analysing the responses to the recommendations. When this work is completed a final strategy for 'Children's Palliative Care and End of Life Care' will be published. We are aiming to publish the strategy by autumn 2014.

The Health and Social Care Board, as commissioner of healthcare services, will lead on the implementation of the strategy in partnership with key stakeholders. The cost of implementing the strategy is likely to require new funding. I expect to be in a position to announce decisions on funding for the strategy when I launch it this autumn subject to the overall consideration of allocations for the healthcare budget, when this is finalised, and approval of the business case for any service developments.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 34273/11-15, what steps he took to inform patients that they had been supplied by a product manufactured by ITH Pharma, and that they had no need for concern.

(AQW 34639/11-15)

Mr Poots: As I stated in my response to AQW 34273/11-15, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA), which is the body for regulating all medicines in the UK and ensuring their safety, has allowed ITH Pharma to continue production and supply of their products.

Those Trusts that use ITH Pharma products have continued to supply them to patients. They have not advised patients that they are receiving products produced by ITH Pharma as none of the products they are supplying were affected by the Drug Alert notice issued by the MHRA which only applied to one batch of a particular product.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether the level of concern about lack of privacy at GP reception areas, which was raised in a recent Patient and Client Council report, will result in discussions with GPs to try and resolve this issue.

(AQW 34667/11-15)

Mr Poots: All GP Practices within Northern Ireland are required to ensure that their practice premises meet the minimum standard set by The Health and Personal Social Services General Medical Services – Premises Costs Directions NI 2004. Paragraph 8 of the Minimum Standard Schedule states that there should be "the facility for patients to communicate confidentially with reception staff, including by telephone". It must be noted that there is a large variation in the size and age of practice premises across the region and as a result the layout of older premises may restrict practices in addressing the issue of confidentiality in the waiting area.

A significant number of practices in Northern Ireland have received self-service check in screens funded by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB). This facility provides patients with the ability to check in without having to approach the reception area. For any new or improved premises the HSCB ensures that the contractor meets the minimum standards as set down in the Premises Directions.

On an annual basis the HSCB offers practices the opportunity to submit applications for improvement grants. Practices may use these grants to improve the waiting area to install, for example, privacy screens.

Ms S Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many ward rounds are carried out on a daily basis in each local hospital in order to discharge patients.

Mr Poots: The number of ward rounds carried out on a daily basis in order to discharge patients varies greatly between each hospital site and is dependent on the ward of treatment and the condition of the patient.

The following table details information submitted by each HSC Trust on the number of ward rounds carried out each day. Belfast Trust does not routinely collect this information and it could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

HSC Hospital	Mon	Tues	Wed	Thurs	Fri	Sat	Sun
Antrim ¹	At least twice daily					At least once daily
Causeway ¹	At least twice daily					At least once daily

Notes:

- 1 Paediatric wards will normally have one ward round daily.
- 2 Ward 12 has 4 ward rounds on a daily basis Monday – Thursday.
- 3 Mental Health Inpatient Unit has 1 ward round on a daily basis Monday – Thursday. Elderly psychiatrists separately conduct 2 ward rounds on each Monday.
- 4 Ward 27 has 2 wards on a Monday and Thursday. Elderly psychiatrists separately conduct 2 ward rounds on each Tuesday.
- 5 On the days in between full consultant ward rounds there are senior doctor reviews by staff grades or Registrars.
- 6 A ward round is not undertaken on the day of discharge; however if there is concern regarding a patient's discharge, this would be reviewed to agree actions to ensure safe discharge.
- 7 General Surgery, Cardiology and Medical Assessment Unit – 2 ward rounds per day. All other specialties – 1 ward round per day.
- 8 Ward 1 has 2 wards rounds per week.

- 9 Wards 2 and 3 have 1 ward round per week.
10. Ward 8 (Specialist surgery) has 3 senior decision rounds per day, Monday – Friday and 2 on a Saturday and Sunday.
11. The purpose of a ward round is not to discharge patients but rather to plan patients' care which may result in their discharge from hospital.

Ms S Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether seven day working exists for all hospital teams and services; and to detail (i) the hospital teams in each Health and Social Care Trusts who have seven day working; and (ii) the working patterns of the radiology teams in each Trust.

(AQW 34684/11-15)

Mr Poots: Seven day working currently exists across many, but not all, hospital teams and services.

- (i) Information on the hospital teams in each HSC Trust who have seven day working can only be provided at a disproportionate cost.
- (ii) Radiology teams in each HSC Trust provide a full range of diagnostic modalities (e.g. plain film, computerised tomography (CT), ultrasound (US) and MRI) during core hours across the hospital network. In the out-of-hours period including Saturdays and Sundays these services are provided on an on-call basis across the various main hospital sites.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail any future capital works planned for the Ulster Hospital, Dundonald.

(AQW 34698/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are a number of capital works planned for the Ulster Hospital during 2014/15 including:

- Work on the Phase B redevelopment (£232m in total), incorporating an Inpatient Ward block and an Acute Services Block;
- Provision of additional Car parking on the former Tor Bank School site; and
- Installation of a new high voltage supply and Amendment to the Electrical Infrastructure.

Additionally, the South Eastern HSC Trust plans to spend within its delegated limit (below £500k) on a number of smaller projects including:

- The Refurbishment of the McDermott Unit;
- the Refurbishment of the Children's Maynard Ward;
- Paediatric Block works to fire alarms, electrical infrastructure and medical gases;
- Replacement windows in the Old Maternity Block;
- Kelly Court HMO Fire Safety Works; and
- Clinical Environment Funding minor works.

Proposed projects beyond 2014/15 are dependent upon the outcome of the 2015/16 budget exercise.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail any future plans to introduce new services to the Ulster Hospital, Dundonald.

(AQW 34699/11-15)

Mr Poots: The delivery of healthcare services is a matter for the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust to agree with the Health and Social Care Board. I am advised by the Trust that it currently has no imminent plans to introduce new services at the Ulster Hospital; however the Trust will continue to work with the South Eastern Local Commissioning Group and Integrated Care Partnership to provide any new services that may be commissioned in the future.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail any future plans to introduce new services to the Bangor Hospital.

(AQW 34700/11-15)

Mr Poots: The delivery of healthcare services is a matter for the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust to decide in agreement with the Health and Social Care Board. I am advised by the Trust that it currently has no plans to introduce new services at Bangor Community Hospital; however the Trust will continue to work with the Integrated Care Partnership and the South Eastern Local Commissioning Group to provide any new services that may be commissioned in the future.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many women were diagnosed with breast cancer in (i) 2003; and (ii) 2013.

(AQW 34703/11-15)

Mr Poots: The latest information provided by the Northern Ireland Cancer Registry (NICR) indicates that 1,034 women were diagnosed with breast cancer in 2003. Figures for 2013 are not currently available however 1,272 women were diagnosed in 2012.

Information on cancer incidence and survival rates in NI are available on the NICR website at <http://www.qub.ac.uk/research-centres/nicr/CancerData/>. Cancer incidence figures for 2013 will be available in March 2015.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he has any plans to make it compulsory for GPs to obtain training for dealing with patients subjected to domestic violence.

(AQW 34722/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are currently no plans to make it compulsory for GPs to obtain training for dealing with patients subjected to domestic violence.

GPs are independent contractors who are expected to undertake self directed learning on an annual basis as part of a compulsory appraisal system to maintain their professional registration. Domestic violence may be an educational area identified by an individual GP as part of their appraisal.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what initiatives he is introducing to raise awareness of domestic violence; and what measures he is putting in place to reduce the number of cases of domestic violence.

(AQW 34723/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department is working with the Department of Justice to develop a new Joint Strategy on Domestic and Sexual Violence and Abuse. Key delivery priorities of the draft Strategy include an integrated Information Plan to promote a greater understanding of domestic and sexual abuse and awareness training, on how to recognise and respond to disclosure and how to signpost victims and witnesses to appropriate services, advice and support.

My Department, in association with the Department of Justice, also funds a regional perpetrator programme for alleged perpetrators of domestic violence. The programme has been developed and will be delivered by the Probation Board NI with support from Women's Aid. The introduction of this programme will improve support for victims of domestic abuse whilst also providing alleged perpetrators with effective interventions to enable them to change their behaviour.

Whilst the vision of the proposed new Strategy is to ultimately stop all domestic and sexual violence and abuse in Northern Ireland; it is expected that the ongoing work in raising awareness, educating and supporting victims to disclose may result in an increase in the number of incidents reported in the short term.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many reports of domestic violence have been made to health workers in the each of the last three years.

(AQW 34724/11-15)

Mr Poots: This information is not available and could only be provided at disproportionate costs.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, further to his Written Statement to the Assembly on 2 July 2013 on potential malpractice in the procurement and management of building maintenance in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust, what has been the outcome of all such investigations.

(AQW 34757/11-15)

Mr Poots: I made a further Written statement on 24 January 2014 to the Assembly on this issue following the publication of the report into the investigations which were carried out by BSO Internal Audit, BSO Counter Fraud Unit and the Procurement Policy and Compliance Unit in my Department, under the oversight of officials in my Department..

The report identified a significant number of weaknesses in the implementation of procurement controls within the Trust and contained some 72 recommendations to be implemented. However, the BSO Counter Fraud and Probity Unit concluded there was no clear evidence of fraudulent activity.

Arising from the procurement breaches which were identified, the Trust commissioned an independent review of the governance and management control arrangements within the Estates Services Department which has now concluded. The independent review has identified a number of concerns about these governance arrangements and has also made recommendations regarding individual accountability which arise from the findings of the original audit report. The Trust has accepted all the recommendations and will take these matters forward within its normal disciplinary processes.

The Trust Board, through its Audit Committee, will be overseeing implementation of the recommendations from both the Internal Audit report and the independent review. The Department continues to monitor the progress on this issue and the implementation of the recommendations through its oversight role.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action his Department is taking to warn people of the dangers of tombstoning.

(AQW 34761/11-15)

Mr Poots: Tombstoning can be a highly dangerous activity, and it attracts mostly young males. The Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents (RoSPA) has published figures showing 12 deaths in the United Kingdom during the five-year period 2004-2008 as a result of tombstoning.

In its summer safety appeal issued in June, the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service advised people to take all the basic safety precautions and to act responsibly in the vicinity of water highlighting the dangers of currents, changing conditions and other hidden dangers that may arise.

HM Coastguard, PSNI and the Bangor Marina and Harbour Manager jointly issued a press release on Wednesday 18 June warning people about the specific dangers of tombstoning. I support these messages wholeheartedly.

At UK level RoSPA has highlighted the dangers and published safety advice for anyone who may be thinking of tombstoning. RoSPA recommends that the best way to learn about the risks and have a good experience is to try 'coasteering', which is a combination of scrambling, climbing, traversing and cliff-jumping around the coast with a professional guide.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what schemes or support exist within the Carryduff area for children (i) under two years old; and (ii) with developmental needs.

(AQW 34777/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department's Families Matter strategy, published in 2009, highlights the importance of early intervention family support services, including those targeted at children under 2 years old. It provided funding for a range of parenting education and support programmes which are delivered across Northern Ireland. In addition, the Physical and Sensory Disability Strategy and Action Plan published on 22 February 2012 recognises the importance of early intervention for a child or young person with a communication disability to receive the appropriate help and support in an early and ongoing timely manner.

Carryduff intersects the Belfast and South Eastern Health and Social Care Trusts. Both Trusts have a statutory responsibility to provide services to children who meet the child in need threshold under Article 18 of The Children (Northern Ireland) Order 1995.

In the South Eastern Trust a specific health plan will be developed in partnership with parents which may include advice and support for parents and carers on positive parenting, routines, behaviour management and stimulation. The Health Visiting Service will provide early intervention in the form of a targeted programme of care at Level 2, 3 or 4 to a child with developmental needs; the level of service provided will depend on the assessed needs of the child.

Other services provided for families in the area include: advice and support in relation to maximising developmental potential in relation to gross and fine motor development; and speech and language and social development through play and parent/child interaction.

The Family Support Hub in the area provides a Family Support Worker to assist parents by providing practical help and support. The Family Support Worker can, for example, provide 1:1 work with a child in his/her own home. They can provide help and support for parent/carers, can support families to attend local parent and toddler groups, and can transport and support parents to medical appointments for the child.

In the Belfast HSCT provision for children in need includes: safeguarding; parenting support services; referrals to specialist services including Behaviour Supports, Psychiatry and Clinical Psychology; and short breaks and respite care. The Trust also provides: a Health Visiting Service; multi-disciplinary and multi-sectoral family support provision through its Family Support social work teams; and the services of a Children's Disability Team, where a diagnosis of a physical or learning disability has been made or there is a substantial sensory impairment.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what measures are in place to ensure that effective and timely developmental assessments are carried out on children under two years old.

(AQW 34778/11-15)

Mr Poots: DHSSPS commissioned a review of the provision of the Child Health Promotion Programme within Northern Ireland in 2009 to ensure provision of high-quality preventative programmes in childhood as a foundation to a healthy society. This was based on the need to adapt to new knowledge, advances in neuroscience and genetics and an understanding of how early childhood development can be both promoted and damaged and the imperative for programmes to begin in early pregnancy. The review was taken forward based on evidence from 'Health for All Children', 4th Edition (Hall and Elliman), the recommendations of the National Screening Committee, guidance from the National Institute for Clinical Excellence (NICE) and the Northern Ireland Autism Spectrum Disorder review and action plan. A range of Northern Ireland experts were engaged in updating the programme.

An updated programme for 0-19 year olds, known as 'Healthy Child, Healthy Future: A Framework for the Universal Child Health Promotion Programme in Northern Ireland', was issued in June 2010.

The framework strengthened the existing programme and is central to securing improvements in child health for all children aged 0-19 years, across a range of issues. The framework sets out a core programme of child health contacts that every family can expect, wherever they live in Northern Ireland and every child and parent has access to a universal or core programme of preventative care with additional or targeted services for those with specific needs and risks.

The Child Health System which holds details of every child in Northern Ireland is programmed to schedule children for appointments for health and development reviews as specified within the 'Healthy Child, Healthy Future' framework. It can also provide information within each Trust on provision of the child health promotion programme across each of the timescales within the core programme.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the time frame in the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust within which a referral appointment for a developmental assessment should be given for children under two years old. (AQW 34779/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department has a framework in place known as 'Healthy Child, Healthy Future' which delivers the universal child health promotion programme for all children, young people and families from birth and throughout the school years. The programme includes a specific set of Health and Development reviews delivered by health visitors in the preschool period as follows:

- A new baby review (between 10-14 days old).
- At six to eight weeks of age.
- At 14-16 weeks of age.
- At one year old.
- At 2-2 1/2 years of age

The Child Health System which holds details of every child in Northern Ireland is programmed to schedule children for appointments within the timeframe above for health and development reviews as specified within the 'Healthy Child, Healthy Future' framework.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the process for transferring referrals for the Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service units between Health and Social Care Trusts, when a patient changes address. (AQW 34780/11-15)

Mr Poots: If a patient in receipt of Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services (CAMHS) changes address, the Health and Social Care Trust currently providing care will refer the case to the appropriate receiving Trust. Appropriate information on the case will be shared with the receiving Trust. The patient, his/her family and other professionals involved with the patient will be informed of the transfer arrangements.

In some cases, depending on the stage in their treatment or where the programme of intervention is short term, a patient may continue to receive care from the current Trust after they change address rather than be transferred to another Trust. Each case will be considered by clinicians and decisions will be based on what is best for the patient.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether it is the policy within Health and Social Care Trusts to discharge a patient from a Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service units due to a change of address. (AQW 34781/11-15)

Mr Poots: There is no policy within the Trusts to discharge a patient from CAMHS due to a change of address. Discharges are determined by clinical considerations and patient choice, and not on the basis of a change of address. If a patient changes address and there is continuing need for clinical involvement, the case is transferred to the appropriate Trust.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (i) how he will implement the Children's Palliative Care review's recommendations; (ii) what is the timescale for implementation; and (iii) whether this will involve a funded strategy. (AQW 34782/11-15)

Mr Poots: Consultation on the review's 18 recommendations closed on 28 March 2014. My officials are currently analysing the responses and will shortly be finalising the strategy, having taken into account the views expressed by consultees, for my consideration and approval. I expect to be in a position to publish the final document by autumn 2014.

The Health and Social Care Board, as commissioner of healthcare services, will lead on the implementation of the strategy in partnership with key stakeholders. The cost of implementing the strategy is likely to require new funding. I expect to be in a position to announce decisions on funding for the strategy when I launch it this autumn, subject to the overall consideration of allocations for the healthcare budget, and approval of the business case for any service developments.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, given that HMRC should be notified by an employer of a new employee's details within 35 days of commencing employment, of those employees that have been working for the Health Service for more than 35 days as of 26 June 2014, how many have yet to have their details sent to HMRC. (AQW 34786/11-15)

Mr Poots: Since 6 April 2013, HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) requires all employers to report pay as you earn (PAYE) in real time.

With the introduction of the Real Time Information (RTI) software, the 35 day rule is no longer a requirement. Instead, employers must send details of new employees to HMRC when they make their first payment to them.

HSC organisations have reported that they have been experiencing technical problems with RTI submissions. This has resulted in a number of staff (including new employees) yet to have their details forwarded to HMRC. The number of new employees affected can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

HSC IT departments are working with the supplier to resolve these issues as quickly and efficiently as possible.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (i) what was the annual expenditure on food in Health Service facilities for each Health and Social Care Trust in each of the last three years; (ii) of this total expenditure, what was the expenditure on food produced in Northern Ireland; and (iii) whether this food is clearly identified as having been produced in Northern Ireland on menus and at point of service.

(AQW 34787/11-15)

Mr Poots: The annual expenditure on food in Health Service facilities per Health and Social Care Trust (HSC Trust) for the last three years is set out in the table below:

HSC Trust	2013/14	2012/13	2011/12
Belfast	£6,205,965	£6,074,590	£5,959,619
Northern	£2,666,145	£2,720,305	£2,791,218
South Eastern	£3,071,877	£3,170,539	£2,969,600
Southern	£2,881,000	£2,551,000	£2,611,000
Western	£2,392,419	£2,548,490	£2,584,199
Total`	£17,217,406	£17,064,924	£16,915,636

Information about expenditure on food produced in Northern Ireland is not readily available and it is therefore not possible to identify point of origin on menus and point of service. I can however advise that produce of Northern Ireland origin accounts for approximately 40% of the value of food procured through the BSO central procurement contracts over the three year period.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much money his Department expects to receive through the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme in each of the next three years.

Mr Poots: The 2014 PPRS is a UK-wide scheme that has been developed to deliver stability and predictability in the branded medicines economy over the next five years.

Under the scheme PPRS payments will only be made available to ensure that the allowed growth in medicines spend, on a UK-wide basis, is not exceeded and to enable the DHSSPS to meet its policy and operational objectives, as stated in the PPRS agreement. As any "payments" apportioned to Northern Ireland under the Scheme will depend on the UK-wide growth rate in the cost of branded medicines, it is not possible to estimate how much will be apportioned to Northern Ireland in the next three years.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the proposed 40 new emergency nursing posts in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast.

(AQW 34807/11-15)

Mr Poots: The figures below have been provided directly from the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust as at 1ST July and provide a breakdown of the 40 additional Nurses who have been recruited to Emergency Department (ED) and Acute Medical Assessment Unit (AMAU).

Month of Start (2014)	AMAU	ED	Total
February	2	2	4
March	5	7	12
April	6	4	10
May	3	5	8
June	2		2
Total	18	18	36

Of the outstanding 4 appointments:

- (i) 1 has a start date arranged in July;
- (ii) 1 is currently on Maternity leave and will take up post on return; and
- (iii) 2 are still undergoing pre-employment checks. .

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much time is allocated for home help staff in each Health and Social Care Trust to carry out (i) meal time; and (ii) personal care visits.

(AQW 34813/11-15)

Mr Poots: In Northern Ireland, domiciliary care is provided on the basis of assessed need, in accordance with Departmental Circular ECCU 2/2008: Regional Access Criteria for Domiciliary Care. The length of time allocated to a visit is the result of this professional assessment of need.

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how his Department is ensuring that elderly people's home care packages are adequate to meet the needs of each individual.

Mr Poots: All older people are given individual comprehensive needs assessments which are carried out by health professionals. The time and services allocated to each individual home care package are determined by the outcome of these assessments and are regularly reviewed thereafter.

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he will direct Health and Social Care Trusts to increase the amount of time allocated to each care worker for home visits to elderly people.

(AQW 34816/11-15)

Mr Poots: In Northern Ireland, domiciliary care is provided on the basis of assessed need, in accordance with Departmental Circular ECCU 2/2008: Regional Access Criteria for Domiciliary Care. The length of time allocated to a visit is the result of this professional assessment of need.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 34318/11-15, whether he has the power to issue a policy direction to lift the restraints on new admissions to statutory care homes.

(AQW 34818/11-15)

Mr Poots: Under Article 4 of the Departments (Northern Ireland) Order 1999 and Section 6 of the Health and Social Care Reform Act (NI) 2009, directions may be given to HSC Trusts in relation to any functions undertaken by Trusts.

In the case of admissions to statutory residential homes, I am confident that the current process, which will see admission policies for homes where there is a strong case for continued residential care provision reviewed, is an appropriate way forward.

As we have already asked the Trusts to further consider this in a holistic way. It would be inappropriate to give direction at this point.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to list the locations of the MRI scanners in Northern Ireland; and what is the role of the mobile scanner located at Antrim Area hospital.

(AQW 34819/11-15)

Mr Poots: A list of the MRI scanners that are owned, operated and located within the hospitals of the Health and Social Care Estate is provided at TAB A.

The mobile scanner currently situated within Antrim Area Hospital is utilised by the Northern and Belfast Trusts to provide patient and clinician access to additional MRI scanning capacity when required to meet waiting list initiatives.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much his Department has expended on interpreters in the last financial year.

(AQW 34820/11-15)

Mr Poots: Expenditure by each Health and Social Care Trust on interpreters, in the last financial year, is set out in the table below.

2013/14	£
Belfast Health & Social Care Trust	755,307
Northern Health & Social Care Trust	435,605
South Eastern Health & Social Care Trust	158,931
Southern Health & Social Care Trust	1,309,514
Western Health & Social Care Trust	246,952
NI Ambulance Service Health & Social Care Trust	658
Total	£2,906,967

Interpreters are required for all patients who do not speak English as a first or second proficient language. Comprehensive training is delivered across the Health and Social Care sector to ensure that staff and professionals are aware of when an individual requires an interpreter.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the plans to refurbish the Balloo Day Centre, Bangor.

(AQW 34824/11-15)

Mr Poots: The South Eastern Trust has recently submitted a revised Outline Business Case to the Department in which the preferred option is now the replacement of the three existing Day Resource Centres within Balloo, Ravara and Ards with two new build facilities located at the Ards Hospital site and on the existing Balloo Day Resource Centre site in Bangor. Departmental officials are currently reviewing this revised Business Case, which will also require DFP approval.

The timing will be dependent on business case approval and availability of funding. In the interim the Trust Estates Department will continue to maintain the existing facilities.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action he is taking to ensure that patients in Northern Ireland have equal access to cancer drugs as those in Great Britain.

(AQW 34829/11-15)

Mr Poots: Access to effective treatments for the population of Northern Ireland, including access to cancer drugs and other specialist medicines, is an important priority for me and for my Department.

In Northern Ireland the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) is responsible for commissioning drugs and treatments. Both the HSCB and the NHS in England are guided by the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE) in determining which cancer drugs should be routinely available. All NICE approved cancer drugs that are available in England are either recurrently funded or available via a cost per case mechanism in Northern Ireland.

The HSCB has a clear process by which unapproved drugs (including drugs and therapies not limited to cancer) can be made available to patients in Northern Ireland. Around 98% of the applications for unapproved drugs for cancer are approved. I have recently instructed my Department to evaluate this process, and to take account of measures that other devolved administrations are considering in their approach towards access to specialist drugs.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what research is being undertaken to ascertain the causes of, and preventative measures for, epilepsy.

(AQW 34838/11-15)

Mr Poots: Research on epilepsy is taking place in four HSC Trusts. There are thirteen current studies on the genetics of epilepsy, anti-epileptic drugs, and the effects of those drugs if taken during pregnancy.

The UK and Ireland Epilepsy and Pregnancy Register is based at the Belfast Trust. With information on over 7000 pregnancies and around 800 new cases each year, substantial internationally-recognised and funded research takes place.

The EU-funded European Surveillance of Congenital Abnormalities (EUROCAT) study, co-ordinated by the University of Ulster, draws information from registries across Europe for research on the causes of congenital illnesses including those that may involve drugs, such as anti-epileptics, taken during pregnancy.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the average time for community dietetic referrals in the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 34842/11-15)

Mr Poots: For the period 1st April to 30th June 2014, the average waiting time for community dietetic referrals was 32 days for adults and 62 days for children in the South Eastern HSC Trust.

For 2014/15, the target waiting time between referral and commencement of Allied Health Professional (AHP) treatment, including dietetics, is nine weeks in all HSC Trusts.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the waiting time targets for community dietetic referrals within each Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 34843/11-15)

Mr Poots: For the period 1st April to 30th June 2014, the average waiting time for community dietetic referrals was 32 days for adults and 62 days for children in the South Eastern HSC Trust.

For 2014/15, the target waiting time between referral and commencement of Allied Health Professional (AHP) treatment, including dietetics, is nine weeks in all HSC Trusts.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (i) to outline the delays experienced to date with the supported living project for Ballycastle; (ii) whether the project will be completed prior to the closure of Rathmoyle Residential Home; and (iii) when the project will be completed.

(AQW 34862/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Northern Health and Social Care Trust has advised that there have been delays in securing the commitment of a housing association to take the project forward; however, the Northern Ireland Housing Executive continues to try and identify a suitable partner for the scheme.

As the new build will cover the same footprint as the existing home, it will have to close prior to any development commencing. It has not been possible to set a completion date for the project yet as this will depend on a number of mitigating factors such as the identification of a housing association to take the work forward, design of the build, planning permission and transfer of the site.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the (i) number; and (ii) value of unfilled prescriptions in each of the last three years.

Mr Poots: The information requested is not available. Data relating to the number of prescription items prescribed but not dispensed is not recorded.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many full time equivalent epilepsy specialist nurses are employed in each Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 34867/11-15)

Mr Poots: The current whole-time equivalent (WTE) numbers of epilepsy specialist nurses in each HSC Trust are shown in the table below.

Health & Social Care Trust	Whole-Time Equivalent
Belfast	2.4
Northern	2.0
South Eastern	1.8
Southern	3.67
Western	0.5

Notes:

- 1 These figures were provided by the Health & Social Care Trusts, and have not been validated by the Department.
- 2 Belfast Trust's paediatric epilepsy patients are managed by a further 2.0 WTE Paediatric Neurology Nurse Specialists.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many patients have attended an Emergency Department in each Health and Social Care Trust due to an epileptic seizure, in each of the last five years. (AQW 34868/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on attendances at emergency care departments due to an epileptic seizure is not available, and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what is the current waiting time for a Neurological Epileptic Review appointment. (AQW 34869/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on the current waiting time for a Neurological Epileptic review appointment is not available. Technically patients do not 'wait' for a review; rather a review appointment is scheduled for a 'clinically appropriate' time, which can range from weeks to years depending on the patient's individual case.

The Department however does collect waiting times information for a first consultant-led outpatient appointment. Quarterly data relating to outpatient waiting times are published on the DHSSPS website at the following link:

http://www.dhsspsni.gov.uk/index/stats_research/hospital-stats/waiting_times_main/stats-waiting-times.htm

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what is the annual cost to the Health Service of work, that could be carried out by a dental hygienist, being carried out by a dentist. (AQW 34873/11-15)

Mr Poots: This information is not collected at this level of detail.

There is only a very limited range of care and treatment that dental hygienists can carry out when compared to that which can be carried out by a dentist. There are different parts of the health service delivering dental care and treatment and these are funded in different ways.

There has only been a very limited need to utilise dental hygienists when commissioning services in the Hospital Dental Services and Community Dental Services.

For General Dental Services, where most primary dental care is provided to our population from High Street dental practices, contracts are held by dentists as independent practitioners. The regulations allow them to delegate the small range of treatment items that hygienists can provide. This particular data could be calculated but the fees charged to patients and cost to the HSCB are, in fact, exactly the same. Ultimately the proposal for dental hygienists to carry out treatment rather than dentists depends on what business model the practice owner wants to use. Whilst the majority chose not to, some dentists do use dental hygienists within their teams to various extents. However, analysis by my officials shows that, when hygienists are utilised, it is predominantly in a minor part-time capacity and almost exclusively for the private market.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether a cost benefit analysis of treatment by (i) dentists; and (ii) dental hygienists has been carried out. (AQW 34894/11-15)

Mr Poots: A cost-benefit analysis has not been carried out.

Dental Hygienists can only carry out a very limited range of care and treatment when compared to that which can be carried out by dentists. There are also different parts of the health service delivering dental care and treatment. These are funded in different ways, and have different mechanisms for remuneration in place.

HSC Trusts are responsible for delivering Hospital Dental Services and Community Dental Services. Only a very limited need has been found to utilise dental hygienists when delivering these commissioned services. Whilst dental hygienists may have a lower unit cost in a salaried position, a dentist can carry out the widest range of care and treatment.

For General Dental Services (GDS), where most primary dental care is provided to our population from High Street dental practices, the cost to the HSCB and the fees charged to patients for this limited range of treatments are, in fact, exactly the same. As such, there is no benefit to the GDS budget if hygienists are used.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety when the Bexsero vaccine will be made available to patients.

(AQW 34921/11-15)

Mr Poots: I refer to my answer of 10 April 2014. Negotiations regarding procurement of the Men B vaccine are being conducted by the Department of Health in England on behalf of all the UK Health Departments. The timing of the introduction of a Men B vaccination programme will now depend primarily on the outcome of the negotiations and on the availability of a sustainable supply of the vaccine required to allow a programme to begin.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the impact on the Health Service of local dental and dental hygiene students who have to go to Britain for training and do not return here to work.

Mr Poots: This data is not monitored but there are over 1050 dentists working in general dental practices and providing health service dentistry. I am pleased to report that access is no longer the problem it once was for many patients and supply appears to meet service demand. Some dental students may choose to train elsewhere, but often return home to work in Northern Ireland in due course with new skills and valuable experience. It is also important to note that the HSC benefits when dentists from outside of Northern Ireland who, as students, have trained elsewhere in Great Britain, and indeed the EU, chose to come here to work. These dentists represent a significant contribution to HSC service delivery. My assessment is, therefore, that the impact you describe would be likely to be negligible, if any at all.

For dental hygienists I would also assess the impact on the HSC as likely to be negligible, if any at all. Most of our population accesses dental care and treatment in general dental practices and analysis by my officials shows that the majority of practices do not utilise hygienists. Where they do, it is predominantly in a minor part-time capacity and almost exclusively for the private market. Dentists can provide any of the treatments available from hygienists, and at no additional cost to the HSC.

No training programmes exist in Northern Ireland for Dental Therapists, Orthodontic Therapists and Clinical Dental Technicians and so prospective students have to go elsewhere to train for these roles. The General Dental Council publishes regional registrant data and the latest available, for June 2014, shows 30 Dental Therapists, 13 Orthodontic Therapists and 8 Clinical Dental Technicians, who must have completed their training elsewhere, as being registered in Northern Ireland.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what percentage of dental students who are trained locally remain here to practice; and what percentage of their practice is (i) Health Service; and (ii) private treatment.

(AQW 34935/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency (NIMDTA), which delivers our postgraduate Dental Foundation Training programme, have advised that of 38 final year dental students at Queen's University (QUB) for the 2013-14 year, 26 have been successful (following a competitive process) in being offered a place on the Northern Ireland Dental Foundation Training Programme from August 2014. Completion of this programme will enable those trainees to subsequently practice independently within the health service. Of these 26 places, 2 students did not pass their final exams, and another that did has deferred their entry to the programme for this year. As such, 23 will commence the course in August 2014. The remaining 12 graduating QUB students were appointed to programmes of training elsewhere in the UK.

There are a total of 35 places on the 2014 Northern Ireland Dental Foundation Programme and 9 of the originally available places have been offered to trainees who have completed their undergraduate education elsewhere in the UK.

NIMDTA do not track trainees following completion of the programme, nor those who have completed Dental Foundation Training elsewhere, and do not maintain a database of who is practising where. Similarly, data relating to the percentage of their subsequent practice that is Health Service or private is not held, and is not available.

Ms S Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to explain the difference between an SEA and SAI inquiry undertaken in Health and Social Care Trusts.

(AQW 34939/11-15)

Mr Poots: A Serious Event Audit (SEA) is part of The Serious Adverse Incident (SAI) investigation process; the regionally agreed approach to the reporting, management and follow-up of serious adverse incidents; designed to identify and share learning in a meaningful way, with a focus on safety and quality, ultimately leading to service improvement for service users.

Revised procedures on the management of SAIs were published on 1 October 2013 which included replacing a single investigation process for all SAIs with three levels of investigation. The first level of investigation is the SEA.

Most SAI notifications will be investigated as an SEA with an immediate assessment of what has happened and why, followed by agreement on follow up actions and any learning identified. This will result in the closure of The SAI. However, if the SEA determines the SAI is more complex and requires a more detailed investigation, it will be pursued as either a Level 2 or Level 3 investigation.

A copy of the HSCB Procedure for the Reporting and follow up of Serious Adverse Incidents can be accessed at -

http://www.hscboard.hscni.net/publications/Policies/102%20Procedure_for_the_reporting_and_followup_of_Serious_Adverse_Incidents-Oct2013.pdf

Ms S Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many (i) SEA; and (ii) SAI inquiries are currently taking place in each Health and Social Care Trust; and how many have taken place over the last two years. (AQW 34940/11-15)

Breast and Urological Cancer Clinical Nurse Specialists

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many (i) breast cancer; and (ii) urological cancer Clinical Nurse Specialists are employed in Health and Social Care Trusts. (AQW 34944/11-15)

Mr Poots: Headcount and whole-time equivalent (WTE) numbers of breast and urological cancer specialist nurses in each HSC Trust are shown in the table below.

HSC Trust	Breast Cancer Specialist Nurses		Urological Cancer Specialist Nurses
	HC	WTE	HC	WTE
Belfast	6	5.8	1	1.0
Northern	4	2.8	0	0.0
South Eastern	3	2.8	1	1.0
Southern	3	2.6	0	0.0
Western	4	3.6	3	2.6

Notes:

- 3 These figures were provided by the Health & Social Care Trusts, and have not been validated by the Department.
- 4 Belfast HSC Trust note that 2.0 WTE of their Breast Cancer Specialist Nurses are currently charitably funded, and that a further 1.0 WTE post for a Urological Cancer Specialist Nurse is currently vacant, to be filled in October 2014.
- 5 Northern Trust note that a further 0.32 WTE breast cancer nurse is currently in training, and that it is currently working with Macmillan to recruit a urological cancer nurse specialist.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how he will address the issue of the 49 recent Serious Adverse Incidents in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust.
(AQW 34962/11-15)

Mr Poots: I expect the Boards of any HSC organisation to consider aspects of patient and client safety at every Board meeting. HSC trusts should present an analysis of adverse incidents to their Boards on a regular basis. This analysis was an example of an organisation committed to learning and improvement with a considered approach to its responsibilities for quality and safety.

The purpose of the SAI reporting system is to provide a clear, regionally agreed approach to the reporting, management and follow up of serious adverse incidents; and to effectively share learning in a meaningful way, with a focus on safety and quality, ultimately leading to service improvement for service users. These incidents will be investigated appropriately and learning will be captured and shared to improve services.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he intends to implement any of the recommendations of the Whistleblowing Commission Report by Public Concern at Work.
(AQW 34963/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Department's whistleblowing policy and procedures are currently under review. The recommendations and findings of all relevant reports, including the Whistleblowing Commission's Report, will be considered in the context of this review.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether the Chief Dental Officer has provided the General Dental Council with information relating to the future of the School of Dental Hygiene; and if so, when the information was provided.
(AQW 34983/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Chief Dental Officer has not formally written to the GDC. The Acting Chief Dental Officer continues to work closely with colleagues in Human Resources Directorate who lead on this matter on my behalf. My officials also continue to work jointly with key stakeholders from Queen's University Belfast and the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust on a working group which is considering the programme for dental hygienist training. The GDC has been made aware, through communication and correspondence from Professor Donald Burden who holds a senior position with both Queen's University and the Trust, of the ongoing situation at the School of Dental Hygiene.

Consideration has been given to the core options on the way forward and my officials will soon be presenting me with an options appraisal. When I make my decision on the most viable and sustainable way for students from Northern Ireland to train as dental hygienists the Acting Chief Dental Officer will advise the GDC.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 34297/11- 15, when the new Omagh Community Fire Station was first occupied; and when the necessary certification was obtained.
(AQW 34985/11-15)

Mr Poots: The new Omagh Community Fire Station was first occupied in 26 April 2014 and became fully operational providing emergency response on 30 May 2014.

While the final Building Control Certificate is awaited the Design team confirmed, on 18 April 2014, that all necessary certification is in place for the safe occupation of the building.

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the expected date for the restoration of full Accident and Emergency services at Downe Hospital.

(AQW 34986/11-15)

Mr Poots: The South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust took the decision to temporarily reduce the opening hours of the Downe Hospital emergency department from 4 January 2014 because of a shortage of suitably qualified middle grade doctors. I am advised by the Trust that despite repeated efforts to recruit doctors, including a number of recruitment campaigns over the past six months, this position has not improved and the Trust is therefore at present unable to give a date for resumption of the previous opening hours. I have made it clear to the Trust that I expect to see the restoration of the opening hours as soon as possible.

The Trust has taken a number of actions to mitigate the effects of the temporary reduction in the emergency department's opening hours, including direct admission by GPs to the Downe Hospital at times when the department is closed and provision of a nurse-led minor injuries service from 9am to 5pm on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the second and third stage of the Reform of Adult Care and Support.

Mr Poots: My Department is currently taking forward a number of workstreams to drive the development of proposals for reform as part of the second stage of the Reform of Adult Care and Support. These proposals will extend both to changes to the type of support that should be available and how those services are funded, taking into consideration the issues raised during the first stage consultation on "Who Cares? The Future of Adult Care and Support in Northern Ireland".

The stage two proposals paper will be subject to full public consultation in due course, which will inform the development of a final (stage 3) strategic document outlining the agreed changes to the care and support system. Further work will then be required to implement the agreed reforms.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 32933/11-15, when the pilot to train Emergency Unit doctors, nurses and radiographers to recognise, respond to and report incidents of domestic violence will begin.

(AQW 35021/11-15)

Mr Poots: Officials from my Department are currently working with representatives from the two pilot Trusts (South Eastern and Western Health and Social Care Trusts) and the Clinical Education Centre to finalise the pilot programmes for domestic violence targeted enquiry in Emergency Departments. The intention is for the pilots to begin by Spring 2015.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 32933/11-15, what is the completion date for the joint strategy on Domestic and Sexual Violence and Abuse; and when the strategy will be implemented.

(AQW 35022/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department is working with the Department of Justice to develop the new Joint Strategy on Stopping Domestic and Sexual Violence and Abuse. The intention is for the Strategy to be published by the end of 2014.

Following the publication of the Strategy, the RSG will commence implementation of the delivery of priorities through the development of Action Plans by stakeholder-led sub-groups and working groups. This work will be ongoing throughout the lifetime of the Strategy.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether there was an increase in the use of branded medicines in the first three months of 2014; and if so, by how much usage increased.

Mr Poots: The table below shows the figures for the number and cost of branded medicines prescribed in primary care for the first three months of 2013 and for the first three months of 2014.

Period	Items	Cost
Jan-13	946k	£21.0m
Feb-13	870k	£19.2m
Mar-13	895k	£19.9m
Jan-14	945k	£21.6m
Feb-14	860k	£20.0m
Mar-14	895k	£20.4m

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the (i) number; and (ii) total cost of anti-depressant drug prescriptions (a) issued; and (b) dispensed, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35025/11-15)

Mr Poots: The number and ingredient cost before discount of anti-depressant drug items dispensed by a community pharmacist, dispensing doctor or appliance supplier, and presented for payment in 2011, 2012 and 2013 are shown below.

Data relating to the number of prescription items prescribed but not dispensed is not recorded.

Number and cost of anti-depressant prescription items dispensed in each of the last three years

Calendar Year	Number of anti-depressant prescription items dispensed	Total cost of anti-depressant prescription items
2011	2,118,159	£18,490,634
2012	2,297,093	£13,368,984

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety under what circumstances visitors from Northern Ireland to the Republic of Ireland, who are charged for their prescriptions, become entitled to a refund from his Department; and to detail the cost of such refunds in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35027/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Department does not make refunds for any prescriptions charged to Northern Ireland visitors to the Republic of Ireland. Any refunds that may be due are dealt with centrally for all UK residents by the Overseas Healthcare Team based within the Department of Work and Pensions, and at no cost to the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to list any items that have been removed from the General Practice prescribing data in the last three years; and to outline the reason for any removals.

(AQW 35028/11-15)

Mr Poots: The information is not available in the format requested.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action is being taken to adequately resource Emergency Departments and to encourage people to use GP Out of Hours service, rather than Emergency Departments, when appropriate.

Mr Poots: The funding allocated to emergency departments has increased significantly in recent years, from £74.4 million in 2007/08 to £103.3 million in 2012/13, an increase of 38.8%.

It is important that people use emergency departments appropriately. In November 2013 I launched the 'Choose Well' campaign which is aimed at increasing public awareness of the whole range of urgent care services available, including the GP Out of Hours Service (GPOOHS), and educating people on using the services appropriately. The NI Direct website provides information about unscheduled care services and how to access them at <http://www.nidirect.gov.uk/index/information-and-services/health-and-well-being/health-services/how-to-use-your-health-services.htm>.

Over the past 5 years GPOOHS activity has increased by 18% with 606,000 calls to GPOOHS in 2012/13. I recently approved a 'Regional Strategic Framework for GP Out of Hours Services' which will focus on further simplifying access, improving organisational efficiency and improved alignment with other healthcare services.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (i) to detail the average cost per prescription item in Northern Ireland; (ii) how this compares with (a) England; (b) Scotland; and (c) Wales; and (iii) how the cost has changed in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35031/11-15)

Mr Poots: The average ingredient cost per prescription item where a prescription was written, dispensed by a community pharmacist, dispensing doctor or appliance supplier, and presented for payment in 2011, 2012 and 2013 for Northern Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales, and the changes between the years is shown below.

Average ingredient cost per prescription item in Northern Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales 2011-2013

Calendar Year	Average ingredient cost per prescription item (year on year change)
	Northern Ireland	England	Scotland	Wales
2011	£11.76	£9.16	£10.65	£8.14
2012	£10.80 (-£0.96)	£8.52 (-£0.64)	£9.80 (-£0.85)	£7.55 (-£0.59)
2013	£10.58 (-£0.22)	£8.37 (-£0.15)	£9.87 (+£0.07)	£7.40 (-£0.16)

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what steps he is taking to address the waiting times of post-transplant patients at the Renal Clinic in the Belfast City Hospital.

(AQW 35039/11-15)

Mr Poots: I am advised that the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust has reviewed the patient pathway for these clinics; additional staff and new equipment have been introduced and this has improved the waiting times for patients.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether his Department will commission a dental workforce review and take account of the Adult Dental Health Survey of 2013 prior to making any decisions on the future training and work patterns of dental hygienists.

Mr Poots: My officials are not aware of the 'Adult Dental Health Survey 2013'.

There have been significant concerns relating to the Belfast School of Dental Hygiene for several years and, as a result, the student intake has had to be suspended. Officials from the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust, Queen's University Belfast and my Department have tried to resolve these matters and have recently been considering options on the way forward. My officials are preparing an options appraisal and I expect to receive their advice in due course.

Effective workforce planning remains a priority for my Department. There are a range of complex workforce planning issues across health and social care and it is not possible to resource formal workforce reviews for all professions concurrently. At present, a dental workforce review is not underway however other data relating to the dental workforce has been considered. No decision will be taken in respect of the future training of Northern Ireland students for dental hygiene without considering available relevant evidence. Whilst I recognise the importance of formal workforce review data, there may be other reasons to lend or withdraw support for a training programme. Such a review should not preclude a decision being taken when serious concerns exist, when the status quo is untenable, and when I am considering other budgetary pressures and seeking the best use of public money.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the cost of anti-depressant medication to the Health Service in each year since 2007; and how these costs compare to the rest of the UK.

(AQW 35059/11-15)

Mr Poots: The ingredient cost of anti-depressant drug items dispensed in Northern Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales by a community pharmacist, dispensing doctor or appliance supplier, and presented for payment in 2007 - 2013 are shown below.

Drugs prescribed and dispensed in hospital cannot be captured centrally due to the use of different hospital IT systems.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail what the money received through the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme was spent on, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35071/11-15)

Mr Poots: I refer the Member to the answer I gave to AQW 34337/11-15.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail (i) the total number of prescription forms issued; (ii) the average cost of a prescription item; and (iii) the average number of prescription items issued per person, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35077/11-15)

Mr Poots: The (i) the total number of prescription items; (ii) the average ingredient cost per prescription item and (iii) the average number of prescription items per person, where a prescription was written, dispensed by a community pharmacist, dispensing doctor or appliance supplier, and presented for payment in 2011, 2012 and 2013 is shown below.

Number of Prescription Items, Average ingredient cost per prescription item & average number of prescription items per person 2011-2013

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety why eligible patients for IVF are only entitled to one full cycle of treatment under the Health Service, unlike patients in either England, Scotland or Wales.

(AQW 35079/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department recognises that some regions across the UK provide a greater number of treatment cycles than the available resources currently permit in Northern Ireland. Access criteria in Northern Ireland, which were developed following public consultations in 2006 and 2009, are however wider than in some other regions of the UK, e.g. offering treatment to couples who already have a child, thus allowing more people to avail of publicly funded treatment.

NICE Clinical Guideline CG156 on fertility has been considered and endorsed by my Department and it is now the responsibility of the HSC Board, as commissioner of services, to set out its approach to implementing the guidance within the context of currently available resources and other HSC priorities.

Full implementation of the revised guideline is expected to have significant financial implications and, until my Department's budget allocations for 2014/15 are finalised, the Board is unable to give definitive plans for implementation.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety why the findings of the review of the School of Dental Hygiene have not been made public.

(AQW 35080/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department commissioned a review of the Belfast School of Dental Hygiene in 2012 when serious concerns came to light on the delivery of the programme to train dental hygienists. Its aim was to determine whether changes could be enacted so that training could continue. The review was part of my Department's examination of the events and issues in the School of Dental Hygiene. This process is still ongoing. Unlike reviews that precede formal public consultations relating to HSC service delivery, it was not intended for general publication.

Consideration has been given to options on the way forward and my officials will soon be presenting me with an options appraisal. When I make my decision on the most viable and sustainable way for students from Northern Ireland to train as dental hygienists my decision, and the reasons that support it, can be made available to appropriate stakeholders.

Mrs McKeivitt asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how his Department is working towards implementing the recommendations of the McCollum report, required to improve the lives of people diagnosed with Muscular Dystrophy.

(AQW 35081/11-15)

Mr Poots: I support most of the recommendations contained in the McCollum report. The Health and Social Care Board and Public Health Agency are taking forward the implementation of the Report's recommendations.

Progress has been made in a number of areas and I attach at Annex A an update from the Health and Social Care Board on each of the 15 recommendations contained in the Report.

Annex A

McCollum Report – Access to Specialist Neuromuscular Care in NI

Recommendation 1: A lead for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions is appointed from within Health and Social Care in Northern Ireland to take overall control and be accountable for identifying and fixing the gaps in specialist multidisciplinary neuromuscular care, which require urgent service development.

Ms Michelle Tennyson, Assistant Director, Allied Health Professions and Public Patient Involvement at the Public Health Agency, has been identified as the lead for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions in Northern Ireland.

Recommendation 2: The Northern Ireland Executive and HSC define and fully recognise neuromuscular services as specialist services in order to distinguish the complex muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions as requiring specialist support, which includes different specialisms.

Services for people with Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy are provided by HSC Trusts on the basis of assessed need and may involve hospital and/or community based services.

There is a generic, regional neuromuscular clinic for all age groups provided by the Belfast Trust which is led by an adult neurologist and a paediatric neurologist with an interest in neuromuscular conditions. The clinic may also be attended by a clinical geneticist, neuro-physiotherapist, orthotist and occupational therapist. The management of neuromuscular conditions also requires input from other specialties such as cardiology, orthopaedics and respiratory medicine and a one-stop-shop with these specialties present is being piloted.

Where a clinical need has been identified for treatment which cannot be provided in Northern Ireland, appropriate patients may receive treatment outside Northern Ireland, subject to the HSC Board's approval via the Individual Funding Request (IFR) process.

Recommendation 3: The Northern Ireland Executive ensures that the care advisor post in Northern Ireland is secured long term within HSC, and takes urgent steps to create more of these posts. These steps will provide the best possible support and advice for people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions and will reduce unplanned emergency admissions by investing small amounts to save a large amount in the long term.

The HSCB / PHA are supportive of this recommendation and have secured funding to appoint two neurological care advisors during 2014/15. The care advisors will provide advice, support and information to people living with neurological conditions including neuromuscular conditions. The posts will be regional and will be based in Belfast Trust. The HSCB is working with Belfast Trust to finalise the investment proposals.

The need for the appointment of care advisors to support people living with neurological conditions has also been highlighted as a result of HSCB / PHA engagement with services users and carers and other key stakeholders.

A specialist paediatric neuromuscular nurse is in post within the Royal Belfast Hospital for Sick Children. This is a regional post which provides specialist nursing skills and knowledge in the management of those affected by neuromuscular conditions, their families and the professionals working with them.

The provision of a neuromuscular nurse specialist for adults is supported by HSCB but is subject to the identification of appropriate additional funding as well as competing priorities regarding services for people living with neurological conditions

Recommendation 4: Health and Social Care Board and the Northern Ireland Executive create a steering group for developing specialised neuromuscular services which incorporates the views of people affected by muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions, health professionals, commissioners and the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign.

A priority for the Health and Social Care Board's Neurological Conditions Subgroup is to establish robust engagement mechanisms with service users and carers, clinical staff, Trust management, voluntary and community organisations and other statutory organisations. This is in acknowledgement of the fact that people with muscular dystrophy, related neuromuscular conditions and also neurological conditions require access to a range of services that can cross boundaries between health and social care, employment and benefit services, housing and education.

In support of this the HSCB established a Neurological Conditions Advisory Group with membership from a service users and carers; voluntary and community organisations; health professionals; commissioners and Trust management. As part of this process nominations have been sought from the Northern Ireland Rare Disease Partnership which includes the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign. The first meeting of the Group took place early in 2013 and it will continue to meet on at least an annual basis.

The HSCB/PHA have also put in place arrangements to meet with Action Duchenne and the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign on a quarterly basis and will continue to engage with people living with neuromuscular conditions, health and social care professionals and other interest groups.

Recommendation 5: Health and Social Care Board initiate steps to ensure that a network approach for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions is formally developed for adult services, following the announcement of increased coordination of paediatric services.

The Health and Social Care Board agreed 3 year funding for a fixed term clinical network manager to develop and formalise network arrangements both at local, regional and national level. Neuromuscular conditions are covered within this role. The network manager took up post in September 2012.

It is acknowledged that adult neurology services require further modernisation. In support of this the HSCB is planning a process of clinical engagement to:

- benchmark services with other providers in the UK;
- consider the need for additional staff both in terms of medical, nursing and AHP staff in order that specialist neurological expertise can be fully utilised;
- consider the development of 'one stop shops' / multidisciplinary clinics for patient accessing a range of specialist clinics in Belfast Trust;
- develop the referral protocols linked to care pathways including GP referrals; and,
- extend the use of telemedicine and virtual clinics.

Any additional investment required will be subject to prioritisation within available resources. Opportunities will also be identified to develop and formalise network arrangements at local, regional and national level.

Recommendation 6: Health and Social Care Board and Health and Social Care Trusts use the specialist expertise within Belfast Health and Social Care Trust to develop further a 'hub and spoke' model of service provision, with Belfast Trust at the centre of the set-up at which core specialists are located.

A hub and spoke model for specialist neuromuscular and neurological care already exists with Belfast Trust at the centre. Local services are also in place in each of the local hospitals for general neuromuscular care. The Health and Social Care Board will continue to explore opportunities to further develop these hubs and spoke arrangements.

Recommendation 7: Health and Social Care Trusts appoint transition workers to facilitate patients' transition from paediatric to adult services.

This is being considered as part of the work of the Health and Social Care Board's Neurological Conditions Subgroup. However, delivery will be subject to the identification of appropriate additional funding.

Recommendation 8: Health and Social Care Board and Social Care Trusts develop a more streamlined and efficient genetic testing system to reduce delays.

Northern Ireland gains access to specialist genetic testing for muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular disorders via the UK Genetic Testing Network (UKGTN). This network provides advice throughout the UK on genetic testing and aims to ensure the provision of high quality equitable genetic testing services.

One of the challenges in diagnosing neurogenetic disorders is that there can be a clinical overlap between many conditions and it can be difficult to distinguish them on the grounds of clinical features alone. In addition, conditions that appear clinically identical can have a large number of genetic causes. For example, the condition hereditary motor sensory neuropathy (Charcot Marie Tooth disease) can be caused by mutations in a number of different genes. Until now it has been difficult to get a genetic diagnosis for many of these patients as it would have involved doing a number of single gene tests each of which would cost several hundred pounds and it was often difficult to know which gene to test first.

There has been a recent change in this process in the form of panel tests. This is a result of the introduction of Next Generation Sequencing which enables a number of genes to be looked at together. This includes panel tests for Charcot Marie Tooth (hereditary motor sensory neuropathies) and congenital myopathy.

The panel test for Charcot Marie Tooth will enable genetic diagnosis to be established which will assist in the prognosis and future management of the patient and their family. This group of conditions can be inherited in a number of different ways and so establishing the exact diagnosis is important for giving advice to at risk family members. Being able to make a definitive diagnosis will provide information about the natural history of the condition and may avoid the need for other tests. At present patients are reliant on sequential single gene testing which may take up to one year to complete. The new panel test will provide a more rapid result with a much greater chance of finding a diagnosis.

The main benefits of the panel test for congenital myopathies are to provide an overall higher mutation detection rate in a faster time for patients with a congenital myopathy, compared with the current service. The higher detection rate will be as a result of testing a more comprehensive repertoire of genes, as well as the potential for the detection of large rearrangements, which is currently unavailable for the majority of these genes. The faster turn-around time is based on the simultaneous analysis of the gene set, as opposed to the previous strategy of sequential analysis. In addition, this test is predicted to provide an overall reduction in costs per patient, which will help to provide additional resources to other areas of the service. The cost of providing this service is predicted to decrease with time as the next generation sequencing reagents become less expensive. By doing the panel tests earlier in the patient pathway may reduce the need for further invasive tests.

The new UKGTN tests for 2014 have been available from 1 April 2014 and have been endorsed by Health and Social Care Board Specialist Services Commissioning Team.

Recommendation 9: Health and Social Care Trusts address the need to increase clinical time dedicated to specialist neuromuscular care

The Health and Social Care Board and Public Health Agency will consider this as part of the planned clinical engagement exercise to explore opportunities to reform and modernise services.

Recommendation 10: The Health and Social Care Board develops a neuromuscular registry for both the paediatric and the adult services in Northern Ireland to ensure the most efficient delivery of specialist care.

The HSCB/PHA are working with the HSC Online project team to establish how a high level directory of services for people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular services can be developed and integrated into HSC Online.

Recommendation 11: The Duchenne Standards of Care guidelines are made widely available to those commissioning, planning and delivering services so that high quality standards of care are achieved in a multidisciplinary approach for all muscular conditions. As new guidelines emerge for other neuromuscular conditions, these should also be made widely available so that commissioning, planning and delivery of these services can be improved.

The Duchenne Standards of Care Guidelines do not have any official status here in Northern Ireland but rather they might be regarded as good practice. In the future, in the event that DHSSPS endorses any NICE guidance in this area, this status may change.

Recommendation 12: The Northern Ireland Executive addresses the inequalities of wheelchair service provision so that there is consistency and that people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions are not forced to resort to private purchases of suitable wheelchairs.

The HSC Board has commenced a review of the regional eligibility criteria for the provision of wheelchairs through the Northern Ireland Wheelchair Service.

This Review has been commissioned by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) on behalf of DHSSPS to consider the current Eligibility Criteria for the Provision of Wheelchairs.

The Terms of Reference for the Project are:

- To review current Eligibility Criteria in collaboration with key stakeholders to take into account other 'best' practice models of provision both nationally and internationally; and,
- Analyse current Eligibility Criteria and consider opportunities for further standardisation, improved efficiency/effectiveness and quality improvement.

It is anticipated that the findings of the review will be finalised in Summer 2014. Steps have been taken to ensure the views of people with muscular dystrophy and neuromuscular conditions are considered as part of this review.

Recommendation 13: The Northern Ireland Executive, in conjunction with HSC, improves the level of recognition and knowledge of muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular conditions at GP level.

HSCB/PHA will fund and host a training event for health and social care professionals to raise awareness of living with a neuromuscular condition in 2014. The HSCB/PHA will work in partnership with Action Duchenne and the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign to plan and deliver this event.

HSCB / PHA will work with Integrated Care Directorate to explore opportunities to raise awareness amongst GPs of living with a muscular dystrophy, related neuromuscular disorders and wider neurological conditions.

Recommendation 14: The Health and Social Care Board implements a structured long term succession planning system so that key neuromuscular posts are recruited for and appointed quickly to prevent a detrimental gap in services for people with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular condition.

Every effort is made to ensure effective succession planning for doctors across a range of specialties. Generally, where possible, medical posts where the post holder is approaching retirement age are highlighted and identified to the Northern Ireland Medical and Dental Training Agency in order for them to allocate a junior doctor to a specialist training programme. Similarly, where it is apparent that a specialist nurse/AHP is approaching retirement, steps can be taken to begin to train staff with generic skills.

However, as specialist medical training can take up to 5 years and retirement age is not fixed, it can prove challenging to coordinate the completion of training with the retirement of a senior consultant in specialties where the number of consultants is small. Both the Health and Social Care Board and Trusts are aware of these challenges and aim to address via advance planning where possible.

Recommendation 15: Health Trusts and Northern Ireland Councils develop structured joint planning provision so that there is a seamless transition and coordination between health and social care services.

This recommendation is not relevant in a NI context as an integrated health and social care system exists here.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much funding each Health and Social Care Trust has provided to independent residential and nursing care homes in each of the last ten years.

(AQW 35141/11-15)

Mr Poots: It is only possible to provide details of costs provided by Health and Social Care Trusts to independent residential and nursing homes from the establishment of the five new integrated HSC Trusts in April 2007. Costs from 2007/08 to 2012/13 are set out in the table below.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33982/11-15, to account for the inconsistency in the methods used by Health and Social Care Trusts to record the variation in the numbers and the proportion of residential and domiciliary care packages; and whether he has plans to regularise the methods.[R]

Mr Poots: There are a number of administrative systems from which HSC Trusts extract information on residential and domiciliary care, including manual collation. Historically, these systems have been developed separately resulting in information being available in varying detail across the Trusts. Improvements in this area are being addressed through IT development and the establishment of a minimum dataset which will meet the regional information needs of the DHSSPS, HSCB and HSC Trusts.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, in relation to Health Service dental work carried out by private service providers, whether the cost of having the same dental work done varies if it is carried out by a dentist or a dental hygienist.

(AQW 35150/11-15)

Mr Poots: The vast majority of health service dental care and treatment is provided in High Street practices. These practices are staffed by teams led by general dental practitioners, who are independent contractors, providing services on behalf of the HSCB. The regulations under which these dentists are contracted allow them, should they choose to do so, to utilise dental hygienists and therapists to provide care and treatment.

The range of health service treatments is set out in the Statement of Dental Remuneration and only a limited number of those treatments are within the scope of practice of dental hygienists. The cost to patients, and the HSCB budget, is exactly the same regardless of who provides the care.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many people have given blood in the North Down area over the last twelve months.

(AQW 35159/11-15)

Mr Poots: Over the period July 2013 to June 2014, a total of 2,269 people have given blood in the North Down area.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many blood donation events took place in North Down over the last twelve months.

Mr Poots: Over the period July 2013 to June 2014, a total of 21 blood donation sessions took place in the North Down area.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the increasing use of private healthcare companies by each Health and Social Care Trust over the last ten years.

(AQW 35211/11-15)

Mr Poots: It is assumed that these questions relate to the use of Independent Sector healthcare providers in respect of elective care waiting list initiatives. The Health and Social Care Board, which commissions elective care services, is working with the Health and Social Care (HSC) Trusts to meet the waiting time targets set in my Department's annual Commissioning Plan Direction. The long term aim is to ensure that there is sufficient elective capacity across the HSC to match demand and to meet elective care access standards in delivering assessment and treatment. The Health and Social Care Board has invested significant resources to increase HSC capacity and reduce reliance on the Independent Sector. However at present there is a capacity gap and, in the short term, where additional capacity cannot be delivered in-house to meet elective care waiting lists, all HSC Trusts may utilise Independent Sector providers as necessary.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he is aware of any Health and Social Care Trust using private companies to deliver procedures and treatments to meet Departmental targets.

(AQW 35212/11-15)

Mr Poots: It is assumed that these questions relate to the use of Independent Sector healthcare providers in respect of elective care waiting list initiatives. The Health and Social Care Board, which commissions elective care services, is working with the Health and Social Care (HSC) Trusts to meet the waiting time targets set in my Department's annual Commissioning Plan Direction. The long term aim is to ensure that there is sufficient elective capacity across the HSC to match demand and to meet elective care access standards in delivering assessment and treatment. However at present there is a capacity gap and, in the short term, where additional capacity cannot be delivered in-house to meet elective care waiting lists, all HSC Trusts may utilise Independent Sector providers as necessary.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how the use of private healthcare companies to deliver Health Service procedures and treatments represents value for money.

(AQW 35213/11-15)

Mr Poots: I have set challenging targets for the HSC in respect of elective care and I am looking to the Health and Social Care Board to work with the Health and Social Care Trusts to deliver on these targets. The use of Independent Sector (IS) providers to treat patients is an acceptable interim measure while capacity is being built up within the HSC to reduce the number of patients referred to the IS.

The Health and Social Care Board negotiates and manages contracts with the Independent Sector on behalf of the five Health and Social Care Trusts. Contracts for the procurement of assessment and/or treatment services are negotiated through a competitive tendering process aimed at ensuring best value for money.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of incubators available for premature babies in each hospital.

(AQW 35214/11-15)

Mr Poots: The total number of incubators and the number of incubators available for use by premature babies in each hospital at midnight on 30th June 2014 is given in the table below.

HSC Trust	HSC Hospital	Total incubators	Incubators available for use ¹
Belfast	Royal Maternity	25	0
Northern ²	Antrim	14	1
South Eastern	Ulster Hospital	13	0
Southern	Craigavon	17	13
	Daisy Hill	7	6
Western ²	Altnagelvin	18	4
	South West Acute	6	3

Source: Health and Social Care Trusts

Notes:

- 1 Incubators available for use have been defined as those incubators that were empty and available for new admission.
- 2 Northern and Western Trusts use the term 'cots' instead of 'incubators' therefore both Trusts have provided information on the number of cots for premature babies.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what discussions he has had with the Health and Social Care Trusts regarding their increasing referral of procedures and treatments to private healthcare companies.

(AQW 35215/11-15)

Mr Poots: It is assumed that these questions relate to the use of Independent Sector healthcare providers in respect of elective care waiting list initiatives. The Health and Social Care Board, which commissions elective care services, is working with the Health and Social Care (HSC) Trusts to meet the waiting time targets set in my Department's annual Commissioning Plan Direction. However at present there is a capacity gap and, in the short term, where additional capacity cannot be delivered in-house to meet elective care waiting lists, all HSC Trusts may utilise Independent Sector providers as necessary.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the current occupancy rates of incubators for premature babies in each hospital.

Mr Poots: The occupancy rate of incubators for premature babies in each hospital at midnight on 30th June 2014 is given in the table below.

HSC Trust	HSC Hospital	Occupancy Rate
Belfast	Royal Maternity	100.0%
Northern1	Antrim	92.9%
South Eastern	Ulster Hospital	100.0%
Southern	Craigavon	23.5%
	Daisy Hill	14.3%
Western ¹	Altnagelvin	77.8%
	South West Acute	50.0%

Notes:

- 1 Northern and Western Trusts use the term 'cots' instead of 'incubators', therefore both Trusts have provided information relating to the occupancy rate of cots for premature babies.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many staff are employed by (i) each Health and Social Care Trust; and (ii) independent providers to deliver domiciliary care packages.

(AQW 35217/11-15)

Mr Poots:

- (i) The number of Health & Social Care (HSC) staff graded as Home Help/Domiciliary Care workers as at 31st March 2014 is provided in the table below. This includes HSC staff with guaranteed hours, variable hours and 'as & when required' contracts, therefore an accurate whole-time equivalent number of staff, which would reflect the number of contracted staff hours, cannot be provided.

Headcount of Home Helps / Domiciliary Care Workers as at 31st March 2014

Northern	1,109
South Eastern	553
Southern	1,081
Western	703

- (ii) Independent providers are private companies; therefore the number of workers that they employ to provide domiciliary care packages is not collected. However, the DHSSPS statistical publication 'Domiciliary Care Services for Adults in Northern Ireland (2013)' provides details domiciliary contact hours during a surveyed week, 15th to 21st September 2013, (inclusive) broken down by statutory / independent sectors.

Department of Justice

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 33802/11-15, how many times the Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service (NICTS) or any of its service providers throughout the stated timescale, have used CCTV evidence to assist in (i) criminal investigations against individuals attending court or during incidents in the area surrounding the courts estate; (ii) criminal investigations against NICTS staff or service providers; and (iii) disciplinary matters of NICTS staff or service providers, broken down per court division, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 34602/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice): The Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service provides CCTV footage to the Police Service of Northern Ireland and law enforcement agencies on request, within the terms of the NICTS CCTV Usage Guidance. It is for prosecutors to decide if the CCTV footage provided assists a criminal investigation. Since 2012 NICTS has provided CCTV footage to PSNI and other agencies on 117 occasions. Figures prior to 2012 are not available.

One NICTS service provider has used CCTV footage to assist in staff disciplinary action on 18 occasions, five times in 2013 in one court division and 13 times in 2014 in four court divisions.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Justice what legislation he plans to introduce once the Council of Europe Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence Against Women and Domestic Violence Treaty comes into force on 1 August 2014.

(AQW 34635/11-15)

Mr Ford: In May 2012, following consultation with Ministerial colleagues, I advised the Home Secretary that the Northern Ireland Executive supported the signing of the convention. The convention was subsequently signed by the United Kingdom Government as a member state.

A signature alone does not impose on the State obligations under the treaty and the UK has not expressed its consent to be bound by the treaty until it is ratified. Ratification is a process which requires the consideration of Parliament.

I am aware that the Treaty will come into force on 1 August 2014 for the eleven member states that have now ratified it. However the United Kingdom has yet to ratify the Treaty.

My Department will of course monitor progress.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice how many cases of extradition proceedings from Northern Ireland have been held in each of the last four financial years to date; and to detail the Legal Aid cost of each, including ongoing proceedings.

(AQW 34653/11-15)

Mr Ford: Prior to 2011/12 the Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission (NILSC) did not record extradition proceedings as a specific case category and therefore is unable to provide details of the volume of certificates before 1 April 2011. The volume of Certificates registered from 2011/12 to 2013/14 is set out in the table below:

Volume of Certificates for Extradition Proceedings

Year	Volume of Certificates
2011/12	73
2013/14	92

NILSC payments in Extradition Proceedings are made in respect of the Criminal Aid Certificates granted by the Court and not on a case by case basis. Details of the payments made by the Commission in respect of Criminal Aid Certificates granted in respect of extradition proceedings for the last three financial years are as follows:

Payments made for Extradition proceedings

Year	Volume of Payments (Full reports)	Gross Total	Average Cost
2011/12	25	£45,497	£1,820
2012/13	118	£176,050	£1,492
2013/14	191	£478,144	£2,503

It is important to note that Certificates granted in one financial year may not be paid in the same financial year.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice how many cases of hate crimes against people with disabilities have been recorded in each of the last five years.

(AQW 34658/11-15)

Mr Ford: The recording of hate crimes is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board, and I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Policing Board.

I am, however, aware that the PSNI publication "Incidents and Crimes with a Hate Motivation Recorded by the Police in Northern Ireland: Quarterly Update to 31 March 2014" is available on their website at the following location:

http://www.psni.police.uk/monthly_crime_bulletin_apr-mar_13_14.pdf.

This document includes the statistics requested on cases of hate crimes against people with disabilities.

Mrs Cameron asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the tendering process for Independent Sexual Violence Advisors (ISVAs) for the Rowan Sexual Assault Referral Clinic; and whether the role and function for the ISVAs has been confirmed.

(AQW 34679/11-15)

Mr Ford: My Department recognises the importance of the provision of specialist support to victims of sexual violence and abuse and officials have undertaken a series of planned engagements with key stakeholders to scope what an Independent Sexual Violence Advisor (ISVA) service for Northern Ireland might include. In addition officials have contacted counterparts in other jurisdictions to capture any relevant best practice regarding service provision to victims of sexual violence and abuse.

Operational data from The Rowan, alongside the information gathered in the exercises outlined above, will be used to inform and progress the business case and service specification for the role and function of ISVAs. This process is ongoing and it is anticipated that we will be in a position to source a service provider by October 2014.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 33806/11-15, to detail the estimated cost, including Legal Aid and additional court staffing, should all eleven cases proceed.

(AQW 34720/11-15)

Mr Ford: It is not possible at this stage of proceedings to accurately estimate the cost should all eleven cases progress further as there are many possible ways in which each case could proceed.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the total cost in Legal Aid in the case of the individual in relation to a theft charge in 2011, shown by (a) legal firm/solicitor; (b) junior counsel; (c) senior counsel; and (d) all associated expenses claimed; and (ii) the case timeline from commencement to conclusion.

(AQW 34725/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Legal Services Commission has advised that it has no record of an application for legal aid on behalf the individual in question.

The Data Protection Act 1998 gives individuals certain rights in relation to personal information held on them by public authorities. The information requested in respect of the timeline of this case contains data not readily available in the public domain and disclosure would be contrary to the Data Protection Act.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Justice (i) what was the annual expenditure on food in (a) prison; and (b) court facilities, in each of the last three years; (ii) of this total expenditure, what was the expenditure on food produced in Northern Ireland; and (iii) whether this food is clearly identified as having been produced in Northern Ireland on menus and at point of service.

(AQW 34790/11-15)

Mr Ford:

(i) (a) and (b) The total expenditure on food for the last three financial years for Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) and Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service (NICTS) is as follows:

(ii)

	2011-12	2012-13	2013-14
NIPS	1,689,656	1,866,583	2,071,942
NICTS	159,190	219,184	132,658

(ii) NIPS is unable to identify if food is produced in Northern Ireland and the Contractors for the supply of jurors meals in NICTS are not required to identify if food was produced in Northern Ireland.

(iii) NIPS and NICTS do not identify if food is produced in Northern Ireland on menus or at point of service.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34470/11-15 and in relation to the decision to award an additional fee of £410 for solicitors and £400 for counsel applicable in cases including more than 750 pages of prosecution evidence, to detail (i) who made this decision; (ii) the date the decision was made; (iii) who made representations regarding the decision; and (iv) the consultation exercise completed.

(AQW 34794/11-15)

Mr Ford: I, as Minister of Justice, have responsibility for setting levels of remuneration for legal aid in the magistrates' court.

My Department undertook a public consultation on proposed changes to the Magistrates' Courts and County Court Appeals (Criminal Legal Aid) (Costs) Rules (Northern Ireland) 2009 (2009 Rules) which ended in February 2013. One of the proposals was the removal of provisions for Very High Cost Cases (VHCCs). The legal profession made strong representation that either the VHCC provisions be retained or at least some allowance be made for more difficult cases in the magistrates' courts. In response I decided to provide an additional fee where the number of pages of prosecution evidence exceeded 750 pages. The proposal was included in the Post Consultation report which was considered by the Justice Committee on 25 April 2013 and can be found at <http://www.dojni.gov.uk/index/public-consultations/archive-consultations.htm>.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34470/11-15, to detail (i) how often an additional fee of £200 has been payable for preliminary enquiry proceedings; (ii) the number of such cases that lasted more than one day; and (iii) the total cost of Legal Aid supplements.

(AQW 34854/11-15)

Mr Ford: The table below shows the volume and value of payments made for additional fees in preliminary enquiry proceedings for the financial years 2009/10 to 2013/14.

Year	No. of additional fees	Cost
2009/2010	0	0
2010/2011	25	£5,000
2011/2012	24	£4,800
2012/2013	12	£2,400
2013/2014	43	£8,600
Total	104	£20,800

While the Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission has been able to provide the overall number of payments against certificates, it cannot provide information on the number of cases that last more than one day as it is possible to have more than one certificate issued in a case, particularly if there are multiple defendants in a case.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice to detail the current measures his Department is taking to protect the elderly.

(AQW 34878/11-15)

Mr Ford: In line with the Programme for Government requirements, and as part of the Community Safety Strategy, my Department is committed to tackling crime against older and vulnerable people and reducing the fear of crime amongst them. Consequently, my Department, working in partnership with others, has developed an Action Plan comprising a range of measures aimed at tackling fear of crime amongst older people. Progress on this Action Plan was provided to the Committee for Justice in February 2014.

As part of this Action Plan, my Department is currently funding projects delivered by Age Sector Platform and Linking Generations Northern Ireland to tackle fear of crime amongst older people. In addition my Department also funds a range of initiatives and schemes through Policing and Community Safety Partnerships. These schemes include:

- Agewell
- The four tier home security scheme
- The Good Morning scheme
- Neighbourhood Watch
- Quickcheck
- Safe as Houses programme
- Seasonal campaigns

Finally, my Department is working in partnership with the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety on a new adult safeguarding policy. The development of the adult safeguarding policy will complement the measures already in place to protect older people from abuse and enhance further the support available to all victims of crime.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34244/11-15 and in light of his recent public condemnation of dissident republican threats to G4S, whether he will revise his decision not to comment on security matters, particularly when this question was not around personal security but of a general nature to staff providing an integral role on a contracted basis to a departmental agency.

(AQW 34937/11-15)

Mr Ford: My Department does not comment on departmental security matters. My recent comments regarding G4S Secure Solutions (UK) Ltd were made in response to a publicly reported threat.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the dates of commencement and conclusion of the most recent unannounced inspect of Magilligan Prison; and (ii) when a report on the inspection will be published.

(AQW 34938/11-15)

Mr Ford: The full unannounced inspection of Magilligan Prison commenced on 27 May 2014 and concluded on 5 June 2014.

The publication date of the report will be determined by CJINI (Criminal Justice Inspection Northern Ireland). The inspection report will be published on the CJINI website, www.cjini.org.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice on how many occasions the Pensions Ombudsman ruled against the Northern Ireland Policing Board in respect of its pension scheme and with what consequences in terms of change of approach by the Board.

(AQW 34970/11-15)

Mr Ford: This is a matter for the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the independence of the Board and am therefore not in a position to provide the information you have requested.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to detail the (i) costs to date; and (ii) estimated final costs in Legal Aid for all judicial proceedings taken by Brendan Conway in legal challenges against strip searching in Maghaberry Prison, shown by (a) approximate date; (b) law firm; (c) junior counsel; (d) senior counsel; and (e) any other associated costs.

(AQW 34977/11-15)

Mr Ford: Article 24 of the Legal Aid, Advice and Assistance (NI) Order 1981 precludes the release of information in relation to civil cases in which Legal Aid has been granted.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34383/11-15, whether he will introduce a further review mechanism in these instances.

(AQW 35055/11-15)

Mr Ford: There are no plans to introduce a further review mechanism. This case was reviewed independently as required under the current review mechanism within the Public Protection Arrangements Northern Ireland.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice to detail the meetings that his Department have been involved in regarding animal cruelty issues, in 2014.

(AQW 35181/11-15)

Mr Ford: My Department has had a total of five meetings with officials from the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development (DARD) to discuss the planned review of the implementation of the Welfare of Animals Act (Northern Ireland) 2011 and related matters.

Three of those meetings have been to develop the terms of reference for the review which will shortly be provided to me and to the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development.

The two other meetings were with my Causeway team to consider options for DARD to access information available from the Criminal History database regarding persons convicted of animal welfare offences.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to detail the Legal Aid costs to date of the defendants in case numbers (i) 14/020711; (ii) 14/020713; (iii) 14/020714; and (iv) latterly collectively, 14/020710, at Dungannon Magistrates Court.
(AQW 35195/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission has advised that, to date, no legal aid payments have been made in respect of these defendants.

Department for Regional Development

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the new NI Railways Dog/Animal Policy.
(AQW 33901/11-15)

Mr Kennedy (The Minister for Regional Development): Translink has advised that NIR's Conditions of Carriage contains information in relation to several policies. There is a short introductory paragraph stating that the following are in the interest of passenger safety, comfort and service efficiency.

The new Dog / Animal section states:

- Dogs/Animals will not be permitted on trains prior to 09:30 hours, Monday - Sunday (with the exception of assistance animals).
- Dogs/Animals may be carried free of charge after 09:30 hours, at the discretion of an authorised member of staff (maximum 1 per person).
- Dogs/Animals should be of a size that they can be kept under a seat or around the feet of the owner without causing an obstruction.
- Dogs/Animals must be clean, adequately controlled and kept on a leash at all times, unless contained in an appropriate container.
- If a dog/animal is found to occupy a seat, the owner will be liable to a penalty charge, and removal from the train.
- Dogs/Animals deemed as dangerous by an authorised member of staff will not be carried on any train service.

Translink has undertaken to carry out a review of the operation of the policy after six months and to further survey passengers on their views.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development why the NI Railways Dog/Animal Policy has changed.
(AQW 33902/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Translink has advised that following recent correspondence from Dog Lovers NI, challenging the existing NIR dog/animal conditions of carriage, consultation on the subject was included as part of the twice-yearly independent passenger monitoring process in order to gauge passenger opinion and inform any proposed change.

This consultation with customers supported a case for change.

Translink has undertaken to carry out a review of the operation of the policy after six months and to further survey passengers on their views about its application.

Mrs Hale asked the Minister for Regional Development whether there are any plans to attach conditions of sale to off street parking to dissuade councils from the disposal of potentially lucrative sites.
(AQW 34350/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: In order to implement one of the Executive's proposals under the Review of Public Administration (RPA), to create stronger local government in Northern Ireland, my Department will shortly be seeking views on the content of a draft Off-Street Parking (Functions of District Councils) Bill.

The Bill presently contains no conditions regarding the retention of off-street car parks or their disposal. It is a matter for the new councils how they manage and operate those car parks. However, I would be quite happy to consider any proposal on this issue that is raised either during the forthcoming consultation on the Bill or as a result of amendments proposed during the Bill's Assembly passage.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development what consideration has been given to converting the old railway line from Ballymoney to Ballycasle to a greenway for pedestrians and cyclists.
(AQW 34586/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: You are aware that I am very keen to promote the development of greenways especially to encourage less confident and family cycling. The development of old track beds where available is especially attractive, as they tend to be interurban encouraging commuter cycling and a flat terrain which are easily navigated by all abilities.

Unfortunately, the majority of the track bed of the former Ballymoney to Ballycastle railway line was sold to numerous parties in and around the mid- to late-1950's. The only portion of the track now left in Translink ownership is the part which now houses the bus station in Ballycastle.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of the success of the trial to allow more cyclists to use early morning trains.

(AQW 34587/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I understand Translink routinely carry passengers with cycles or early morning trains where space permits.

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister for Regional Development whether he has liaised with the Minister of the Environment to ensure that the Review of Bus Operator Licensing will enable volunteers to continue to deliver transport services without financial or other barriers.

(AQW 34645/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department meets regularly with the Department of the Environment (DoE) on the Review of Bus Operator Licensing through DoE's Bus Forum meetings. In addition, my officials met directly with DoE on this issue on 8 May 2014.

My Department will continue to liaise with DoE to ensure any new operator licensing system will meet the service needs of users and, where possible, continue to encourage volunteering as part of the service provision.

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister for Regional Development whether the Rural Transport Fund and the Transport Programme for People with Disabilities will be merged in the next Programme for Government period and budget term.

(AQW 34646/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: There are no plans to merge the Rural Transport Fund and the Transport Programme for People with Disabilities at present.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the cost, including legal costs, to his Department of successful compensation claims for (i) damage to motor vehicles; and (ii) personal injuries, as a result of potholes and other defects in roads and footpaths, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 34649/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department does not hold the information in the format requested.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the age profile of all vehicles and plant machinery owned by Roads Service; and whether there is a replacement policy for vehicles and plant machinery.

(AQW 34661/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Transport NI currently has 2,230 items of fleet ranging from 26-tonne tipping lorries, gritters and specialised vehicles such as gully emptiers, to large plant items including tractors and rollers, down to smaller items such as pedestrian mowers, cement mixers and hedge trimmers.

Details of the age profile of Transport NI's vehicles and large plant items are set out in the table below:

Vehicle/Plant Group	Age
	1 to 4 Years	5 to 8 Years	9 to 12 Years	13 to 16 Years	16 to 20 Years	>20 Years
Gritters	37	57	35	0	0	0
Snow Blowers	0	0	4	0	0	4
Lorries	20	59	97	78	0	0
Specialist Vehicles	10	28	33	10	0	0
Light Commercial	13	14	27	7	0	0
Sub-Total	80	158	196	95	0	4
Large plant & machinery	60	66	101	36	3	0
Overall Total	140	224	297	131	3	4

Similar information on the remaining small items of plant is not readily available.

My Department's policy on the replacement of its vehicle and plant items is dictated by the availability of funding. Replacement is prioritised depending on age, condition and operational need.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the cost of maintaining Roads Service vehicles and plant machinery, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 34662/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Transport NI currently has 2,230 fleet items. These range from 26-tonne lorries, specialised vehicles such as gritters, gully emptiers and road surface patchers, to pedestrian mowers, cement mixers and hedge trimmers. Details of maintenance costs over the last 5 years are set out in the table below:

Year	Cost of fleet maintenance (£M)
2009/2010	4.26
2010/2011	4.42
2011/2012	4.34
2012/2013	4.37
2013/2014	4.56

Mr Dallat asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail (i) the number of badges issued through the Blue Badge Scheme; and (ii) the number of (a) detections; and (b) prosecutions for abusing the Scheme, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 34714/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The number of badges issued through the Blue Badge scheme in each of the last three years is as follows:

Financial Year	Number of Badges Issued
01/04/2011 – 31/03/2012	38391
01/04/2012 – 31/03/2013	36694
01/04/2013 – 31/03/2014	41244

There were no prosecutions during this period, but the number of Blue Badge Enforcement enquiries by the Traffic Attendants and resulting number of Penalty Charges Notices (PCNs) issued were as follows:

Financial Year	Number of Enquiries	Number of PCNs Issued
01/04/2011 – 31/03/2012	934	15
01/04/2013 – 31/03/2014	748	99

Mr Dallat asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the criteria used for prohibiting heavy vehicles from using minor roads where it is deemed to be unsafe or causing a high level of damage to road infrastructure.

(AQW 34715/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: There is no formulaic approach to the decision making process used for prohibiting heavy vehicles from using minor roads. My Department's engineers assess each case separately taking account of engineering and traffic management factors.

Before prohibiting certain types of vehicles from using a road, other measures that could lead to voluntary control are considered, for example, reviewing existing direction signs to help direct general traffic, establishing preferred routes for commercial vehicles, or entering into dialogue with local transport operators.

There are a number of practical considerations which make it difficult to introduce and implement a prohibition, including, for example, the availability of a suitable alternative route/s. The potential impact on local businesses, which may be serviced by larger vehicles also must be given careful consideration.

My Department's approach is outlined in its Policy and Procedure Guide RSPPG E063 – 'Measures to Regulate Traffic', which can be accessed at the following web address:

<http://www.drdni.gov.uk/index/publications/publications-details.htm?docid=9191>

Mr Dallat asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the number of reported cases of damage caused to roads and pathways by utility companies and other bodies carrying out necessary works in the last three years; and what steps have been taken to deal with those who do not reinstate roads and pathways in a satisfactory manner.

(AQW 34716/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Each third party report of damage caused to roads and footways by utility companies and other bodies carrying out necessary works is followed up with an inspection. My Department carried out 95 such 'third party report' inspections in 2011-12, whereas 102 were carried out in 2012-13, and 94 in 2013-14. These inspections form a small proportion of the average overall number of around 16,600 inspections of works in progress and completed reinstatements undertaken over this three year period.

When dealing with those companies which do not reinstate roads and footways in a satisfactory manner, the Department applies the procedures for inspection of reinstatements and for dealing with reinstatement failures set out in the Northern Ireland Road Authority and Utilities Committee (NIRAUC) Code of Practice for Inspections. Where a company fails to reinstate a road to an acceptable standard, the reinstatement defects are reported to the company responsible, for repair or replacement. Additional inspections are carried out by my officials, at the company's expense, to ensure the defects have been corrected.

Where a company's overall performance in terms of reinstatement is found to be unacceptable, the Department can increase inspection levels with the associated costs borne by that company, as part of an improvement plan, until the required level of improvement has been achieved.

Mr Rogers asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail his Department's plans for upgrading Dundrum's Waste Water Treatment Works.

(AQW 34726/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Northern Ireland Water is working to develop options for the improvement of the wastewater treatment works in Dundrum. Sewer modelling has now been completed and options developed to improve the existing sewerage system. These include proposals to improve the location and volume of storm water storage to minimise the extent of overflow from the existing sewer system. Work has also commenced on the development of a marine model, following which options for the improvements to the existing works will be finalised.

Upgrading the sewer network and the wastewater treatment works is a high priority for NI Water and this has been included within its PC15 Business Plan.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister for Regional Development what action Northern Ireland Water is taking to ensure that sampling is carried out at the storm drain and downstream from Ballyclare Waste Treatment works.

(AQW 34784/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I have been advised by Northern Ireland Water (NIW) that Ballyclare Wastewater Treatment Works operates under a Water Order Consent (WOC) issued by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency. Compliance is assessed by NIEA using monitoring data supplied by NIW in accordance with an agreed sampling programme.

Details of the sampling carried out on behalf of NIW are included in my response to AQW 34785/11-15. The Works continues to be compliant and to treat effluent within its consented limits.

There is no regulatory requirement for quality monitoring at storm drains and NIW does not undertake sampling of the storm tank discharges from Ballyclare Wastewater Treatment Works. Monitoring of downstream river water quality falls outside the remit of NIW and is undertaken by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the work of Serco in collecting and transporting water quality samples at Ballyclare Waste Treatment works on behalf of Northern Ireland Water (NIW), including (i) how many, and how often, samples have been taken from the site; (ii) how many samples were referred to NIW; and (iii) the results of these samples.

(AQW 34785/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I have been advised by Northern Ireland Water (NIW) that wastewater compliance monitoring is undertaken in Northern Ireland under the Operator Self-Monitoring regime. This regime is standard industry practice, whereby the responsibility for compliance monitoring resides with the water company, in this instance NIW.

- (i) The sampling of wastewater discharges for regulatory purposes is undertaken by Serco, on behalf of NIW, under contract. Serco follow a pre-agreed sampling programme approved by the environmental regulator, the Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA).

Ballyclare Wastewater Treatment Works (WWTW) is monitored for compliance under the Urban Wastewater Treatment Directive (UWWTD) and the Water Order Consent (WOC). UWWTD samples consist of composite samples collected using automatic sampling equipment over a 24 hour period. Both inlet and effluent samples may be collected, although it is not mandatory to collect inlet samples for this purpose. Samples are collected at a minimum frequency of 12 per year for compliance with UWWTD.

WOC regulatory samples are collected at a frequency of 24 per year and are discrete, spot samples, whereby a sample bottle is filled at a single point in time on the date of the sample. The number of regulatory samples collected by Serco is provided in the following table:

Calendar Year	UWWTD samples	WOC samples
2009	23	24
2010	23	24
2012	24	24
2014 to date	12	12

- (ii) Upon collection of regulatory samples at the site, they are transported by Serco to NIW for analysis. When analysis is completed all results are entered onto NIW's Laboratory Information Management System and reported to the NIEA on a monthly basis. Serco holds a United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS) for sampling procedures and NIW holds UKAS accreditation for all regulatory wastewater parameters. NIEA undertake annual external audits of both the sampling and analytical procedures.
- (iii) It would not be practical to include in this Answer the volume of information requested in this response. I have therefore asked NIW to supply you with copies of all sample results in excel spreadsheet form. Ballyclare Wastewater Treatment Works continues to comply with its WOC and to treat effluent within its consented limits.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Regional Development why there has been a delay in weed spraying by Road Service and their contracted service providers in the Dungannon and South Tyrone areas; and to detail (i) when spraying will be completed; (ii) the contractors; (iii) when contracts were tendered and awarded; and (iv) whether there similar problems in other areas across Northern Ireland; and if so, to state the affected areas.

(AQW 34792/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: A new Environmental Maintenance Contract, which includes the provision of weed spraying, for the Magherafelt, Cookstown and Dungannon Council areas was advertised in mid December 2013. Tenders were returned on 11 February 2014, however, further discussions with the Preferred Tenderer were necessary to seek clarification on a number of technical issues and aspects of their pricing mechanism.

Following the conclusion of those discussions, a formal Tender Declaration was requested from the Preferred Tenderer on 2 May 2014, but they subsequently withdrew from the competition on 7 May 2014.

Price valuation recommenced on 8 May 2014 but similar discussions were then required with the new Preferred Tenderer. Once they were resolved, a notification of award was issued to all tenderers on 18 June 2014. The required standstill period associated with such notices ended on 30 June 2014 and the contract was awarded on 2 July 2014.

The contractor for weed spraying is Contract Services, Dungannon and the first treatment should be complete by the end of July. The contract was one of two competitions being run concurrently and similar difficulties were encountered with the contract for the Banbridge, Craigavon and Armagh Council areas.

Weed Spraying is ongoing in other areas across Northern Ireland and is progressing well. However, it should be noted that my Department is restricted by legislation governing the use of chemical weed sprays, to the use of sprays which do not contain a residual chemical element, and are foliar acting. For that reason it is necessary to have sufficient leaf growth present to allow the weed spray to sufficiently treat the plant, to ensure the chemicals can be absorbed and thus kill the weed.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the provision of a residents' parking scheme for Bangor.

(AQW 34795/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Belfast Metropolitan Transport Plan (BMTP) identifies the centre of Bangor as being an area of parking restraint and it is my intention to progress Residents' Parking Schemes in some residential areas in due course.

However, the timing of schemes outside of Belfast will be dependent upon the progress of those being developed at present elsewhere in Northern Ireland and a future prioritisation of the remaining areas.

Legislation governing all Residents' Parking Schemes is currently being finalised with the Departmental Solicitor's Office and I am pleased to advise that publication of Notices for the first batch of residents' parking schemes, which are concentrated in Antrim, Londonderry and Belfast, is currently scheduled for autumn 2014, with the formal consultation stage following as soon as possible thereafter. Subsequently, scheme implementation will be dependent upon the outcome of the consultation process, particularly with regard to whether objections are received.

These initial schemes, once implemented, are to be monitored for a period to gauge their success or otherwise. If these initial schemes prove to be successful, further consideration will be given to the introduction of schemes outside Belfast, including in Bangor.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the provision of a residents' parking scheme for Holywood.

(AQW 34796/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Belfast Metropolitan Transport Plan (BMTP) identifies a number of areas of parking restraint where residents parking will be considered, including Bangor in the North Down area. Whilst Holywood is not specifically identified within the BMTP in this respect, I can confirm that a number of streets in Holywood have been added to a list of areas for future consideration, once all the areas identified within the BMTP have been addressed.

Legislation governing all Residents' Parking Schemes is currently being finalised with the Departmental Solicitor's Office (DSO) and I can confirm that publication of Notices for the first batch of residents parking schemes, which are concentrated in Antrim, Londonderry and within Belfast, is currently scheduled for autumn 2014, with the formal consultation stage following as soon as possible thereafter. Subsequently, scheme implementation will be dependent upon the outcome of the consultation process, particularly with regard to whether any objections are received.

These initial schemes, once implemented, are to be monitored for a period to gauge their success or otherwise. If these initial schemes prove to be successful, further consideration will be given to the development of schemes outside Belfast, including in Holywood.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the total (i) number; and (ii) value of compensation claims awarded in (a) Northern Ireland; and (ii) North Down due to road defects, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 34822/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department does not hold details of the information in the format you have requested as the Northern Ireland Civil Service accounting system does not differentiate between defect types or accident locations.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the total (i) number; and (ii) value of compensation claims awarded in (a) Northern Ireland; and (ii) North Down due to footpath defects, in each of the last five years.

Mr Kennedy: I would refer the Member to the answer provided to his previous question AQW 34822/11-15.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister for Regional Development what progress has been made in establishing a rail link and terminal between the existing rail line and Belfast International Airport.

(AQW 34828/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Within the recently published Railway Investment Prioritisation Strategy, establishing a rail link to Belfast International Airport is one of the network extensions that will require a feasibility study.

A previous study by Translink found that annual passenger numbers through the airport would need to rise to around 10 million to make a rail link economically viable. As passenger throughput in 2013 was just over 4 million a detailed feasibility study would be expected as passenger numbers grow towards 10 million by 2030, as is predicted by the airport operator.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the estimated annual change in the number in parking concessions in use via the Blue Badge scheme, despite their legal owners being deceased between 2008 and 2013.

(AQW 34836/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I understand officials have clarified that the question relates to how many deceased people were still registered as having Blue Badges between 2008 and 2013.

On 31 December 2013 there were 114,107 Blue Badge Holders in Northern Ireland. Figures from National Fraud Initiative Reports indicate the numbers of Blue Badges that were registered to deceased persons were as follows:

- June 2010 - 5,142;
- June 2012 - 7,319; and
- June 2014 - 5,074.

All these cases have been flagged on the Department's Blue Badge database as "not for renewal – deceased". This means a renewal notice will not automatically be generated and the badge is effectively cancelled.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much his Department received in rental income from the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure for the lease of Portavoe Reservoir.

(AQW 34839/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: NI Water currently receives no rental income for the lease of Portavoe Reservoir. In agreement with the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure, NI Water has forgone rental income in return for general maintenance and upkeep of the site.

Mr McMullan asked the Minister for Regional Development whether his Department will complete an investigation of all sewerage works in the Seacourt Estate in Larne, given the current problems facing residents in the area.

(AQW 34946/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Northern Ireland Water (NIW) carried out an assessment of sewer related complaints within the Seacourt Estate in Larne on 1 July 2014. No significant problems were identified and the assessment indicated that the local infrastructure was working satisfactorily.

Investigations have established that a number of transient sewer blockages which occurred in the area have been caused by the disposal of inappropriate materials within the sewerage system. NIW intends to carry out a 'bag it and bin it' leaflet drop to all residents within the Seacourt Estate in the near future in an effort to educate and change customer behaviour to reduce any potential future blockages.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the action he has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to his Department.

(AQW 35064/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: A public petition submitted by Mr Conall McDevitt, then MLA for South Belfast, relating to a car parking scheme in College Park Avenue, Belfast was tabled on 7 February 2012 and laid in the Assembly on 13 February 2012.

I met on site with Mr McDevitt and a number of local residents on 13 June 2012, when the issue was discussed. Local residents were seeking the establishment of a Residents' Parking Scheme in a portion of College Park Avenue and I instructed officials to engage with them in order to develop a scheme for their area.

A series of discussions and meetings between officials and the Residents' Association subsequently took place to establish the type and extent of the scheme to be considered, and its residential, commercial and social composition. An outline scheme design was completed and agreed with the Association, following which an informal consultation exercise was carried out in November 2013 along the streets directly affected, in order to gauge the overall level of local support for the proposals. The results of that consultation indicated there was a sufficient level of support to proceed to the legislative stage when the proposal would be brought to the attention of the wider public.

As there are presently no residents' parking schemes in Northern Ireland, Departmental Solicitor's Office (DSO) has only recently finalised the related draft legislation and I hope to place the notices for the Department's first tranche of residents' parking schemes, including the Rugby Road/College Park Avenue area, within the next few months.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Regional Development, following the announcement that the headquarters of the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development is relocating to Ballykelly, to detail the discussions that he has held with the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development regarding the relocation.

(AQW 35084/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I attended a meeting on 21 January 2014 with the DARD Minister. It was suggested that the three Departments involved (DARD/OFMDFM/DRD) would meet again if a Masterplan for Ballykelly is available. Transport requirements would have to be justified in terms of an Economic Appraisal and the required funding would need to be considered by the Departments responsible for the site.

Department for Social Development

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the cost of people living in the Republic of Ireland claiming (i) Employment Support Allowance; (ii) Jobseekers Allowance; (iii) Disability Living Allowance; and (iv) other benefits facilitated by his Department, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 34034/11-15)

Mr McCausland (The Minister for Social Development): The majority of social security benefits facilitated by the Department for Social Development and paid to people living in the Republic of Ireland are processed by the International Pension Centre located within the Department for Work and Pensions in Great Britain. These benefits include, Contributory Employment and Support Allowance, State Retirement Pension, Bereavement Benefit and Winter Fuel Payments. The information systems used by the International Pension Centre to administer these benefits cannot provide the costs specifically relating to the number of people receiving benefit and now residing in the Republic of Ireland.

A small number of benefits are paid outside the International Pension Centre arrangements. This includes certain disability benefits and Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit. The Disability Living Allowance (Care Component), Attendance Allowance and Carers Allowance are paid through the Department for Work and Pensions legacy benefit systems. These systems are used by the Department for Social Development to process social security benefits. These systems cannot disaggregate the benefit costs specifically relating to claimants residing in the Republic of Ireland.

The Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit payments are managed and paid clerically by the Department for Social Development. The benefit costs to claimants residing in the Republic of Ireland for the last three financial years are stated in the table below:

Costs per financial year	2011-12 £000	2012-13 £000	2013-14 £000	Total £000
Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit	177	182	203	562

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development how many owner occupiers, with a portfolio of multiple tenanted properties, benefited under the Warm Homes Scheme; and at what cost to the public purse.

(AQW 34536/11-15)

Mr McCausland: There is no record of any owner occupier, with a portfolio of tenanted properties, benefitting under the Warm Homes Scheme.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development how many occupied Housing Executive homes have paramilitary murals painted on them, broken down by paramilitary grouping.

(AQW 34772/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information is not available in the format requested as the Housing Executive advises that it does not record the types of murals painted on their properties, or whether properties with murals painted on them are occupied.

They do advise however, that 204 paramilitary murals are painted on their properties.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development how many Housing Executive property offices, and all other property owned, occupied or rented by his Department have outside walls painted with paramilitary murals, broken down by paramilitary grouping.

(AQW 34773/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has advised that none of their offices have any outside walls painted with paramilitary murals. My Department owns one property that has a mural painted on the gable wall. While this is primarily a World War 1 memorial it includes Ulster Volunteer Force (UVF) and Young Citizen Volunteers (YCV) emblems.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development how many social housing properties, over which his Department has responsibility, either by way of grants provided for the property, or by housing association, have Paramilitary murals painted on their outside walls broken down by paramilitary groupings.

(AQW 34774/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information is not available in the format requested in relation to Housing Executive properties as the Housing Executive does not collate information on the particular paramilitary groupings associated with murals on their properties. The Housing Executive has advised there are 204 properties with paramilitary murals.

In relation to Housing Associations they have advised as follows: -

- four Housing Association properties with paramilitary murals: -
 - 2: dissident republican
 - 1: republican (Housing Association is unsure which organisation)
 - 1: UVF (as far as the Housing Association is aware)

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Social Development, in relation to Employment and Support Allowance applications, whether resubmissions of GP or medical letters, which were presented in previous successful applications, relating to patient's health conditions and confirming significant risk to health will be accepted in instances where applicants are required to complete follow-up ESA50 forms, particularly in instances where the previous assessment was recently completed.

(AQW 34863/11-15)

Mr McCausland: As it is accepted that medical conditions can worsen over time or improve with treatment, claimants initially placed in the Work Related Activity Group or Support Group are subject to periodic re-referrals in order to ensure that they are receiving the correct amount of benefit and support.

A decision maker will consider all of the available medical evidence for a case, including any recent medical evidence resubmitted that is relevant to the claimant's current medical condition.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34196/11-15, whether the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland has a risk based approach in their policies and procedures, as set out on the Charity Commission for England and Wales website; (ii) if so, is this publicly available and given to those charities under investigation; and (iii) if not, why these charities are not given access to the policy.

(AQW 34916/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Commission has adopted a risk based approach within its policies and procedures, including, for example, undertaking risk assessments at each stage of an investigation into a charity. This approach allows the Commission to determine, based on the seriousness of the concern and the associated risk, the most effective approach to resolving the matter.

The Commission publishes a wide range of information on concerns about charities on its website, including thematic reports providing confidential case studies and lessons learned from concerns. This is aimed at providing charities with an understanding of the Commission's regulatory functions and its risk based approach to concerns as well as providing guidance on good governance of a charity.

The Commission does not publish its risk assessment as the Commission asserts that releasing the requested information would be likely to create a real and significant chance of prejudice to the proper discharge of the Commission's function under section 8(2)3 of the Charities Act (Northern Ireland) 2008.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development what policies and procedures the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland has for people with disabilities and other vulnerable adults in relation to their correspondence and interview techniques.

(AQW 34918/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Commission's published Integrated Equality Scheme and Action Plan 2012-2017, outlines the Commission's policies and procedures for people with disabilities and other vulnerable adults including in relation to correspondence and interviews. The Commission is committed to embedding equality and diversity within all aspects of its work.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development to list the names of the training courses that each member of Charity Commission for Northern Ireland's investigative team attended between January 2010 and June 2014; and to detail the cost of each course.

(AQW 34919/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information requested is outlined at the attached Annex.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the (i) cost; and (ii) human resource hours used, in the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland's defence of tribunal and court hearings (a) 2012; (b) 2013; and (c) 2014.

(AQW 34920/11-15)

Mr McCausland:

- (i) The cost of the Commission's defence of tribunal and court hearings is as follows:
- a. 1 January 2012 – 31 December 2012: £6,010.06;
 - b. 1 January 2013 – 31 December 2013: £26,218.50; and
 - c. 1 January 2014 – 30 June 2014: £29,426.45.

- (ii) In the absence of a human resource time recording system in the Commission, the requested information is not available.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34165/11-15, how the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland determines whether a statutory inquiry is justified; and to outline the criteria used.

(AQW 34964/11-15)

Mr McCausland: In line with the Charities Act (Northern Ireland) 2008, a number of criteria are used to determine whether a statutory inquiry is justified, including, but not limited to, the seriousness of the issues presented, the risk to governance within the charity and the risk to the charity's assets.

The Commission considers that the provision of further detail on these matters is inappropriate as such information would be likely to create a real and significant chance of prejudice to the proper discharge of its function under section 8(2)3 of the Charities Act (Northern Ireland) 2008.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34165/11-15, what consultation was undertaken by his Department or the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland (CCNI) in determining the criteria which CCNI would apply as part of its risk-based approach; and whether the determination of this approach was subject to any Equality Impact Assessment, or any assessment in respect of the impact on charities.

(AQW 34965/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Department for Social Development has not undertaken any consultations as these are operational matters for CCNI.

The Commission has consulted with a number of organisations in determining the criteria used, including the Charity Commission for England and Wales (CCEW) and the Office of the Scottish Charity Regulator (OSCR). A screening exercise to identify equality outcomes or impacts was built into the Commission's Integrated Equality Scheme and Action Plan, which was approved on 24 April 2013. This followed consultation with 93 umbrella groups and individuals. As a result, no need for an Equality Impact Assessment was identified. However, equality assurance is built into the investigation risk assessment process and continuous consideration is given to equality implications in each statutory inquiry.

Where an impact on charity beneficiaries is identified to include affected individuals, for example persons with a disability, this becomes a key consideration.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34195/11-15, why the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland does not advise charities of their right to appeal its decision to initiate a statutory inquiry, at the time that it informs them of the inquiry; and for his assessment of this practice.

(AQW 34968/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Charity Commission for Northern Ireland informs charities of the right to appeal its decision to initiate a statutory inquiry at the time of the initial notice of the opening of the inquiry.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34197/11-15, (i) whether the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland (CCNI) has advised charities not to spend funds on obtaining legal advice or an independent audit report to assist them in responding to, or answering allegations associated with, a statutory inquiry; (ii) on how many occasions has CCNI given such advice to charities; and (iii) to explain the rationale behind such advice.

(AQW 34971/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Charity Commission has not advised charities regarding spend on legal advice or audit reports to assist in responding to, or answering allegations associated with a statutory inquiry.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Social Development what grants are available for the installation of cavity wall insulation in privately owned houses.

(AQW 34989/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has advised that cavity wall insulation can be provided in privately owned houses through the Warm Homes Scheme, where an eligible occupier is in residence. Cavity wall insulation may also be provided within a discretionary Renovation Grant as part of an overall scheme of improvement and repair. However, discretionary Renovation Grants are only provided in exceptional circumstances where there is an imminent and significant risk to the health and safety of the occupants.

Ms Lo asked the Minister for Social Development what are the projected infrastructural investments for the South Belfast area masterplans, including Shaftesbury Square.

(AQW 34991/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My department is currently overseeing two strategic area plans for South Belfast – the Shaftesbury Square Development Framework and the South West Gateway Masterplan. Both projects will go out for public consultation in the autumn. With the Reform of Local Government and the extension of regeneration powers to local councils, Belfast City Council will decide on any future investment in infrastructure.

Ms Lo asked the Minister for Social Development for his assessment of the role of Belfast Area Partnerships, and the potential impact upon the Partnerships of the transfer of Urban Regeneration and Community Development responsibilities to local councils.

(AQW 34992/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Belfast Area Partnerships were established in the mid 1990s under the Making Belfast Work initiative to draw together the key stakeholders in the regeneration of the city. The Department recognises the contribution each Partnership has made to the regeneration of its own area, and when working collectively, to the regeneration of Belfast.

It is clear that the environment within which the Partnerships operate has changed fundamentally over recent years and the role of the Partnerships should reflect these changes. Among other things, the Reform of Local Government will result in my Department conferring powers on local councils to enable each Council to decide how best to take forward regeneration in their areas. As part of the work required to bring about this change my officials have engaged with Belfast City Council officials and the Area Partnerships on the Partnerships' future role in the delivery of regeneration functions. No conclusion has been reached in these discussions, although the BAPs have been involved in the communication of work to move urban regeneration and other funding programmes to the Council. Separately, I understand that Belfast City Council has worked with the Area Partnerships and other interested parties in the development of plans for the delivery of the Council's future community planning responsibility.

The Neighbourhood Renewal Programme, through which the Partnerships are currently funded, closes on 31 March 2015. Belfast City Council has agreed to consider continued support for the services that Area Partnerships provide and that process is now underway.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Social Development whether people who have been granted Employment Support Allowance under special circumstances, particularly those who won their case at appeal, are required to complete ESA50 forms and re-attend medicals on a regular basis; and if so, what is the minimum length of time between reassessments.

(AQW 35000/11-15)

Mr McCausland: All claimants of Employment and Support Allowance, whether or not exceptional circumstances apply, including those who were successful at appeal, are subject to reassessment of their work capability in order to ensure that they are receiving the correct amount of benefit and support.

During reassessment, all claimants are asked to complete an ESA50 medical questionnaire providing details of their medical condition. The need for a face to face medical assessment in each case is determined by an Atos Healthcare Professional on the basis of the information provided in the ESA50 and supplied by the claimant.

The length of time between assessments can range from three months to three years depending on the claimant's medical condition. In the majority of cases, Employment and Support Allowance claimants who have successfully appealed are not called for a re-assessment for 6 months following their appeals tribunal.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the departmental projects or funding schemes available to community organisations to help tackle low educational achievement.

(AQW 35003/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department does not have any direct funding schemes to help tackle low educational achievement. However, through its Neighbourhood Renewal Strategy, funding may be provided where a priority need for action is identified within local Neighbourhood Renewal Action Plans and where resources are available.

Currently my department supports a number of projects through its Neighbourhood Renewal Investment Fund which are designed to address low educational achievement. These range from Nurture Units in primary schools, After School Homework Clubs, Literacy and Numeracy programmes to Education Mentoring programmes.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister for Social Development for his assessment of the processing delays affecting Northern Ireland Housing Executive tenants who have simultaneously applied for a Disabled Facilities Grant and a Renovation Grant; and what steps he is taking to ensure that both grant applications proceed smoothly.

(AQW 35037/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Disabled Facilities Grants are initiated by an Occupational Therapist who makes recommendations for adaptations to enable a person with disability to remain comfortably in their own home. However, during the technical inspection the Grants Officer may identify exceptional circumstances, which may result in the awarding of a Renovation Grant. While Disabled Facilities Grants are mandatory, Renovation Grants are discretionary and therefore must be referred to the Exceptional Circumstances Committee (ECC) before an application can be accepted. If the decision of the Exceptional Circumstances Committee is to proceed, both applications are normally processed by the local Grants Office at the same time and approvals to start work issued together to minimise disruption to the occupants when having the work carried out. This is appropriate as the adaptations work may be reliant on the renovation work being carried out first.

At present, the Housing Executive is approving 99% of completed grant applications within the six month timespan contained in the 2003 Housing Order and my Department continues to monitor the performance of the Housing Executive with regard to the processing of grant applications.

In recent years the Housing Executive has introduced a number of measures to streamline grants procedures, such as the initiating the Test of Resources process at an earlier stage in the grant application. My Department and Housing Executive continue to work together to identify areas of improvement in the grants process in order to enhance the grant applicants experience and minimise delays. However, the grants scheme must be operated within the provisions of the 2003 Housing Order.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the action he has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to his Department.

(AQW 35065/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Two public petitions have been presented to the Assembly and forwarded to my Department: a petition calling for the planned closure of the Crossmaglen Community Benefit Office to be stopped was presented on 9 April 2013, and a petition calling for the erection of the Factory Girls Sculpture in Londonderry was presented on 17 June 2013.

Prior to the tabling of the petition on the closure of Crossmaglen Community Benefit Office, the Chief Executive of the Social Security Agency had met with local elected representatives to discuss the planned closure and the alternative arrangements that were to be implemented. During this meeting, the Chief Executive agreed to review this arrangement and as a result the closure of the office was postponed until 31 May 2013 to allow a new Freephone telephony service, which was being introduced for the Newry area on 8 April 2013, time to bed in. Following the successful introduction of the new telephony service from 8 April 2013, the Community Benefit Office closed on 31 May 2013 and face to face services relocated to the Jobs and Benefits Office in Newry.

Following the petition on the Factory Girls sculpture in Londonderry, my Department continued to work with the artist and the City Council of Londonderry to move the project forward. My Department subsequently provided funding to allow the designs for the artwork and surrounding environmental works to be worked up and a planning application to be submitted.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34458/11-15, to detail the nature of each change. (AQW 35066/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The five amendments made to the Work Capability Assessment form made in March 2011, June 2011, January 2013, April 2013 and April 2014 are detailed below:

March 2011

The Activity heading "Walking and using steps" was amended to read "Moving around and using steps" and the following Descriptor was added "Can you move at least 50 metres (about 54 yards) before you need to stop?"

Under the Activity heading "Standing and sitting" the Descriptors were amended to read "Can you move from one chair to another right next to it without help from someone else?" and "Can you stay in one place, either standing or sitting, for at least an hour without help from another person?"

In the Activity section "Bending and kneeling" was removed.

Under the Activity "Reaching" the Descriptor was amended to read "Can you lift one of your arms above your head to reach for something?"

The Activity heading "Picking up and moving things on the same level" was amended to read "Picking up and moving things." The Descriptor "Can you pick up and move a large, light object like an empty cardboard box?" was added.

June 2011

Under the Activity heading "Getting around safely" the Descriptor was amended to read "Can you see to cross the road on your own?"

January 2013

Under the Physical functions and Mental, cognitive and intellectual functions a statement was added reading "To answer Yes to any of the following questions, you must be able to do the activity safely, to an acceptable standard, as often as you need to and in a reasonable length of time."

Under the Activity "Moving around and using steps" the Descriptor was amended to read "How far can you move safely and repeatedly on ground level without needing help?" and Options provided.

Under the Activity "Standing and sitting" the Descriptor was amended to read "How long can you stay in one place, either standing, sitting, or a combination of the two, without help from another person, without pain or exhaustion?"

Under the Activity "Communicating with people" the Descriptor was amended to read "Can you communicate a simple message to other people such as the presence of something dangerous?"

Under the Activity "Other people communicating with you" the following

Descriptors were added "Can you understand simple messages from other people by hearing or lip reading without the help of another person?" and "Can you understand simple messages from other people by reading large size print or using braille?"

Under the Activity "Controlling your bowels and bladder and using a collecting device" the Descriptor was amended to read "Do you have to wash or change your clothes because of difficulty controlling your bladder, bowels or collecting device?"

Under the Activity "Awareness of hazard or danger" an additional Descriptor was added "Please tick this box if you can stay safe when doing everyday tasks such as boiling water or using sharp objects."

Under the Activity "Coping with changes" - additional examples were included to assist with completion.

Under the Activity "Going out" the Descriptors were amended to read "Can you leave home and go out to places you know?" and "Can you leave home and go to places you don't know?"

Under the Activity "Coping with social situations" the Descriptor was amended to read "Please tick this box if you can cope with social situations without feeling too anxious or scared?"

A new Activity was added "Eating and drinking."

An additional page/section was added covering cancer treatment – "Cancer treatment – for completion by a healthcare professional."

April 2013

Under the Activity "Controlling your bowel and bladder and using a collecting devise" the Descriptor was expanded to include "tell us if you experience problems if you cannot reach a toilet quickly."

April 2014

In the section entitled "Cancer treatment - for completion by a healthcare professional" the following Explanatory note was added "This may include a GP, hospital doctor or clinical nurse who is aware of your condition."

Mr Brady asked the Minister for Social Development, given that over 100 people are currently awaiting receipt of new mobility cars, particularly Volkswagen Caddy Life models, to explain the reasons for the delay in the delivery of these vehicles.
(AQW 35105/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My department has no statutory or administrative role in the operation of the Motability Scheme and I am unable to provide the information requested. The Motability Scheme is administered by the independent charity Motability whose Chief Patron is Her Majesty the Queen. Information on administrative matters relating to the scheme can be obtained from Motability by writing to: Declan O'Mahony, Director, Motability, Warwick House, Roydon Road, Harlow, Essex, CM19 5PX.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development what actions his Department's Voluntary and Community Unit is taking to ensure that the Volunteering Strategy and its agreed objectives are being adopted by each Executive Department.
(AQW 35124/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Northern Ireland's first ever Volunteering Strategy, endorsed by the NI Executive in June 2011, was welcomed by my Ministerial colleagues and received strong support. The Volunteering Strategy is accompanied by an Action Plan that sets out a programme of work that is currently underway to achieve the Strategy objectives. A Volunteering Strategy Steering Group has been established with representation from volunteering stakeholders, both from government and non government, to monitor and report on the implementation of the Strategy.

A mid-term evaluation of the Volunteering Strategy is planned to take place in this financial year. The outcome of this evaluation will be key to any changes to delivery post 2015 and I will be updating the NI Executive as appropriate, to ensure its continued commitment and the creation of a strong policy context which will provide the conditions to enable volunteering to flourish and ensure its impact on life in Northern Ireland is maximised.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development what actions his Department has taken to ensure that, in line with the Volunteering Strategy, the Department of the Environment protects volunteer drivers in its review of bus operator licensing.
(AQW 35125/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department is currently reviewing the draft guidance for new license requirements for buses and minibuses received from the Minister for the Environment, Mark Durkan, MLA . This review will consider any impact of the guidance on the successful delivery of the Volunteering Strategy.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development what actions his Department has taken, in line with the Volunteering Strategy, to mitigate financial difficulties volunteer drivers may face in paying for full D1 or D licenses, should the Department of the Environment require community organisations to adopt full bus operator licensing.
(AQW 35126/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department is currently reviewing the draft guidance for new license requirements for buses and minibuses received from the Minister for the Environment, Mark Durkan, MLA. This review will consider any impact of the guidance on the successful delivery of the Volunteering Strategy.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Social Development how much has been paid out in public liability claims against the Northern Ireland Housing Executive in each of the last five years, broken down by district.

(AQW 35127/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has provided the information as detailed in the attached table.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Social Development how long respective Northern Ireland Housing Executive departments take to process a public liability claim.

(AQW 35128/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive advises that on average it takes up to six months to process a public liability claim. However, this timescale is for indicative purposes only and depends on the complexity of the claim. For example, to investigate the claim thoroughly they may have to check: -

- whether or not a contractor or other organisation is involved and obtain reports;
- whether or not the accident location is adopted for maintenance by the DRD or is the responsibility of another party.

The Housing Executive further advises that there are no specific statistics readily available on the length of time taken to process public liability claims and should legal proceedings be issued, any figures would be distorted by the length of time taken for the legal process to run its course.

Mr F McCann asked the Minister for Social Development how many people since 2011 have lost their entitlement to Incapacity Benefit following a work capability assessment.

(AQW 35137/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The process for reassessing Incapacity Benefit claims for conversion to Employment and Support Allowance involves an Atos Healthcare Professional making a recommendation on a claimant's fitness for work and, on receipt of this information, a Social Security Decision Maker will then consider the opinion of the Healthcare Professional, along with all available evidence, to make a decision on whether the claimant has limited capability for work or for work related activity and is eligible for benefit.

From June 2011 to March 2014, 18,540 Incapacity Benefit claimants were disallowed on reassessment following a Work Capability Assessment.

Statistical information is only available from June 2011, the start of the contract with Atos Healthcare.

The information provided is an Official Statistic. The Production and dissemination of all such Statistics is governed by the Principles and Protocols of the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. This is enforced by UK Statistics Authority.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 32785/11-15, whether his Department intends to recover funding from Clanmill Housing for projects that have not acquired planning permission.

(AQW 35163/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive assesses and approves each individual scheme in the social housing programme, determines the level of grant payable and pays out that grant in three separate tranches. No funding is allocated or paid until each scheme is approved. A first tranche is paid for land acquisition, a second tranche is paid when planning permission has been secured and construction starts and a third tranche is paid on scheme completion.

In the event that grant is paid for land acquisition and planning permission cannot be achieved for whatever reason, the Housing Executive would initiate recovery procedures. However, at this point all of Clanmill's planning applications are proceeding as normal, so there is no need to consider recovery.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 32786/11-15, on how many sites will construction commence during this financial year.

(AQW 35164/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Plans are for housing associations to start a total of 2,000 new social homes during 2014/15. The information provided in AQW 32786/11-15 shows that Clanmill is programmed to start construction work on 28 sites with 629 new homes during the period. However, as also previously stated, the Clanmill programme is a gross programme and some schemes can be lost in year or slip to later years for a variety of reasons, such as delays in securing planning or inability to acquire a site.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development what proportion of bank loans secured by Clanmill Housing to construct 1,600 houses has been drawn down.

(AQW 35165/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department does not hold information about the private finance arrangements between housing associations and financial institutions. In April Clanmil announced that some £100m of the £120m bank loans agreed with Barclays and Danske would be invested in building 1,600 new social homes, with the remainder used to finance existing loan facilities.

Northern Ireland Assembly Commission

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission how much the Speaker has spent on hospitality in each financial year since April 2007.

(AQW 34490/11-15)

Mrs Cochrane (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The total amounts spent on hospitality by the Speaker's Office in each of the financial years since 2007 are detailed below:

Year	Amount
2007/08	£18,039
2008/09	£19,067
2009/10	£17,777
2010/11	£17,027
2011/12	£10,138
2012/13	£16,474
	£110,630

Expenditure on hospitality by the Speaker's Office is incurred as part of the Speaker's representational role on behalf of the Assembly and includes hospitality for visiting parliamentary delegations, diplomats and other dignitaries, the Speaker's annual events themed for community and voluntary causes and a number of official Assembly events hosted by the Speaker.

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission how much the Assembly has spent on hospitality in each financial year since April 2007.

(AQW 34492/11-15)

Mrs Cochrane (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The total amounts spent on hospitality by the Assembly in each of the financial years since 2007 are detailed below:

Year	Amount
2007/08	£36,682
2008/09	£37,455
2009/10	£60,232
2010/11	£49,260
2011/12	£40,043
2012/13	£44,154
2013/14	£43,795
	£311,622

Hospitality expenditure covers a wide range of activities including functions managed by the Speaker's Office, Committee functions and events and hospitality extended to visiting Parliamentarians and officials.

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission to detail the (i) cost; and (ii) quantity of the mints provided in the Assembly chamber in each financial year since April 2009.

(AQW 34498/11-15)

Mr P Ramsey (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): From April 2009 to March 2014, 2,530 rolls of mints have been provided in the Assembly Chamber at a total cost of £1,386.55. The annual consumption per financial year is illustrated in the table below:

Period	Quantity (rolls)	Cost
Apr 09 - Mar 10	524	£288.20
Apr 10 - Mar 11	445	£244.75
Apr 11 - Mar 12	493	£271.15
Apr 12 - Mar 13	418	£224.95
Apr 13 - Mar 14	650	£357.50
Total Consumption	2,530	£1,386.55

Department of Agriculture and Rural Development

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the meetings her Department have been involved in regarding animal cruelty, in 2014.

(AQW 35182/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill (The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development): The welfare of animals here is protected by the Welfare of Animals Act 2011. It contains a range of offences including those relating to activities which may cause an animal to suffer unnecessarily. However, it does not contain an offence specifically referred to as "animal cruelty".

The meetings involving my Department with external organisations regarding animal welfare from 1 January 2014 until 4th July 2014 are detailed in the table below. Meetings between my Department's Veterinary Service and individual farmers are not included.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development, pursuant to AQW 34876/11-15, given that she confirmed that her Department changed its original decision in 54 of the 216 Stage 2 Reviews and that a refund may result, to detail the total number of refunds provided.

(AQW 35186/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Additional payments were issued by the Department to farm businesses in 44 of the 54 cases cited in AQW 34876/11-15.

Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the action she has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to her Department.

(AQW 34852/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure): Since May 2011 four public petitions have been presented to the Assembly and forwarded to my Department.

I have listed at Annex A the key actions taken by my Department as a result of these public petitions.

Annex A

- (i) Reduction in opening hours of Community Libraries (presented to the Assembly on 28 November 2011 by Dominic Bradley MLA); and
- (ii) Reduction in opening hours of the Bronte Library in Rathfriland (presented to the Assembly on 29 November 2011 by John McCallister MLA):
 - Both of the above petitions were laid in the Assembly in November 2011 as a result of Libraries NI public consultation on a proposed reduction in library opening hours.
 - Following Libraries NI's public consultation into its review of Library Opening Hours, I shared the views of the many thousands of people who responded to the public consultation and as a result was pleased to be able to provide £2.39m of additional funding in order to minimise the impact of the reduction in library opening hours.
 - As a consequence of this additional funding the opening hours for the Bronte Library in Rathfriland were reduced by 2 hours and not 9 hours as had been previously proposed.
- (iii) The Exploitation of Indigenous Fish Species, including salmon, where stocks are no longer sustainable (presented to the Assembly on 13 February 2012 by Robin Swann MLA):
 - The public petition on the exploitation of indigenous fish species, including salmon, was laid at a time when my Department was developing a salmon consultation policy and the petition informed that process. Subsequently my Department prohibited the commercial netting of wild Atlantic salmon by means of regulation.
- (iv) Development of a Strategic Plan for Athletics as a Priority Sport (presented to the Assembly on 13 November 2012 by Stephen Agnew MLA):
 - On 2 May 2013, a letter issued to Mr Stephen Agnew advising that DCAL officials, along with Sport NI, would arrange a meeting with the Chairman of Athletics NI, the Governing Body for athletics in the north of Ireland, to discuss the issues raised in the petition and a possible way forward.
 - On 10 May 2013, officials from DCAL and Sport NI met with representatives of Athletics NI, the Governing Body for Athletics in the north of Ireland, to hear about its plans. Sport NI has been working with Athletics NI with regard to identifying future facility needs.

- On 23 April 2014, Sport NI met with Athletics NI to provide information in relation to a new capital investment programme which will be launched later this year. This programme will prioritise investments for strategically identified high performance capital projects. Athletics NI may be eligible to compete for this funding.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the outreach activities planned by Libraries NI over the next twelve months for areas of low educational attainment in North Down.

(AQW 34877/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Libraries NI is currently developing proposals to extend its existing outreach activities in areas of social need, including low educational attainment, within the North Down area. These proposals are intended to supplement Libraries NI activities already taking place in rural parts of North Down, Holywood and Bangor including the Kilcooley and Rathgill estates. Further activities currently being considered include:-

- Events to support the Cinemagic Festival in Bangor Carnegie Library in September 2014;
- Partnership programmes with the Creative Learning Centres and other arts/creativity organisations to help children with little or no access to PCs or IMacs;
- Family learning sessions with parents and children; and
- A Teenage Health Fair in Bangor Carnegie Library in February 2015 to promote health and well being.

In addition to these activities, I met with the Minister of Education, John O'Dowd MLA, along with Libraries NI on 26th June 2014 to discuss the scope for closer partnership working between public libraries and the Department of Education (DE). As a result of that meeting, it was agreed that Libraries NI and DE, with assistance from DCAL, would jointly develop an Action Plan and Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) on how they would work together to promote the value of education across all areas of the North of Ireland including North Down. Both the Action Plan and the MOU are expected to be agreed later this year and I have asked that they be drawn up with a particular focus on tackling disadvantage including educational disadvantage.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the funding that her Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

Ms Ní Chuilín: The total amount of funding invested in the North Belfast constituency from May 2011 until May 2014 is summarised in the table below:

YEAR	Funding (£)
2011-12 (from 1 May)	7,104,068

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure, pursuant to AQW 34373/11-15, what training will be provided for Libraries NI staff with regards to Irish language material, literature and heritage.

(AQW 34886/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Librarians working in local libraries already receive training with regards to Irish literature and heritage material from specialist heritage staff employed by Libraries NI. Two Libraries NI employees are also currently undertaking accredited training courses, one in Irish translation and one in Irish language at Queen's University Belfast (QUB) and the University of Ulster at Magee respectively. Libraries NI is funding this training and anticipates that these staff will, once they have completed their accreditation, be providing service wide support to staff on Irish language, literature and heritage material.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what support she has provided to enhance and assist participation in leisure pursuits on Lough Neagh, in each of the last three years.
(AQW 34895/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Under the Water Order (NI) 1999 my Department has discretionary powers to develop the recreation and navigation potential of Inland Waterways, at present this relates to its 21 water recreation sites both owned and leased by the Department including the abandoned Lagan Navigation.

My Department's current statutory remit on Lough Neagh is restricted to dredging the channels at the entrance to the Sixmilewater river and, additionally, as a public service, maintaining 48 hazard markers around the Lough Neagh shoreline on a non-statutory basis to assist safe navigation. Costs for major repairs to the markers and ongoing maintenance over the past 3 years are approximately £44k.

Since 2012 my Department has funded the Lough Neagh Partnership £25k per annum in support of their role to co-ordinate heritage, recreational, cultural tourism, navigational issues and development opportunities on Lough Neagh. The Partnership is also funded by seven local authorities around the Lough and the Northern Ireland Environment Agency support the work of an Environment Officer.

As part of its funding provision my Department tasked the Partnership to commission a number of reports on issues relating to Lough Neagh. These reports are presently with the Department for consideration and include:

- Lough Neagh Governance and Management Options Appraisal
- Dredging Study on the mouths of the Blackwater and Upper Bann Rivers and
- Lough Neagh Culture Heritage Audit and Strategic Action Plan.

In 2013 Waterways Ireland on behalf of the Department, carried out a review of the current navigation marker system on Lough Neagh and a study is currently underway by Outdoor Recreation NI to assess the current and potential outdoor recreation facilities and opportunities around Lough Neagh. This study will be completed shortly.

My Department also funded a number of projects including a Fit Gym and additional seating at the Antrim Forum along the Sixmilewater at the Lough Shore, under the Water Recreation Grant Programme.

DCAL was represented on the Inter Departmental Working Group (IDWG) for Lough Neagh, chaired by DARD to look at ownership of the Lough and is actively involved in the reconvened Group presently reviewing the management arrangements for the Lough and its future development.

My Department has also provided grant funding over the last four years through Sport Northern Ireland to the following organisations who promote a variety of leisure pursuits throughout the North of Ireland including Lough Neagh:

- Funding to Outdoor Recreation NI to promote access to and participation in Outdoor Recreation
- Funding to the Canoe Association for NI (CANI) to develop and promote canoe sport which regularly takes place on Lough Neagh
- Funding to the Royal Yachting Association NI (RYANI) to develop and promote sailing which regularly takes place on Lough Neagh
- £750 grant to each outdoor recreation provider who chooses to go through the Adventure Mark quality accreditation process. This is open to providers in the Lough Neagh area and those who use the Lough as an activity venue. Team Build Ireland is an Adventuremark based in the Lough Neagh

In relation to support to enhance and assist participation in leisure pursuits on Lough Neagh you may be assured that my Department has worked closely with the existing Councils around the Lough, and will continue to work with the newly formed shadow councils in relation to its statutory and discretionary remit.

We will also proactively work with those who are committed to protecting users of the Lough in their commercial and recreational pursuits, including members of the Lough Neagh Safety and Navigation Working Group, and Lough Neagh Rescue.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the funding available to organisations wishing to commemorate the First World War.
(AQW 34922/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: An extensive range of events, exhibitions and initiatives aimed at commemorating the First World War and the wider Decade of Centenaries have been and will continue to be funded by DCAL and its ALBs. These include learning resources and perspectives from areas such as the arts, museums, libraries and public records and archives.

These activities provide opportunities and resources for organisations, communities and individuals to engage with and utilise to inform, plan and enhance delivery of inclusive approaches and events remembering this period.

The Community Festival Fund aims to improve the quality and capacity of community festivals. The Department allocates approximately £450,000 annually to local councils who match and administer the fund. Events remembering the past can be supported if in keeping with the Fund's guidelines and those of individual councils.

Culture and arts can play a crucial role in discovering and sharing the stories of significant historical events. However remembering the past is also relevant to other Departments. Links to tourism, economic development, learning and education and social inclusion all demonstrate such relevance. I would be supportive of additional support for the delivery of community events and activities to commemorate the Decade of Centenaries. This would be dependent on additional funding being agreed by the Executive.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail (i) the estimated number of fish killed, including the type of fish, at Brantry Lough during the incident reported on 30 June 2014; (ii) the estimated cost to replenish the fish stock; and (iii) the length of time it will take to restore the Lough.

(AQW 35054/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín:

- (i) In the recent fish kill at Brantry Lough, 1,100 brown trout were collected by my inland fisheries staff. These fish were stocked by my Department. It is estimated that around 500 indigenous adult perch and 1,500 juvenile perch also died.
- (ii) The cost of replacing the stocked brown trout has yet to be determined.
- (iii) As a precaution, there will be no further stocking of the Public Angling Estate fisheries until water temperatures drop. My staff will continue to monitor water temperature and oxygen levels in Brantry Lough and the restocking of brown trout will resume when these are at safe levels. The indigenous perch stocks should recover naturally over time.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that her Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35106/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: There are no ongoing investigations in relation to any Public Private Partnership associated with the Department.

Department of Education

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education to detail the action he has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to his Department.

(AQW 34850/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): I wish to inform the Member that I take very seriously all issues raised by any public petition which have been forwarded to the Department of Education (DE).

I can confirm that DE responded to each petition and any issues raised were carefully considered. Details of the 12 petitions that have been forwarded to my Department and actions taken are contained in the table below.

Petition	Action
Future of Bangor Central Integrated Primary School	No further action required. I replied to Steven Agnew MLA outlined the position regarding any potential project and purchase of land
Save Drumcree College	No further action required. I replied to Dolores Kelly MLA advised that it is CCMS responsibility, in the first instance, to manage provision in the maintained schools estate and bring forward proposals to DE.
Development Proposal Woodlands Speech and Language Centre	Petition presented was considered alongside other submissions and informed my consideration of the Development Proposal (DP) relating to Woodlands which were published in January 2013.
Development Proposal Envagh/St Francis of Assissi/ Newtownstewart Primary Schools	I replied to Pat Ramsay MLA explaining the DP process. Subsequent DP's for Envagh and St Francis of Assissi were published in May 2014. No DP has been submitted for Newtownstewart.
Support and Retention of The Dickson Plan	No further action required. I replied to Stephen Moutray MLA referencing the decision of SELB to support proposals for change to the Dickson Plan and explained the DP process
Closure of Immaculate Conception College, Derry	I replied to Pat Ramsay MLA explaining the Statutory two month objection period ended and the petition would form part of the submission advice to me.
Crumlin Supports Shared Education	No further action required by Department. I replied to Danny Kinahan MLA explained that it is the responsibility of the managing authorities to plan provision.
Opposition to Development Proposal for Collegiate Grammar School Enniskillen	I replied to Arlene Foster explaining the latest position regarding Collegiate Grammar School and that the petition will form part of the submission advice to me.
Proposed Closure of Artillery Youth Centre	No further action was taken by DE as my reply to Alban Maginness MLA explained that issues regarding Artillery Youth Resource Centre's premises are a matter for the Belfast Education and Library Board.
New Build for Parkhall Integrated College	No further action required. Parkhall was included in my announcement of new schools in January 2013.
Accommodation Issues between Hazelwood Integrated College and the Belfast Education and Library Board	No further action required as following meetings between both parties the matter has been brought to a satisfactory conclusion.
Cross Border Area Planning Community Post-Primary Education in the North and West Fermanagh	DE and DES officials have been tasked by their respective Ministers to continue to engage at senior level regarding cross-border school provision.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Education to detail the capital funding provided to each school in the Dickson Plan Catchment Area in each of the last five years broken down by (i) sector; and (ii) school.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Education to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34882/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The funding (expenditure) that my Department, and its ALBs have invested in North Belfast over the course of the last three financial years, 2011-12 to 2013-14, is detailed in the following table:

	2011-12 £m	2012-13 £m	2013-14 £m	Total £m
Recurrent	115.1	115.8	121.2	352.1
Capital	8.8	8.2	9.0	26.0
Total	123.9	124.0	130.2	378.1

Notes:

- 1 As funding(expenditure) is recorded in financial years (April to March) the information requested has been provided on this basis.
- 2 Recurrent includes e.g schools delegated budgets, services to schools funded by ELBs, youth funding.
- 3 This information has been compiled utilising the NISRA central postcode directory method to identify the North Belfast constituency.
- 4 All 2013-14 figures are provisional until year end accounts have been finalised.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Education whether the proposed re-alignment of the school estate in Holywood is causing a delay in individual schools receiving capital for a new school building.

(AQW 34897/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: In December 2013 the South Eastern Education & Library Board (SEELB) identified schools in the Holywood schools' estate to be considered for major capital investment.

While there are interrelated issues with these schools in terms of location of any new build they were considered independently under 'The Major Works Projects Protocol for Selection of Projects to Proceed in Planning' dated June 2014. The protocol subjected the potential projects to 'Gateway' checks for sustainability and area planning issues prior to the remaining projects being prioritised.

Ongoing sustainability issues with Priory College meant that it did not pass the 'Gateway' and hence could not be included in my 24 June announcement.

Holywood Primary School was scored under the protocol however it did not attract sufficient priority to be included in my announced list of schools due to budget constraints.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education to detail the departmental projects or funding schemes available to community organisations to help tackle low educational achievement.

(AQW 35005/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: In recognition of the importance of influences on pupil outcomes outside school I am providing funding to support programmes aimed at involving local communities in addressing educational underachievement.

I have allocated £2 million pounds to the Community Education Initiatives Programme in both the 2013/2014 and 2014/2015 financial years. This will promote partnership working between community and voluntary organisations and schools to provide educationally focused programmes in communities with particular concentrations of educational disadvantage. In the North Down area funding through this programme supports community-based work in the Whitehill and Kilcooley areas of Bangor and in Donaghadee.

The Department also provides funding to the West Belfast Partnership Board (WBPB) and the Greater Shankill Partnership Board (GSPB) to support the West Belfast Community Project. This aims of the Project include the provision of support for families with children in pre-school, primary school or post-primary school outside of normal school hours to address issues with attendance, attainment and engagement in education. Funding of £260,000 is being provided in 2014/2015.

The Extended Schools (ES) programme seeks to establish schools as the hub of the community and schools can use ES funding to engage the services of a wide range of voluntary/community organisations in delivering programmes which aim to address the learning and development needs of pupils, families and the wider community. In 2014/2015, over £12 million of ES funding has been made available to almost 500 eligible schools.

In the pre-school sector, the Department currently invests around £25 million pounds per annum in the Sure Start programme which is administered by the Health and Social Care Board. Thirty-nine Sure Start projects here provide services to over 34,000 children aged 0-4 and their families within at least the top 20% most disadvantaged wards with services being expanded to the top 25% most disadvantaged wards by April 2015.

The Department also currently provides funding to a mix of approximately 160 playgroups, early years centres and crèches through the DE Early Years Fund. Groups accessing the funding provide direct early years care and education to children in areas of low provision, disadvantaged areas or where the service is considered critical for children.

The Department funds the Toybox project which is administered by the Early Years Organisation and provides support to Traveller children and their parents before, during and after pre-school. Funding is approximately £360,000 for 2014/15 and is delivered to Traveller families across the north of Ireland in nine localities.

Through the Department's youth budget, Education and Library Boards and the Youth Council provide funding to a wide range of voluntary and community youth work organisations that run clubs and programmes for young people, particularly those in disadvantaged areas and those who are at risk of educational underachievement.

In addition, my Department works closely with the Department of Social Development in relation to education related neighbourhood renewal projects which target children in the most disadvantaged areas by linking school and community-based activities.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education what new initiatives his Department is pursuing to combat educational underachievement, particularly in disadvantaged communities or sections of the community with low attainment.
(AQW 35006/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I have redistributed school funding to target schools with high numbers of pupils from socially disadvantaged backgrounds under the common funding scheme and injected a further £10 million specifically targeting social deprivation into school budgets from April 2014.

Within schools, the Department is implementing a range of funded programmes to improve pupil outcomes in literacy and numeracy. These include the Delivering Social Change programme to employ additional teachers, a literacy and numeracy CPD KS2/3 Project, the Strategic Development Fund to Area Learning Communities and the Greater West Belfast Primary Schools Project.

I am also providing additional funding to support recently initiated programmes targeted at socially deprived communities. These include the Community Education Initiatives Programme and the Greater West Belfast Community Project.

I have invested an additional £9 million in youth work over the period 2012-13 to 2014-15. This is being used to increase access for young people to mainstream youth services in disadvantaged areas, with priority given to interface areas, and, through outreach and detached youth work.

As regards pre-school provision, the Sure Start programme is being expanded to the top 25% most disadvantaged wards here by April 2015. Expansion will facilitate greater involvement in the education, health and social development of children in disadvantaged areas.

In October 2013, 'Learning to Learn – A Framework for Early Years Education and Learning' was published. Key objectives for the Framework include providing equitable access to high quality early years education and learning services and identifying and helping address barriers to learning, and reduce the risk and impact of social exclusion and the need for later intervention. As a key action a review of the Sure Start Programme is underway, with input from DHSSPS. Following the review, the Department will develop potential options for the expansion of the Developmental Programme for 2-3 year olds.

I announced last year that free school meal entitlement would be extended from September 2014 so that the same eligibility criteria apply to primary and postprimary pupils. This means that from September 2014 postprimary pupils from lower income families will be supported with access to this benefit and the school uniform grant in the same way as primary pupils. An estimated additional 15,000 pupils will become eligible as a result.

Under the review of Special Educational Needs (SEN) and Inclusion, new pilots in SEN Early Years Capacity Building and in a Certificate of Competence in Educational Testing are ongoing. Both pilots aim to increase the capacity of staff in the participating settings to identify, assess and make provision for SEN children. The review also supports: a new cross-board Leadership and Management Capacity Building Programme, which focuses on the role of SEN Coordinators in schools to enable them to effectively manage arrangements for SEN pupils; and an innovative SEN Continuing Professional Development Literacy Project in Stranmillis and St Mary's University Colleges which promotes effective teaching of reading, writing and spelling to SEN pupils with literacy difficulties

These programmes complement existing policies and programmes which I am taking forward to address educational underachievement. However, there is also an important role to be played by our MLAs, local councillors and those with influence in the community in raising educational awareness and aspiration in socially deprived communities.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education how many school principal positions are currently filled by staff acting up to cover the position on a temporary basis.
(AQW 35007/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Employing Authorities for the controlled and maintained sectors report that there are 35 school principal positions currently filled by staff acting up to cover the position on a temporary basis. The Department does not hold this information for the Voluntary Grammar or Grant Maintained Integrated schools, as each school is an employer in their own right.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education how many school principals are currently absent from work on stress related sick leave.
(AQW 35008/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Employing Authorities for the controlled, maintained and integrated sectors report that there are 10.5 school principals currently absent from work on stress related sick leave. The Department does not hold the information requested for the Voluntary Grammar schools, as each school is an employer in their own right.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education how many school principal positions have become available in the last two financial years; and how many applications were received for these positions, broken down by (i) Education and Library Board area; (ii) primary and post-primary sectors; and (iii) controlled, integrated and maintained sectors.
(AQW 35009/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Each Employing Authority has provided the numbers of school principal positions which became available in the last two financial years and the numbers of applications received as detailed in the tables below. The Department does not hold this information for the Voluntary Grammar or Grant Maintained Integrated schools, as each school is an employer in their own right.

Mr Frew asked Minister of Education to list the schools in each constituency that were allocated funding for new builds in each of the last three years; and the funding allocated in each case.

(AQW 35138/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: In the last three years, I have made three statements to the Assembly announcing 56 new build major capital projects across the Schools' estate.

I have attached tables showing the constituency and associated costs for each of the projects announced in June 2012 and January 2013. I have provided details of the constituency only for those projects I announced in recent weeks. Work has yet to begin on these projects therefore the total costs estimate given is purely indicative at this time.

The above projects are at an earlier stage of the planning/design process as they have only been announced. As such a detailed description of the works to be undertaken, associated costs and timescales for completion have not yet been agreed. Cost are currently estimated to be in the region of £170-£180million.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 34841/11-15, what his Department is doing to ensure consistency, in terms of retentions for small works, across the Education and Library Boards.
(AQW 35162/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I refer to my previous answer for AQW 34841/11-15 which outlined the consistent approach taken by the Education and Library Boards (ELB's).

Public procurement guidance includes a Fair Payment Charter which is designed to encourage fair and transparent payment practices; this includes payments in respect of retention. ELB's confirm they consistently apply public procurement guidance and monitor payments made to contractors.

My Department seeks quarterly updates from each ELB in respect of their inclusion, use and monitoring of Fair Payment clauses in works contracts to ensure there is compliance with the Fair Payment Charter.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 6680/11-15, and in light of the schools capital works programme announcement for St Killian's College, Garron Tower on 24th June 2014, how his Department's disposal procedure will now be implemented regarding the sale and reinvestment of the proceeds of the former St Comgall's College site to contribute to the cost of the new build.
(AQW 35174/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The former St Comgall's College site in Larne is owned by the Trustees and, as such, disposal of the site is the Trustees' responsibility. However, as the school received Government grants over its lifetime, the Department is entitled to recover public funds, as provided for by legislation.

St Killian's College is the result of the amalgamation of St Comgall's College with St Aloysius High School and St MacNissi's College. As I announced on 24 June 2014 that a new build for St Killian's College is to be advanced in planning, there is an expectation that the value of the vacant premises will be clawed back by the Department. The Trustees will retain an equity share in the new building.

Should the St Comgall's site be disposed of before expenditure is incurred for the provision of the new build, then this will be taken into account in agreeing the grant recovery sum.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education what his Department is doing in conjunction with the Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister to ensure that successful nurture projects, such as the one at St Joseph's Primary School in Antrim, continue to be funded.
(AQW 35177/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The "Nurture Unit" Signature Project is one of six Signature Projects announced by the First Minister and Deputy First Minister (OFMdfM) in October 2012 and is being taken forward jointly by the Department of Education (DE) and the Department and Social Development. It is part of the Delivering Social Change Programme and involved the establishment of 20 new nurture units. In addition DE is also funding existing nurture units in 10 schools where funding had ceased or would be due to cease during the life of the Signature Project.

DE does not have a formal policy position on nurture provision but I have recently commissioned independent research and evaluation on the effectiveness and impacts of nurture provision, from all 30 units, to provide an evidence base for a policy decision on whether this intervention should continue to be supported in schools, and if so, how best to target this effectively, to ensure maximum impact for those children most in need of this form of support.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Education to detail the total capital investment in (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools in County Fermanagh in each of the last ten years, broken down by sector.

(AQW 35219/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Information is only readily available in the requested format for the last eight years.

The attached table provides details of capital spend in (i) primary and (ii) post primary schools in County Fermanagh broken down by sector.

Department for Employment and Learning

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the departmental projects or funding schemes available to organisations to help tackle low educational achievement in local communities.

(AQW 34995/11-15)

Dr Farry (The Minister for Employment and Learning): My Department is committed to tackling low educational achievement in a range of ways.

DEL has developed and implemented the Learner Access and Engagement Programme to widen access to learning opportunities for all individuals across Northern Ireland. This programme, which commenced in September 2013, allows further education colleges to contract with third party organisations for the provision of learner support. The learner support is directed at 'hard to reach' learners aged 16 and over who are economically inactive, disengaged from the labour market, and hold few or no qualifications; the aim is to encourage them to enrol on and complete FE courses.

Access to Success is my Department's regional strategy to widen participation in higher education among those groups which are currently under-represented, in particular students from disadvantaged backgrounds and students with disabilities and learning difficulties. It has a strong focus on the creation of a more accessible sector in which the people who are most able, but least likely to participate, are given every encouragement and support to apply to and benefit from higher education. The strategy sets out a programme, which includes work on the introduction of the 'Reach' programme; under this programme my Department will make funding available to the Higher Education Institutions on a competitive basis to support the expansion of the range of educational attainment-raising programmes in schools, colleges, the community and the workplace.

My Department provides a guaranteed training place on the 'Training for Success' programme to those who are unemployed and in the 16 & 17 year old age group. There are extended eligibility criteria for those aged under 22 with a disability, and under 24 for those young people who qualify under the Children (Leaving Care) Act (NI) (2002). The Programme is designed to enable young people to progress to higher level training, further education, or employment. It provides training to address personal and social development needs, occupational and employability skills, and, where necessary, Essential Skills of literacy, numeracy and information and communications technology.

The Employment Service Division within my Department provides a range of programmes that offer help to improve our customers' employability through work experience. This help is aimed at providing employment-related skills and qualifications and is provided through a network of 35 offices based in communities across Northern Ireland. In addition to offering help directly to customers, my offices also work with community-based groups and charitable organisations in an effort to make our services more accessible to customers.

The Collaboration and Innovation Fund is funded under the Executive's 'Pathways to Success' Strategy, designed to help young people aged 16 to 24 who are not in education, employment or training. The Fund is testing new approaches to address the general and specific employability barriers faced by the most vulnerable groups of young unemployed people, such as those who have drug or alcohol problems, a mental illness or physical disability, low educational achievement, or who have left care. Over £8.9 million has been allocated to 23 organisations from the community, voluntary and educational sectors to deliver project activity from December 2012 to March 2015.

Priority 1 of the Northern Ireland European Social Fund Programme 2007-13 is entitled 'Helping People into Sustainable Employment'; it aims to reduce unemployment and economic inactivity among unemployed people.

The main aim of Priority 1 is to improve the employability of those groups experiencing significant employment gaps; these include people with disabilities and health conditions, lone parents and other disadvantaged parents, older workers, young people not in education, employment or training, women, people with no or low qualifications, and other disadvantaged groups such as homeless people and others. There are 95 projects currently supported under this Priority.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for his assessment of the current number of people employed on a zero hour contract.

(AQW 35134/11-15)

Dr Farry: Information on the number of zero hours contracts in Northern Ireland is imprecise. The Office of National Statistics UK-wide Labour Force Survey for the period October-December 2013 found that 583,000 people categorised themselves as being on a zero hours contract: an increase on the 250,000 reported for the same period in 2012.

More recently in April 2014, the Office of National Statistics published the results of its survey of 5000 employers - which indicated that employers in Great Britain are using around 1.4 million employee contracts that do not guarantee a minimum number of hours. The Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development also completed earlier research which suggested that there could be around 1.2 million.

Given the public interest in this issue I launched a consultation on 23 June 2014 that seeks to determine the extent of the use of zero hours contracts and to provide a clearer picture of their benefit or impact within our economy. The consultation period will run from 23 June 2014 until 29 September 2014.

In parallel to the public consultation I have also commissioned quantitative and qualitative research to provide a better understanding of the numbers of zero hours contracts and where they are most prevalent.

The consultation and research will allow me to determine whether there is a need to bring forward legislative proposals or provide clearer information, advice and guidance for employers and employees availing of these contracts.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to outline how the Youth Employment Programme operates. (AQW 35151/11-15)

Dr Farry: The Youth Employment Scheme was introduced in July 2012 to address high levels of unemployment among young people in Northern Ireland.

It is a voluntary scheme designed to help young people aged 18 to 24 to develop the skills needed to get a job. It is built upon a partnership between the young person, the employer, the Department and Lead Contractors.

The Youth Employment Scheme has three elements.

- Work Experience - lasting 3-8 weeks which allows a young person to develop employability skills and improve levels of confidence and motivation in a work placement setting. Participants on this element are paid a Benefit Based Training Allowance and receive the equivalent of their benefit plus £15.38 per week.
- Skills Development - a period of up to 26 weeks which enables job ready 18-24 year olds to undertake work experience and relevant qualifications with the aim of improving their ability to compete in the labour market with more experienced jobseekers. Participants on this element are paid a Benefit Based Training Allowance and receive the equivalent of their benefit plus £45 per week. Those young people who complete their training and achieve a qualification will receive a bonus payment of £250.

Participants in both of these elements are entitled to reimbursement of travel costs in excess of £4 per week and, in some circumstances, to assistance with childcare costs.

- Enhanced Employer Subsidy - Employers offering full time, permanent jobs to young people may avail of a subsidy of up to £5,750 for the first 52 weeks of employment. Employers must provide training to allow the young people to develop their skills and gain relevant qualifications while in employment.

The scheme is delivered by the Department's Employment Service across its network of 35 Jobs and Benefits Offices and JobCentres. Employment Service staff engage directly with young people to identify their employability skills gaps and with employers to secure work experience placements and jobs which match the employability needs and aspirations of each individual young person. Before a young person takes up his or her placement, the employer is required to sign a formal agreement with the Department. The agreement sets out the conditions of the scheme and the responsibilities and obligations of the employer.

Participants are fully supported throughout their time on the scheme. Under the terms of the agreement signed with the Department, the employer is required to appoint a mentor for each young person on placement. This support is complemented by Employment Service staff who visit participants a number of times at their placement. The level and type of support needed will vary according to individual needs and the type of activity undertaken.

On 30th September 2013, following a Post Implementation Review, the Department entered into a partnership arrangement with Lead Contractors to support the delivery of the Youth Employment Scheme. The involvement of Lead Contractors is intended to broaden the support and advice available to the young people and to provide Employment Service staff with additional options for eligible and suitable participants. Lead Contractors are primarily responsible for the identification and delivery of training for employers offering Skills Development opportunities and for the administration of these placements on behalf of the Department, including the payment of travel and childcare allowances to participants.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether there are any restrictions in place on an applicant being (i) accepted; and (ii) funded on the Steps 2 Success Programme on the basis of their capital or savings. (AQW 35184/11-15)

Dr Farry: Eligibility for the Steps 2 Success programme is determined by the Social Security benefits which clients are receiving. The qualifying benefits are; Jobseeker's Allowance, Employment and Support Allowance, Income Support and Pension Credit. Clients in receipt of any of these benefits can participate on the programme to help them prepare for and find work.

If a client is not entitled to one of the qualifying benefits for any reason, including capital or savings which exceed the upper capital limit, they would not be eligible to participate on Steps 2 Success.

The responsibility for determining a claimant's entitlement to Social Security benefits lies solely with the Social Security Agency within the Department for Social Development.

Clients who are not in receipt of a qualifying benefit, but who are seeking help to find employment, can still avail of the help and support provided by my Department's Employment Service staff located in local Jobs and Benefits offices and Jobcentres across Northern Ireland .

Therefore, although there are no direct restrictions in place on an applicant either being accepted or funded on the Steps 2 Success programme on the basis of their capital or savings, a person may not be accepted on Steps 2 Success because of a decision taken on their eligibility to benefits.

Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 33946/11-15, what level of exports sale were (i) expected; and (ii) levered as a result of this investment into the sandwich sector, in each of the last three years. (AQW 34874/11-15)

Mrs Foster (The Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment): Invest NI supports projects over a multi-year period and expects that the full economic benefit will also be realised after a number of years.

The total increase in exports for the projects listed in AQW 34875/11-15 is projected to be £6.3million by the end of the full implementation.

Validated export figures are provided by HMRC on a quarterly and annual basis. HMRC provides figures or set categories, such as Vegetables & Fruit and Dairy; thus the specific information requested for the sandwich sector is not available.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 33946/11-15, to detail (i) how; and (ii) when the investment was delivered to the companies. (AQW 34875/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The table below details all assistance from Invest NI to companies related to the sandwich sector within the past three years, the support offered and claimed by the clients:

Company Name	Invest NI Scheme/Programme	Total Investment	Amount Offered	Paid to Date
Deli-Lites (Ireland) Ltd	Growth Accelerator Programme	£117,120	£45,648	£45,648

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the funding that her Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014. (AQW 34884/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department has invested the following funding in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014:-

InvestNI (1 May 2011 to 31 March 2014)	£17,450,000
Northern Ireland Tourist Board	£215,160
Energy (Renewable Heat Incentive Scheme)	£30,141
Total	£17,695,301

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the funding her Department has provided to each Credit Union. (AQW 34893/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department has not provided any direct funding to individual credit unions. However £20,000 was provided to the Irish League of Credit Unions and £20,000 to the Ulster Federation of Credit Unions to help them meet the costs of providing a service to all credit unions that required guidance on the transitional arrangements for the transfer of regulation from my Department to the then Financial Services Authority.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to provide a breakdown of the payments made to (i) individuals; and (ii) organisations on behalf of individuals, for appearances or voice overs in advertisements for the Northern Ireland Tourist Board since 2011. (AQW 34957/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Tourist Board's remit is to promote Northern Ireland as a visitor destination to both the Northern Ireland and Republic of Ireland markets. NITB does this through the delivery of a series of marketing campaigns.

The Northern Ireland Tourist Board's marketing activity is delivered through a procured agency which develops all NITB's advertising creatives.

The total expenditure for appearances or voice overs in advertisements for the Northern Ireland Tourist Board since 2011 is £267,157. This covers 14 different marketing campaigns with multiple TV, radio, online, outdoor and press executions. This figure is paid directly to the agency in line with proper procurement procedures and at competitive market rates.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how many jobs have been created through foreign investment in the last three years.

Mrs Foster: In the past three years (2011-12 to 2013-14) 4,899 new jobs have been created through projects delivered by externally-owned Invest NI customers.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, of the 4,760 Foreign Direct Investment jobs promoted by InvestNI in 2013/14, to detail the number of these promoted in each of the 26 district council areas.

Mrs Foster: The table below details the number of jobs promoted by externally-owned companies in each of the 26 district council areas (DCAs) during 2013-14.

Department of the Environment

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of the Environment, in relation to the Northern Ireland Environment Agency Scientific Officer posts advertised in August 2012, why internal candidates are kept on the reserve list for two years, whereas external candidates are only kept on the list for one year.

(AQW 33594/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): Merit lists for external recruitment competitions in the Northern Ireland Civil Service remain live for one year, unless there are cogent practical reasons for extending the period; this applies to both internal and external candidates. The current merit list for the Scientific Officer competition is due to expire on 17 September 2014.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment whether he has received notification from Tamboran Resources of their intention to drill a borehole.

(AQW 34189/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department has not received any confirmation from Tamboran indicating their intention to drill a borehole, however Tamboran has indicated that they intend to issue notification in the near future.

When notification is received, the Assembly will be notified.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the number of planning applications, in each of the last three years, that were not processed within the target time, broken down by planning division.

(AQW 34474/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Since 2012/13, target times for processing planning applications have been set with reference to the average (median) processing times involved for the three categories of planning application – major, intermediate and minor. This means that the target is for at least 50% of all such applications to be processed within the specified target time. It is not an absolute target for all applications but instead must be met by half of all applications processed by DOE Planning.

In 2011/12, the equivalent targets were for 60%, 70%, and 80% of major, intermediate and minor, respectively, to be processed with the specified target time, which was generally longer than subsequent years in order to allow for the larger percentage of cases which had to meet the target in that year.

Table 1 below shows the number of applications of each type processed each year, the processing target time in force for that year, the number required to be processed within that time for the target to be met, and the shortfall in numbers if the target was not met.

- A small number of applications were missing a value for processing time, and so had to be excluded from the calculation to determine if they had met the targets.
- Strategic Planning generally process only major planning applications.

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister of the Environment whether there are any plans to change the number plate system in Northern Ireland in line with the rest of the UK.

(AQW 34503/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Vehicle Licensing is an excepted matter and is the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Transport. It is administered in Northern Ireland by the Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) under a formal agreement between the Department of the Environment and the Department for Transport (DfT). The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) is responsible for vehicle licensing policy matters across the United Kingdom and provide the necessary funding for the vehicle and registration services delivered by DVA in Northern Ireland.

You will be well aware that the DfT in London is introducing new arrangements for vehicle licensing and registration services in Northern Ireland. After 17 July 2014, the DVA in Northern Ireland will no longer tax and register vehicles or allocate vehicle registration marks. This will become the responsibility of the DVLA in Swansea from Monday 21 July 2014. From this date the format of vehicle registration plates in Northern Ireland will be a matter for the DVLA.

I understand that the DVLA does not have any plans to change the present number plate system in Northern Ireland.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment what consideration has been given to the fact that public hire taxis are, by their specific design, disability access compliant; and what action his Department is taking to highlight this fact to groups representing people with disabilities as to encourage the use of these fully accessible service vehicles.

(AQW 34573/11-15)

Mr Durkan: In November 2012 my Department engaged Integrated Transport Planning (ITP) to conduct research into the taxi industry in Northern Ireland. One of the research outputs was a recommendation for a new technical specification for a wheelchair accessible vehicle. The research, which was concluded in January 2014, included consideration of the Belfast Public Hire (BPH) fleet.

Details of the reports were provided to the Committee by letter on 7 February 2014 and the synopsis of responses to the relevant consultation and subsequent policy intentions has been relayed to the Committee for consideration. To mitigate the costs of the higher accessibility specification, the Department is proposing to grant BPH grandfather rights for five years. This will allow them to continue to operate as wheelchair accessible taxis during this time as long as they can continue to meet the current wheelchair accessible vehicle specification.

All of the groups representing people with disabilities that the Department has worked with are aware of the fact that BPH taxis are regarded as being wheelchair accessible.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment why his Department has written to its consultees and advised that the proposal to carry out exploratory drilling at Ballinlea, County Antrim (E/2013/0093/F) is not an application to undertake hydraulic fracturing when recently submitted environmental information requested by Strategic Planning Division confirms that the proposal will involve hydraulic fracturing; and what steps he intends to take to rectify the misleading information emanating from his Department.

Mr Durkan: DOE Planning did advise consultees that the proposal was not an application to undertake hydraulic fracturing. This statement was provided in the covering letter which was submitted with the application and was understood to be in reference to 'unconventional high volume' hydraulic fracturing.

The development proposed under application E/2013/0093/F constitutes a conventional borehole and is not for the unconventional exploration of hydrocarbons, neither does it propose to use any unconventional testing techniques.

At the extended testing phase, should the operator have difficulty obtaining the natural flow of the gas/oil, a conventional hydraulic stimulation fracture may need to be conducted.

A conventional hydraulic stimulated fracture is distinctly different from unconventional hydraulic fracturing.

The Department does not believe that any misleading information has been issued by DOE Planning. Information on the extended testing phase and proposed works has been detailed in the Operational Statement provided by the company which has been uploaded onto the Planning Portal for consultees to review and comment on.

Further information has been requested from the applicant and during consultation with consultees, in the interests of providing unequivocal clarity, the Department will specify that the application is for a conventional exploratory borehole operation.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 32997/11-15, whether the means by which his Department has historically chosen to deal with unregulated sand extraction from the Lough Neagh Special Protection Area leaves the UK Member State open to infraction proceedings; and whether he has notified the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs of any failures by his Department which could give rise to such proceedings.

(AQW 34900/11-15)

Mr Durkan: It would be a matter for the European Commission to determine if particular occurrences were in breach of the requirements of relevant EC Directives, to an extent that warranted the issue of infraction proceedings.

My Department has not notified the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs of any matter relating to Lough Neagh that may give rise to the issue of infraction proceedings by the Commission.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment whether North Down Borough Council has submitted an application for the next tranche of Dereliction Intervention Funding; and if so, what properties are included in the application.

(AQW 34910/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I can confirm that at the end of May 2014 North Down Borough Council submitted an application for Dereliction Intervention Funding. The proposal is for 3 properties within the town of Holywood –

- 1 Stewart's Place;
- The Olde Priory Inn; and
- 122/124 High Street.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment to provide a copy of the letter sent to taxi drivers conforming that a single tier system will be in place from 2015; and whether this letter refers to the single tier system in its present form or with forthcoming amendments.

(AQW 34943/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I attach a copy of the letter which was sent to all Taxis Operators, providing a copy of my Statement to the Assembly.

Dear Taxi Operator

For your information, please find attached a copy of the written statement made by Mark H. Durkan, the Minister of the Environment, to the Northern Ireland Assembly on Thursday 19 June 2014. The statement relates to the implementation of the remaining elements of the Taxis Act (Northern Ireland) 2008, including:

- Taxi vehicle licensing - including the introduction of single tier licensing throughout Northern Ireland;
- Taxi driver licensing – including the reintroduction of a taxi driver test for new drivers and periodic training for all drivers;
- Taximeters, printers and maximum fares;
- Wheelchair Accessible Taxi specifications; and
- Power of Seizure – relating to illegal taxis.

Further, more specific, communications will follow in the coming months as the implementation process is rolled out.

Yours sincerely

Iain Greenway

Director of the Road Safety & Vehicle Regulation Division

Implementation of the Taxis Act (NI) 2008

Written Statement

by

The Minister for the Environment

Mark H Durkan MLA

Thursday 19 June 2014

Members of the Assembly will, I am sure, share my view that taxis are a vital and valuable part of our economy. Every year they greet many of the million plus visitors who come to Northern Ireland. They make tens of thousands of trips to bring people to and from work or safely home after a night out. They also help some of our most vulnerable people, young and old, travel in the way the majority of us take for granted.

The majority of our taxi legislation, however, dates back to the early 1980s – in fact, in Belfast it goes back to by-laws devised in the early 1950s. The problem is, quite simply, that it not up to the task of effectively regulating taxis in the 21st century.

For this reason the Taxis Act was debated and approved by this House and received Royal Assent in April 2008. It is a piece of enabling legislation, designed to create a new legislative framework for the operation and regulation of taxis here.

The aims of the Taxis Act are to raise the standard of taxi services, reduce illegal taxiing and improve compliance. Its objectives are to promote road safety, improve accessibility for older people and people with disabilities, and facilitate fairer competition for taxi services. In short, it is about creating a safe, fair and fit for purpose industry that allows those involved in it to make a living from it.

For the last six years my Department has been working to implement the Act by way of subordinate regulations. To date, the only part of the Act that has been commenced is the introduction of Taxi Operator Licensing, which came into force in 2012. This, for the first time, made operators accountable for the operation of their business and the actions of their drivers. High levels of compliance with these provisions have already been achieved, and improvements to the accountability of the industry delivered.

The purpose of this statement is to set out my intentions for the implementation of the remaining aspects of the Act. These include new arrangements for taxi vehicle licensing (including new plating and roof sign requirements), taxi driver licensing (including the introduction of a taxi driver test for new drivers and periodic training for all drivers) and other elements including provisions for a maximum fare and the use of taximeters and receipt printers, new powers of seizure, and a revised specification for Wheelchair Accessible taxis.

There has been much debate, going back some years, about the need for these changes. Since taking office, I have listened carefully to many representations and have considered many points made in favour and against implementing the remaining provisions of the Taxis Act. After careful consideration, I have decided that it is essential we implement these changes now, to give full effect to this legislation and to deliver improvements to the industry for the benefit of users and suppliers alike.

A key element of the taxi reform programme is the arrangements for taxi vehicle licensing and the classes of taxis that will be recognised across Northern Ireland.

The Act's provisions, one of which is introducing a single tier licensing regime, have been well-known and much debated for many years, and has been the subject of consultation on more than one occasion. Indeed, I have lost count of the number of Assembly questions that I have received on this one issue.

I believe that the current dual tier system in place in Belfast, with some taxis able to be hailed and others only available through prior bookings, cannot adequately address a number of problems that the Act was designed to tackle. The public (residents and visitors alike) are confused as to which taxis they can use in different circumstances. There are insufficient numbers of taxis which can pick up on the street in Belfast, particularly at peak periods, to meet demand and ensure public order. Furthermore, there is too much enforcement activity addressing relatively minor licensing offences, which reduces the resources available to address the illegal and dangerous taxis which are out there.

I have listened to, considered and reconsidered the concerns expressed that the change would adversely impact on Belfast Public Hire taxi drivers, and that enforcement difficulties around illegal picking up in Belfast have given cause for concern about the Department's ability to enforce a new licensing regime. I must advise members that I am not persuaded by these arguments.

The changes that are proposed will, I believe, enhance the reputation of the taxi industry as a whole, increasing the confidence of the public in Northern Ireland to use taxis because we will have a professional and fit for purpose service. The demand for the services of Belfast Public Hire, which represent around 5% of taxis in Northern Ireland and around 10% of taxis in Belfast, should be determined by the service they provide and the price at which it is provided. I am convinced that any sector of the industry that provides a good quality and price-competitive service will be able to thrive in the improved regulatory regime that the Taxis Act provides for.

Further, consumers will, and should, be able to exercise choice and their preferences in terms of how and when to secure the services of a taxi and which type of taxi they wish to use. It is the responsibility of my Department, as regulator, to set the minimum standards which all operators, vehicles and drivers must meet, so that taxi users can receive the service they expect; and then to ensure compliance with those standards.

Picture the scene when on a Saturday night a member of the public wants to hail a fully compliant, licensed taxi, licensed driver and licensed operator in any part of the North. I don't believe that there is justification for my Department to deny such a transaction.

I feel that my Department has given very great consideration to the concerns of the Belfast Public Hire drivers and has gone a long way to help them prepare for change. The measures that we have put in place include that all taxi drivers currently in possession of a taxi driver's licence will be unaffected by plans to introduce a new taxi driver test. Belfast Public Hire taxis will be granted grandfather rights in respect of any changes to the specification for Wheelchair Accessible Taxis. Furthermore only Wheelchair Accessible Taxis will be permitted to stand at ranks in Belfast, securing to some degree the status quo for the current Belfast Public Hire fleet in relation to ranks.

My officials have engaged extensively with Belfast Public Hire representatives to help them arrange meetings with other parts of government on a range of issues including, training, taxi ranks and access to bus lanes. We have also delayed the reform programme to provide all taxi operators – not least Belfast Public Hire – additional time to prepare for the reforms. So while I am aware of the concerns of the Belfast Public Hire taxi drivers, I must balance these with the requirements, clearly set out by consumer and disability groups, to improve regulation for a safe, fair and fit for purpose taxi industry. It is high time the remaining elements of the Act were implemented.

The alternative is to continue to operate a dual tier regime, limited to Belfast, and to prevent taxi users in Belfast from exercising the same choice available in all other parts of the North, in order to continue to protect the commercial interests of Belfast Public Hire taxi drivers.

I have a number of serious concerns in respect of such a system. A dual tier approach provides more confusion, not less, to Belfast consumers in terms of which taxis they can legally hail in the street or access at ranks. It provides less choice, not more, to Belfast consumers – they are constrained in the choice that is extended in every other part of the North, in terms of which type of taxi they want – instead they are limited to using the small Belfast Public Hire fleet unless they pre-book a taxi.

I am concerned that the dual tier model is unable to cope with the need to empty the city of people in a timely manner in the evenings, particularly at weekends. Suspension of the regime for these high peak periods could be considered, but would create even further confusion for users and would prove difficult, if not impossible, to enforce.

The Taxis Act is based on a single tier licensing regime. During the development of the then Bill, two options were consulted on – single tier; or a clearer distinction between public hire and private hire taxis (along the lines of the London model of 'black cabs' and 'mini-cabs'). A public consultation at that time showed a preference for single tier, and this was included in the Bill and passed by this Assembly, without division, as part of the Act.

Since enactment, a 2011 public consultation showed 84% support for single tier licensing. Those in favour included the Consumer Council (who stated that single tier would remove public confusion and free up enforcement resource), Inclusive Mobility and Transport Advisory Committee (IMTAC) and Disability Action.

Recently, I have received explicit support for single tier licensing from Disability Action, IMTAC, the Consumer Council, Women's Aid, Victim Support, Belfast Chamber of Trade & Commerce, the Northern Ireland Hotels Federation, Pubs of Ulster and Visit Belfast, all of whom see the clear benefits to consumers, tourists and the industry itself. I have also received 913 letters from Belfast private hire taxi drivers in support of single tier. And that is in addition to the 4,200 postcards the Committee received from private hire taxi passengers of a similar mind.

I therefore remain of the view that a single tier model should be introduced throughout the North. I am aware that the Law Commission has recently recommended the retention of two tier licensing for taxis in England and Wales, and that the Department for Transport is currently considering those proposals. With respect to those that say that we should do the same here, I would point out that exactly this point was debated in the development of the Taxis Act, with decisions made to progress a single tier regime. I would point out that the two tiers of taxis here are less differentiated than those in England and Wales have traditionally been. It is also worth noting that a Comparative Study on Regulation in Europe concluded that taxi licensing regimes differ based on local circumstances. Devolution has been designed to allow local solutions to local issues. We have debated this issue for far too long and should now implement our intent.

Understandably, given the delays and changes in the timings for the various elements of taxi reform, the industry has expressed concerns and has sought clarity about my intentions. I intend to provide this clarity today.

I am, therefore, today giving notice that I intend to make Taxi Vehicle Licensing regulations introducing single tier licensing in October 2014 with the provisions coming into force at the end of January 2015. Alongside this, I intend to commence the new Powers of Seizure regulations in January 2015 so that, from day one, these powers are available to enforcement officers to take action against illegal taxis.

This delay in the implementation date for the new arrangements is a result of the time needed to consider the different options put forward; and to avoid changes for the industry in its busiest period of the year in the run up the Christmas and New Year.

In advance of that, in October 2014, a new taxi driver test will be introduced for new taxi drivers only. This will be followed in September 2015 with the start of periodic training requirements for all taxi drivers.

In relation to taximeters and printers, I intend to make regulations before the end of the year, with the requirements coming into force in September 2015.

Finally, in respect of the new specification for Wheelchair Accessible Taxis, I intend to make these regulations in April 2015, coming into force in May 2015. Importantly, this new specification will ensure that users with disabilities will be better served by the taxi industry.

I look forward to continuing to work with the industry, the Environment Committee and other consumer and disability groups in the coming months as we introduce the relevant legislation to deliver on the aims of the Act in relation to this vital industry.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of the Environment why the introduction of compulsory taxi metering has been delayed until September 2015.

(AQW 34952/11-15)

Mr Durkan: In November and December 2013, Environment Committee members indicated that they were not content with elements of the Department's proposals for taxi vehicle licensing. I chose to take time and consider their concerns and the concerns expressed by sections of the taxi industry. Having completed this process, on 19 June 2014 in a written statement to the Assembly I outlined my intended timeline for the implementation of the remaining elements of the reform programme. This included deferring the introduction of the new taxi vehicle licensing regime until January 2015.

The introduction of compulsory taxi metering has been deferred until September 2015 due to the close linkages between that element of the taxi reform programme and taxi vehicle licensing.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

Ms S Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what work is being undertaken with the community and social work teams in hospitals to ensure that patients who can be discharged, are provided with the proper care package and the issue of bed blocking is addressed.

(AQW 34683/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): There are teams of social workers based in every acute hospital and one of their key functions is to provide a professional social work service to those patients who have needs for care and support to achieve a safe discharge when they are ready to leave hospital.

In consultation with the clinical team, the social worker will identify as early as possible those patients who may require care and support on discharge. The social worker will complete an assessment with the patient and their family to identify their needs and, where required, liaise with community services to secure the necessary care and support in a timely manner.

The primary aim of the hospital social worker is to return people to their own home with a suitable care and support package, however where the person's needs have become more complex and cannot be met in their home environment the social worker will assist the individual and their family to consider other possible care options, such as supported housing, intermediate care, residential or nursing home care.

Ms S Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether a policy exists for whole scale hospital support when Emergency Departments are under pressure.

(AQW 34685/11-15)

Mr Poots: Hospitals have Emergency Department escalation policies in place to deal with spikes in attendances and admissions. A number of measures may be taken, such as additional ward rounds, making extra beds available and putting additional staff in place.

Such plans are likely to be implemented when a major incident is declared. A major incident is any incident that is likely to involve a hospital receiving large numbers of seriously ill or injured patients in excess of that which could reasonably be managed within the scope of normal resources available. The major incident plan will form part of Trusts' overall emergency planning framework and may be activated in isolation or in conjunction with other specific emergency or business continuity plans.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34904/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department does not capture or hold this information centrally and the level of detail requested could only be provided at disproportionate cost. Funding is not typically invested on a constituency basis. Most providers are commissioned to provide services on a Trust-wide or Belfast-wide basis.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether wheelchairs that are no longer needed by hospitals are donated to other health organisations.

(AQW 34931/11-15)

Mr Poots: When a wheelchair is no longer required by a service user, it is inspected by a Medical Technical Officer to determine whether it is suitable for recycling or not. If deemed to be suitable, it is put through the recycling programme (decontamination/ refurbishment) and re-issued to another user.

This reconditioned stock is a valuable component in the wheelchair service across Northern Ireland. If beyond economic repair or declared unfit for recycling, wheelchairs are condemned and disposed of as they cannot be reissued.

If the wheelchair has been declared unfit for recycling, it would not be possible to donate to other health organisations.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the policy in relation to wheelchairs that are no longer needed by hospitals and are in the possession of a patient.

(AQW 34932/11-15)

Mr Poots: I refer the member to my answer to AQW 34931/11-15.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he will scrap the exceptionality clause and fund equal access to cancer drugs for patients.

(AQW 35023/11-15)

Mr Poots: All National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE) approved cancer drugs that are available in England are either recurrently funded or available via a cost per case mechanism in Northern Ireland. The Health and Social Care Board has a clear process by which unapproved cancer drugs can be made available to patients in Northern Ireland by means of an Individual Funding Request (IFR) setting out the clinical circumstances which support the request. The Board has advised my Department that around 98% of the applications for unapproved drugs are accepted.

However, I have listened to the concerns expressed by patients about the IFR process and during a recent debate in the Assembly on this issue I announced that I had instructed my Department to evaluate whether the process, including the clinical exceptionality clause, is meeting its objectives. My Department will report the findings of the evaluation to me later this year and I will announce my decision on the future of the scheme as soon as I have fully considered the report.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how his Department ensures responsible prescribing and dispensing of appropriate medicines; and to detail any actions which he has taken in this regard in the last three years.

(AQW 35026/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Pharmaceutical Clinical Effectiveness (PCE) programme comprises of a number of initiatives synergistically designed to optimise the implementation of the product selection process through effective procurement, prescribing policy, guidelines and pharmaceutical service improvements. Key initiatives include: Generic Prescribing; Repeat Dispensing; Minor Ailments; Extended Supplies of Hospital Discharge Medicines; Integrated Medicines Management; Medicines Governance in Primary Care; Clinical Procurement; and Pharmaceutical Clinical Technology

Responsibility for the prescribing budget was transferred to HSC Board in July 2010. The Board has continued to develop and implement the principles of Pharmaceutical Clinical Effectiveness through the extension of the programme to maintain current initiatives and develop new and innovative ways of working including implementation of a Northern Ireland Formulary. The Formulary covers the majority of prescribing choices in Northern Ireland and aims to standardize prescribing practice and ensure a level of consistency but also recognises that some patients may require medicines which lie outside the guidance. The Formulary is intended to be used across both primary and secondary care sectors to ensure consistency and continuity of supply of medicines to patients.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to list the 38 drugs, available through the English Cancer Drugs Fund, that are included under the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme and whose use could be included under the Scheme if utilised in Northern Ireland.

Mr Poots: The list of drugs currently available through the English Cancer Drugs Fund can be accessed via the following link: - <http://www.england.nhs.uk/wp-content/uploads/2014/05/ncdf-list-may14.pdf>

If the drugs are branded drugs they will be included in the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme unless they were licensed after 1 January 2014.

In the 2013/2014 year there were 72 Individual Funding Requests (IFR) approved, of those 64 were for cancer drugs. Of the 27 cancer drugs approved via an IFR 17 were also on the Cancer Drug Fund (CDF) list. There were 11 cancer drugs approved via IFR which were not on the CDF list.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much funding will become available through the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme in each of the next three years.

(AQW 35072/11-15)

Mr Poots: The 2014 PPRS is a UK-wide scheme that has been developed to deliver stability and predictability in the branded medicines economy over the next five years.

Under the scheme PPRS payments will only be made available to ensure that the allowed growth in medicines spend, on a UK-wide basis, is not exceeded and to enable the DHSSPS to meet its policy and operational objectives, as stated in the PPRS agreement. As any "payments" apportioned to Northern Ireland under the Scheme will depend on the UK-wide growth rate in the cost of branded medicines, it is not possible to estimate how much will be apportioned to Northern Ireland in the next three years.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action he is taking to speed up the engagement between the Nursing and Midwifery Council and nursing applicants from both inside and outside the UK.

(AQW 35095/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Nursing and Midwifery Council (NMC) is the independent regulator for nurses and midwives and operates on a UK-wide basis to safeguard the health and wellbeing of the public.

It is the Northern Ireland policy position to work on a 4-country basis on matters related to professional regulation. My officials work closely with DH England, the devolved administrations and professional regulators including the NMC to address a wide range of regulatory issues. This includes work to ensure application and registration processes are fit for purpose, proportionate and robust to uphold public protection, but also to ensure that the speed of processes is reasonable.

It is illegal to work as a nurse in the UK without being on the NMC register. In order to join the register the NMC must be satisfied that an applicant is capable of practising safely and effectively. It is the responsibility of the NMC to process applications to its register and also to assess an applicant's qualifications, training and experience against its registration standards.

I am aware that the Professional Standards Authority (PSA), which oversees the work of the regulators, has produced its latest performance assessment of the NMC and has identified a number of areas for improvement in relation to its registration processes. However, I am encouraged to note that the PSA also acknowledged improvements and further planned developments in relation to these processes. This includes the commencement of on-line registration and revised guidance on implementation of policies and procedures for EU/EEA applicants.

I recognise the very valuable contribution made to health and social care in the UK, including here in Northern Ireland, by nurses trained in Europe and other parts of the world. My officials continue to liaise on a 4-country basis to monitor progress in this area.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action he is taking to ensure nursing qualifications in European countries are recognised by the Nursing and Midwifery Council.

(AQW 35098/11-15)

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33205/11-15, for an update regarding the recommendations which the Expert Group were expected to report by 1 July 2014.

(AQW 35100/11-15)

Mr Poots: The independent assessment of current and future needs for cardiology and cardiac surgery for congenital heart disease in the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland which the International Expert Team, led by Dr John Mayer, are taking forward has not yet been submitted. I anticipate that the report will now be submitted in the next few weeks.

I am aware that the content of the report is a matter of widespread public interest. The Minister of Health in the Republic of Ireland and I will need to carefully consider the report. I aim to make public the implications for the future delivery of this service for Northern Ireland as soon as I am in a position to do so.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (i) for his assessment of the provision and services for adults with learning disabilities in Upper Bann; and to detail (i) the number of referrals to respite units in each month of the last three years; and (ii) the waiting times following referral.

(AQW 35101/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Southern HSC Trust has in place a range of services for adults with a learning disability in the Upper Bann area. These include residential respite, access to nursing respite beds across the Trust area, day and weekend respite which is activity based and provided by the voluntary sector. In addition, the Trust has a range of statutory and voluntary day care provision whose secondary objective is to offer respite to carers. All services are targeted for adults with a learning disability aged over 18 who reside in the Southern Trust area.

The attached Annex details the months in the last 3 years in which there were referrals to Woodlawn House, Nightingale Lodge, and Enable NI respite units and the waiting times following referral for Woodlawn House only.

The waiting times following referral for Nightingale Lodge and Enable NI are not readily available.

Nightingale Lodge also offers day respite to 12 service users in addition to those overnight service users when their day activity programmes are not available, for example, on public holidays.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much in total income would be generated by a £25 a year charge for prescriptions.

(AQW 35111/11-15)

Mr Poots: It is not possible to estimate how much revenue would be generated by a £25 a year charge for prescriptions. The revenue raised would depend on whether any exemptions from charges were put in place, the uptake of medicines by individual patients and the level of charge imposed for individual prescription items.

All of these issues would be subject to a full public consultation before any prescription charges would be re-introduced.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the Association of the British Pharmaceutical Industry's claim that the Pharmacy Price Regulation Scheme will cover all access to new drugs over the next two years at no cost to Health and Social Care.

(AQW 35114/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS) is a UK wide scheme. One of the overarching principles of the scheme is to improve access to medicines commensurate with the outcomes they offer patients by ensuring that medicines approved by NICE are available widely in the Health Service. The scheme is designed to constrain the growth in spend in branded medicines at a UK level, across the period 2014-19, for those medicines licensed before 31st December 2013. Any increase in spend in new medicines licensed after that date is not subject to the PPRS price control mechanism.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that his Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects. (AQW 35156/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are currently no ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that my Department is associated with.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how his Department will highlight the need for blood donation in North Down.

(AQW 35160/11-15)

Mr Poots: NIBTS has six blood donation locations in North Down; Bangor, Bangor East, Bloomfield, Holywood, Donaghadee and Newtownards. Between these locations a total of 24 donation sessions are held each year.

All registered donors receive a call-up letter ten days before the donation session to advise them of dates and times. If blood stocks are low this is followed up with a text message.

For all public donation sessions there are volunteers within the local community who help to publicise donation sessions with posters and leaflets; these are sent out 2-3 weeks before each session and the volunteers distribute them to local shops, businesses and community groups. Local churches announce sessions at services or in newsletters, and laminated posters are affixed to lampposts a week in advance.

As part of its educational programme, NIBTS visits South Eastern Regional College (SERC) for fresher days to speak to college students and also visits several schools in the area; Regent House, Sullivan Upper, Priory Integrated, Strangford College and Bangor Academy.

NIBTS also uses newspaper or radio advertisements to raise awareness of donor weeks which happen annually in June and November/December. Relevant adverts would be placed in the North Down Spectator and the Newtownards Chronicle. Social media is also used.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of Health Service procedures and treatments on Northern Ireland patients carried out by each private health provider in (i) Northern Ireland; (ii) England; (iii) Scotland; (iv) Wales; and (v) the Republic of Ireland, in each year since May 2007.

(AQW 35207/11-15)

Mr Poots: The number of Health Service procedures and treatments carried out on Northern Ireland patients, by the Independent Sector in Northern Ireland, England, Scotland, Wales and the Republic of Ireland, in each financial year since 2007/08, is shown below.

Financial Years	Northern Ireland	England	Scotland	Wales	Republic of Ireland

Department of Justice

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Justice to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34905/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice): The Department of Justice does not record expenditure in a format that enables all funding invested in North Belfast to be quantified.

Expenditure that can be identified as relating directly to North Belfast is contained in the table below. Figures exclude the running costs of any offices based in North Belfast, and exclude the maintenance costs of security barriers. Figures provided are by financial year.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Justice who has been selected to sit on the Researchers Advisory Group for Research into Prostitution.

(AQW 34947/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Board of Advisers to the prostitution research is appointed by Queen's University Belfast as part of its internal research mechanism and the Department of Justice had no part in the selection process of its members.

The members of the Advisory Board are: Professor of Criminology, School of Applied Social Sciences, Durham University; Assistant Professor in International Peace Studies, Trinity College Dublin; Reader in Migration Studies, Institute for the Study of European Transformations, London Metropolitan University; Lecturer, Department of Sociology, National University of Ireland, Maynooth; Team Leader, Belfast and Lisburn Women's Aid and; Nurse and Health Care Co-ordinator, Belfast Commercial Sex Workers Service.

Travel and subsistence costs for the Advisory Board were included within the overall tender.

As detailed in the tender specification, a maximum of £60,000 (exclusive of VAT) has been allocated for the research.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Justice to detail the selection process for the Researchers Advisory Group for Research into Prostitution.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether he plans to order a Serious Case Review to include the prior management and monitoring of case number 14/062668 at Newry Magistrates Court, particularly in respect of present allegations of (i) breach of a Sexual Offences Prevention Order for four years; and (ii) the commission of further offences against a child in the last twelve months.

(AQW 34984/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Strategic Management Board responsible for oversight of the Public Protection Arrangements for Northern Ireland (PPANI) has authority to commission Serious Case Reviews. This case has been referred into PPANI. I have asked my officials to provide me with an update in this case at the earliest opportunity.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice what action his Department is taking to combat crimes against people with a disability.

(AQW 35036/11-15)

Mr Ford: My Department, through the Community Safety Strategy, is committed to tackling hate crime and the harm it causes. Consequently, working in partnership with others, an Action Plan comprising a range of measures has been developed and is currently being implemented. Progress on this Action Plan was provided to the Committee for Justice in February 2014.

Following consultations between my officials and a number of organisations, including Leonard Cheshire Disability, Mencap, NIAMH and Disability Action, my Department is working with others to develop the hate crime advocacy service.

In addition, my Department currently provides practical support to victims of hate crime, including people with a disability, through the Hate Incident Practical Action (HIPA) scheme; and Policing and Community Safety Partnerships (PCSPs) are delivering a range of initiatives aimed at tackling all forms of hate crime.

Legislation is in place which allows for an increase in sentence for offences aggravated by hostility because of race, religion, sexual orientation or disability.

During consultation in advance of the publication of the Victim and Witness Strategy, my officials met with key stakeholders from various organisations including Mencap, Disability Action, and Leonard Cheshire Disability.

You will also be aware that my Department has also been working in partnership with the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety on the development of a new adult safeguarding policy. This new policy will complement the measures already in place to protect vulnerable adults, including those with a disability.

I have personally met a number of organisations on the issue of crimes against people with a disability. During the period July 2012 to July 2013, I met with the Communications Manager at Signature, to discuss the use of Registered Sign Language Interpreters for deaf and blind people. I also met with representatives from Action Mental Health, Mindwise and NIAMH.

During the period since July 2013, I have attended a Disability Seminar organised by the Law Society and addressed a Disability Hate Crime Seminar organised by Disability Action where I met representatives from a variety of disability organisations including Mencap, Leonard Cheshire Disability, Disability Action and the REAL Network.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice what organisations he has met with regarding the issue of crimes against people with a disability, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35038/11-15)

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of staff employed in Maghaberry Prison, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35047/11-15)

Mr Ford: The number of staff in post is shown in the table below. There is a slight variation in dates because of a change in how this data was collated between 2012 and 2013.

Date	Uniform Staff	Non-Uniform Staff
30 June 2010	867	135
30 June 2011	806	132
30 June 2012	665	118
1 July 2013	716	127
1 July 2014	689	125

To break this down further, by prison landing, would require an extensive manual exercise and incur disproportionate cost.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of prison officers that have had more than three days sick absence as a result of injuries sustained whilst working in Maghaberry Prison, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35049/11-15)

Mr Ford: Information in the form requested is not readily available and could only be obtained at a disproportionate cost.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of drug seizures from prisoners in Maghaberry Prison, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35053/11-15)

Mr Ford: The number of drug finds attributed to prisoners at Maghaberry Prison for the period requested is set out below. The figures are for the total number of seizures, some of which will have included more than one banned substance.

2009	2010	2011	2012	2013
74	37	44	87	452

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice to detail the action he has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to his Department.

(AQW 35063/11-15)

Mr Ford: Since Devolution, my Department has not been forwarded any public petitions from the Assembly.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34170/11-15, how long has each warrant been outstanding.

(AQW 35086/11-15)

Mr Ford: All European Arrest Warrants are considered outstanding until the subject of the warrant has been returned to Northern Ireland.

The table below provides a list of the outstanding European Arrest Warrants including details on the date of issue of the warrant and the arrest date of the subject. The execution date of each European Arrest Warrant has been taken as the date that the subject of the warrant was arrested in the host country. Once arrested, the individual will be brought before the courts in the host country where it will be determined if they should be extradited.

Offence	Country	Issued	Arrest Date	Current Status
VAT offences	Republic of Ireland	21/06/2007	19/11/2008	Subject failed to answer bail in the Republic of Ireland and has not been located to date

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 33630/11-15, in relation to the Prisoner Safety and Support Team, how many prisoners are currently (i) receiving support; and (ii) awaiting assessment.

(AQW 35110/11-15)

Mr Ford:

- (i) There are currently twenty five people being case managed by a multidisciplinary team under the auspices of Prisoner Safety Support.
- (ii) All assessments are carried out on receipt of the referral by Prisoner Safety Support, there are no referrals awaiting assessment.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of contraband items seized from prisoners whilst in a prison cell in Maghaberry Prison, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35121/11-15)

Mr Ford: The figures for all unauthorised articles found are set out in the table below. It is not possible to determine which of these items were found in a prisoner's cell.

Year	No. Items
2009	1810
2010	1805

Year	No. Items
2011	2801
2012	2605
2013	3846

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of contraband items seized from people visiting a prisoner in Maghaberry Prison, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35122/11-15)

Mr Ford: If any article discovered during the searching of a visitor is suspected to be an illicit or illegally held item then the PSNI will be informed. The Northern Ireland Prison Service do not record such finds.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice what additional measures or legislation is planned to facilitate the criminal prosecution of people selling or distributing legal highs.

(AQW 35135/11-15)

Mr Ford: As legislation governing the sale and distribution of drugs remains a reserved matter, I have no plans to introduce legislation.

In December 2013 the Government announced a Review of the drug legislation and its suitability to tackle the issue of New Psychoactive Substances, also known as legal highs. This Review is ongoing and I await the outcome.

However, I am not complacent in seeking to tackle this serious issue. For example my Department continues to support District Council Environmental Health Officers in seeking to utilise the General Product Safety Regulations as a means of tackling those who are selling and distributing legal highs. Belfast City Council recently secured a Forfeiture Order against one shop selling these substances and I am advised that further prosecutions are pending. In addition, two other Councils have utilised this same legislation and successfully removed these substances from sale.

DOJ officials continue to work with the PSNI and DHSSPS colleagues to highlight the dangers associated with consuming these untested substances.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that his Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35157/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Department of Justice does not have any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects.

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice what constitutes a prisoner officer receiving a written warning.

(AQW 35172/11-15)

Mr Ford: All Northern Ireland Civil Servants, including Prison Officers, are managed under the policies set out in the Northern Ireland Civil Service (NICS) HR Handbook. The section on Inefficiency Sickness sets out the policy applied where staff are not at work due to sickness absence. This provides for the issue of written warnings where levels of absence breach review points. Once review points are breached, a meeting is held with the member of staff before a decision whether to issue a written warning is made. The meeting gives the member of staff an opportunity to provide any relevant information they wish to be taken into consideration. All relevant facts are taken into account before a decision is made.

Procedural variations apply for new entrants undertaking their probationary period of employment.

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice what support is in place for on duty prison officers who are assaulted by inmates.

(AQW 35173/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) has a range of support mechanisms in place for prison officers who are assaulted by inmates. Staff can discuss any concerns they have with their Line Managers or their HR Business Partners based in their local Establishment Personnel Units. Staff can make direct contact with the Central Welfare Team for support and advice. They can also make direct contact with Carecall who provide an independent, confidential and professional counselling service available to all NIPS staff.

Staff can also self-refer to the Occupational Health Service.

In the event of an incident involving a number of officers, the locally based HR Business Partner or the Duty Governor can arrange for Carecall to provide a critical incident debrief for staff involved.

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice how many written warnings have been issued to prison officers as a result of sickness absence, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35176/11-15)

Mr Ford: In the last 3 years, the following numbers of Written and Final Written Warnings have been issued to prison officers due to sickness absence;

Date	Written Warnings issued	Final Written Warnings issued	Total Warnings issued
7 July 2011 to 6 July 2012	167	30	197
7 July 2012 to 6 July 2013	115	11	126
7 July 2013 to 6 July 2014	129	16	145

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice how many new recruits have left the Prison Service in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35178/11-15)

Mr Ford: In each of the last three years, the following number of new recruits have left the Northern Ireland Prison Service:

2012	6
2014	29 to date

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of Justice how many prison officers have been assaulted by prisoners in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35179/11-15)

Mr Ford: The number of incidents of assault by prisoners on prison staff is shown in the table below:

Year	Incidents of Assault
2011	50
2013	94

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, in light of the absence of proposals to legislate within the current Justice Bill on the collection of £14 million outstanding court fines, when he will bring forward the Fines and Enforcements Bill, or whether it is possible to introduce this as an additional inclusion in the Justice Bill.

(AQW 35192/11-15)

Mr Ford: I plan to bring a draft Fines and Enforcement Bill to the Executive for approval to introduce into the Assembly this coming autumn. The Bill will contain a completely new regime for the collection and enforcement of fines with a range of additional powers for courts supported by a newly created collection and enforcement service.

Powers will be available for example to deduct fine payments from income and, following my recent policy consultation, I also intend to create powers to seize vehicles and access bank accounts in certain situations.

The Bill will not only change the law on fines. It will also contain important changes to youth justice law following the Youth Justice Review; changes to both Prisoner and Police Ombudsman legislation; and some changes to prisons law.

Across the breadth and depth of its scope, the Bill will require detailed Committee scrutiny which would not be possible if it were to be brought forward as an amendment to the Justice Bill. It would therefore be neither feasible nor appropriate for the Fines and Enforcement Bill to be combined with the Justice Bill.

In terms of unpaid fines, a programme of work is already underway ahead of new legislation to recover currently outstanding amounts where possible. All outstanding warrants have been recalled for review by the judiciary and a default hearing system commenced whereby cases are brought back to court for review.

In due course it is my intention that the new powers in the Fines and Enforcement Bill will also be available to tackle any remaining outstanding fines.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 33630/11-15, how many staff are employed in the Prisoner Safety and Support Team; and to outline their job descriptions.

(AQW 35194/11-15)

Mr Ford: Including the Head of Unit, there are six staff employed in Prisoner Safety and Support (PSS).

The role of PSS is to deliver a safer environment for all prisoners in NIPS care and its main responsibilities are to ensure compliance with the Suicide and Self Harm Prevention Policy.

PSS also considers cases where an individual may pose a risk to themselves and the prison or where they have difficulty in coping whilst in prison.

Safer Custody is a multi-disciplinary, multi-functional element of prison life and the prison service works in partnership with stakeholders such as the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust, probation, psychology and ADEPT. While PSS provides a dedicated specific role it must be noted that responsibility for delivery of safer custody extends to all staff.

Department for Regional Development

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the (i) cost; and (ii) location of all new water and sewage pumping stations planned for North Down.

(AQW 34697/11-15)

Mr Kennedy (The Minister for Regional Development): Work is ongoing and proposed to progress capital sewerage schemes, some of which require the construction of new pumping facilities as part of the solution.

In the Bangor area, work is being carried out in the Harbour area to provide storm storage with onward pumping to Luke's Point. The cost of this work is approximately £2 million.

It is anticipated that work will be progressed to replace the existing Castle Park Pumping Station with a new build on the same site. The cost of the pumping station element of this work is estimated at £2 - £2.5 million.

It is also intended that similar work will be carried out at the existing Stricklands Glen pumping station, to build a new pumping station on the same site at an estimated cost of £1.8 million.

In the Holywood area, a scheme is presently being prepared for the construction of a new pumping station necessitated by the need to address odour and ineffective overflow operations in the Kinnegar Catchment. The pumping station site is located on the periphery of the Kinnegar Wastewater Treatment Works and will require expenditure of approximately £2 million.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Regional Development what consideration has been given to providing two vehicles free-of-charge to the rural transport organisations, given that they have been leasing the vehicles from Translink for the last seven years.

(AQW 34827/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Grant funding arrangements for the Rural Community Transport Partnerships (RCTPs) ensure that services can be provided to members and that this Department is compliant with EU regulations.

The RCTPs were provided with access to vehicles, owned by Translink, but the funding provided by my Department was adjusted accordingly.

Public auction offers the fairest option for disposal of vehicles as the RCTP's and indeed other voluntary and community organisations then have the opportunity to bid and purchase at perhaps a more favourable rate.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of how cycling uptake correlates with deprivation levels.

(AQW 34855/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Travel Survey for Northern Ireland (TSNI) is the only source of data that records how and why people travel in Northern Ireland. A range of cycling specific information is recorded, including a question on those who have ridden a bicycle in the last 12 months.

The official measure of spatial deprivation in Northern Ireland is the NI Multiple Deprivation Measure (NIMDM) 2010. The question on cycling in the last 12 months was analysed by NIMDM 2010 for the most recent data available (2010-2012). These findings were compared to the results for NI as a whole.

It was found that respondents living in the 20% most deprived areas were less likely to have cycled in the last 12 months than the NI population as a whole.

Conversely, respondents living in the 20% least deprived areas were more likely to have cycled in the last 12 months compared to the overall NI population.

Looking at the respondents living in the remaining areas, there was no real difference in the proportion of those who had cycled in the last 12 months compared to the NI total.

More information on the TSNI can be found at:

http://www.drndi.gov.uk/index/statistics/stats-categories/northern_ireland_travel_survey.htm.

It must be remembered that levels of cycling in specific areas cannot simply be attributed to the level of deprivation, for example the geography of a location can be a contributory factor as to whether people cycle or not. Levels of Cycling may also be impacted where low cost, widely available modes of transport such as black taxi 'bus' routes are available.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development how he plans to promote cycling in areas of high deprivation.
(AQW 34856/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Cycling Unit is currently developing a draft Bicycle Strategy for Northern Ireland which will be published for consultation in the near future.

This strategy will outline all aspects required to create a better environment for cyclists including infrastructure provision, support measures and promotion. In taking forward the strategy I am particularly keen to explore opportunities to enhance cycling in areas of deprivation.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development how his Department has made Albert Bridge, Belfast safer for cyclists in the last six months.
(AQW 34857/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: There is an onus on all road users, including those using Albert Bridge, Belfast, to travel safely and respect one another. As numbers of cyclists on our roads continue to increase, it is important that their safety as well as the safety of other road users is given the highest priority.

The Member may be aware that I recently launched the 'Bus and Bike Travelling in Harmony' campaign, a joint initiative with Translink, Sustrans and my Department's Travelwise team which aims to provide each group with a better understanding of each other's needs such as giving sufficient road space, potential blind spots and the importance of making the appropriate adjustments while travelling to ensure they travel safely on the road together. This should benefit cyclists using Albert Bridge as well many other routes in Belfast and elsewhere in Northern Ireland.

In addition, my Department is currently working on developing a clear and aspirational vision for cycling, which will give an increased focus and priority to the needs of cyclists, and pedestrians, to encourage greater participation in this healthy and sustainable form of transport.

A key task will be to work with stakeholders in the assessment and development of current bicycle infrastructure and progressing opportunities for new routes.

My Department is looking at the new pedestrian and cycle bridge proposed between Ormeau Park, on Ravenhill Embankment and the Gas Works. Given the constraints of and limited potential for significant infrastructure improvements at sites such as Albert Bridge, this bridge may give an alternative traffic free route to those cycling from the east of the city into the city centre.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.
(AQW 34906/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Details of the investment by my Department, and its arm's-length bodies (Northern Ireland Water and Translink) in North Belfast between April 2011 and May 2014 are provided below.

	2011-121	2012-13	2013-14	2014-15 (April and May 2014)	Total
	£'million	£'million	£'million	£'million	£'million

Department

The following streets in North Belfast had resurfacing of footways and carriageways in the applicable years.

- Information is normally held on a financial year basis therefore total expenditure for 2011-12 has been provided.
- Expenditure by the Department on roads infrastructure and maintenance of the road network is analysed for each financial year on a District Council basis rather than a parliamentary constituency basis. As the parliamentary constituency of North Belfast includes wards of both Belfast City Council and Newtownabbey Borough Council, the table above provides the expenditure for both Council areas.
- An estimate of expenditure is provided as expenditure is currently being analysed.

4. Expenditure is analysed on a financial year basis therefore no details are currently available for 2014-15.
5. During these financial years my Department has invested in the purchase of new modern buses, some of which have been deployed in the North Belfast constituency. It is not possible to assign a specific sum to this investment.

Mr McMullan asked the Minister for Regional Development whether he will instruct the Flood Investment and Planning Group to coordinate an investigation into the flooding of Carnlough village due to the collapse of the sea defence wall.

(AQW 34945/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Department is not aware of the collapse of any sea defence infrastructure it owns in Carnlough village or of any drainage infrastructure issue which would require investigation.

A short length of sea wall on property belonging to the Londonderry Arms Hotel was removed during the 2013 winter storm surges to allow sea water to drain away. The Department carried out this work in agreement with the proprietor of the hotel following a request from a local councillor. The sea wall has subsequently been reinstated.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the current cost of parking in each departmental owned car park in Belfast.

(AQW 35019/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Details of parking tariffs for all of my Department's charged Car Parks are available via the NI Direct website at the following web address:

<http://www.nidirect.gov.uk/index/information-and-services/travel-transport-and-roads/parking-and-parking-enforcement/off-street-and-on-street-parking.htm>

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of the proportion of badges issued under the Blue Badge Scheme that are currently being used unlawfully.

(AQW 35035/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: In Northern Ireland there are currently 109,085 Blue Badge holders.

In 2013/2014 Traffic Attendants issued 99 Penalty Charge Notices relating to misuse of Blue Badges.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister for Regional Development whether there are any plans to create a proper cycle lane from Bangor to Belfast.

(AQW 35046/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department's Cycling Unit is currently working on developing a clear and aspirational vision for cycling, which will give an increased focus and priority to the needs of cyclists, and pedestrians, to encourage greater participation in this healthy and sustainable form of transport.

A key task will be to work with stakeholders in the assessment and development of current bicycle infrastructure and progressing opportunities for new routes. Officials will be looking at the development of joined up routes in urban centres and greenway route between town and city centres.

The linkage between Bangor and Belfast will be one of the routes that will be considered.

Mr Cree asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the current plans and future strategy for reservoirs in Conlig.

(AQW 35058/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Conlig Impounding Reservoirs have been out of service for some time and are surplus to requirements. In accordance with the terms of its operating licence, NI Water has an obligation to dispose of assets that are no longer of use. The reservoirs have been identified for disposal during the current financial year, and expressions of interest have been invited from the public sector, in accordance with the Department of Finance and Personnel's Disposal of Surplus Public Sector Property in the Northern Ireland guidance document. If it is not possible to transfer ownership of the reservoirs within the public sector, NI Water will consider other options for disposal.

The closing date for submissions to the Department of Finance and Personnel's Land and Property Services (LPS) from interested parties was 27 June 2014. LPS is currently collating the expressions of interest and aims to forward details to NI Water by the end of July for consideration.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on actions taken regarding noise pollution in the Ardmore area of Belfast.

(AQW 35073/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Road traffic noise levels at Ardmore Avenue were assessed using two pieces of legislation: The Noise Insulation Regulations (NI) 1995, which relate to the noise generated from newly constructed or upgraded roads; and the Environmental Noise Regulations (NI) 2006, which relate to general noise.

The results of these assessments indicated there was no requirement for any noise mitigation measures.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister for Regional Development whether his Department has considered erecting sound proofing structures to prevent road noise at the Ardmore Area of Belfast.

(AQW 35075/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I would refer the Member to the answer I provided to Assembly Question AQW 35073/11-15.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister for Regional Development what action Northern Ireland Water is taking to complete the storm water plans at Ballyclare Waste Water Treatment Plant; and to detail when the works will be complete.

(AQW 35094/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Northern Ireland Water is progressing two separate workstreams in relation to storm water plans and Ballyclare Waste Water Treatment Works (WWTW):

NI Water is currently undertaking an appraisal to (i) increase the capacity of the treatment membranes and/or (ii) upgrade the storm tank holding capacity at the Ballyclare WWTW. This appraisal work should be completed by the end of December 2014. It is expected that the membranes will all be replaced in the 2015 calendar year, however any other capital works on site will be dependent on the outcome of the Utility Regulator's PC15 Final Determination, due in December 2014.

Following consideration by the inter-departmental Stormwater Management Group NIW has prioritised progression of the Ballyclare Drainage Area Study (DAS). A new sewerage network model is being built and flow monitoring is currently taking place on site to allow the model to be verified. The model should be completed by the end of October 2014 and it will then be used to assess the issues and develop outline solutions. Some storm separation works in the Ballyclare WWTW sewerage network are likely to be amongst the first capital works to progress in the PC15 period as part of the PC15 'Storm Separation' pilot capital funding, subject again to the Regulator's Final Determination and the findings of the DAS.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on NI Water's investigation on the combined sewer on Dunadry Road, Co. Antrim, including the pumping station at the bridge in the grounds of the Dunadry Inn; and to detail (a) when; and (b) how the report will be published.

(AQW 35149/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I have been advised by Northern Ireland Water that its investigation into the combined sewer on Dunadry Road and Dunadry Wastewater Pumping Station is currently underway and being carried out in accordance with the company's Capital Investment Appraisal System requirements. The appraisal study and project business case are expected to be completed in August 2014, however the completed appraisal study report is an internal document which will contain commercially sensitive information. I have asked NI Water to send you an executive summary of the report when it becomes available.

Emerging findings from the appraisal study indicate that additional wastewater storage volume is a key requirement at the Dunadry Wastewater Pumping Station in order to reduce unsatisfactory intermittent discharges into the Six Mile River. This work will be considered by NI Water during its PC15 (2015-2021) capital works prioritisation process.

Department for Social Development

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Social Development, in relation to people with illnesses or disabilities who were on benefits but have been classed for work, (i) whether staff at Social Security Agencies can assist or advise on rights and legalities, when prospective employers reject job applicants on the grounds of illness or disability which was lawfully declared on application forms or at interview; (ii) whether Social Security Staff report such employers; if so, (iii) to whom do they report; and (iv) how often this has occurred since the introduction of Welfare Reform.

(AQW 34942/11-15)

Mr McCausland (The Minister for Social Development): The Social Security Agency's primary responsibility is to pay social security benefits accurately and securely and to give advice and information about these benefits. The Agency has no responsibility for providing claimants with advice on their rights and legalities where prospective employers reject their job applications on the grounds of illness or disability. The NI Direct Website provides information for people with disabilities and also provides links to other useful websites including the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland.

Written Answers to Questions

Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister

Mr McGlone asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline the benefits, including financial benefits, to the economy of the Barosa Task Force in each year since its inception.

(AQW 32125/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): The recommendations by the Barroso Taskforce in its report of 2007, which were adopted by all EU Commissioners, provided a clear roadmap for enhanced Northern Ireland engagement with Europe. The emphasis of the Taskforce Report was on helping the region to generate more growth and jobs and in that way create more economic opportunities and thereby underpinning the peace process. The Report specifically cited a low level of entrepreneurship with low investment in research and innovation, persistent negative image of the region to international investors and a high proportion of the population detached from the world of work. The Taskforce drew and continues to draw our attention to the many competitive European Programmes available to us to help enhance our investment in research and development and transport and energy initiatives to help support our infrastructure development.

In response to the Barroso Taskforce Report, we established an inter-departmental co-ordinating group, the objectives of which are:

- promoting the Executive's interests within the European Union;
- raising the Executive's positive profile throughout Europe;
- raising awareness and encouraging participation in European matters;
- access EU funding; and
- sharing experience of building peace and conflict resolution in a divided society with Europe and beyond.

Indirectly, the Taskforce has also stimulated enhanced co-ordination across stakeholders through the Northern Ireland European Regional Forum, jointly chaired by OFMDFM and the Belfast City Council.

More specifically and in response to the opportunities that the Taskforce presented, the Executive set itself a target of increasing drawdown from Competitive European Programmes of 20%. In terms of the financial benefit therefore, this translates at the halfway point in the budget period (March 2013) to a financial gain ie an additional £14.5 million in drawdown.

The Barroso Taskforce ensures that the region is very much on the Commission's 'radar' at the most senior levels. This creates a context in which advice is more readily sought and given, senior officials and Commissioners are more readily accessible and Commission officials more willing to give their time, and travel to participate in meetings, seminars and conferences locally. Consequently, we are better placed to influence key decisions in Europe such as the allocation of 150 million euros to a 4th peace programme. This ultimately translates into jobs and growth, and helps support and strengthen our economy.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to list the victims groups being funded by the Victims Support Service.

Mr Eastwood asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the applications received for funding for anti-racism projects since May 2011; and which of these applications took longer than six months to process.

(AQW 34431/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Around 100 applications have been received under the Minority Ethnic Development Fund (MEDF) since May 2011. These include projects relating to racial equality – such as the provision of English language classes, information, help and advice.

In addition to the MEDF, organisations can also apply to the Central Good Relations Fund. We gave formal approval to the establishment of a Central Good Relations Fund in July 2012 and the 2012/13 scheme was launched on 8 January 2013.

OFMDFM also supports a wide range of good relations work through the District Council Good Relations Programme. This includes work to tackle racism and improve race relations across all 26 District Councils. However, this work is delivered by the Councils and applications for project funding do not come to the Department directly. OFMDFM provides 75% of the cost of the District Council Good Relations Programme with Councils providing the remaining 25%. The number of applications is not known.

Ms Ruane asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the Global Summit to End Sexual Violence in Conflict which was attended by the junior Ministers.

(AQO 6405/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Junior Minister Bell and Junior Minister McCann attended the Global Summit to End Sexual Violence in Conflict, which took place in London between 10 and 13 June.

The aim of the Summit was to create a sense of irreversible movement towards ending the use of rape and sexual violence in conflict.

The Northern Ireland Gender Equality Strategy strives to eliminate gender-based violence in our society and to ensure the equal participation of women in conflict resolution.

At the Summit, Junior Ministers met with a delegation of women who work in community organisations across Northern Ireland. They will be looking at how good practice shared at the conference can be applied in Northern Ireland.

Mr Rogers asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline the action plan to address Child Poverty under commitment 37 of the Programme for Government 2011-15.

(AQO 6406/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We gave a Commitment in the Programme for Government to fulfil our statutory obligations under the Child Poverty Act.

The Strategy – Improving Children's Life Chances – set the context for an action plan which all departments gave a commitment to contribute. In accordance with the requirements of the Act, we have conducted annual reviews of our Child Poverty Strategy, and we have laid reports emerging from those reviews in the Assembly.

The Child Poverty Act also requires that we revise the Strategy every three years. To help inform the revised Strategy, which we hope to lay in the Assembly shortly, we commissioned work from the National Children's Bureau to establish a cross governmental approach in which every department understands its role in reducing child poverty and makes an effective contribution to improving outcomes. A Child Poverty Outcomes Framework was published last October. The framework is based on the key principles of Outcomes Based Accountability which has a track record of delivering improvements in outcomes internationally.

Fulfilling our statutory requirements is clearly important, but it is only one element of our efforts to tackle child poverty and its impacts.

Our Department is driving the Delivering Social Change Framework to address priority social policy areas.

Seven Signature Projects are being taken forward, across departments to:

- support families;
- address barriers to learning;

- improve literacy and numeracy; and
- support job creation within local communities.

Mr Weir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what consideration is being given to safeguarding legislation to protect older people.

(AQW 34866/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Work on the development of an Adult Safeguarding Policy is being taken forward by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, in partnership with the Department of Justice. Both departments intend to engage with key stakeholders over the summer months and commence public consultation on the draft policy in Autumn 2014. This consultation will also seek views on a range of legislative options to underpin the policy.

Mr Easton asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to list the Community Houses in North Down and Ards that have applied to the Social Investment Fund for building extensions to increase capacity and training facilities.

(AQW 34915/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Subject to approval of the Economic Appraisal, a scoping exercise will be undertaken to ascertain the potential value to improve the community houses listed below:

- 32 South Avenue, Whitehill (Bangor);
- 26 Rathgill Park, Rathgill (Bangor);
- 21 Breezemount Park, Breezemount (Bangor);
- 189 Ballyree Drive, Bloomfield (Bangor);
- 2 Kilcooley Square (Bangor);
- 18B Cuan Place, Scrabo Estate (Ards);
- 60D Beechfield Drive, (Donaghadee); and
- 23a Queens Square, East End (Ards).

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, pursuant to AQW 33877/11-15, what projects are supported by the Minority Ethnic Development Fund; and how much funding has been received by each project in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35093/11-15)

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that their Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35103/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: OFMDFM is not involved in any Public Private Partnerships for which there are ongoing investigations.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what assurances they can give that childcare for children with a disability will remain a priority; and that the current and future funding allocation for summer schemes, training provision and small capital grants to cater for children with a disability will be guaranteed.

(AQW 35187/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Childcare for children with a disability is and will remain a priority of the Bright Start Childcare Strategy. Childcare for children with a disability is currently addressed in the first phase of the Strategy under Key First Action 6, responsibility for which rests with DHSSPS. To date, Bright Start has allocated approximately £500,000 to help childcare providers meet the needs of children with a disability. OFMDFM and DHSSPS officials are currently liaising to confirm the resources needed to deliver further assistance, including training, small grants and summer schemes, in the present financial year.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the current funding amount secured for the childcare strategy Bright Start; and how any shortfall will be found.

(AQW 35188/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The first phase of the Bright Start Childcare Strategy, including 15 Key First Actions to address the main childcare priorities identified during consultation and research, was launched in September 2013. There is currently provision of £13 million to resource the Key First Actions up to 2017/18. OFMDFM will continue to liaise with the departments responsible for the Actions to confirm funding needs. Further resources will, if required, be secured under normal public expenditure processes.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what projects the Department is prioritising for children with disabilities through the disability strategy; and to list the projects funded as part of the disability strategy.
(AQW 35189/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Since publication of the Executive's Disability Strategy, we have taken forward several projects for children with disabilities. OFMDFM worked with Disability Action to develop a Schools Educational Resource Pack for teachers and youth workers to help teach pupils and young people about the rights of people with disabilities. We have also supported Special Olympics Ulster to provide young people with learning disabilities an opportunity to actively participate in public life.

We are currently considering a number of further projects submitted by Departments to deliver outcomes under the Strategy, to be taken forward within the Delivering Social Change Framework. An annual report on the Strategy will provide a full account of our work under the Strategy and will be published in due course.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how much funding is available to realise the disability strategy, particularly for children and young people with disabilities.
(AQW 35190/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We are currently considering a number of proposed projects submitted by departments to deliver outcomes under the Executive's Disability Strategy, to be taken forward within the Delivering Social Change Framework. The proposed projects cover a range of disabilities and a range of ages from children through to older people. Funding for agreed projects will need to be bid for in the normal manner.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how the disability strategy has improved the lives of children and young people with disabilities and their families.
(AQW 35191/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Since the publication of the Executive's Disability Strategy in February 2013, we have taken forward a number of actions that impact positively on the lives of children and young people with disabilities and their families.

On 2 May 2013, OFMDFM hosted a major, inclusive disability awareness conference with representatives from across government and the disability sector to consider how current arrangements met the needs of all people with disabilities on the basis of equality.

Our officials have worked in partnership with Disability Action to develop a resource pack for teachers and youth workers to assist in teaching pupils and young people about the rights of people with disabilities. The Resource Pack was issued to 341 schools and youth clubs in December 2013. Feedback has been very positive.

We have also provided funding to Special Olympics Ulster to give young people with learning disabilities with an opportunity to actively participate in public life. Participation in this programme has helped these young people to thrive and grow in confidence, improving their quality of life.

An annual report on the delivery of the Disability Strategy for 2013/2014 will be published setting out these and other actions that all departments have undertaken under the Strategy in its first year.

We are currently considering a number of further projects submitted by departments to deliver outcomes under the Disability Strategy, to be taken forward within the Delivering Social Change Framework.

Department of Agriculture and Rural Development

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for her assessment of the gender balance on the public bodies linked to her Department; and to detail the steps that she has taken to ensure that women are not under-represented.
(AQW 35083/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill (The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development): Earlier this year I met with the Commissioner for Public Appointments, John Keanie, and discussed with him his report into Under Representation and Lack of Diversity in Public Appointments. As his report makes clear, women, young people, ethnic minorities and people with a disability are under-represented on the boards of public bodies.

I have instructed my Department to initiate a review, led by a senior official, to address the under-representation of women on the boards of DARD's five NonDepartmental Public Bodies, and prepare a report recommending specific actions, goals and timetables. I believe that this work will also inform how we improve diversity more generally on our departmental public bodies and other fora for which my Department is responsible.

This review is ongoing.

Department of Education

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Education, in relation to the language classes replacing the Woodlands Speech and Language unit, (i) how many children require Speech and Language Therapy provision in the new proposed units; (ii) how many children will require ongoing provision in the Woodlands Language Unit; (iii) what speech and language therapy assistant provisions will be in place; and (iv) what therapy resources and budget have been set aside for the new units to meet the needs of the children.

(AQW 35131/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): The Western Education and Library Board (WELB) has advised as follows:

- (i) 18 children will require speech and language therapy provision in the proposed new classes;
- (ii) 20 children currently require ongoing provision at the Woodlands speech and language classes;
- (iii) the provision of speech and language therapy will be determined by the Western Health and Social Care Trust (WHST) Speech and Language Therapy Department;
- (iv) an allocation of £10k has been made to each of the three schools concerned from the WELB to facilitate the purchase of resources for the new speech and language classes. This will include the purchase of specific resources which have been recommended by the WHST Speech and Language Therapy Department.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education why St Columbkille's Primary School, Carrickmore was not included in the list of Major Capital Projects to be Advanced in Planning, which was announced on Tuesday 24 June 2014; and whether his Department will be in a position to include this school in his next list of proposed new build schools to be advanced in planning.

(AQW 35199/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Catholic Council for Maintained Schools identified St Columbkille's Primary School along with its other priorities for major capital investment. I approved a protocol which was used to prioritise those schools included in my latest announcement of 24 June. St Columbkille's Primary School was scored under the protocol however it did not attract a sufficient score to be included in my announced list of schools to be advanced in planning due to budget constraints.

There are many school building projects I would like to fund and difficult decisions have to be made on how to invest the capital budget available to me. This in no way implies that the project for St Columbkille's will not be considered for a new build at some later stage. If the precise nature of any capital works required is determined, bids should continue to be made through the Minor Works or Schools Enhancement programme.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education how his Department plans to progress the issue of capital funding for Dean Maguirc College, Carrickmore.

(AQW 35200/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Dean Maguirc College was one of the schools CCMS included in its list of priorities to be considered for my June 2014 capital investment announcement.

It was considered under 'The Major Works Projects Protocol for Selection of Projects to Proceed in Planning' dated June 2014. The protocol subjected the potential projects to 'Gateway' checks for sustainability and area planning issues prior to the remaining projects being prioritised. Ongoing sustainability issues with Dean Maguirc College – current enrolment is below the level set out in the sustainable schools policy - meant that it did not pass the 'Gateway' and hence could not be included in my 24 June announcement.

Subject to Department of Education (DE) approval, the Western Education & Library Board (WELB) plans to take forward, on behalf of DE and Trustees, works to replace three single mobile classrooms with a new permanent three classroom new-build block with toilet provision at Dean Maguirc College. WELB is progressing with the design, statutory approvals and appointment of a Contractor by March 2015. It is anticipated that works will begin on site in April 2015 with completion in October 2015.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Education to detail the annual average cost of educating a child in (i) primary; (ii) post-primary schools in County Fermanagh in each of the last ten years, broken down by sector.

(AQW 35218/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Department does not hold information on annual average costs at phase, region or sector level, as particular costs, including central costs, are not disaggregated to these levels. However, the specific costs of the schools are held and the tables below show average expenditure per pupil in County Fermanagh primary and post-primary schools, broken down by sector, in each of the ten financial years from 2004/05 to 2013/14 inclusive.

County Fermanagh Primary Schools 2004/05 to 2013/14

Notes:

- (i) Data for Primary Schools include Nursery Classes within Primary Schools. It is not possible to disaggregate the costs of Nursery Class pupils from those of primary pupils in the parent school;
- (ii) Data included for 2013-14 are still provisional pending publication of audited outturn statements by the appropriate Funding Authority – the Western Education and Library Board, in respect of Controlled and Maintained schools; and the Department of Education, in respect of Voluntary Grammar and Grant-Maintained Integrated Schools.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education whether he will ensure that all teachers and staff, including those employed by the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools, can access the Cycle to Work Scheme.

(AQW 35220/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The decision whether to offer a 'Cycle to Work' Scheme to employees is a matter for individual employers.

I understand that the Chief Executives of the five Education and Library Boards (ELBs) and the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools (CCMS) have determined that in the current challenging financial environment they cannot support such a scheme. This decision was recently reviewed by the employers who decided that they will continue not to fund the scheme due to current budget constraints. I am advised that the matter has and is being kept under regular review.

Voluntary Grammar schools are employers in their own right and a decision on whether or not to offer a Cycle to Work Scheme through salary sacrifice arrangements to all staff is a matter for the Board of Governors of each school.

Department for Employment and Learning

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that his Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35104/11-15)

Dr Farry (The Minister for Employment and Learning): There are no ongoing investigations in relation to Public Private Partnerships within my Department other than the standard value for money assessments which are conducted from time to time.

Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what percentage of the incubation unit at Carn Industrial Estate is currently utilised; and to detail the nature of the current businesses on site.

(AQW 34689/11-15)

Mrs Foster (The Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment): Carn Industrial Estate is not owned by Invest NI having been disposed of by the Industrial Development Board by way of public auction in 1995.

Invest NI understands that the incubation unit within the Carn Estate is owned by the Craigavon Industrial Development Organisation (CIDO). As Invest NI has no financial or operational responsibility for the organisation you may wish to contact their management directly.

The contact details for CIDO can be found on their website www.cido.co.uk.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment whether there are plans to create an enterprise zone in North Down.

(AQW 34966/11-15)

Mrs Foster: There are no immediate plans to create an enterprise zone in North Down.

There was one pilot Enterprise Zone announced in the Budget statement on 19 March and it will only offer Enhanced Capital Allowances (ECAs) as an incentive. This pilot Enterprise Zone will be designated in Coleraine.

The Chancellor's budget announcement on 19 March has extended the current legislation for ECAs for a further three years to 2020. This allows us to consider the potential option to propose other Enterprise Zones offering ECAs in other regions within Northern Ireland, subject to the existence of a potential capital-intensive project which could demonstrate economic benefit and where the benefits of an ECA would clearly outweigh the benefit from other forms of support.

The final decision to designate a zone offering ECAs is ultimately one for HM Treasury who would consider the cost to HMT, the extent to which Northern Ireland is benefiting in line with other parts of the UK, and the cost to the NI Block should additional zones be designated beyond those funded by the UK Government.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the number of enterprise zones.

(AQW 34967/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The UK Government's Economic Pact, published on 14 June 2013, set out 3 commitments in relation to Enterprise Zones, focusing on Enhanced Capital Allowances (ECAs) which permit 100% first year allowances for qualifying plant and machinery expenditure.

There was one pilot Enterprise Zone announced in the Budget statement on 19 March and it will only offer ECAs as an incentive.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to outline the criteria an area must meet to be designated as an enterprise zone.

(AQW 34969/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The UK Government's Economic Pact, published on 14 June 2013, set out 3 commitments in relation to Enterprise Zones, focusing on Enhanced Capital Allowances (ECAs) which permit 100% first year allowances for qualifying plant and machinery expenditure.

The pilot Enterprise Zone announced in the Budget statement on 19 March will only offer ECAs as an incentive. State Aid rules stipulate that ECAs cannot be offered alongside other forms of regional aid such as Selective Financial Assistance, business rate discounts etc.

The over-riding criteria therefore for any zone is that it will only be attractive to large capital-intensive projects where ECAs would provide an attractive incentive and would outweigh other forms of available financial support.

The final decision to designate a zone offering ECAs is ultimately one for HM Treasury who would consider the cost to HMT, the extent to which Northern Ireland is benefiting in line with other parts of the UK, and the cost to the NI Block should additional zones be designated beyond those funded by the UK Government.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the action she has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to her Department.

(AQW 34973/11-15)

Mrs Foster: On 6 December 2011, a public petition tabled by Stephen Agnew, MLA called “on the Northern Ireland Assembly to place an immediate and permanent ban on the process known as hydraulic fracturing and all related preparatory and exploratory work in Northern Ireland.”

On 6 December 2011, a No Day Named Motion stated that “a moratorium should be placed on the onshore and offshore exploration, development and production of shale gas by withdrawing licences for hydraulic fracturing.”

In discharging my Executive authority, my decisions are informed both by the terms of Assembly resolutions on matters for which I am responsible and a range of other relevant policy and practical considerations.

As my Department had not issued any licences for hydraulic fracturing there were none to withdraw – this remains the position.

In 2012, in conjunction with the then Environment Minister, I established the Shale Gas Regulators Forum in recognition of the need for collaboration between Government Departments and bodies involved in the preparation for shale-gas exploration in Northern Ireland, and possibly in due course its regulation.

The Forum is continuing to work to coordinate the activities of a number of regulatory bodies and to ensure a joined-up approach to regulation and monitoring.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 34376/11-15, of the total funding approved for Project Definition support, how much was taken up by businesses, in each of the last four years.

(AQW 35082/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Please see table below which shows payments made to businesses in respect of Project Definition support in the years 2010 – 2014.

Year	Total paid to businesses £m
2010-11	0.91
2011-12	0.43
2012-13	0.51
2013-14	0.42

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for her assessment of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Directive and Online Dispute Resolution Regulation and how it will be implemented in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35090/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Department of Finance and Personnel (DFP) is leading on implementation of Directive 2013/11/EU (the “ADR Directive”) but my Department has a particular interest in view of its consumer affairs, trading standards and energy responsibilities.

The Directive does not make alternative dispute resolution mandatory for either the consumer or business but requires Member States to ensure alternative dispute resolution is available for any contractual dispute that a consumer has with a business.

Many consumers and traders are not aware of existing alternative dispute resolution, with only a small proportion of consumers knowing how to make use of such schemes or indeed which scheme to use. I consider that the ADR Directive addresses many of these issues and should bring benefits for both consumers and businesses.

I support UK wide implementation by regulations to be made under section 2(2) of the European Communities Act 1972. This is the most effective and timely way to achieve implementation by the due date of July 2015. There are no unique Northern Ireland considerations which merit separate Northern Ireland implementation, particularly as most consumer legislation is UK wide and the ADR Directive permits existing schemes to be recognised for the purposes of the Directive provided they meet minimum standards. My Department will continue to liaise with DFP and the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills to ensure that Northern Ireland considerations are fully taken into account in the UK legislation.

The Regulation on Online Dispute Resolution (“ODR”) is linked with the ADR Directive and will automatically come into force in January 2016 across the European Union. Under ODR each Member State must designate one Online Dispute Resolution contact point. ODR suggests that the role of contact point could be fulfilled by the European Consumer Centres (ECCs). The UK ECC is hosted by the Trading Standards Institute. The UK Government in conjunction with the relevant Northern Ireland Departments are considering who should take on the role.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how she will ensure that the existing protections in place for energy consumers are not weakened by the implementation of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Directive.
(AQW 35091/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Department of Finance and Personnel is leading on the implementation of Directive 2013/11/EU (the "ADR Directive") in Northern Ireland. My Department will continue to engage closely with the Department of Finance and Personnel and the UK Department of Business Innovation and Skills to ensure that the interests of NI energy consumers are taken into account in the proposed UK-wide implementing Regulations to be made under section 2(2) of the European Communities Act 1972.

There is a legislative framework and a wide range of measures already in place through licences, dispute and complaints arrangements, price and tariff controls to protect the interests of energy consumers.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what direct engagement she and her officials have had with the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills in regards to the implementation of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Directive.
(AQW 35096/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department has been fully engaged with both DFP and the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) to ensure that Northern Ireland interests are protected. My Department will also continue to engage closely with DFP and BIS to ensure that NI considerations are fully taken into account in the proposed UK wide implementing Regulations to be made under section 2(2) of the European Communities Act 1972.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail (i) her assessment of the prospect for the underground gasification of coal as a method of extracting hydrocarbons; and (ii) the applicants and current and past holders of petroleum exploration licences that have referenced this process with her Department as a potential method of extraction of hydrocarbons; in the last five years.
(AQW 35120/11-15)

Mrs Foster:

- (i) The historical coal mining districts of Northern Ireland in County Tyrone and Ballycastle do not have any significant Underground Coal Gasification (UCG) resource potential because of extensive coal extraction and the relatively complex geology. Some deposits at Crumlin, Ballymoney and east Tyrone contain thick lignite seams at depths suitable for the UCG process. However, UCG is not yet a well-proven technology; without Carbon Capture and Storage the UCG process produces high greenhouse gas emissions and has associated environmental issues. As such it is highly unlikely that UCG could be used to produce gas in Northern Ireland in the foreseeable future.
- (ii) UCG is not permitted under the Petroleum Production Act (Northern Ireland) 1964 in which the definition of "petroleum" includes any mineral oil or relative hydrocarbon and natural gas existing in its natural condition in strata, but does not include coal or bituminous shales or other stratified deposits from which oil can be extracted by destructive distillation. UCG produces 'syngas' from coal and is excluded by this definition.

In the last 5 years no applicants or holders of petroleum licenses have referred to UCG in supporting documentation.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that her Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.
(AQW 35152/11-15)

Mrs Foster: DETI has one Public Private Partnership project and there has not been any investigation into this project.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how her Department can assist people who are economically inactive.
(AQW 35155/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Executive has recognised in the Programme for Government and Northern Ireland Economic Strategy that Economic Inactivity is one of the most persistent problems facing the local economy. It is only through adopting a coordinated and strategic approach across Departments that we can hope to address some of the structural issues which are restricting individual's access to the labour market.

I have been working with Minister Farry, supported by Ministers McCausland and Poots, to develop a strategy to reduce economic inactivity through skills, training, incentives and job creation.

A public consultation on a Strategic Framework was carried out earlier this year and officials are now working to finalise the Strategy which Minister Farry and I hope to bring to the Executive later in the year. The overarching strategic goal is to contribute towards a stable and competitive employment rate of over 70% by 2023. The Strategy will target two major inactive categories; individuals with family commitments and the long-term sick and disabled.

Within DETI, our focus is to improve the economic competitiveness of the Northern Ireland economy in line with the ultimate aim of the Executives' Economic Strategy. We are doing this by supporting businesses to grow and to export more – this focus will increase employment and opportunity for all.

Contributing to the rising number of employment opportunities, Invest NI has delivered its most successful year in 2013/14 in terms of job promotion. Over the course of the year, Invest NI promoted 10,800 jobs and secured investment totalling £775million in the Northern Ireland economy.

Specifically there are elements of Invest NI's Jobs Fund which are designed to provide opportunities for the economically inactive. Since its introduction in April 2011, 2405 of the jobs created through the Jobs Fund have gone to people who were either unemployed or economically inactive. These jobs have been created in existing private sector businesses, social enterprises or through jobs created by new business start-ups by individuals living in a Neighbourhood Renewal Area and young people aged 16 – 24 not previously in employment, education or training (NEET).

Invest NI also provides sponsorship support to the Women in Business Network's

Women into Business programme. The programme is aimed at promoting, supporting and empowering economically inactive women in Northern Ireland to start their own business or aid them into sustained employment.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what licences must be obtained from her Department for consent to drill exploratory bore holes in relation to petroleum extraction and storage; and how the licensing regime differs from that in (i) the rest of the United Kingdom; and (ii) the Republic of Ireland.

(AQW 35185/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Petroleum Licence holders in Northern Ireland are obliged to seek written permission from my Department before they start drilling operations. DETI only grants a consent to drill if it is satisfied that all regulatory obligations will be met and that either planning permission or permitted development rights have been approved by DOE Planning.

DETI will also assess the proposed operations to ensure that they are in accordance with good industry practice.

A range of regulatory authorities are likely to be involved in determining whether drilling may proceed, and under what conditions - DOE has primary responsibility for planning and environmental matters, HSENI has broad responsibility for health and safety, and local councils regulate environmental health aspects such as noise, light and dust.

The licensing regime in Northern Ireland is broadly similar to that of the rest of the United Kingdom. In December 2013 the Department of Energy & Climate Change published a Regulatory Roadmap: Onshore oil and gas exploration in the UK regulation and best practice which illustrates a similar approach to regulation throughout England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

In the Republic of Ireland the Minister for Communications, Energy and Natural Resources (DCENR) grants the statutory consent, either an Exploration Licence or a Prospecting Licence, under the relevant legislation. The detailed proposal for a well is evaluated by the DCENR and requires administrative approval and approval to begin to drill the well. Exploration drilling is a designated activity pursuant to the Petroleum (Exploration and Extraction) Safety Act 2010 and requires a Safety Permit from the Commission for Energy Regulation as the safety regulator. Exploration drilling is subject to Irish environmental legislation but this shares many similarities with UK environmental legislation, as both must be in accordance with the relevant EU Directives.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how much electricity is currently generated by (i) small scale; and (ii) large scale renewable sources; and for her assessment of the number of jobs created and sustained in these sectors.

(AQW 35210/11-15)

Mrs Foster: In the 12 month period to end March 2014, 1,595,051 MWh¹ was generated from renewable sources which equates to 19.45% of total electricity consumption. While a breakdown of this renewable generation between small and large scale projects is not available, the vast majority of this generation comes from large scale projects (over 5 MW).

My Department does not hold information on jobs created and sustained in these sectors.

Department of the Environment

Mr Wells asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the number of confirmed incidents of birds of prey persecution involving the (i) poisoning; (ii) shooting; and (iii) trapping of (a) red kite; (b) golden eagle; (c) white-tailed eagle; (d) peregrine; (e) hen harrier; and (f) buzzard, in each of the last ten years.

(AQW 34531/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): Under the terms of the Wildlife (Northern Ireland) Order 1985, DOE has no power to investigate or prosecute wildlife offences of this nature. These powers lie with the PSNI. As this is the case, my Department does not hold, or is in a position to collect, the information sought.

I understand that my officials have been in touch with PSNI at officer level and have made them aware of your recent question. PSNI officers confirmed that they would be happy to respond to your query. I would therefore suggest that you refer your question regarding bird of prey persecutions directly to the PSNI Wildlife Liaison Officer, PSNI Headquarters, Brooklyn, Tel No: 07825166206.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34901/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department pays grants to third parties through a range of established grant schemes. The Department also undertakes a limited amount of capital investment in urban areas. Although departmental records of spend are not kept at constituency level a manual analysis of all grants disbursed and all construction projects undertaken, based on postcode, has been carried out for the North Belfast area.

On the basis of this analysis the table below provides details of funding provided by the Department for the financial years 2011-12 to date where the ultimate beneficiary is based in the North Belfast area.

No capital expenditure has been disbursed in the North Belfast area during this period.

The Department's arms-length bodies do not provide funding to third parties.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment how many applications have been received for the next tranche of Dereliction Intervention Funding.

(AQW 34907/11-15)

Mr Durkan: At the end of May 2014, 23 of the 26 councils applied for an allocation of Dereliction Intervention Funding.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, following PSNI investigations into alleged criminal activity based around taxi drivers and operators in West Belfast and County Down that was announced on 27 June 2014, whether any of those suspected of being involved in this activity are registered taxi licence or operator licence holders.

(AQW 34941/11-15)

Mr Durkan: This was a multi agency enforcement operation which targeted illegal taxi related activities and as such a number of licensed taxi drivers and operators are under investigation. It would be inappropriate at this stage to elaborate further as the investigation is ongoing.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of the Environment whether it is against European law for a taxi without a fixed meter to be hailed on-street.

(AQW 34953/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I am not aware of any European law that restricts the practical operation of a taxi based on whether a taximeter is fitted or not.

One area of the taxi industry which is, however, regulated in European law is in respect of the manufacture and sale of taximeters. As they are considered to be a 'measuring instrument' they fall within the Measuring Instruments Directive (2004/22/EC). The Directive is implemented in UK wide law by the Measuring Instruments (Taximeters) Regulations 2006 (S.I. 2006 No. 2304). These regulations establish the essential requirements that taximeters have to satisfy prior to their being placed on the market and put into use. This legislation prescribes the requirements that must be fulfilled by equipment for it to be considered a taximeter, but not the circumstances in which it can or must be used.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of the Environment what progress has been made on (i) establishing Approved Taxi Meter Centres; (ii) the definition of an Approved Taxi Meter Centre; and (iii) the number of Approved Taxi Meter Centres required.

Mr Durkan: On 19 June 2014, in a written statement to the Assembly, I outlined my intentions to make taximeter regulations before the end of the year, with the requirements coming into force from September 2015.

My Department continues to develop the operational model within which taximeters will be tested and sealed and I anticipate being able to provide further information on the details of the arrangements after the summer recess.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of the Environment to list the planning applications that have been approved for the Kiltonga Industrial Estate in Newtownards in each of the last five years; and what conditions have been applied in each case.

(AQW 34959/11-15)

Mr Durkan: A total of 6 planning applications have been approved for Kiltonga Industrial Estate during the last five years. A list of those applications, the date on which they were approved and the conditions attached in each case is provided at Annex A.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of the Environment (i) to list the planning approvals in force in the Kiltonga Industrial Estate in Newtownards; (ii) on what dates the approvals were granted; and (iii) who were the applicants.
(AQW 34960/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Please be advised that for the purposes of answering this question, I am interpreting the term 'planning approvals in force' to mean 'extant planning permissions'.

A list of all planning approvals in force for Kiltonga Industrial Estate, together with the date of the approvals and the names of the respective applicants, is provided at Annex A.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment how much was spent on planning enforcement in each year since 2007; and whether any cuts to planning enforcement will result from the proposed reduction in planning fees.

(AQW 34982/11-15)

Mr Durkan: At this time the Department is not proposing a reduction in planning fees. There are also currently no proposals to cut the planning enforcement undertaken by the Department.

The table below provides details of enforcement legal costs for the period 2009/10 to 2013/14. Comparable financial data for the two years 2007/08 and 2008/09 is not held by Planning.

Financial Year	Amount
2009/10	£77,996
2010/11	£136,902
2011/12	£82,469
2012/13	£121,223
2013/14	£188,635

Mr Allister asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the action he has taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to his Department.

(AQW 34988/11-15)

Mr Durkan: A public petition on "Exploris" was laid in the Assembly on 5 November 2013 and was subsequently sent to me by the Speaker and copied to the Chair of the Environment Committee.

The petition contained over 11,000 signatures calling for the Assembly and the different departments to provide regional funding and work with Ards Borough Council to draw up a plan to save "Exploris".

Prior to the laying of the petition, in my paper to the Executive on 17 October 2013 I had already indicated my view that financial assistance should be provided from central government in recognition of the contribution a revitalised "Exploris" could make to the Executive's PfG priorities in terms of boosting the local economy, securing jobs and tackling disadvantage.

I continue to support funding for a revitalised "Exploris" and have committed to meeting the cost of the seal sanctuary up to a limit of £120k per annum. I have also asked the Executive to provide a once only capital grant to upgrade the facilities at "Exploris" but as yet no decision has been made.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, in light of the PSNI investigations into alleged criminal activity based around taxi drivers and operators in West Belfast and County Down that was announced on 27 June 2014 (i) whether the Driver and Vehicle Agency are assisting in the investigation; and (ii) whether his Department will carry out their own investigation into the allegations to determine if any statutory or licensing regulations have been breached.

(AQW 34999/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Driver and Vehicle Agency is assisting the PSNI with its investigation into allegations of criminal activity involving taxi drivers and operators and is currently conducting its own investigation in respect of alleged breaches of taxi licensing requirements.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment, given that food processing and pharmaceuticals are singled out and identified in PED 8 as industries which require a containment free environment, and that slaughterhouses are specifically listed in the Supplementary Planning Guidance as a source of emission of dust, odour or other contaminants which may have the potential to impact upon sensitive industrial enterprises, whether a slaughterhouse would attain planning permission within a food park.

(AQW 35030/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department assesses such applications against Policy PED 8 of Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 4. In doing so, each application will be considered its own merits and will include consultation with expert bodies such as NIEA (Industrial Pollution & Radiochemical Inspectorate and Land and Resource Management) and the Environmental Health Departments of local Councils. The issues raised by such bodies will form an important part of the consideration.

In addition, the Department will also conduct an assessment of possible mitigation measures that can be put in place to ameliorate harmful impacts of the development.

However, I am unable to predict the outcome of such a proposal until a planning application has been subject to the normal statutory process and full rigour of the planning system.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, in relation to the Glenavy River pollution reported to the Northern Ireland Environmental Agency on 30 June 2014, for an estimated time for completion of a report on investigations into the incident.

(AQW 35067/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The investigation regarding water pollution in the Glenavy River is ongoing. Once all of the evidence is available, a decision on the appropriate further action will be made in accordance with standard procedures. This case will be reviewed on 29 August 2014 and following this it is likely that a case file for the Public Prosecution Service (PPS) will be prepared. The Northern Ireland Environment Agency has a target that enforcement action will be taken within 7 months (where the offender can be identified) on 90% of breaches in legislation which lead to significant environmental consequences.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment how many prosecutions for taxi offences have taken place in (i) Belfast; and (ii) Northern Ireland, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35069/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The numbers of prosecutions for taxi offences that have taken place in (i) Belfast; and (ii) Northern Ireland, in each of the last five years are contained in the table below.

	2009/10	2010/11	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14
Taxi offences prosecuted at Court in Northern Ireland (Belfast included)	Figures not available(1)	175	217	154	172

(1) There are no figures available for offences prosecuted in 2009/10 as the database currently in use was not introduced until the 2010/11.

* FPNs (Fixed Penalty Notices) were not introduced in Northern Ireland until 2011.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of the Environment whether he plans to alter the arrangements for neighbour notification which are currently operated by Planning Service.

(AQW 35076/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Since 1985, as part of the process of managing applications for planning permission, the Department has carried out a non-statutory policy of sending neighbour notification letters to occupiers of buildings who are most likely to be affected by a proposed development.

Currently the Department notifies those occupiers of buildings which meet two criteria i.e. the buildings are situated on land directly adjoining the application site (or which would adjoin it but for an entry or road of less than 20 metres in width) and are within a 90 metre radius from the boundary of the application site.

I regard neighbour notification as an important element of the planning system and believe that there is merit in its continuation after the transfer of powers to local councils on 1 April 2015.

However, when planning powers transfer to the new councils it is possible that there would be scope for confusion and variation in practice within and across council areas if the neighbour notification system was to continue on a non-statutory, administrative basis. I believe that the best way to ensure clarity and consistency is to establish a clearly defined minimum statutory requirement on the basis of the current criteria applied by the Department.

This is one of a range of proposals for subordinate legislation under the Planning Act (NI) 2011 which are currently out to public consultation and which can be accessed on the Department's website at the following address:-

http://www.planningni.gov.uk/index/policy/policy_legislation/consultations.htm

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 34002/11-15, whether he will bring forward a Climate Bill to the Assembly in sufficient time to ensure that it can be passed before the end of the current Assembly mandate.
(AQW 35085/11-15)

Mr Durkan: As I stated in my response to AQW 34002/11-15, whilst I see the benefits of a Northern Ireland Climate Change Bill, I also recognise that there are concerns about how we tackle this issue and at what cost. I continue to meet with stakeholders to hear views and build on a successful partnership approach to tackling climate change. In the circumstances, it would not be sensible to rush into legislation without attaining consensus on a way forward.

In saying that, my officials have considered the timeline needed to introduce a Bill and even if I had the full support of the Executive and Environment Committees, it will be impossible to bring forward a Climate Bill to the Assembly in sufficient time to ensure that it can be passed before the end of the current Assembly mandate.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 34149/11-15, (i) whether the Aggregates Levy Credit Scheme (ALCS) Code of Practice required that planning permission was received before an ALCS certificate was granted; and if so, under what circumstances can it be claimed that the Code of Practice was followed in relation to ALCS certificates issued in relation to Lough Neagh Special Protection Area, given that he has already confirmed that his Department was aware no planning permissions exist for extraction.

(AQW 35123/11-15)

Mr Durkan: In accordance with section 2.3 (Membership of the Scheme) of the ALCS Code of Practice, the Department was required to verify that all relevant permits or licences were in place (or had been applied for) and be satisfied that the operation was operating within the current regulatory framework.

The sites referred to pre-date the Planning (NI) Order 1972 and as such Planning Service had no powers to require that planning permission be obtained for these pre-1972 sites. Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC), on whose behalf the Department administered the ALCS, advised that certificates should be issued in such cases provided all other aspects of the regulatory framework was in order.

One of the reasons the ALCS was established was to incentivise site operators to improve environmental standards over a range of areas and, consequently, the decision was taken to invite the site operators to join the scheme. The scheme has been suspended since 1 December 2010.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the timetable for the clearing of each of the illegal waste dumps identified by his Department.

(AQW 35133/11-15)

Mr Durkan: There were originally seventeen sites in total requiring repatriation; nine of these sites have now been completed. This leaves eight sites still to be repatriated. Four in the South Armagh region, scheduled for completion by 2015; one in Co Tyrone outside Cookstown and one in Co Down outside Mayobridge scheduled for completion by 2016; one in Co Londonderry outside Portglenone and one in Co Antrim outside Crumlin scheduled for completion by 2017.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of the Environment whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that his Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35153/11-15)

Mr Durkan: There are no Public Private Partnerships currently associated with my Department.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment whether he intends to bring decisions relating to proposals to undertake hydraulic fracturing and extreme energy to the Executive; and to detail the power the Executive has to veto proposals for hydraulic fracturing without financial consequences if proposals are legally compliant.

(AQW 35202/11-15)

Mr Durkan: As Minister of the Environment I have made my position of unconventional hydraulic fracturing very clear. No decisions will be made until all the facts and scientific evidence have been established and to proceed to permit the technique at this time would be reckless. Current research being undertaken by Officials in my Department will establish a broader evidence base which will aid decision making on the issue.

I can advise that should any application be received by my Department, it will be subject to the full scrutiny of the planning process and will have to go through due process before any decision is made. I have always said that all appropriate planning and environmental standards will be strictly applied on the issue of unconventional hydraulic fracturing. As Planning and Environment Minister this approach will not be compromised.

I will keep my Executive colleagues informed of the position on key developments in proposals for unconventional hydraulic fracturing.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action (i) his Department; and (ii) Health and Social Care Trusts are taking to address pressures caused by an increase in community dietetic referrals for paediatric patients.

(AQW 34845/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): The Public Health Agency (PHA) and Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) are leading a regional review of current demand patterns and trends across Northern Ireland for Allied Health Professional (AHP) services, including community dietetic referrals for paediatric patients and the capacity available in individual Trusts to meet the demand.

Following implementation of the recommendations from the review, concerning revised data definitions and performance monitoring processes, the HSCB, PHA and individual Trusts will be able to define whether there is any additional pressure in community dietetic referrals for paediatric patients and address it via the appropriate local commissioning groups.

Ms S Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (i) who has the authority to call a major incident within hospitals; (ii) to outline the procedure involved; (iii) whether this procedure has changed within the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust since January 2014; and if so, (iv) what were the reasons for the change.

(AQW 35017/11-15)

Mr Poots:

Part (i)

Across all HSC Trusts the authority to call a major incident rests with the Director on call on the site in question, in consultation with other senior staff such as the Emergency Department consultant, Co-Directors on call for Acute / Unscheduled Care, the Patient Flow Co-ordinator and / or the Senior Nurse on duty.

Part (ii)

Trusts each have a Major Incident Plan, which is activated in line with a regionally recognised communication process for major incidents and in adherence to the NI Civil Contingency Framework and Controls Assurance Standard for Emergency Planning. It provides extensive procedures to guide the major incident response.

The first call about a potential major incident may be received by Ambulance Control or by a hospital Emergency Department. In either case, a communications plan is used to direct actions to ensure all relevant parties are alerted as soon as possible. This plan is subject to ongoing review and assessment to ensure it is fit for purpose and reflects lessons learned from previous experience. Communications are conducted face to face, via telephone, text, email and pager and are proportionate to the scale and potential impact of the incident and to help ensure consistency in the message delivered to responders.

When a potential major incident is alerted to one Trust site, other sites within that Trust, or indeed in other Trusts depending on the scale of the incident, may also be alerted to ensure there is sufficient capacity on standby to handle casualties.

Depending on the nature of the incident and the level of disruption, other major incident plans may be invoked, eg Business Continuity Plan, Fire Plan, etc..

Part (iii)

This procedure has not changed within the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust since January 2014.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the limitations of spend that pertain to the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme.

(AQW 35074/11-15)

Mr Poots: The 2014 Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS) has been developed to deliver stability and predictability in the cost of branded medicines in the next 5 years. The system of PPRS payments from the pharmaceutical industry which has been put in place is designed to ensure that the allowed growth in spend on medicines is not exceeded.

One of the overarching principles of the 2014 PPRS is to improve access to medicines commensurate with the outcomes they offer patients by ensuring that medicines approved by NICE are widely available in the Health Service. The PPRS scheme does not require the Department to support improved access to all branded medicines regardless of their clinical or cost effectiveness over agreed spending limits.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the current nurse shortages in (i) private; and (ii) statutory care homes, in each Health and Social Care Trust area.

(AQW 35097/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are no statutory nursing homes in Northern Ireland and nurses are not required in statutory residential care homes as these facilities do not provide nursing care.

My department does not hold data on staffing issues in care homes in the private sector.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the average weekly rate that each of the Health and Social Care Trusts have paid to independent care homes for each of the four main Programmes of Care in each of the last ten years; and whether this has increased at the same rate as these business's incurred costs.

(AQW 35143/11-15)

Mr Poots: The tables below detail the available information on the regional rate set annually by the Health and Social Care (HSC) Board negotiated with the independent sector for residential and nursing home care. These rates represent a guide to what the HSC considers fair and affordable and is not a fixed price for a care placement. It should be noted that there will be instances where HSC Trusts will be required to procure a more expensive placement.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the concerns of owners of independent care homes in the Western Health and Social Care Trust area regarding the increasing financial pressures they are experiencing.

(AQW 35144/11-15)

Mr Poots: Circular HSC ECCU 1/2010 provides the Health and Social Care (HSC) Board and Trusts with guidance on the care management process and highlights their duty to ensure that quality services are procured and delivered in response to assessed need at a cost that represents best value for money within available resources.

Each year a Regional Rate is negotiated by the HSC Board with the independent sector for residential and nursing home care. The Regional Rate is a guide to what the HSC considers fair and affordable, not a fixed price for a care placement. HSC Trusts are required to contract for the full cost of the assessed care needs, even where that is not obtainable at the regional rate. Furthermore, HSC Trusts are reminded of the need to achieve optimum quality, flexibility of supply and value for money in procuring services.

This negotiation process ensures that all HSC Trusts engage with providers on an ongoing basis regarding various issues including service provision and tariffs.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the average weekly cost in (i) statutory; and (ii) independent care homes for (a) residential; and (b) nursing packages, in each of the last ten years.

(AQW 35145/11-15)

Mr Poots: It is only possible to provide details of costs provided by Health and Social Care Trusts to independent residential and nursing homes from the establishment of the five new integrated HSC Trusts in April 2007.

Average costs per occupied resident week from 2007/08 to 2012/13 are set out in the table below.

Average Cost per Occupied Resident Week £

	2012/13	2011/12	2010/11	2009/10	2008/09	2007/08
Statutory Residential Homes	1,399	1,260	1,140	1,101	1,032	936
Independent Residential Homes	538	531	529	516	504	475
Statutory Nursing Homes	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
Independent Nursing Homes	598	588	596	576	562	521

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what additional support (i) his Department; and (ii) the Health and Social Care Trusts can offer independent residential and nursing care homes in areas where there is no statutory provision.

(AQW 35146/11-15)

Mr Poots: Circular HSC (ECCU) 1/2010 Care Management, Provision of Services and Charging guidance reminds the HSC of its overriding duty to procure quality services at a price which represents value for money.

Each year the HSC Board negotiate a regional rate with the independent sector for residential and nursing home care. The regional rate is a guide to what the HSC considers to be fair and affordable, not a fixed price for a care placement.

The rate of remuneration for independent sector residential/nursing homes is not dependent on the availability of statutory sector provision in a locality. It is based on the regionally determined rates and any additional costs for services which are negotiated and agreed with the local Health and Social Care (HSC) Trust and/or the individual's family.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the implementation of the Action Plan for Quality Palliative and End of Life Care detailed in his Department's report, Living Matters, Dying Matters, which was launched in March 2010.

(AQW 35168/11-15)

Mr Poots: A Regional Implementation Board is in place to take forward the implementation of the recommendations contained in 'Living Matters:Dying Matters', the Palliative and End of Life Care Strategy for Adults in Northern Ireland. The Implementation Board has been working across a number of key areas including:

- Increasing understanding of palliative and end of life care through:
 - Ensuring palliative care induction is in place for staff;
 - Undertaking a collaborative research project in partnership with the Patient and Client Council to explore public awareness in palliative care;
 - Hosting events to raise understanding and awareness of palliative care.
- Developing responsive and competent staff to deliver quality care:
 - A palliative and end of life care competency assessment tool for staff across the HSC and independent sectors has been developed and implemented;
 - A regional palliative and end of life care learning and development programme has been implemented in nursing homes.
- Recognising and talking about what matters:
 - A Regional Local Enhanced Service is in place for Advance Care Planning for people in nursing homes;
 - The All Ireland Institute of Hospice and Palliative Care (AIHPC) in collaboration with the Public Health Agency (PHA) has completed the first phase of data collections to gather the experience of people affected by or caring for someone with palliative and end of life care needs.

- Timely information and choice:
 - An information booklet - 'Your Life and Your Choices - Plan Ahead' has been developed in collaboration between the PHA and Macmillan Cancer Support.
- Co-ordinated care, support and continuity:
 - The End of Life Care Operational System (ELCOS) has been developed to help identify people who may be in the last year of life and to prompt identification of their needs and preferences;
 - A business case has been established to support the development of a Key Information System to capture and record information on palliative care needs.

In addition, an initiative is currently being taken forward by the Health and Social Care Board and the Public Health Agency in partnership with Marie Curie Cancer Care to improve palliative and end of life care in Northern Ireland. This 2 year initiative, Transforming Your Palliative and End of Life Care, which was launched in September 2013 and is based on Marie Curie's nationally developed Delivering Choice Programme, aims to support the delivery of co-ordinated services to enable people with palliative and end of life care needs to have choice in their preferred place of care.

Following a series of workshops held in Spring this year, 8 priority areas have been identified to progress the Transforming Your Palliative and End of Life Care programme and a series of design groups have been set up to facilitate this. These priority initiatives include, improving training for healthcare providers; enhanced access to palliative care services at home; palliative pharmacy; supporting planned discharge and provision of equipment; and support for patients and carers.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the total cost of Health Service procedures and treatments on Northern Ireland patients carried out by each private health provider in (i) Northern Ireland; (ii) England; (iii) Scotland; (iv) Wales; and (v) the Republic of Ireland, in each year since May 2007.

(AQW 35209/11-15)

Mr Poots: Total costs, by provider, are provided in the table below for the financial years 2010/11 to 2013/14. Total costs, by provider, are not available for the financial years 2007/08, 2008/09 and 2009/10.

Department of Justice

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, following the conclusion of a Serious Case Review, whether any staff member within any departmental agency has (a) been subject to disciplinary proceedings, including warnings; (b) been retrained; and (c) transferred to another post.

(AQW 35057/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice): No staff members within any departmental agency have a) been subject to any disciplinary proceedings; b) been retrained; or c) transferred to another post following the conclusion of a Serious Case Review commissioned by the Strategic Management Board responsible for oversight of Public Protection Arrangements Northern Ireland.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the recommendations by the Public Protection Arrangements in Northern Ireland that have been implemented following the conclusion of the Serious Case Reviews into Barry Johnston; Thomas Ward and David Paige, citing the changes and from which review they originate; and (ii) the recommendations that have not been implemented.

(AQW 35112/11-15)

Mr Ford:

(i) Recommendations following conclusion of PPANI Serious Case Reviews

Table A below sets out the recommendations arising from the Serious Case Reviews commissioned (for the cases listed) by the Strategic Management Board responsible for oversight of the Public Protection Arrangements Northern Ireland.

Table A

Barry Shay Johnston (Executive Summary published 9/01/2012)
Recommendations
1	Northern Ireland Prison Service should review the availability of forensic psychologists for treatment of sex offenders in custody and seek to identify any ways to resolve limitations on this;
2	PPANI should remind all involved in managing sex offenders under the Manual of Practice on the need for the highest standards of administration and interagency communication in order to ensure joined up handling;
3	It should be normal practice for there to be one-to-one discussions between prison DRM (Designated Risk Manager) and the agency representative taking over that duty on the prisoner's release. This should be specified in the Manual of Practice. It should be a standing item of business for such handovers that the question of a special LAPPP (Local Area Public Protection Panel) be considered;
4	In conjunction with other Health and Social Care Trusts and involving PPANI as appropriate, the Northern Trust should ensure that a protocol is in place which, among other things, both advises representatives on the need to be fully briefed by other Trusts in advance of LAPPP meetings considering cases from their area, and sets out the need to ensure a full flow of information to those Trusts on the course and outcome of the discussion;
5	The Strategic Management Board should put in hand consideration of the term 'compelling evidence' in relation to the threshold for classification to Category 3 Risk of Harm;
6	PPANI should consider a revision to the Manual at paragraph 6.2.4 or guidance relating to it might facilitate an inter agency meeting in circumstances where difficulties about offender management arise in the immediate run up to release;
7	PPANI, in conjunction with NIPS, PBNI and health and social care trusts, should consider whether the requirements contained in the social care sector's guidance 'Co-operating to Safeguard Children' and 'Sharing to Safeguard' should be more explicitly reflected in the Manual;
8	Information from medical staff such as doctors or psychiatrists could have a significant bearing on risk assessment and categorisation and subsequently how those risks are managed in the community. PPANI should consider exploring with prisons, PBNI and Trust personnel whether there is an issue over availability to LAPPP meetings of information based on medical assessments and second how it might be resolved;
Thomas Ward (Executive Summary published 25/02/2014)
Recommendations
1	In all cases where bail is being sought and police officers become aware it is prudent to fully check NICHE and keep appropriate records of enquiries and the decision making process;
2	In bail cases involving a non-PPANI eligible offence, PPANI personnel should ensure that those involved in the prosecution of such offences receive a clear and consistent message in respect of bail applications and conditions thereof. This should involve written confirmation to those involved in prosecuting such cases – all PPANI Agencies;
3	The SMB should consider amending the Manual of Practice to allow for LAPPP reviews to be held in respect of particular remand in custody cases;
4	The on-going Department of Justice led work on victims issues may allow for a rebalancing of the rights of victims in respect of information sharing about offenders. The SMB through its victim reference group may wish to make a collective contribution to this on-going work
David Page (Executive Summary published 11/06/2014)
Recommendations
1	The independent reviewer recommended that before an offender's risk assessment category is classified downwards PPANI should consider requesting an up to date Stable SA07 assessment if some time has elapsed since the previous assessment was completed.

(ii) Implementation of Serious Case Review Recommendations

All the Serious Case Review recommendations outlined above have been implemented by PPANI agencies.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34383/11-15, whether he will specifically address the point on the approved residence being in an area of families with young children, and given the victim in the case was a child of the neighbourhood to detail whether (i) this point was considered prior to the approval of residence and due cognisance given to the offender's previous behaviour and targets; (ii) he will amend risk assessments in these instances taking on board vulnerability of potential victims; and (iii) he will tighten residence criteria to remove or reduce reoffending in similar instances.

(AQW 35113/11-15)

Mr Ford: I shall reply to the points raised as soon as possible.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice following the conclusion of a Serious Case Review, whether any departmental agency has found to have missed opportunities, neglected responsibilities, or defaulted in any way which could have prevented re-offending; and if so, to cite the relevant instances.

(AQW 35193/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Independent Reviewers conducting Serious Case Reviews commissioned by the Strategic Management Board responsible for oversight of Public Protection Arrangements Northern Ireland did not identify any failings in the management of the cases which could have prevented re-offending.

Department for Regional Development

Mr Copeland asked the Minister for Regional Development he will ensure that the existing protections in place for water consumers are not weakened by the implementation of the Alternative Dispute Resolution Directive.

(AQW 35201/11-15)

Mr Kennedy (The Minister for Regional Development): The Alternative Dispute Resolution Directive aims to ensure that consumers are able to access quality alternative dispute resolution bodies for all kinds of contractual disputes they encounter with traders. The UK Government has recently consulted on this issue, to facilitate the transposition of the Directive into law.

NI Water already has statutory arrangements for dealing with disputes between customers and the company through the Consumer Council. My Department considers that we are currently in compliance with the new regulations but continues to liaise with all of the relevant bodies such as the Consumer Council and the Utility Regulator to ensure that Northern Irish consumers continue to have access to high quality water and sewerage services.

Northern Ireland Assembly

Written Answers to Questions

Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether their Department has given all possible help to the Gallagher family, from Londonderry, in their humanitarian quest to identify the murderer of their 9 year old son, Gordon.
(AQW 8802/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): We would refer the member to the answer to AQO 3823/11-15 which was given in the Assembly on 22 April 2013.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, in relation to the appointment of the Special Adviser by Junior Minister McCann, to detail (i) who is her current Special Adviser; (ii) when and how he/she was appointed; (iii) when he/she took up the post; and (iv) which salary band he/she is being paid.
(AQW 13640/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The requested information is as follows:

- (i) Aine McCabe;
- (ii) appointed on 13 June 2012 in accordance with the Code of Practice for the Appointment of Special Advisers;
- (iii) 13 June 2012;
- (iv) Salary band B.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) how many procurement credit cards are held by staff in their Department; (ii) how much has been expended by this route since May 2007; and (iii) on what was the expenditure incurred.
(AQW 20037/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister currently holds 12 procurement cards.

£2,659,480 has been purchased using procurement cards during the period May 2007 to 28 June 2014 by our office.

Each procurement card is electronically restricted to specific types of expenditure. The procurement cards are used mainly for travel and accommodation expenses and other costs would include items such as office stationery and equipment expenditure.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the (i) number; and (ii) position of the people who travelled to Brazil on the business and tourism mission in March 2013; and the total cost of the trip.
(AQW 20978/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We were each accompanied by a special adviser, a private secretary and a press officer. We also brought an official photographer with us, who had been selected through the normal tendering process. Support on the ground was provided by staff from the NI Bureau in Washington, DC.

The total cost of the trip is published on the OFMDFM website.

Mr McGlone asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the (i) total cost of their recent trip to Brazil; (ii) the cost of the accommodation; and (iii) the number of civil servants, advisors and other people who accompanied them on the trip at public expense.
(AQW 21101/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We were each accompanied by a special adviser, a private secretary and a press officer. We also brought an official photographer with us, who had been selected through the normal tendering process. Support on the ground was provided by staff from the NI Bureau in Washington, DC.

The total cost of the trip is published on the OFMDFM website.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, pursuant to AQW 24291/11-15, to specify the resource and budgetary needs of the NI Memorial Fund as opposed to the budget allocation.

(AQW 25041/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Northern Ireland Memorial Fund (NIMF) budget allocation as stated in AQW 24291/11-15 is based on the current resource and budgetary needs as identified by the NIMF.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on progress of the Performance and Efficiency Delivery Unit review of departmental responses to the serious flooding in June 2012.

(AQW 25639/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Executive received a comprehensive follow-up report on 4 July 2013 setting out progress on the Performance and Efficiency Delivery Unit's recommendations on the flooding of 27 and 28 June 2012. The Executive noted progress and future proposals on a wide range of issues including mitigating flood risk, the provision of flood alerts, performance of the Flooding Incident Line and collaboration between relevant agencies and stakeholders. The recommendations were agreed which included an outline of the future programme of work. This programme is being taken forward by departments through the structures which are in place to monitor and co-ordinate implementation.

Mr Gardiner asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what action is being taken to improve the timeliness of interactions with the Committee for the Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister.

(AQO 4594/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Member will be aware that, in response to concerns raised by the Chairman of the Committee for OFMDFM about aspects of its relationship with our Department, the Permanent Secretary met with the Committee on 5 March 2014 and outlined a range of measures that were being put in place to promote more effective engagement with the Committee. These include: -

- regular meetings between the Committee Clerk and our DALO (Departmental Assembly Liaison Officer) to progress and resolve outstanding issues relating to the Forward Work Programme,
- awareness sessions for departmental staff on engagement with the Committee focusing on the priority which the Department places on its business with the Committee; and
- arrangements to ensure effective monitoring of the progress of key issues of interest to the Committee.
- We believe it is in our shared interest to support the role of the Committee in advising and assisting us in the development of policy, and that these measures will make an important contribution to optimising the future benefits of our interaction.

Ms Fearon asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to list the organisations from which their Department is considering reclaiming funding.

(AQO 4772/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: At this time the Department is not reclaiming funding from any organisation.

Mr Dunne asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether their Department has any plans to mark Holocaust Memorial Day in 2014.

(AQW 28823/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The 2014 Holocaust Memorial Day commemoration was held in Belfast City Hall on Holocaust Memorial Day, Monday 27 January at 7:30pm.

The theme for the event was "Journeys" and the Belfast Rabbi, David Singer, delivered the keynote address. Pelagie Buchanan, a survivor of the genocide in Rwanda 20 years ago also spoke about the journey that brought her to live here. The Statements of Commitment were read by people representing each of the groups persecuted by the Nazis during the Holocaust, this reflected the diverse nature of the commemoration. The event also included a welcome address by the former Lord Mayor of Belfast Máirtín Ó Muilleoir and all of his Chaplains were in attendance. Approximately 380 people from a wide range of backgrounds attended the event.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how many entries Special Advisers have made in the Department's Register of Gifts and Hospitality since their appointment; and what is the total value of such entries.

(AQW 28961/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Special Advisers have made a total of 18 entries in the Department's Gift and Hospitality register with a total value of £1932.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for a breakdown of the costs associated with the Haass talks.
(AQW 29518/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The costs relating to the work of the Panel of Parties is available on the OFMDFM website at <http://www.ofmdfmi.gov.uk/financial-publications-archive> .

Mr Kinahan asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail their plans for (i) continuing the legacy of the Primary Integrating/Enriching Education programme along with other shared education projects; and (ii) using the project as a pilot to encourage further shared education, as part of their responsibilities under Together: Building a United Community.
(AQW 30106/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Department of Education has the lead on delivering the Programme for Government commitments in relation to advancing shared education. We understand that you tabled a similar question to the Minister of Education and he provided a substantive response . AQW 30105/11-15 refers.

Ms Lo asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what departmental support is available to the Northern Ireland Mixed Marriage Association.
(AQW 30139/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: OFMDFM does not have a suitable funding stream that could support the core funding of the Northern Ireland Mixed Marriage Association. The Association may have been eligible to apply to the Central Good Relations Fund for project funding, however the 2014/15 fund closed for applications on 10 February 2014.

Ms Lo asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what consideration is given to devising good relations and equality policy on the difficulties faced by people in mixed marriages or mixed relationships in accessing services or housing.
(AQW 30166/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Together: Building a United Community strategy was devised with the goal of establishing a new, reconciled and shared society. The strategy commits us to the creation of more shared neighbourhoods and to ensure that there is greater choice open to those who wish to live in a mixed area. Equally, the strategy sets out our commitment to creating a community where everyone feels safe and where life choices are not inhibited by fears around safety.

Mr McMullan asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether Departments are on course to reach their targeted draw down of European funding.
(AQO 5370/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Under Programme for Government commitment 1.26, drawdown of competitive EU funds will be increased by 20% over the budget period 2011-15, equating to drawdown of £64.4 million over the four-year period.

Progress is monitored by the all party Ministerial Budget Review Group and the Programme for Government monitoring team.

Departments continue to make good progress towards meeting the 20% target. In 2011-12, Year 1, we drew down £23.0 million and in 2012-13, Year 2, we drew down £18.3 million. At the halfway point in the budget period, £41.3 million has been drawn down which represents 64% of the target.

As soon as figures for 2013/14, Year 3, have been validated, we will publish the updated drawdown value.

We are well on target to meet our 2013/14 forecast drawdown of £11.6 million.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister on how many occasions since May 2007 their Department has not accepted the recommendations contained in an Ombudsman's finding.
(AQW 30425/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: During this period, OFMDFM has only received one recommendation from the Northern Ireland Ombudsman, which was accepted.

Mr Weir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to list the current membership of the Community Relations Council.
(AQW 30435/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The current membership of the Board of the Community Relations Council is available to view on the Community Relations Council's website at: <http://www.community-relations.org.uk/about-us/community-relations-council-council-members-and-staff-list/>

Mr Campbell asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what steps are being taken to ensure that east-west linkages between Northern Ireland and the other parts of the United Kingdom are built upon and enhanced.
(AQW 30462/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Northern Ireland Executive continues to play an active role in furthering the objectives of the British-Irish Council (BIC). We attend the biannual Summit meetings of the BIC and were pleased to host the successful 20th BIC Summit in Derry~Londonderry in June last year. The BIC also meets at sectoral Ministerial level as required and regularly at official level. The Executive also leads on three of the twelve BIC work sectors: Collaborative Spatial Planning, Housing and Transport

In addition to funding an agreed proportion of the running costs of the BIC Secretariat, the Executive enhances its east-west linkages through the assignment of a Policy Officer on secondment to the BIC Secretariat in Edinburgh.

The Northern Ireland Executive is also a member of the Joint Ministerial Committee (JMC) together with the UK Government, the Scottish Government and the Welsh Government. The JMC meets annually in plenary format, and also at intervals during each year in Domestic and European formats to discuss matters of common interest and concerns to all administrations.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the progress of the delivery of the economic package Building a Prosperous and United Community.

(AQW 30633/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: An annual summit with the Prime Minister was held on 2 July 2014 prior to the publication of the annual progress report, Building a United and Prosperous Community: One Year On. A written statement on progress was made to the Assembly on 3 July 2014.

Progress has been made in areas such as job promotion, research and development, investment and infrastructure and we have been working together on a range of issues, for example, through the Ministerial Taskforce on Banking and Access to Finance, to address the economic issues faced by our local economy.

The Executive has brought forward shared education and shared housing proposals to use the £100 million additional borrowing available as part of Building a Prosperous and United Community. This will allow the prioritisation of spending on a package of measures including integrated primary schools in Omagh, Portadown and Corran, shared neighbourhood schemes such as Ravenhill Road and further education facilities at Craigavon.

A number of further commitments will also be met by the end of 2014 including: a final report from the Executive's Red Tape Review; proposals will be made to Government and Executive Ministers about the scope for further fiscal devolution; and consideration of the Implementation Panel's interim report on access to finance.

While this progress is welcome, it is important that we continue to take action to ensure all commitments are delivered in a timely manner.

Mr Campbell asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, in relation to the findings that in the last twenty years economic inactivity rates amongst Protestants have increased whilst for Roman Catholics it has decreased, what action will be taken to increase economic activity rates for all communities.

(AQW 30657/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The 2012 Labour Force Survey Northern Ireland Religion Report showed that the working age economic inactivity rate among Protestants had moved from 24% in 1992 to 25% in 2012 and for working age Catholics from 34% in 1992 to 30% in 2012.

Although the survey is based on a sample, with attendant confidence level issues around small changes, and there was also a change in relation to definition of working age females over the period, the key policy message is the high level of economic inactivity here.

Irrespective of the religious composition, the rate of economic inactivity here has been persistently higher than the UK average for decades and we need to encourage those inactive individuals who, with the right level of support and assistance, will be able to participate in the labour market.

In November 2013 the Executive agreed to a full public consultation on the draft Strategic Framework "Enabling Success: Driving Social Change through Economic Participation – A Strategic Framework to Tackle Economic Inactivity in Northern Ireland". Its proposed overarching strategic goal is to contribute towards a stable and competitive employment rate of over 70% by 2023, through a reduction in the proportion of the working age population classified as economically inactive.

The public consultation exercise is now complete and DEL and DETI, together with DSD and DHSSPS, are developing a final draft strategy for consideration by the Executive before the end of the year. If early agreement can be secured, implementation will begin in early 2015.

Mr Hilditch asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the delivery of the Economic Pact.

(AQO 5496/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: An annual summit with the Prime Minister was held on 2 July 2014 prior to the publication of the annual progress report, Building a United and Prosperous Community: One Year On. A written statement on progress was made to the Assembly on 3 July 2014.

Progress has been made in areas such as job promotion, research and development, investment and infrastructure and we have been working together on a range of issues, for example, through the Ministerial Taskforce on Banking and Access to Finance, to address the economic issues faced by our local economy.

A number of further commitments will also be met by the end of 2014 including: a final report from the Executive's Red Tape Review; proposals will be made to Government and Executive Ministers about the scope for further fiscal devolution; and consideration of the Implementation Panel's interim report on access to finance.

While this progress is welcome, it is important that we continue to take action to ensure all commitments are delivered in a timely manner.

Mr Wells asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when they will consult the Executive on an International Development Strategy.

(AQW 30819/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The International Relations Strategy was agreed by the Executive on 27th February 2014.

The Strategy includes an objective to take forward international development activities, within the remit of the Devolution agreement, and in consultation and partnership with appropriate organisations.

Mr McKay asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what investment has been secured as a result of the Investment Conference in October 2013.

(AQW 31041/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Hosting the conference provided an excellent opportunity to build an economic legacy from hosting the G8.

We had the opportunity to showcase the local economy to an international audience of 121 international companies plus a further 14 key influencers from overseas governments. This enabled us to highlight to senior executives what we have to offer as a place to do business and invest in. Importantly it provided the opportunity for them to hear first hand the positive experiences from existing investors.

The feedback from delegates was hugely positive, and we have most certainly enhanced our reputation at a national and international level with potential customers.

As a result of the conference, we announced expansions by Fujitsu for 192 jobs in Derry/Londonderry and Ryobi for 100 jobs in Carrickfergus.

Invest NI has also more recently managed to secure two major new investments bringing over 800 jobs here: Convergys is to create 333 new jobs establishing a new customer service centre in Derry/Londonderry working in collaboration with mobile phone company EE as their client.

EY (Ernst and Young) is to create almost 500 new jobs as part of a £24.5 million investment creating a new business unit. Hearing about the talent of workers available here from other big businesses together with investment success stories at the Investment Conference helped to persuade them to locate here.

We anticipate further announcements in the coming months of projects that can be linked to the Investment Conference.

Mrs Hale asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what civil contingency plans are in place to deal with major or catastrophic incidents.

(AQW 31124/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Northern Ireland Central Crisis Management Arrangements (NICCMA) are a special set of multi-agency arrangements maintained by OFMDFM to deal with the most serious emergencies. Under these arrangements, the Civil Contingencies Group chaired by OFMDFM and comprising senior representation from departments and their agencies, the Emergency Services and District Councils can be convened to provide strategic co-ordination of the response to and recovery from such emergencies. In delivering this function the NICCMA interface with other key groups of responders.

These arrangements are well established and tested and have been used to very good effect during recent emergencies. We will continue to apply learning from emergencies and test exercises to further strengthen our collective capability to deal with future emergencies.

Mr Weir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what new initiatives are being taken to tackle racism.

(AQW 31720/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Racial Equality Strategy, "A Sense of Belonging" which is currently out for consultation until 10th October will underpin all our work in tackling all forms of racism. The strategy has been developed in consultation with minority ethnic representatives.

We have also agreed a programme of interventions to deal with the increase in race crime incidents in recent months.

Tackling racism also aligns with the Together: Building a United Community (TBUC) strategy. This commits us to ensure that good relations – including good race relations - are mainstreamed into the revised arrangements following the review of public administration. This will help to bring about a proper recognition of the importance of good relations in tackling wider social issues.

TBUC commits to encourage reporting of intimidation or harassment and to seek to build a culture where people feel comfortable to report when they have been the victim of intimidation or harassment.

OFMDFM is also working with the Department of Justice on the implementation of the Community Safety Strategy and the elements in that strategy that are aimed at addressing hate crime.

Mr Weir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the progress made in creating an international development strategy.

(AQW 31754/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The International Relations Strategy was agreed by the Executive on 27 February 2014.

The Strategy includes an objective to take forward international development activities, within the remit of the Devolution agreement, and in consultation and partnership with appropriate organisations.

Mr Weir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what funding their Department provides to the Confucius project.

(AQW 31932/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: OFMDFM do not provide any funding to the Confucius project.

Mr D Bradley asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether they discussed the Haass process with Vice-President Joe Biden during their recent visit to Washington DC.

(AQO 5820/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We were pleased to have had the opportunity to spend over 50 minutes with the Vice President in his office at the White House on Friday 14 March. That was our third encounter with him in the space of two days. We were at his table at the American Ireland Fund Dinner the previous evening and we had lunch with him, the President and the Taoiseach at the Speaker's Lunch on Capitol Hill directly before the White House meeting. We used both those occasions to further our agenda in advance of the formal meeting.

We gladly accepted the Vice President's invitation to the White House where we discussed a range of issues including the All Party Talks.

Mr McNarry asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail (i) the number of Motions debated in the Assembly that they have responded to in the last two years; and (ii) the action that they have taken following any Motion that was passed.

(AQW 32499/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness:

- (i) Since September 2012 we have responded to seven Private Members motions, of which five were agreed by the Assembly. Details are provided below:

September 2012 – July 2013

Date	Title of Motion	Outcome of Debate
8 October 2012	Economic Recovery	Motion negated
19 November 2012	Child Poverty Action Plan	Agreed with Amendment
05 February 2013	Internet Safety for Children	Agreed
13 May 2013	Child Poverty Targets	Motion negated
21 May 2013	Shared Future	Agreed with Amendment

September 2013 – July 2014

Date	Title of Motion	Outcome of Debate
10 February 2014	Safer Internet Day 2014 Campaign	Agreed with Amendment
11 March 2014	European Union Funds: Drawdown - UUP	Agreed with Amendment
3 June 2014	Racial Attacks	Agreed with Amendment

- (ii) We take account of all Assembly resolutions to help inform future policy development in relation to our Departmental responsibilities.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what is the annual cost of the Executive offices in the USA; and for a breakdown of the costs.

(AQW 32511/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Executive is represented in the USA by the Northern Ireland Bureau. The Bureau has its main office in Washington DC with a further member of staff based in the British Consulate General in New York City. The table below lists the costs of the Bureau for the last complete financial year (2013-14).

Annual cost of the NI Bureau in Washington DC and New York	2013-14 £'000
Running costs	643
Salary costs	404
Depreciation / Impairment Charges on Capital	15
Total	1,062

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail how much money their Department, or its arm's-length bodies, have given to the Community Relations Council since 2007; and for breakdown of how this money was spent in each year. (AQW 32714/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The full accounts for the Community Relations Council from 2007 onwards are available via the research and publications page on the CRC's website at – <http://www.community-relations.org.uk/research-publications/>

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how much money the Community Relations Council has distributed on behalf of their office since 2007; and to detail the total paid to the Community Relations Council each year for the administration of this money. (AQW 32715/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The full accounts for the Community Relations Council from 2007 are available via the publications and research page on the CRC's web-site at – <http://www.community-relations.org.uk/research-publications/>

Ms Boyle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what action their Department is taking to offer comprehensive occupational health services to its employees, including early access to services such as physiotherapy. (AQW 32723/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Northern Ireland Civil Service Occupational Health Service (OHS) provides a comprehensive occupational health service to all of the NICS Departments and this is available to all employees.

Further details of OHS services can be found at www.nicsohs.gov.uk

The NICS does not provide early access to physiotherapy services.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) to detail the number of Freedom of Information Requests they have received in each year since 2007; (ii) how many and what proportion were not answered within the statutory timeframe; (iii) how many and what proportion were not answered within six months; and (iv) how many and what proportion were not answered within twelve months. (AQW 32752/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Statistical information on the Department's Freedom of Information performance from 2005 up to the 4th quarter of 2013 is published within the Annual Reports and Statistics section of the OFMDFM website at:

http://www.ofmdfmi.gov.uk/index/improving-public-services/information_management_and_central_advisory_branch/annual-reports-and-statistics.htm

Information from the 1st quarter of 2014 onwards will be published at the same location, once the validation process is concluded.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) how many times in each year since 2007, following the submission of Freedom of Information requests to their Department, they have been asked to carry out an internal review into the response provided; and (ii) on how many occasions a Freedom of Information request to their Department, or a response provided, was referred to the Information Commissioner's Office.

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Statistical information on the Department's Freedom of Information performance from 2005 up to the 4th quarter of 2013 is published within the Annual Reports and Statistics section of the OFMDFM website at:

http://www.ofmdfmi.gov.uk/index/improving-public-services/information_management_and_central_advisory_branch/annual-reports-and-statistics.htm

Information from the 1st quarter of 2014 onwards will be published at the same location, once the validation process is concluded.

Mr Weir asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the current budget of the Northern Ireland Executive's office in Brussels.

(AQW 33239/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The table below lists the breakdown of the allocated budget for the Office of the Northern Ireland Executive in Brussels for this complete financial year (2014-2015).

Annual cost of the Executive Office in Brussels	2014-15 £'000
Running costs	491
Salary costs	535.5
Depreciation/Impairment charges on Capital	111

Mr Copeland asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the number of reports that have been produced by Colliers International at the request of their Department, in each of the last five years; and the cost of producing each report.

(AQW 33465/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Colliers International produced two reports in the last five years at a total cost of approximately £104,000, one in 2010 and one in 2012.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what is a Urban Village under the terms of the Together: Building a United Community; and to detail how it will facilitate meaningful contact and integration for people from a diverse background.

(AQW 33519/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: An Urban Village under the terms of the Together: Building a United Community will be a designated development zone. A local project board will be created and tasked with coordinating and overseeing the planning and design of the urban village. The board will be given the ability to enable large scale urban village development in a coordinated and needs based way. Each urban village will have a community focus. The aim is to produce an agreed design and model for development that is deliverable, sustainable and makes a contribution to the wider social, economic and physical regeneration of the area. The proposals will prioritise community focus to stabilise and create positive change within the community by creating and sustaining increased community social capital therefore leading to an increase in intra and inter-community stability and meaningful and robust improvement in community relations.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what was the total cost of hospitality provided by (i) their Department; and (ii) its arm's-length bodies in 2013/14.

(AQW 33796/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The total spend on hospitality by the Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister (OFMDFM) and arm's length bodies within its accounting boundary in 2013/14 was £162,595. The arm's length bodies which were outside the accounting boundary of OFMDFM spent a total amount of £31,518 on hospitality during 2013/14.

Mr Swann asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether recent comments by the First Minister about a lack of trust in Muslims were raised during their meeting with the Turkish Ambassador on 28 May 2014.

(AQO 6279/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We met with Ambassador Cevikoz prior to his retirement, following our initial meeting with him in December 2011. Ambassador Cevikoz's visit to Belfast was primarily to perform the official opening of an Honorary Consul office for the recently appointed Honorary Consul, Mr David Campbell, who also attended the meeting.

At our meeting we discussed the Ambassador's two-day visit programme to Belfast, business relations between the two jurisdictions and the promotion of further business with Turkey, including the potential introduction of a direct Belfast to Istanbul air route.

Also discussed was the implication of the European election results and Turkey's aspirations to formally join the European Union, the current Turkish political situation, Syria, refugee camps, and the centenary anniversary next year of the Gallipoli Landings.

Ms McGahan asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to what extent their Department has implemented the Programme for Government 2011-15 commitment that all public procurement contracts for supplies, services and construction works will include social clauses; and to what level such clauses have been implemented.

(AQW 34274/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Department has implemented the Programme for Government commitment to include social clauses in all procurement contracts for supplies, services and construction works where they relate to the subject matter of the contract or the performance of the contract. The Department has set community benefits (including social clauses) targets for all contracts over £30,000 in 2014-15 which will be monitored periodically throughout the year.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when all the Central Good Relations Fund for the 2014/15 financial year will be allocated; and how the June Monitoring Round bid of £2.424m will be allocated if successful.

(AQW 34372/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The 2014/15 Central Good Relations Fund (CGRF) closed for applications on 10 February 2014. There was a very significant demand for funding. To date, some £0.5m of funding has been allocated to priority projects.

The CGRF is not designed to pick up mainstream core or project funded activities. It is a small in-year scheme designed to support project delivery and to utilise available funding. Further funding will be released as it becomes available. We will contact applicants as soon as a decision has been made regarding their applications

The £2.424m June monitoring bid, if successful, will provide additional support for the 2014/15 Central Good Relations Fund and a range of other activities to support delivery of the Together: Building a United Community Strategy.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what consideration has been given to the development of a refugee integration strategy.

(AQW 34418/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: As part of our ongoing consultation on a Racial Equality Strategy we are asking for views on a specific refugee integration strategy.

Officials have already met with key stakeholders such as the Northern Ireland Strategic Migration Partnership and the NI Council for Refugees and Asylum Seekers to collect views on the subject.

Mr Campbell asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how many British-Irish Council meetings, in all formats, have been held between June 2007 and June 2014.

(AQW 34510/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Since June 2007 there have been two hundred and forty British Irish Council meetings, including fourteen Summit meetings; seventeen sectoral Ministerial meetings; and two hundred and nine official level meetings.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what provisions are in place to provide gap funding for victims groups whose funding is running out under PEACE III.

(AQW 34756/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: All Peace III projects are time limited with the funding for particular projects for the period of the letter of offer. All organisations receiving Peace III funding are aware of this and were notified some time ago that Peace III funding was coming to an end.

The Executive does not have the resources to replace Peace III funding where that has come to an end for a particular project.

Ms Lo asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to outline the proposed timetable for the consultation, publication and implementation of the Racial Equality Strategy.

(AQO 6408/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Racial Equality Strategy is now available on the Department's website. The consultation will last until 10 October 2014 and details of consultation events will be listed soon.

A number of events will be held in the areas of highest population for minority ethnic people and events will be facilitated in different languages when relevant.

The events are taking place between 19.00 and 21.00 hours at:-

- Ballymena – The Braid Art Centre – 9 September 2014
- Dungannon – Unit 2 Ballysaggart Business Complex – 10 September 2014
- Derry/Londonderry – NICE North West – 16 September 2014
- Belfast – Chinese Welfare Association – 17 September 2014
- Craigavon - Craigavon Civic & Conference Centre – 24 September 2014
- Newry – Ballybot House – 25 September 2014

We will also be inviting feedback and opinion via e-mail, online and through social media.

Once the consultation exercise is completed, the evidence gathered will inform the revised Strategy.

Proposals for implementation (including timetabling) will be developed by the Racial Equality Panel.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the action they have taken following each public petition presented to the Assembly and forwarded to their Department.

(AQW 34849/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Our Department has received one public petition from WAVE's Injured Support Group who, as part of their 'Campaign for Recognition of the Injured', presented a petition of 10,000 signatures to the Assembly on 17 May 2012 following the launch of WAVE's 'Injured Research Study' funded by OFMDFM.

WAVE's 'Injured Research Study' concluded that there was a shortfall in services for many people physically injured as a result of the conflict. Our officials had already met with the chief researcher, Professor Marie Breen-Smyth, and chief executive of WAVE to discuss the report and the implications for future services for Victims and Survivors. In addition, the Commissioner for Victims and Survivors commissioned an independent piece of research on the issue. This has recently been received and is under consideration.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, in relation to the omission from the Historical Abuse Inquiry of both clerical abuse victims and women aged 18 and over in Magdalene Laundries and equivalent institutions, what action they have taken in response to the recommendations of May 2013 of the UN Committee Against Torture.

(AQW 34872/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The UN Committee Against Torture has recommended that the State should conduct prompt, independent and thorough investigations into all cases of institutional abuse, including abuse of women who were in Magdalene Laundries, and that where possible and appropriate, all perpetrators are prosecuted and punished, and victims receive redress and compensation.

Officials have been tasked to undertake a high level scoping exercise on those areas which fall outside the Terms of reference of the Historical Institutional Abuse Inquiry and intend to bring forward a paper for our consideration in the autumn.

Mr Easton asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the applications to the Social Investment Fund for Community Houses in North Down for building extensions to increase capacity and training facilities.

(AQW 34914/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: This project is currently being processed through the economic appraisal process. Following initial consideration, we have agreed with the Steering Group a two-stage approach; first stage to complete a scoping study to ascertain the potential to improve the community houses identified and what works can feasibly be progressed; the second stage to fund the resulting works identified.

Funding for both stages is subject to approval of the economic appraisal.

Mr Craig asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, in light of decisions being made by single Commissioners, whether they plan to review the workings of the Planning Appeals Commission, in particular the decision making processes.

(AQW 35078/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Planning Appeals Commission (PAC) is an independent Tribunal Non-Departmental Public Body which operates at arm's length from Government, free from influence by the Department or any other body. OFMDFM has sponsorship responsibility within relevant legislation for providing financial and administrative support to PAC, for the appointment of its Commissioners, for the making of rules of procedure and setting of fees. We have no plans to review the workings of the Planning Appeals Commission.

Mr Gardiner asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what projects funded by the Social Investment Fund are planned for the Upper Bann Constituency.

(AQO 6410/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Six projects have been prioritised by the Steering Group within the funding allocation for the Southern Social Investment Fund Zone, in which the Upper Bann constituency is situated. Three of these projects have been formally approved:

- Employment Work It – a revenue project designed to improve employability;
- New Directions – a capital cluster; and
- Sustaining the Infrastructure – a further capital cluster.

Final letters of offer for each of the approved projects will begin to issue to the Lead Partners over the next few weeks to enable delivery to commence.

The remaining three projects, details of which can be found at <http://www.ofmdfmi.gov.uk/index/delivering-social-change/social-investment-fund/sif-projects.htm> , are currently being progressed through the economic appraisal approval process. We hope to be in a position to secure approvals for these and move to delivery over the remainder of the year.

Mr P Ramsey asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on Together: Building a United Community. (AQO 6411/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Work is progressing across all 7 headline actions that were announced alongside the publication of Together: Building a United Community.

The Department of Education has received 16 expressions of interest under the Shared Education Campuses Programme. The proposals submitted are currently being assessed with a view to successful projects being announced before the summer break. It is forecasted that contracts will be issued by September 2015 and project delivery commenced by January 2016.

In respect of the United Youth Programme, significant stakeholder engagement has taken place culminating with the United Youth Programme Design Day in January of this year, which involved over 250 stakeholders. A Project Board has been established and work is progressing across a broad range of issues including stipend, engagement and communications, procurement strategy and programme design approach. A pilot programme has already been established to test elements of the design and further pilots are expected to commence later this year.

Pilots for the summer schools/camps will be operated in the Belfast area this summer with roll out in other Council areas too (subject to available funding). One-hundred summer schools/camps will be in operation in 2015. We plan to hold a workshop in early autumn with stakeholders to finalise how the summer camps/schools should operate in 2015.

The locations of the first 2 Urban Villages were announced on 20 March 2014 as Colin and Lower Newtownards Road. Each area will be recognised as a zone for development, and the Department for Social Development will convene Project Boards to co-ordinate and oversee the planning, design and delivery of all aspects of the urban villages. The Department for Social Development and other departments and statutory agencies will use the completed master plans for the areas to develop resourcing plans for each urban village.

The 10 Shared Neighbourhood Developments will be delivered through the Social Housing Development Programme. The projected project plan has been developed which outlines key milestones and targets for the 3 strands of this programme.

In relation to the Cross Community Sports Programme, the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure is taking the lead and has developed proposals on a Programme.

With regard to the removal of Interface Barriers, a model has been developed to create an Interface Action Team to support project delivery, subject to the receipt of set-up costs. A list of pilot proposals and plans has been identified with anticipated delivery over the next 12-18 months.

Work is also progressing with the establishment of the Equality and Good Relations Commission and the associated underpinning legislative changes required. It is intended that a Bill to establish the Equality and Good Relations Commission will be introduced during the 2014/15 financial year and that a public consultation will commence shortly. A Transition Board chaired by the Department's Director of Equality and Strategy, and comprising the respective chief executives and chairs of the Equality Commission and the Community Relations Council, is taking forward the operational aspects of implementation.

The Review of Good Relations Funding is a central commitment given within the Strategy and its key findings will inform and shape a future funding delivery model aligned to the priorities of the Strategy. Phase one of the Review was completed in April and phase two is at an advanced stage. The second phase consists of extensive and focused stakeholder engagement to seek views on funding delivery to date and to help inform options on a future funding delivery model.

Work is also continuing with departments to identify actions in relation to the range of commitments that fall outside the 7 headline actions.

A Strategy of this depth and scale requires collective commitment and leadership across all departments and sections of our society. The Ministerial Panel and thematic sub-groups will be central to achieving this, and work on establishing the range of sub-groups is at an advanced stage with a view to meetings taking place shortly. The Ministerial Panel has met once and plans to meet again before the summer.

Department of Agriculture and Rural Development

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development (i) for an update on the funding application for the refurbishment of the IRA monument in Crossmaglen; (ii) who will be responsible for making a decision on the application; and (iii) why this person is responsible for making this decision.

(AQW 15984/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill (The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development): I presume the Member is referring to an application from the Crossmaglen Memorial and Heritage Committee to preserve, upgrade and complete a monument in the square in Crossmaglen. The application was deemed ineligible and the Crossmaglen Memorial and Heritage Committee was advised of this on 21 October 2013.

A decision on the eligibility of the application was made jointly by the SOAR Joint Council Committee and DARD and not by any individual person.

Mr Humphrey asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what percentage of the funding for the GAA's Tyrone County Centre of Participation at Garvaghey, that she jointly announced with the Minister for Culture, Arts and Leisure, will come from her Department; and under which scheme this funding was allocated.

(AQW 18609/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: As the member will be aware the Quality of Life Axis (Axis 3) of the EU Rural Development Programme is delivered through the EU LEADER approach by seven Joint Council Committees (JCCs) working in partnership with a Local Action Group (LAG) in Council Cluster areas.

Assisting Rural Communities (ARC) North West (NW) is responsible for delivery across the council areas of Omagh, Strabane, Derry and Limavady, and has awarded two project Letters of Offer to Tyrone County GAA Committee following two separate open, competitive calls for project applications:

Tyrone County GAA's first Letter of Offer, dated 22 May 2012, provided a grant of £250,000 (50% DARD and 50% EU), which was 34% of total eligible project costs of £730,184 toward a Environmental and Heritage Project under Measure 3.6 'Conservation and upgrading of the rural heritage' under Axis 3 of the Rural Development Programme 2007-2013.

The second Letter of Offer dated 27 November 2012 provided a grant of £594,656 (50% DARD and 50% EU), which was 72% of total project costs of £824,041 towards a synthetic 3G multi activity facility & all other associated works. The project was funded under Measure 3.4 'Basic Services for the economy and rural population' under Axis 3 of the Rural Development Programme 2007-2013.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development when a decision will be made on the application for Axis 3 funding under the Rural Development Programme for the Crossmaglen republican monument; and for her assessment of whether the project is eligible for funding due to its nature.

(AQW 18883/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: A decision on the eligibility of the application for Axis 3 funding under the Rural Development Programme from Crossmaglen Memorial and Heritage Committee to preserve, upgrade and complete a monument in the square in Crossmaglen was made on 21 October 2013.

I have no involvement in the assessment of projects.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development whether her Department has advised the Southern Organisation for Action in Rural areas joint committee that funding the refurbishment of the Crossmaglen republican monument under the Rural Development Programme would be discriminatory.

(AQW 18885/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The Department has not advised the Southern Organisation for Action in Rural areas joint committee that funding the refurbishment of the Crossmaglen monument under the Rural Development Programme would be discriminatory rather that some may perceive it in this way.

Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure how the Tapestry of Colours Online Educational Programme, which was developed with departmental funding, allows people to reflect their Irish identity.

(AQW 33846/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure): The Tapestry of Colours Online Educational resource was designed to highlight the complexity of inter-culturalism issues and the fusion of cultures emerging in the North of Ireland. Funded by my Department through NI Screen, its aim was to increase cultural understanding and insights at a personal level as well as having the potential to change attitudes in a significant number of young people and adults.

The resource was not intended to target any one specific ethnic minority or religious group, nor was it designed to reflect Irish identity.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the expected tourism benefits that will result from the Built Heritage Study of the Lower Bann in the next two years.

(AQW 33882/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Built Heritage Study of the Lower Bann identifies locations and features that may be of interest to both tourists and the local population and will enable visitors to plan a more interactive visit to the Lower Bann Navigation.

This study is the first step of the process whereby Waterways Ireland, working with local Councils, the NI Tourist Board and the NI Heritage Lottery Fund can develop an enhanced visitor experience for both the Lower Bann Navigation and the north of Ireland as a whole. The main benefits for the wider Lower Bann corridor and the specific places of interest that have been identified by the study may take some time to be realised.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the location of the properties that are being considered for disposal as a result of the recent North South Ministerial Council Inland Waterways meeting.

(AQW 33883/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: At the North South Ministerial Council Inland Waterways meeting on 3 April 2014 Ministers approved properties for disposal at the following locations: the Jolly Mariner, Athlone; Slaghty Shore, Coos North, Woodford, Co Longford; the south side of the Royal Canal at Phibsborough; and Grand Canal Dock Station, Dublin.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure, following the recent award of Community Impact Grants to groups in Kilkeel, Newtownstewart and Belfast, what efforts will be made to ensure that groups and events, which are not in the immediate vicinity of these areas, will be catered for.

(AQW 33884/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Groups outside the areas receiving Community Impact Grants can apply for a range of funding support from the Ulster-Scots Agency to run community festivals, summer schools and music and dance tuition programmes. They can also avail of community development support from the Ulster-Scots Community Network, which is resourced via the Agency.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure whether any sanctions can be imposed against the Electricity Supply Board (ESB) for the incidents at Ballyshannon Power Station that resulted in large number of eel deaths.

(AQW 33885/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Inland Fisheries Ireland (IFI) is currently investigating this incident and is assessing ESB's statutory obligations in relation to the matter.

As such it would not be appropriate for me to comment on the possible outcome at this time.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the number of salmon smolts in Lough Erne in each of the last thirteen years.

(AQW 33886/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: There is no facility to measure the wild salmon smolt run in the Erne system and consequently there is no data held on this by my Department.

The Electricity Supply Board (ESB), as part of its commitment to the conservation of salmon in the Erne, releases hatchery bred smolts into the system annually and the numbers are detailed in the table below:

Year	Number of hatchery smolts released
2000	71,297
2001	99,622
2002	55,361
2003	103,200
2004	92,714
2005	102,664
2006	104,000

Year	Number of hatchery smolts released
2007	65,000
2008	50,000
2009	52,590
2010	52,764
2011	50,108
2012	51,328
2013	53,252

Mr D Bradley asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail (i) the funding Foras na Gaeilge granted to Iontaobhas na Gaeilge; (ii) the purpose of the funding; and (iii) how the funding was spent.

(AQW 33913/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Foras na Gaeilge has confirmed that it has never provided any funding to Iontaobhas na Gaeilge. Iontaobhas na Gaeilge is a charity funded primarily from the profits of the social enterprises it operates and through the generosity of individual and corporate donors.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the total (i) capital; and (ii) recurring costs of the new computer system for Libraries NI.

(AQW 33997/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The total (i) capital cost for the new e2 computer system is £8.7m over 2 years while the (ii) recurrent cost is £19.2m over 5 years.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure, pursuant to AQW 33394/11-15, to detail the comparable amounts of money drawn down for Lough Erne.

(AQW 34009/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The circumstances which allow money to be drawn down to support the purchase of elvers for restocking in Lough Neagh do not exist for Lough Erne and no comparison can be made.

The North West Eel Management Plan approved by the Commission on 4th March 2010, showed that the eel stock in Lough Erne was below safe biological limits and therefore it was necessary to introduce a cessation of the commercial eel fishery on the Lough.

The Neagh Bann Eel Management Plan, which was approved at the same time, allowed for a restricted continuation of commercial eel fishing in Lough Neagh.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure for her assessment of (i) the impact that the community radio station Blast 106 has had on youth and alliterative culture in Belfast; and (ii) the impact of the decision by Ofcom to refuse to grant the station a renewed licence.

(AQW 34481/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is supportive of activity that supports any of the creative industries, including radio, which can be a powerful tool for promoting local music, artists and events.

The awarding of licences in respect of community radio is the responsibility of Ofcom and I understand that Blast 106 is currently appealing Ofcom's decision through a Judicial Review. In light of this, it would not be appropriate for my Department to make any further comment at this stage.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what progress has been made in securing the right of athletes from Northern Ireland to represent the United Kingdom at international level; and what specific steps she has taken to advance this cause.

(AQW 34604/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department is fully supportive of the principle that sports people from the north of Ireland can choose to represent either Britain, or Ireland, at International Events. My Department will support Sport NI in its collaborations with other sports councils operating in Britain and Ireland with the aim of agreeing a joined up approach to sports governing bodies on their responsibilities under the Good Friday Agreement.

In addition, work is also being progressed by Sport NI under Good Relations in Sport, the aim of which is to provide training and education opportunities for sports bodies.

Furthermore, my Department, through Sport NI, provides support to local athletes to enable them to meet the performance standards necessary to qualify for international competition.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the expenditure by Waterways Ireland on hospitality in 2013/14.

(AQW 34909/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Waterways Ireland has a financial year based on the calendar year, 1 January to 31 December. Total expenditure on hospitality during the 2013 year by Waterways Ireland was €7827/£6647.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the expenditure by Foras na Gaeilge on hospitality in 2013/14.

(AQW 34911/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Foras na Gaeilge financial year is based on the calendar year, 1 January to 31 December. For the 2013 financial year, Foras na Gaeilge spent £346.83 on hospitality.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the expenditure by the Ulster-Scots Agency on hospitality in 2013/14.

(AQW 34912/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Ulster-Scots Agency's financial year is based on the calendar year, 1 January to 31 December. For the 2013 financial year, the Ulster-Scots Agency spent £1,040.37 on hospitality.

Department of Education

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education how much, as a percentage of the total recurring funding in his Department, was spent on integrated education in each of the last five years.

(AQW 34994/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): The percentage of my Department's recurrent budget which was allocated to Integrated Education in each of the 5 Financial Years 2009/10 to 2013/14 is provided in the table below:

Year	Percentage of Recurrent Budget allocated to Integrated Education
2013/14	5.20%
2012/13	5.18%
2011/12	5.24%
2010/11	4.87%
2009/10	5.07%

Notes:

- In calculating the percentage of total recurrent funding allocated to Integrated education, it is not possible to include all recurrent costs associated with Integrated education.
 - All pre-school provision is non sectoral and open to all. It is, therefore, not possible to draw out affiliations in the pre-school sector;
 - Also excluded are certain central costs such as funding for milk and meals and transport which are not allocated at individual school or sector level.
 - The percentage figures represent identifiable school-level recurrent funds (delegated budgets, centre funding and applicable programme funding), divided by the overall resource budget for all education services for those years.
- The percentage figure for 2013/14 Financial year is currently to be treated as provisional as it contains unaudited figures.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to the Private Member's Motion on 4 February 2013 on school transport and AQW 23442/11-15, for an update on the feasibility study into providing free public transport for all school pupils which was to form a component of his Department's wider Review of Home to School Transport Policy.

(AQW 35335/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: In December of 2013 I commissioned an Independent Review of School Transport led by transport expert Dr Sian Thornthwaite. The Terms of Reference for the Independent Panel included, "consideration of the feasibility of providing free (public) transport for all school pupils". The Panel presented its final report to me on 28th August. It contains a considerable number of proposals for change which I now intend to consider before making decisions on the way forward. I will publish the report in due course.

Department of the Environment

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33430/11-15, whether the proposals that he made with the Minister of Finance and Personnel for Driver and Vehicle Agency staff, will be put in place before 5 July 2014.

(AQW 33843/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): In your question you have queried whether the proposals would be put in place before 5 July and this date is now passed. I apologise for not replying to you before this date. The following outlines the up-to-date position.

With the agreement of the Minister for Finance and Personnel, arrangements have been in place since April that mean that, in effect, any suitable vacancy in any Department has been offered to the affected staff in DVA in the first instance. To date, 46 staff have secured new posts through these arrangements.

In addition, I have announced the relocation of functions to Coleraine from my Department, comprising of 70 jobs; 50 of which will be suitable for surplus staff in the DVA who have been affected by the decision taken by the Department for Transport to centralise vehicle licensing in Swansea. The training for staff in DVA taking up these jobs will begin around the end of July, as soon as the staff can be freed up from vehicle licensing activities and the work will transfer permanently to Coleraine as soon as the staff have been fully trained.

I have encouraged all of my Executive colleagues to continue their efforts to identify functions in their departments that could be relocated to Coleraine and officials are finalising details of the offer from the Minister for Social Development for temporary work to be undertaken by up to 100 of the surplus staff in Coleraine. The intention is also to have this temporary work in place by around the end of July.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of the Environment, given the local opposition to the proposed development at Carnbane, Newry, whether he will consider reversing the decision to grant planning permission.

(AQW 34048/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I am confident that my announcement to approve this application is the right decision for Newry and the public interest overall when the various economic, social and environmental issues are considered in the round. It is my opinion that the development will bring benefits to the local environment including the restoration of part of the Newry Canal, a Scheduled Monument, enhanced landscaping along the Canal and Newry River and enhanced protection for the setting of SpringHill Rath, also a Scheduled Monument. I also consider it will bring an economic boost to the local area, providing much needed jobs.

Since announcing my decision I have met with representatives from Newry Chamber of Trade and Commerce and listened to their concerns. I have asked my officials to consider their representations and provide further advice to me on the matter. I will make a final decision in due course.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the funding awarded to Crawfordsburn Country Park in each of the last five years.

(AQW 34655/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The programme resource funding allocation awarded to Crawfordsburn Country Park in each of the last five financial years is detailed in Table 1.

Table 1

Financial year	Allocation
2010/11	£149,000
2011/12	£139,000
2012/13	£174,000
2013/14	£192,000
2014/15	£195,000

Funding for Crawfordsburn Park has been increased over the past five years.

There are currently no specific plans to increase funding for Crawfordsburn Country Park. I have directed the Department to continue to explore ways of bringing additional resources to the country parks and historic monuments that it manages. These are great community assets and I am keen to increase community use of them.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment whether there are any plans to increase funding for Crawfordsburn Country Park.

(AQW 34656/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The programme resource funding allocation awarded to Crawfordsburn Country Park in each of the last five financial years is detailed in Table 1.

Table 1

Financial year	Allocation
2010/11	£149,000
2011/12	£139,000
2012/13	£174,000
2013/14	£192,000
2014/15	£195,000

Funding for Crawfordsburn Park has been increased over the past five years.

There are currently no specific plans to increase funding for Crawfordsburn Country Park. I have directed the Department to continue to explore ways of bringing additional resources to the country parks and historic monuments that it manages. These are great community assets and I am keen to increase community use of them.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of the Environment what advice has been given to local councils on preventing the burning of tyres and other dangerous materials on bonfires.

(AQW 34676/11-15)

Mr Durkan: We are mindful that the issue of bonfires does not rest fully with one organisation and of the tensions that occur relating to bonfires which we are not statutorily tasked with or competent to make decisions about.

Responsibility for bonfire management, under the Good Relations Strategy, rests with the Good Relations Officers in each local Council who have a duty to examine bonfire issues. Under the Waste and Contaminated Land (Northern Ireland) Order 1997 Councils do have the powers to remove illegally deposited waste in order to remove or prevent pollution of land, water or air or to harm human health or to take other steps to eliminate or reduce the consequences of the deposit.

NIEA gives advice to Councils on a case by case basis in relation to our statutory role in implementing environmental legislation.

Many Councils have been doing excellent work with community groups to prevent the use of tyres at celebratory fires. Officials have been working together as a matter of course, in this case through an ongoing pilot exercise in four District Council areas where NIEA staff and Council Environmental Health Officers are carrying out joint inspections of part worn and waste tyres at tyre retailer premises.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, given the designation of Lough Neagh as an Area of Special Scientific Interest, including for rare and endangered species, why his Department does not consider it appropriate to recommend it for designation as a Special Area of Conservation.

(AQW 34830/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Council Directive 92/43/EEC on the Conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora (known as the Habitats Directive) requires member States to take measures to maintain or restore natural habitats and species listed on the Annexes to the Directive. These measures include contributing to a coherent European ecological network of protected sites by designating Special Areas of Conservation (SACs) for habitats listed on Annex I and for species listed on Annex II.

Lough Neagh in its entirety does not qualify for designation as a Special Area of Conservation (SAC) according to the Habitats Directive selection criteria. However, a small part of the shoreline near Antrim (Rea's Wood and Farr's Bay) has been designated as a SAC for its wet woodland habitat. Lough Neagh is a Special Protection Area (SPA) for its bird assemblage under the related Birds Directive. Article 7 of the Habitats Directive applies the same protection to SPAs as afforded to SACs, thus SAC designation would not materially add to the protection currently afforded to Lough Neagh.

Lough Neagh is already a Special Protection Area (SPA) for its bird assemblage under the related Birds Directive. SACs and SPAs together form a network of protected sites throughout the European Union, collectively known as European or Natura 2000 sites. Article 7 of the Habitats Directive applies the same protection to SPAs as afforded to SACs. Therefore SAC designation would not materially add to the protection currently afforded to Lough Neagh.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of the Environment when he will answer AQW 33843/11-15.

(AQW 34832/11-15)

Mr Durkan: AQW 33843/11-15 was answered on 29 July 2014.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of the Environment what work he has undertaken to establish the extent of the risk of serious injury being caused by unregulated taxi meter electronic installation.

(AQW 34955/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department has considered the risks posed by the unsafe installation of taximeters, including investigating what action is undertaken in other jurisdictions, and will consider these risks further before the final regulations and guidance governing the testing of taximeters are finalised.

In the meantime, I note that, already, in regulation 115 of the Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 1999, there is a general safety provision which enables the Department to prevent vehicles being used when they are likely to cause danger to a person in the vehicle.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment (i) what knowledge he has of proposals for a private visitor centre on land adjoining the archaeological discoveries at Dunluce Castle; (ii) for his assessment of the need to ensure high quality building design compatible with the local environment; and (iii) how such a proposal can be taken forward.

(AQW 34981/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I am aware that there are currently two live planning applications for a visitor centre at this location (Refs: C/2012/0158/F and C/2014/0109/O). I acknowledge the importance of the application site and I have asked my officials to take this into account when considering any development proposals.

Mr McCartney asked the Minister of the Environment whether his Department has issued any Aggregates Levy Credit Scheme Certificates relating to Campsie Sand and Gravel at Mobuoy Road.

(AQW 35011/11-15)

Mr Durkan: An ALCS Certificate was issued on 18 November 2004 to Campsie Sand & Gravel Ltd for a sand and gravel site at Mobuoy Road, Campsie, Londonderry BT47 3JG.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment how many of the jobs transferred to Coleraine will be filled by staff who are currently carrying out the functions of that role; and how many will be filled by staff currently based in Coleraine.

(AQW 35070/11-15)

Mr Durkan: A total of 51 posts have been permanently relocated from Belfast to Coleraine to offset some of the job losses resulting from the centralisation of vehicle licensing services in Swansea. My officials are currently engaged in the process of allocating staff to these posts and dealing with the consequent surpluses in Belfast.

The relocated posts were existing posts in my Department in the Road Transport Licensing Division, Learning & Development Unit and Finance and Business Planning Division.

A total of three posts will be filled by staff currently carrying out the functions of the role in Belfast. A further three posts will be filled by Coleraine based staff in the Finance and Business Planning Division who would otherwise be surplus as a result of the centralisation decision.

Out of the 51 posts relocated to Coleraine, 46 are available to be filled by staff currently based in Coleraine with three Belfast based staff transferring with their posts.

A further two posts are specialist technical accounting posts one of which has been filled by a Belfast based surplus member of staff. As there is currently no surplus of staff at the relevant accounting grade the other post will be filled through the normal selection method which may result in it being allocated to a member of staff currently based in Coleraine.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, in relation to the pollution of waterways incidents, to what level does an incident have to impact environmentally for a classification of high severity.

(AQW 35102/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA) classifies confirmed water pollution incidents, using the Water Pollution Incidents Severity Classification System, as being of High, Medium or Low Severity. A full copy of the classification system has been placed in the Assembly Library. The classification system used by the NIEA has been independently reviewed and is consistent with that employed by the other UK Environment Agencies.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33768/11-15, from which council areas will the exported waste be received.

(AQW 35118/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The information that the Department required from the applicant to process an application for the Shipment of Waste regulated under Regulation EC 1013/2006 details 11 council areas, namely:- Armagh City and DC, Banbridge DC, Belfast City Council, Craigavon DC, Cookstown DC, Down DC, Dungannon & South Tyrone DC, Fermanagh DC, Magherafelt DC, Newry & Mourne DC and Omagh DC. It should be noted, in addition, that the application also details sources from other waste management companies which may receive waste from the other district councils not listed above.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the illegal dumps that are due to have waste repatriated.
(AQW 35132/11-15)

Mr Durkan: There were originally seventeen sites in total requiring repatriation; nine of these sites have now been completed. This leaves eight sites still to be repatriated. Four in the South Armagh region, one in Co Tyrone outside Cookstown, one in Co Londonderry outside Portglenone, one in Co Antrim outside Crumlin and one in Co Down outside Mayobridge.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment what action take he will take to alert cyclists of the dangers of ignoring red traffic light signals and riding against approaching traffic and that these actions are against the law.

(AQW 35158/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department has a statutory duty to promote road safety and, within the context of the Northern Ireland Road Safety Strategy, does this through a wide range of road safety education activities including road safety publicity information campaigns, education programmes and promotion of the Highway Code. Many of these reference and highlight the rules that apply to cyclists.

A bicycle is legally a vehicle and a cyclist is a driver, therefore a cyclist is required to obey all the standard rules of the road. To help support this, my Department promotes the Highway Code as essential reading for all road users. The rules, techniques and advice are there to help us all to use the roads both safely and legally.

The Highway Code contains general rules for using the road which apply to all vehicles including bicycles as well as rules and advice which apply specifically to cyclists. The Rules for Cyclists section (Rules 59 to 82) outlines legal requirements and advice on many issues including road positioning, procedures to be followed at road junctions, as well as other safety requirements. For example, Rules 69 and 71 clearly state that a cyclist MUST obey all traffic signs and traffic light signals and MUST NOT cross the stop line when the traffic lights are red. The use of the wording MUST / MUST NOT within the Code indicates that the rule is a legal requirement and if you disobey these rules you are committing a criminal offence.

It is essential that all road users are aware of the rules of the road and are considerate towards each other – this applies to cyclists as much as to drivers, riders and pedestrians. Knowing and applying the rules contained in the Highway Code could significantly reduce road casualties and this is why my Department will continue to promote the Code as essential reading for everyone. This important publication must continue to be as accessible as possible: a copy is already free to download or read online in a number of languages, and there are now also Facebook and Twitter accounts offering regular topical reminders for road users.

Turning to advertising campaigns, in April this year I launched a television advertising campaign addressing cyclist safety. The campaign entitled “Don’t Forget” focuses on the vulnerability of cyclists and the responsibility both drivers and cyclists have towards each other on their respective journeys.

In April 2013, my Department launched the ‘Share the Road to Zero’ campaign. This campaign underlines the Department’s vision of zero road deaths, where we do not accept that anyone should ever die on our roads. Community engagement is a key element to this campaign and, as such, we want to encourage road users to sign up to www.sharetheroadtozero.com and show their commitment to the ambition of zero road deaths in Northern Ireland. Those who pledge to Share the Road to Zero receive a regular email with road safety advice which is tailored to the roles that they have declared as a road user (one of the options is cyclist). Likewise, advice and Highway Code Rules are also posted on the Share the Road to Zero Facebook and Twitter pages.

My Department in cooperation with Department for Regional Development and cycling groups produced a booklet called ‘Cycling Skills and Cycling Safety’ This booklet provides information on the benefits of cycling and safety requirements and the rules of the road and is available in both hard copy and on NIDirect.gov.uk.

In terms of cyclist education, the Cycling Proficiency Scheme (CPS) is offered by the DOE to all primary schools in Northern Ireland. This year over 530 schools representing 9,400 pupils have registered to take part in the scheme. The aim of CPS is to teach children to ride their bicycles safely and is a combination of theory and practical (playground) exam. Children from P5 to P7 can participate on the scheme but only children aged 9 or over can take the test.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment, given that food processing and pharmaceuticals are singled out and identified in PED 8 as industries which require a containment free environment, and that slaughterhouses are specifically listed in the Supplementary Planning Guidance as a source of emission of dust, odour or other contaminants which may have the potential to impact upon sensitive industrial enterprises, whether it would be appropriate to approve planning application N/2014/0148/F.

(AQW 35166/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The purpose of any planning application is to determine whether the proposed use of land and the detail of buildings and ancillary development associated with this is considered acceptable taking account of planning policy and all material considerations.

The application that you refer to is for a proposed abattoir in the Carn Industrial Estate, Craigavon (reference N/2014/0148/F) and is at present still under consideration by the Department. I am aware that strong concerns have been raised locally regarding this proposal and I have asked my officials to ensure that these are comprehensively considered and also that the application is dealt with in an expeditious manner. It would nevertheless be inappropriate for me to comment specifically on the proposal at this stage as this could pre-determine the outcome of the planning process.

I do however wish to reassure you that all material planning matters, including the clear advice set out in Policy PED8 of Planning Policy Statement 4 and its supplementary policy guidance, will be fully and carefully taken into account by my planning officials in arriving at a decision on this application.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of the Environment whether he plans to survey the composition of the new councils, in relation to minority ethnic councillors.

(AQW 35167/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I understand your concern about this and believe that research to determine the composition of new Councils by minority ethnic group and indeed by other categories, would be a worthwhile exercise.

I think that the appropriate body to take this forward would be Equality Commission Northern Ireland (ECNI) in consultation with Northern Ireland Local Government Association (NILGA).

Accordingly, I have asked my officials to explore this further with the ECNI and NILGA.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of the Environment whether consideration is being given to ensure that planning permission is required for exploratory drilling operations under the Strategic Planning Policy Statement rather than continuing to allow permitted development rights to apply to the drilling of exploratory boreholes for mineral exploration under Part 16 of Schedule 1 of the Planning (General Development) Order (Northern Ireland) 1993.

(AQW 35175/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Permitted development rights for mineral exploration are provided for under Part 16 of Schedule 1 to the Planning (General Development) Order (NI) 1993. These rights have been carefully written to ensure that while they allow for mineral exploration to ascertain the presence and extent or quality of any deposit of a mineral with a view to exploiting that mineral, they also include certain limitations, conditions and safeguards.

A developer, should they wish to invoke these permitted development rights, must provide the Department with details of the location, target mineral, details of plant and operations and anticipated timescale prior to commencing development. This allows for a decision to be taken on whether or not the permitted development right should be removed and the proposal made subject to the full planning application process.

In addition to notifying the Department, the developer must also ensure that:-

- any operation is not within an area of special scientific interest or a site of archaeological interest;
- any explosive charge of more than 1 kilogram is not used; and
- any structure assembled or provided is not more than 3 metres in height where such a structure would be within 3 kilometres of an aerodrome.

Part 16 permitted development rights also provide conditions which the developer must adhere to, including adequate sealing of any boreholes, protection of trees on the site and restoration of the land to its condition before the development took place.

The draft Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS) states that there should be a presumption against unconventional exploitation of hydrocarbons until the Department is satisfied that there is sufficient and robust evidence on all environmental impacts. The consultation on the SPPS has now closed and my officials are currently considering the responses received.

I have no plans to amend or revoke the current permitted development rights provided for under Part 16 of Schedule 1 to the Planning (General Development) Order (NI) 1993.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33952/11-15, (i) why no detailed drawings of the explosives store were included with the planning application; (ii) why his Department did not request these details; (iii) whether full permission can be granted to a development in the absence of such details or planning conditions; and (iv) how this planning application came to be approved at this location.

(AQW 35198/11-15)

Mr Durkan: As part of planning application K/2013/0072/F, the applicant's project description document refers to a portable explosives store. The development as approved is temporary in nature (3 years). As advised in AQW 33952/11-15, the explosives store location was shown by the applicant on their Site Layout drawing and annotated 'Proposed temporary surface explosives store'.

Again as advised in AQW 33952/11-15, this facility may only be used for the storage of explosives once a licence has been given by the DOJ under the Management and Storage of Explosives (NI) Regulations 2006, subject to the facility satisfying an explosives inspector from Health and Safety (Great Britain) and meeting security requirements set out by the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI). This process takes place without the planning process. Strategic Projects Division is content that sufficient detail was provided given that the facility was subject to a further process to establish its details from a security perspective.

In order to meet the clearance requirements of the Management and Storage of Explosives (NI) Regulations 2006, the developer has proposed a minor amendment to the explosive store location as approved in accordance with K/2013/0072/F. The proposed minor amendment details remain under consideration by my officials.

This application was approved after going through the statutory planning process, including assessment against relevant policy and a full consultation.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33768/11-15, whether the need to export waste is related to the unavailability of the Mobouy Road landfill site or any of the other waste sites currently under investigation by his Department.

(AQW 35203/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The need to export waste is not driven by any current investigations. The export of waste for energy recovery is common throughout the United Kingdom and occurs within the terms of the EU's regulatory framework.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment what percentage of the cost of monitoring, application and policing of the environmental regulation of a company which is given permission to search for and obtain petroleum will be met by the company; and to detail how his Department will collect this revenue.

(AQW 35204/11-15)

Mr Durkan: NIEA seeks to safeguard the quality of the environment through effective regulation of activities that have the potential to impact on air, water and land. This involves issuing consents, licences, permits and authorisations and enforcing standards for compliance.

The Agency is required to achieve full cost recovery for such regulatory functions through the application of fees and charges on companies it regulates. The operation of NIEA's Regulatory Charging Policy, including the collection of fees and charges, is detailed within NIEA's existing fees and charging schemes.

Further detail on NIEA's Regulatory Charging Policy and on individual schemes is publicly available on NIEA's website: http://www.doeni.gov.uk/niea/business_and_industry-2/charges.htm

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 11111/11-15, whether the regulations do not subject those proposals for hydraulic fracturing that are below a certain threshold to an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA); and what action he will take to ensure that all proposals for extreme energy exploration and extraction will be subject to an EIA.

(AQW 35208/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The SPPS (Spatial Planning Policy Statement) provides a new set of overarching core planning principles to underpin delivery of the planning reforms set out in the Planning Act (Northern Ireland) 2011 ('the Planning Act'). The SPPS states in relation to unconventional hydrocarbon extraction there should be a presumption against their exploitation until the Department is satisfied that there is sufficient and robust evidence on all environmental impacts.

The Environmental Impact Assessment Directive will play a central role and in the decision making process ensuring that the environmental implications of this project are taken into account before final decisions are taken.

I have always said that all appropriate planning and environmental standards will be strictly applied on the issue of unconventional hydraulic fracturing. As Planning and Environment Minister this approach will not be compromised.

Should any application be submitted for high volume hydraulic fracturing, a planning application will be required to be accompanied with an Environmental Statement which identifies and provides mitigation against all identified environmental impacts.

Department of Finance and Personnel

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to what extent his Department has implemented the Programme for Government 2011-15 commitment that all public procurement contracts for supplies, services and construction works will include social clauses; and to what level such clauses have been implemented.

(AQW 34275/11-15)

Mr Hamilton (The Minister of Finance and Personnel): My Department fully supports the Programme for Government 2011-15 commitment that all public procurement contracts for supplies, services and construction works will include social clauses.

In relation to contracts let by my own Department in 2013-14, 84 of these (78%) include wider community benefits as appropriate, and a number of contracts have been let with employment and training clauses.

More widely Central Procurement Directorate (CPD) within my Department has supported the Programme for Government commitment through the development of guidance on integrating social considerations into contracts. Responsibility for implementing the guidance lies with departments. However, CPD also works with departments and Centres of Procurement Expertise to encourage and support both commissioners and practitioners in the delivery of social clauses in public contracts.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether he has any plans to adjust the responsibility for the payment of rates between a landlord and a tenant for capital values above £150,000.

(AQW 34601/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: In April 2013, the Department carried out a limited consultation on changes to simplify the law around landlord rates liability. These proposed removing conditionality relating to the frequency of rent payment and extending the discount for prompt rates payment to include empty properties. These amendments were introduced in the Financial Provisions (NI) Act 2014, which obtained Royal Assent at the end of April and will take effect from the start of the next financial year, April 2015.

It was clear from that consultation that more fundamental reform will not attract universal approval. On the one hand, tenants and those who represent their views believe that landlords should be liable in all cases. On the other hand, landlords consider that tenants should be liable, as they are normally under the Council Tax System in the rest of the UK.

While I recognise the need to review liability in this sector, this cannot precede wider policy decisions on Welfare Reform which will have an effect on rental arrangements in Northern Ireland.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what is the policy and practice of permitting departments, which have not controlled their expenditure within agreed targets, to benefit from monitoring rounds.

(AQW 34665/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: There are no rules stating that a department exceeding its Budget Control Total in one year cannot receive additional funding in future monitoring rounds.

Mr McNarry asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel when he will resume talks with the Prime Minister and HM Treasury on the devolution of corporation tax powers.

(AQW 34739/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The Prime Minister has indicated that the Government will announce its decision on the devolution of corporation tax powers no later than the 2014 Autumn Statement and the timing and nature of any discussions will be dependent on that.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel (i) what was the annual expenditure on food in Civil Service facilities in each of the last three years; (ii) of this total expenditure, what was the expenditure on food produced in Northern Ireland; and (iii) whether this food is clearly identified as having been produced in Northern Ireland on menus and at point of service.

(AQW 34789/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: My Department does not hold this information for each of the last three years.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34902/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The funding my Department has invested in North Belfast during financial years 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14 is £1.5million.

No expenditure in my Department's arm's length bodies was spent in North Belfast in this period.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the number of (a) direct; and (b) indirect jobs in the local marine sector for the most recent consecutive five years for which data is available.

(AQW 35109/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: It is not possible to differentiate between direct and indirect jobs. The table details the number of employee jobs in industries related to the maritime sector as defined by Eurostat in the years for which data is available. The definition used includes processing of fish and the building, repair and maintenance of ships.

Table 1: Northern Ireland Employee Jobs in Industries Related to the Maritime Sector

Maritime Sector	Number of Employee Jobs
2009	1,946
2011	1,874

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel why his departmental officials pursue tenants for unpaid rates, in cases where the rental agreement states that rent payments were inclusive of rates, rather than the landlord who collected rates from his tenant but did not make payment to the Department.

(AQW 35139/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Article 20(1) of the Rates (Northern Ireland) Order 1977 determines who is legally responsible for paying rates on rental homes, regardless of any tenancy agreement. I am aware of a number of cases where the landlord has taken payment from the tenant in respect of rates as part of the tenancy agreement, but not passed on to the Department. Such instances are unfortunate (and AQW 34500/11-15 refers), however my departmental officials have no option but to pursue the tenant for unpaid rates. Land & Property Services is sympathetic to these cases and works closely with the tenant to agree a suitable repayment plan.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether there are any ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects that his Department is associated with; and if so, to detail the projects.

(AQW 35154/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: There are no ongoing investigations relating to any Public Private Partnership projects within my Department.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, following reports that a 25 year old patient with a disability was denied physiotherapy treatment at Tyrone County Hospital and referred to a private nursing home where they had to pay for the treatment, whether a new policy on the treatment of patients has been implemented in the hospital.

(AQW 34664/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): In the Western Trust Physiotherapy services are offered at the Tyrone County Hospital for clients of all ages, on an out-patient basis.

Regarding those who are over 65, in-patient rehabilitation services are available at the Hospital for those who meet the admission criteria. For those patients under 65 years who meet the admission criteria, the Western Trust has a nurse-led service which includes 10 orthopaedic rehabilitation beds in the Waterside Hospital, Londonderry.

There has been no change of policy on the treatment of patients in relation to Physiotherapy services at Tyrone County Hospital.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the usage and uptake of insulin pumps in each Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 34808/11-15)

Mr Poots: As at 30 June 2014 there were 730 patients using insulin pump therapy in Northern Ireland, with 153 patients waiting to commence treatment. The table below sets out the number of adults and children both receiving and waiting for insulin pump therapy in each Health and Social Care Trust.

Trust	No. adults receiving insulin pump therapy	No. adults waiting for insulin pump therapy	No. Paediatric patients receiving insulin pump therapy	No. Paediatric patients waiting for insulin pump therapy	Total no. patients receiving insulin pump therapy	Total no. Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether Health and Social Care Trusts are offered financial incentives for putting patients on terminal care templates, such as the Liverpool Care Pathway.

(AQW 35169/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Liverpool Care Pathway is the only end of life care tool which has been used in Northern Ireland to support the care of people who are identified in the final days and hours of life. No Health and Social Care Trust in Northern Ireland has been offered financial incentives for placing patients on the Liverpool Care Pathway.

In line with advice already issued in England and Scotland, advice that the use of the Liverpool Care Pathway should be phased out in Northern Ireland has been issued by my Department.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for a breakdown by Health and Social Care Trust of the primary diagnoses resulting in patients being initiated on terminal care pathways.

(AQW 35170/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Liverpool Care Pathway (LCP) is the only tool which has been used in Northern Ireland to support the care of a person who has been identified as being in the probable final days or hours of life. A decision to use the Liverpool Care Pathway to support care at the end of life will have been made on a case by case basis with regard to the individual circumstances of each patient and would not therefore have been either dependent on or as a result of a person's diagnosis or condition.

In line with advice already issued in England and Scotland, advice that the use of the Liverpool Care Pathway should be phased out in Northern Ireland has been issued by my Department.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the measures which his Department has implemented to monitor the use of terminal care pathways.

(AQW 35171/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Liverpool Care Pathway (LCP) is the only clinical pathway which has been used in Northern Ireland to provide care for people who are in the final days and hours of life. Health and Social Care Trusts have never been set targets for placing patients on the Liverpool Care Pathway and the Department has not implemented measures to monitor the frequency of use of the LCP in Health and Social Care Trusts.

The Liverpool Care Pathway has been subject to national audit by way of the National Care of the Dying Audit - Hospitals (NCDHAH) led by the Marie Curie Palliative Care Institute Liverpool in collaboration with the Royal College of Physicians, Northern Ireland has participated in two of these audits. The aim of the NCDHAH was to improve the standards of care for patients who are expected to die, and who die in acute hospitals, whilst supported by the Liverpool Care Pathway. The audit incorporated Key Performance Indicators which enabled hospitals and Trusts which participated to identify the quality of care provided to dying patients where care was supported by the Liverpool Care Pathway, benchmark their performance against other hospitals and consequently drive up the continuous quality of care.

In line with advice already issued in England and Scotland, advice that the use of the Liverpool Care Pathway should be phased out in Northern Ireland has been issued by my Department.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what plans he has to protect the funding for the Condition Management Programme.

(AQW 35241/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department does not provide funding to the Condition Management Programme (CMP). The CMP is funded and managed by the Department for Employment and Learning (DEL) and is delivered, on behalf of DEL, by healthcare professionals in Health and Social Care Trusts.

The Minister for Employment and Learning has advised me that following a review of the CMP by his Department, it has been concluded that the current model is not sustainable and that funding for the programme in its existing format will cease at the end of 2014/15. Officials from my Department are liaising with officials from DEL and other key stakeholders to explore potential options for the CMP after 2014/15.

Department of Justice

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 2053/11-15, to detail the offence(s) for which the officer is being prosecuted.

(AQW 2674/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice): A police investigation file into allegations of voyeurism was submitted to the Public Prosecution Service in April 2011. Prosecution decisions are a matter for the independent Director of Public Prosecutions and any further information required should be sought from the Director's office.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 1825/11-15, for his assessment of whether charges of perverting the course of justice should be rigorously pursued to avoid the corruption of cases, witness interference and the wasting of PSNI, Public Prosecution Service and Court time.

(AQW 3128/11-15)

Mr Ford: Perverting the course of justice is a serious matter and should, of course, be dealt with in the appropriate manner. Decisions on how best to proceed are made on a case by case basis and are a matter for the independent Public Prosecution Service.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice what plans he has to reform the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme, in line with the announcement made by the Justice Secretary, Ken Clarke MP.

(AQW 7355/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme broadly mirrors the schemes in England, Wales and Scotland. I have no current plans to reform the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme. However, my Department will examine the Ministry of Justice proposals, and consider their relevance for Northern Ireland, particularly in terms of practical support for victims. Consideration will also be given to the recommendations from the Inquiry by the Justice Committee into the services available to victims and witnesses of crime.

Mr Weir asked Minister of Justice to detail (i) the quangos to which his Department makes appointments; (ii) how many members are appointed; and (iii) the remuneration paid to (a) the Chair; and (b) other members.

(AQW 9796/11-15)

Mr Ford: The information requested is set out in the, "Public Bodies and Public Appointments Annual Report 2010-11", published by OFMDFM which lists all of my Department's public bodies. The Annual Report is available from the Assembly Library under Reference number, R351.41609 NOR.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Justice to detail all occasions in the last 12 months when his Department has made a presentation to an Assembly committee and provided papers pertaining to that presentation to the committee less than 48 hours beforehand.

(AQW 10036/11-15)

Mr Ford: There has been one occasion in the last 12 months on which the Department of Justice has made a presentation to its Assembly Committee and provided papers pertaining to that presentation to the Committee less than 48 hours beforehand.

The presentation in question was in reference to the 'Legal Aid Dispute', which was listed for the Justice Committee meeting on 23 June 2011. The papers pertaining to this issued to the Committee on 21 June 2011; this had been agreed in advance with the Committee Clerk.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the community groups he has met since taking office; (ii) the community groups he has met with in regard to dealing the past; and (iii) the community groups which have sought to meet him but that have been declined a meeting.

(AQW 14226/11-15)

Mr Ford: Since taking up office on 12 April 2010, until 25 September 2012, I have met the following community groups:

- Ardoyne Representatives
- Black Mountain Shared Space Project
- Cavehill Antrim Road Regeneration (CARR)
- Crumlin and Ardoyne Residents Association (CARA)
- Holyland Regeneration Association
- Kilcooley Community Forum
- North & West Belfast Forum
- North & West Belfast Parades Forum
- Rural Community Network
- Short Strand Partnership
- Upper Springfield Community Safety Forum

None of these groups raised the issue of dealing with the past.

It is not possible to provide the information requested on any meetings declined as to locate, retrieve and extract the relevant information would require a manual search of records which could only be carried out at disproportionate cost.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice what consultation his Department has carried out with key stakeholders, including serving police officers, on pension changes; and to provide copies of the reports of these consultations.

(AQW 35230/11-15)

Mr Ford: In January 2012, my Department commenced consultation, at the Police Negotiating Board (PNB), on the policy for the new Police Pension Scheme. In line with normal practice, such consultations are carried out in confidence.

On 8 March 2012, the Executive took the decision to adopt a new Career Average Revalued Earnings scheme model, in line with the equivalent scheme in Great Britain and not to adopt different approaches for Northern Ireland.

On 3 July 2014, my Department published a statement detailing the bodies we would consult when making changes to pensions regulations. Consultation is targeted at those bodies with a direct responsibility for police pensions and the recognised staff associations and representative bodies. This approach is consistent with that of other Departments in relation to the changes to public sector pension schemes. Consultation on the draft regulations will close on 16 October 2014.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice to outline the reasons for the delay in making payments to police widows who have had their entitlement to widow's pension restored, with effect from 1 July 2014; and when will the relevant administrative approval issue to enable payments to commence.

(AQW 35257/11-15)

Mr Ford: I remain keen to give effect to the will of the Assembly that, under Section 30 of the Public Service Pensions Act (Northern Ireland) 2014, police widows remarrying after 1 January 1989 should retain, or have reinstated, their pensions. However, there are a number of technical issues that need to be resolved with the Department of Finance & Personnel and with HM Treasury before I can give approval for payments to commence.

I have written to the Finance Minister seeking to address these issues urgently and I understand he is engaging with HM Treasury on the matter. I await a substantive response.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Justice whether a person travelling to Northern Ireland, who is prescribed cannabis for medical purposes in their home country, is permitted to carry and use their prescribed medication in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35332/11-15)

Mr Ford: Responsibility for this falls under the remit of the Home Office, and I would refer you to them for further information and response.

Department for Regional Development

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the footfall in Belfast city centre, broken down by month, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35018/11-15)

Mr Kennedy (The Minister for Regional Development): My Department does not measure footfall and, therefore, does not hold the information you have requested. However we receive footfall figures from Belfast City Centre management.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister for Regional Development how his Department measures footfall in cities.

(AQW 35020/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I would refer the Member to my response to his related question, AQW 35018/11-15.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of the number of people who are availing of the Cycle to Work Scheme.

(AQW 35180/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Northern Ireland Civil Service Cycle to Work Scheme, which I launched in June 2012, is managed by the Department of Finance and Personnel (DFP). The scheme enables civil servants to receive substantial discounts on the hire of a bicycle for travel to and from work.

DFP has advised that almost 500 NICS staff are currently availing of the Cycle to Work Scheme and over 1,200 bicycles have been processed under the scheme since its launch in June 2012.

In light of the steps that I have been taking to promote cycling – and everyday cycling in particular – I am encouraged by the number of civil servants who have availed of the scheme.

Department for Social Development

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development how many tickets for the Jubilee Garden Party on 27 June 2012 were allocated to (i) the Minister; (ii) his Department; and (iii) its arm's-length bodies.

(AQW 13291/11-15)

Mr McCausland (The Minister for Social Development): My Department received a total allocation of 150 tickets for the Jubilee Garden Party on 27 June.

Mr Boylan asked the Minister for Social Development for his assessment of the accuracy of the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency's current measurement of rural poverty.

(AQO 5550/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My department produces the official poverty estimates for Northern Ireland using the Family Resources Survey, which is an annual survey carried out in the whole of the United Kingdom. My department considers the current measures of poverty, as recognised in legislation through the UK Child Poverty Act 2010, as being robust in their nature. In addition, the Northern Ireland Family Resources Survey publication and associated publications have been assessed by the United Kingdom Statistics Authority and have been designated as National Statistics, which demonstrates the quality and reliability of the statistics.

All Family Resource Survey data can be categorised by both Urban Rural and East-West classifications. These breakdowns are also considered to be robust and are presented in the Family Resources Survey Urban Rural report for Northern Ireland.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 33737/11-15, (i) how many investigations the Investigation Strategy Group has overseen since it was established; (ii) how many have been reported to his Department; and (iii) to outline the nature of each investigation.

(AQW 34026/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has advised that;

- (i) The Investigation Strategy Group (ISG) has overseen 97 cases since it was established;
- (ii) 75 cases were reported to the Department for Social Development. All internal disciplinary cases are not required to be notified to the Department. However, all ISG cases are reported at the Housing Executive's Audit and Risk Assurance Committee which is attended by Departmental officials on a quarterly basis.
- (iii) Due to the numbers of cases it would be impractical to outline each case. However, the Housing Executive advise that the most common types of cases relate to alleged breaches of the Housing Executive's Code of Conduct, for example:-
 - Allegations of Staff Misconduct of which there were 14 cases,
 - Allegations of Deficiencies in Contract Management of which there were nine cases,
 - Allegations of improper relationship between employee and contractor of which there were six cases.

Mr G Kelly asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the funding that his Department, and its arm's-length bodies, invested in North Belfast between May 2011 and May 2014.

(AQW 34974/11-15)

Mr McCausland: It is not practical to disaggregate amounts specifically to the period requested. The table below therefore provides details on the total funding invested by my Department and its arm's length bodies in North Belfast, broken down by main business area/function between 2011-12 and 2014-15.

Business Area	Total Funding provided (£m)
Social Security Jobs & Benefits Offices	11.20
Urban Regeneration	13.48
Voluntary & Community	4.22
European Unit Peace III funding	2.16
Housing Executive	101.06
Total:	132.12

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Social Development how many benefit appeals have been completed in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35129/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The number of appeals completed by The Appeals Service in each of the last three financial years is detailed in the table below.

Year	Completed Appeals ¹
2011-12	14,975
2012-13	17,598

Year	Completed Appeals¹
2013-14	22,392

1. Appeals processed and disposed of within each financial year.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Social Development to outline the cost associated with an oral benefit appeal hearing. (AQW 35130/11-15)

Mr McCausland: This information cannot be provided in the format requested. Resources are allocated across a wide range of benefit appeals for both oral and paper based appeals and a number of variables influence the costs depending also on the benefit decision being appealed. The table below sets out the actual expenditure for The Appeals Service and the total number of appeals processed and disposed of within the last financial year.

Expenditure 2013-14	Appeal numbers
£8.86m	22,392

Written Answers to Questions

Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister

Mr Spratt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the Social Investment Fund in the South Belfast constituency.

(AQW 26477/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): The Belfast South Social Investment Fund Steering Group has prioritised 5 projects within the funding allocation for the Zone.

Letters of offer have issued and been agreed for three of these projects with work progressing to support delivery:

- Employment - An employment project targeting 375 local people to train in catering, hospitality, retail and IT;
- Taughmonagh - A project to facilitate an extension to the day nursery and healthy living centre at Taughmonagh;
- Sandy Row – A project to refurbish 127-145 Sandy Row to create a training and education centre and social economy asset.

A further two projects are currently within the funding allocation for the zone and, subject to approval through the economic appraisal process and final costs, we intend to issue letters of offer before the end of the year:

- Lanyon Tunnels - This proposal is to open the tunnels at Lanyon Place and turn them into commercial businesses such as cafe, crèche, recycling centre, community space etc;
- Increasing Community Services - A capital cluster to refurbish ten locations within the Belfast South Zone.

Mr Eastwood asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why AQO 4659/11-15 and AQW 25012/11-15 remain unanswered.
(AQW 28394/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: AQO 4659/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 1 September 2014. AQW 25012/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 20 February 2014.

Mr Eastwood asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why (i) AQW 28009/11-15; (ii) AQW 27842/11-15; (iii) AQW 27804/11-15; (iv) AQW 27359/11-15; (v) AQW 27235/11-15; and (vi) AQO 4659/11-15 remain unanswered.

(AQW 28880/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness:

- (i) AQW 28009/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 17 December 2013.
- (ii) AQW 27842/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 18 December 2013.
- (iii) AQW 27804/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 6 March 2014.
- (iv) AQW 27359/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 20 February 2014.
- (v) AQW 27235/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 28 March 2014.
- (vi) AQO 4659/11-15 - We refer the Member to the answer provided on 1 September 2014.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why AQW 13640/11-15 remains unanswered; and to provide the answer to the same.

(AQW 28900/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We would refer the Member to the answer to AQW 13640/11-15 which was provided on 4 September 2014.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why AQW 8802/11-15 remains unanswered.

(AQW 29265/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We would refer the member to the answer to AQW 8802/11-15 which was provided on 4 September 2014.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why AWQ 20978/11-15 remains unanswered.
(AQW 29267/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We would refer the member to the answer to AQW 20978/11-15 which was provided on 4 September 2014.

Mr Copeland asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the most regular causes of Assembly Questions to their Department not being answered on time.
(AQW 35206/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Since the beginning of this mandate some 2,300 Assembly questions have been tabled for answer by us. It is not possible to respond in the terms requested as, apart from the volume of questions itself, each question will have different implications in terms of researching and preparing an answer. Delays can therefore arise for a variety of reasons, including the nature of the question, the range and complexity of information requested and the unique nature of our responsibilities which requires joint consideration and agreement on an appropriate response.

Department of Agriculture and Rural Development

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how much revenue was earned from the felling and sale of trees from Belvoir Forest in August 2014.
(AQW 35234/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill (The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development): The revenue earned from the felling and sale of trees from Belvoir forest in August 2014 amounted to approximately £65,000.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development when the felling of trees in Belvoir Forest was initially planned.
(AQW 35235/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The initial detailed planning associated with the felling of trees in Belvoir forest took place in March 2014. This included close liaison with the NI Environment Agency in the development of plans that protected the high biodiversity value of the forest including veteran oak trees as well as managing the public access issues in a highly popular forest.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the loans advanced by her Department through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, since 1 April 2013.
(AQW 35264/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The Department of Agriculture and Rural Development has not advanced any loans through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme since 1 April 2013.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development where the monies raised from the sale of trees in Belvoir Forest were allocated in her departmental budget.
(AQW 35295/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The income generated from the sale of timber, including Belvoir Forest, is factored into the Forest Service budget allocation which then reduces the amount of Departmental funding the Agency requires.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what steps her Department is taking in the identification of herds with Mycoplasma bovis.
(AQW 35296/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Mycoplasma bovis is a production disease of cattle. It is not a notifiable disease and currently my Department takes no steps to identify infected herds.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what steps her Department is taking to combat the potential infection of Mycoplasma bovis in dairy herds.
(AQW 35297/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Mycoplasma bovis is a production disease of cattle. It is not a notifiable disease and currently my Department takes no steps to identify infected herds.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for an update on the relocation of her departmental headquarters to Ballykelly.

(AQO 6528/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: On 26 June I received Executive endorsement from FM & DFM to progress the work necessary to relocate my Department's headquarters in a cost effective way and to create a new build at the former military site, Shackleton Barracks, in Ballykelly.

This approach to implementation will be in two phases which will result in the provision of a 400 workstation building in phase 1 to be available from end of 2017 and a further 200 workstations available by end of 2020. I have since directed my Permanent Secretary to press on with this important work.

My headquarters move to Ballykelly is part of a wider programme of work designed to meet the Programme for Government target to advance the relocation of DARD headquarters to a rural area. The other elements of the programme will result in Fisheries Division relocating to Downpatrick and Forest Service to Enniskillen by June 2015 then Rivers Agency to the Loughry College campus in Cookstown by March 2016.

The relocation of my department to these four rural locations will help stimulate the local economy through increased local spending, provision of high quality and high value public sector jobs and potentially jobs associated with the construction and the ongoing servicing, of the new accommodation. It will help to share wealth across the economy and contribute to better-balanced economic growth, by commencing to address disparities in the distribution of public sector jobs in the north of Ireland. By having our headquarters in a rural location we will strengthen our rural roots.

Mr Maskey asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for an update on the review of animal welfare legislation. (AQO 6529/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: On 31 March 2014 the Assembly debated a Motion calling for a review of the implementation of the Welfare of Animals Act 2011, and particularly sentencing guidelines and practices. I supported the Motion as I want to see sentences imposed by the Courts which fit the crime and act as a deterrent to animal cruelty.

I initiated a review of the implementation of the Welfare of Animals Act 2011, which is being taken forward by my officials working with the Department of Justice. The Terms of Reference are available on my Department's website.

The Review is being overseen by a Steering Group comprising senior officials from my Department and the Department of Justice. The Review is considering the implementation of the Welfare of Animals Act 2011 under four themes: Sentencing; Delivery Structures; Working Together; and Serving the Public. Working Groups have been established to consider the various themes.

The Review held five Stakeholder Discussion Sessions during late July and early August with a wide range of stakeholders. Separate Discussion Sessions were held for each of the following sectors: Farmed Animals; Multi Species and Veterinary; Wild Animals; Cats and Dogs; and Equine. Stakeholders attending these events included Statutory Organisations, Welfare Charities, Rescue and Rehoming Charities, Industry Representative Bodies and Special Interest Groups.

Each session was well supported and useful information was exchanged. Attendees welcomed the opportunity to input into the Review. Feedback from those sessions, as well as written evidence submitted by stakeholders, has been provided to the Chairs of each of the Working Groups. That information will help inform their discussions over the coming months.

Working Groups will report to the Steering Group on a regular basis. An interim report will be prepared in November 2014 by the Steering Group and a final report will be published in early 2015.

Mr Irwin asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to outline any plans she has to extend the current Rural Development Programme project deadline to allow applicants more time to complete projects.

(AQO 6532/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: I am assuming the Member is referring to the deadlines set for Axis 3 of the Rural Development Programme. I have no plans to extend the current deadlines within this programme. The dates set are the latest that can be permitted in recognition of the volume of work (particularly in the area of financial reconciliation) that will be required for effective closure of the Axis 3 contracts of the Programme and the LAG's/JCC's.

The Axis 3 Programme remains on target to achieve full spend.

Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the loans advanced by her Department through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, since 1 April 2013.

(AQW 35355/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure): My Department has issued no loans through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry since April 2013.

My Department, however, continues to review opportunities to participate in the Scheme.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the projects that will be funded as a result of the £1 million allocation to Cultural Programmes in the June Monitoring Round 2014.

(AQW 35416/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department secured an additional £1 million in the June 2014 monitoring round for the purposes of cultural programming. As business cases in relation to the projects likely to be supported through these funds are currently being finalised, it would be inappropriate for me to comment on the specifics at this stage. The intention is that the funding will be used to support a range of cultural enterprises connected to arts, sports and creativity projects.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure, in light of the Comptroller and Auditor General qualifying her Department's Resource Accounts for 2013/14, whether she accepts that grant payments of over £8m made by her Department's North/South Bodies were irregular; and if she will seek approval from the Department of Finance and Personnel for all such payments in accordance with the statutory requirements of the North/South Co-operation (Implementation Bodies) (Northern Ireland) Order 1999.

(AQW 35466/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The accounts for both agencies of the North South Language Body and Waterways Ireland for the 2013 and 2014 years have not yet been completed and audited.

My Department's Accounting Officer reported that during the 2013/14 year, DCAL incurred irregular spend in respect of grants to the Language Body and Waterways Ireland as the business plans for these respective periods have not been approved. Draft business plans were in place against which the performance and budget of the bodies were monitored, and Corporate Plans for the period 2011-13 for Waterways Ireland and both agencies of the Language Body, which were approved by Sponsor Department Ministers; both Finance Ministers and the NSMC Ministers were in place.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure whether she will place into the Assembly Library, a copy of the documentation received from the Department of Finance and Personnel (DFP), or otherwise recording DFP approval, which verifies the claim by her Department's Accounting Officer in the Resource Accounts 2013/14 that DFP approval of grants to North/South Bodies was given for the amount of the grant at estimates or efficiency stage negotiations.

(AQW 35541/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The 2013/14 Main Estimate is published on the Department of Finance and Personnel's website (<http://www.dfpni.gov.uk/main-estimates-2013-14.pdf>). My Department included within the 2013/14 Main Estimate on specific lines entitled "Language Body" and "Waterways Ireland" an estimate of the grants (before any efficiency savings were applied) my Department intended to allocate to the North South Bodies during 2013/14.

Estimates are prepared by departments and examined by DFP Supply to ensure that they meet Assembly propriety requirements and are consistent with the Executive's expenditure plans.

After approval by DFP Supply the Estimates are presented and recommended (as required by Section 63 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998) to the Assembly by the DFP Minister who moves the Supply Resolution/s summing up the requests for Supply for each body.

On the basis of legal advice, the Department considers that the process and published Main Estimate document shows approval by DFP for the grants allocated to the North South bodies. DFP did not approve the final business plan which has resulted in the grants being deemed irregular.

Department of Education

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education what schools his Department or the Education and Library Boards are in communication with regarding shared school campuses.

(AQW 35236/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): My Department, the Education and Library Boards and the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools are in communication with the schools from each of the three successful proposals; Moy Primary School, St John's Primary School, Moy, Limavady High School, St Mary's High School, Limavady, Ballycastle High School and Cross and Passion College.

All unsuccessful proposals have been provided with feedback against each of the published criteria used to assess their application and were advised that Departmental officials are available to discuss the feedback with representatives of the schools involved in the proposal along with the relevant managing authorities. The respective Managing Authorities and my officials are currently in communication with the following schools:

- Belfast Royal Academy
- Carr's Glen Primary School, Belfast
- St Malachy's College, Belfast
- St Vincent de Paul Primary School

- Duneane Primary School
- Moneynick Primary School
- Cookstown Primary School
- Holy Trinity Primary School, Cookstown
- Newtownhamilton High School
- St Paul's High School, Bessbrook
- Royal School Armagh
- St Patrick's Grammar School, Armagh
- St Catherine's College, Armagh
- Brookeborough Primary School
- St Mary's Primary School, Brookeborough

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education how many children in each Education and Library Board have been (i) provided with a statement of special educational needs; and (ii) formally reassessed and provided with a new statement, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35238/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards have advised that the number of children who have been provided with a statement of special educational needs in each of the last five academic years is as follows:

	2009/10	2010/11	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14
BELB	405	399	410	378	544
NEELB	341	353	420	402	410
SEELB	425	424	331	499	487
SELB	319	326	393	449	465
WELB	286	268	373	357	455

In line with paragraphs 6.30 – 6.32 of the Code of Practice on the Identification and Assessment of Special Educational Needs, the number of children who have been formally reassessed and provided with a new statement, during the same period, is as follows:

	2009/10	2010/11	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14
NEELB	0	1	0	2	1
SEELB	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
WELB	1	0	1	2	3

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education to detail the average length of time taken in each Education and Library Board from the application to publication, of a statement, or re-statement, of special educational needs being provided to parents or guardians, in each of the past five years.

(AQW 35239/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards have advised that the average length of time taken from a request for a statutory assessment of special educational needs (SEN) to the issue of a final statement or restatement of SEN in each of the last five academic years, rounded to the nearest week, excluding permitted exceptions, is as follows:

	2009/10	2010/11	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14
BELB	22	22	22	21	25
NEELB	20	20	19	20	22
SEELB	25	22	23	25	24
SELB	22	21	20	22	21
WELB	24	21	21	23	20

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education to detail the level of uptake of free school meals and school uniform grant assistance in the (a) Omagh; and (b) Strabane districts and to outline his Department's efforts to ensure that there is full uptake of free school meals and school uniform grants in each Education and Library Board area.

(AQW 35314/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The uptake of free school meals and entitlement to free school meals are measured on the day the school census and school meals census are carried out. The level of uptake of free school meals in schools in the Omagh and Strabane District Council areas for 2013/14 is as follows:

	Total Enrolment	Free School Meal Entitlement	Free School Meal Uptake	% Uptake
Omagh	10,486	2,679	2,256	84.2%
Strabane	6,603	2,350	2,038	86.7%

Source: NI school census and school meals census

Notes:

- 1 The census figures provide a snapshot of the position on the day on which the census information is gathered.
- 2 Figures exclude special schools. Data on pupils entitled to free school meals in special schools is not validated.

Entitlement to free school meals generally brings with it entitlement to receive the school uniform grant (with the exception of nursery school pupils) as the eligibility criteria used are similar. The Western Education and Library Board has confirmed that 2,676 pupils attending schools in the Omagh District Council area and 2,283 pupils in the Strabane District Council area were awarded a school uniform allowance in the 2013/14 school year (figures exclude special schools).

A number of actions are being taken forward by my Department, working with the Education and Library Boards (ELBs) and the School Catering Service, to ensure that all those entitled to receive free school meals and the school uniform grant receive these important benefits. For example, the Resource Allocation Plans for each of the ELBs include targets to maintain or increase the uptake of all school meals and of free school meals.

Each year the ELBs issue press releases, send out renewal applications and issue letters and posters to schools, the Social Security Agency, the Citizens Advice Bureau and libraries. The School Catering Service continuously seeks to increase uptake of school meals undertaking a range of activities including, for example, the installation of cashless catering systems in a number of postprimary schools to reduce any stigma associated with free school meals, sending menus home and placing these on school websites, providing meal deals, arranging theme days and taster sessions for parents and pupils.

My officials are also working with colleagues in the Department for Social Development to take forward a joint project to encourage the uptake of free school meals as part of the work of the Inter-Departmental Group on Benefit Uptake (IDGBU).

I am pleased to advise that I have also extended the Working Tax Credit eligibility criterion for free school meals and school uniforms to post-primary pupils from September 2014. This will benefit an estimated additional 15,000 children from lower income households.

I would encourage all families entitled to free school meals and the school uniform grant to take up their entitlement.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education whether his Department has made any progress towards holding a procurement seminar in Omagh aimed at explaining to interested businesses any work opportunities which will be associated with the development of the Shared Education Campus at Lisanelly, Omagh.

(AQW 35315/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My officials are currently considering procurement options for the next phase of the Lisanelly Shared Education Campus. Once this work is completed, arrangements will be made for a procurement seminar to take place as soon as possible thereafter.

Mr D McIlveen asked the Minister of Education what plans he has to introduce the teaching of coding into the school syllabus. (AQW 35340/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The revised curriculum has been designed to provide flexibility for schools to develop experiences that suit the needs of their pupils. Embedding mandatory, cross curricular skills and keeping prescribed content to a minimum, allows schools to choose the most appropriate approach to take to ensure that pupils are engaged and challenged, to reach their full potential.

Computer Science, which includes computer coding, is a specialised field and the flexibility already in place within the revised curriculum, enables schools to teach Computer Science in any Key Stage, including at primary school level, if they feel it appropriate.

At this time there are no plans to make computer programming mandatory in the revised curriculum. However, should schools feel it meets the needs of their pupils, there is sufficient flexibility in the curriculum to allow them to teach it.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Education whether parents who wish their children to be transported by the South Education and Library Board from Dollingstown to Banbridge High School can pay privately for this service.

(AQW 35398/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The current school transport policy permits the payment of an allowance in lieu of transport for pupils in instances where there are too few pupils on a route to make the provision of a suitable vehicle economically viable. The Southern Education and Library Board (SELB) inform me that this is how assistance has been provided for pupils travelling from Dollingstown to Banbridge High School.

With regard to payment for a Board service, legislation requires that where transport is provided for eligible pupils that it must be provided for free. Therefore, Boards are not licensed to operate services with fare paying passengers and so could not provide the service you suggest. However, once in possession of an allowance in lieu of transport, parents are at liberty to explore options with other transport providers such as Translink, which operates the public transport network, or private companies that are licensed to convey fare-paying passengers.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education for an update on the development of the Lisanelly Shared Education campus, including all current and future capital works.
(AQW 35399/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Steady progress has been made on the Lisanelly Shared Education Campus (LSEC) Programme and it is on target to meet the PfG commitment to initiate the first phase of construction by 2014/15.

Demolition will shortly be completed on the area of the site earmarked for Arvalee School & Resource Centre. The tender process for the construction contract for Arvalee has begun and it is intended that the contract will be awarded before the end of 2014, with construction commencing soon after.

Demolition requirements for the remainder of the site is due to be tendered in September 2014 with site work commencing shortly afterwards.

Planning of future phases (i.e. remaining 5 schools) is moving forward with a review of the concept design to take account of revised enrolments and make-up of the schools relocating. Procurement options for future phases of the work are currently being considered.

The current delivery schedule estimates completion of the Lisanelly Shared Education Campus by 2020, with a view to schools coming into operation in September of that year.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education how his Department consults with the local community, including the voluntary sector and youth representatives, regarding the development of the Lisanelly Shared Education campus.
(AQW 35400/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: From the outset my Department has been acutely aware of the need to engage with the local community and in particular with the young people of the area. To date, three full public consultation exercises have been held and there has been on-going engagement with young people through the Western Education and Library Board (WELB) youth service.

Additionally, my officials are currently setting up a formal Community Stakeholder Group which will explore and advise on opportunities for maximising local economic and social benefits from the delivery of this major construction programme.

The Group will also play a central role in developing a structured programme of communication and engagement with a wide range of community representatives, including those from the voluntary sector, on matters relating to the campus development.

The Programme Team will also continue to engage with young people through the WELB Youth Service and the schools themselves.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of mobile classrooms currently in use at each post-primary school in Ballymena.
(AQW 35403/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The North Eastern Education and Library Board has provided the following information in regard to the current number of mobile classrooms.

Name of School	Current Number of mobiles
Cullybackey High School	6
Dunclug College	7
St Patrick's College (Ballymena)	3
Cambridge House Grammar	1
Ballymena Academy School	3
St Louis VGS	10

The Board has stated that the number of mobiles in the last two years has remained static with the exception of Dunclug College where three modular units were installed over the summer of 2014.

It is not possible to establish how many children are taught in mobile classrooms as class sizes may vary from school to school and year group to year group within the school. It is further complicated in post-primary schools where mobile classrooms are often used to teach a variety of subjects and pupils change location a number of times in any school day.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of mobile classrooms in use in each post-primary school in Ballymena, in each of the last two academic years.

(AQW 35404/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The North Eastern Education and Library Board has provided the following information in regard to the current number of mobile classrooms.

Name of School	Current Number of mobiles
Cullybackey High School	6
Dunclug College	7
St Patrick's College (Ballymena)	3
Cambridge House Grammar	1
Ballymena Academy School	3

The Board has stated that the number of mobiles in the last two years has remained static with the exception of Dunclug College where three modular units were installed over the summer of 2014.

It is not possible to establish how many children are taught in mobile classrooms as class sizes may vary from school to school and year group to year group within the school. It is further complicated in post-primary schools where mobile classrooms are often used to teach a variety of subjects and pupils change location a number of times in any school day.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of post-primary pupils taught in mobile classrooms in Ballymena during (i) the current academic year; and (ii) the last two academic years.

(AQW 35405/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The North Eastern Education and Library Board has provided the following information in regard to the current number of mobile classrooms.

Name of School	Current Number of mobiles
Cullybackey High School	6
Dunclug College	7
St Patrick's College (Ballymena)	3
Cambridge House Grammar	1
Ballymena Academy School	3

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) the criteria used to determine which schools received capital funding for new buildings for each funding announcement since 2007, including any weighting given to each category; (ii) whether criteria or weighting have been changed in that period; (iii) the rationale for changes; and (iv) the consultation that took place before making changes.

(AQW 35433/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd:

- (i) There have been 4 capital funding Announcements for Major Works projects since 2007. The first was in 2010 when projects were identified as a result of additional capital funding allocated in the June 2010 monitoring round. As rapid progress was required to realise the full potential of the allocation the projects were selected on the basis of those well advanced in terms of financial, planning and tendering processes.

The protocols detailing the criteria and scoring mechanisms utilised for the subsequent three announcements in 2012, 2013 and 2014 are available on the Departments Website at the following hyperlink;
<http://www.deni.gov.uk/index/schools-and-infrastructure-2.htm>

- (ii) and (iii) The recent protocols have been derived to be consistent with and supportive of the work for Area Planning. In addition the schools have to be deemed viable and comply with the aims and objectives of the Department's Policy for Sustainable Schools. You will observe that the Major Works protocol has been revised and improved prior to each subsequent announcement. The criteria and weightings defined in the protocol have evolved as a result of learning from previous announcements and in support of my priorities for major capital investment. These include, at the last iteration, the addition of criteria to reflect social issues such as the percentage of children with a statement of educational need and those in receipt of free school meals. In addition no schools were considered for inclusion in my last Announcement unless all outstanding area planning issues had been resolved and Development Proposals approved to preclude any stalling of the projects on these grounds.
- (iv) My officials continue to work closely with all sectors in the delivery of my capital investment programme. Prior to my last announcement, the Education and Library Boards were asked to engage with all sectors and provide the Department with major capital works proposals for consideration within the protocol. The protocol itself has evolved from earlier announcements to reflect a greater emphasis on the outworking of the area planning process through supporting the development and delivery of a network of viable and sustainable schools in all school sectors.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of mobile classrooms currently in use in schools in the South Antrim constituency in each of the last three years, broken down by school.

(AQW 35474/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The North Eastern Education & Library Board has provided the following information in relation to the number of mobile classrooms in use over the last three years in South Antrim schools.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education what action his Department is taking to ensure that eleven to eighteen year olds are made aware of the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse.

(AQW 35562/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: All grant-aided schools must have a drugs education policy in place.

Through the statutory curriculum, opportunities are provided for children and young people to develop the knowledge and skills to deal with issues such as drug and alcohol abuse. At primary school this is provided through the Personal Development and Mutual Understanding Area of Learning and, at post-primary school, through the Learning for Life and Work Area of Learning. As with all aspects of the curriculum the specifics of what is taught and how it is taught is a matter for each teacher/school.

While the decision on resources to be used for delivery of the curriculum is a matter for each teacher/school, the Education and Library Boards (ELBs) in partnership with the Council for Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) have made available curriculum resources for primary and post primary schools to support the delivery of the Personal Development Curriculum through a life skills based approach. The current resource for primary schools "Living Learning Together" and post primary schools "Insync" allow for the delivery of universal drug prevention education.

The Department also provides schools with guidance in relation to drugs. CCEA has been commissioned to review and update current guidance. It is intended that this work will be completed during 2014/15.

Funding which is allocated by my Department to the ELBs and the Youth Council for youth provision may be used, as part of an overall youth development programme, to support drugs and alcohol awareness sessions for young people where these are deemed appropriate.

In addition, the Independent Counselling Service for Schools (ICSS), which is directly funded by the Department, provides professional counselling to children and young people at vulnerable times in their lives, including those experiencing difficulties as the result of drug and alcohol abuse. It is available to all post-primary schools. In addition, information for pupils developed through the i-Matter programme is issued to all post primary schools and includes information on 'drugs, alcohol and smoking' and details or sources of further information and help.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Education what percentage of children with Down Syndrome are in mainstream (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools in each Education and Library Board area.

(AQW 35576/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The information requested is detailed in the table below. The percentages are based on the total number of pupils with Down Syndrome in primary, post-primary and special schools for each board.

School sector of all pupils with Down Syndrome by Education and Library Board area, 2013/14

		Primary	Post primary	Special	Total (with Down Syndrome)

 2. Figures for primary and post-primary includes pupils in learning support centres
 3. Figures include pupils at stages 1 – 5 on the Special Educational Needs Code of Practice.
 4. Down Syndrome data refers to any special educational need rather than primary need
- * denotes fewer than 5 pupils
- # denotes figure >=5 suppressed due to potential identification of individual pupils

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of composite classes in (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools, broken down by Education and Library Board, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35701/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Information on class sizes is available for primary schools only.

Number and percentage of composite classes in primary schools by ELB, 2011/12 - 2013/14

Department for Employment and Learning

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the proposed steps his Department will take to meet any reduction in its budget.

(AQW 35232/11-15)

Dr Farry (The Minister for Employment and Learning): My Department is urgently examining the implications of decisions taken by the Executive to reduce the Department's budget and what this will mean for all our spending programmes, including the Department's Arm's Length Bodies. Cuts of this magnitude will inevitably impact on the Department's ability to deliver its skills and employment agenda, supporting individuals, employers and the economy generally. Once decisions have been taken, I will be advising stakeholders.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how his Department informs further and higher education students of the Student Hardship Fund, Further Education Awards, and other available student welfare provisions.

(AQW 35357/11-15)

Dr Farry: In Further Education, financial assistance to students is provided through Further Education Awards and college Hardship Funds. These are advertised extensively through a variety of media. Further Education Awards are promoted through a television advertising campaign during May and June each year. In addition each college promotes both funds through the following channels: prospectuses, websites, prominently displayed posters and a variety of funding guidance literature including flyers, mail drops and information in college diaries. Funding advice is also provided at each induction session. An application form and further information regarding Further Education Awards can be found at <http://www.education-support.org.uk/>. Information regarding Hardship Funds can be obtained from college websites or by contacting student funding staff in each college.

Higher Education offers additional support to students in the form of the means tested Higher Education Support Funds, available through Northern Ireland Higher Education Universities and Colleges. The funds can be used to help students who are experiencing financial hardship. The Department informs and promotes the funds through the Student Finance NI and NIDirect websites. Each year the Department drafts and distributes the Higher Education booklet; Support Funds – Conditions of funding for Higher Education Institutions in Northern Ireland to Queens University Belfast, the University of Ulster, St Marys College and Stranmillis College. Electronic versions of the publication can also be downloaded from the NIDirect website: www.nidirect.gov.uk and the DEL website: www.delni.gov.uk.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what efforts his Department, universities and colleges take to ensure that students are aware of the availability of hardship funds.

(AQW 35424/11-15)

Dr Farry:

Further Education

My Department provides funding through the Hardship Fund, to provide support to learners who are experiencing financial difficulty while enrolled on accredited professional and technical courses. My officials have confirmed with each of the Further Education Colleges that they offer hardship loans to students in line with my Department's guidance and that they actively promote accessibility to all student support funds. This includes information provided in the College Student Support Handbooks and websites, during the induction process for new students and internal promotion through posters and social media.

The Department has included good practice guidelines within the contents of Hardship Fund Circulars <http://www.delni.gov.uk/hardship-fund-discretionary-2014-15.pdf> which include guidelines for publicity on the availability of financial advice and support of all grants. Colleges are advised to direct publicity as far as possible towards students who may need assistance most.

Higher Education

The Universities and Colleges administer and promote the means tested Higher Education Support Funds to help students who are experiencing financial hardship. The Department provides information and promotes the funds through the Student Finance NI and NIDirect websites. Each year the Department drafts and distributes the Higher Education booklet: Support Funds – Conditions of funding for Higher Education Institutions in Northern Ireland to Queen's University Belfast, the University of Ulster, St Marys College and Stranmillis College. Electronic versions of the publication can also be downloaded from the NIDirect website: www.nidirect.gov.uk and the DEL website: www.delni.gov.uk.

Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how much her Department has spent on Special Advisers since May 2007, broken down by (i) salary; (ii) pension contributions; (iii) expenses; (iv) office costs; and (v) other costs.

(AQW 1002/11-15)

Mrs Foster (The Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment):

- (i) The salary ranges of the Department's Special Advisers since May 2007 are published in the Note on Staff numbers and Related Costs in the Department's Annual Resource Accounts and are available on the Department's website.
- (ii) Employers pension contributions were paid at a rate of 17.5% (2007/08), 21.5% (2008/09 & 2009/10) and 23.5% (2010/11 & 2011/12)
- (iii) No expenses claimed
- (iv) Office costs - £6,335.33 (comprising of mobile phone costs, 3G Data card, newspapers, office equipment and stationery)
- (v) There are no 'other costs'.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment whether her Special Adviser is paid within Band A or Band B of the Department of Finance and Personnel's salary scale; and, if it is within Band B whether, in light of the DFP decision to increase the upper limit of the Band B scale to £90,000, there has been an increase in salary or an increase is planned.

(AQW 1978/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Special Adviser in the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment is paid within Band B. There has not been an increase in salary and none is planned as a result of the increase in the upper limit of the Band B scale to £90,000.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, for each Assembly Questions AQW 1002/11-15; and AQW 1978/11-15, to detail (a) the date when officials provided a draft reply; (b) why an answer has not yet been provided; and (c) when an answer will be provided.

(AQW 6111/11-15)

Mrs Foster: AQW 1002/11-15

- (a) 27 June 2011
- (b) and (c): Not applicable

AQW 1978/11-15

- (a): 15 September 2011
 (b) and (c): Not applicable

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to explain the write-off of over £250,000 by the Consumer Council in respect of staff overpayments, including (i) how the situation arose; (ii) where culpability lies; (iii) whether any disciplinary proceedings resulted; and (iv) why recoupment has not occurred.

(AQW 6193/11-15)

Mrs Foster:

- (i) The incorrect interpretation and application of the Northern Ireland Civil Service (NICS) terms and conditions of service relating to pay led to irregular payments being made to 29 Consumer Council employees during the period from 1 April 2004 to 31 March 2010.
- (ii)&(iii) The misinterpretation and incorrect application of NICS terms and conditions of service arose in the determination of salary payments by the Consumer Council. Guidance has been provided to the Consumer Council on the correct interpretation and application of NICS terms and conditions, and the Council has improved processes and controls to ensure salary payments are correctly determined. No disciplinary action has been taken.
- (iv) The decision not to recoup payment was made in light of legal opinion based on all the facts of the case.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the occasions on which she or her Special Advisor have taken part in hospitality trips, engagements, dinners, meetings or events arranged by, or on behalf of, energy companies in the last four years, broken down by (i) location; (ii) attendees; (iii) the companies present or represented; (iv) the matters that were discussed; and (v) who covered the cost of each event.

(AQW 11415/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The information sought in this question was subsequently provided in my answer to AQW 17522 11-15.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment why she has yet to provide an answer to AQW 1002/11-15, which was asked in June 2011; and when she will answer the question.

Mrs Foster: I have provided the information sought in AQW 1002 11-15.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how many tickets for the Jubilee Garden Party on 27 June 2012 were allocated to (i) the Minister; (ii) her Department; and (iii) its arm's-length bodies.

(AQW 13292/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The number of tickets allocated for The Queen's Jubilee Garden Party at Stormont on 27 June 2012, were as follows:

DETI Minister : Nil
 DETI (including its Arm's-length Bodies) : 150

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for a breakdown of her Department's total anticipated spend in respect of the celebration of the centenary of the Ulster Covenant.

(AQW 14781/11-15)

Mrs Foster: I will be bringing forward a programme to the Executive to mark the Decade of Centenaries.

£200,000 has been allocated to the initial stage of establishing an Executive programme for the Decade as a whole which will signpost visitors and residents to the many events and initiatives telling the stories and different interpretations behind anniversaries across the Decade.

It is not possible at this stage to anticipate the spend in respect of the centenary of the Ulster Covenant as the programme is still being finalised.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for her assessment of the findings of the Ombudsman's draft report issued around December 2012, in respect of an investigation into the actions of her Department in its oversight and governance of the Presbyterian Mutual Society.

(AQW 18423/11-15)

Mrs Foster: In line with normal practice and procedure, the DETI Permanent Secretary received a copy of the Assembly Ombudsman's final report of his investigation into the complaint about the actions of the Department in relation to the Presbyterian Mutual Society. The Report was provided in accordance with the statutory requirements under the Ombudsman (Northern Ireland) Order 1996 and remains confidential. The Ombudsman intends to publish a summary of the case and the findings in his annual report in June 2013.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how much her Department has spent date, including the cost of any legal advice sought, on responding to the Ombudsman's draft report on the actions of her Department in its oversight and governance of the Presbyterian Mutual Society.

(AQW 18424/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department did not incur any external costs in responding to the Assembly Ombudsman's draft report of his investigation into the complaint about the actions in relation to the Presbyterian Mutual Society. The cost of the input of officials' time, including that of the Departmental Solicitor's Office, is not routinely recorded for the purposes of responding to Ombudsman enquiries.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, in view of the finding by the Ombudsman that her Department failed to apply an adequate level of scrutiny to the Presbyterian Mutual Society, will the disqualification proceedings against former directors cease.

(AQW 18623/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The report of the Assembly Ombudsman provides no grounds for discontinuing the ongoing disqualification proceedings.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 16548/11-15, for an update on the number of people who have availed of the service in Foyle since August 2012, broken down by (i) month; and (ii) venue.

(AQW 19863/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Since 1 August 2012 to 31 January 2013, 203 clients from the Foyle constituency have availed of the Debt Action NI service.

	Aug 2012	Sep 2012	Oct 2012	Nov 2012	Dec 2012	Jan 2013	Total

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how the decision not to allow the use of the Irish language on Northern Ireland Tourist Board funded signage meets the requirement that all public bodies must take positive steps in promoting the Irish language and promoting the traditional form of place names, and that under the European Convention on Human Rights, public bodies are not allowed to discriminate on the basis of language.

(AQW 19983/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Tourist Board abides by Section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 and recognises its obligations under the European Charter for Regional or Minority Languages; and the Framework Convention for the Protection of National Minorities.

Northern Ireland Tourist Board's approach to bilingual signage is premised upon the precedent set by the Department for Regional Development's Tourist Signing in Northern Ireland Policy. This policy provides that signs should be in English only except where the facility in question is known in another language such as Irish, an example of this is An Cultúrlann. The Tourist Board adopts this approach.

NITB is keen to ensure that all tourist interpretation and signage is clear, not confusing, based on evidence of visitor need and assists the visitor in understanding the importance of the destination

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 19629/11-15, (i) whether this figure includes the hospitality spend by arm's-length bodies in 2011/12; and (ii) to detail any hospitality spend by arm's-length bodies in 2011/12.

(AQW 20598/11-15)

Mrs Foster:

- (i) The answer to AQW 19629/11-15 did not include the hospitality spend by arms-length bodies in 2011/12; and
- (ii) The hospitality spend by arms-length bodies in 2011/12 is as follows:

NDPB	Spend 2011/12 £
General Consumer Council Northern Ireland	1,313.00
Northern Ireland Tourist Board	17,915.00
Health & Safety Executive Northern Ireland	1,972.67
Total	21,200.67

You have also asked this question of Invest NI (AQW 20502/11-15). This will be answered separately.

Ms McGahan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 21746/11-15, to outline the rationale for not providing information on West Tyrone and Fermanagh/South Tyrone.

(AQW 22510/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Information was not withheld from the original response. The table used dashes in place of zeros to indicate that there were no visits.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the total expenditure on departmental Ministerial travel in the periods (i) January to June 2013; and (ii) July to December 2013.

(AQW 30357/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The totals for the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment's travel expenditure for the periods specified are shown below.

- | | |
|----------------------------|------------|
| (i) January to June 2013 | £39,805.09 |
| (ii) July to December 2013 | £44,148.95 |

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment whether letting fees are considered legal under the Commission on Disposals of Land (Northern Ireland) Order 1986; and to detail the investigations that have been carried out by Trading Standards on tackling unfair and misleading terms in private tenancy agreements.

(AQW 33121/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Commission on Disposals of Land (NI) Order 1986 makes void a requirement that the tenant be liable for any commissions which are charged by letting agents for rent reviews or extensions/renewals of lettings. The Order does not make void the requirement for such fees to be paid by a landlord to a letting agent, i.e. the landlord can be charged to renew a rental agreement but this charge (or commission) cannot be passed on to the tenant.

The Trading Standards Service has investigated contractual terms in 15 private tenancy agreements to determine if they are unfair or misleading under the Unfair Terms in Consumer Contract Regulations 1999.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on the implementation of the Social Economy Enterprise Strategy published in March 2010.

(AQW 35240/11-15)

Mrs Foster: I launched the Executive's cross-departmental Social Economy Enterprise (SEE) Strategy 2010/2011 in March 2010.

DETI led on the development and implementation of the SEE Strategy, working closely with key stakeholders and government departments. The strategy included actions for departments and agencies with a role in developing the sector, including DSD, DARD, DHSSPS, DEL, CPD, Invest NI and DETI, as well as the Social Economy Network as the representative body at that time. An annual report on the key achievements of the SEE Strategy was published in June 2011.

The SEE Strategy 2010/11 was subject to an independent evaluation to determine its impact on the social economy sector and to inform future strategic direction. As a result of the recommendations in the evaluation report, DETI subsequently appointed Social Enterprise NI to design and deliver a three year Social Economy Work Programme which commenced in October 2012.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for her assessment of the recommendations from John Hunter's review of the Tourist Board and the wider tourism structures.

(AQW 35320/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The review report is currently out for public consultation until the end of September to allow the many stakeholders involved in the tourism sector the opportunity to respond to the report's recommendations.

An assessment of the review and its outcomes will be provided in due course following a full analysis of the consultation responses received.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what financial provision is available to small and medium-sized enterprises in East Londonderry to expand following initial set-up.

(AQW 35356/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Invest NI works with businesses across Northern Ireland providing a comprehensive range of support to existing businesses and entrepreneurs who are already or have the potential to trade outside of Northern Ireland.

Invest NI targets its financial support to businesses operating within the manufacturing and services sectors which have export potential, as these are the sectors capable of generating net income for the Northern Ireland economy.

When assessing a business case for support, Invest NI looks for an increase in turnover, export sales and employment levels as a result of any financial assistance that may be offered. When financial support is offered, it is tailored to meet the individual needs of the business.

Financial support may be available to businesses to help with employment, exporting, research & development and other specific areas of business improvement.

Invest NI has a dedicated support team in place to deal with business enquiries. The telephone number is 0800 181 4422. Alternatively I would encourage your constituents to contact Invest NI's regional office in Londonderry (telephone 028 7126 7257) to discuss the range of support currently available.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 32719/11-15, to detail the (i) businesses that promoted the 510 jobs in the Foyle constituency; and (ii) number of jobs promoted in each.

(AQW 35360/11-15)

Mrs Foster: In the Foyle constituency area during 2013-14 there were 333 jobs promoted by the Convergys Corporation and 177 promoted by Fujitsu Services Limited.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 32720/11-15, to detail the (i) businesses that promoted the 333 jobs in the Foyle constituency; and (ii) number of jobs promoted in each.

(AQW 35361/11-15)

Mrs Foster: In the Foyle constituency area during 2013-14 the 333 jobs promoted by first time international investors were all through the Convergys Corporation.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail her Department's efforts to ensure the availability of land in, or near to, Omagh for the purposes of attracting inward investment.

(AQW 35363/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Invest NI holds a total of c47 acres of land within the Omagh District Council area. The last remaining available site at its Doogary Industrial Estate has recently been allocated to a business following a competitive process and Invest NI is currently engaging with this business over the sale of this area of land.

Invest NI is aware of the lack of serviced industrial land within the Omagh District Council area. Previous attempts by the agency to acquire land at two locations within the Omagh District Council area were unsuccessful. In the first, agreement on price was not reached, and in the second, the owner was unwilling to sell.

Invest NI will continue to engage with stakeholders, including Omagh District Council and the Department of the Environment, to identify suitable land for industrial development. It does not consider vesting to be a suitable option at this time.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how many jobs have been created in the (i) Craigavon; and (ii) Banbridge council areas in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35376/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The table below shows the number of jobs created as a direct result of Invest NI support in the (i) Craigavon; and (ii) Banbridge council areas in each of the last three financial years.

DCA	2011-12	2012-13	2013-14
Banbridge	61	32	61
Craigavon	441	156	439

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for her assessment of the number of people completing Post Graduate Diplomas in Education in the last three years, compared with the number of newly created jobs in this field. (AQW 35420/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department has not made any assessment of these issues as it does not have a remit for them. Matters relating to Further and Higher Education are the responsibility of the Minister for Employment and Learning.

Department of the Environment

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 32997/11-15, whether the Environmental Impact Assessment, Habitats and Birds Directives are being breached by the unregulated minerals extraction being permitted from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area. (AQW 35119/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): Mineral extraction is an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) development and therefore subject to the EIA regulations. These regulations apply to every application for planning permission for EIA development received by the Department.

The Habitats Directive requires member states to carry out a Habitats Regulations Assessment (HRA) when considering the authorisation of plans or projects likely to affect a NATURA 2000 site which would include Special Protected Areas (SPAs). NIEA would carry out a HRA to determine if a proposed plan or project would have a significant effect on NATURA 2000 site selection features.

The extraction of minerals from Lough Neagh pre-dates the designation of the SPA and, therefore, no HRA was undertaken at the time of designation as the extraction was classified as an existing practice.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of the Environment to list the grades of each of the staff used to staff the Coastal Zone Centre in Portrush from 22 August 2014 to 26 August 2014. (AQW 35231/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The grades used to cover the rota in the Portrush Coastal Zone from 22 August 2014 to 26 August 2014 are listed in the table below.

Date	Grade
22 Aug 2014	Professional and Technical Officer Recruitment Agency Staff Recruitment Agency Staff
23 Aug 2014	Professional and Technical Officer Curatorial Grade D Higher Scientific Officer
24 Aug 2014	Professional and Technical Officer Senior Scientific Officer
25 Aug 2014	Higher Scientific Officer Principal Scientific Officer
26 Aug 2014	Professional and Technical Officer Curatorial Grade D

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment what consideration he has given to issuing a Small Business Research Initiative competition to identify innovative ways of processing waste, to prevent waste going to landfill or incineration. (AQW 35277/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Responsibility for the preparation of waste management plans (the plans), setting out the arrangements for recovery, treatment or disposal of municipal waste in Northern Ireland, lies with district councils through their three regional district council waste management groups (WMGs). The plans, which take account of the Waste Management Strategy prepared by the Department, include the type, scale and location of the waste facilities that will be required during the period of the plan. It would therefore be for the councils through WMGs in the first instance to consider the Small Business Research Initiative approach.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister of the Environment whether he is satisfied that the current municipal waste disposal contract Lot 1 and 2 is being tendered appropriately. (AQW 35281/11-15)

Mr Durkan: It is the responsibility of arc21 and its constituent councils, rather than the Department, to ensure that waste management tendering processes are administered appropriately. arc21 is currently established as a waste management joint committee with body corporate status. As such, powers and duties for local government financial administration, including the power to enter into contracts for the provision of assets or services, apply to arc21 as they apply to a council. Therefore, arc21 has the necessary powers to tender for this contract for the disposal of residual municipal waste in landfill.

Mrs Overend asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the number of agency workers in the Northern Ireland Environment Agency who had their employment terminated prematurely; and the sites affected, since July 2014.

Mr Durkan: Over 80 temporary workers (79.2 full time equivalent) were released early from their contracts.

A significant number of the affected agency workers were engaged for the summer months at a number of the NIEA visitor attractions. Service levels are being maintained by redeploying permanent staff as far as is practicable.

Full details of numbers and sites affected are listed in the Table below.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of the Environment why the cost of providing a provisional licence is more expensive in Northern Ireland compared to the rest of the UK.

(AQW 35291/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The administration of driver licensing in Northern Ireland is expected, as far as possible, to be a self-financing service, with costs recovered through fee income.

Therefore fees for driving licences are set to achieve, as far as is practicable, full recovery of the costs associated with the administration of the driver licensing system. These costs include staff salaries, maintenance and development of the IT system, production of the licence, postage and the payment of fees for certain medical assessments. The licence fees are varied according to the complexity of individual transactions.

Following a public consultation, driving licence fees were increased on 18 October 2012 by commencement of The Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) (Fees) (Amendment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012. This resulted in the fee for Northern Ireland provisional driving licences of £62.50 compared to £50 in Great Britain. The increase in fees was necessary to assist with the full recovery of the costs associated with the administration of driver licensing and to minimise the extent of the deficit in the fee account.

The cost of producing licences here is higher due to the lack of economies of scale available in Great Britain. The Driver & Vehicle Agency is, however, in the process of developing a new IT system for driver licensing with a view to improving the customer experience and the efficiency of service delivery. I hope that this may provide an opportunity to reduce processing costs in the future.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment what legislative changes he will make to ensure that all proposals for high volume hydraulic fracturing will be subject to an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA), given that the current regulations only require deep drilling development to be screened for an EIA if the size of the development is 1 hectare or more, or the quantity of gas extracted is 500,000 cubic metres or more per day.

(AQW 35293/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2012 (Schedules 1 and 2) make provision respectively for mandatory EIA in respect of high volume hydraulic fracturing where the quantity of gas extracted is 500,000 cubic metres or more per day and for the screening for EIA of all proposals for deep drilling where the size of the development is one hectare or more.

It is also EIA development if the proposal is located in a sensitive area such as an ASSI, AONB, or a European designated site.

In addition to these provisions, the Department has the power under regulation 3(a) of the EIA regulations to direct that development described in Schedule 2 which is not in a sensitive area, or does not meet the applicable thresholds, is still EIA development.

I consider that the current legislative provisions are sufficient to ensure that the likely environmental impacts of any proposal for high volume hydraulic fracturing are considered before planning permission is granted and I do not propose to make any legislative changes.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of the Environment whether he would consider exploring the possibility of banning drivers from wearing non-prescription sunglasses when in control of a vehicle as part of the Road Traffic (Amendment) Bill.

(AQW 35328/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Visual standards for applicants for, or holders of, Northern Ireland driving licences are set out in domestic legislation, within a framework of European law and are designed to ensure medical fitness to drive.

The Highway Code contains a section on vision (Rules 92 – 94 refer). Rule 92 states that drivers must be able to read a vehicle number plate, in good daylight, from a distance of 20 metres and, that anyone who needs to wear glasses (or contact lenses) to do this, must wear them at all times while driving. To comply with this requirement they would also have to wear prescription sunglasses if they chose to wear sunglasses whilst driving.

I believe that existing rules and standards applied in Northern Ireland in relation to vision (and other medical requirements) ensure that only those who are fit to drive do so. I have no plans, therefore, to explore the possibility of banning drivers from wearing non-prescription sunglasses when in control of a vehicle, as part of the Road Traffic (Amendment) Bill. To do so could, I believe, have an adverse affect on road safety.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment to detail (i) the names of all organisations and consortiums which submitted a bid to undertake the joint Northern Ireland Environment Agency/Environmental Protection Agency research into unconventional oil and gas; (ii) who has been selected to undertake this research; (iii) the budget available for this research; and (iv) the individuals and organisations they represent who made the final decision as to who would be awarded this research.

(AQW 35491/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I have responded to your questions using the same numeric order as set out in your question:

- (i) It is not normal practice under government procurement procedures for the names of unsuccessful bidders in open procurement competitions to be released. However I can inform that in total six bids were received.

- (ii) CDM Smith Ireland Ltd with partners:
- Queens University Belfast;
 - British Geological Survey;
 - University college Dublin;
 - University of Ulster;
 - AMEC;
 - Philip Lee Solicitors.
- (iii) The cost of the initial contract is approximately €700,000 excluding VAT. A supplementary tender may be required for subsequent aspects of the research which are dependent upon the outcome of the initial contract. The cost of the supplementary tender or tenders is not yet known and it may therefore be detrimental to the outcome of any future procurement process to publish the total funds available for the research programme as a whole.
- (iv) The following organisations were involved in the evaluation of the received bids and all contributed to the final decision on the successful bidder:
- Northern Ireland Environment Agency;
 - DOE Environmental Policy Division;
 - Environmental Protection Agency (Ireland);
 - Department of Communications, Energy and Natural Resources;
 - Geological Survey Ireland;
 - An Bord Pleanála;
 - Health Services Executive (Ireland);
 - Department of Communications, Environment and Local Government;
 - Commission for Energy Regulation.

Department of Finance and Personnel

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail, since May 2007, all the occasions he has met with Trevor Turkington of Turkington Holdings Limited.

(AQW 28359/11-15)

Mr Hamilton (The Minister of Finance and Personnel): I took up office on 29 July 2013 and have had no meetings with Trevor Turkington of Turkington Holdings Limited during my time as Finance Minister.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether he intends to lobby HM Revenue and Customs regarding the jobs under threat following the announcement on 20 November 2013 of redundancies in Personal Tax Operations, currently based at Duncreggan Road, Derry.

(AQW 28532/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: While I sympathise with the staff concerned my Department has no authority to lobby HMRC.

On a number of occasions the NI Executive discussed both the HMRC and DVA loss of jobs. Even though there is no direct control the situation is kept under review.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail all amateur sports clubs that currently pay rates broken down by their respective sports.

(AQW 28623/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: It is not possible to provide this information for all amateur sports broken down by their respective sports and by constituency. Land & Property Services does not hold this information as the Valuation List and the internal databases that lie behind it do not specifically identify amateur sports clubs as a categorisation.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail all amateur sports clubs that currently pay rates broken down by constituency.

(AQW 28624/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: It is not possible to provide this information for all amateur sports broken down by their respective sports and by constituency. Land & Property Services does not hold this information as the Valuation List and the internal databases that lie behind it do not specifically identify amateur sports clubs as a categorisation.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how many entries his Special Adviser has made in the Department's Register of Gifts and Hospitality since they were appointed; and what is the total value of such entries.

(AQW 29159/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The Special Adviser to the Minister of Finance and Personnel has made no entries in the Department's Register of Gifts and Hospitality since appointment.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel, pursuant to AQW 27998/11-15, which Department has a female Permanent Secretary; and for how long she has been in post.

(AQW 29424/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: OFMDFM has a female member of staff at Permanent Secretary level who has been in post for 1 year and 8 months.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel on what date he received the briefing papers for the Committee for Finance and Personnel relating to the renewable energy in public sector buildings; and on what date he approved these papers.

(AQW 33708/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: I reviewed and approved the final briefing paper on 27 May 2014.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel why departmental papers are not being sent to the Committee for Finance and Personnel within the agreed timescales.

(AQW 33709/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: My Department and I value good working relationships with the Committee for Finance and Personnel and will always endeavour to provide information requested on a timely basis. However, as Minister it is my responsibility to ensure that I am content with all the output of my Department, including briefing for the Committee. It is inevitable that there will be occasions where briefing material is not ready in time for Committee deadlines.

I am very aware that this is a practice exercised by other Ministers in the Executive including members of your own Party.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what involvement his Department had in the withdrawal of funding from the RUC George Cross Widows' Association.

(AQW 34058/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: My Department had no involvement in the withdrawal of funding from the RUC George Cross Widows' Association. Decisions regarding the funding and governance arrangements of the Association rest with DOJ.

My Department was simply responsible for determining the correct sector classification for the body.

The decision on which sector or sub-sector actual or proposed bodies are in rests with the independent Office of National Statistics (ONS). More straightforward cases may be settled by HM Treasury or, for Northern Ireland bodies, by DFP. Decisions are made in accordance with international guidelines set out for European Community member states in the European System of Accounts (ESA95).

My officials applied these guidelines to the information provided by the DOJ as part of a review of Arm's Length Bodies. This resulted in a private sector classification for the RUC George Cross Widows' Association.

It should be noted that while a change in sector classification may require a review of funding and governance arrangements, it should not adversely impact on the provision of funding to the body.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether he has given approval to the Business Case for the relocation of the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development's headquarters to Ballykelly.

(AQW 35033/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development's decision to direct her Accounting Officer to relocate the headquarters was agreed, on behalf of the Executive, by the First Minister and deputy First Minister.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how much has been collected in rates on derelict buildings in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35223/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Derelict buildings are not hereditaments and are not therefore included in the Valuation List. As rates are levied on properties which are in the Valuation List, no rates have been collected on derelict properties in any of the last three years.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how many derelict buildings are not currently subject to rates payments.

(AQW 35224/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The Department does not hold records of the number of derelict buildings. These are not hereditaments and none are subject to the payment of rates.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether he can provide assurances on the future of the Special European Union Programmes Body Offices in (a) Belfast; (b) Omagh; and (c) Monaghan.

(AQW 35312/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The Special EU Programmes Body like any public sector organisation is subject to review of efficiency, effectiveness and value for money in light of prevailing operational and financial conditions. It is, therefore, not appropriate to provide long term assurances for SEUPB office locations or indeed for any public sector body.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel, given the continuing problem of empty commercial properties in town and city centres, what steps are being considered to help reverse this trend.

(AQW 35318/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Addressing this trend requires joined up, creative thinking and action across a number of Executive Departments, working alongside the business community.

For its part, my Department is managing a series of measures to help address this problem through the non domestic rating system.

The empty shops rates concession support provides new occupiers of long term empty premises a 50% rates discount in the first difficult year of trading. To date this support has helped 314 new business ventures.

Furthermore, unlike the rest of the UK, Northern Ireland has kept the level of empty property rates at 50% of the occupied rate, in recognition of the particular difficulties faced by properties owner.

In addition to these schemes the regional rate has been frozen in real terms throughout the budget period and small business rate relief currently provides £18m of support to around 24,000 business ratepayers. Both of these measures help sustain and support existing businesses in town centres.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail (i) the number of staff employed in his Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35391/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The answer is provided in the attached table.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel, since the inception of the Small Business Rates Relief Scheme, to detail (i) the number of small businesses that have benefited from the Scheme in (a) North Down and (b) Ards Borough Council areas; and (ii) how much the scheme has saved businesses.

(AQW 35550/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: A total of 1,182 non-domestic properties in the North Down Borough Council area and 1,357 non-domestic properties in the Ards Borough Council area have benefited from the Small Business Rates Relief Scheme since the scheme began in April 2010.

Since April 2010, the amount of SBRR awarded to those properties that benefited totalled £2,123,565 in North Down and £2,412,753 in Ards.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 35039/11-15, to detail the changes in staffing arrangements and new equipment purchased, including (i) the dates of either procurement or contract; and (ii) the costs incurred.

(AQW 35255/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): Additional staff and new equipment introduced at the renal clinic in the Belfast City Hospital has included the following –

- January 2013 – increase in health care support workers by 60 hours per week at a cost of £36,746;
- September 2013 – opening of a phlebotomy (blood) room at a cost of £33,000;
- September 2013 – increase in 20 hours of a phlebotomist at a cost of £12,172; and
- June 2014 – use of one urinalysis machine at cost of £500.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what discussions he has had with the Minister for Health in the Republic of Ireland regarding the joint acquisition and provision of an Air Ambulance Service; and to detail the estimated capital cost, resource costs and the level of any European grants that may be available for such a cross-border initiative.

(AQW 35272/11-15)

Mr Poots: I have had several discussions with the former Minister of Health in the Republic of Ireland (ROI), Dr James Reilly TD, concerning the potential for the joint acquisition and provision of an Air Ambulance Service for Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland. This matter is currently the subject of a study led by the Department of Health (ROI) in which my Department has participated. I am not yet in a position to provide the information about estimated costs and the potential for European grants requested by the Member.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of people diagnosed as HIV positive in (i) 2002; and (ii) 2013.

(AQW 35288/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on the number of new HIV diagnoses in Northern Ireland is detailed in the table below for 2002 and 2012 (latest information available).

Year	Number of new HIV diagnoses
2002	27
2012	95

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the progress of the proposed new Health and Wellbeing Care Centre in Bangor.

(AQW 35290/11-15)

Mr Poots: I am currently considering the Health and Social Care Board's high level Strategic Implementation Plan for future investment in primary care infrastructure, which includes a proposal for Bangor.

This Plan will be considered alongside other capital investment priorities and will be dependent on the outcome of future budget exercises and confirmation of value for money and affordability. It is therefore not possible to give an indication of the timescale for any future health & care centres, and unfortunately this includes the Bangor scheme.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether an investigation been held into the acid leakage incident at the Causeway Hospital from 22 to 24 August 2014.

(AQW 35316/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Northern HSC Trust is currently investigating this incident in accordance with the Health and Social Care Serious Adverse Incident procedures and protocols. The Northern Ireland Adverse Incident Centre is monitoring the investigation and shall disseminate appropriate learning if identified.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the current regulation concerning the quality of care for vulnerable and older people in care homes.

(AQW 35359/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority (RQIA) has responsibility to regulate a wide range of specified services delivered by both HSC bodies and the independent sector, including nursing homes and residential care homes. My Department published minimum care standards for both nursing and residential care homes in 2008. RQIA uses these standards and the corresponding regulations as the basis for regulation of the sectors. These standards set the benchmark for the quality of care that residents can expect to receive.

In 2013, my Department began a review of the minimum standards for nursing homes and the revised standards are currently undergoing public consultation.

My Department is also taking forward the development of the Adult Safeguarding Policy in partnership with the Department of Justice, to: 'introduce a package of measures aimed at improving safeguarding outcomes for children and vulnerable adults across Northern Ireland'. The objectives supporting this policy will range from the prevention of adult abuse through implementation of good safeguarding arrangements, to effective protective responses from lead protection agencies when adult abuse occurs or is suspected. The intention is to publish the finalised policy in 2015.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, given that he announced on 14 November 2011 and 28 February 2012 that a public consultation on legislation banning smoking in cars was to be launched during 2012, when the consultation will be published.

(AQW 35375/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department has been engaged in a substantial programme of legislative change with regards to tobacco control, including measures around the introduction of standardised packaging, as well as the progression of the Tobacco Retailers Act (Northern Ireland) 2014 through the Assembly. These issues are still current, with work ongoing to commence provisions of the Tobacco Retailers Act, and a recently launched consultation document seeking views on restricting the age of sale for electronic cigarettes to persons under the age of 18

Given the extent of the current legislative programme, my intention is to focus on these issues at present. In the meantime, I will continue to monitor developments on smoking restrictions in private vehicles in other parts of the UK, as they may have an impact on my plans for similar legislation in Northern Ireland in the future.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of people living in the Outer North Neighbourhood Renewal Area that are registered with a dental practice.

(AQW 35406/11-15)

Mr Poots: The number of patients living in the Outer North Derry Neighbourhood Renewal Area registered with a dental practice at April 2014 is shown below.

Please note that these figures are for patients with a postcode within this Neighbourhood Renewal Area, and the dental practice they are registered with could be anywhere in Northern Ireland.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety when payments from the Independent Living Fund will cease.

(AQW 35408/11-15)

Mr Poots: The UK Government decided to close the Independent Living Fund (ILF) with effect from 30 June 2015. As I have made very clear, my Department will do all it can to ensure that those in Northern Ireland who are affected by the decision of the Department for Work and Pensions are not disadvantaged.

My Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on how best to support Independent Living Fund (ILF) users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund. The consultation closes on 30 November 2014 and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what consideration has been given to the installation of a solar farm in the grounds of the Ulster Hospital.

(AQW 35430/11-15)

Mr Poots: The South Eastern Trust has recently completed the installation of Photovoltaic Solar Panels on the rooftops of a number of buildings on the Ulster Hospital site. The current installation consists of 828 panels with a peak capacity of 207kW and the Trust has incorporated the appropriate infrastructure into the design of the new hospital facilities to allow the installation of further panels. The installation is not in the form of a single mass grouping of ground mounted Photovoltaic Solar Panels which is sometimes referred to as a solar farm.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether concerns were raised before April 2013 by a departmental official that the finances provided by the 2011/15 budget were not sufficient to enable the safe and sustainable running of any aspect of the Health Service.

(AQW 35473/11-15)

Mr Poots: In each of the financial years since my appointment as Health Minister, Departmental officials have regularly provided advice to me on a range of matters relating to the 2011-15 budget settlement, including updates on the latest financial position facing the Department, Trusts' proposed savings plans and the Department's proposed participation in the In Year Monitoring Rounds.

In considering that advice, I have been committed to ensuring that all available resources are focused on the provision of safe, sustainable and effective services whilst ensuring that patients and clients have remained at the centre of any expenditure decisions.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, in relation to his comments to the Committee for Health, Social Services and Public Safety on 3 September 2014 regarding the delivery of capital developments being "less of an issue", when new GP practices for Waringstown and Donaghcloney and Lurgan will be delivered.

(AQW 35524/11-15)

Mr Poots: My comments that the funding position for capital developments was "less of an issue" related to the fact that the Executive's capital expenditure has not been subjected to the same level of cuts resulting from the government's action to reduce the UK deficit as has been the case for revenue expenditure in this spending period.. This does not mean that capital resources are immediately available for all of the projects we would like to take forward.

A range of both capital and revenue funding options are currently being considered for the delivery of the primary care infrastructure programme and the evaluation outcomes of current pathfinder projects financed through third party development arrangements in Lisburn and Newry will inform future decisions. These evaluations will not be available until the new-year.

I will not be in a position to confirm when decisions will be made about the provision of a 'hub' in Lurgan and associated 'spoke' arrangements which would include Warringstown and Donaghcloney until after that time.

Department of Justice

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether Michaela McCollum will be entitled to 50 per cent remission if she is transferred to a local prison.

(AQW 35229/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice): It would be inappropriate to disclose at this stage how long Michaela McCollum may have to serve in custody were she to be repatriated to Northern Ireland given that the Northern Ireland Prison Service has yet to have those discussions with either her or her legal representatives. However, before repatriation takes place the Peruvian authorities, as the sentencing state, will have to agree to the terms of the transfer which will include an indication of the length of time to be served in prison in Northern Ireland.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice to detail the cost to the taxpayer of the transfer of Michaela McCollum from prison in Peru to Northern Ireland; and the ongoing costs of retaining her in a local prison.

(AQW 35258/11-15)

Mr Ford: I am unable to detail the cost to the taxpayer of the transfer of Michaela McCollum from Peru to Northern Ireland given that no agreement has yet been reached with the sentencing state on repatriation and as a result no transport arrangements have been made. However, under the Repatriation of Prisoners Act 1984 the Northern Ireland Prison Service requires transferring prisoners to sign an undertaking to repay expenses incurred in connection with their conveyance to the United Kingdom. The Act does not require the prisoner to make payment towards the cost of providing an escort.

The Northern Ireland Prison Service does not calculate figures that detail the annual cost of keeping each additional prisoner in custody. Rather a 'cost per prisoner place' figure is published annually which is worked out by dividing the Prison Service's annual Operating Expenditure (excluding non-standard costs) by the average total number of prisoner places defined as Certified Normal Accommodation. It cannot be used to indicate the cost of keeping one additional prisoner as this must be met from within the existing budget.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice how many prison transfer applications from Great Britain to Northern Ireland have been (i) received; (ii) approved; and (iii) rejected since the devolution of policing and justice.

(AQW 35259/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) has received 73 applications from prisoners from Great Britain seeking transfer to Northern Ireland since the devolution of policing and justice. Forty one have been approved while 19 were rejected. Another six were withdrawn before the administrative process was completed and a further seven are ongoing. Reasons for rejecting applications include the National Offender Management Service not approving the application, issues with the applicant's behaviour in custody, NIPS not being able to confirm nationality, previous residency status or close family ties with Northern Ireland or the applicant having insufficient time left to serve in custody (a minimum of 6 months is required before an application is allowed to proceed).

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice how many prison transfer applications from outside the UK to Northern Ireland have been (i) received; (ii) approved; and (iii) rejected since the devolution of policing and justice.

(AQW 35260/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) has received 24 applications from prisoners from outside the United Kingdom seeking repatriation to Northern Ireland since the devolution of policing and justice. Nine have been approved while six were rejected. Five were withdrawn before the administrative process was completed and a further four are ongoing. Another prisoner made an application before devolution but this was not approved until after 12 April 2010. Reasons for rejecting applications for repatriation include NIPS not being able to confirm nationality, previous residency status or close family ties with Northern Ireland, the applicant having insufficient time left to serve in custody (a minimum of 6 months is required before an application is allowed to proceed) or the applicant having a sentence that is unenforceable in this jurisdiction.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice what arrangements have been reached with the Peruvian authorities regarding the transfer of Michaela McCollum to a local prison.

(AQW 35262/11-15)

Mr Ford: No arrangements have yet been reached with the Peruvian authorities for the repatriation of Michaela McCollum to a prison in Northern Ireland.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice what is the projected annual cost of keeping Michaela McCollum in a local jail; and which jurisdiction is responsible for these costs.

(AQW 35263/11-15)

Mr Ford: The cost of keeping every prisoner in a prison in Northern Ireland is met by the Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS). NIPS does not calculate figures that detail the annual cost of keeping each additional prisoner in custody. Rather a 'cost per prisoner place' figure is published annually which is worked out by dividing the Prison Service's annual Operating Expenditure (excluding non-standard costs) by the average number of prisoner places defined as Certified Normal Accommodation. It cannot be used to indicate the cost of keeping one additional prisoner as this must be met from within the existing budget.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice whether he has had any discussions with the Irish Government regarding the return of Michaela McCollum and the associated costs.

(AQW 35268/11-15)

Mr Ford: I have not had any discussions with the Irish Government regarding the return of Michaela McCollum and the associated costs.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice whether any assurances have been given to the Peruvian authorities over the length of time that Michaela McCollum will serve in prison in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35270/11-15)

Mr Ford: No assurances have yet been given to the Peruvian authorities over the length of time that Michaela McCollum will serve in prison in Northern Ireland. However, before any repatriation takes place the sentencing state has to indicate its agreement to all the terms of the transfer including length of time to be served in prison in the receiving state.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice how long Michaela McCollum is due to serve in prison following her transfer.

(AQW 35271/11-15)

Mr Ford: It would be inappropriate to disclose at this stage how long Michaela McCollum may have to serve in custody were she to be repatriated to Northern Ireland given that the Northern Ireland Prison Service has yet to have those discussions with either her or her legal representatives. However, before repatriation takes place the Peruvian authorities, as the sentencing state, will have to agree to the terms of the transfer which will include an indication of the length of time to be served in prison in Northern Ireland.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Justice what has been the maximum sentence imposed for drugs offences during the last twelve months.

(AQW 35300/11-15)

Mr Ford: Drugs offences may be prosecuted under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, the Medicines Act 1968, the Criminal Attempts and Conspiracy (Northern Ireland) Order 1983 and the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979.

The most recent convictions data available relate to 2012. In that year, the most severe penalty imposed for a drugs related offence was a determinate custodial sentence for a period of 3 years.

Note: Data are collated on the principal offence rule; only the most serious offence for which an offender is convicted is included.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice (i) on how many occasions since 2013 the Northern Ireland Prison Service has conducted drugs searches and recovered legal highs; (ii) how many were found not to be within a banned category; and (iii) whether adjudication took place in these instances, or if due to legislation no crime was committed and no action could be taken.

(AQW 35310/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Prison Service regards all New Psychoactive Substances as banned substances. All finds are treated as unauthorised articles, and any prisoner found in possession of such a substance will be liable to adjudication.

It has been made clear to prisoners that so called 'legal highs' are not permitted in prison.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 32848/11-15, whether he will review this answer given that the contract was due for re-tender and no tender has been published in the subsequent five months.

(AQW 35311/11-15)

Mr Ford: The current contract used by NIPS has been extended by the Scottish Prison Service until February 2015 while a tender is prepared.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice why staff leaving the Northern Ireland Prison Service under the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme were paid a rate for unused annual leave different to that paid to staff who remained in service.
(AQW 35321/11-15)

Mr Ford: Staff who have left the Northern Ireland Prison Service have been paid in line with the terms of the Annual Leave Chapter of the Northern Ireland Civil Service (NICS) HR Handbook relating to cash compensation for leaving the NICS.

There is no policy relating to the payment of annual leave for staff remaining in post and therefore a separate agreement was reached with the trade unions in respect of this.

Staff remaining in post were unable to use their annual leave. Staff leaving under the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme were expected to make every effort to take their leave in advance of leaving the service.

The total paid for unused annual leave to staff leaving the Northern Ireland Prison Service under the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme was £650,000.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice how much was paid in total for unused annual leave to staff leaving the Northern Ireland Prison Service under the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme.
(AQW 35322/11-15)

Mr Ford: Staff who have left the Northern Ireland Prison Service have been paid in line with the terms of the Annual Leave Chapter of the Northern Ireland Civil Service (NICS) HR Handbook relating to cash compensation for leaving the NICS.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice why annual leave compensation for staff leaving the Northern Ireland Prison Service under the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme was calculated at a rate of 5.4 hours per day.
(AQW 35323/11-15)

Mr Ford: Staff who have left the Northern Ireland Prison Service have been paid in line with the terms of the Annual Leave Chapter of the Northern Ireland Civil Service (NICS) HR Handbook relating to cash compensation for leaving the NICS.

The total paid for unused annual leave to staff leaving the Northern Ireland Prison Service under the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme was £650,000.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice when the decision was taken to allow Northern Ireland Prison Service staff to withdraw from the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme.
(AQW 35324/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Early Retirement Scheme launched on 8 November 2011 was entirely voluntary and there was no compulsion on any member of staff to apply to leave the service under the available redundancy terms.

The decision to allow staff to withdraw from the scheme was taken on 29 March 2012. A circular was issued on 30 March 2012, and staff in receipt of Letter 2 and Letter 3 subsequently received an individual letter informing them of the process for withdrawing from the Scheme.

When staff formally applied to the Scheme they had to sign a form which committed them to leave the Service upon selection. Those who received a Letter 1 were selected to leave by the VER panel and informed of their last day of service. As Letter 2 and Letter 3 staff were not selected, and did not have a leaving date, they were able to withdraw.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice why Northern Ireland Prison Service staff in receipt of Letter 2 and Letter 3 of the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme were allowed to withdraw from the scheme whilst staff in receipt of Letter 1 were not allowed this opportunity.
(AQW 35329/11-15)

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the number of reported incidences of domestic violence abuse in each of the last five years; and (ii) the percentage of these complaints that resulted in prosecution.

(AQW 35418/11-15)

Mr Ford: The recording of incidents of domestic abuse is a matter for the Chief Constable, who is accountable to the Northern Ireland Policing Board. I am committed to respecting the operational independence of the Chief Constable and the role of the Policing Board.

You may therefore wish to direct your question to the Police Service of Northern Ireland.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice how many times since May 2011 has he transferred an Assembly Question to a Freedom of Information request; and of these, to detail (i) the number that resulted in the supply of the requested information; (ii) who provided the advice regarding the transfer and whether the departmental solicitor was involved; (iii) when this procedure became departmental practice; and (iv) whether the relevant Member was advised of this procedure in advance of the transfer.

(AQW 35439/11-15)

Mr Ford: Since May 2011 I am not aware of my Department ever having transferred an Assembly Question to a Freedom of Information request.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice when a report on the complaint lodged by the Chief Executive Officer of the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland against the Police Fund in March 2014 will be completed.

(AQW 35509/11-15)

Mr Ford: It would be inappropriate for my Department to take any action regarding this complaint while the Charity Commission's inquiry concerning the Disabled Police Officers Association of Northern Ireland is ongoing. I intend to await the outcome of this inquiry and then consider whether or not there is a need for any action by my Department.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice why a former Chair of the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland was considered to be covered by the Northern Ireland Police Fund whistle blowing policy when he does not fall into the qualifying criteria of the policy.

(AQW 35511/11-15)

Mr Ford: Following a number of Public Accounts Committee reports on the investigation of whistle-blower complaints, there is clear guidance noting that where concerns about the proper conduct of public business are raised, the general principles in handling whistle-blower cases should be applied regardless of who has raised the concerns. I am satisfied that the action taken by the Police Fund in this matter is appropriate and in line with this guidance.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Justice what plans he has to explain in detail the consequences of the failure to fully implement the National Crime Agency in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35634/11-15)

Mr Ford: I have regularly made clear my concerns at the consequences of the NCA not being able to operate in the devolved sphere in Northern Ireland.

On 8 September I issued a paper to the main political parties and others setting out proposals on the operation and accountability of the NCA. I hope this will provide a basis to resolve the current situation. I have offered to meet the parties to discuss the proposals and the consequences of not reaching agreement. The Chief Constable of the PSNI and Director General of the National Crime Agency have also offered meetings.

Department for Regional Development

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister for Regional Development what cuts will be made to his budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.

(AQW 35245/11-15)

Mr Kennedy (The Minister for Regional Development): Following the outcome of June Monitoring my Department is required to manage Resource budget reductions of 2.1% in order to provide funding for a range of Executive pressures with a further 2.3% proposed for October Monitoring. The full 4.4% of Resource baseline reductions required equates to a £15 million reduction in the running costs budget for my Department.

As a first phase of measures I have had no option other than to stop issuing new work instructions to our contractors, who currently undertake around one quarter of our work, in the following areas:

- footway and carriageway patching including potholes;
- grass cutting/environmental maintenance;
- gully emptying;
- road marking maintenance/renewal; and
- traffic sign maintenance/replacement.

In addition, it has been necessary to suspend the use of external contractors for the repair of street lights that fail, unless they pose an electrical hazard to the public. It is not the case that no street lighting repairs will be carried out; the Department will continue to prioritise all reported faults. Until further notice, our in-house contractor will endeavour to deal with as many street lighting defects as possible. However, they will not be able to provide the service the public would expect in normal circumstances. Priority will be given to electrical and structural safety defects, followed by large groups of lights out.

However, I need to make it clear that Translink and Northern Ireland Water are also being impacted by the cuts.

While Translink is required to breakeven over a three year period, the Company is already expected to be running at a deficit of around £9 million this financial year and this may have to increase as a consequence of the Department's baseline reductions. In order that the Company remains a going concern it is vital that the Executive honours its commitment to the current concessionary fares scheme and fully funds the scheme both this year and in future years.

Northern Ireland Water will also be taking forward savings measures to mitigate the £4.2 million shortfall in its agreed funding, as set out in the NI Authority for Utility Regulation's Price Control 2013 Final Determination, in addition to other emerging pressures of some £10 million. This will put significant pressures on the delivery of water and wastewater services.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Regional Development how many public liability claims have been made in each Road Service Division in each of the last five years, broken down by the reason for the claim.

(AQW 35248/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Details of the number of public liability claims made in each Transport NI Division in each of the last five years, and the reason for the claim i.e. whether claim is in relation to personal injury, vehicle or property damage, are set out in the following tables:

Northern Division

	Personal Injury	Property Damage	Vehicle Damage	Total

Mr Spratt asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the costs his Department have incurred reinstating roads after utility works, in each of the last three years
(AQW 35278/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department does not reinstate roads after utility works and therefore has incurred no cost in any of the last three years on this activity.

Utility companies are responsible for permanent reinstatement of roads to an agreed specification upon completion of their works. Where reinstatements are found not to comply with the specification, utility companies are advised of the non-compliance and required to carry out remedial works at their own expense. My officials carry out follow-up inspections to ensure remedial works have been completed, and the cost of undertaking those inspections is recovered from the utility companies.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister for Regional Development how much money was spent on roads maintenance in each constituency in 2013 compared to 2007.
(AQW 35301/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department does not analyse expenditure on a Parliamentary constituency basis or by calendar year.

However, financial information could be provided on a financial year basis by Council area for 2007/08 and 2012/13 if that would be useful. Information for 2013/14 should be available in the near future.

If you wish to receive this information, please let me know and I will ask officials to make the necessary arrangements to provide this for you.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much NI Water will save from the disposal of surplus reservoirs.
(AQW 35373/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: NI Water estimates that disposal of surplus reservoirs would result in maintenance costs savings in excess of £250,000 per year.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the process for developers to obtain a sewerage and storm water connection, including the average length of time taken.
(AQW 35378/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The process for obtaining new foul sewer and storm water sewer connections to service individual properties wishing to communicate to the existing public sewer network is set out at Article 163 of the Water and Sewerage Services (Northern Ireland) Order 2006.

From the date of application, NI Water aims to provide a written quotation within 21 working days. The onus is then with the Developer to (i) accept the fixed charge quotation and pay the connection fee, and (ii) contact NI Water to arrange a suitable appointment when he would be ready for the sewer connection. From the date the sewer connection fee is paid, NI Water has 21 days to organise the sewer connection. In some instances there may be Transport NI restrictions, such as road opening embargos, but these are few in number.

NI Water also works with Developers in their construction programme, and may agree a connection date at a later date to facilitate the needs of the house-builder. NI Water is generally in compliance with the length of time stipulated for dealing with new sewer connection requests. NI Water's Developers Services Manager will be happy to discuss any particular queries Developers may have.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development when a new bus and rail station will be built in Ballymena.
(AQW 35379/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Translink has advised that there is no change in position since the matter was raised previously in AQW 34407/11-15 (July 2014).

The scoping and feasibility stages of the project to refurbish Ballymena Bus and Rail Integrated Station have commenced. The project is included in Translink's Corporate Plan and is scheduled for execution during 2016/17 and 2017/18, subject to available funding.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Regional Development when the second cut of grass on major roadways and within residential areas of North Down will be completed.
(AQW 35394/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department has completed two urban, which includes major roadways and residential areas, and one rural grass cut in the North Down area.

A third cut within the urban area is currently underway with the Ring Road (East Circular Road, South Circular Road and West Circular Road), A21 Newtownards Road and A2 from Springhill Flyover to Knocknagoney already completed.

Mr Cree asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the total cost of refurbishing Portavoe Reservoir.
(AQW 35484/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The total cost of refurbishing Portavoe Reservoir was £218,000. This consists of £181,000 construction costs plus additional professional costs (including project management, site supervision, environmental surveys and public communication) amounting to £37,000.

Ms Boyle asked the Minister for Regional Development whether he plans to extend the cycling network to include rural areas.
(AQO 6556/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I published the draft Bicycle Strategy for Northern Ireland on 27th August for a 12 week period of public consultation. A series of public consultation events are planned for October and November 2014 which will include events in rural areas.

My strategy recognises that there are differences between using the bicycle in an urban area and a rural area, and clearly states that we will continue to make provision for the bicycle in rural areas where opportunities arise, especially where there is cycling demand.

The National Cycle Network (NCN) is a comprehensive network of safe and attractive cycling routes, developed by the charity Sustrans. In Northern Ireland, the Network extends to more than 800 miles, mostly on quiet country roads and includes 106 miles of traffic free paths.

In addition to the existing National Cycle Network my Department will develop specific interventions, including Greenways, and pilot them in rural areas. Greenway development will include looking at ways to make use of disused canals and railway tracks, for example, along the Lagan Navigation to Portadown and the old GNR from Portadown to Londonderry.

There are a number of specific road schemes currently being taken forward by my Department which will incorporate some provision for the bicycle including, the A26 Frosses dualling scheme, the proposed A8 Larne Dualling Scheme and the A20 Comber to Newtownards Dual Carriageway.

Once the Bicycle Strategy has been finalised, a Delivery Plan will be prepared. This plan will be subject to a 'rural proofing' exercise to ensure that the needs of rural communities and areas are considered as part of the policy development process.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister for Regional Development why staff from NI Water entered the grounds of Clandeboye Primary School, Bangor in advance of works on a new sewage pumping station without informing the school or local residents.
(AQW 35623/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Northern Ireland Water has held a number of meetings with the school and local residents to discuss the planned work. Initial discussions were held with the South East Education and Library Board (SEELB) and Clandeboye Primary School in December 2013, and a further meeting was held with the Clandeboye Residents Association including representatives of the school and local Church affected by the works in February 2014. A full public meeting to address local concerns was held on the evening of 15 May 2014. As agreed at this public meeting, upon appointment of a contractor a further public meeting will be held prior to commencement of work onsite. The Senior Project Manager responsible for delivery of the project will provide an update to the Clondeboy Inter Agency Group Meeting, which includes representatives of the local residents' group, on 16 September 2014.

Northern Ireland Water's Project Team met with the Clondeboy Primary School Principal and school caretaker on 28 August 2014 to discuss the erection of a temporary fence within the school grounds to facilitate ongoing ground investigations. The temporary fence is required to comply with child protection and Health and Safety procedures and was agreed with the school management and representatives of the SEELB. Contractors were working on site to erect the temporary fence from 2 to 3 September.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the Programme for Government 2011-15 target to invest in and promote more sustainable modes of travel and create the conditions to facilitate at least 36 per cent of primary school pupils and 22 per cent of secondary school pupils to walk or cycle to school as their main mode of transport by 2015. (AQO 6553/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Department remains on target to meet its PfG commitment of investing over £500m to promote sustainable modes of travel in the budget period up to the end of this financial year.

The savings the Department is expected to make following the finalisation of the June monitoring round has had an impact this year but the Department still expects to achieve this target over the budget period.

It is, however, not possible to speculate at this time on the impact that the imposition of any further savings may have on this target following the outcome of the October monitoring.

In relation to the PfG commitment for active school travel, the Department, along with the Public Health Agency, continues to fund Sustrans to promote cycling and walking within schools as part of the Active Schools Travel Initiative. The Initiative will deliver a programme of cycling and walking skills to 180 schools across Northern Ireland over the next three years at a cost of £1.2million. The programme will work with parents and teachers to support schools to develop a culture of active travel. It is important any child cycling or walking to school has the necessary skills to enable them to walk or cycle safely. My Department needs to invest in delivering the necessary vital skills required to enable pupils to travel actively and safely.

The Active School Travel Initiative will go some way to creating the conditions to facilitate children actively travelling to school. At present my Department is not in a position to report on the trend on children walking and cycling to school as the baseline data for year one has just been compiled. A report on the active travel participation of those schools that took part in the Initiative is expected later in the autumn. My Department will also seek to draw on information within the Travel Survey of Northern Ireland to assess active travel to school over all of Northern Ireland.

Mr Ó hOisín asked the Minister for Regional Development when he envisages progress on the dualling of the A6. (AQO 6554/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: As stated in response to Question 1, there are currently proposals to dual two sections of the A6 these being, Randalstown to Castledawson and Londonderry to Dungiven.

Funding has been provided to advance the A6 Randalstown to Castledawson dual carriageway project to be "shovel ready" in 2015 and, when funding becomes available in the future, allow construction to commence at short notice. The contractor procurement process has now commenced with the recent publication of a notice in the Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU), seeking expressions of interest from contractors. Actual construction of the scheme will not commence until further funding is confirmed by the Executive.

The A6 Londonderry to Dungiven dualling scheme, which includes a bypass of Dungiven, is well advanced in terms of development. It has been through Public Inquiry and the Inspector has produced a report embracing various recommendations.

I am currently considering a response to these recommendations and will issue the Departmental Statement in due course, when I am satisfied all issues, many of which are complex, have been appropriately reviewed.

Mr Humphrey asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the road traffic survey for Twaddell Avenue. (AQO 6555/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: As the member may recall, in my letter to you, dated 6 January 2014, I suggested the local Residents' Association would be best placed to assess the views of the whole community regarding potentially contentious traffic issues, such as replacing the existing traffic islands on Twaddell Avenue with road humps.

The Residents' Association could act as a central contact point, representing the interests of the wider community, for my officials.

In my letter, I also confirmed that I had requested officials to progress with a preliminary design of an alternative traffic calming scheme along Twaddell Avenue, in response to what appeared to be local demand for change.

My officials are currently finalising the preliminary design and will contact you within the next few weeks to discuss the proposal further. They will also provide you with their assessment of the associated benefits and disadvantages of providing a series of road humps on this heavily trafficked 'A' class road.

If it is confirmed there is overwhelming support for the alternative traffic calming scheme, officials will then progress with the necessary legislative process, which incorporates local consultation with the residents of Twaddell Avenue.

Dr McDonnell asked the Minister for Regional Development whether his Department has carried out a risk assessment on the health and safety implications of proposals to reduce maintenance and repair of street lighting services.

(AQO 6557/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Following the outcome of the June monitoring, my Department is facing a significant budget shortfall. Consequently, I have had to take a number of difficult decisions, including the suspension of works orders to external contractors who were responsible for the repair of approximately three quarters of the street lights that go out.

I am fully aware of the risks associated with this decision and to deal with the health and safety implications I have set priorities for dealing with street lighting faults.

Priority will be given to those faults that present an electrical hazard to members of the public.

My Department's Operations and Maintenance staff have limited resources. They will endeavour to deal with large group outages and single outages on a priority basis.

Regrettably, the impact of the cuts will mean that, in all likelihood, many street lights will be out over the winter months.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Regional Development how his Department will meet its statutory duty under Article 8 of the Roads (Northern Ireland) Order 1993 to maintain roads and footpaths, if repair contracts are not being renewed.

(AQO 6558/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Article 8 of the Roads (Northern Ireland) Order 1993 places a duty on my Department to maintain all public roads in reasonable condition. In recognition of its duty of care, my Department has established a set of Maintenance Standards for Safety, which is designed to ensure a consistent service level and a safe highway, while offering value for money. They are based on best practice, research and consultation with both the public and other professional bodies and industry. These have been extensively tested in the courts, where it is generally accepted if the Department follows its policies, which the courts consider to be reasonable, it will have complied with its statutory duty.

As the Member will be aware, following the recent announcement on June monitoring, the proportion of my Department's resource budget used for the day to day maintenance of the road network has been cut. As a result, I had no alternative other than to make some tough decisions, including the cessation of new work instructions to external contractors, who currently undertake around one quarter of our routine maintenance work and three quarters of the work required to repair street lighting faults.

Despite the financial constraints roads will still be inspected as normal and repairs will be prioritised in so far as resources permit.

My Department's Operations and Maintenance staff will endeavour to keep the road network in as safe a condition as possible. However, they only have resources to complete around three quarters of the total routine maintenance workload and a much smaller percentage of the routine street lighting maintenance workload.

I consider this a very serious issue and I have asked my officials to seek formal legal advice on this.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of the public usage on the Coleraine to Belfast rail corridor.

(AQO 6559/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I am pleased to report that passenger growth on the Coleraine to Belfast rail corridor is very positive, with increases in passenger numbers of about a third between 2011/12 and 2013/14. This equates to an increase of over 400,000 passengers journeys in 3 years, taking passenger numbers from over 1.2 million in 2011/12 to over 1.6 million in 2013/14.

There has also been passenger growth on the Londonderry to Coleraine stretch of the railway network, and the completion of Phase 1 of the track relay on this stretch has played a key role in this.

Across Northern Ireland rail passenger journeys have increased by approximately 2.5 million over the period from 2011/12 to 2013/14.

The introduction of a new rail timetable targeted at the Coleraine to Belfast service, introduction of new trains and continued investment in infrastructure has clearly helped to generate this growth. It is important that we continue to invest in our rail infrastructure and ensure rail fares are competitive.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the A8 project, including the expected date for completion.

(AQO 6560/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The £130 million, 14 kilometres long, A8 dualling scheme is 25 months through its 34 month programme. Construction is progressing very well and is approximately 70% complete.

The contract completion date for the opening of the new dual carriageway is the end of May 2015

To date approximately two million cubic metres of earthworks material has been excavated, including over 500,000 cubic metres of rock. The road paving operation is continuing with around 150,000 tonnes of material laid to date. Seven of the eight bridges along the scheme are substantially complete, with the last bridge approaching deck construction stage.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of the current pressures on his departmental budget. (AQO 6561/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: In recent years the approach adopted by the Executive has meant that I have been heavily reliant on in-year funding through monitoring rounds to provide essential services, including concessionary fares, roads maintenance and street lighting for which £16 million of additional funding was provided in the 2013-14 financial year.

This approach applies not only to Resource, but also to Capital activities and in particular structural maintenance for which I received additional funding of £58 million in 2013-14. This year there is currently a shortfall of some £65 million when assessed against the independently recommended annual requirement of £133 million to maintain the road network in its current condition. Failure to address the shortfall means that maintenance priorities will focus on responsive patching activities and only the highest priority remedial sites would receive resurfacing treatment. In addition, the current limitations on funding in this area will undoubtedly have a detrimental impact on the construction industry in Northern Ireland.

Having identified significant Resource pressures this year and in the light of the significant pressures facing the Block I took action to reduce services to the value of £11.9 million.

I put forward resource bids of £48.4 million Resource and £130.3 million Capital in the June Monitoring Round to meet existing pressures within my Department. However, with only £5 million Resource being allocated for concessionary fares and £26.3 million for a range of Capital projects, considerable pressures still remain. Whilst I welcome these allocations the Capital allocation will not allow me to reinstate roads and street lighting maintenance activities to required levels or address the further running cost pressures which my Department faces.

In addition to the steps I have already taken to address existing pressures across my Department, I now have to find additional Resource baseline reductions of 4.4%, amounting to around £15 million for my Department.

To meet the 4.4% baseline reduction I have considered a number of measures and continue to assess the position.

As a first phase of measures I have had no option other than to stop issuing new work instructions to our contractors, who currently undertake around one quarter of our work, in the following areas:-

- footway and carriageway patching including potholes;
- grass cutting/environmental maintenance;
- gully emptying;
- road marking maintenance/renewal; and
- traffic sign maintenance/replacement.

In addition, it has been necessary to suspend the use of external contractors for the repair of street lights that fail, unless they pose an electrical hazard to the public. It is not the case that no street lighting repairs will be carried out; the Department will continue to prioritise all reported faults. Until further notice, our in-house contractor will endeavour to deal with as many street lighting defects as possible. However, they will not be able to provide the service the public would expect in normal circumstances. Priority will be given to electrical and structural safety defects, followed by large groups of lights out. Smaller groups or individual street lights that fail will be lower priority and, unfortunately, many tens of thousands of street lighting defects may not be repaired over the winter months.

However, I need to make it clear that Translink and Northern Ireland Water are also being impacted by the cuts.

While Translink is required to breakeven over a three year period, the Company is already expected to be running at a deficit of around £9 million this financial year and this may have to increase as a consequence of the Department's baseline reductions. In order that the Company remains a going concern it is vital that the Executive honours its commitment to the current concessionary fares scheme and fully funds the scheme both this year and in future years.

Northern Ireland Water will also be taking forward savings measures to mitigate the £4.2m shortfall in its agreed funding, as set out in the NI Authority for Utility Regulation's Price Control 2013 Final Determination, in addition to other emerging pressures of some £10m. This will put significant pressures on the delivery of water and wastewater services with an increased risk of sewer flooding and collapses and water bursts.

Mr McGimpsey asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the residents-only parking scheme for Sandy Row, Donegal Pass and Stranmillis Village. (AQO 6562/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Officials plan to publicly advertise the first Residents' Parking schemes, including the Lower Malone and Rugby Road/College Park Avenue areas of Belfast, in the autumn.

In relation to Donegal Pass, Sandy Row and Stranmillis, three separate local consultation exercises have been carried out with the involvement of local representatives. Despite a series of revisions being made to the proposal at each stage, the required level of local support from the local community has yet to be achieved. Officials have been working with local residents and businesses, although these parties have fundamentally differing views on the acceptability of the proposal. I am therefore reluctant to proceed with a scheme that does not have the support of both parties.

I have asked to meet with the Stranmillis Business Association to discuss and hopefully address their concerns and await a response.

It remains my belief, once a scheme has been implemented and is seen to be working satisfactorily, that some residents' uncertainty and concerns may be overcome and real progress might then be possible. At that stage, officials will revisit the Donegall Pass, Sandy Row and Stranmillis Village areas.

Department for Social Development

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34026/11-15, whether any of the cases overseen by the Investigation Strategy Group involved findings of fraud or other forms of criminality; and if so, how many cases have been referred to the PSNI.

(AQW 35261/11-15)

Mr McCausland (The Minister for Social Development): Of the original Investigation Strategy Group listing, 5 cases involving staff culpability were referred to police for criminal investigation.

One case resulted in "No further Police Action".

In a second case the Housing Executive was advised by the Public Prosecution that it was not in the public interest to proceed with a prosecution.

The remaining three are still under investigation.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 34026/11-15, in how many of the cases which the Investigation Strategy Group has overseen have there been findings of culpability on the part of those complained against; and of these, how many have resulted in disciplinary action.

(AQW 35294/11-15)

Mr McCausland: In the cases overseen by the Investigation Strategy Group there has been:

- | | |
|---|----|
| 1. Findings of culpability | 21 |
| 2. How many resulted in disciplinary action | 21 |

Mr McElduff asked the Minister for Social Development to detail his Department's definition of poverty, including children living in poverty; and how many families and children are living in poverty in West Tyrone.

(AQW 35313/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Child Poverty Act 2010 sets out four measures of poverty for the United Kingdom. The four measures are Relative Poverty, Absolute Poverty, Combined Low Income and Material Deprivation Poverty and Persistent Poverty.

My Department reports on three of these measures of poverty, Relative Poverty, Absolute Poverty and Combined Low Income and Material Deprivation Poverty for Northern Ireland using data collected in the Family Resources Survey (FRS). These three measures of poverty can be defined as follows:

Relative Poverty:

An individual is considered to be in relative poverty if they are living in a household with a net equivalised income below 60% of United Kingdom median income in the year in question.

Absolute Poverty:

An individual is considered to be in absolute poverty if they are living in a household with a net equivalised income below 60% of the (inflation adjusted) median income in 2010/11. This is a measure of whether those in the lowest income households are seeing their incomes rise in line with inflation.

Combined Low Income and Material Deprivation Poverty:

An individual is considered to be in poverty if they are living in a household with a net equivalised income below 70% of United Kingdom median income and has a material deprivation score of 25 or more reflected by enforced lack of goods and services.

The most up-to-date statistics available for West Tyrone, for the period 2009-12, are as follows:

- 21% of individuals were living in relative poverty before housing costs
- 27% of children were living in relative poverty before housing costs
- 20% of individuals were living in absolute poverty before housing costs
- 26% of children were living in absolute poverty before housing costs

The figures quoted above are based on a 3 year average for the period 2009-10 to 2011-12 due to small sample size in West Tyrone.

On the combined Low Income and Material Deprivation measure the size of the sample is too small to provide analysis for West Tyrone. Due to a methodological change to combined Low Income and Material Deprivation measure in 2010-11 a 3 year average cannot be used to compensate for the small sample in West Tyrone, as the data for each individual year is not directly comparable.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister for Social Development how many properties in the Portrush area have been designated for the installation of double glazing by the Housing Executive in the next twelve months; and to detail the locations.

(AQW 35317/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has advised that 26 properties at Glenmanus Park, Skerrymore Place and Windsor Place, Portrush are included in the Coleraine Phase two Window Replacement Scheme. This scheme is currently on site and once completed will mean that all Housing Executive properties in Portrush will be double glazed.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister for Social Development what cuts will be made to his budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.

(AQW 35354/11-15)

Mr McCausland: As a result of the intransigence of some around the Executive table, Northern Ireland Departments will be hit with a Welfare Reform penalty of £87m this year, rising to £114m next year.

The scale of cuts to be applied to individual Departments will be for the Finance Minister to agree in conjunction with Executive colleagues. This will be dependent on the level of reduced requirements and/or pressures identified in the upcoming October monitoring round, in tandem with other Executive commitments.

As a result of June monitoring, my Department's budget was cut by some £13.5m (2.1%). Current indications are that a further 2.3% (£16m) will need to be taken from budgets in October to meet the Welfare Reform penalties. This cut will be confirmed as part of the October Monitoring process. In total therefore I am facing a reduction of at least £29m in my budget

There is no doubt that the failure to implement Welfare Reform is impacting on the most vulnerable in society, who will bear the burden of any reduction in my Department's services that will result. I am still considering the options available to me and I will clearly want to do everything I can to avoid reductions in frontline services.

In the absence of agreement on Welfare Reform, these constraints are expected to not only continue, but to worsen as we move into 2015/16. The consequence will undoubtedly be further cuts to vital services and could mean potentially severe cuts to the Housing Executive direct grant provision, the potential for significant increases in Housing Executive Rents, longer waiting times for Housing maintenance repairs because the maintenance budget has had to be slashed, potential job losses across the Department, cuts in Neighbourhood Renewal funding and cuts to voluntary and community work. DSD provides a range of services to vulnerable groups across Northern Ireland and it will be some of the most vulnerable in our society who bear the brunt of these cuts.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Social Development to outline the front line services that will be affected by the budget cuts as a result of the non-implementation of Welfare Reform.

(AQO 6511/11-15)

Mr McCausland: As the member will be aware I have made repeated representations to this Assembly raising my concerns on the financial consequences for all Northern Ireland Departments as a result of the non-implementation of Welfare Reform.

I would take this opportunity to once again point out to the Assembly that the financial consequences for the 2014 – 15 financial year in the order of some £87m will not just affect my Department but ALL NI Departments.

Given the focus of my Department's activities, it will sadly be the most vulnerable in our society, who will bear the burden of the reduction in my Department's services that will inevitably result.

While officials are currently assessing the impacts of the cuts, I can see no way to avoid significant reductions in direct grant provision available to NIHE, inevitably meaning a £ for £ reduction in maintenance expenditure, longer waiting times for repairs and a further build up of backlog maintenance. The only way to offset this would be an increase in rents above inflation.

I will have to consider the current levels of investment in neighbourhood renewal. I could not guarantee the current levels of investment in voluntary sector and community support programmes.

As a result of non-implementation, there is a risk to 1500 jobs that we may lose if work we carry out on behalf of DWP is repatriated because we will no longer have staff with the necessary experience and skills in the security system used in GB.

Colleagues need to understand that not implementing Welfare Reform will significantly add to the financial burden that the Executive will have to deal with not only this year but in future years.

Dr McDonnell asked the Minister for Social Development whether his Department has made an assessment of the impact of the proposed Welfare Reform measures on a constituency basis and across all recipient groups.

(AQO 6512/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Protecting the vulnerable is a key priority and at the very core of reforming the welfare system. I have developed a package of measures which will not only help simplify the social security system but more importantly it will involve measures which protect the most vulnerable in our society.

Part of developing this package of measures and ensuring it protects the most vulnerable, involved making an assessment of the impact of the proposed Welfare Reform measures across all benefit recipient groups. There was no previous assessments made into the effect changes to the welfare system would have on all recipient groups in Northern Ireland and, given my objective to protect the vulnerable I commissioned detailed analysis by Departmental statisticians. Assessments were not carried out on a constituency basis but they were measured across all recipient groups in Northern Ireland.

The research included examining the Personal Independence Payment, Employment and Support Allowance, Universal Credit, Benefit Cap and changes to Housing Support.

This research then allowed me to develop a package of measures including a series of flexibilities and transitional protections to ameliorate the more negative aspects of the reform of the welfare system and ensure the vulnerable are protected. The research meant the flexibilities were designed to meet the needs of the people in Northern Ireland and these flexibilities include making payments to both parties in the household instead of a single payment, making payments twice a month instead of a monthly payment, and the direct payment of housing costs to landlords.

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister for Social Development for an update on any social housing plans in Mid Ulster.

(AQO 6513/11-15)

Mr McCausland: There are nine social housing schemes totalling 131 units planned in the Social Housing Development Programme for 2014/15-2016/17 in the Mid Ulster area.

These are broken down as follows:-

- three schemes in Coalisland totalling 28 units with an estimated grant allocation of £1,246,199.
- one scheme in Cookstown totalling 58 units with an estimated grant of £2,493,435.
- one scheme in Ballinderry totalling 5 units with an estimated grant of £230,592
- one scheme in Stewartstown totalling 6 units with an estimated grant of £287,975.
- three schemes in Magherafelt 34 units with an estimated grant of £1,799,034.

The figures I have quoted are estimates of the total Housing Association Grant for each scheme, the remainder of the costs for each scheme will be met through the housing association's private finance.

The total Housing Association Grant figure of £6,057,235 for the 131 units equated to £46,238 grant per unit.

Mr A Maginness asked the Minister for Social Development whether he will now retract his statement and accusation regarding named contractors in relation to the delivery of Northern Ireland Housing Executive maintenance contracts.

(AQO 6514/11-15)

Mr McCausland: No I will not. As I said at the time and continue to say the information that I brought to this House last year was provided to me by the Housing Executive. If I had not made that statement I have no doubt I would have been pilloried for not alerting this Assembly at an early stage about the overpayments situation. I advised who the contractors were as I understood this was well known.

However, in relation to one of the companies, Dixons, I have no difficulty in saying that they have behaved absolutely properly and I very much regret that the information I was given by the Housing Executive was misleading regarding that firm. I have personally spoken to the Managing Director of the company about this matter and he is clear in relation to my position. This was a private discussion and I rightly agreed it would remain so.

I am delighted that the Housing Executive and the contractors have been able to come to a conclusion on this issue and now we can move forward.

Ms McGahan asked the Minister for Social Development, in light of his decision to ignore the recent NI Audit Office investigation and his efforts to rebrand this initiative, whether he will reject his departmental review into the transfer of public housing stock.

(AQO 6515/11-15)

Mr McCausland: I strongly refute the suggestion that I ignored the recommendations made by the NI Audit Office (NIAO) in relation to the Stock Transfer programme.

Having fully considered the recommendations contained within the NIAO report and the lessons learned from the two pilot stock transfer schemes at Rinmore and Bloomfield, I commissioned a review to determine whether the programme in its proposed format was the best way to effectively deliver the desired outcomes for tenants and tax payers.

The review has now concluded and I am currently considering the recommendations.

There is no intention to re-brand the Stock Transfer Programme but if observations are made in the course of pilot schemes and NIAO make recommendations, surely it would be remiss of my Department not to take account of these and revise the process accordingly.

The scheme to transfer NIHE stock at Rinmore was initiated following approaches by SDLP and Sinn Fein councillors to Minister Ritchie in 2009. It is also worth pointing out that the two pilot schemes (at Rinmore and more recently Bloomfield) have had the overwhelming support of tenants, following a thorough consultation process and tenants in Rinmore are now enjoying the much needed improvements which the tenants in Bloomfield can soon look forward to enjoying.

As public funds become more limited, stock transfer offers a positive way of levering in additional funding to the housing sector to ensure social housing is maintained to a good standard.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister for Social Development for an update on the work of the Housing Repossessions Taskforce in addressing the impact of negative equity.

(AQO 6516/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The work of the Housing Repossession Taskforce will be time bound and completed in two phases. The findings from the first phase were published in July, which are now informing the second phase of developing evidence-based recommendations for potential mitigating actions. I am pleased to advise that the Taskforce is making strong progress in the completion of this options phase. While a final report will be published by the end of this year, where possible, the Taskforce will endeavour to expedite the implementation of any recommendations.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister for Social Development how many pilot schemes his Department has undertaken since May 2011.

(AQO 6517/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department has introduced the following pilot schemes since May 2011:-

- Boiler Replacement Scheme
- Affordable Warmth Phases 1 and 2
- Pay as You Go Oil Pilot
- Empty Homes
- FirstBuy Northern Ireland Scheme
- Affordable Home Loans Fund
- Stock transfer Scheme – Rinmore
- Stock Transfer Scheme - Bloomfield
- Six Building Successful Communities pilots
- Design & Build Scheme
- Resurgam – Social Enterprise Pilot Project
- Tyrone Donegal Partnership – Virtual Incubation and
- Software Training Academy (VISTA)
- Development Trusts Northern Ireland, Community
- Asset Transfer
- Two signature projects through the OFMdfM
Delivering Social Change Programme namely –
 - Nuture Units
 - Social Enterprise Incubation Units

There have also been six pilot schemes in the Social Security Agency undertaken since 2011. These are as follows:- Pilot Innovation Fund for Improving the Uptake of Benefits.

- Pilot to examine medical evidence used in one social security benefit to inform decisions in another social security benefit.
- Financial Support Service Trial
- Remote Appointments Pilot, which is currently promoting telephony in Omagh/Newry
- E-Referral System pilot which ran in 2012 for the South Region (Banbridge and Dungannon)
- E-Referral System pilot which ran in 2012 for the Belfast Region (Andersontown)

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister for Social Development for an update on the Northern Ireland Housing Executive accessing private finance.

(AQO 6518/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Department has previously considered the options available to the Northern Ireland Housing Executive (NIHE) for borrowing funds. Under Article 16(1) of the Housing (NI) Order 1981 the Housing Executive may borrow money with the consent of my Department and the approval of the Department of Finance and Personnel (DFP). In practice this borrowing facility has, in the past, been restricted to the National Loans Fund because the interest rates were the lowest available.

Section 5.7 of Managing Public Money Northern Ireland (MPMNI) states that public sector organisations may borrow from private sector sources only if they can achieve better value for money for the public sector as a whole by doing so.

In public expenditure terms, both the capital and interest elements of any borrowing which the NIHE would undertake would score in terms of the Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL). These are both HM Treasury imposed controls on the Northern Ireland Block of expenditure. In practical terms this means that interest and principal repayments associated with any Housing Executive borrowing would have to be funded from the overall Northern Ireland Block with a consequential cut to other services which would have to be reduced in order to free up this expenditure.

Ms McCorley asked the Minister for Social Development, in relation to Welfare Reform, why he has not adopted the same position as the DUP in Westminster.

(AQO 6519/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Unlike Sinn Fein, my DUP colleagues fought in the House of Commons to ensure that Welfare Reform did not negatively impact the people of Northern Ireland.

Since the Bill was passed in Westminster, I have worked hard with the support of my DUP colleagues to secure flexibilities for Northern Ireland to protect the most vulnerable in our society.

Northern Ireland Assembly Commission

Mr Wells asked the Assembly Commission why letters to MLAs regarding their pension entitlements are sent recorded delivery.
(AQW 35242/11-15)

Mrs Cochrane (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Assembly Commission takes a number of steps to ensure that the information that it holds is handled, stored and transmitted appropriately. These include an Information Assurance Policy and a Data Protection Policy.

Like most other public sector organisations, the Commission's Information Assurance Policy utilises a "protective marking" system to ensure that appropriate protective measures are applied to information being held or transmitted. Under this policy a 'Restricted' marking is warranted if compromise of the information is likely to cause substantial distress to individuals. As the pension letters highlighted in your question contained both personal and financial information about Members, they fell into this 'Restricted' category. A decision was taken to post these letters rather than leave them in Members' pigeon holes during recess. According to the Policy, items marked as "Restricted" should only be sent by recorded delivery or by courier.

The Commission aims to use the most cost effective way to transmit data in keeping with the Information Assurance Policy and will use the appropriate method of transmission in each case.

Mr Agnew asked the Assembly Commission whether a solar panel will be installed as part of the roof maintenance scheme for Parliament Buildings; and if so, to provide details of the plans.

(AQW 35276/11-15)

Mr P Ramsey (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The primary objective of the roof project is to provide a long lasting solution to ongoing problems of water ingress thereby protecting the heritage of the listed building.

However, the Assembly Commission has taken the opportunity to refurbish and/ or replace all of the existing roof-mounted mechanical and electrical services and, where appropriate, to incorporate renewable technologies.

In order to comply with planning requirements and strict loading capacities for the existing roof, thin film photovoltaic (PV) panels were chosen for the high level roofs. Electricity generated by these panels will supplement the building's energy supply.

A small number of solar thermal tubes will also be installed on the roof at the rear of the building and these will provide around 50% of the domestic hot water supply for the building.

In addition, a rainwater harvesting system will be installed which will provide 'grey' water to be used to flush some of the toilets in the building.

It is anticipated that the combined measures included in the roof project will reduce the building's energy consumption by a minimum of 25%.

If you require any further information on the roof project, please feel free to contact the Project Manager, David Lynn, on ext. 21346.

Mr Flanagan asked the Assembly Commission to detail the number of staff employed directly by the Commission who currently earn below the living wage.

(AQW 35422/11-15)

Mrs Cochrane (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The “living wage”, as calculated by the Centre for Research in Social Policy (CRSP), is currently £7.65 per hour for the United Kingdom. The Commission is committed to ensuring it meets its social responsibility to employees. This includes a range of fair and equitable reward and recognition policies. In particular, the Commission recognises the importance of sustainable wages for its entire staff. In this regard, all members of staff employed directly by the Commission are paid remuneration that exceeds the living wage.

Written Answers to Questions

Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, in light of the advertising of political tours of the Maze Prison by the republican prisoners' group, Coiste, (i) how many such tours have taken place; (ii) why these tours are permitted; and (iii) given that Coiste imposes a charge, what financial arrangement exists.
(AQW 22188/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): External organisations do not deliver visits at the Maze/Long Kesh site.

Mr McGlone asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the (i) number; and (ii) cost of (a) all flights; and (b) business class flights paid for by their Department in each year since 2008.
(AQW 24767/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The table below details the number and cost of (a) all flights and (b) business class flights paid for by the Department for the financial years 2008-09 to 2013-14 inclusive. Please note for the financial years 2008-09 to 2010-11 inclusive information on numbers of flights is not held in a readily accessible format and information on type of flight was not held separately for financial years 2008-09 and 2009-10.

Name	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11	2011-12	2012-13	2013-14
Total number of flights (1)	Not available	Not available	Not available	759	928	701
Total cost of all flights	£304,176	£195,477	£170,549	£186,946	£407,026	£424,125
Number of business class flights ⁽¹⁾	Not available	Not available	88	69	188	203
Cost of business class flights ⁽²⁾	Not available	Not available	£58,005	£70,205	£287,455	£247,137

- (1) The number of flights in the table above denotes single flights.
(2) The costs of business flights includes some economy flights which were booked as part of a package and it has not been possible to disaggregate the costs

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) whether a Special Adviser to the First Minister holds a post as a director of QUBRIC Limited; (ii) whether this was declared as an interest; and (iii) if not, why it was not declared.
(AQW 24885/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness:

- (i) Yes
(ii) No
(iii) No conflict arises.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the progress of the delivery of Together Building A United Community.
(AQO 4771/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Work is progressing across all seven headline actions that were announced alongside the publication of Together: Building a United Community.

The Department of Education received 16 expressions of interest in relation to the establishment of 10 Shared Campuses and announced the first three successful projects on 2 July.

In respect of the United Youth Programme, a very successful Design Day was held on 23 January to mark the culmination of an extensive period of stakeholder engagement and the event attracted an attendance of more than 250 people. A design team has now been established to take forward development of the next stage of the Programme and all of the feedback received from the Design Day will be used to build the final design of the programme.

With regard to summer schools, a year round intervention pilot to be run in the Belfast City Council area, which included summer schools and camps, began in summer 2014, well ahead of the strategy's 2015 target.

Detailed project plans complete with anticipated budgets have also been developed in respect of the urban villages, shared neighbourhoods, interface removal and cross-community sports programme headline actions.

Work is also progressing with the establishment of the Equality and Good Relations Commission and the associated underpinning legislative changes required.

The Review of Funding and Practice is a central commitment given within the strategy and was carried out in two stages. Phase one was completed at the end of March with phase two coming to an end on 25 June. Work is continuing to finalise a report containing recommendations on a future funding delivery model that will support the strategic direction of Together: Building a United Community.

Work is continuing with departments to take forward work in relation to the other actions and commitments arising from the strategy and meetings with all departments have taken place.

A strategy of this depth and scale requires collective commitment and leadership across all departments and sections of our society. The Ministerial Panel and thematic subgroups will be central to achieving this. Work on establishing the range of subgroups is at an advanced stage.

The reporting mechanisms necessary to monitor progress on implementation of a strategy of this importance have been developed. The progress updates will inform a more substantive progress report on all aspects of the strategy's delivery for each Ministerial Panel meeting.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what representations have been made on behalf of the Executive in respect of the Tobacco Products Directive (TPD2), given the potentially negative impact on the local tobacco manufacturing industry.

(AQW 28092/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Executive has not made representations in respect of the Revised Tobacco Products Directive. The UK negotiating position on this directive takes into account the local health aspects and potential economic impact on the local tobacco manufacturing industry obviating the need to make separate Executive representation.

Mr Irwin asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the Signature Programmes under Delivering Social Change.

(AQO 5007/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Work on the implementation of the six Delivering Social Change Signature Programmes, which we announced on 10 October 2012, continues to progress well.

The signature programme to improve literacy and numeracy levels in both primary and post-primary schools will see the equivalent of 233.3 recently graduated teachers, who are not currently in work, providing tuition to children to achieve higher grades. As at 30 June 225.4 full time equivalent teachers have been appointed. Of these, 143.5 are in post primary schools and 81.9 in primary schools.

Recruitment of outstanding teachers is on-going. The Programme will run over two academic years and three financial years to August 2015.

In relation to the Nurture Unit Signature Programme, all of the 20 additional Units are now fully operational, and latest figures indicate that a total of 135 children (86 males and 49 females) are currently attending the units. It is anticipated that 480 children and their families will benefit from the units.

Regarding the Family Support Hubs, 8 of the 10 new Hubs were fully established by end June 2014, with the remaining two due to be established by end of the summer 2014.

The Support for Parents Signature Programme has developed a suite of programmes to provide guidance, training and information for up to 1,200 families.

The Delivery Agents have been appointed and contracts awarded in respect of the eleven Social Enterprise Hubs.

Finally, work commenced in November 2013 to upscale and roll out a pilot intervention to support young people Not in Education, Employment or Training and their families. This will reach up to 720 disadvantaged families. The programme delivery has three cycles each of 26 weeks supporting 240 families in each cycle. The first of these finished on 2 May and a total of 904 family members will have received help and support on the programme. The second cycle commenced on 31 March 2014, and the third is due to commence in September 2014.

The good progress being made in the development and implementation of these programmes is a positive contribution to the Executive's policy, under the Delivering Social Change framework, to tackle poverty and deprivation; and towards equipping everyone with the skills and support to strengthen our economic growth. We are particularly heartened that some departments have provided enhanced funding for the programmes they are leading on.

Mr Ross asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail (i) all third sector organisations funded by his Department who provide services to the public; and (ii) the value of each contract.

(AQW 29539/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Funding from our Department for third sector organisations which provide services to the public is on the basis of grants rather than contracts. The table below lists the third sector organisations funded directly by our Department which provide services to the public. Most of our funding of organisations is through our ALBs.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for their definition of a shared education campus; and what is the target date for the delivery of the Together: Building a United Community objective of ten shared education campuses.

(AQW 30620/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Department of Education has the lead on delivering the Programme for Government commitments in relation to advancing shared education. We understand that you tabled a similar question to the Minister of Education and he provided a substantive response. AQW 31237/11-15 refers.

Mr Dallat asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister (i) for an update on the allocation of the Social Investment Fund (SIF); (ii) for a timetable outlining the future allocation of monies under SIF; (iii) whether a decision has been made to deny funding to projects which are part of technical assistance groups; and if so, (iv) the reasons for such a decision.

(AQW 31009/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The fund has been allocated on a zonal basis across nine Social Investment Zones as follows:-

- Belfast North £9million
- Belfast South £8million
- Belfast East £8million
- Belfast West £12million
- Londonderry/Derry £9.5million
- Northern £9million
- Western £8million
- Southern £8.5million
- South Eastern £8million

Letters of offer have been issued totalling £10,012,049 Capital and £22,613,448 Revenue. It is anticipated that the rest of the fund will be committed by the end of this financial year.

Details of the projects within the funding allocations is available at: <http://www.ofmdfmi.gov.uk/index/delivering-social-change/social-investment-fund/sif-projects.htm>

Funding has been allocated on the basis of priorities determined by local steering groups. In line with most such programmes, the value of applications greatly exceeds the resources available. In these circumstances, funding is allocated according to the prioritisation determined by the local Steering Group. No decision has been made to deny funding, although not all applications will be affordable at this time.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the cost of (i) flights; (ii) other transport; and (iii) all other costs, including accommodation for the contracted photographer, on the trips to (a) Abu Dhabi, Dubai, Mumbai and Delhi in April 2012; (b) Shanghai and Hong Kong in November 2012; (c) Brazil and the USA in March 2013; (d) Beijing in May 2013; and (e) Boston and Chicago in October 2013.

(AQW 31290/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Executive is committed to growing the economy and generating foreign direct investment. On every international visit we meet with existing investors and those considering Northern Ireland as a base to grow their businesses.

In order to attract foreign direct investment it is essential that we promote Northern Ireland as an attractive investment opportunity. This includes highlighting and promoting the significant investment announcements that are made during and following each international visit. Engaging the services of a Northern Ireland based photographer has proven to be the most effective method of ensuring we meet this objective.

The total costs of flights for the five visits were £30,478.49; further transport costs of £92.00, and all other costs associated with the visits amounted to £20,734.24.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for a breakdown of the annual costs of the Executive's office in Brussels.

(AQW 32412/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The table below lists the breakdown of the cost for the Office of the Northern Ireland Executive in Brussels for the last complete financial year (2013-2014).

Annual cost of the Executive Office in Brussels	2013-14 £'000
Running costs	482
Salary costs	372.5
Depreciation/Impairment charges on Capital	111

Mr McGlone asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the number of staff in their Department, broken down by grade, travelling daily to their place of work from each of the eleven new council areas to the Greater Belfast area.

(AQW 32458/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The information requested is provided in the table below.

Notes:

* Total includes 30 (8.6%) staff whose home postcode was either missing or invalid and could not be allocated to a new council area.

Data is taken at 01 January 2014 from HRConnect database.

Number of staff does not include those seconded outside of the NICS or staff on a career break

As there is no definition for Greater Belfast, the above analysis calculates travel for NICS staff from the new council areas to The Belfast Metropolitan Urban Area (BMUA). The BMUA is defined in the Statistical Classification and Delineation of Settlements (February 2005) and is available from NISRA at: www.nisra.gov.uk/archive/demography/publications/urban_rural/ur_gaz.pdf

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister how they ensure the political neutrality of the Community Relations Council.

(AQW 32713/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Community Relations Council (CRC) is an independent Arms Length Body of OFMDFM and as such is classified as a Non-Departmental Public Body.

In accordance with the guidance contained in the Department of Finance and Personnel's (DFP) publication Public Bodies: a Guide for NI Departments, the CRC's Board has corporate responsibility for ensuring that the organisation fulfils the aims and objectives and governance requirements as set out by OFMDFM.

These aims and objectives and governance requirements are detailed in the CRC's Management Statement and Financial Memorandum and sets out the framework within which the CRC operates. As such, it sets out an appropriate basis for the relationship between OFMDFM and CRC.

The Management Statement and Financial Memorandum is approved by DFP and agreed between OFMDFM and CRC's Chief Executive. Copies are available via the CRC's website at

<http://www.community-relations.org.uk/community-relations-council-management-statement/nicrc-management-statement/>

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail their vision of the relationship with the new Equality and Good Relations Commission.

(AQW 32717/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Our vision of the relationship with the new Equality and Good Relations Commission is detailed in the Together: Building a United Community strategy published in May 2013.

Mr Campbell asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, following the publication of the recent Northern Ireland Peace Monitoring Report where key point 6 is entitled 'Failure lies in wait for young working class Protestant males', what steps are being implemented to address this issue.

(AQW 32952/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Executive's Delivering Social Change framework has developed and funded a range of key actions across Government Departments on priority social policy areas to tackle poverty and social exclusion. Early years and early intervention are critical and educational underachievement has been identified as one of the key contributors to bad life outcomes. Signature Programmes developed to address this include:

- 20 new nurture units
- Additional family support through a parenting project
- 10 new family support hubs, providing holistic early intervention and support to families in need
- 720 families to benefit from the Community Family Support Programme, focusing on supporting parents and helping young people who are not in education, employment or training
- Over 200 new teachers employed in over 260 schools to tackle numeracy and literacy underachievement.

The Department of Education also has a number of policies and initiatives to tackle educational underachievement and is working to implement these policies and provide funding for a range of additional interventions, with a focus on improving standards and tackling educational underachievement across all sectors.

The Department for Employment and Learning (DEL) is working in partnership with key stakeholders, particularly the Department of Education, to address underachievement through an extensive range of initiatives. It funds and delivers a range of programmes that target young people at school but also young adults who continue to require support in securing access to the labour market.

DEL has also taken on lead responsibility for co-ordinating the Together: Building a United Community strategy's United Youth Programme, which will offer 10,000 young people not in employment, education or training the opportunity for employment experience and structured volunteer opportunities. The Programme is committed to increasing the employability of socially disadvantaged young people alongside a dedicated programme designed to foster good relations.

We launched the first United Youth pilot scheme on 6 February 2014. This 'HeadStart' scheme is operated by Springboard Opportunities and involves 50 young people. The pilot will help inform the design and structure of the new United Youth Programme to ensure that it will be effective in targeting and improving life opportunities for our young people with the greatest need.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether they will introduce a Troubles related serious injury pension.

(AQW 33358/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: A Troubles related serious injury pension is one of a number of recommendations that has been presented to Ministers by the Commissioner for Victims and Survivors in her advice paper on "Dealing with the Past".

We have considered the advice and further discussions on the proposals are ongoing.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when each previous Commissioner of Victims and Survivors was consulted with regard to the proposed construction of a peace building and reconciliation centre at the Maze/Long Kesh site; and to outline their response.

(AQW 33507/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Discussions on the Peace Building and Conflict Resolution Centre at the Maze Long Kesh site were held with previous Commissioners for Victims and Survivors (CVSNI) on 4 occasions between 25 June 2009 and 13 December 2010.

The Previous Commissioners could not agree an approach to engagement with the Maze/Long Kesh Programme Delivery Unit, but enabled CVS staff to attend future stakeholder discussions from September 2011 through to June 2013.

Mr Nesbitt asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what communication they have had with the Westminster Government on the necessity of additional resources to be made available for victims and survivors across the United Kingdom; and what consideration has been given to the appropriate delivery vehicle for this service support.

(AQW 34242/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Junior Ministers met with the Secretary of State on Thursday, 4 September 2014, to discuss this issue.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what action is being taken to secure the future of the Buddy Up programme between Holycross Nursery, Boys Primary and Girls Primary Schools, Edenderry Nursery School, Glenwood Nursery School, Wheatfield Primary School and Community Relations in Schools; and how can they involve the participations in the future roll-out of the Buddy Scheme as part of the Together: Building a United Community Strategy.

(AQW 34694/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Department of Education is taking forward the commitment set out in Together: Building a United Community to roll out a buddy scheme in all publicly funded nursery and primary schools.

Department of Education officials met with Community Relations in Schools (CRIS) representatives in late 2013 to discuss the CRIS programme. They have also engaged with Education and Library Boards colleagues to discuss how a buddying scheme might be delivered. Officials are developing a business case and no model to deliver the programme has been agreed.

CRIS is a partner, along with a number of primary and nursery schools in North Belfast, in the 'Active Respectful Communities: Ardoyne and Shankill Together' (ARC) initiative, which received funding from OFMDFM and Atlantic Philanthropies under the Contested Space/Interface Programme from 2011-2014.

The Contested Space/Interface Programme was designed to test out a variety of approaches to support communities to work together in contested space/ interface areas, and to use the learning from these pilots to inform future developments in this area of work.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, in relation to the omission from the Historical Abuse Inquiry of both clerical abuse victims and women aged 18 and over in Magdalene Laundries and equivalent institutions, what action they have taken in response to the recommendations in July 2013 of the UN Committee for the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women.

(AQW 34871/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: In light of the publication of the McAleese report into Magdalene Laundries in the Republic of Ireland last year and the representations made to us, we appointed a senior civil servant to prepare a scoping paper on the Magdalene Laundry type institutions that operated locally to inform us of the potential actions we might be able to take. We have received the report and are currently giving serious consideration to the options that have been laid out before deciding the way forward.

Under the Terms of Reference for the Inquiry into Historical Institutional Abuse (HIA), any woman who entered a Laundry before she was 18 could have contributed to the Inquiry, including recounting their childhood experiences to the Inquiry's Acknowledgement Forum and having those experiences acknowledged.

The HIA Inquiry was initiated in the 2009 Assembly debate about historical institutional abuse of children. The definition of an institution for the purposes of the Inquiry formed an important aspect of consultation with victims and other key stakeholders.

Setting the parameters in this way does not in any way undermine the trauma that has undoubtedly been inflicted on many other individuals as a result of abuse in domestic and other settings. The categories covered by the HIA Inquiry were selected because of the very particular vulnerable nature of this type of residential care. The issue of clerical abuse is therefore no less important or emotive than institutional abuse and we are mindful of the equally destructive impact it has had on many individuals.

Anyone whose experiences fall outside the scope of the Inquiry is encouraged to report this to the PSNI and Social Services for investigation. Where appropriate, the alleged perpetrators can then be brought before the courts. This is the primary means by which victims and survivors can seek justice for what happened to them. The Inquiry is intended to investigate systemic failings regarding the provision of care for children living in institutions, as defined in its terms of reference. It is not intended to replace the PSNI or the courts in investigating criminal activity.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister when they will announce the allocation of the Good Relations Funding, given the need for urgency to adequately resource vital scheduled summer interventions.

(AQW 34933/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: There has been significant demand for 2014/15 Central Good Relations Funding. Funding will be released in phases and to date some £1m of funding has been approved and allocated to priority projects.

Our commitment to the delivery of Together: Building a United Community is clearly demonstrated through the decision to increase the allocation to the Central Good Relations Fund by £300,000 from the June monitoring round. Successful applicants in this tranche will be contacted as soon as possible.

It should be noted that the Central Good Relations fund is a small central scheme designed to distribute funding in year. We primarily fund good relations work through the Community Relations Council and all District Councils. The fund does not and will not replace mainstream core or project funding.

Belfast City Council and the Education and Library Boards undertook 125 scheduled summer interventions throughout July and August which were funded by OFMDFM.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether the Victims and Survivors Service has the use of an electronic Management Information System; and, if not, to detail the reasons for this.

(AQW 35426/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Victims and Survivors Service has the use of electronic management information systems.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether victims of anti-social behaviour are eligible for assistance from the Victims and Survivors Service; and if so, how such sits with the expectation that those eligible for help will have suffered in a 'Troubles-related' incident.

(AQW 35428/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Any individual may apply for assistance to the Victims and Survivors Service provided they meet the definition of a "Victim/Survivor" set out in the Victims and Survivors (Northern Ireland) Order 2006

The Victims and Survivors Service engages with anyone who identifies with this definition, and seeks to provide support to them, whether directly under the Individual Needs Programme or by referring or signposting the individual to the regional network of organisations and service providers funded under the Victims Support Programme.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, pursuant to AQW 20037/11-15, whether any of the procurement credit cards are held and used by Special Advisers; and if so, how much of the reported expenditure they incurred.

(AQW 35543/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: No

Mrs Cameron asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, following their Department's attendance at the Global Summit to End Sexual Violence in Conflict Zones, what lessons can be applied to devising a similar strategy to combat local domestic and sexual violence.

(AQO 6538/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Junior Ministers attended the Global Summit to End Sexual Violence in Conflict, which took place in London between 10 and 13 of June.

The aim of the summit was to create a sense of irreversible movement towards ending the use of rape and sexual violence in conflict. At the summit we met with a delegation of women from community organisations here and heard about some of the sexual violence experienced by women here.

Our current Gender Equality Strategy strives to eliminate gender based violence in our society and to ensure the equal participation of women in conflict resolution. We are looking at how good practice shared at the conference can be applied in the development of the new OFMDFM Gender Equality Strategy.

The Department of Justice and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety are currently at an advanced stage of developing a new joint Domestic and Sexual Violence and Abuse Strategy and Junior Ministers are members of the Inter Ministerial group on this issue.

Junior Ministers also met with the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Violence Against Women earlier in the year and facilitated her visit to Belfast. The Department of Justice and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety are lead departments in tackling domestic and sexual violence, though responsibility to address the issues straddles a number of government departments.

Sexual violence cannot be tolerated in any society and we will ensure that the Gender Equality Strategy fully addresses issues of sexual violence against women and girls.

Mr Maskey asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the Delivering Social Change Signature Project to provide greater support and advocacy for people with disabilities, their families and carers.

(AQO 6539/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Our Department is working hard to deliver on our commitment in the Executive's Disability Strategy to lead on Disability Awareness and Advocacy and to deliver on the requirements of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

Through the Delivering Social Change Framework we are continuing to work with other departments and key stakeholders to identify and create awareness of the range of advocacy services available to ensure that people with disabilities are given the appropriate help and support to exercise the maximum choice, control and freedom in their daily lives.

We will form a Disability Awareness and Advocacy Focus Group which will bring together government officials, key stakeholders from the statutory, voluntary and community sectors and individuals with disabilities to discuss how we can work together to provide a greater awareness of advocacy support for people with disabilities, their families and carers.

We intend to sponsor a major international conference on the rights of deaf people to equality in mental health care and have also sponsored a Symposium on capacity building, advocacy and the rights of people with disabilities to make decisions in all aspects of their lives.

Junior Ministers hosted a major conference for service providers and representatives from the disability sector to discuss how current arrangements meet the needs of people with disabilities.

We are also working to roll out a school resource pack which has been developed to teach children and young people about the rights of people with disabilities.

Department of Agriculture and Rural Development

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development why she has given a directive that all correspondence sent to her Permanent Secretary by MLAs must be directed to her private office for a response.

(AQW 35256/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill (The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development): I have not issued a directive about correspondence from elected representatives. I consider that substantial correspondence from elected representatives deserves a response from me as Minister. I wish to be aware of the concerns raised by elected representatives.

On occasion, for instance if the correspondence relates to a routine constituency matter, I will consider if it is more appropriate to be dealt with directly by officials.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail (i) the number of staff employed in her Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35345/11-15)

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for her Department's definition of a free flowing river.
(AQW 35383/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: A free flowing watercourse is one that is effective for drainage purposes. The Drainage (NI) Order 1973 sets out in Schedule 2 the works which may be undertaken by my Department to achieve this. The legislation also places a duty on the occupiers of land to maintain undesignated watercourses, in Schedule 5. It also enables the enforcement of such matters which would render the watercourse less effective for drainage purposes, in Schedule 6.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development when the Rural Development Programme will be open for funding applications for new farm diversification projects.
(AQW 35385/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: There will be no further calls for funding under the current Rural Development Programme 2007-13 as all funds are fully committed and the Department is moving towards closure.

Our proposals for the new Rural Development Programme 2014-2020 include a Rural Business Support Scheme, which will make funding available for applications from rural businesses including farm diversification, micro and small business development and small tourism projects.

My Department is currently working to finalise the new Rural Development Programme 2014-2020 with the aim of submitting it formally to the European Commission for consideration in October 2014. The Rural Business Support scheme will be delivered on the ground by new Local Action Groups and it is hoped that animation for applications can start in April/May 2015. The date for the opening of any calls will depend on the programme being signed off by the European Commission and on getting the necessary business case approval.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for an update on the recent works carried out by Rivers Agency to address flooding in Fintona, Trillick and Beragh.
(AQW 35387/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Following the flooding incident of 22 May in Fintona Rivers Agency removed a significant amount of material from the watercourse which had been transported by the high water flows. A CCTV survey of the culverted watercourse network in the areas at risk from flooding was also carried out. Information generated from this survey is currently being reviewed and will be shared with NI Water and Transport NI, who also maintain drainage systems in this area. Rivers Agency is currently inspecting designated open watercourses in the Trillick and Fintona areas. Maintenance works identified will be prioritised and considered for inclusion in the 2015/16 maintenance programme. Rivers Agency has also installed a sandbag store in the Ecclesville Equestrian Centre so that sandbags can be deployed quickly to protect property in the event of further flooding. The Regional Community Resilience Group (RCRG), which is jointly chaired by Rivers Agency and Local Government, has met with residents in Fintona to help them understand the flood risk they face and to enable discussions to take place on how to become better prepared for flooding during emergency situations. Works on the Beragh Flood Alleviation Scheme commenced in April 2014 and are progressing in accordance with the construction programme, with completion scheduled for April 2015. All these efforts will hopefully reduce the likelihood and impact of flooding in the future to these communities.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for an update on the sluice gates at Portna.
(AQW 35447/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Rivers Agency successfully completed major refurbishment works to the Portna Sluice Gates in July 2013. This will ensure the operational integrity of the structure going forward, which will be to the benefit of all users of the Lower Bann.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what measures are taken to ensure that meat or meat products entering Northern Ireland do not contain transglutaminase.
(AQW 35520/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: DARD has no statutory role in relation to transglutaminase.

I understand that transglutaminase can be used in food as long as it complies with the relevant legislation such as General Food Law and the enzyme legislation EC Regulation No. 1332/2008. Therefore no measures have been taken by DARD to ensure that meat or meat products entering the north of Ireland do not contain transglutaminase.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how her Department will work with the new National Food Crime Unit.

(AQW 35536/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: I welcome Professor Elliott's final report on the Review into the Integrity and Assurance of Food Supply Networks and its recognition that we have one of the safest food supply systems in the world. While the Elliott report and its recommendations are primarily for FSA and Defra to address, it will inform important discussions with the relevant Government departments, agencies and FSA on tackling Food Crime.

Lead policy responsibility for food safety in the north of Ireland rests with the Department of Health, Social Services & Public Safety and the FSA. My Department will continue to play its specific role in implementing a programme of inspection, sampling, enforcement, licensing and guidance in relation to meat, milk and primary production hygiene on behalf of the FSA. The work of the VS Enforcement Branch (VSEB) in supporting the FSA during the multi-agency response to the investigation of an illegal slaughterhouse in South Armagh earlier this year, is one example of the work of my department. I welcome the fact that Professor Elliott has cited VSEB as an "Example of a Specialised Crime Unit" which is already involved in multi-agency working. We will be considering the report carefully and work with Defra and FSA as they seek to implement the reports recommendations.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for her assessment of the current ban on specific breeds of dangerous dogs.

(AQW 35546/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The current legislation regarding the control of dogs here is the Dogs Order 1983 as amended, which provides for the licensing of dogs and other related enforcement matters.

The term 'dangerous dog' is not defined in the dog control legislation, however the Dangerous Dogs Order 1991 amended the Dogs Order 1983 to designate four types of dog that it is an offence to breed from, sell or exchange and (except in exceptional circumstances) to possess. It empowered Courts to order the destruction of these dogs. The four designated types are any dog of the type known as the:

- (1) pit bull terrier;
- (2) Japanese tosa;
- (3) Dogo Argentino; and
- (4) Fila Brasileiro.

Furthermore any dog of any type bred for fighting or to have the characteristics of a type bred for fighting is also banned.

The 1983 Order also allows for various conditions to be imposed on, or seizure of, a dog of any kind that presents a serious danger to the public.

The Dangerous Dogs Compensation and Exemption Schemes Order 1991 introduced an Exemption Scheme which allowed the owners of dogs of a banned type born before the ban came into force, and for which a destruction order had been issued, to apply to their Council for an exemption from destruction, which is granted if they meet certain conditions.

Following a comprehensive review of the dog control legislation here, that was commissioned in 2007 by my predecessor, Michelle Gildernew, the Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011 has updated the 1983 Order, which provides for the licensing of dogs by Councils and includes provisions on dog attacks, straying and livestock worrying, and designates certain types of dogs that it is an offence to possess, except under certain very strict conditions.

As part of the 2007 review the ban on specific breeds of dangerous dogs was discussed. The views of those who called for the removal of the prohibition on certain breeds/types of dogs, for example pitbull terrier-type dogs, and also those who supported the prohibition, were considered. Given the lack of consensus on this issue, and because such breeds, for example pit-bull terriers, have a high pain threshold and a jaw structure developed specifically for fighting, which means that the risk that they pose to public safety remains qualitatively greater, my predecessor concluded that the prohibition should remain. Arising from this review, and as set out in the final policy proposals that were agreed by the Executive in March 2010, the dog control legislation maintained the ban on the four types of dogs bred for fighting. The new provisions introduced by the Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011 clarified the status of any dogs that were exempted from the ban on dogs bred for fighting

The Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011 has been designed to tackle the problems of dog attacks, straying and unwanted dogs; protect the public; promote responsible dog ownership; and penalise irresponsible owners. From April 2012, the 2011 Act introduced a number of the measures, such as the compulsory microchipping of dogs and a system of control conditions for problem dogs. Council dog wardens are now empowered to impose control conditions on an owner's dog licence where there has been a breach of dog control laws. Wardens can also require that a dog is neutered, or that a dog or its owner undergo training. The 2011 Act also introduced an offence of allowing a dog to attack and injure other people's pets; increased the level of fixed penalties; and increased the dog licence fee (with concessions for certain owners).

Given that a comprehensive review of the dog legislation has been undertaken so recently here, and the consideration that was given to this legislation by the Agriculture and Rural Development Committee and the Assembly, I am content that the current ban on specific breeds of dangerous dogs is appropriate and that the legislation in place provides sufficient controls.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how much has been spent on implementing dangerous dogs legislation over each of the last ten years.
(AQW 35547/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The control of dogs here is legislated for by the Dogs Order 1983, as amended by the Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011. The Dogs Order is enforced by local Councils who are statutorily obliged to supply the Department with information regarding their enforcement activity.

Each Council provides the Department with statistics on a quarterly basis, including, the number of dogs licensed, the number of stray dogs and the number of incidents of livestock worrying investigated etc.

The Councils do not provide the Department with financial information in relation to the implementation of dangerous dogs legislation and I therefore do not have the information to answer your question.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how many dogs have been seized under dangerous dogs legislation over each of the last ten years; and to detail how many of these were (i) destroyed; (ii) returned to their owner; and (iii) remain in the possession of the authorities.
(AQW 35548/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Dog control is legislated for here by the Dogs Order 1983, as amended by the Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011. Councils enforce this legislation and are required to provide statistics to my Department regarding its operation.

Those statistics do not show the information requested but Table 1 below provides the information we do hold in relation to banned/prohibited dogs.

Table 1 Banned/Prohibited Dogs

YEAR	Incidents Investigated	Prosecutions Taken	Successful Prosecutions
2013	81	0	1
2012	80	5	5

* incomplete return from Councils

Following the changes made to the Dogs Order by the introduction of the Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011 Councils also provide the number of dogs of a banned type that are seized and voluntarily surrendered. This information is provided in Table 2 below.

Table 2

Year	Incidents Investigated	Identified	Seized	Voluntarily Surrendered	Destroyed	Exempted & Returned
2013*	81	8	3	4	2	1
2012*	80	11	5	2	0	3

* includes the new statistical information collated for banned dogs from 2012, following the Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development, in relation to the seizure of suspected dangerous dogs, to detail how much has been spent on (i) boarding; (ii) vet fees; and (iii) transportation of the animals, in each of the last two years.
(AQW 35549/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The control of dogs here is legislated for by the Dogs Order 1983, as amended by the Dogs (Amendment) Act 2011. The Dogs Order is enforced by local Councils who are statutorily obliged to supply the Department with information regarding their enforcement.

Each Council provides the Department with statistics on a quarterly basis, including the number of dogs licensed, the number of stray dogs and the number of incidents of livestock worrying investigated etc.

The Councils do not provide the Department with financial information in relation to costs associated with the seizure of suspected dangerous dogs and I am therefore not in a position to answer your question.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how many times since May 2011 she has transferred an Assembly Question to a Freedom of Information request; and of these, to detail (i) the number that resulted in the supply of the requested information; (ii) who provided the advice regarding the transfer and whether the departmental solicitor was involved; (iii) when this procedure became departmental practice; and (iv) whether the relevant Member was advised of this procedure in advance of the transfer.

(AQW 35606/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: I have not transferred any Assembly Questions to a Freedom of Information Request since May 2011.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for an update on the Strangford Lough restoration plan.
(AQW 35627/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: My Department and the Department of the Environment introduced a Strangford Lough Modiolus Biogenic Reef Revised Restoration Plan in October 2012. The plan meets the approval of the Commission and the Complainant and focuses on Protection, Intervention, and Monitoring.

Departments have established Protection through a non disturbance zone consistent with the recommendations of Queens University's 2011 Modiolus Restoration Research Project. As outlined in the Plan, Departments have introduced a pot fishing permit scheme outside the non disturbance zone, and appointed a dedicated fisheries officer and Marine Ranger. As required in the intervention workstream in the plan, a post-doctorate researcher has been appointed and the Restoration team are currently evaluating translocation of Modiolus from outside the Lough following confirmation of genetic compatibility by Heriot Watt University. Monitoring of the remaining Strangford Modiolus continues to record temporal and spatial changes in the extent and condition of biogenic reefs, and a substantial drop camera survey is to take place imminently.

A restoration working group has been convened to oversee the work involving both Departments, Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute, Queen's University, Ulster Wildlife and Seafish, and the delivery of the Restoration Plan is monitored by an Interdepartmental Group.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what steps she has taken to assist farmers in protecting their farms and livestock from crime.

(AQW 35640/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Responsibility for tackling rural crime lies primarily with the PSNI. My Department, through its Veterinary Service Enforcement Branch (VSEB), works closely with the PSNI in relation to the prevention and tackling of agricultural-related rural crime.

I have met with the Chief Constable and the Minister of Justice on a number of occasions to highlight my concerns regarding rural crime including farm-related rural crime and the impact it has on the farming community. The work of the PSNI's Rural Crime Unit is discussed at these meetings. In addition, actions taken by DARD's VSEB to tackle livestock theft in co-operation with the PSNI are also considered.

DARD's VSEB use their range of powers to carry out unannounced inspections of farm animals and premises suspected of involvement in rural crime. More serious criminality is referred to the police with DARD officers providing assistance and expertise. VSEB works closely with the PSNI in tackling rural crime, sharing intelligence, exchanging training and conducting joint operations and investigations. VSEB also participates in multi-agency investigations with other regulators, including the Food Standards Agency, HMRC and cross border agencies.

DARD continues to work with the Department of Justice, the PSNI and representatives of the farming community on a number of joint initiatives. These are aimed at reducing rural crime and raising awareness of action that can be taken to help prevent rural crime, including Farm Watch, the Freeze-branding initiative and the Crimestoppers Campaign.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what joint initiatives she has discussed or agreed with her counterpart in the Republic of Ireland to tackle cattle smuggling and illegal slaughter.

(AQW 35648/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Responsibility for tackling illegal slaughter of cattle in the north of Ireland lies primarily with the Food Standards Agency (FSA) and Local Councils. My Department, through Veterinary Service Enforcement Branch (VSEB), works closely with the FSA to investigate allegations of smuggling and illegal slaughter.

VSEB works extremely closely with enforcement colleagues both north and south as illustrated during the investigation of an illegal slaughterhouse in South Armagh earlier this year.

VSEB is committed to multi agency investigations and engages on a regular basis with the PSNI, an Garda Síochána, FSA, Food Safety Authority of Ireland (FSAI), local authority Environmental Health Officers, HMRC and the south's Revenue Commissioners.

In particular VSEB cooperates closely with their enforcement colleagues in the Department of Agriculture, Food and the Marine (DAFM) Special Investigation Unit (SIU). The enforcement teams from north and south meet regularly to discuss investigations and attend joint training events.

VSEB and SIU often conduct joint operations and they are members of a multi-agency rural crime group led by the PSNI that tackles rural crime in the border region.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how many people have qualified and been licensed in respect of the use of sprayers under the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012.

(AQW 35650/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: 449 people have qualified and been licensed since July 2012 in respect of the use of sprayers under the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012. We currently plan to deliver training and assessment to a further 256 people by the end of January 2015.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for how long is a spraying licence, issued under the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012, valid.

(AQW 35652/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Once an individual has an appropriate certificate of competence it remains valid and does not need to be renewed. However, they should make sure to keep their skills, knowledge and training up to date.

Certificates can be withdrawn if the holder is convicted of an offence under the pesticides Regulations. The holder would need to undergo further training and assessment before obtaining a new certificate.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development why a 2.5 day course is required to teach a farmer to use a sprayer and get a licence under the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012; and whether her Department will review its approach to this issue.

(AQW 35653/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: There are two options available to farmers to become suitably qualified to spray Plant Protection Products. These are provided through City & Guilds who specify the training and certification requirements.

City & Guilds use "Learning Time" as the indicator of the time needed for a farmer to achieve competence in the qualification. Learning time is a notional measure which takes into account prior learning. City & Guilds indicate 50 hours learning time is required by a farmer to competently use a sprayer. As part of these 50 hours, CAFRE offer 12 hours of formal learning, coaching and mentoring and practical work. The City & Guilds recommended assessment for a farmer to use a sprayer is 2.5 to 3.5 hours. This assessment is also available through CAFRE.

The existing option is the pesticides application (PA) training course and certification PA1 and PA2 and/or PA6. City & Guilds have also developed a new option specifically catering for 'Grandfather Rights' holders, as this exemption ends on 25 November 2015. 'Grandfather Rights' holders are those born before 31 December 1964 and are likely to have many years of experience in the use of Plant Protection Products. This new option has been developed in consultation with industry experts, government departments and farming unions including DARD and the Ulster Farmers Union.

CAFRE has recently run a pilot of the Grandfather Rights training course. As a result of this pilot and subject to further consultation and review by CAFRE, DARD and the Ulster Farmers Union it is anticipated that the 12 hours of training time will be reduced for the Grandfather Rights qualification offered by CAFRE. Under the Safe Use of Pesticides Replacing Grandfather Rights qualification, it is not mandatory for farmers to complete the training and they have the option to undertake the assessment only.

Training and certification supports best practice, which is essential when using Plant Protection Products (PPP's) to protect the operators applying PPP's, bystanders, wildlife, plants and the environment from adverse effects.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how much has been applied in penalties, in respect of Single Farm Payments, for breaches under the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012.

(AQW 35654/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The total amount applied in penalties, in respect of Single Farm Payments, for breaches under the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012 is £2169.99.

Mr Hazzard asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to outline the work carried out by her Department to upgrade the Slievenaslat walking trail in Castlewellan Forest Park; and whether there are any plans to upgrade additional walking trails throughout South Down.

(AQW 35664/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The Forest Service estate already delivers significant recreational and tourism benefits and the potential exists for further development particularly through working with other recreational and tourism providers.

My officials in Forest Service have been working closely with Down District Council in the development of proposals for an enhanced walking trails product in Castlewellan Forest Park. This project is the result of Down DC seeing the potential to promote Castlewellan Forest Park as a key recreation and tourism product. A total of approximately 13,000 metres of refurbished and new trails will be provided as a result of this partnership approach including the popular Lakeside and Slievenaslat walks.

Within the South Down area, my officials in Forest Service are also working closely with respective Councils on similar proposals for improved walking trail products in Donard forest and Rostrevor forest. It is anticipated that these works will be completed within this financial year and I look forward to seeing the results of the effort and resources committed by both Councils and my Department.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development whether her Department has responsibility for the Control of Greyhounds etc. Act (Northern Ireland) 1950.

(AQW 35672/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: You will be aware from the replies I sent in response to previous correspondence from you in relation to greyhounds, that whilst no specific Department has responsibility for the Control of Greyhounds Act 1950, my Department has policy and legislative responsibility for animal welfare, dog control, the identification and licensing of dogs and dog breeding.

Mr Hazzard asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for an update on her plans to decentralise her Department's Fisheries Office to Downpatrick.

(AQW 35704/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: I can confirm that my officials are continuing to progress the relocation of Fisheries Division to Downpatrick.

The draft lease was approved at a meeting of the Down District Council Policy and Resources Committee on 7th July 2014. This was then endorsed by the Finance and Resources Committee of the Shadow Council at the full council meeting held in August.

Discussions are continuing between DFP (Land and Properties Service) and Down District Council on an agreement regarding the leasing of space at the Downshire Civic Centre.

The target date for the Fisheries Division move is still June 2015.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for her assessment of the effort and expense involved when a new herd number is issued upon the death of a herdkeeper; and whether she plans to change the current procedures which cause further distress to farming families at a time of grief.

(AQW 35709/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: It was in April 2009 that my Department ceased the facility that enabled a new herd or flock keeper to adopt the registration number of a previously registered keeper. This change was made to enhance operational effectiveness and to ensure correct database linkages between the keeper and other relevant identifiers such as business, customer, land identifier and herd / flock numbers.

These linkages ensure that relevant payments and penalties can be accurately calculated and assigned to the correct individual via DARD databases.

Theoretically, if it were permissible to retain the original herd number, on one hand there could be less need for a visit to the premises. However, it is likely that considerably more effort would be required by both my staff and the family members, to ensure the correct database linkages between the new keeper, as distinct from the previous deceased keeper, and linkages to the other relevant identifiers such as business, customer, land identifier and of course herd number.

At present my staff are carrying out a review on the feasibility of retaining herd keeper registration numbers whilst assuring correct database linkages.

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development whether there are any plans to close the departmental laboratory in Omagh.

(AQW 35729/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The laboratory in Omagh is part of the estate leased by DARD to the Agri-food and Biosciences Institute (AFBI). DARD and AFBI agree that the high cost of AFBI's estate needs to be addressed as a priority. Work is ongoing to establish a clear roadmap for the future of the AFBI estate, informed by AFBI's strategic vision and scientific priorities. All options are being explored, but I have no set plans at this point to close the AFBI laboratory in Omagh.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what measures she has put in place to ensure that fracking does not take place in Woodburn forest.

(AQW 35750/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Both my Department and NI Water own land comprising Woodburn Forest. The specific area within the forest, the subject of the proposed drilling works, is not on land owned by my Department. Any permission to access this area of land is therefore the responsibility of NI Water.

I have previously stated that no hydraulic fracturing will take place on any land owned by my Department which includes a part of Woodburn Forest.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what steps her Department is taking to address rural crime, particularly farm theft, and to support the PSNI in their efforts in this area.

(AQW 35829/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Responsibility for tackling rural crime lies primarily with the PSNI, however my Department, through its Veterinary Service Enforcement Branch (VSEB) and CAFRE, works closely with the PSNI in tackling rural crime, including agriculture related crime.

DARD's VSEB works with the PSNI in tackling rural crime at an operational level through the sharing of intelligence, the exchange of training and the conducting of joint operations and investigations. In particular VSEB uses its enforcement powers to carry out unannounced inspections of farm animals and premises suspected of involvement in rural crime. More serious criminality is referred to the police and DARD officials assist the police through the provision of expertise. VSEB also participates in multi-agency investigations with other regulators, including the Food Standards Agency, HMRC and cross border agencies.

DARD continues to work with the Department of Justice, the PSNI and representatives of the farming community on a number of joint initiatives aimed at reducing rural crime and raising awareness of action that can be taken to help prevent rural crime, including Farm Watch, the Freeze-branding initiative and the Crimestoppers Campaign.

I have met with the Chief Constable and the Minister of Justice on a number of occasions to highlight my concerns regarding rural crime and the impact it has on the farming community. Reducing levels of rural crime is a key priority of mine and my Department will continue to work closely with the Department of Justice, the PSNI and other partners in seeking to raise awareness and to reduce levels of rural crime, including farm related crime.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development, pursuant to AQW 35295/11-15, what other tree felling programs are planned in this financial year.

(AQW 35845/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Timber production supports the development of the north of Ireland economy and is an important objective of forest policy.

The 2014-15 Forest Service business plan has a business priority to 'Manage forests sustainably to produce an income, to protect the environment and to promote the social use of forests'.

Within this priority there is a supporting target to 'Maintain the annual supply of wood for industrial processing at a minimum of 400,000 m³.'

Felling programmes are prepared to achieve this target and take place in forests throughout the Forest Service estate in line with sustainable forest management requirements.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the projects funded under the village renewal aspect of the Rural Development Programme in South Down, in the last three years.

(AQW 35864/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The following projects have been awarded funding under the village renewal aspect of the Rural Development Programme in South Down in the last three years.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the amount of funding delivered under the village renewal aspect of the Rural Development Programme, broken down by constituency, in the last three years.

(AQW 35865/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: I take your question to mean the total amount committed to village renewal projects through letters of offer. Village renewal projects include the preparation of village plans and the support of integrated village initiatives which promote cross-community development and regeneration. The details are as follows:

Funding committed to Axis 3 Village Renewal Projects in the past 3 years by constituency

	2012	2013	2014	Grand Total
Belfast South	5,000	121,616	399,348	525,965

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail (i) the number of ear tags requiring to be replaced on an annual basis in Northern Ireland; (ii) the cost thereof; and (iii) the resulting assessment of the durability of plastic tags as opposed to metal tags.

(AQW 35897/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The table below gives the number of matching replacement ear tags, to replace lost or illegible tags, used in cattle and sheep in each of the last 3 years.

	2011	2012	2013
Cattle replacement tags	217,904	218,868	212,742
Sheep replacement tags	2357	2741	3,230

For sheep the flock keeper can either replace the lost or unreadable tag with a matching replacement tag or the flock keeper can apply a new unused ear tag set from his stock of tags. In this instance, the flock keeper must cross-reference the old and the new tag number in the flock register to ensure traceability is maintained.

Tags are replaced for a number of reasons:

- They are lost from the animal's ears;
- They become illegible;
- They are removed for welfare reasons, for example, an infected ear; or
- In some cases, the ear tag numbers of older cattle moving to other Member States for breeding and production do not contain sufficient characters in their number to meet the requirements of the importing country, and, therefore the tags have to be updated and replaced.

My Department does not manufacture or supply ear tags to keepers. Hence the cost of replacement ear tags is a commercial matter between the herd and flock keeper and the ear tag supplier.

My Department is not aware of an assessment of the durability of plastic tags as opposed to metal tags; therefore, we have no evidence to suggest that the number of plastic tags lost is greater than the number of metal tags lost.

My Department has a system in place to gather concerns from keepers about ear tag performance via the DARD website and I would urge those with concerns to report these to us. We are also currently supporting an Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute (AFBI) project researching reasons for ear tag loss in cattle and sheep.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development whether her Department has considered consolidating all Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute sites and resources to create one centre of excellence at the Hillsborough site.
(AQW 35925/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Work is ongoing to establish a clear roadmap for the future of the AFBI estate, informed by AFBI's strategic vision and scientific priorities. While the ultimate goal will be to deliver a cost-effective and fit-for purpose estate, options for consolidation must address a range of practical considerations, such as biosecurity, contingency capacity to deal with potential animal or plant health emergencies and possible planning restrictions. Within this context, various options are being explored but, to date, AFBI has not proposed consolidation onto a single site at Hillsborough.

Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what cuts will be made to her budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.
(AQW 35246/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure): No cuts have been made to the Department budget as a result of a lack of agreement on Welfare Cuts in 2014/15.

Cuts that I will have to make are a direct result of reductions to the block grant and the pressures from the Department of Health where the finance minister has identified another over-spend and mismanagement .

The cuts to benefits proposed by the British government and which have not been accepted by the Assembly would, if passed, have serious consequences in terms of adding pressures across public services. The reality is that in Britain people have died as a result of these cuts. Like many people in this state others have been forced into homelessness, poverty and increased poor mental health.

Cuts to welfare payments are not part of our Programme for Government. In fact these potential cuts would undermine all of the anti-poverty measures that we are committed to in our Programme for Government.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail (i) the number of staff employed in her Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.
(AQW 35347/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The table attached details the number of staff in post by headcount and full time equivalent at 31 March of each year from 2011 to 2014. The cost provided reflects the annual salary cost of those staff.

Staff are grouped by analogous grade that is, Administrative Assistant, Administrative Officer, Executive Officer 1, Executive Officer 2, Staff Officer, Deputy Principal, Grade 7 and Senior Civil Service.

Industrial staff, who are paid weekly, are shown separately.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to list the boxing clubs, located outside the Greater Belfast area, which have received grant assistance from the recent boxing specific funding.

(AQW 35410/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Under the £3.27 million Lottery funded Boxing Investment Programme, the Irish Amateur Boxing Association (IABA) received almost £170,000 for the supply of equipment to boxing clubs which are affiliated to the IABA. Annex A details the 94 boxing clubs, and their location, that received boxing equipment from this grant. Boxing Clubs deemed to be within the Greater Belfast area are marked within the table for information.

Under the capital element of the Boxing Investment Programme, Sport NI has allocated £2.5 million towards the refurbishment, or rebuild, of boxing clubs. To date Monkstown Amateur Boxing Club has received grant assistance for capital works.

A further 44 clubs have received indicative letters of offer for capital works. Design teams have been appointed by the IABA to take forward preparatory work in advance of grants being issued to clubs.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure how the City of Culture Legacy will be funded in light of the failed bids for £2.8 million resource and £2.8 million capital in the June 2014 Monitoring Round.

(AQW 35421/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Building on additional funding I secured earlier this year, I submitted a significant bid to the June Monitoring Round to maximise ongoing development of a social and economic legacy from City of Culture 2013.

I am disappointed that funding was not allocated to this bid but I remain fully committed to harnessing the momentum created by City of Culture and to realising the full potential of the culture, arts and leisure base to transform lives and help tackle disadvantage.

Achieving this is not solely dependent on the allocation of new and additional funds. The DCAL family of organisations, programmes, facilities and services are already actively targeting and delivering interventions across the North West.

This week, for example, the CultureTECH festival, supported by my Department through NI Screen, will enhance the national and international profile of the North West as a centre for innovation, digital technologies and the creative industries. Inspirational programming as part of the festival will also engage over sixteen thousand schoolchildren.

My Department is working to coordinate and lead a joined up approach to maximise the impact and reach of the culture, arts and leisure base across the North West. My officials are working closely with community and local and central government organisations to develop wide ranging strategic partnerships to stimulate meaningful and sustainable change in the lives of individuals and communities.

A key overarching legacy from City of Culture 2013 is widespread recognition of the value of culture and creative approaches in tackling social and economic challenges. It transforms lives, inspires communities and provides innovative and effective ways to engage the disengaged and help rebuild the economy.

I will continue to support that legacy. I will work within the Executive and with other stakeholders to maximise funding and collaborative opportunities to enhance that legacy and its role in delivering social change across the North West and in this part of Ireland.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what communication her Department has had with relevant stakeholders in East Londonderry regarding how they can use the creative arts industry on the North Coast to boost local business.

(AQW 35496/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: In March 2014 DCAL 'Roadshows' were held in Limavady and Coleraine to raise awareness of the value of cultural led approaches to tackling social and economic disadvantage. The events included a diverse range of representatives from the community and voluntary sector and local government departments. Discussions explored local economic and social issues and the contribution the wider DCAL family can make to developing innovative approaches and partnerships.

This reinforced the importance of coordination and taking forward joined-up approaches across the North West. My Department has a strategic focus on developing the North West, including Limavady, Coleraine, Derry and Strabane, as a hub for the creative industries and social innovation. Moving forward my officials will continue to work with relevant stakeholders to advance this aim.

The North Coast is also gaining further international acclaim as a location for film and television production. The recent filming of Game of Thrones in areas such as Downhill Beach brings a range of business activity into the area and generates considerable public and international interest which can provide a long term boost to tourism.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure for an update on a Northern Ireland Sports Museum.
(AQW 35638/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Mr Ronnie Spence, Chair of Ulster Sports Museum Association (USMA), has informed my officials that the Association is continuing in its efforts to create a sports museum and also to seek potential partners and funders for the project.

As you are aware the USMA has received significant financial support from Government Departments in recent years to undertake feasibility work and to develop an outline business case for an Ulster Sports Museum/Hall of Fame. To date its proposal did not demonstrate value for money nor long term sustainability without a requirement for on-going public sector support.

I wrote to Dame Mary Peters, President of USMA, in April 2014 setting out my position that it would be inappropriate to use Taxpayers' money to provide further funds for the organisation.

Mr Hazzard asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the items and artefacts, which are of historical importance and originate in County Down, that are currently held outside County Down by National Museums NI and by other public bodies in Britain and the rest of Ireland.
(AQW 35760/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department's investment and involvement in the museums sector is primarily directed to National Museums NI (NMNI) and the NI Museums Council (NIMC).

NMNI has informed me that of its collections that are catalogued it has 61,367 items and artefacts of historical importance associated with County Down (Archaeology 47,577; Art 69; History 13,721). This includes 1,863 items and artefacts in the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum, Cultra. The remaining items held by NMNI are held at a variety of sites across the north. The NIMC does not hold any collections.

Neither NMNI nor NIMC hold details of items and artefacts that may be held outside of the north of Ireland.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure, in relation to the Titanic Showdown boxing event held on Saturday 6 September 2014, (i) what financial contribution in the way of sponsorship was made to the event by her Department; and (ii) what representations regarding the event were received by her Department from (a) public representatives; (b) Ministers; (c) Special Advisors; and (d) lobby interests.
(AQW 35789/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department committed £100,000 to the Titanic Showdown boxing event. This commitment was made after officials from the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment (DETI) met with Cyclone Promotions. DETI then approached my Department asking it to consider partnership funding, given DCAL's sporting remit.

Miss M McIlveen asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure for an update on the business case for the redevelopment of Belfast Central Library.
(AQW 35808/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Libraries NI (LNI), with support from my Department, is developing an Outline Business Case (OBC) for the redevelopment of Belfast Central Library.

In July 2014 LNI submitted a draft OBC to my Department for initial consideration. The estimated cost of delivering the preferred option set out in this draft is £43.16m over 3 years. This is significantly higher than the previous estimate of £30-£35m.

My officials have reviewed this draft OBC and provided detailed written comments to LNI in August for its consideration. LNI is reviewing its OBC in light of these comments and a revised version is expected to be resubmitted by early November 2014.

Mr D McIlveen asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what support is available to aspiring musicians.
(AQW 35875/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I appreciate the importance of offering opportunities for young and aspiring musicians on the local, national and international platform.

My Department, through its funding to the Arts Council, encourages and supports young musicians through a number of programmes. Within its Music Strategy 2013-2018, the Arts Council has identified a number of new initiatives to provide opportunities for young musicians to aspire to a professional level of performance and ultimately national and international excellence.

Programmes available include: support for the Individual Artists Programme; Young Artists programme; Beyond Borders; Musical Instruments Scheme; Milton Violin Award; New Musical Instrumental Scheme; and the Take it Away Scheme. Annex A provides details of the various programmes to which musicians may be eligible to apply.

In addition my Department, in conjunction with Invest NI, also supports the Generator NI project. Generator NI is a three year Music Business Support Programme and its remit is to support the development of a sustainable regional music industry in the north of Ireland. This support is delivered by way of a sector-specific skills development programme, a tailored talent development programme and a market development programme that is designed to develop regional, national and international networks, audiences and markets for those in the sector. The programme also delivers an overarching mentoring programme which supports artists and businesses at all levels.

Annex A

Arts Council Programmes to which aspiring musicians may be eligible to apply.

Support for the Individual Artists Programme (SIAP)

A programme that offers support for bespoke training and CPD opportunities for Young Musicians. This programme also offers travel and musical equipment awards.

Young Artists Programme

The Arts Council, in collaboration with BBC, offers awards for young, exceptionally talented North of Ireland solo musicians/singers who have already gained their first graduate-level qualification and are ready to enter the professional world as artists. The financial award associated with this scheme is to allow applicants to spend a sizeable amount of time learning from a master performer/teacher/composer etc. It is identified that this opportunity should be offered to traditional music and Jazz genres as well as classical.

Beyond Borders

A UK-Wide programme that improves the mechanism for commissioning and performing new music

Musical Instruments

This scheme offers support for organisations to purchase necessary musical instruments for their groups and has been particularly beneficial for bands to purchase new instruments for young musicians. This scheme has a wider social and cultural heritage agenda which is growing all the time.

ACNI Milton Violin Award

The Arts Council offers the Milton Violin award for a young, exceptionally talented North of Ireland musician who has already gained his/her first graduate-level qualification and is ready to enter the professional world as an artist. It will be judged by an expert panel on the basis of a live audition and an application showing evidence of considerable artistic achievement and potential to contribute to the cultural life of the region.

The Arts Council will lend its £100,000 violin to an outstanding young violinist from the North of Ireland who wishes to pursue or continue professional training. This beautiful instrument, made by Giuseppe Gagliano in Naples c. 1780, was donated to the Arts Council by Professor Alan Milton in 1980.

Youth Music Organisations (Ulster Youth Choir and Ulster Youth Orchestra)

Ulster Youth Choir and Ulster Youth Orchestra provide unique and excellent artistic opportunities for young musicians (age 14-24) from across the North of Ireland to learn and participate in music making at the very highest standards through workshops, residential training courses, concert performances, recordings and tours. The participants in these organisations often pursue further studies at 3rd level with a view to a professional career as a musician. Since the North has no conservatoire for Music, these young people often study in music colleges in Britain and Europe. The danger is that they don't return with their rich knowledge/experiences. There is an opportunity for the Youth Music organisations to develop relations with the Education Sector to facilitate work at grassroots KS1-KS2 levels in primary schools throughout the north – perhaps this is an avenue of job creation for graduates of both these youth music organisations

NI Opera

The NI Opera Young Artists' Programme is designed to nurture aspiring talent and showcase up-and-coming performers from across Ireland. The programme will give four young singers, directors or conductors the opportunity to hone their skills, whilst being supported at a transitional stage in their careers. Participants receive support in a number of ways including training, mentoring, performance opportunities, and the chance to be involved with NI Opera productions.

Ulster Orchestra

The UO's Education programme reaches 30,000 young people across the North of Ireland. This programme consists of workshops, pre-concert talks, special projects, family concerts, community events and a masterclass series for young aspiring musicians.

New Musical Instrument Scheme

A scheme is in development involving a public call for instruments to be donated/dropped-off to Arts Council. The Council will then distribute the instruments to the most needy schools/community groups through channels such as the Education and Library Board's and client organisations working with schools and community groups

Take it Away Scheme

This musical loan scheme allows anyone over the age of 18 in the North of Ireland to purchase a new Musical Instrument up to the value of £2k with an interest free payment plan over 10 months. This programme aims to make buying instruments more affordable to all. There is a steady uptake of this scheme with typically c.£500 interest payments a month by the Music Department. The scheme is available through selected music retailers in Belfast, Derry and Portadown

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to outline the contact her Department has had with the Braid and All Saints Boxing Clubs in Ballymena, since May 2011.

(AQO 6564/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Sport NI has allocated Lottery funding of three million, two hundred and seventy thousand pounds to invest in the sport of boxing across the north of Ireland. This investment is helping to address some, but not all of, the equipment and facility needs identified. An element of the programme, was to provide the Irish Amateur Boxing Association (IABA) with funding to employ a Development Manager, who would help clubs apply to the programme.

Both the Braid and All Saints Boxing Clubs in Ballymena applied to Sport NI's Boxing Investment Programme under the equipment and capital strands.

Sport NI met with All Saints Amateur Boxing Club (ABC) on two separate occasions to discuss the Boxing Investment Programme. Firstly, in 2012 in advance of the programme being launched; and, again in March 2014 to provide feedback on their application for capital works. In addition, All Saints ABC attended a workshop, hosted by the IABA, in Ballymena in 2013 to receive information about applying to Sport NI's programme.

I understand that All Saints ABC received boxing equipment under the Boxing Investment Programme; but was not ranked high enough to receive funding for capital works at this stage.

Braid ABC did not attend the IABA workshop in 2013 on the Boxing Investment Programme; however, I understand that it did meet with the IABA's Club Development Manager at this time.

While Sport NI has not met with Braid ABC directly the club received boxing equipment under the Boxing Investment Programme and was also successful in receiving an indicative letter of offer from Sport NI for capital works totalling six hundred and sixty six pounds.

In addition to the Boxing Investment Programme, Sport NI is currently developing a new Lottery funded capital programme which will aim to deliver facilities from which both local communities and high performance athletes can benefit. Sport NI has indicated that further details on this funding opportunity will be released in November 2014, both on its website and directly with those clubs and communities which have already registered their interest with Sport NI.

Mr D McIlveen asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure for her assessment of the comment by the former Director of the Arts Council that she has 'no notion' about the local arts sector.

(AQO 6572/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: I refute the comments and am content to be judged by what I have done to support the arts and increase access to and participation in them.

Since taking up office, I have worked determinedly to ensure arts are accessible to all. For example, the undoubted success of the City of Culture in 2013; the culture programme to complement the World Police and Fire Games, also in 2013; and the development of an arts strategy for East Belfast. These are only some of the interventions overseen and proactively taken forward by my Department.

Arts are not a luxury, they are a right and I make no apology for my strategic approach which is to ensure that arts are accessible to all who wish to avail of their benefits.

Miss M McIlveen asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure which capital projects her Department and arm's-length bodies plan to commence before the end of the current financial year.

(AQO 6571/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department has £48m of capital budget remaining to be spent in 14/15.

It has been allocated to the following projects:

Stadiums programme: £44.5m. Individual stadium allocations are 1) Ravenhill - £1.2m, 2) Windsor £20m, and 3) Casement £23.3m. Ravenhill is nears completion and the pitch at Windsor has been relaid and work continues on the Stands. The Casement project has been halted by a Judicial Review, with hearing in progress. The outcome of this hearing will determine how much of the budget can be spent in the remainder of this financial year. My Department is liaising closely with DFP on the budgetary impacts of any further delays in this year and next.

Libraries: £1.6m. This is to finish Lisnaskea library, to begin the replacement of Moira library and to carry out an essential maintenance programme.

Grants to Sports Governing Bodies: £0.5m. This will be used to carry out refurbishment/ extension work to the Frank Gillen Centre and to the Grosvenor Leisure Centre. It will also be used to provide minibuses to Immaculata FC and to a number of Community Groups.

Disability access to sports venues under the TBUC agenda: £0.2m. The purpose is to improve access to a number of facilities.

National Museums: £0.4m has been allocated to essential maintenance and repairs to the Museum estate. Arts Council: £0.4m has been allocated to purchase a mobile arts delivery vehicle "Artscart" (a TBUC initiative) and for various minor capital grants and general maintenance Inland Waterways: £0.2m. This is to help to maintain waterways throughout the North of Ireland.

In addition, the Executive has recommended that my Department should have first call on £2.8 million capital in October monitoring for the City of Culture legacy capital projects should sufficient capital funding become available. If successful I intend to take forward a number of projects in the North West to instil the City of Culture legacy including for example; boxing capital programme to refurbish boxing clubs and provide essential equipment, construct a Visit Derry DCAL stand, refurbish and equip Cultural Hubs and fit out a Shirt Factory at Patrick Street.

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure how much funding her Department has awarded to cross border bodies in the last three years.

(AQO 6574/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The Department has two cross border bodies – the Language Body (which comprises Foras na Gaeilge and the Ulster Scots Agency) and Waterways Ireland. Funding is awarded to cross border bodies on the basis of agreed business plans. These plans are for calendar years and not financial years.

On this basis, my Department awarded £6.28m to the Language Body in 2011 and £6.09m in 2012. I was unable to agree a proposed allocation of £5.52m in 2013 because I believed that the cut to budgets reached too deeply into the core activities of both agencies. My Department awarded £4m to Waterways Ireland in 2011, £3.52m in 2012 and £3.29m in 2013.

Background

- We provided funding details to Approved Business Plans.
- Our supplementary Questions are around the illegality issue and efficiency cuts.

Mrs Overend asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure, in light of the success of attracting major sporting events, how she ensures suitable facilities are considered for hosting future events.

(AQO 6575/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: This has been a tremendous couple of years for the north of Ireland to demonstrate that we can successfully host major sporting events here such as the World Police and Fire Games, the Giro d'Italia and the recent Carl Frampton world title fight. Ultimately, the decision on which facilities will be used for sporting events will be taken by the event organisers and promoters. However, my Department, through Sport NI, will continue to develop facilities subject to the availability of budgets.

Work is already progressing with the Regional Stadium Programme which will see investment of one hundred and ten million pounds for the stadiums at Ravenhill, Casement Park and Windsor Park. Ravenhill Stadium has been completed to a world class standard and I expect facilities at Casement Park and Windsor Park to be completed to a similar standard.

Sport NI has identified Lottery funds of seventeen and a half million pounds to invest in a capital programme to improve sports facilities over a five year period from 2014/15 to 2018/19. Sport NI is currently developing this programme and as a first step is procuring a specialist organisation to develop a Sports Facilities Strategy to inform the investment.

Furthermore, in line with NI Tourist Board's new Strategic Vision for Events, Sport NI is represented on DETI's Global Events Bidding Group and International Events Developmental Group which will consider facilities available when bidding for events.

In addition, the Working Group bringing forward proposals for a bid for Ireland to Host the 2023 Rugby World Cup, inclusive of DCAL and DETI representation, has indicated that the bid would necessarily include key facilities in the north, to ensure that this major international event has a positive sporting and economic impact across the island.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what action her Department is taking to increase physical activity levels, particularly amongst young people, to encourage a healthy lifestyle.

(AQO 6576/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department's strategy for sport, Sport Matters contains twenty six targets, eleven of which are specifically designed to increase participation in sport and physical activity levels right across the population, including amongst young people. An associated Sports Matters action plan provides specific actions for DCAL and Sport NI and also includes actions to be taken forward in partnership with other government departments and a range of public bodies, such as local councils and the Public Health Agency.

Since 2009, Sport NI has invested funding totalling almost forty eight million pounds to increase participation in sport and physical activity levels. Specific actions include guidance for schools that recommends a minimum of two hours PE per week; the delivery of Sport NI's 'Active Eight' programme; the promotion of voluntary extra-curricular sports opportunities; the Curriculum Sports Programme; the delivery of Sport NI's Active Communities Programme in partnership with district councils; the Boxing Investment Programme, and, individual actions by the governing bodies of Gaelic games, rugby and soccer to improve the participation by young people in their sports.

Other activities and investment aimed at increasing physical activity levels of young people through sport include programmes under my Department's priority to promote equality, and target poverty and social exclusion; and also legacy programmes resulting from events such as the World Police and Fire Games, the Giro Big Start and more recently, Carl Frampton's World Championship fight at the Titanic Slipways.

Mr Lynch asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure how disabled anglers will have full access to departmental waterways.

(AQO 6577/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Angling is recognised as a great sport for all and I have been determined to open up opportunities for participation in encouraging a greater number of disabled people of all ages and abilities to enjoy angling.

Over the past three years I have provided funding for a wide range of initiatives to enhance facilities at my Department's waterways. This has improved general access across the Public Angling Estate through providing disabled car parking facilities and pathways to provide safe and easy access for disabled anglers. We have also provided sixteen purpose built disabled fishing stands during this period and we will continue to develop a minimum of two new stands each year, and look at other ways to improve access works in partnership with local councils and community organisations.

A wide range of quality, game and coarse fishing is available to disabled anglers across the Public Angling Estate. Almost half of our waters have dedicated disabled facilities with some large waters, such as Lough Erne, having these at multiple sites. My Department also produces a dedicated disabled angling guide which provides information on waters with disabled facilities and offers advice on distances and gradients to assist anglers to assess the suitability of particular waters based on their mobility.

In addition, since 2011 I have provided over five thousand concessionary licenses and permits to eligible anglers with disabilities. My officials are also working in partnership with organisations such as Extern, Action Mental Health, Disability Action NI and Erne Disabled Anglers to promote awareness of the value of the sport and in supporting initiatives to encourage greater participation, including organising special angling events and the donations of seized fishing equipment.

My Department also exhibited at the recent Disability Action Show in Belfast and we have regularly featured angling in a range of magazines to promote the value of the sport.

Department of Education

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Education what cuts will be made to his budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.

(AQW 35247/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): I negotiated strongly to seek to protect education from budget cuts in line with the protection afforded to health. I welcome the decision by the Executive, as part of June Monitoring, in agreeing to the proposals.

The future success of our economy and of society in general depends on there being a high quality education service that can compete with the best internationally. Equally, all of our young people have the right to a quality education that enables them to reach their full potential, a right enshrined not only in our own legislation but in the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.

Following the outcome of Budget 2011-15 it was clear that I would need to make over £300m of savings across the budget period, to simply balance my budget. Whilst I sought to protect frontline services, it was necessary to initiate a series of strategic cost reductions exercises, which have resulted in over 2,900 school and 450 non-school based redundancies.

Although considerable efforts have been made to reduce the pressures on the education budget, the financial outlook continues to be very challenging and I believe I can and have, demonstrated commitment to prudent budget management, while maximising the use of resources available to me.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Education how his Department is supporting the development of post-primary education outside Belfast for the Irish-medium sector.

(AQW 35393/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I established the Irish Medium Post primary Advisory Group and commissioned a report which considers how best to meet the demands for Irish Medium Post Primary provision in the Derry / South Derry and in other areas outside of Belfast for parents with children currently attending IM Primary Schools.

The Group sought the views of parents in pre-school and primary schools through a questionnaire and also gathered evidence from key stakeholders and the neighbouring jurisdictions of Scotland, Wales and the South of Ireland.

I can confirm that the Irish Medium Post-Primary Group presented me with their Report. I am currently considering the findings and recommendations contained in the Report which I will be shortly publishing it together with my response on how to deliver viable and sustainable Irish-medium post-primary education throughout the North that is high quality, meets the needs of the pupils and commands the confidence of parents.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of mobile classrooms currently in use in schools in the Upper Bann constituency in each of the last three years, broken down by school.

(AQW 35396/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Southern Education and Library Board does not hold historic detail in relation to the number of mobile classrooms in use. However, in January 2013 the Department provided information in regard to mobile class rooms in use at that time and this information has been included in the table below together with current numbers of mobile classrooms in use.

Name of Primary School	Current No of Mobiles	No of Mobiles in Jan 13
Ballyoran Primary School	2	2

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Education what input his Department has had into the preparation of the Mental Capacity Bill. (AQW 35432/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: At key stages in the progressing of a draft mental capacity Bill, the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety sought comments from all departments, including from the Department of Education. No specific matters were raised by my Department in connection with the development of the draft Bill.

I would also refer the questioner to the answer provided by Minister Poots in his response to AQW 35326/11-15 on the same matter.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Education when funding will be made available to carry out the development proposals for Kilcooley Primary School. (AQW 35464/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The extent of capital works required at Kilcooley Primary School greatly exceeds the minor capital limit of £500k and for that reason the South Eastern Education and Library Board made an application to the Department for funding through the Schools Enhancement Programme in May 2013. However, this application was unsuccessful as a development proposal to reduce the school's admission and total enrolment numbers was still being considered at that time.

Now that the development proposal has been approved, the Board has advised that it intends, at the next opportunity, to submit a bid for funding for the refurbishment of Kilcooley Primary School under the Department of Education's Schools' Enhancement Programme.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Education whether post-primary Irish-medium Education will form part of the Shared Education Campus at Lisanelly, Omagh. (AQW 35572/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Currently none of the schools re-locating to the Lisanelly Shared Education Campus provide post-primary Irish Medium (IM) education.

However, I am currently considering the Ministerial Advisory Group report on Irish Medium Post Primary Education. The report includes consideration of post-primary IM provision in South Tyrone including Omagh and the Lisanelly site.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 34788/11-15, whether the use of locally produced food is not already specified in tenders for the supply of food to schools; and to detail the plans to make this a stipulation in future tenders.

(AQW 35586/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards (Boards) are responsible for the procurement of food/food products for consumption in Board schools. The voluntary grammar and grant-maintained integrated schools have discretion to use the ELB contracts or to procure their own supplies.

The European Public Contracts Directive (2004/18/EC), which applies to public authorities including the Education and Library Boards, sets out detailed procedures for the award of contracts whose value equals or exceeds specific thresholds. The threshold for supplies, including the supply of food products, is currently set at £111,676.

Most of the tenders for food products used by the Boards' school meals service exceed the EU supplies threshold. Therefore, tenders must be invited in accordance with EU directives and NI Public Procurement Policy. As this includes a requirement that the contracting authority does not discriminate in relation to the country of origin of the goods tenders cannot stipulate that food must be locally produced.

However, the Boards have confirmed that some of the food products which they procure must be supplied "fresh," (for example, milk, dairy, some fresh meat and poultry products and fruit and vegetables) hence such products are generally locally produced.

The school meals service provides meals to specified nutritional standards and maximises the use of seasonal and fresh products in accordance with Procurement Guidance Note 04/14 Integrating Sustainable Development into the Procurement of Food and Catering Services. The Boards have advised that their procurement officers encourage the participation of small and medium enterprises (SMEs) in the competition for business and that a significant percentage of food contracts awarded are to local SMEs.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Education why the South Eastern Educational Library Board will not provide a bus to take children who live in the Kilcoo area to Drumadonnell Primary School.

(AQW 35588/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The South Eastern Education and Library Board (SEELB) inform me that eligible SEELB pupils residing in Kilcoo that attend Drumadonnell Primary School have historically been accommodated on a Southern Education and Library Board (SELB) bus. However, as this bus is operating at capacity with SELB pupils this year, the SELB were no longer able to accommodate SEELB pupils. The SEELB have now made alternative arrangements for the 6 eligible pupils referred to in this response to be transported to and from Drumadonnell Primary School in a contract vehicle.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education to detail the mobile classrooms in North Down that are available for community use.
(AQW 35661/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Department of Education does not routinely collect information with regard to the use of mobile classrooms by communities.

If approached, schools will consider any request for the use of mobile classrooms in line with the Community Use of School Premises guidance issued by the Department.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education whether any mobile classrooms are surplus to requirements in North Down.
(AQW 35662/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The South Eastern Education and Library Board has stated that, in North Down, there are no mobile classrooms that are surplus to requirements.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education for an update on the new build for Bangor Central Integrated Primary School.
(AQW 35663/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Bangor Central Integrated Primary School was considered for a new build under the protocol developed to select projects to proceed in planning. However it did not achieve sufficient priority to be included in the list of schools I announced on 24 June 2014. While the school will be disappointed that they were not included in that announcement, this in no way implies that they will not be considered for funding at a later stage.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education for an update on the new capital build scheme for schools in Holywood.
(AQW 35665/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I refer the Member to my response to AQW 34897/11-15. While Priory College, Holywood Primary School and Holywood Nursery School will be disappointed that they were not included in the capital investment announcement in June 2014, this in no way implies that they will not be considered for funding at a later stage.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Education what support is available for visually impaired children attending mainstream primary school in the South Eastern Education and Library Board, particularly children starting school for the first time. (AQW 35667/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The South Eastern Education and Library Board (SEELB) has confirmed that there are two Qualified Teachers for the Visually Impaired (QTVI) in the SEELB who provide support to pupils with a visual impairment attending mainstream primary school. The nature of support is determined by the severity of the individual pupil's visual impairment and frequency of contact with the child is primarily dependent upon the nature and severity of the child's functional vision in accordance with agreed inter-board guidelines.

Support may include the following:

- Establishing links with key staff in the new setting;
- Sharing of information between school settings;
- An environmental audit to ensure that the new setting is accessible for the child and to identify any areas of the school which may require modification prior to the child's placement;
- Visits to the new placement to familiarise the child with the school environment;
- Staff training on the nature and implications of the pupil's visual impairment;
- Ongoing advice, support and training to include attendance and contribution to Annual Review meetings, as appropriate;
- Weekly support from the QTVI for children with a profound visual impairment;
- A functional visual assessment of the child's visual needs will be carried out in the new school setting and findings will be discussed with the class teacher, Special Educational Needs Coordinator (SENCO) and parents. A report, detailing the outcome, will be forwarded to parents, school, medical professionals and appropriate others.
- Advice on the modification of learning materials in an appropriate format e.g. large print, braille, electronic, etc.
- Advice and training on appropriate assistive technology and resources.

Mrs Hale asked the Minister of Education what is the current pupil to teacher ratio within controlled sector primary schools. (AQW 35685/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The pupil to teacher ratio (PTR) for controlled sector primary schools for the 2013/14 school year is 21.3.

Please note this includes;

- Controlled primary schools;
- Controlled integrated primary schools;
- Controlled Irish-medium primary schools; and,
- Preparatory departments of controlled grammar schools.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of Education to detail the number of children leaving post-primary schools with no qualifications in (i) English; and (ii) mathematics. (AQW 35692/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: In 2012/13 1,982 (9%) pupils left post-primary school without achieving a GCSE grade G or higher in GCSE English. The corresponding figure for mathematics was 1,763 (8%) pupils.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education what action his Department is taking to ensure that all children, regardless of background, achieve a good standard of literacy by eleven. (AQW 35693/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My priorities for education are focused on raising standards and tackling the impact of disadvantage. My policies reflect these priorities. Count, Read: Succeed, the literacy and numeracy strategy, aims to raise attainment levels in both literacy and numeracy and narrow the gap in educational outcomes. The strategy sets out the central role of teachers, supported by parents and school leaders, in their work to raise standards.

We are moving in the right direction. In the PIRLS and TIMSS studies published in December 2012 we were the highest ranking English speaking region in the world in both reading and numeracy - 5th out of 45 countries surveyed in reading and 6th out of 50 countries surveyed in mathematics.

The Learning to Learn framework sets early years education and learning services within my overall approach, where the importance of delivering high quality education services for children before and in the first years of compulsory education is recognised. Evidence shows that early years education provision makes a distinctive contribution to helping achieve the wider aims of improving attainment and reducing underachievement, especially in literacy and numeracy.

However, we still have too many young people who are not at their expected level in literacy at the end of their primary schooling and schools require additional support to address this underachievement particularly amongst socially disadvantaged pupils. I am therefore continuing to provide funding for a range of additional interventions which focus on those factors which international evidence and best practice tells us will improve outcomes.

These include the Continuing Professional Development (CPD) Literacy Project run by Stranmillis and St Mary's University Colleges. This offers continuing professional development for teachers to develop their capacity to teach reading, spelling and independent writing skills to children of primary age with special educational needs.

The Delivering Social Change programme to improve literacy and numeracy is providing an additional teaching resource to 151 primary schools, a community education initiatives programme across all sectors which aims to foster links between schools and their local communities and a Literacy and Numeracy CPD for teachers of English and maths at Key Stages 2 and 3 focusing on high quality teaching and transition from primary to post primary.

The Education Works advertising campaign is aimed at informing and reminding parents of the importance and value of becoming more involved in their child's education for example by reading with their children.

Save the Children's recently published report 'Read on. Get on' sets a target of all children reading well at the age of 11 by 2025, and it is interesting to note that the key areas for action are already part of my strategic approach to raising literacy standards.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education to detail the timescale for the implementation of changes to the weighting of AS level and A level examinations.

(AQW 35695/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The change to the weighting of AS and A level examinations will take effect from September 2016 (first teaching). This is the deadline to which CCEA is working for the review and redesign of A level specifications.

The weighting issue will not apply to A levels offered by English based awarding organisations, as their AS and A level qualifications will be decoupled in line with qualifications policy in England.

Mr Hazzard asked the Minister of Education how many mobile classrooms are currently surplus to requirements; and to detail how a sporting club, charity or voluntary organisation can acquire the services of such resources.

(AQW 35747/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My Department does not hold details on the number of mobile classrooms that are surplus to requirements as the responsibility for mobile classrooms rests with the school authorities. My Department has not considered allowing surplus mobile classrooms for local community use such as sporting clubs, charities or voluntary organisations as the majority of mobile accommodation which is replaced is no longer fit for purpose. Any surplus modular accommodation considered suitable for re-use is subject to the necessary building/planning controls/Departmental policies such as area planning/ approved enrolment/admissions numbers and is normally re-located within the schools estate.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Education for an update on proposals to increase pupil numbers at Towerview Primary School, Bangor.

(AQW 35793/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The South Eastern Education and Library Board published Development Proposal 257 on 2 September 2014 proposing an increase to the admission and enrolment number of Towerview Primary School.

Publication of the Development Proposal has initiated the statutory two-month period during which comments can be sent directly to my Department. This period will end on 2 November 2014 and following that I will make the final decision on the proposal taking account of all pertinent information.

Further detail of this proposal can be found on my Department's website: http://www.deni.gov.uk/index/schools-and-infrastructure-2/area-planning/14-schools_estate_devprop_pg/current_development_proposals.htm.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education what initiatives are planned to help pupils with low educational attainment.

(AQO 6578/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Teachers and school leaders are key to raising standards.

They are best placed to identify pupils requiring additional support and, through high quality teaching and learning, to identify the most appropriate action to meet individual pupil needs.

However, schools may require additional support to address low achievement particularly amongst socially disadvantaged pupils.

I have therefore continued to implement policies and provide funding for a range of additional interventions which focus on the factors which international evidence and best practice tells us will improve outcomes.

Providing access to a wide range of academic and vocational courses is particularly important.

Young people who see their time in education as relevant to their future, who have access to courses that interest and motivate them and who receive effective and timely careers advice are more likely to remain engaged with their education and achieve their full potential.

Full implementation of the Entitlement Framework is important for all our young people.

Within schools, funded programmes are being implemented to improve pupil outcomes.

These include the Delivering Social Change programme; a literacy and numeracy Professional Development (CPD) project; the Special Educational Needs CPD literacy project and the Strategic Development Fund to Area Learning Communities.

I am also providing funding to support programmes aimed at improving school-community links.

These include the Community Education Initiatives Programme and the Greater West Belfast Community Project.

I am making substantial resources available to addressing low achievement and I have no plans to introduce further programmes at this stage.

However the continued division of children through the outdated and educationally unsound practice of academic selection continues to be a major obstacle to the creation of a world class education system

Mr Byrne asked the Minister of Education how he will ensure that the new Special Education Needs and Inclusion Bill statementing process will meet the needs of each individual child.

(AQO 6581/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I hope shortly to bring a draft special education Bill to the Executive for consideration. I am committed to working with colleagues in order to achieve the introduction of the Bill to the Assembly, where it can be progressed and debated. I firmly believe that the Bill, the associated regulations and a revised statutory code of practice, will bring forward a rounded and considered package of proposals to improve the management, by both schools and education and library boards, of children's special educational needs.

Specifically, the draft Bill would retain a statutory framework based on the special educational needs of the individual child. My proposals do not dilute or remove the current statutory basis for statements. Importantly, the Bill would reduce the statutory timeframe for education and library boards to complete a statement from 26 to 20 weeks, subject to the existing statutory exceptions, in order to provide earlier assessment and intervention. It is proposed that a statement would be set out in the form of a coordinated support plan, which would ensure a more focused approach on progress and outcomes for the child and input from both children and parents.

The draft Bill would also propose to strengthen the statutory duties on Boards of Governors of grant-aided schools to prepare and keep under review a personal learning plan for each SEN pupil, including those with statements. This would focus schools on the child's progress, the outcomes to be achieved and the regular review of their needs.

Ms McCorley asked the Minister of Education to detail the level of financial assistance his Department provides annually to Irish Medium education.

(AQO 6587/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My Department takes it statutory duty to encourage and facilitate the development of Irish Medium Education very seriously and will continue to do so.

In the last financial year my Department provided £19m financial assistance to Irish Medium education. This has increased steadily from £12m in the 2007-08 financial year.

This funding has helped support the Irish medium sector as the fastest growing education sector in the North.

Over the last 10 years, the number of children in funded Irish medium education settings at pre-school, primary and at post primary level has risen from 2,695 in 2002-03 to 4,627 in 2012-13. The figures for 2002-03 equated to 0.77 percent of all children in grant-aided schools and in funded pre-school education. The figure for 2012-13 equates to 1.39 percent of all children in grant-aided schools and in funded pre-school education.

There are now 29 stand alone Irish-medium schools (28 Primary and 1 post-primary) and 10 Irish-medium Units attached to Catholic Maintained schools (7 primary and 3 post-primary).

Going forward, my Department will ensure that it continues to have a rigorous approach to its duty to Irish Medium Education.

Mr McAleer asked the Minister of Education what level of social objectives will be incorporated into the Lisanelly project to maximise the benefit of this investment for the wider community.

(AQO 6588/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My Department has developed a range of social objectives for the Lisanelly Shared Education Campus. These include the provision of a broad and rich educational experience for pupils; the preservation of cultural diversity; the provision of full service facilities; the promotion of social cohesion through sharing, and the integration of the campus at the heart of the Omagh community.

To help ensure these objectives are delivered I am establishing a Community Stakeholder Group and an Inter-Departmental Working Group.

These groups will be tasked with:

- Exploring how the opportunities and benefits accruing from the investment at Lisanelly can be maximised across the Omagh area in terms of economic and social regeneration.
- Ensuring the facilities developed are aligned with community need and available for use by the public outside of school hours, thus embedding Lisanelly within the wider community.

Furthermore, in line with Executive policy, social clauses will be used in all contracts let under the Lisanelly Programme, creating a number of job opportunities, work placements and training opportunities.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of Education for an update on the future of Ballysillan Primary School.
(AQO 6589/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards are responsible for planning education provision in their areas. They published plans for primary schools on their websites in June 2014.

The Belfast Board's area plan proposes the closure of Ballysillan Primary School as part of an area solution for North Belfast. There is currently no Development Proposal with the Department.

If it is proposed to close a school the statutory Development Proposal process must be followed. This requires the proposer, BELB in this instance, to consult with the school's Governors, Staff, Parents and other schools in the area which may be affected.

If it is decided to progress with the proposed closure, the Development Proposal must be published. This triggers a statutory two month period during which comments can be sent directly to the Department. I will then take a final decision on the proposal, taking account of all pertinent information.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister of Education whether he has any plans to support and establish educational zones in areas of educational underachievement.
(AQO 6590/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I am determined to tackle educational underachievement wherever it occurs but I currently have no plans to establish any educational zones.

The Greater Shankill Community Convention has designated the Greater Shankill area as a Children and Young People's Action Zone.

The important aspect of this designation is that it is a community-led initiative not something imposed or directed by government. That is one of its strengths.

I am encouraged by the commitment shown by the community leaders and the Greater Shankill Community Convention to improve the life chances of children and young people in the Greater Shankill area.

I am heartened by recognition that the community itself has a particular and significant role to play.

I am committed to supporting the framework and working with the Agreed Agenda Steering Group in their work in taking their proposals forward.

Mr Humphrey asked the Minister of Education for an update on the progress of the new build for Edenderry Nursery School at Lanark Way, Belfast.
(AQO 6591/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Economic Appraisal for Edenderry Nursery School which was prepared by the BELB was sent to my Department on 04 September 2014 for approval. It was approved on the 10 September 2014 to allow the project to proceed to concept design i.e. RIBA stage 2.

Department for Employment and Learning

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the loans advanced by his Department through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, since 1 April 2013.
(AQW 35266/11-15)

Dr Farry (The Minister for Employment and Learning): My Department has not advanced any loans through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme either in Northern Ireland or in East Londonderry, since 1 April 2013.

However the Executive agreed to provide £35.0m of Financial Transactions Capital loan funding to the University of Ulster to assist in financing their Greater Belfast Development scheme. The loan was processed through the Strategic Investment Board on behalf of OFMdFM. My Department was involved in the negotiations for this to take place.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what assurances he can give that funding for students with special needs or learning disabilities will be ring-fenced from current spending cuts.

(AQW 35307/11-15)

Dr Farry: At this stage, the full extent of any potential budgetary reduction facing my Department in 2015/16 remains uncertain. Cuts have already been imposed in-year. Unfortunately, I cannot give an assurance that any funding, even for those with special needs or learning disabilities, will be exempt from the resulting financial pressures. However, while my Department will continue to prioritise the need to ensure that these students are appropriately supported and resourced, the scale of the potential cuts means that even core services are likely to be affected.

Widening participation is a key priority for my Department and I remain wholly committed to the widening participation agenda.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what is the (i) hourly; and (ii) weekly rate of pay required to provide an acceptable standard of living.

(AQW 35339/11-15)

Dr Farry: The question of what rate of pay is required to provide an acceptable standard of living is not one which is within the remit of my Department or indeed the Northern Ireland Assembly.

The national minimum wage is set by the Chancellor of the Exchequer each year on the advice of the Low Pay Commission. It is enforced by HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC). Since 1 October, 2013, the national minimum wage has been £6.31 an hour for adults aged 21 and over, and £5.03 for those aged 18 to 21. It is set to increase on 1 October 2014 to £6.50 and £5.13 respectively.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how many local students (i) registered with; and (ii) applied through the Central Applications Office system in the last year.

(AQW 35342/11-15)

Dr Farry: My Department contacted the Central Applications Office and it advised that (i) it does not collect information on the number of people registered; and (ii) there were 1,374 people from Northern Ireland who applied through Central Applications Office in 2013 (for the 2013/14 academic year) for both degree and diploma/certificate courses.

This included 1,257 people who applied for a degree course and 260 people who applied for a diploma/certificate course. Some individuals applied for both a degree and a diploma/certificate course and therefore the sum of these figures is slightly higher than the total applicants.

These are the most recent figures available.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what cuts will be made to his budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.

(AQW 35353/11-15)

Dr Farry: The Executive is facing a number of strategic budget challenges in 2014-15 including addressing a Resource budget over-commitment, Executive commitments and managing the financial impact of key policy issues such as Welfare Reform.

At the Executive meeting on 31 July 2014, the Executive agreed to an immediate reduction to Departmental Resource budgets in 2014-15 to address the over-commitment, Executive commitments and in-year bids. For my Department this meant an immediate Resource budget reduction of £16.3m (2.1%). Failure to reach agreement on Welfare Reform this year (2014-15) will mean further cuts of 2.3% to the Department's budget, amounting to an £18.5m reduction in year, and my Department is planning ahead for this scenario. This amounts to an overall in-year cut of 4.4% to the Department's Resource budget. Cuts of this magnitude will inevitably impact on the Department's ability to deliver its skills and employment agenda, supporting individuals, employers and the economy generally. If the failure to reach agreement continues into next year the cuts will be even greater.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the rationale for the reduction in the Student Hardship Fund for 2014/15.

(AQW 35384/11-15)

Dr Farry: The initial allocation to the college Hardship Funds for 2014/15 has been set at the same level as the previous year. This allocation of £2.1 million is almost £100,000 more than the total spend of £2.005 million last year.

The amount of money allocated to Hardship Funds is determined by historical factors including previous spending levels and data regarding numbers of disadvantaged students. The requirement is demand-led and is therefore adjusted accordingly during the academic year, if necessary, to ensure that appropriate funding is available.

In the last five years, hardship fund requirements have been met in full and no application has been refused because of lack of funding.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what pathways his Department offers for apprentice electricians. (AQW 35411/11-15)

Dr Farry: To be eligible for ApprenticeshipsNI funding an apprentice must be employed "from day one" - so it is employers that create apprenticeship positions.

My Department supports the cost of the off-the-job training required for the achievement of qualifications set out in apprenticeship frameworks.

Off-the-job training is delivered by further education colleges and other contracted training suppliers.

Electrical apprentices may follow the Electrotechnical Level 3 framework or the Electrical Engineering pathway that is contained within the Engineering apprenticeship framework.

In relation to the future of apprenticeships, I have outlined my vision in Securing our Success: The Northern Ireland Strategy on Apprenticeships (published in June 2014). The strategy sets out the way forward through a series of new policy commitments and an implementation plan. Many of the commitments amount to a step-change to the system of apprenticeships in Northern Ireland.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what is the value of the contract with the Electrical Training Trust. (AQW 35412/11-15)

Dr Farry: During the Financial Year 2013/14 the Electrical Training Trust claimed and received £1,287,270.00 ApprenticeshipsNI funding. This figure includes an employer incentive payment of £1,500 per apprentice that the training supplier passes on to the relevant employer.

The remit of my Department's contract with the Electrical Training Trust relates to the delivery of the off-the-job training required for achievement of qualifications set out in an apprenticeship framework. The Electrical Training Trust contract is to deliver training across all 26 contract areas in Northern Ireland.

ApprenticeshipsNI targets relate to the achievement of apprenticeship framework qualifications (rather than the number of apprentices).

The current target relevant to the Electrical Training Trust is outlined below.

"To ensure that, as a minimum, 65% of those participants who commence a Level 3 Apprenticeship during the training period 1st April 2014 - 31st March 2015 will achieve a NVQ Level 2 by 31st March 2017, thereby demonstrating that significant progress is being made towards the attainment of the Full Apprenticeship Training Framework. A minimum Full Framework achievement of 59% by 31st March 2019 is anticipated."

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what is the remit of the contract with the Electrical Training Trust. (AQW 35413/11-15)

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the monitoring and assessment his Department undertakes of apprenticeship contracts.

(AQW 35415/11-15)

Dr Farry: My Department's Supplier Performance Branch and the Finance and Audit Support Team both carry out at least one monitoring visit each financial year to ensure that contracted training suppliers are fully compliant with all aspects of the ApprenticeshipsNI programme's Operational Guidelines and conditions of contract. Subsequent visits are undertaken based on risk assessment.

My Department also has a Quality Improvement Adviser who works closely with the Education and Training Inspectorate to evaluate quality of provision on a three yearly cycle and to report on the quality of leadership and management, standards and outcomes, and teaching and learning.

Information gathered during monitoring and inspection activity will be reviewed during an annual case conference. The review of all available information will inform decisions on further action required.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for an update on his Department's commitment to maintaining the existing Executive policy of freezing tuition fees at their current level.

(AQW 35419/11-15)

Dr Farry: I remain committed to maintaining Executive policy of freezing tuition fees at their current levels subject only to inflationary increases for full time undergraduate Northern Ireland and European domiciled students studying in Northern Ireland.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how monies that were not spent in Hardship Education Fund allocations were reallocated, in each of the last three financial years.

(AQW 35446/11-15)

Dr Farry: The Department works closely with each college to ensure that they have appropriate funding to meet their requirements. Any surplus identified in a college budget is redistributed, as required, to other colleges with budgetary pressures. Further education colleges manage their Hardship Fund allocations based on an academic year which runs from August to July. By the following 30th September colleges must declare any surpluses of un-spent Hardship Fund monies to the Department. In the following academic year the Department then redistributes these funds to colleges depending on actual demand identified. The table below shows the total un-spent monies and revised budget allocations for the last three years:

FE Colleges Hardship Fund for the last 3 years.

Year	Opening Budget Allocation (£000)	Revised in Year Allocation Based on Demand (£000)	Add. Funding Requirement (£000)	Actual Expenditure (£000)	Year End Surplus/ Deficit (£000)	Comments
2013/14	2150	2326	-176	2005	321	Available to contribute to any funding pressures in 2014/15
2012/13	1900	2115	-215	1990	125	Reallocated to contribute to funding pressure in 2013/14
2011/12	1900	1970	-70	1778	192	Reallocated to contribute to funding pressure in 2012/13

I can confirm that no Hardship Fund monies were lost to the further education sector as a whole in the last 3 years. The Department has been able to roll this forward from one year to the next, to contribute towards any additional funding requirements.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how many times since May 2011 has he transferred an Assembly Question to a Freedom of Information request; and of these, to detail (i) the number that resulted in the supply of the requested information; (ii) who provided the advice regarding the transfer and whether the departmental solicitor was involved; (iii) when this procedure became departmental practice; and (iv) whether the relevant Member was advised of this procedure in advance of the transfer.

(AQW 35456/11-15)

Dr Farry: On no occasion since May 2011 have I transferred an Assembly Question to a Freedom of Information request.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether he has received a business case for the expansion of the Magee Campus at the University of Ulster; and if so, to outline the timeframe for processing the case.

(AQW 35476/11-15)

Dr Farry: The business case for the expansion of the Magee campus of the University of Ulster is being completed in two phases. Phase one is the assessment of need for the increase in university provision. Phase two is the completion of an options appraisal including a full economic impact analysis of the preferred option. A draft of phase one has recently been submitted and my officials will be meeting with representatives of the Steering Group and the consultants to discuss it in the near future. To date the department has not been advised when a draft of phase two will be submitted for review. However, as I have previously stated, the business case will be scrutinised on the same basis as any other business case submitted to my department.

At this early stage I am not in a position to outline a timeframe for the entire process as the business case must also be submitted to the Department of Finance and Personnel for its scrutiny.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether he has received a business case for the new teaching block for the Magee Campus at the University of Ulster; and if so, to outline the timeframe for processing the case.

(AQW 35477/11-15)

Dr Farry: The process of agreeing a business case with an institution is an iterative one and several drafts may be submitted before approval is given. The first full draft of this business case was submitted by the university in June 2014. A second draft was received on 18 August and this was returned to the university for further work on 22 August. Once a draft is received which is deemed to satisfy the Northern Ireland Guide to Expenditure Appraisal and Evaluation, then all the necessary approvals can be obtained from my department usually within five to ten days.

However, as this business case is seeking funding of over £5m, it has to be submitted to DFP for its approval. It is impossible to indicate the timeframe at this stage as DFP may or may not raise queries which both my department and the university will have to deal with.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether any Further Education Colleges offer a course involving a work based apprenticeship for trainee electricians.

(AQW 35486/11-15)

Dr Farry: All six further education colleges are contracted by my Department to deliver ApprenticeshipsNI funded training for apprentice electricians.

To be eligible for funding an apprentice must be employed "from day one" - so it is employers that create apprenticeship positions. Through the ApprenticeshipsNI programme, my Department funds the cost of the off-the job training required for the achievement of qualifications set out in apprenticeship frameworks.

Electrical apprentices may follow the Electrotechnical Level 3 apprenticeship framework or the Electrical Engineering pathway, contained within the Engineering framework

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether he plans to establish links with agencies (i) outside of Belfast; and (ii) specifically in East Londonderry, who offer work experience placements through the Youth Employment Scheme (YES), recruit unemployed jobseekers and avail of the Steps to Work and YES employer subsidies.

(AQW 35498/11-15)

Dr Farry: In response to your question above, there are currently no plans to establish formal links with employment agencies throughout Northern Ireland in relation to the Youth Employment Scheme work experience placement / employer subsidies, or the Steps to Work employer subsidies.

However, I can confirm that as part of the Department for Employment and Learning's Employer Engagement Strategy, Employer Engagement Teams (EETs) have been established throughout Northern Ireland to actively engage with local employers, councils, support organisations and economic development organisations to secure both work experience and jobs.

As part of this service these teams deliver large scale employer events such as Job Fair and Advice Forums targeted at meeting local labour market needs and maximising placement / job opportunities for clients who maybe participating on the Department's provision. Specifically in relation to East Londonderry, events have previously been held in Coleraine and Ballymena, with one scheduled this month for Ballymoney.

In addition, the EETs engage directly with employers on a one-to-one basis, again with the aim of encouraging, ensuring that a range of training and employment opportunities are available in DEL's programmes including the Youth Employment Scheme (YES) and Steps to Work (StW).

Employment Service Advisers, based in local Jobs and Benefits offices and JobCentres across NI, engage with each client to determine employability, potential occupational areas to meet local labour needs and the relevant skills required. The Advisers, with appropriate support from the Employer Engagement Teams, may then source relevant work experience placements with employers and / or local organisations.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for a timeline for the building of a new further education college in Coleraine.

(AQW 35683/11-15)

Dr Farry: The Northern Regional College is currently preparing a business case for the provision of further education in the Ballymoney, Coleraine and Ballymena areas. Until the outcome of that business case is known and associated funding identified, it is not possible to provide a timeline for any of the College's proposed new buildings.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for an update on the capital investment announcement for Craigavon Southern and Regional College Campuses.

(AQO 6606/11-15)

Dr Farry: I was delighted to receive confirmation of the Department's successful capital bid to the 'Together Building a United Community' programme. This was confirmed in the joint Government and Northern Ireland Assembly paper entitled 'Building a Prosperous and United Community: One Year On', dated 2 July 2014.

The college is actively seeking to secure a suitable site and this project will result in the establishment of new build for the combined Lurgan and Portadown campuses in Craigavon, facilitating closer integration across the Further Education estate.

The business case for this project and for two new builds to replace current facilities at Armagh and Banbridge at the existing sites have been approved.

The total capital cost of the projects is estimated at £91m and my Department will be bidding for capital in the next spending period to fund the Armagh and Banbridge projects.

In the meantime the college has been given permission to complete some early design work, and the college is working with Central Procurement Directorate on the procurement of a Design Team. It is anticipated that an Integrated Consultancy Team will be appointed by January 2015.

Ms Boyle asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether his decision to reduce the funding for hardship funds at Further Education Colleges took into consideration the growing use of food banks and payday loans among students.

(AQO 6599/11-15)

Dr Farry: I have not taken a decision to reduce funding for hardship funds at further education colleges. Rather this has been demand led. The amount of money allocated to hardship funds is determined by historical factors including previous spending levels and data regarding numbers of disadvantaged students.

This is adjusted accordingly during the academic year to ensure that appropriate funding is available.

Allocations to students take account of their own personal and family financial circumstances but do not specifically consider food banks and payday loans.

In the last five years, hardship fund requirements have been met in full and no application has been refused because of lack of funding.

My Department provides financial help to further education students through two support funds, namely Further Education Awards and college Hardship Funds.

Over recent years my Department has encouraged the take up of Further Education Awards bursaries rather than exacerbate a dependency on hardship funds which are meant to be targeted at those most in need. The funds are, however, inextricably linked and although there has been a reduction in hardship fund requirements over recent years, there has been a greater corresponding increase in the payment of Further Education Awards.

Over the last five years there has been a net increase of approximately £800,000 of the total amount available in the combined funds. In providing this additional funding, my Department recognises the importance of supporting students and alleviating financial barriers through meeting costs associated with learning.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for his assessment of the number of work placements in the North Down area that are available to students at the South Eastern Regional College.

(AQO 6595/11-15)

Dr Farry: According to the college, 1,141 students and trainees participated in work placements in the 2013/14 academic year as part of their programmes of learning.

In addition, the South Eastern Regional College has extremely good working relationships with employers in its area, and engages with over 5,000 employers to obtain relevant work placements as close to students' homes as possible. The process of obtaining, monitoring and evaluating work placements takes significant effort by the college, but is a key element of the student experience and an integral part of their study.

I can also advise that the college has developed bespoke software, called Business Engagement, Student Tracking, to monitor placements.

Research emphasises the importance of work placements. In particular, learners benefit from experience of the work environment to complement their main studies. This is also a very effective way for learners to acquire the all-important employability skills required by employers.

My Department's current reviews of further education and youth training are considering how work placements can be included in the most effective way in individual students' programmes of learning.

The Youth Employment Scheme is a voluntary scheme designed to help young people develop the skills needed to get a job. It recognises that employability skills are more readily obtained by active participation in a work setting with an employer or a voluntary organisation.

Not only does participating in the Youth Employment Scheme help young people develop employability and work related skills, a work experience opportunity or placement with an employer can also offer the chance to sample particular types of work and improve levels of confidence and motivation.

Experience to date has demonstrated that employers are keen to become involved in the scheme and offer opportunities for young people.

Mrs Hale asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how the need for current high level skills provision can be adequately delivered by further and higher education institutes.

(AQO 6600/11-15)

Dr Farry: Our higher education institutions, including further education colleges and universities, have a central role to play in driving up skill levels and in particular delivering higher level skills.

I am committed, through the Higher Education Strategy, to working closely with the sector to increase the number of students with higher-level skills in economically-relevant subjects. By 2015/16 I will have provided an additional 1,587 undergraduate places and 351 PhD places in STEM and economically-relevant subject areas.

Our further education colleges play an important role in increasing participation and achievement in higher education. The scale of the sector's contribution to higher education delivery is demonstrated by the fact that nearly one fifth of all higher education students in Northern Ireland are studying in one of the six further education colleges. In the last four academic years I have added an additional 377 full-time higher education places in the further education sector.

Furthermore, my Department enhances the capability of Northern Ireland to respond to the needs of potential investors by creating pools of talent with skills by up-skilling unemployed graduates through the "Academy Model". This is a short-term intervention to help companies meet specific needs. We have up-skilled unemployed graduates in software testing, cloud computing, data analytics, engineering, sales and marketing and professional software skills, and are planning an academy in visual effects/animation. The Level 5 Software Professional Course has also recently been restructured and it is hoped the programme will be delivered by all six college regions within the FE sector.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether the proposed cuts to his budget will impact on education at the Northern Regional College.

(AQO 6601/11-15)

Dr Farry: As members will know, a 2.1% in-year cut was agreed for my Department as part of the June Monitoring Round, and a further reduction of at least 2.3% is scheduled at this stage for the October Monitoring Round. At this juncture, the full extent of the budgetary reductions facing my Department in October Monitoring and moreover in 2015/16 remains unclear.

As recently discussed in the Committee, for 2014/15, as far as further education is concerned, the Department is seeking to find savings through making cuts to the central Departmental Budget, rather than to front line services. This will be much more difficult next year.

Until final decisions have been made regarding future budgetary reductions, I am unable to advise what the nature of the impact will be on the services offered at Northern Regional College. However, due to the potential scale of the proposed cuts, all services provided by my Department will be affected.

Should these budgetary cuts proceed, the further education sector, including Northern Regional College, will not be exempt. The college is currently undertaking a comprehensive exercise to review its strategy and the priority for this exercise is the efficient and effective delivery of student education.

While I can assure you that my Department will work directly with the sector to minimise the impact on delivery to students, my assessment is that front line services will be impacted.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for an update on the work of the ICT Working Group.
(AQO 6602/11-15)

Dr Farry: Mr Speaker, with your permission, I wish to group questions ten and thirteen, and would also like to request an extra minute for the answer.

I formed the ICT Working Group in January 2012, bringing together business leaders, employer representatives, government officials and representatives from local colleges and universities to consider how the current and future skills needs for the sector can be addressed.

In June 2012 we produced an action plan setting out the short, medium and long term actions to address skills shortages in the ICT Sector.

A central theme of the Action Plan is around skills provision. With software development and coding skills being identified by industry as a priority area, many of the actions focus on computer programming or software development skills.

Actions completed include developing a public/private ICT Apprenticeship scheme which has created 111 positions to date, creating Masters courses for over 100 Non-IT graduates, and funding a professional software development course for around 160 people.

Other notable achievements include the development of a Software Testers Academy which has delivered employment to 64 people, and pilot academies in the areas of data analytics and cloud computing.

My Department also funds the Bring IT On campaign which has been instrumental in raising awareness of the opportunities available in the ICT sector. This has led to an increase in applications for IT related degrees by approximately 90% at both of our local universities since the launch of the campaign.

Officials work closely with Invest NI, through its ICT Collaborative Network programme, to work on the streams of Aggregation and Fast Response, Courses and Alignment, Quality and Attract Back and ICT Careers and Incentives.

All of this is in addition to the comprehensive provision in our universities. By 2015/16 I will have provided an additional 1,587 undergraduate places and 350 PhD places in STEM and economically-relevant subject areas, including ICT.

We have also continued to deliver a rich curriculum in our further education colleges and have expanded the opportunities for progression through the piloting of a higher level apprenticeship.

In addition a new Software Systems Development A–Level is being delivered in our schools. This was designed in partnership with industry, Invest NI and the Department of Education. It is planned to extend this to GCSE level.

The Group, which is now called the ICT Sector Implementation Group, continues to interest and engage industry, and has recently been extended to include a further two employers.

This Group provides an excellent example of what can be achieved within the context of devolution, and continues to play a key role in supporting the sector to better contribute to our growing economy.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what efforts his Department is making to increase the number of people who cycle to Further Education Colleges and Higher Education Institutions.
(AQO 6603/11-15)

Dr Farry: My Department has responsibility for the provision of funding for teaching, learning and research purposes in relation to further and higher education. Each college and higher education institution is responsible for its own policies and procedures, including the promotion of cycling.

The further education colleges and higher education institutions offer a variety of schemes and incentives to encourage students and staff to cycle. These include Cycle to Work schemes, which allow staff to purchase a bicycle and equipment up to the value of £1,000, tax free. Students can also avail of discount schemes to purchase bicycles from local suppliers and are actively encouraged to participate in health and wellbeing schemes.

Campuses provide secure bicycle parking facilities for students and staff, as well as shower and changing facilities. Sustainable travel plans have also been developed by the institutions and colleges to encourage staff, students and visitors to travel by bicycle, foot or public transport.

I would also like to refer to a draft Bicycle Strategy published by the Minister for Regional Development recently for public consultation, which will run until 21st November 2014. The draft strategy outlines his vision for cycling in Northern Ireland and his aspiration that implementing an agreed strategy will result in improved access to education and training.

The Department for Regional Development has also established a Cycling Unit and a Cross-sectoral Cycling Group with the aim of encouraging key stakeholders to work together to deliver a step change in cycling provision. The Cycling Unit has a particular focus on encouraging and assisting people to cycle as a means of everyday travel, including the daily commute to work, further education and training, and school.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to outline any reduction in places at Further Education Colleges as a result of potential cuts to his departmental budget.

(AQO 6604/11-15)

Dr Farry: At this stage, the level of budget reductions facing my Department in October Monitoring and in 2015/16 is not yet clear. However, budget cuts have already been imposed in-year.

With further budget cuts impending in both October Monitoring and 2015/16, this will affect all services provided by my Department. Given the potential scale of these cuts, I can give no guarantee that the current level of student places at further education colleges will continue to be funded.

I can however give an assurance that my department will work closely with the sector to minimise the impacts on front line delivery to students as even these core services are highly likely to be affected.

Mrs Overend asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how his Department provides training in computer programming.
(AQO 6605/11-15)

Dr Farry: I formed the ICT Working Group in January 2012, bringing together business leaders, employer representatives, government officials and representatives from local colleges and universities to consider how the current and future skills needs for the sector can be addressed.

In June 2012 we produced an action plan setting out the short, medium and long term actions to address skills shortages in the ICT Sector.

Actions completed include developing a public/private ICT Apprenticeship scheme which has created 111 positions to date, creating Masters courses for over 100 Non-IT graduates, and funding a professional software development course for around 160 people.

Other notable achievements include the development of a Software Testers Academy which has delivered employment to 64 people, and pilot academies in the areas of data analytics and cloud computing.

My Department also funds the Bring IT On campaign which has been instrumental in raising awareness of the opportunities available in the ICT sector. This has led to an increase in applications for IT related degrees by approximately 90% at both of our local universities since the launch of the campaign.

Officials work closely with Invest NI, through its ICT Collaborative Network programme, to work on the streams of Aggregation and Fast Response, Courses and Alignment, Quality and Attract Back and ICT Careers and Incentives.

All of this is in addition to the comprehensive provision in our universities. By 2015/16 I will have provided an additional 1,587 undergraduate places and 350 PhD places in STEM and economically-relevant subject areas, including ICT.

We have also continued to deliver a rich curriculum in our further education colleges and have expanded the opportunities for progression through the piloting of a higher level apprenticeship.

In addition a new Software Systems Development A-Level is being delivered in our schools. This was designed in partnership with industry, Invest NI and the Department of Education. It is planned to extend this to GCSE level.

The Group, which is now called the ICT Sector Implementation Group, continues to interest and engage industry, and has recently been extended to include a further two employers.

This Group provides an excellent example of what can be achieved within the context of devolution, and continues to play a key role in supporting the sector to better contribute to our growing economy.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for an update on any recent discussions he has had in relation to the proposed expansion of the Magee Campus at the University of Ulster.

(AQO 6607/11-15)

Dr Farry: The member will be aware that I met with a delegation of representatives, including herself, on 14 August to discuss this issue. I also met earlier that day with the Vice-Chancellor and the Chief Finance and Information Officer of the University of Ulster.

Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the loans advanced by her Department through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, since 1 April 2013.

(AQW 35267/11-15)

Mrs Foster (The Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment): No loans have been advanced to date by my Department through Financial Transactions Capital Funding.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what measures a home owner can take to re-coup a loss of income following the installation of Domestic Solar Panels, should the value of Renewables Obligation Certificates reduce.
(AQW 35298/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The value of a Renewables Obligation Certificate (ROC) is not fixed as they are tradable across the UK and their value can go up as well as down. Power NI is required through its licence conditions to offer terms for the export of electricity and offers a fixed ROC price for microgenerators on an annual basis. This fixed ROC price is set in agreement with the Utility Regulator. There is no mechanism to recoup losses if the ROC value reduces.

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the proportion of electricity exported from the grid to each renewable technology source, in each of the last five years.
(AQW 35299/11-15)

Mrs Foster: I refer the member to my response of 26 June 2014 to his previous Assembly Question AQW No. 34166/11-15.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for her assessment of the number of people trained in IT skills compared with the number of newly created jobs in this field.
(AQW 35305/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Invest NI does not hold figures on the number of people trained specifically in IT skills.

During 2013/14 Invest NI promoted 738 new jobs in the Computer Software and Services Sector.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment when the completed Tourism Strategy will be published.
(AQW 35319/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Tourism has an important role to play in our economy.

Final outcomes from the independent review of the Northern Ireland Tourist Board and wider tourism structures will inform our thinking on the way ahead. The public consultation period on the review report is due to close at the end of September.

When the responses from the review have been analysed, I will take stock of the action needed on a tourism strategy.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what assessment her Department has made of the potential job losses in the (i) retail; (ii) services; and (iii) hospitality sectors should welfare cuts be introduced.
(AQW 35337/11-15)

Mrs Foster: As a result of penalties being imposed due to Sinn Fein's failure to implement Welfare Reform there is the potential of significant job losses across all sectors of the economy in Northern Ireland.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what cuts will be made to her budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.
(AQW 35350/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department is currently assessing the potential impact of the cuts which will need to be made, including reductions across its arm's length bodies. Much of my Department's budget is allocated to Invest NI to support the growth of our economy, and to promote Northern Ireland as a tourist destination. The penalties arising from the failure to implement Welfare Reform impact on the resources available for economic development and tourism promotion and have the potential therefore to damage the excellent work of recent years to attract significant levels of investment and jobs and build on Northern Ireland's reputation as a world class venue for events.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on more efficient broadband provision in rural areas of East Londonderry.
(AQW 35358/11-15)

Mrs Foster: On 4 February 2014 my Department signed a contract with BT for delivery of the c£23.5million Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement project, which aims to provide improvements in access to basic and superfast fixed-line broadband services. It is anticipated that this project will bring more choice and improved broadband speeds to over 45,000 premises across Northern Ireland by the end of 2015.

The project is being delivered in eight phases which seeks to ensure that the project delivers benefit to the maximum number of premises while maintaining best value for money.

On 23 July we published details on NI Direct of the first implementation area to be completed and further details will be published as the roll-out continues. A list of the high level postcode areas where improvements are expected to take place has also been included with proposed completion dates and this includes areas of East Londonderry. The information can be found at <http://www.nidirect.gov.uk/broadband-improvement-project.htm>.

DETI has also been indicatively allocated £7.24million by Broadband Delivery UK (BDUK) for the extension of superfast broadband and which it is seeking to match, providing a potential funding pot of £14.48million.

On 26 August my Department commenced a public consultation on the proposed intervention area for a further project, to extend superfast broadband services to at least 95% of premises across Northern Ireland by 2017. The consultation document can be found at http://www.detini.gov.uk/index/what-we-do/deti-telecoms-index/consultations_from_2014/superfast_rollout_programme_phase_2.htm. If value for money is demonstrated, a mini-competition will be taken forward, using the existing BDUK framework and it is anticipated that a contract award may take place in early 2015.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail (i) the number of staff employed in her Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010. (AQW 35389/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The number of staff, broken down by grade and the total salary for each grade is shown in the table below.

The number of staff and the salary costs are based on the position at 31 March in each of the four financial years.

Staff Employed in the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what consideration has been given to including Fermanagh as part of any future Gran Fondo stage events. (AQW 35482/11-15)

Mrs Foster: No decision has currently been taken with respect to a future Gran Fondo event however I would advise that the decision on routes would be the sole responsibility of the event organiser.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail (i) her Department's plans to improve broadband provision in rural parts of West Tyrone; and (ii) the level of her Department's investment aimed at improving rural broadband provision, particularly in West Tyrone, in the last three years.

(AQW 35571/11-15)

Mrs Foster:

- (i) On 4 February 2014 my Department signed a contract with BT for delivery of the £23.5million Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project, which aims to provide improvements in access to basic and superfast fixed-line broadband services. It is anticipated that this project will bring more choice and improved broadband speeds to over 45,000 premises across Northern Ireland by the end of 2015.

The project is being delivered in eight phases which seeks to ensure that the project delivers benefit to the maximum number of premises while maintaining best value for money.

On 23 July we published details on NI Direct of the first implementation area to be completed and further details will be published as the roll-out continues. A list of the high level postcode areas where improvements are expected to take place has also been included with proposed completion dates and this includes a number of areas across West Tyrone. The information can be found at <http://www.nidirect.gov.uk/broadband-improvement-project.htm>.

DETI has also been indicatively allocated £7.24million by Broadband Delivery UK (BDUK) for the extension of superfast broadband and, which it is seeking to match, providing a potential funding pot of £14.48million.

On 26 August my Department commenced a public consultation on the proposed intervention area for a further project, to extend superfast broadband services to at least 95% of premises across Northern Ireland by 2017. The consultation document can be found at http://www.detini.gov.uk/index/what-we-do/deti-telecoms-index/consultations_from_2014/superfast_rollout_programme_phase_2.htm. If value for money is demonstrated, a mini-competition will be taken forward, using the existing BDUK framework and it is anticipated that a contract award may take place in early 2015.

- (ii) My Department does not hold information on project investment at this level of disaggregation. However, I can advise that with the inclusion of the NI Broadband Improvement Project mentioned above, over the last six years my Department will have provided approximately £65m by the end of 2015, for the improvement of broadband infrastructure across Northern Ireland.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the extent of co-operation between her Department and mobile phone companies; and her Department's plans to ensure better mobile phone coverage in rural parts of West Tyrone.

(AQW 35574/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department maintains regular contact with the Mobile Network Operators and I am aware that they have been recently investing significantly to improve their 2G and 3G networks. For instance, to the end of 2013, 'EE' had invested some £30million in its Northern Ireland network while 'Three' had invested over £12million.

To address areas where the market is not currently investing, the Department of Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) is currently implementing the £150million Mobile Infrastructure Project (MIP), which aims to address mobile voice and basic data not-spots across the UK by March 2015. While the project is focused on 2G technology, it is understood that operators will future proof the infrastructure being deployed, in order to further support 3G, 4G and beyond, where possible.

Northern Ireland is in line for the deployment of 72 new mast sites under this project, with the first site expected to go live in the last quarter of 2014.

Throughout the implementation of this project, DETI has been in regular contact with DCMS and the Mobile Network Operators. The outcome of this initiative should help improve mobile services across Northern Ireland, including West Tyrone. Once completed, DETI will assess the need for future Government intervention.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how many new jobs have been created in East Londonderry in the last twelve months.

(AQW 35603/11-15)

Mrs Foster: There were 199 new jobs created in the last financial year (2013-14) in the East Londonderry constituency as a direct result of Invest NI support.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to outline the progress on the implementation of the Renewable Heat Incentive Programme Scheme, including a date for its launch.

(AQW 35684/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Since its introduction in November 2012 the Non-Domestic Renewable Heat Incentive (RHI) Scheme has received 264 applications of which 225 have received accreditation to date. The Renewable Heat Premium Payment (RHPP) Scheme, introduced as an interim support scheme for domestic applicants has received 2004 applications with 1409 vouchers issued so far for technology support.

Subject to final financial and legal approvals, I will announce the launch of the Domestic RHI Scheme to replace the RHPP in the next few weeks with the intention that it will be open for applications before the end of the year.

In the meantime domestic customers can continue to avail of the RHPP Scheme.

Mr McNarry asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment when the report into the NI Events Company will be published; and what was the final cost of the report.

(AQW 35712/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department appointed inspectors to the Northern Ireland Events Company Limited under Article 425(2) and Article 425(2A) of the Companies (NI) Order 1986. Under the terms of the appointment, and in line with Article 425(2A), any report made in connection with the inspection is not for publication. Accordingly, it is not the intention of my Department to publish the report of the company inspectors.

The total cost of the investigation was £1.24million.

Mr Craig asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on the roll out of high speed broadband in the Magheraconluce Road and Temple areas of Lagan Valley.

(AQO 6614/11-15)

Mrs Foster: On 4th February 2014 the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment signed a contract with BT for a twenty three point five million pounds project which will see improvements in the broadband service for more than forty five thousand premises across Northern Ireland by the end of 2015.

The project will be completed in eight phases, each of which requires an extensive survey and design process which takes account of technical feasibility, quality of existing infrastructure in the area, reasonable costs, number of anticipated customers etc and seeks to achieve the greatest value for money and the highest number of beneficiaries.

On 23rd July DETI published details of the street level postcodes that benefited from completion of the first phase of the project together with a high level roll-out plan for future phases, including indicative completion dates.

Roll-out covering the Temple area, the BT27 6 postcode district, was completed on 30 June 2014 while roll-out in the Magheraconluce Road area, BT26 6 postcode district, is not due for completion until 31 December 2015. Details of the street level postcodes where improvements have been made in this latest phase will be published as soon as possible.

Mr Maskey asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for her assessment of the recently published report by the Northern Ireland Council for Voluntary Action into the living wage.

(AQO 6608/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The DETI Minister has noted the findings of the report.

The DETI Minister is well aware of the need to raise wages in the economy. That is why the Economic Strategy clearly outlines an aim to improve the wealth and living standards of everyone through a focus on growing the private sector by investing in innovation and skills.

Invest NI's focus is on promoting jobs that pay salaries above the private sector median, which is significantly higher than the estimated Living Wage for Northern Ireland.

While the DETI Minister would support the aspiration of moving towards more firms paying the Living Wage, this must be on a voluntary basis as any mandatory approach may intensify cost pressures that local firms already have to deal with.

The report also includes a number of caveats which, if realised, will likely reduce the estimate of economic benefit included within the report. For example, it is unlikely that all firms will be able to fully absorb the additional costs associated with paying a living wage and some may shed labour as a result.

Mr Wells asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what impact the reduction in her budget, as a result of the Welfare Reform penalties, will have on the work her Department carries out.

(AQO 6615/11-15)

Mrs Foster: I believe that the financial penalties from the failure by Sinn Fein to agree to the implementation of Welfare Reform will have serious implications not just for the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment but for other Departments too. DETI is currently assessing the potential impact of the cuts which will need to be applied to it and its arm's length bodies, including Tourism Ireland and IntertradeIreland. However, much of that Department's budget is allocated to Invest NI to support the growth of our economy and to market Northern Ireland as a tourist destination. The penalties have the potential therefore to damage the excellent work of recent years to attract significant levels of investment and jobs and build on Northern Ireland's reputation as a world class venue for events.

Mr Douglas asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for her assessment of the economic and tourist impact of international events such as the Carl Frampton world title fight recently held in Titanic Quarter.

(AQO 6616/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Evaluation of a wide range of international events hosted in Northern Ireland has demonstrated that international sporting events, in particular, have the ability to greatly increase visitor numbers and revenue and generate a positive return on investment.

The associated media coverage from international events provides opportunities to showcase Northern Ireland on a worldwide platform. Live events also generate significant non-monetary benefits such as increasing Northern Ireland's reputation as a destination for holidays and major events and increased civic pride.

Mr McMullan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on her Department's efforts to improve broadband provision in rural areas.

(AQO 6617/11-15)

Mrs Foster: On 4 February 2014 the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment signed a contract with BT for delivery of the twenty three point five million pounds, including five million pounds from DARD, Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement project, which aims to provide improvements in access to basic and superfast fixed-line broadband services. It is anticipated that this project will bring more choice and improved broadband speeds to over forty five thousand premises across Northern Ireland by the end of 2015 and, particularly, in rural areas.

The project is being delivered in eight phases, each of which requires an extensive survey and design process which takes account of technical feasibility, quality of existing infrastructure in the area, reasonable costs, number of anticipated customers etc and seeks to achieve the greatest value for money and the highest number of beneficiaries.

On 23 July 2014 DETI published details on NI Direct of the street level postcodes where improvements had been delivered under the first implementation phase together with a high level roll-out plan for future phases, including indicative completion dates. The intention is to update this information as each phase completes and services come online.

DETI has also been indicatively allocated seven point two four million pounds by Broadband Delivery UK, BDUK, for the extension of superfast broadband and is seeking to match this to provide a potential funding pot of fourteen point four eight million pounds.

On 26 August 2014 my Department commenced a public consultation on the proposed intervention area for a further project that will utilise this funding support and aimed at extending superfast broadband services to at least ninety five percent of premises across Northern Ireland by 2017. The consultation closes on 26 September 2014.

If value for money is demonstrated, a mini-competition will be taken forward, using an existing framework to find a suitable supplier and it is anticipated that a contract award may take place in early 2015.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to outline her proposals to enhance the accuracy and timeliness of the core economic data used to benchmark and evaluate economic growth.

(AQO 6618/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The responsibility for the production of economic and labour market statistics transferred out of the Department to the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency in April 2011.

As part of the ongoing development of statistics, officials from the Department of Enterprise Trade and Investment regularly attend expert user group meetings with the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency statisticians to feedback any issues and identify potential areas of improvement.

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to outline her plans to improve mobile phone and mobile internet coverage in rural areas.

(AQO 6619/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The telecommunications market is fully privatised and independently regulated. Operators make network investments on the basis of commercial return.

Ofcom has indicated that between June 2012 and June 2013 Northern Ireland has seen the biggest improvement in reducing 3G not-spots of any UK nation

Moreover, it recorded that at a premises level, outdoor 2G and 3G coverage in Northern Ireland now stands at 98.9% and 99% respectively and is on a par with other parts of the UK with outdoor 4G coverage currently standing at 79.2%, the highest level of any UK nation.

The UK's four main mobile network operators have invested significantly to improve their 2G and 3G networks. For instance, to the end of 2013, EE had invested some £30million in its Northern Ireland network while Three had invested over £12million.

For those areas that are not currently being addressed by market forces the Department of Culture, Media and Sport is implementing the £150million Mobile Infrastructure project which aims to address mobile voice and basic data not-spots across the UK by March 2015. While the project is focused on 2G technology, it is understood that operators will future proof the infrastructure being deployed in order to further support 3G, 4G and beyond where possible. Northern Ireland is in line for the deployment of 72 new mast sites under this project with the first site expected to go live in the last quarter of 2014.

DETI is maintaining a watching brief on these ongoing initiatives and will assess the need for further government intervention once they have completed.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what discussions she has had with the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to make Northern Ireland a centre of excellence for cancer research and development.

(AQO 6620/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Minister for Enterprise, Trade and Investment attended Bio 2014 in San Diego in June 2014, along with four members of the ETI Committee, including yourself, during which the Minister met with representatives from Almac Sciences and three oncology FDI companies. Currently, four major oncology projects are in progress which will significantly increase the scope of oncology research in Northern Ireland.

The Minister's Department is currently working with DHSSPS, other Government departments and Industry to develop a strategy for Health & Life Sciences, which will include cancer research.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on the proposal to extend the natural gas network to Whitehead, County Antrim.

(AQO 6621/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Utility Regulator and the natural gas industry have considered the possibility of bringing gas to Whitehead, and are continuing discussions with the aim of finding an economic option.

The DETI Minister continues to support the development of the gas industry in Northern Ireland.

Mr Humphrey asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on the development of the Forthriver Innovation Park on the InvestNI site at Springfield Road.

(AQO 6622/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Belfast City Council have applied to Invest NI to access European Regional Development Funds to develop an Innovation Centre on the Invest NI owned site at Forthriver.

An independent appraisal has concluded and the project is progressing through the approvals process.

Council are working in parallel to the approval process and are well advanced in the procurement and planning stages.

Department of the Environment

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the number of derelict buildings.

(AQW 35221/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): My Department does not hold information on the number of derelict buildings in Northern Ireland as a whole.

I am aware that Belfast City Council carried out a survey which identified approximately 1,600 dilapidated buildings in its district.

I can also confirm that the Department of Social Development and Land and Property Services, Department of Finance and Personnel do not hold the information you have requested.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment to outline the powers that councils have in relation to derelict buildings.

(AQW 35222/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Pollution Control and Local Government (Northern Ireland) Order 1978 (Articles 65 and 66 refer) is the main piece of legislation used by Councils to address ruinous and dilapidated buildings and defective premises. The legislation contains a number of provisions including a power whereby the council may by notice require the owner to execute such works of repair or restoration as may be necessary in the interests of amenity.

There is also a range of legislation dating back as far as 1847 which provides certain powers to Councils, in some cases only Belfast and Derry City Council, to deal with ruinous and/or dangerous buildings/structures. The legislation is as follows:-

- The Town Improvement Clauses Act 1847
- The Town Improvement (Ireland) Act 1854
- The Belfast Improvement Act 1878
- Public Health Acts Amendment Act 1907
- The Belfast Corporation Act 1911
- The Londonderry Corporation Act 1918.

Problems with dilapidated buildings have become more prevalent in Northern Ireland in recent years. The negative impact on the amenity of local neighbourhoods can be serious and my Department is working to ensure that the most effective legislative framework is available to councils to take action to reduce the negative impact. My Department is reviewing all of the above legislation with a view to publishing a formal public consultation on policy proposals by 31 March 2015. I am fully committed to delivering a robust and effective legislative regime to allow councils to deal more effectively with the issues of dilapidated buildings.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment what are the anticipated savings that will result from the merger of North Down and Ards Borough Councils.

(AQW 35225/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The savings associated with the merger of councils, including those of North Down and Ards Borough Councils, will be assessed through a reform benefits analysis exercise, which I have asked each council to consider as soon as possible. The actual savings achieved will depend on key decisions that each of the new councils will need to make relating to future cost structures and service delivery models.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment whether he will order the video evidence specifically taken by Driver and Vehicle Agency enforcement staff in relation to taxi operator regulations enforcement at Ravenhill Rugby Ground on 23 August 2013, to be shown to the Committee for the Environment.

(AQW 35226/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The investigation into the provision of taxi services at Ravenhill Rugby Ground on 23 August 2013 was authorised under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA). The video footage captured by enforcement officers was used to confirm their first hand observations regarding the manner in which taxi services were being provided at that time.

I am of the view that placing information gathered in this manner into the public domain would damage the investigatory process and inhibit my Department's statutory powers to pursue prosecutable offences. Therefore, it would not be appropriate for the video footage to be shown to the Committee for the Environment.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the daily staffing costs of the Coastal Zone Centre in Portrush from 22 August 2014 to 26 August 2014.

(AQW 35233/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The exact calculation of daily staffing costs will only be available when each staff member submits an overtime claim form, and they are processed for payment. The table below is therefore an estimate based on the maximum hourly rate for each grade and overtime premiums.

Dates	Estimated Staffing Costs £
Fri 22 Aug	Total £255.89 (including Agency Staff)
Sat 23 Aug	Total £203.80
Sun 24 Aug	Total £450.60
Mon 25 Aug	Total £184.47
Tues 26 Aug	Total £240.90

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of the Environment what cuts will be made to his budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.

(AQW 35244/11-15)

Mr Durkan: As part of October Monitoring the Executive will consider the potential budget implications for all departments associated with Welfare Reform.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 26630/11-15, for an update on the adoption of the Belfast Metropolitan Area Plan.

(AQW 35279/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Belfast Metropolitan Area Plan was adopted on 3 September 2014 and became operative on 9 September 2014.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment what legal and financial responsibilities do local councils have for waste collected by the council but disposed of illegally by a contracted third party.

(AQW 35280/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The producer and/or holder of waste (for the purpose of this question councils and their contracted parties) have legal duties under "Duty of Care" legislation. This stems from requirements of Article 5 of the Waste and Contaminated Land (Northern Ireland) Order 1997 which means that a local council is required to keep certain records and ensure that waste collected by or for them is being managed legally and in a way that does not pose any threat to the environment or human health.

If councils enter into a contract with a third party for the treatment or disposal of the waste in line with the requirements of the Waste Framework Directive they continue to have responsibility for the waste through the various steps in the chain until the final treatment or disposal. Responsibility for the waste does not automatically end when it is handed over to a contractor. The council will need to be able to produce evidence that they have taken all reasonable steps to comply with Duty of Care. Failure to comply with any of the requirements of Duty of Care is a criminal offence. Further information can be found at: http://www.doeni.gov.uk/waste_management_duty_of_care_code_of_practice_for_ni.pdf

In the event of Council waste found to have been illegally dumped, it will be a matter for the courts to determine who is responsible and the magnitude of any financial sanction or obligation.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister of the Environment what steps he has taken to ensure that recyclable material from councils is not being landfilled.

(AQW 35282/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Under the Waste Management Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2011, councils have a duty to apply the waste hierarchy to the waste under their control in accordance with Article 4 of the Waste Framework Directive. From 1 January 2015, councils will have a duty to separately collect the recyclable materials – paper, metal, plastic and glass. The Northern Ireland Environment Agency will check compliance with this requirement as part of its normal compliance monitoring of waste facilities and waste duty of care.

In October 2013 the Department published a revised Waste Management Strategy. The Strategy contains 47 actions and targets designed to deliver resource efficient and move waste up the waste hierarchy i.e. supporting waste prevention, re-use and recycling and seeking to minimise disposal to landfill.

The three Waste Management Groups have, on behalf of their constituent Councils, set out in revised Waste Management Plans how they will fulfil these duties in line with the objectives of the Northern Ireland Waste Management Strategy.

Landfill tax was introduced in 1996 to encourage the diversion of waste materials from landfill disposal to recovery. The current rate of landfill tax is £80 per tonne. Most recyclable materials have a positive economic value. Therefore there is a strong economic driver to divert recyclable materials from landfill disposal to recycling or recovery. Additionally, the Department introduced, in 2005, the Northern Ireland Landfill Allowance Scheme which set challenging targets for landfill diversion for all Councils. Councils which fail to meet these targets face the prospect of fines.

Under the Transfrontier Shipment of Waste Regulations 2007, waste materials can only be exported for recovery. It is not permitted to export waste for landfill disposal.

Mrs Overend asked the Minister of the Environment to detail (i) how long each of the agency workers in the Northern Ireland Environment Agency, who had their employment terminated prematurely, had remaining on their contracts; (ii) the site that each agency worker was located; and (iii) the role each agency worker carried out.

(AQW 35283/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Of the temporary agency workers who were released from their contracts earlier than originally planned:

- five would have had their contracts ended by 31 August, 24 by 15 September, and 22 by 30 September; and
- the remaining recruitment agency workers were covering longer term needs and their contracts would have ended for example when a vacancy was filled or an individual returned from sickness absence. Therefore, there was no fixed contract end date and it is not possible to state how long each individual had left.

(ii) & (iii). The sites where the temporary agency workers operated are shown in the table below which also indicates their roles by grade or title.

Mrs Overend asked the Minister of the Environment to detail (i) the number; (ii) breed; and (iii) location of animals currently owned by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency; and (a) each of the animals sold over each of the last 6 months; (b) the reason for the sale of each; and (c) the intention of the purchasers for each.

(AQW 35285/11-15)

Mr Durkan: NIEA livestock animals as of 8 September 2014.

(i) Existing Number	(ii) BREED	(iii) Location
5	Shetland cattle (steers)	An Carn, Maghera.
1	Shetland cattle (cow)	Shetland Isles, Scotland
1	Shetland cattle (bull)	Downpatrick

2	Red Deer	Castle Archdale Country Park
8	Konik ponies	Rossinan, Fermanagh
11	Konik ponies	Quoile Pondage , Downpatrick

(i) Existing Number	(ii) BREED	(iii) Location
2	Konik ponies	Downpatrick
1 Bull, 31 Cows with 16 calves (still calving)	Dexter Cattle	Northern Nature Reserves (Binevenagh and Ballymaclary)
8	Wiltshire Horn Sheep	Northern Nature Reserves
10	Exmoor Ponies	Northern Nature Reserves
(a) Numbers of ANIMALS SOLD	(b) REASON for sale	(c) Purchaser intention
43 Shetland Cattle	Herd dispersal sale	41 – breed perpetuation 2 – meat trade
143 Non-pedigree sheep (Shetland/Hebridean/Bretagne)	Flock dispersal sale	Commercial farming/ open farms
14 Wiltshire Horn Sheep	Flock dispersal sale	Commercial farming

In response to the increasing costs of managing its own livestock and the Agency's experience in drawing up accurate grazing prescriptions it was considered that grassland conservation and better value for public money could be achieved by licensed grazing.

The sale provided the best opportunity for these animals to contribute to the conservation of their respective rare breed and the auctioneer holds all the detail of the buyers.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of the Environment which measures are being taken to improve the Northern Ireland marine network of Special Protection Areas.

(AQW 35302/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Measures are being taken which improve Northern Ireland's marine network of Special Protection Areas both quantitatively and qualitatively.

The number and extent of marine Special Protection Areas in Northern Ireland is being considered as part of the UK SPA Marine Review. Recommendations have been made with regard to the extent of existing marine Special Protection Areas. In addition potential new sites have been identified covering inshore marine areas of importance for waterbird/seabird populations.

The planned outcome for Northern Ireland by 2016 will be an increase in the number of marine Special Protection Areas and an increase in the total designated marine area.

The condition of existing marine Special Protection Areas, together with all marine areas of ornithological significance, is also of importance to ensure that no adverse impacts affect these sites and the bird populations using them.

These populations are monitored regularly as part of Northern Ireland's site condition assessment of designated sites. This, together with wider monitoring activities elsewhere inform the Department of site changes, placing these in a wider context.

Evidence of change is typically further investigated to determine the cause and informing any necessary management interventions.

At national and European scales, management of the marine environment is addressed through the Marine Strategy Framework Directive which includes a range of targets specific to marine areas used by birds as well as the bird populations themselves.

Targets address issues including maintaining seabird populations, distributions, and breeding productivity as well as wider marine targets which would benefit seabirds such as sustainable management of selected fish populations.

Finally, engagement with marine stakeholders and developers ensures that site targets, identified through the Special Protection Area Conservation Objectives, are addressed.

Ms Lo asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the timescales over which the review of current marine Special Protection Areas will be achieved.

(AQW 35303/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The existing network of Special Protection Areas in Northern Ireland already includes a number of sites selected specifically for their marine importance including a number of coastal and estuarine sites.

Additional Special Protection Areas have also been designated for their important breeding seabird colonies, some of which include adjoining marine areas.

Work is currently underway at a United Kingdom level to identify additional marine areas which will be considered for designation as additional Special Protection Areas or as extensions to existing sites.

This UK SPA Marine Review has been addressing a wide range of species and the areas they use. A comprehensive picture of additional important marine areas in Northern Ireland will not be available until all of the relevant work is completed. My Department will receive the last report on this by the end of 2014.

It is intended that consultation with stakeholders will be progressed through 2014 and 2015 on the recommendations for Northern Ireland of the UK SPA Marine Review.

The UK Government and Devolved Administrations have an agreed objective to substantially complete a well-managed network of Marine Protected Areas, including Special Protection Areas, by 2016.

My Department is currently working to ensure that this target is achieved for Northern Ireland.

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister of the Environment whether an individual can apply for funding from the recently launched £240,000 Rethink Waste Capital Fund.

(AQW 35341/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Only Third Sector organisations are eligible to apply for the Rethink Waste Third Sector Capital Fund which I launched on 22 August 2014. However, collaborative partnership arrangements are welcome, for example with the private and/or public sector. In this situation the Third Sector organisation must be the lead partner and contractual entity with the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), which administers the scheme. The Third Sector organisation is also responsible for ensuring compliance with the European Commission state aid de minimis rules. If an applicant is proposing a collaborative approach, they should attach letters of intent, as a minimum, from the other parties as appendices to the application form.

Additional conditions of the funding are:

- the project needs to be located in Northern Ireland;
- the organisation will need to be a registered legal entity and an existing established Third Sector business; and
- the project must source the majority of its inputs from waste streams in Northern Ireland.

The Third Sector has been historically successful in promoting and developing waste prevention and recycling projects. This capital funding has been identified as a result of stakeholder engagement to reinforce success in this area in order to develop geographical and capacity expansion of the sector. In addition to the obvious environmental benefits, Third Sector projects provide broader social benefits such as jobs and training opportunities.

Earlier in 2014 the Department provided revenue funding for resource efficiency projects relating to landfill diversion. This funding was open to applications from the Third Sector, private sector, councils and waste management groups - individually or in partnership. Funding of £227K has been allocated to nine projects in 2014-15.

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister of the Environment whether he has had any discussions with the Secretary of State for Transport to remove tax discs from cars in Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35343/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Vehicle Licensing is an excepted matter, which is the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Transport.

Any decision to abolish tax discs is a matter for the Department for Transport. In the Autumn Statement, the Chancellor announced that vehicle excise tax discs would cease to be issued from October 2014. This change will apply across the UK.

Mr Rogers asked the Minister of the Environment how many enforcement notices have been issued in respect of monuments erected without planning permission, in the last ten years.

(AQW 35362/11-15)

Mr Durkan: According to the Department's records, no enforcement notices have been issued in respect of monuments erected without planning permission in the last ten years.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of the Environment to outline the current legislation in relation to Japanese Knotweed.

(AQO 6531/11-15)

Mr Durkan: It is an offence to cause to 'grow in the wild' any plant listed in Schedule 9 PART II of the Wildlife (Northern Ireland) Order 1985. Japanese Knotweed is included on this list. My Department upholds this part of the legislation in conjunction with the P.S.N.I.

There is no legal requirement for a landowner to control or remove existing established areas of Japanese Knotweed from their own land.

However should a land owner wish to excavate or remove Japanese Knotweed then the removal and disposal of this 'controlled non-hazardous waste' is regulated under the Waste and Contaminated Land (NI) Order 1997 articles 4 (1a) and 4 (1b) and by the Waste Management Licensing (NI) Regulations 2003 schedule 2.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of the Environment to detail (i) the number of staff employed in his Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35390/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The number of staff employed by the Department of the Environment for each financial year since April 2010 is detailed in the Table 1 below.

The total salary for each grade in each of the financial years from 1 April 2010 to 31 March 2014 is detailed in the Table 2 below.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of the Environment how her Department has sought to better manage local heritage sites in the Coleraine area, and explore the potential value of such sites for local business.

(AQW 35417/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department directly manages ten historic monuments in the Coleraine District Council Area, as State Care Monuments, including Dunluce Castle.

To conserve and promote local heritage sites, my Department continues to work closely with industry and owners, and to invest in these unique assets to ensure their protection and to realise their full potential value for local businesses.

For example, Mountsandel Fort suffered from a substantial landslide last December and DOE subsequently funded repair works to the value of over £28,000 to consolidate the impacted area of the mound and make it safe once again for visitors.

At Dunluce Castle, my Department is currently working with the NITB, Heritage Lottery Fund and local stakeholders to provide a unique heritage destination that complements other major tourist attractions on the north coast, by revealing the lost town of Dunluce and providing a world class visitor centre experience.

This project offers fantastic opportunities for partnership, not only with bodies such as NITB, the National Trust and the Causeway Coast and Glens Council, but also with the surrounding community.

In addition to Dunluce and Mountsandel, there are a number of other local heritage sites: namely

State Care Monuments:

Ballintemple Bullaun
Dunalis Souterrain
Gortycaven Mound
Lissanduff Earthworks
Mill Loughan Motte
Tamnyrankin Court Tomb

Nature Reserves:

Altikeeragh
Portrush

I will continue to both preserve their condition and explore their potential value to the local economy.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of the Environment for his assessment of the impact on fuel poverty in rural areas from the introduction of any legislation on the use of smoky fuels.

(AQW 35434/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department is currently engaged through the North South Ministerial Council (NSMC), with the Department of Environment, Community and Local Government in Dublin, in a study to examine the issue of air pollution from residential combustion of solid fuels and 'smoky' coal.

The Terms of Reference for this study include an examination of fuel poverty in both jurisdictions. Any policy options which are put forward for consideration will also include an examination of their effects on issues such as fuel poverty.

The findings of the report will be presented to the Assembly after the completed report has been presented to the NSMC.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of the Environment how many households currently use smoky fuel.

(AQW 35435/11-15)

Mr Durkan: A research report was commissioned by my Department in 2011 (published in early 2012) to look at levels of polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs) – pollutants which are produced from solid fuel burning – in Northern Ireland. The report states that 5,356 Northern Ireland Housing Executive (NIHE) properties were still using solid fuel as a primary fuel, and estimated that this number represented approximately 10 per cent of the total number of homes in Northern Ireland using solid fuel for primary heating. This would give an estimate of 50,000-55,000 homes in Northern Ireland which use solid fuel for primary heating.

The report can be viewed at: http://www.doeni.gov.uk/pah_in_ni_report_final_published_version_v2.pdf

Figures compiled by NISRA (census 2011) show that 18,120 households (2.6% per cent of all households) used solid fuel (wood and coal). Census figures showed that a further 94,440 households (13.4 per cent) used two or more types of fuel for central heating, one of which may include solid fuel. These figures show that oil-fired central heating accounts for heating in the majority of households in Northern Ireland (62.2 per cent), followed by gas central heating (17.2 per cent).

These NISRA figures relating to central heating can be accessed under the search term 'ks404ni' on the NISRA Northern Ireland Neighbourhood Information Service website: <http://www.ninis2.nisra.gov.uk/>

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the areas where smoky fuel is most frequently used.
(AQW 35436/11-15)

Mr Durkan: 'Smoky fuel', which comprises solid fuels such as wood and bituminous coal, tends to be most frequently used in smaller towns and rural areas in Northern Ireland, for a number of reasons.

Firstly, larger urban areas (for example, Greater Belfast) frequently have Smoke Control Areas, in which the burning of unauthorised fuels (such as 'smoky' fuels) is prohibited.

Secondly, solid fuel use is more prevalent in rural areas where there is no connection to the natural gas network, and where the choice of fuels for domestic home heating is therefore more limited.

According to data published by NISRA (census 2011), the prevalence of solid fuel use by households in current local government divisions varies from less than two per cent in parts of the Greater Belfast area (Belfast, Carrickfergus, Castlereagh, North Down, Newtownabbey) to more rural districts in which the percentage of households burning solid fuel exceeds four per cent (for example, Omagh, Moyle, Limavady). Overall, the proportion of Northern Ireland households (total 703275) using solid fuel (wood and coal) is 2.58 per cent (18120).

These census figures relating to central heating can be accessed under the search term 'ks404ni' on the NISRA Northern Ireland Neighbourhood Information Service website: <http://www.ninis2.nisra.gov.uk/>

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of the Environment whether the consumption of smoky fuels is higher in rural areas than in urban areas.

(AQW 35437/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The consumption of smoky fuel, which comprises solid fuels such as bituminous coal and wood, tends to be more prevalent in rural areas compared to urban areas in Northern Ireland, for a number of reasons.

Firstly, urban areas frequently have Smoke Control Areas, in which the burning of unauthorised fuels (such as 'smoky' fuels) is prohibited. Currently, 16 councils have declared a total of 126 smoke control areas.

Secondly, solid fuel use is more prevalent in rural areas where there is no connection to the natural gas network, and where the choice of fuels for domestic home heating is therefore more limited.

NISRA (census 2011) statistics show that the proportion of households using solid fuel is at its lowest in parts of the Greater Belfast area (less than two per cent of households) to more rural areas in which it exceeds four per cent (Omagh, Moyle, Limavady). Overall, the proportion of Northern Ireland households (total 703275) using solid fuel (wood and coal) is 2.58 per cent (18120).

These NISRA figures relating to central heating can be accessed under the search term 'ks404ni' on the NISRA Northern Ireland Neighbourhood Information Service website: <http://www.ninis2.nisra.gov.uk/>

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment to outline the discussions, including the date they were held, that he or departmental officials had with the Federation of Small Businesses in relation to the impact the proposed new taxi regulations will have on smaller operators.

(AQW 35442/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Federation of Small Business has been issued with copies of all of the consultation documents that the Department has issued on taxi reform. The Department does not have a record of having received a response from the Federation to any of the consultations.

I am not aware of any meetings having been held between the Federation and my officials on taxi reform.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment whether he has viewed the video evidence gathered by departmental staff at Ravenhill Stadium on 23 August 2013; and if so, for his assessment of the content; and if not, the reasons for this and when he intends to view the evidence.

(AQW 35459/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I have not viewed the video footage recorded at Ravenhill rugby ground on 23 August 2013. The footage was viewed by the relevant Driver & Vehicle Agency (DVA) enforcement officers to confirm their first hand observations at that time.

My Department has since determined that the provision of taxi services at Ravenhill rugby ground is compliant with the requirements of the Taxi Act (NI) 2008 and other related legislation and published its interpretation of the legal position in this regard on 18 October 2013. I therefore do not intend to revisit this matter or view evidence collected by DVA enforcement officers during the course of their investigations.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the proposals for the operations of Grey Point Fort in Helen's Bay, Co. Down, including staff and opening hours.

(AQW 35461/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Grey Point Fort opens daily between 10:00am – 5:00pm to 15 September 2014 at which stage it moves to weekend only opening on Saturdays and Sundays between 12 noon – 4:00pm, as is normal practice each year, through to 31 March 2015. The Fort will also open daily from 10:00am – 5:00pm from Monday 10th November 2014 to Friday 14th November 2014 for the special World War One opening week as planned.

For the remainder of this financial year the site will be opened by permanent NIEA staff with assistance from local volunteers.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the number of visitors to Grey Point Fort in Helen's Bay, Co. Down, in the last three years.

(AQW 35462/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Visitor numbers to Grey Point Fort prior to 2013 were not recorded. Recording commenced in 2013. Details of visitor numbers to the site in 2013 and 2014 (up to 1/9/14) are as follows:

Year	Visitor numbers
2013	14,376
2014	10,587 (to 1/9/14)

Mr Easton asked the Minister of the Environment how much it costs to maintain Grey Point Fort in Helen's Bay, Co. Down.

(AQW 35463/11-15)

Mr Durkan: In the most recently completed 2013/14 financial year it is estimated that £46,675.50 was spent maintaining the Grey Point Fort site.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment (i) to detail the minimum length of time Planning Service take at a local level to initiate prosecution proceedings against a person for unauthorised activity; and (ii) for his assessment of the length of time required and whether it appropriate, effective and efficient.

(AQW 35495/11-15)

Mr Durkan: There is no specified minimum length of time for DOE Planning to initiate prosecution proceedings against a person for alleged unauthorised activity. Enforcement can be a lengthy, protracted and complex process and if a person decides to submit a planning application or appeal an enforcement notice, action may be held in abeyance; which is likely to add to the time taken to resolve a case. Priority is given to those breaches where it is determined that the greatest harm is being caused or likely to be caused to the environment.

I am satisfied that the process involved in seeking to remedy potential breaches in planning control is appropriate, given the complexity of this area of work.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of the Environment for an update on the number of jobs that the new Seamus Heaney Interpretive Centre in Bellaghy, Londonderry, will create.

(AQW 35497/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The applicant, Magherafelt District Council, has advised that a minimum of five jobs will be created.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment how many times since May 2011 have requests from MLAs for meetings on a specific issue for discussion with officials in departmental agencies been transferred to a Freedom of Information request; and of these, to detail whether the relevant Member was advised of this procedure in advance of the transfer, broken down by year and relevant agency.

(AQW 35523/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Where any person requests either to view information held by the Department or to be provided with copies of any such information, the request falls to be considered within the terms of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, the Environmental Information Regulations 2004 or the Data Protection Act 1998, or any combination thereof.

When a request is received, an acknowledgment letter is issued advising the applicant, including MLAs, that the request is being dealt with under the relevant legislation and a copy of the Department's leaflet explaining its procedures is also provided.

Since May 2011, the Department has responded to 28 requests from MLAs under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 or Environmental Information Regulations as appropriate.

YEAR	Northern Ireland Environment Agency	Planning Service/Core Department	Driver and Vehicle Agency
2011 (from May)	2	4	1
2012	0	5	0
2013	3	6	1
2014	1	4	1

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment whether any agreements were signed, or committed to, by recipients of certificates of aggregates credit levies that obliged them to make significant environmental improvements to their operations; and if so, to detail the required improvements.

(AQW 35565/11-15)

Mr Durkan: All operators who became members of the scheme signed a legal agreement to abide with the conditions of the scheme. A requirement of the conditions was to carry out independent environmental audits of the site and, where necessary, comply with resultant improvement notices issued by my Department. The key areas, under which sites were assessed, are detailed in the Code of Practice document, a copy of which, I have placed in the Assembly library.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment whether cement kilns are permitted to reuse derived fuel taken from municipal waste.

(AQW 35566/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Cement kilns are permitted to use refuse derived fuel from municipal waste as a fuel source. There are a number of examples elsewhere in the UK.

In Northern Ireland, cement kilns require a permit variation if operators wish to use refuse derived fuel. There are currently no cement kilns in Northern Ireland authorised to use such fuel although one application is currently under consideration.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment how cemeteries are regulated to prevent water contamination.

(AQW 35568/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Cemeteries are generally not regulated under the Water (Northern Ireland) Order 1992 or the Groundwater Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2009.

However, the Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA) is a consultee to DoE Planning for new cemetery developments and extensions to existing developments. As part of the planning consultation process, NIEA will assess the supporting information regarding potential impacts on groundwater (quality and resource) and proposed mitigation measures to ensure that no unacceptable risks to groundwater result from the proposed development.

Ms McGahan asked the Minister of the Environment why his Department is delaying the approval of a request from Dungannon and South Tyrone Borough Council to release Dungannon Enterprise Centre from the charge on their land located at 2 Coalisland Road, Dungannon.

(AQW 35714/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I can assure the Member that my Department is not delaying this matter.

There are legal issues attaching to the case, and my officials are awaiting clarification and comment from the Council on these. On receipt of that response, the Council's request will be determined as quickly as possible.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment when his Department completed an Environmental Impact Assessment screening process on the proposal by InfraStrata to drill at Woodburn Forest.

(AQW 35783/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department carried out an Environmental Impact Assessment Determination on the 19 December 2013.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 35491/11-15, to detail the legal basis upon which his Department is permitted to withhold the names of organisations that made unsuccessful bids.

(AQW 35849/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The procurement of this contract was conducted by the Irish Environmental Protection Agency, on behalf of the Programme Steering Committee, under the auspices of the Republic of Ireland's public procurement Regulations.

I am advised that due to data protection considerations the names of unsuccessful tenders cannot be released.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of the Environment when his Department communicated the decision of the Lamont case, No. [2014] NIQB 3, to Divisional Planning Officers.

(AQW 35869/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Mr Justice Treacy, on 15 January 2014 in the High Court in Belfast, quashed a decision by the Planning Service to grant planning permission for the building of an additional dwelling on a farm at Ballyclough Road, Lisburn.

The findings were presented to senior managers in the Planning Service at the Local Planning Management Group (LPMG) on 7 February 2014.

Mr McKay asked the Minister of the Environment whether his Department communicated the impending Lamont case, regarding the challenge to CTY10, to the Divisional Planning offices; and if so, to detail the instruction provided.

(AQW 35889/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Following the judgment of the judicial review to which you refer, the findings were presented to senior management at the Local Planning Management Group (LPMG) meeting on 7 February 2014.

On 4 April 2014, officials withdrew internal guidance which had previously issued on CTY 10 regarding applications where there were no buildings on a farm.

In order to allow consideration of the issues raised, I asked for applications relating to CTY10 to be held temporarily. On 4 June, I further advised officials that applications being held could proceed to decision.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of the Environment what steps his Department is taking to address the recent back-log of clients taking the off-road and on-road motorcycle test in Ballymena; and whether his Department intends to increase efficiency by appointing an additional examiner.

(AQW 35916/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Arrangements are currently underway to train four members of staff to conduct off-road and on-road motorcycle tests. Subject to successful completion of training, it is anticipated that one of those staff will be placed in Ballymena Test Centre to be operational by week commencing 29 September. This will address the immediate issue of availability of motorcycle testing services in the area.

Department of Finance and Personnel

Mr Ross asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether Land and Property Services has considered implementing a direct line of contact for MLAs and support staff in order to access ownership details of a property or piece of land in their constituencies.

(AQW 25671/11-15)

Mr Hamilton (The Minister of Finance and Personnel): My officials in Land & Property Services (LPS) Registration have advised me that business users may access the Landweb Direct Service from their own premises once they have become registered users. Any MLA can make an application to LPS Registration Directorate to become a registered user of Landweb Direct. The registration process to avail of the service is straightforward and is free of charge.

When registration is complete, access is given to Landweb Direct, which is available 24/7 and searches can be made on-line on payment of the appropriate fees. Should any MLA wish to register as a user, they should contact Ashlin Sharvin at ashlin.sharvin@dfpni.gov.uk or telephone 02890 251760.

To assist newly registered users, initial training on how to carry out searches can be provided by LPS staff and a helpdesk is available should any difficulties arise.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to list the number of occasions, including dates, his Department has liaised with the Department of Education on the incorporation of Organ Donation and Transplantation into schools criteria as recommended in the Taking Organ Transplantation to 2020 report.

(AQW 35252/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): Taking Organ Transplantation to 2020 recommends that the UK Health Departments should "explore with Education Departments the possibility of incorporating donation and transplantation into schools curricula". My officials have met with officials from the Department of Education and other stakeholders on 15 April 2013, 24 July 2013, 18 November 2013 and 18 August 2014.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the loans advanced by her Department through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, since 1 April 2013.
(AQW 35269/11-15)

Mr Poots: As part of the 2014/15 Capital Budget exercise, my Department successfully bid for £5m under Financial Transactions Capital, split equally between a scheme for Dentists and GPs, with a view to utilising this funding to support investment in premises and equipment across GP and Dental Practices.

While development of the process for implementation of the loan scheme is progressing well, this work has not, as yet, advanced to the point when loans can actually be made.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust has spent on legal fees in each of the last three years.
(AQW 35273/11-15)

Mr Poots: Expenditure by the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust on legal fees in each of the last three years is set out in the table below:

2013/14 £	2012/13 £	2011/12 £
3,723,000	2,613,289	2,120,041

Mr Spratt asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what discussions have taken place to initiate an equivalent of the NHS Redress Bill in England to reduce the number of compensation claims.
(AQW 35274/11-15)

Mr Poots: The NHS Redress Act 2006 allows for the establishment of a Redress Scheme to deal with lower value medical negligence claims. Although the Act is in place, the scheme has never been finalised as the sub-ordinate legislation required has not been introduced. The scheme is therefore not in operation.

My officials will continue to keep the policy under review and consider developments as they arise.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety when domestic and catering assistants in Antrim Hospital will receive five years back pay.
(AQW 35292/11-15)

Mr Poots: I am advised by management at the Trust that as of 8 September 2014, 63 Catering Assistants in Antrim Hospital have applied for re-banding. All calculations for Catering Assistants have been completed and processed to payroll for payment. 163 Domestic Assistants in Antrim Hospital have applied for re-banding. 63 out of 163 have been processed and sent to payroll for payment. The 100 outstanding are currently being processed.

It is anticipated that re-banding arrears for all Domestic Assistants and Catering Assistants working in Antrim Hospital will be calculated and completed and processed by payroll by March 2015.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what work has been done to ensure that the relevant recommendations from the Bamford Review of Mental Health and Learning Disability are reflected in the Mental Capacity Bill.
(AQW 35325/11-15)

Mr Poots: Following the decision taken in 2009 to develop the comprehensive legislative framework recommended by the Bamford Review, the Department put in place an inclusive project management structure, involving many of the stakeholders previously involved in the Bamford Review, including the Chair of that Review.

Detailed policy papers were presented, revised and agreed within that structure over a number of years and it is this inclusive approach which has informed the content of the draft Mental Capacity Bill, recently the subject of a full public consultation which ended on 2 September. My officials are currently analysing the responses to that consultation and an outcomes report will be published later this year.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the collaboration between his Department and the Department of Education in preparing the Mental Capacity Bill.
(AQW 35326/11-15)

Mr Poots: Comments have been sought from all Departments, including the Department of Education, at key stages of the development of the draft Mental Capacity Bill. Most recently, the draft Bill was circulated to all Departments prior to being published for consultation in May this year. Further engagement will take place as the draft Bill is finalised for introduction into the Assembly following the outcomes of the consultation, and throughout the remaining stages of the legislative process. My Department will also be working closely with other Departments with a role to play in planning for the implementation of the Bill. This will include the development of a Code of Practice and subordinate legislation.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what cuts will be made to his budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.

(AQW 35349/11-15)

Mr Poots: I wrote to the Executive and Health Committee on 28 August to outline the financial position facing my Department in 2014/15 and my significant concerns about it. Following the outcome of the June Monitoring Round and in the absence of additional funding being provided to my Department, I also outlined a range of options available to the Executive to address a financial gap of at least £140m.

Given the serious and detrimental impact that these options would have on patients and clients, I do not support their implementation. The failure to agree Welfare Reform is unforgivable, as the financial penalties being imposed by Treasury would be better directed at meeting the real and pressing health and social care needs of some of the most vulnerable people in our society.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much money has been spent on translators in each Health and Social Care Trust, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35351/11-15)

Mr Poots: Translation service costs include written, face to face interpreting and spoken word. The cost of translation services in each Health and Social Care Trust in each of the last five years is set out in the table below.

	2013/14 £	2012/13 £	2011/12 £	2010/11 £	2009/10 £
Belfast Health & Social Care Trust	755,307	717,799	536,462	448,576	412,739

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the total cost of infrastructural improvements conducted at Lurgan Hospital, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35377/11-15)

Mr Poots: The following monies were spent on infrastructure improvements in the past three years at Lurgan Hospital

2011/2012	£1,250,000	Internal Refurbishment Works and Car Park Management projects
2012/2013	£570,000	Fire Evacuation Lift Extension, Upgrade of Lighting, Voice Over Internet Protocol Phones, Creation of a Safe and Effective Clinical Environment works (£40K)
2013/2014	£742,000	Electrical Back Up (Secondary Power Supply), Gas Conversion projects

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail (i) the number of staff employed in his Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35392/11-15)

Mr Poots: The table below shows the number of staff directly employed in my Department for each financial year from 1 April 2010.

The figures provided detail the number of staff including analogous grades (i.e. professional and specialist), the Full Time Equivalent and the Salary cost.

This information has been supplied by HRConnect, the NICS provider for payroll services and excludes agency workers or officers seconded into the Department. These officers are not directly employed by the Department and are therefore not on DHSSPS payroll records.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what correspondence the Northern Health and Social Care Trust had with his Department prior to the consultation on proposals to develop a new purpose built Mental Health Inpatient Unit for the Northern Trust area.

(AQW 35395/11-15)

Mr Poots: Prior to the current consultation on proposals to develop a new purpose built Mental Health Inpatient Unit, the Northern Health and Social Care Trust submitted a Strategic Outline Case (SOC) in May 2012.

Following review of the SOC by both my Department and DFP, the Trust was advised to proceed to develop an outline business case.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether refurbishment grants will be available to GP practices.

(AQW 35397/11-15)

Mr Poots: On an annual basis the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) offers the opportunity for GP practices to submit applications for improvement grants. These fund a proportion of the costs of work to bring GP premises up to a higher standard with the remaining percentage being funded by the practice.

The HSCB invites practices to submit applications for improvement grants at the beginning of each financial year and considers and approves grants based on the appropriateness of the work proposed, their relative priority, whether they involve an additional revenue cost, and taking account of available funding and budgetary constraints.

The HSCB will continue to consider all applications for improvement grants for the remainder of 2014/15 financial year in accordance with this process.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the actions implemented to assist people with a disability live an independent life in the community rather than in residential care, given that the Independent Living Fund is permanently closed to new applications.

(AQW 35407/11-15)

Mr Poots: My department is working to deliver the proposals set out in Transforming your Care: Vision to Action, which include the promotion of independence and control for people with a disability. It encourages more control for service users over budgets, with continued promotion of direct payments, and a common approach to personalised budgets with advocacy and brokerage support where required.

In addition, the joint DSD/DHSSPS Inter-Departmental Review of Housing Adaptations Services has already made significant progress in implementing recommendations which will assist people with a disability live an independent life in the community. These include:

- the launch of a Housing Adaptations Design Communication Toolkit which will speed up and standardise inter-agency communications for housing adaptations recommendations;
- the development of an electronic communication infrastructure between health and social care and housing providers to ensure secure and rapid inter-agency communications; and
- raising awareness through posters, leaflets and relevant websites of minor housing adaptations which can be delivered directly by social housing providers without referral to HSC Trusts.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the current arrangements for people travelling to Northern Ireland from areas which have experienced an outbreak of the Ebola virus.

(AQW 35431/11-15)

Mr Poots: Current advice from the World Health Organisation states that there should be no general ban on international travel with the affected countries and that risk to travellers is very low. There are therefore no entry restrictions for individuals travelling from the affected countries to the UK.

The Public Health Agency, through its Health Protection Service, has communicated with colleagues covering all sea ports and airports in Northern Ireland informing them of the current situation in relation to the outbreak and directing them to sources of further information, including actions to be taken should a sick traveller, potentially with an infectious disease, come to their attention.

In order to reduce the risk of international spread of the disease, and in line with World Health Organisation guidance, the affected countries have introduced exit screening at airports to ensure that individuals who are unwell do not board flights.

The World Health Organisation will continue to monitor the situation and amend recommendations if necessary.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail (i) how many home help staff there are in each Health and Social Care Trust area; (ii) whether home help staff are have been offered other roles in Health and Social Care Trusts when the service is removed; and (iii) whether there will be redundancy packages available to staff.

(AQW 35478/11-15)

Mr Poots:

- (i) The number of home care workers directly employed by Trusts is set out in the following table.

Belfast Trust	784
Northern Trust	1025
Southern Trust	1048
South Eastern Trust	526
Western Trust	230

- (ii) There are no plans to remove the home care service, however the Western Trust is in the process of reforming its home care services. Most affected staff are being accommodated within the reformed service. Those who cannot be accommodated or who decline a new role within home care will be offered suitable alternative employment within the Western Health & Social Care Trust.
- (iii) The Trust advises that there will be no compulsory redundancies as a result of this re-organisation.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the progress made on the payroll difficulties faced by the Western Health and Social Care Trust in relation to pay and back pay for auxiliary and portering staff. (AQW 35479/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Western Health and Social Care Trust and the Business Services Organisation have been working closely together to ensure that the causes of recent payroll difficulties are clearly understood and a range of remedial actions has been taken by both organisations to rectify the problems.

This has included strengthening the ICT infrastructure; introduction of more advanced call management systems; streamlining the process for transfer of payroll data between the 2 organisations; further training for staff, additional support for query resolution; and liaison with HM Revenue and Customs on behalf of all Trust staff in the HSC with respect to problems with incorrect income tax codes.

These measures have resulted in a steady improvement in the processing of the Western Trust's payroll in recent months and in relation to the August 2014 payroll run, the error rate had reduced to 0.5%..

The payroll records for 3,934 staff are currently being reviewed to determine whether the staff are due to receive any arrears (back pay). This covers a range of staff groups in addition to auxiliary and portering staff. The vast majority of auxiliary and portering staff have had their entitlements paid to them, with approximately 50 calculations outstanding for these staff. The Trust is working to complete this work and to make the payments to staff as soon as possible.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much is currently being spent on the Independent Living Fund. (AQW 35487/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Independent Living Fund (ILF) has advised that the anticipated cost to provide support to ILF users in Northern Ireland for financial year ending 31 March 2015 will be in the region of £8.4 million.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether there has been financial provision for the removal of the Independent Living Fund to ensure that people with a disability are not disadvantaged. (AQW 35488/11-15)

Mr Poots: The UK Government decided to close the Independent Living Fund (ILF) with effect from 30 June 2015. As I have made very clear, my Department will do all it can to ensure that those in Northern Ireland who are affected by the decision of the Department for Work and Pensions are not disadvantaged.

Funding for the ILF will transfer to DHSSPS in 2015 and my Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on how best to support Independent Living Fund (ILF) users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund. The consultation closes on 30 November 2014 and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the impact of changes to the Independent Living Fund. (AQW 35489/11-15)

Mr Poots: When the UK Government first announced its intention to close the Independent Living Fund (ILF) I robustly conveyed my disappointment to the then Minister concerned, Esther McVey MP, stating that I considered the decision damaged the very ethos of caring. As I have also made very clear, my Department will do all it can to ensure that those in Northern Ireland who are affected by the decision are not disadvantaged.

My Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on five potential options in respect of how best to support ILF users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund with effect from 30 June 2015. The consultation closes on 30 November 2014 and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many people are currently in receipt of the Independent Living Fund.
(AQW 35490/11-15)

Mr Poots: At 31 August 2014 there were 643 people in Northern Ireland in receipt of support from the Independent Living Fund.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he will follow the example set by Scotland and ring fence funding to sustain the Independent Living Fund.
(AQW 35492/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on how best to support Independent Living Fund (ILF) users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund. In developing the consultation, my Department examined carefully the actions of other jurisdictions, including Scotland, and five potential options were identified for consideration in the consultation.

I do not wish to prejudice the outcome of the consultation, which closes on 30 November 2014, and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the future of the Independent Living Fund in Northern Ireland.
(AQW 35494/11-15)

Mr Poots: The UK Government decided to close the Independent Living Fund (ILF) with effect from 30 June 2015. As I have made very clear, my Department will do all it can to ensure that those in Northern Ireland who are affected by the decision of the Department for Work and Pensions are not disadvantaged.

My Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on how best to support Independent Living Fund (ILF) users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund. The consultation closes on 30 November 2014 and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether the consultation on a bill containing provisions aimed at restricting the sale of products that contain nicotine will also consider restricting how electronic cigarettes can be used.
(AQW 35500/11-15)

Mr Poots: The draft Health (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill was issued for a twelve-week consultation on 1 September 2014.

Provisions relating to electronic cigarettes in the draft Bill are restricted to the age of sale for these products, therefore, respondents have been asked to comment on this issue only. Views have not been sought on restricting the use of electronic cigarettes in indoor spaces.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an overview of the mental health services available to prisoners; and to detail the number of qualified staff in each prison facility.
(AQW 35508/11-15)

Mr Poots: Mental health services within the NI prison healthcare service are delivered by the South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust.

The Mental Health Team is structured to ensure that there is a process in place for early identification of mental illness. The approach covers both identifying those prisoners who may already have a diagnosis, are previously known to Community Mental Health or have concerns the time of their committal and also supporting prisoners who experience difficulties during their imprisonment.

During their imprisonment, the Home Treatment Team, an integrated multi-disciplinary team provides a 7 day a week response service to prisoners experiencing an acute crisis and/or severe mental health difficulties and requiring same day assessment and intervention. In addition work is ongoing to develop and introduce Stepped Care Models within prisons to help prisoners who have difficulty adjusting and/or coping with imprisonment. Sessions provided include anxiety management, self esteem and confidence building and sleep hygiene and provided by either the Mental Health Team or Action Mental Health.

The complement of qualified mental health staff for each prison establishment is set out below:

HMP Maghaberry	Consultant Forensic Psychiatrist	1
	Staff grade Psychiatrists	2 x 0.5 WTE
	Registered Mental Health Nurses	14
	Health Care Assistants for Mental Health	2
	Forensic Occupational Therapists	2.8 WTE
HMP Magilligan	Staff Grade Psychiatrist	1 x 0.5 WTE
	Registered Mental Health Nurses	2
HMP/YOC Hydebank Wood	1 Consultant Psychiatrist	1
	Staff grade Psychiatrist	1 x 0.5 WTE
	5 Registered Mental Health Nurses	5
	2 Health Care Assistants	2

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 34547/11-15, for an update on when it is expected that the terms of reference for the evaluation of whether the Individual Funding Request process is meeting its objectives will be announced.

(AQW 35517/11-15)

Mr Poots: I plan to announce the terms of reference and next steps for the evaluation shortly.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what steps the Food Standards Agency are taking to ensure that transglutaminase is not being used within the food industry.

(AQW 35518/11-15)

Mr Poots: This is a matter for the Food Standards Agency (FSA) which is a non-ministerial government department. The FSA has advised as follows:

Transglutaminase can be used in food as long as it complies with the relevant legislation such as General Food Law and the enzyme legislation EC Regulation No. 1332/2008. The Food Standards Agency is therefore not taking steps to ensure that transglutaminase is not being used within the food industry.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what measures are taken to ensure that meat or meat products entering Northern Ireland do not contain transglutaminase.

(AQW 35519/11-15)

Mr Poots: This is a matter for the Food Standards Agency (FSA) which is a non-ministerial government department. The FSA has advised as follows:

Transglutaminase can be used in food as long as it complies with the relevant legislation such as General Food Law and the enzyme legislation EC Regulation No. 1332/2008. No measures are taken therefore to ensure that meat or meat products entering Northern Ireland do not contain transglutaminase.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of hours per week that chaplaincy support is provided by the Southern Health and Social Care Trust, broken down by (i) denomination; and (ii) hospital.

(AQW 35525/11-15)

Mr Poots: The number of hours per week worked by Chaplaincy staff in the Southern HSC Trust, broken down by denomination and hospital, is shown in the table below. These figures have been provided by the Southern Trust, and have not been validated by the Department.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety when will he make an announcement regarding the future support of Independent Living Fund users in Northern Ireland; and whether he can provide an assurance that current users will see no reduction in the support offered.

(AQW 35542/11-15)

Mr Poots: The UK Government decided to close the Independent Living Fund (ILF) with effect from 30 June 2015. As I have made very clear, my Department will do all it can to ensure that those in Northern Ireland who are affected by the decision of the Department for Work and Pensions are not disadvantaged.

My Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on how best to support Independent Living Fund (ILF) users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund. The consultation closes on 30 November 2014 and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward. I anticipate that I will announce my decision in early 2015.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the prospects of the extension of the Cancer Drugs Fund to include Northern Ireland, giving local cancer patients access to life-extending cancer drugs.

(AQW 35561/11-15)

Mr Poots: I am sympathetic to the establishment of a Specialist Drugs Fund which would not only be available for unapproved cancer drugs but would apply to other serious conditions. However, I could only establish such a fund by diverting funding from existing services or by raising money. One means I am considering is a prescription charge. This would be subject to public consultation and Executive approval. Any charge should be modest and not punitive to individuals who are unable to pay such a charge.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the departmental services, provided through statutory and non-statutory bodies, to address the needs of alcohol and drug dependents in East Londonderry.

(AQW 35563/11-15)

Mr Poots: Through my Department's New Strategic Direction for Alcohol and Drugs Phase Two, the Health & Social Care Board and the Public Health Agency commission a full range of alcohol and drug services – from education and prevention through to treatment and support – that are provided across the Northern and Western Health and Social Care Trust areas, both by Statutory and Voluntary/Community sectors.

Details of the full range of alcohol and drug services, for both young people and adults, in both the Northern and Western areas can be found by accessing the following links:

http://www.publichealth.hscni.net/sites/default/files/DrugsAlcohol_Directory_Northern_12_12.pdf

http://www.publichealth.hscni.net/sites/default/files/DrugsAlcohol_Directory_Western_12_12.pdf

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many people have been admitted to hospital in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust area for alcohol related problems, in the last three years.

(AQW 35564/11-15)

Mr Poots: The number of people admitted to hospital in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust for alcohol-related conditions in each of the last three years, is given in the table below.

HSC Trust	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the pathways available to patients from Northern Ireland requiring mental health or addiction services who may need to access relevant services in the Republic of Ireland.

(AQW 35570/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Health and Social Care Board operates a process which allows consultants in the local Health and Social Care Trusts in Northern Ireland, in exceptional circumstances, to refer patients outside NI by means of an Extra Contractual Referral (ECR). ECRs for services outside of NI must be based on clinical recommendations for specific treatment needs that cannot be met in NI. Such a referral must outline all of the resources that have been considered locally, and why these are felt to be inappropriate.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on building of the new local hospital in Omagh, including the timeline for the completion of this project.

(AQW 35573/11-15)

Mr Poots: Construction of the new enhanced local hospital in Omagh commenced on 21st July 2014 with contract completion scheduled for July 2016. The hospital is expected to become operational in autumn 2016.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the case of Mr Stephen Clarke, who is currently being held in the Mater Hospital under mental health legislation.

(AQW 35577/11-15)

Mr Poots: It would not be appropriate to provide information on the particular arrangements in place for the treatment or care of any individual.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether the required ratio of carers to dependants is being fulfilled in private care homes in East Londonderry.

(AQW 35581/11-15)

Mr Poots: All nursing and residential care homes in both the statutory and private sectors are required to operate in compliance with minimum standards.

These standards require that at all times there must be enough staff with the appropriate skills to meet the assessed needs of the residents – taking into account the size and layout of the home, as well as the Statement of Purpose and fire safety requirements.

The Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority (RQIA) is responsible for the registration and inspection of nursing and residential care homes. RQIA provides guidance to registered homes on the minimum staffing levels they should maintain and, through inspection, ensures compliance with these levels.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the capacity of health services in East Londonderry to deal with the potential health and safety risks of hosting major events.

(AQW 35582/11-15)

Mr Poots: In accordance with good practice guidance, the responsibility to conduct a risk assessment of the health and safety elements arising from a major event, rest with the event organiser. In doing so, the event organiser should ensure that appropriate medical, ambulance and first aid provision is put in place and that any arrangements minimise the impact of the event on local Health and Social Care (HSC) and emergency services.

The event's organiser is also responsible for appointing a medical provider who should produce a medical plan which outlines roles and responsibilities and confirms liaison arrangements with the relevant HSC Trust(s). From an emergency planning perspective, the health service should be made aware of a major event from an early stage in order that it can plan appropriately.

The Northern HSC Trust's Major Incident Plan and Corporate Business Continuity Plan provide extensive procedures to guide the Trust should a response be required to an emergency arising from a major event. As part of emergency preparedness, representatives from the Northern HSC Trust work closely with councils, event organisers and 'blue-light' responders to ensure it is represented in the event multi-agency planning groups and as a member of the 'Multi-Agency Control Room' throughout the event, to ensure effective communication should an incident require Trust input. Appropriate Trust services are informed of planned events and co-ordination of Trust preparedness to respond to potential incidents and there is participation in the multi-agency debrief to share any learning points arising from the event.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he has considered how people who are dependent on the Independent Living Fund will maintain their independence from July 2015.
(AQW 35583/11-15)

Mr Poots: The UK Government decided to close the Independent Living Fund (ILF) with effect from 30 June 2015. I have made it very clear that my Department will do all it can to ensure that those in Northern Ireland who are affected by the decision of the Department for Work and Pensions are not disadvantaged.

My Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on how best to support Independent Living Fund (ILF) users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund. The consultation closes on 30 November 2014 and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Exploitation in Northern Ireland.
(AQW 35591/11-15)

Mr Poots: Professor Kathleen Marshall is leading the Independent Inquiry into CSE in Northern Ireland. The Inquiry is being undertaken in phases and started with a Call for Evidence, which closed in March 2014. The Inquiry Team has sought the views and experiences of children and young people, their parents and communities through a parallel strand of engagement and a number of stakeholder events, with both the statutory and voluntary sector, took place in early June 2014. The purpose of the events was to inform stakeholders about initial findings and key messages from the Call for Evidence and engagement to date.

In its second phase the Inquiry held both oral hearings and a programme of engagements with key organisations in the health and social care, criminal justice and education sectors. A further stakeholder event, for both statutory and voluntary sectors, took place on 10 September 2014. It is expected that the Independent Inquiry will conclude and report in November 2014.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the Public Health Agency's 10,000 Voices project.
(AQW 35595/11-15)

Mr Poots: The PHA have advised that the 10,000 Voices project has been ongoing since my last update in June 2014. Since then, a further 1583 stories have been collected for the 10,000 Voices project, bringing the total to 5488 patients, families and carers sharing their experiences of HSC services.

A Regional Outcomes Report has not yet been published. The PHA has advised that the report is currently awaiting approval from their Board and it is anticipated that it will be available in due course.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the negotiation of the contract for community pharmacists; and whether he will ensure that it reflects the value of the professional advisory services which they provide to patients in addition to their responsibility for dispensing.
(AQW 35617/11-15)

Mr Poots: In 2010 the HSC Board was mandated by my Department to develop a community pharmacy contract with Community Pharmacy NI (CPNI), which is the representative body for community pharmacy in Northern Ireland. Negotiations continue between the Board and CPNI to develop a framework for the community pharmacy contract.

In March 2014 I launched "Making It Better through Pharmacy in the Community," a five year strategy for pharmacy in the community. The direction for the delivery of pharmacy services in the community set out in the strategy will underpin the negotiations for the pharmacy contract. In particular the strategy supports an increased utilisation of pharmacists' skills in medicines management and public health and recognises their role in the provision of advice and information to patients.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he will review the funding allocation model for the Supplement for Undergraduate Medical and Dental Education, which is weighted towards training in secondary care, given the implications of Transforming Your Care and the need for increased numbers of medical graduates to pursue a career in General Practice.

(AQW 35618/11-15)

Mr Poots: Officials in my Department are considering issues associated with the current SUMDE funding allocation model. This includes the need to ensure that medical undergraduate training supports the changes in service delivery from hospital to community settings under Transforming Your Care. I will consider their advice in due course.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33234/11-15, to detail (i) the shortfall in spend compared to the funding initially earmarked for the Personality Disorder (PD) Strategy; (ii) the amounts allocated to the delivery of the PD Strategy during each of the last four financial years; and (iii) the proposed spend on delivering the PD Strategy during the next financial year.

(AQW 35630/11-15)

Mr Poots:

- (i) Due to budgetary pressures during the last Comprehensive Spending Review, the funding initially earmarked for the Personality Disorders (PD) Strategy was reduced from £2.5M to £1.174M.
- (ii) The Health and Social Care Board has confirmed that the initial funding allocation is now included in Trust baseline allocations each year, and therefore the amount allocated to the delivery of the PD Strategy in each of the last four financial years has been £1.174M.
- (iii) There are no plans to increase or reduce current expenditure on the delivery of the PD Strategy in 2015/16.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33234/11-15, to detail (i) the facilities and services available to patients within the Community Personality Disorder (PD) Service, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust; (ii) the process by which a person with a PD is referred to these services in each Trust; and (iii) whether support, such as independent advocacy, is available in each Trust area to assist patients with access to PD services.

(AQW 35631/11-15)

Mr Poots:

- (i) Community Personality Disorder services have been established in each Health and Social Care Trust. They offer specialist treatment services on a 1:1 basis and in groups for individuals with a diagnosis of Personality Disorder. These treatments include Dialectical Behavioural Therapy and Mentalisation-based treatment. The Personality Disorder Services teams work jointly with Community Mental Health Teams.
- (ii) In all Trusts, referral to Community Personality Disorder Services is generally made through Community Mental Health Teams following triage and assessment of mental health needs. Patients may be referred to the Community Mental Health Team by their GP or Emergency Departments. In Belfast HSC Trust, referrals can also be made directly by the Probation Board's psychology service.
- (iii) Independent advocacy is available in the Northern, South Eastern, Southern and Western HSC Trusts via various contracted community and voluntary sector bodies. The Belfast Trust has commenced the process to appoint an advocacy service for its Personality Disorder Service.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the role of local health commissioning groups and agencies, working in conjunction with his Department, in determining priority need for new primary care centres in rural towns and villages, including Carrickmore and Fintona in Co. Tyrone.

(AQW 35646/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Health and Social Care Board, through its Local Commissioning Groups, and in association with HSC Trusts, undertook detailed analysis to determine the most appropriate locations for the various 'hubs' and 'spokes' which will form the basis of the future health and care centre network and deliver on the Transforming Your Care (TYC) vision. Local Commissioning Groups were specifically tasked with undertaking a prioritisation exercise to identify the optimal hub and spoke configuration within their respective areas and identify their priorities for development. The prioritised list of proposed developments submitted by each of the LCGs was carried out in consultation with the HSC Trusts and representatives of the GP community.

Both Carrickmore and Fintona are included in the HSCB's Strategic Implementation Plan (SIP) as spokes of the new 'hub' in Omagh. The HSCB has indicated, in the SIP, that as spokes of a Tranche 1 hub, both practices will have been consulted to obtain a view as to their potential investment requirements.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what advice his Department offers to people who take, or are concerned about others who take, legal highs.

(AQW 35647/11-15)

Mr Poots: I would like to begin by reiterating that we do not use the term “legal highs” as I believe this is misleading and can give the impression these substances are safe for human consumption and, as this is not the case, we therefore refer to them as “New Psychoactive Substances”.

My Department has provided publicly available information on the dangers of New Psychoactive Substances through the CMO Alert system and through our Drug and Alcohol Monitoring and Information System, combined with a number of media messages. This advice remains clear and consistent: any substance (whether a New Psychoactive Substance, an illicit substance like ecstasy, or prescription drugs that have not been prescribed for you) can pose real – potentially fatal – risks to your health and wellbeing. This message also applies to substances obtained over the internet, when individuals can be even less confident about what they actually contain. Therefore, the safest option is not to buy or take any of these substances. However, some people will continue to misuse drugs; they should be aware that the risks are increased substantially by combining more than one substance and/or alcohol as the effects may be exacerbated. Bingeing (taking a high number of drugs over a number of days) also increases risk significantly.

Information on a range of substances, including New Psychoactive Substances, can be found online at <http://www.talktofrank.com/> or individuals can call the confidential National Drugs Helpline on 0800 776 600. In addition, a range of local services – from information and education through to treatment and support – is available across Northern Ireland. Information on these services is available on the Public Health Agency Website at: <http://www.publichealth.hscni.net/publications/drug-and-alcohol-directories-services>

The Public Health Agency has also developed a range of information, including harm reduction advice, that has been circulated to all key groups and which has also been discussed widely on the media.

(http://www.publichealth.hscni.net/sites/default/files/Harm%20Reduction%20Advice%20GB%20\(2\)_0.pdf_0.pdf))

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the business case for the Derry Health and Social Care campus.

(AQW 35680/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Health and Social Care Board’s high level Strategic Implementation Plan for future investment in primary care infrastructure, which includes a proposal for Cityside, Londonderry, is currently under consideration.

This Plan will be considered alongside other capital investment priorities and will be dependent on the outcome of future budget exercises and confirmation of value for money and affordability. It is therefore not possible to give an indication of the timescale for any future health & care centres, and unfortunately this includes the Cityside scheme.

Mrs Hale asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much has been spent on interpretation services in (i) hospitals; (ii) GP practices; and (iii) dental surgeries, in each of the last seven years.

(AQW 35682/11-15)

Mr Poots: Expenditure on interpretation services in (i) hospitals; (ii) GP practices; and (iii) dental surgeries, in each of the last seven years is not collected centrally and is therefore not available.

However, details of expenditure incurred by each Health and Social Care Trust in each of the last five years on translation services is set out in the table below. Translation service costs include written, face to face interpreting and spoken word.

	2013/14 £	2012/13 £	2011/12 £	2010/11 £	2009/10 £
Belfast Health & Social Care Trust	755,307	717,799	536,462	448,576	412,739

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the current waiting list, per constituency, for people seeking appointments for consultations relating to neurological illnesses.

(AQW 35687/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on the number of people waiting for an appointment with a consultant in relation to a neurological illness in each constituency is not available.

However information is available on the number of people waiting for a first consultant led outpatient appointment in the neurology specialty, within each Health and Social Care (HSC) Trust, and is detailed in the table below for the position at the 30th June 2014 (latest information available).

HSC Trust	Number of patients waiting for first outpatient appointment in the neurology specialty
Belfast	3,093
Northern	421
South Eastern	567
Southern	949
Western	1,062
Northern Ireland	6,092

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of people waiting for community care packages in the (i) Northern Health and Social Care Trust; and (ii) Western Health and Social Care Trust. (AQW 35689/11-15)

Mr Poots: At 30 June 2014, there were 120 people in the Northern HSC Trust and 25 people in the Western HSC Trust waiting at home or in another community setting for a community care package.

The number of people currently waiting in a hospital setting for a care package is not available.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the cost to the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service of (i) all 4x4 vehicles purchased; (ii) boats and related equipment; and (iii) all training attributed to new rescue responsibilities, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35691/11-15)

Mr Poots: NIFRS expenditure under the various categories is as follows:

NIFRS expenditure	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14
4x4 vehicles	Nil	Nil	£359,474
Boats and related equipment	Nil	£16,799	£29,646
Training*	£10,628	£94,618	£84,453

* NIFRS expenditure on all training, external and internal, attributed to its new rescue responsibilities as required under The Fire and Rescue Services (Emergencies) (Northern Ireland) Order 2011, including flooding and wildland fires.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what consideration he has given to extending legislation concerning learning disability to include children with autism at the moderate or high functioning end of the spectrum in order to widen the services which they can access.

(AQW 35696/11-15)

Mr Poots: There is no legislation which sets out specific services to be provided to children with a learning disability or other individual disability or condition.

Access to health and social care services generally is determined by assessment of an individual's needs. There is no automatic link between children on the autistic spectrum and those with learning disability, although ASD and learning disability may co-occur in some instances.

The Autism Act (NI) 2011 however, provided for the development of the cross-departmental Autism Strategy (2013-2020) and Action Plan (2013-2016). This Strategy and Action Plan provides for the improvement in services and support for all people with autism and their families and carers.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, in the absence of residential or inpatient care for people with autism who are prone to violent episodes, what options are available to families who cannot manage their child's aggression in the home.

(AQW 35697/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are currently two specialist residential units in Northern Ireland, the Iveagh Centre which focuses on the needs of children with Learning Disability, who display challenging behaviour, and the regional in-patient unit at Beechcroft, which supports children and young people with a range of mental illnesses and emotional health and well-being needs.

Children with autism and their families can access support provided by the Trusts through the disability services, and/or community and voluntary sector providers.

The focus of all intervention in relation to children, including children with autism, is supporting children within their families. Central to any intervention is the requirement to provide a person centred and effective assessment of need.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what consideration has been given to providing residential or inpatient care to young people with autism who are prone to violent episodes and are not manageable in the home environment.

(AQW 35698/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are currently two specialist residential units in Northern Ireland, the Iveagh Centre which focuses on the needs of children with Learning Disability, who display challenging behaviour, and the regional in-patient unit at Beechcroft, which supports children and young people with a range of mental illnesses and emotional health and well-being needs.

Children with autism and their families can access support provided by the Trusts through the disability services, and/or community and voluntary sector providers.

The focus of all intervention in relation to children, including children with autism, is supporting children within their families. Central to any intervention is the requirement to provide a person centred and effective assessment of need.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 34544/11-15, how the agreement of all parties to the repatriation of patients is assured and recorded.

(AQW 35703/11-15)

Mr Poots: The agreement of all parties to repatriation is assured via discussion. The agreement, while not necessarily explicitly set out in writing, is evidenced by a paper trail of clinical correspondence demonstrating discharge of the patient from the Belfast Health and Social Care Trust and onward referral.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what level of service should be provided for young children with Down Syndrome.

(AQW 35718/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Children Order (NI) 1995 creates a duty to provide services to disabled children and to give them the opportunity to lead lives which are as normal as possible. A range of services to fulfil this duty are provided on the basis of assessment of need. A person centred approach is taken, which may involve a range of disciplines.

Down Syndrome, while recognised as primarily a learning disability, may also reflect a number of other diagnoses associated with the condition which may be more significant in terms of impact such as: visual; hearing; or cardiac defects. Services may be provided from a range of disciplines, for example, paediatrics, speech and language, occupational therapy and family support. Many of these services work in conjunction with other services such as Early Years provision, Pre-school Education, Education and Library Board provision, and Community or Voluntary services.

Information on disability services and services accessible to families who have a child with disability can be found on the Family Support NI website.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33234/11-15, to detail (i) the structure of the Integrated Care Pathway for patients with a Personality Disorder (PD); and (ii) the measures being taken to promote effective interfaces between PD services and other general and specialist mental health services.

(AQW 35725/11-15)

Mr Poots:

- (i) The Personality Disorder Care Pathway outlines the mental health care available in Northern Ireland for people with a Personality Disorder, the steps involved in accessing this care, the types of interventions that may be offered, and what patients and their carers can expect from professionals providing care and treatment. It is intended to launch the care pathway in October 2014, subject to approval by the Personality Disorder Network Group and the HSCB/PHA.
- (ii) The Integrated Care Pathway for patients with a Personality Disorder promotes effective interfaces between PD services and other mental health services and includes arrangements for consultation and co-working across interfaces with other relevant health care services.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33234/11-15, to detail (i) the structure of the inter-agency Personality Disorder Network Group including the agencies that are members of the group; and (ii) the mechanisms by which the group supports people with a Personality Disorder diagnosis and the staff involved in their care.

(AQW 35726/11-15)

Mr Poots:

- (i) The Personality Disorder Network Group operates as a clinical network reporting to the Bamford High Support Services Subgroup. It has five constituent working groups taking forward the main health and social care objectives of the PD strategy:
- Developing an agreed integrated care pathway.
 - Developing a training strategy.
 - Developing Key Performance indicators.
 - Audit working group.
 - Research group.

Members of the network include:

- Health Social Care Board.
 - Public Health Agency.
 - All five Health and Social Care Trusts.
 - Prison Health Care.
 - Probation Board NI.
 - CAUSE (carers representatives).
 - Service user representatives.
 - Queen's University Belfast and University of Ulster.
- (ii) The PD Network Group supports the delivery of care and treatment by providing a clinical support network for staff; providing a forum to share best practice, actively seeking the views of people who have used services and their carers, and supporting them to participate in shaping the development of services. The PD Network Group also provides a forum for coordinating service development across the region and negotiating interface arrangements.

Mrs Cochrane asked 3234/11-15, to outline the educational and training opportunities, including those that constitute Continuing Professional Development, which have been put in place for mental health professionals who will be involved in providing services to patients with a Personality Disorder (PD) as a result of broadening access to mental health services in line with the PD Strategy.

(AQW 35727/11-15)

Mr Poots: Experienced and professionally qualified staff have been recruited to PD services. Training in relevant evidence based therapies (where the staff member does not already have these competences) has been made available. Support for completing accreditation to enable the provision of clinical supervision locally, has been made available to senior clinicians.

A number of staff and service users have been trained to deliver awareness level training in the Knowledge and Understanding Framework (KUF). This training is currently available to HSC staff, criminal justice staff, service users and family carers through the Beeches Management Centre. Some Trusts are planning to offer this through their Recovery College syllabus.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the provision for Speech and Language Therapy, including Makaton Signing, within the Northern Health and Social Care Trust; and the age groups covered by this provision.

(AQW 35731/11-15)Mr Poots:*Annex A*Speech and Language Therapy Provision– Northern Health and Social Care Trust

Speech and Language Therapists (SLTs) are the lead experts regarding communication and swallowing disorders. They lead on the assessment, differential diagnosis, intervention with and management of individuals with communication and/or swallowing disorders. SLTs aim to help each individual achieve their optimum level of communication. They work closely with families/carers and other professionals. SLTs have a leading role in training others to support people with communication difficulties and in developing environments which support good communication.

The Role of the SLT

The SLT works with children and adults who have communication and/or eating or drinking difficulties. This includes: -

- Spending time talking to families and carers to find out the specific communication needs of their family member and the impact of the communication difficulty on everyday life.
- Assessing the individual's communication ability. This assessment may occur in a variety of settings, for example, at home, clinic or school.
- Deciding if therapy/support is appropriate at this time and discussing these decisions with the individual and his/her family.

- Where therapy/support is appropriate, working jointly with the individual and where appropriate, family and carers to devise agreed goals and discussing who is best to deliver this support.
- Working with other professionals and members of the multidisciplinary team involved in an individual's care.
- Introducing other modes of communication, for example, the use of objects, pictures and signing, communication aids, if appropriate.
- Providing family and carers with the skills they need to support the family member's communication.
- Evaluating the outcome of the intervention programme to determine if speech and language therapy has made a difference and if further therapy is required.

Speech and Language Therapy support may include: -

- Advice and information.
- Training for family/carers.
- Group therapy.
- Individual therapy.
- Home/school programmes supporting the individual.
- Training of other professionals.

For children and adults experiencing difficulties with eating, drinking or feeding (dysphagia) the SLT will support them by: -

- Carrying out a detailed assessment of his/her eating, drinking and swallowing skills at home and where appropriate other settings, e.g. school/nursing home.
- Offering guidance to ensure safe eating and drinking, using appropriate strategies that promote safe and adequate nutritional support.
- Working with other members of the multidisciplinary team involved.

Who do SLTs support?

SLTs work with: -

Babies with feeding and swallowing difficulties

Children with: -

- Mild, moderate and severe learning difficulties.
- Physical difficulties.
- Language delay.
- Specific language impairment.
- Specific difficulties in producing sounds.
- Hearing impairment.
- Cleft palate.
- Stammering.
- Autism.
- Voice disorders.

Adults with: -

- Communication or eating and swallowing disorders following neurological impairments and degenerative conditions including stroke, head injury and Parkinson's Disease.
- Head, neck or throat cancer.
- Voice problems.
- Learning difficulties.
- Stammering.

Where do SLTs work?

Speech and Language Therapy Services are provided in: -

- Community clinics.
- Hospital wards.
- Outpatient departments.
- Special schools and units.
- Adult centres.
- Nursing and residential homes.
- Day centres.
- Child development centres.

- Sure Start Schemes and Larne Parental Project.
- Community Rehabilitation and Stroke Services.
- Clients' homes.
- Multi disciplinary support teams to schools.

2 Makaton Signing

Makaton is available in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust from infancy (through baby sign) and further Makaton support is available to children, of all ages, and their environment.

Training is provided to parents and in education settings as and when required as part of a total communication package.

Makaton is available to adults as specific needs are identified and addressed.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much has been spent on Research and Development, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust, in the last five years.

(AQW 35734/11-15)

Mr Poots: The amount spent on Research and Development in each of the last five years broken down by Health and Social Care Trust is set out in the table below.

	2013/14 £	2012/13 £	2011/12 £	2010/11 £	2009/10 £
Belfast Health & Social Care Trust	3,878,290	4,065,601	4,261,198	4,820,515	5,481,401
Northern Health & Social Care Trust	359,050	421,143	476,009	717,500	607,088

Southern Health & Social Care Trust	456,217	437,611	420,401	354,867	241,147
Western Health & Social Care Trust	563,580	572,317	535,347	438,926	360,271
Total	5,718,383	5,971,722	6,238,966	6,769,083	7,051,932

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the actions that he is taking to encourage collaboration between clinicians, the public and businesses, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 35735/11-15)

Mr Poots: I am committed to the pursuit of healthcare innovation and recognise the benefits this can bring to improving health and social care services for patients and clients. For innovation to be effective it requires collaboration between our health and social care sector, our businesses and also our universities as well as listening to what patients say. While industry can develop new solutions and bring them to market, it is essential that their work and that of the universities is directed by a clear understanding of health and social care priorities.

To facilitate this interaction between the sectors the Northern Ireland Connected Health Ecosystem was established in September 2012. The Eco-System meets quarterly at different locations across Northern Ireland with each meeting having its own theme. For example the theme of the next Eco-System meeting is procurement and previous meetings have focussed on Innovation, supporting transformative change; etc. These quarterly meetings are supplemented by other topic specific meetings where a number of representatives across the sectors come together to consider and explore particular issues identified by health professionals.

In order to maximise engagement and the potential for collaboration the Connected Health Eco-System has been established as a regional initiative. I have not taken action to establish any separate initiatives of this nature at individual Trust level.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he will respond to the College of Emergency Medicine regarding their proposals to deal with 'exit block' in Emergency Departments.

(AQW 35739/11-15)

Mr Poots: I wrote to the College of Emergency Medicine (CEM) on 14 August 2014 welcoming its report 'Acute and Emergency Care: Prescribing the Remedy' which includes proposals to address exit block. My Department is working closely with CEM and the Royal College of Nursing to bring about improvements in the delivery of unscheduled care and value the engagement that we have so far on this important matter. There appears to be common ground between the recommendations in this report and the output from the summits held earlier this year. The recommendations also reflect the proposals put forward by the Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority (RQIA) following its review of unscheduled care in the Belfast Trust with a view to the regional implications.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much his Department has spent on health and social care research, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust, since 2013.

(AQW 35752/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on expenditure is collected by fiscal year; the amount spent by each Health and Social Care Trust on Research and Development since April 2012 is set out in the table below.

	2013/14 £	2012/13 £
Belfast Health & Social Care Trust	3,878,290	4,065,601
Northern Health & Social Care Trust	359,050	421,143
South Eastern Health & Social Care Trust	461,246	475,050
Southern Health & Social Care Trust	456,217	437,611
Western Health & Social Care Trust	563,580	572,317
Total	5,718,383	5,971,722

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail (i) how many different types of cancer drugs have been prescribed to patients; and (ii) how this compares to the number prescribed in England, since 2013.

(AQW 35753/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) has responsibility for commissioning specialist drugs, including cancer drugs in Northern Ireland.

The HSCB advise that there are in the region of 100 different medicines prescribed in the treatment of cancer and many of those medicines are used for a range of different tumours and as part of different drug regimes. A proportion of those medicines are not specifically 'cancer drugs' but may also be licensed for use in other diseases. It is therefore not possible to provide a definitive position regarding how many different types of drugs are prescribed.

The HSCB does not hold data on drugs prescribed in England therefore a comparison since 2013 is not possible.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the annual cost of the Patient and Client Council; and whether there has been a value for money assessment.

(AQW 35767/11-15)

Mr Poots: The PCC budget allocation for 2014/15 is £1,764,386.

In 2011, a review of ALBs, led by the Ministerial Budget Review Group, considered the scope for each ALB to be abolished, integrated with its parent Department or merged with another body. I stated in the DHSSPS return in June 2011 that I had no plans for immediate change to the functioning of the PCC, where fundamental change would entail primary legislation and this remains the position.

The PCC was established specifically to be part of an interdependent system of modern organisations, collectively capable of providing high quality and responsive health and social care to the people of Northern Ireland

The Department regularly monitors PCC performance against the objectives set out in its Business Plan through its performance review process and my Department continues to look at ways of maximizing the efficiency of the Council's operations and those of all other Arms Length Bodies.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, in relation to his comments on UTV Live Tonight on 5 February 2013 regarding the introduction of legislation to create a new soft opt-out organ donation system by the end of 2014, whether this assessment of his legislative timetable remains valid.

(AQW 35778/11-15)

Mr Poots: As I stated to the Assembly on 11 February 2014, I believe that it is best to take a considered approach to future organ donation policy, and so I have deferred my decision on this until the views and opinions of the wider Northern Ireland public are known. Following the ongoing extensive Public Health Agency (PHA) campaign on organ donation, the PHA will carry out a further survey in November 2014 to establish the campaign's impact on public understanding of organ donation issues, including the possible introduction of an opt-out system. I hope to be in a position to make a decision on the future of organ donation policy, including the legislative impact, in early 2015.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the weaknesses of the Individual Funding Request (IFR) mechanism in relation to cancer medicines; and to outline the groups and individuals he has met to date to discuss the IFR process, including (i) the name of the groups; and (ii) the dates of the meetings.

(AQW 35779/11-15)

Mr Poots: Figures supplied by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) indicate that the majority (around 98%) of the applications for unapproved specialist drugs are accepted through the Individual Funding Request (IFR) process. I have had discussions with a wide range of key stakeholders group and individuals regarding their concerns about the IFR process. The number of meetings and organisations involved are too numerous to set out in the detail requested; however they include cancer patients and survivors, charities, political representatives and the pharmaceutical industry. Having listened to those genuinely held views I directed my Department to carry out an evaluation of the IFR process. I plan to make an announcement on next steps for the evaluation shortly.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the discussions he has had to date on the Individual Funding Request process; and for an update on the evaluation his Department is undertaking in relation to whether this process is working.

(AQW 35780/11-15)

Mr Poots: Figures supplied by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) indicate that the majority (around 98%) of the applications for unapproved specialist drugs are accepted through the Individual Funding Request (IFR) process. I have had discussions with a wide range of key stakeholders group and individuals regarding their concerns about the IFR process. The number of meetings and organisations involved are too numerous to set out in the detail requested; however they include cancer patients and survivors, charities, political representatives and the pharmaceutical industry. Having listened to those genuinely held views I directed my Department to carry out an evaluation of the IFR process. I plan to make an announcement on next steps for the evaluation shortly.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the (i) terms of reference; (ii) estimated timescale, including the conclusion date; and (iii) patients and patient groups who have been consulted for his Department's evaluation into the Individual Funding Request process.

(AQW 35781/11-15)

Mr Poots: Figures supplied by the Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) indicate that the majority (around 98%) of the applications for unapproved specialist drugs are accepted through the Individual Funding Request (IFR) process. I have had discussions with a wide range of key stakeholders group and individuals regarding their concerns about the IFR process. Ms Boyle asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action he is taking to resolve the situation at the out of hours service in Strabane, which currently does not have a sufficient number of GPs.

(AQW 35787/11-15)

Mr Poots: Within OOHs the issue of filling GP shifts is a situation which affects a number of providers across Northern Ireland and the Health & Social Care Board (HSCB) is working with all of the OOHs providers in order to try and address the issue of unfilled shifts. In supporting both GP and nursing colleagues the HSCB has invested an additional £1.5million to the OOHs budget during 2014/15 in order to support the provision of OOHs services across NI. The western area has been allocated its share of funding to support the 5 centres in the Western LCG area.

Western Urgent Care has already taken action to address issues around the delivery of GP OOHs services such as on-going recruitment for GPs, flexible working arrangements, enhanced payment rates for difficult to fill shifts, liaising with members of the Local Medical Committee in relation to encouraging GPs to work out of hours from their local centre as well as the recent recruitment of a pool of nurses to assist with OOHs provision in the Western area.

The HSCB meets regularly with the Trusts to review performance and will continue to explore opportunities to improve OOHs services. I am aware that there has been an ever increasing demand for OOHs services and the challenges this brings and I have already approved the HSCB's Regional Strategic Framework for GP OOHs services which focuses on:

- Simplifying access;
- Improving organisational efficiency; and
- Improving alignment with other healthcare services.

In implementing the changes in the framework the HSCB will work with providers to ensure high standards in the handling of calls from patients; maintaining the safety and quality of services currently provided, both during the transition to, and in delivery of, the new working arrangements.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what steps his Department is taking to improve formal diagnosis rates of dementia, in order to ensure patients receive the correct care.

(AQW 35840/11-15)

Mr Poots: Since the launch of the regional strategy 'Improving Dementia Services in Northern Ireland' in 2011, a key objective for the Regional Dementia Strategy Implementation Group is to raise diagnosis rates across NI to 75% and above.

The most recently available figures show that NI has a diagnosis rate of 63.2% which is well above the UK average (46%).

Recurrent investment over the past two years has led to the enhancement of memory services, and their development where none existed previously. Criteria and protocols have been developed for referrals into memory services and work is ongoing to achieve timely assessment and diagnosis.

In addition, I have set a target which states that a first out-patient appointment should take place within 9 weeks of referral, and this is monitored across all Trusts by the HSCB Performance Monitoring Department. However, some types of dementia are particularly difficult to diagnose, and in some cases further scanning and testing may be required before a diagnosis can be confirmed.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what services are currently provided for people living with dementia in North Antrim.

(AQW 35846/11-15)

Mr Poots: Services for people living with dementia in the North Antrim area are provided by the Northern Health and Social Care Trust's (NH&SCT) Community Mental Health Team for Older Persons. This multi-disciplinary team provides assessment, diagnosis, review and support services, from pre-diagnosis to ongoing support throughout. An out-patient memory service is also provided. The Dementia Home Support Team provides specialist input for individuals in care home settings with challenging behaviours.

The Alzheimer's Society are contracted to provide a range of services which include: a Dementia Support Worker providing a support and information service throughout the Trust area; and a befriending service which provides one-to-one support to people with dementia and their carers. Trained volunteers spend at least two to four hours a week with the individual who has been matched with the trained volunteer during the early stages of dementia. The Society also provides an advocacy service in relation to all aspects of care and support throughout the NHSCT area.

Good Morning Ballycastle, run by three local churches, operates a daily telephone call service to individuals, which also serves as a valuable resource for people with dementia in the area.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what support his Department provides to the Alzheimer's Society.

(AQW 35847/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department provides grant aid of £42,794 to the Alzheimer's Society each financial year. This grant goes towards the cost of core services within the organisation and is provided under Article 71 of the Health and Personal Social Services (Northern Ireland) Order 1972.

Dr McDonnell asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service have a policy in place to recoup the costs of responding to repeat unwanted fire signals; and if so, to detail the process involved.

(AQW 35861/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service does not have a policy in place to recoup the costs of responding to repeat unwanted fire signals.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the thirteen recommendations contained within 'Acute and emergency care: prescribing the remedy' published jointly by the College of Emergency Medicine, Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health, the Royal College of Physicians of London and the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

(AQW 35873/11-15)

Mr Poots: I wrote to the College of Emergency Medicine (CEM) on 14 August 2014 welcoming this report. My Department is working closely with CEM and the Royal College of Nursing to bring about improvements in the delivery of unscheduled care and value the engagement that we have so far on this important matter. There appears to be common ground between the recommendations in this report and the output from the summits held earlier this year. The recommendations also reflect the proposals put forward by the Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority (RQIA) following its review of unscheduled care in the Belfast Trust with a view to the regional implications.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, given the stringent criteria required to qualify for the Community Meals Service, for his assessment of elderly and vulnerable people being forced to purchase ready meals which may have questionable nutritional value and be unaffordable.

(AQW 35912/11-15)

Mr Poots: All of our clients have the right to choose what they wish to eat and to source meals available from a range of providers.

In recent years, we have seen a gradual reduction in the numbers receiving community meals services. There are a number of possible explanations for this, including: the availability of alternatives such as ready meals from supermarkets; an increase in the number of older people being supported by family members; and a growing number of cases where re-ablement support is offered to promote the independence of the individual.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the action he will take to support the 20,000 people identified by the Alzheimer's Society as living with dementia.

(AQW 35922/11-15)

Mr Poots: I launched the Regional Strategy, "Improving Dementia Services in Northern Ireland" in November 2011. Recurrent investment over the past two years has led to the enhancement of memory services, and their development where none existed previously. Criteria and protocols have been developed for referrals into memory services and work is ongoing to achieve timely assessment and diagnosis. Work is also on-going with GPs to enhance referrals to memory clinics.

Over the next 3 years, in addition to those plans already in place, the Implementation Group will focus on the key target areas of (i) awareness raising, information and support, (ii) training and (iii) short-breaks, respite and support to carers.

All five Trusts are committed to providing timely diagnosis, and services are being developed to include pre and post diagnostic counselling, comprehensive assessment, support and education.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of children who have been placed in foster care in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35950/11-15)

Mr Poots: Figures on the number of Looked After Children placed in foster care are not available by Constituency. The lowest geographical output available is at Health and Social Care (HSC) Trust area. As the East Londonderry constituency falls within both the Western and Northern HSC Trust areas, figures on the number of children who were placed in foster care have been provided for both Trusts.

Table 1: Children Placed in Foster Care in the Northern HSC Trust, the Western HSC Trust and Northern Ireland at 31 March (2011 – 2013)

Department of Justice

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether he will bring forward legislation to have manslaughter charges brought against suppliers of illicit drugs in cases in which death is ruled as having been caused by the consumption of the drug; and charges of causing grievous bodily harm in instances of serious reaction ruled to have been caused by the drug.

(AQW 35227/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice): I am aware that the House of Lords has considered a case where death occurred from the unlawful supply of drugs. In Northern Ireland, following the completion of any investigation by the PSNI, it is the role of the Public Prosecution Service to independently examine whether or not there is sufficient evidence that meet the required test for prosecution and to bring forward charges in relation to the offence or offences committed.

The Department has no current plans to bring forward legislative proposals to charge those who supply illicit drugs with manslaughter or grievous bodily harm in instances where a serious reaction or death is caused by consuming the drug supplied.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice what percentage of complaints of rape in each of the last five years have resulted in (i) prosecution; and (ii) conviction.

(AQW 35306/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Department of Justice does not hold this information. The decision whether to prosecute a complaint is taken by the Public Prosecution Service (PPS). I am committed to respecting the independence of the PPS. You may therefore wish to direct your question to the PPS.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether prisoners have access to social networking sites.

(AQW 35308/11-15)

Mr Ford: NIPS does not permit access to social networking sites.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34984/11-15, (i) to provide any updates he has received on this matter; (ii) whether a Serious Case Review has been undertaken; if so, (iii) when it was completed; and (iv) when it will be published.

(AQW 35309/11-15)

Mr Ford: A Serious Case Review has not been commissioned in this case as the matter falls outside the remit for a Serious Case Review as per the Public Protection Arrangements for Northern Ireland (PPANI) Manual of Practice Section 18.1.

Mr D McIlveen asked the Minister of Justice to detail the amount claimed by prison chaplains in each of the last five years, broken down by (i) prison; and (ii) denomination.

(AQW 35331/11-15)

Mr Ford: The table below details the cost of providing Chaplaincy services for years 2010 to 2014 across the three prison Establishments broken down by denomination and faith.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the (i) bed capacity; (ii) number of people in custody; and (iii) percentage of capacity occupied on (a) 1 September 2014; (b) 1 August 2014; (c) 1 July 2014; and (d) 1 June 2014, broken down by prison.

(AQW 35336/11-15)

Mr Ford: Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) establishments do not have a maximum operational capacity. For that reason it is not possible to illustrate population figures as a percentage of that figure.

Each establishment has a Certified Normal Accommodation (CNA) figure and NIPS accommodates people in custody based upon the requirements of the courts.

	CNA	Population 1 June	Population 1 July	Population 1 August	Population 1 September
Maghaberry	988	1022	1031	1072	1041
Magilligan	568	553	548	565	541
Hydebank	362	226	223	212	217

Some accommodation at Hydebank Wood is currently temporarily closed to facilitate refurbishment.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Justice what cuts will be made to his budget as a result of the lack of agreement on Welfare Reform.

(AQW 35352/11-15)

Mr Ford: In the Finance Minister's 31 July Written Statement to the Assembly on 2013-14 Provisional Outturn and 2014-15 June Monitoring Round, he has stated:

'The Executive has agreed to further Resource DEL reductions in the October Monitoring Round to cover the welfare reform penalties. If there is no agreement on Welfare Reform this would amount to the full £87 million penalty, which would be a further 2.3 per cent reduction for those departments not protected. Any reduced requirements declared in the October Monitoring Round by individual departments will be used to reduce the level of any adjustments applied to that department in the October round.'

The Department is currently working through the October monitoring round process, and part of that will be to determine what areas of the budget will be affected by the anticipated budget cuts.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of staff members (i) recruited to; and (ii) who have resigned from, the Prison Service in each of the last three years, broken down by grade.

(AQW 35364/11-15)

Mr Ford: The numbers of staff, broken down by grade, recruited to or resigned from the Northern Ireland Prison Service in the last three years are as follows:

Recruited:

Grades	4 September 2011 to 3 September 2012	4 September 2012 to 3 September 2013	4 September 2013 to 3 September 2014
General Service/Support Grades	5	9	1
Custody Prison Officers	20	284	0
Prison Custody Officers	0	0	99
Governors	0	1	0
Total	25	294	100

Resigned:

	4 September 2011 to 3 September 2012	4 September 2012 to 3 September 2013	4 September 2013 to 3 September 2014
General Service/Support Grades	2	5	9
Governors	1	0	1
Night Custody Officers	3	0	2
Main Grade Officers	4	0	0
Operational Support Grades	3	2	0
Prison Custody Officers	10	4	10
Custody Prison Officers	0	17	43
Total	23	28	65

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice how many Prison Service staff are currently on sick leave, broken down by grade.
(AQW 35365/11-15)

Mr Ford: The number of Prison Service Staff on sickness absence, as at 3 September 2014, is 129. This is broken down by Grade as follows:

■ Custody Prison Officers/Operational Support Grades	–	49
■ Officers	–	48
■ Prison Custody Officers	–	11
■ Night Custody Officers	–	5
■ Senior Officers	–	5
■ General Service Grades	–	11

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of assaults on Prison Service staff in each of the last three years.
(AQW 35366/11-15)

Mr Ford: The number of assaults on staff is shown in Table A below. It is important to note that during this period there has been a rising prisoner population.

The physical environment at Maghaberry has also changed with the opening of Quoile House in late 2012. This was the first accommodation block to be built in Maghaberry Prison in five years and can hold up to 160 prisoners.

Table A

Year	Assaults (Prisoner on Staff)	Total Assaults
August 2011 – July 2012	47	316
August 2012 – July 2013	81	408
August 2013 – July 2014	94	342

These figures have been drawn from the Prisoner Information System (PRISM). Care is taken when processing and analysing this information but the detail is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

A more accurate source of reliable information is NIPS Key Performance Measurement information. This was only introduced in 2013.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the required levels of staff of each grade for (i) HMP Maghaberry; (ii) HMP Magilligan; and (iii) HMP Hydebank.
(AQW 35367/11-15)

Mr Ford: The current Target Staffing Level (the number of staff required to carry out the work in each establishment) figures are set out in the table below.

Grade	Target Staffing Level (Maghaberry)	Target Staffing Level (Magilligan)	Target Staffing Level (Hydebank)
Governor	1	0	0
Functional Head	5	3	3
Unit Manager	8	5	4
Senior Officer	70	33	25
Officers	272	111	98
Operational Support Grades	3	9	7
Night Custody Officers	56	24	16
Custody Prison Officers	324	122	103
General Service Grades	98	54	44
Support Staff	24	7	6
Total	861	368	306

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the current levels of staff of each grade for (i) HMP Maghaberry; (ii) HMP Magilligan; and (iii) HMP Hydebank.
(AQW 35368/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Staff in Post (Full Time Equivalent) figures, as of 1 August 2014, are as follows:

Grade	Staff in Post (Maghaberry)	Staff in Post (Magilligan)	Staff in Post (Hydebank)
Governor	1	0	0
Functional Head	5	3	3
Unit Manager	6	6	4
Senior Officer	55	28	24
Officers	252	128	100
Operational Support Grades	3	9	7
Night Custody Officers	56	24	16
Custody Prison Officers	310	103	66
General Service Grades	97	54	48
Support Staff	27	10	6
Total	812	365	274

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Justice what plans his Department has to provide resource funding for The Street Angels project in Omagh; and for his assessment of the value of the work undertaken by this project to date.

(AQW 35386/11-15)

Mr Ford: I understand that the Omagh Policing and Community Safety Partnership (PCSP) has committed £17,555 from its 2013/15 budget to support the Omagh Street Safe Project. It has also been awarded £10,000 for the period 2013/15 from my Department's Asset Recovery Scheme.

The funding provided to Omagh PCSP by my Department and the Policing Board is aimed at supporting the PCSP in delivering its objectives with regard to improving community safety and building community confidence in policing in the local area. However, any decision on how that funding is allocated is a matter for Omagh PCSP, on the basis of consultation, community engagement and research carried out to identify local priorities. My Department currently has no plans to allocate any further specific funding to this project.

The Omagh Street Safe Project commenced in November 2013 and, as a relatively recent night time economy intervention, an outcome impact evaluation of the project is yet to be commissioned. However, early project monitoring reports from Omagh PCSP indicate that this initiative makes a valuable contribution as part of a multi-agency approach to reducing alcohol related harm, protecting health and reducing crime and anti-social behaviour linked to the Omagh town centre night life.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether serving prison or police officers are prohibited from discussing employment-related matters with MLAs or any other elected representatives; and if so, where this is stated in their employment contract; and if not, to provide an assurance that such measures cannot be imposed.

(AQW 35438/11-15)

Mr Ford: Prison officers are not precluded from approaching elected representatives. However, the Standards of Conduct chapter of the Northern Ireland Civil Service HR Handbook, which applies to prison officers, states that if staff are dissatisfied on a personal matter they should approach their line manager or raise the matter through established policies. Staff are informed they must not attempt to bring political or other outside influence to bear in support of personal claims as a Civil Servant.

Police officers are not precluded from approaching elected representatives. They do not have a contract of employment, but are bound by the PSNI Code of Ethics and the Official Secrets Act. Provided that the discussions are not inconsistent with the obligations set out in both of these documents, then there is no reason why employment-related matters cannot be discussed.

Generally, staff would not be permitted to discuss any matter that is part of an employment law settlement, or indeed any settlement, which has confidentiality as one of its terms. In such circumstances staff would not be at liberty to discuss any matter covered by the settlement.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice why the tender for drug testing in the Prison Service has not been published.

(AQW 35440/11-15)

Mr Ford: I would refer the Member to the reply I gave to AQW/35311 /11-15 on 17 September 2014.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice what measures exist to prevent convicted prisoners contacting or harassing victims or procuring others to carry out actions on their behalf; and whether mail, telephone calls, text messages, email and social media is monitored.

(AQW 35441/11-15)

Mr Ford: There are a number of measures in place to prevent prisoner's contacting or harassing victims. All prisoners must provide numbers and contact details for anyone they wish to contact via the internal pin-phone telephone system; these numbers are verified before contact is permitted.

Telephone calls and prisoner mail are also monitored and necessary action taken where appropriate.

Mobile phones are not permitted within any establishment. Internet access is strictly controlled for educational purposes only.

Any prisoner caught in possession of a mobile phone or attempting to use another prisoner's pin-phone account will be charged under prison rules.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the extent of consultation with police charities on the decision to place £383,000 from HM Treasury into a new police museum to honour the Part-Time Reserve.

(AQW 35444/11-15)

Mr Ford: Officials from my Department sought the views of the RUC GC Foundation, the RUC-PSNI Benevolent Fund, the Disabled Police Officers' Association Northern Ireland and the Retired Police Officers' Association, on the disbursement of the £383,000. This £383,000 relates to the unallocated amount from the Police Reserve Gratuity Scheme.

Following further discussions, and taking account of views, I decided to make this funding available to the Police Museum to publicly mark the service and dedication of the Part Time Reserve.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice what impact the additional £383,000 of HM Treasury funding will have on the new Police Museum following the allocation of £5.59m to this project.

(AQW 35445/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Department allocated up to £5.5m to the Police Museum following approval of the Outline Business Case (OBC) in July 2012. The additional £383,000 allocated to the Museum relates to the unallocated amount from the Police Part Time Reserve Gratuity Scheme.

I have made this funding available to the Police Museum to publicly mark the service and dedication of the Part Time Reserve and provide a lasting and enduring tribute to their role in policing in Northern Ireland.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the total Legal Aid paid to date and the projected final Legal Aid costings in cases (a) 13/099496; (b)13/099497; (c) 13/099503; (d) 13/099511; (e) 13/099513; (f) 13/099517; (g) 13/099519; (h) 13/099521; (i) 13/099522; (j) 13/099498; and (k) 13/099510, all collectively 14/084646 at Dungannon Magistrates Court; and (ii) the number of law firms instructed, including Junior and Senior Counsel.

(AQW 35457/11-15)

Mr Ford:

- (i) To date a total of £780.00 (inclusive of VAT of £130.00) has been paid to four solicitors in respect of Magistrates' Court proceedings in the above cases.

The Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission has estimated that the total cost of the Magistrates' Court proceedings (including those fees already paid) will be £19,428.00 (inclusive of VAT of £3,238.00).

It is not possible, at this stage, to estimate the final costs payable for the Crown Court proceedings and no pleas have been entered.

- (ii) In the Magistrates' Court, legal aid was granted to a total of nine separate solicitors; nine junior counsel were instructed in the course of these proceedings. To date, seven separate solicitors have been engaged for the Crown Court proceedings.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether the timing of the re-tendering process for drug testing in local prisons is determined by the Scottish Prison Service.

(AQW 35458/11-15)

Mr Ford: The contract for Drug Testing used by NIPS is maintained by Scottish Prison Service (SPS). The timing for retendering is a matter for SPS.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to provide a copy of the report into the investigation of a collapsed trial in 2010 relating to allegations including assaults on police, connected to an illegal republican parade in Rosslea, County Fermanagh which was dismissed after the prosecution counsel failed to appear at court.

(AQW 35460/11-15)

Mr Ford: The issues raised are matters for the Public Prosecution Service (PPS). I am committed to respecting the independence of the PPS.

You may therefore wish to direct your question to the PPS.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to provide the Terms of Reference for the review being carried out into the August 2010 agreement reached with dissident republicans in Roe House at Maghaberry Prison.

(AQW 35480/11-15)

Mr Ford: Following a recommendation by the Prisoner Ombudsman I initiated the Stocktake of the implementation of the August 2010 agreement. I expect to receive the report at the end of September.

I have provided a copy of the Terms of Reference for the Stocktake with this response.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice who initiated the 'stocktake' exercise at Roe House in Maghaberry Prison; and when it will be completed.

(AQW 35481/11-15)

Mr Ford: Following a recommendation by the Prisoner Ombudsman I initiated the Stocktake of the implementation of the August 2010 agreement. I expect to receive the report at the end of September.

I have provided a copy of the Terms of Reference for the Stocktake with this response.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to outline the business case for the proposed refurbishment of the visitors facility, including the segregated visitors facility, at Maghaberry Prison; and what steps are being taken to ensure the facilities are compliant with Home Office specifications to maximise security.

(AQW 35483/11-15)

Mr Ford: The objectives outlined in the approved business case for the refurbishment of the visiting area at Maghaberry Prison are:

- To refurbish the current visits area of Maghaberry in order to meet the needs of the increasing population.
- To update the current layout to improve visibility and acoustics and ensure the design of tables meets security needs and the overall layout is aesthetic; and,
- To improve the current visits area to accommodate more visits and make the experience better for those visiting as recommended in the inspection of Maghaberry Prison in March 2012 by Criminal Justice Inspectorate Northern Ireland.

The new facilities have been designed to provide what NIPS considers to be appropriate levels of security, which are equivalent to Home Office design standards for prisons.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of Justice what supervisory mechanisms exist in the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland's office to ensure statutory compliance with the procedures that have been laid down for its operation.

(AQW 35501/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Office of the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland is operationally independent of the Department. However I am advised by its Chief Executive that the office has a number of mechanisms in place to make sure it delivers on its statutory obligations under the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 1998. These include the Quality and Standards Board; supervision by senior investigation officers; and review by senior management including the Police Ombudsman. A customer complaints procedure exists which allows those unhappy with any aspect of an investigation carried out by the Office to have their case reviewed.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister of Justice what professional supervision exists in the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland's office to ensure the evidential accuracy of its reports.

(AQW 35502/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Office of the Police Ombudsman is operationally independent of my Department. However, I am advised by its Chief Executive that statements and reports of investigations carried out by the Office are subject to rigorous quality control measures throughout their lifespan. Professional supervision by a senior investigating officer, or deputy, continues during the course of the investigation, with intervention where appropriate. Upon completion of the investigation, a report is produced and its content scrutinised by a group of senior staff, including the Police Ombudsman and Chief Executive. All reports intended for publication will be sent to the PSNI for them to check for factual inaccuracies.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice why the Northern Ireland Police Fund has not yet implemented the recommendations of the Steele Report that those 'directly affected by terrorism' could be clients of the fund.

(AQW 35510/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Police Fund is operationally independent of the Department of Justice. I note however that the Steele Report's primary recommendation on the scope of the Police Fund stated that it "should be limited in its coverage to deaths and injuries caused directly by terrorist violence". This was consistent with paragraph 10.20 of the Report of the Independent Commission on Policing in Northern Ireland, recommending that the Fund be established. The further recommendation that the Fund should support those 'directly affected by terrorism' must be interpreted in that context.

Paragraph 44 of the Steele Report noted that "it will of course be for the Fund itself to interpret its role in practice".

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice to detail under what circumstances funding for the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland was withheld, despite satisfactory annual accounts and other identifiable groups which struggled to be granted funding.

(AQW 35512/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Disabled Police Officers' Association of Northern Ireland receives funding from one of my Department's arm's-length bodies, the Northern Ireland Police Fund. The Fund is operationally independent of the Department: however, I am advised by its Chief Executive that, when an allegation of fraud was received, further funding was withheld pending the outcome of a Charity Commission investigation.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Justice to detail (i) the number of staff employed in his Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35513/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Department of Justice came into existence on the 12 April 2010 and information can only be provided from this date.

The information requested can be found in the tables attached at Annex A and Annex B.

Figures provided in Annex B include basic salary only, and do not include any allowances, overtime or employer costs.

- NICTS transferred on to HR Connect payroll with effect from 1st November 2013. Salary costs from this date are included in Table 2.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice to detail the number of visits made by political representatives from Dáil Éireann and Seanad Éireann to dissident republicans in Maghaberry Prison in (i) 2012; (ii) 2013; and (iii) 2014.

(AQW 35531/11-15)

Mr Ford: Political representatives from Dáil Éireann and Seanad Éireann have visited Maghaberry Prison on one occasion in 2012, on one occasion in 2013 and on three occasions to date in 2014.

Mr Givan asked the Minister of Justice what procedures exist for requests from politicians outside of the United Kingdom entering Northern Ireland prisons and meeting prisoners.

(AQW 35532/11-15)

Mr Ford: The procedures are contained in the Northern Ireland Prisons Standing Orders. Standing Order 5.7.3 General Interest Visits – Elected Representatives states: General interest visits to prisons in Northern Ireland may be considered by the Department of Justice to groups of elected representatives. Any such requests received should be communicated to NIPS HQ who will liaise with Private Office.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, in relation to case number 12/087229 and 12/087230 at Downpatrick Magistrates Court, to detail (i) the dates on which this case has been listed, and for what reason; (ii) the reasons for the delay; and (iii) whether a Legal Aid certificate has been granted; and if so, (a) the total has been paid to date and the estimated final cost; and (b) whether an extension has been granted to cover counsel.

(AQW 35537/11-15)

Mr Ford: The defendant in case numbers 12/087229 and 12/087230 has not applied for Legal Aid. A timeline of the court hearings and the adjournment reasons are detailed in the table below.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice how many complaints have been made of harassment, including threats or menacing communicated by or at the behest of prisoners, broken down by (i) prison facility; (ii) how communication took place; and (iii) the subsequent action taken, in each of the last three calendar years.

(AQW 35538/11-15)

Mr Ford: There is no record of any specific complaints of harassment, threats or menacing communications.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 32575/11-15, to detail (i) whether this is an accurate response given it is a matter of public record that the original contracted term expired on 31 August 2013; and (ii) the departmental source or agency that drafted the reply.

(AQW 35539/11-15)

Mr Ford:

- (i) I would refer the Member to the reply I gave him on 17 September 2014.
- (ii) The reply to AQW/32575/11-15 was drafted by Northern Ireland Prison Service, Security Information Branch.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice why a former prisoner at the Prisoner Assessment Unit (PAU) has been permitted to return to Burren House despite assurances from the Prison Service that this would not be the case, and particularly in light of offending being committed whilst resident in the PAU.

(AQW 35540/11-15)

Mr Ford: NIPS can confirm that no prisoner formerly located at the Prisoner Assessment Unit, Belfast has been permitted to return to the Working Out Unit, Burren House.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice why the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland has to identify Police Fund clients individually, when the Benevolent Fund is only required to provide numbers.

(AQW 35559/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Police Fund is operationally independent of the Department. However, I am advised by its Chief Executive that it encourages organisations seeking funding to provide information on client participation as fully as possible, without seeking to place disproportionate burdens on those bodies. Given the relatively small membership of the Disabled Police Officers' Association of Northern Ireland, it was felt useful to ask it to identify Police Fund clients individually. In contrast, the Benevolent Fund has several thousand members. To provide accurate figures on its clientele in the same manner would be a considerably larger, more complex and disproportionate exercise.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether prisoners who abscond whilst on temporary leave are re-sentenced and returned to custody when they are detected; and if not, why this is not regarded as a crime.

(AQW 35611/11-15)

Mr Ford: All instances of prisoners being unlawfully at large (UAL) will be reported to PSNI.

Sentenced prisoners who fail to return from a period of temporary leave at the appointed time will be subject to adjudication for breach of prison rules.

Sentenced prisoners UAL for a considerable period are considered for prosecution: the offence carries a sentence of up to two years. Those prisoners UAL for a period greater than 24 hours will have all days UAL added to their current sentence. These days will be served on return to prison, even if their Custody Expiry Date or Earliest Date of Release has passed.

There are no temporary release arrangements for untried prisoners. It is a matter for the courts to decide whether Compassionate Bail or Bail is granted to untried prisoners.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice (i) on how many occasions during 2013 and 2014 to date has the Northern Ireland Prison Service conducted drugs searches and recovered legal highs; (ii) of these how many were found to be within the banned substance category allowing for charge or penalty; and (iii) of these how many were adjudicated.

(AQW 35612/11-15)

Mr Ford: I refer the member to the response provided on 17 September to AQW/35310/11-15.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, in light of the Prisoner Ombudsman report into the death in custody of Mr David Brown, why two new recruit officers who were four weeks out of training were left without senior officer supervision or experienced support; and why these officers were unable to cope with the situation.

(AQW 35613/11-15)

Mr Ford: An experienced Senior Officer was available to support the two operational officers who were involved in this tragic incident. The role of Senior Officers is not to provide direct supervision.

The Prisoner Ombudsman made three recommendations directly to NIPS as a result of his investigation into the death of Mr David Brown, including a recommendation that NIPS should ensure that all its new recruits are able to identify potential emergencies, and act swiftly and appropriately upon them. Each of the recommendations has been accepted and implemented.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Justice what steps his department has taken to assist farmers in protecting their farms and livestock from crime.

(AQW 35641/11-15)

Mr Ford: Building safer rural communities is an important commitment for my Department and tackling this issue relies on strong partnership working across and beyond Government.

At a strategic level, this is carried out through the work of the Rural Crime Partnership, which comprises representatives of the PSNI, NFU Mutual, the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development and my Department. The Partnership has developed a range of dedicated initiatives designed to tackle agri-crime. These include the establishment of the Rural Crime Unit, which provides a dedicated Data Analyst resource to identify trends and patterns in rural crime and agricultural crime to assist District Commanders in developing their operational decisions and targeting the deployment of police resources. This information also informs the work of the Rural Crime Partnership in the development of crime prevention initiatives.

In July 2014, after a successful pilot in E and F policing districts in which over £1.7 million of farming equipment was fitted with security devices, the Rural Crime Partnership rolled out a regional initiative to encourage the fitting of TRACKER devices to farm machinery to combat thefts.

At a local level, my Department supports Policing and Community Safety Partnerships in rural areas to, where appropriate, develop and deliver tailored solutions to address rural crime. Actions being delivered include Farm Watch schemes, trailer marking, 4 Tier Security schemes, CCTV schemes and Neighbourhood Watch schemes.

In addition, my Department is currently working with the Ulster Farmers' Union to support their delivery of a rural crime conference, which is being held in November.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Justice whether he will make representations to the United States Administration to help with the removal of barriers to the travel into and out of America of former prisoners and their extended families.

(AQW 35645/11-15)

Mr Ford: I have no plans to make representations to the US Government on this issue, which is a matter that would fall under the responsibilities of the UK Government. I understand however there are processes in place to allow those who are refused entry to the United States of America on the grounds of a previous conviction to seek a waiver on such a decision.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice whether his Department has completed a retention and disposal schedule for records; and if so, has it been properly enacted upon by his Department and its arm's-length bodies.

(AQW 35655/11-15)

Mr Ford: My Department has had approved retention and disposal schedules for records since January 2012. The current version has been in operation since June 2014, and is available on the website:

(see www.dojni.gov.uk/index/publications/publication-categories/pubs-departmental-business/doj-departmental-business/doj-policies-and-procedures/doj_retention_and_disposal_schedule.pdf).

In accordance with the practice of the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland (PRONI), this schedule applies to the Department and its Executive Agencies; PRONI deals with arms-length bodies separately.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Justice to outline any legislation covering the use of private CCTV cameras based on property.

(AQW 35657/11-15)

Mr Ford: The use of CCTV is covered by the Data Protection Act (1998). The Information Commissioner has provided a CCTV Code of Practice which provides guidance and advice for CCTV users on how to comply with the Act.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether allowing the contract for drug-testing in the Northern Ireland Prison Service to expire without a re-tendering process having been commenced is in line with procurement best practice.

(AQW 35666/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Drug Testing contract used by NIPS is administered by Scottish Prison Service (SPS). SPS have informed NIPS that the contract has been extended until February 2015 to allow them to prepare for re-tendering.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice (i) to list the dates of the meetings he, or his departmental officials, attended relating to police pensions; (ii) whether a Northern Ireland based lawyer was present or represented Staff Side at any of these consultations and discussions; (iii) whether minutes were taken at the meetings; (iv) if not, why none were taken; and; (v) if minutes were taken, whether they have been supplied to the Police Federation of Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35671/11-15)

Mr Ford: The dates upon which my officials attended meetings relating to police pensions are listed at Annex A.

Minutes are recorded for meetings of the Police Negotiating Board (PNB), PNB Pensions Working Party and the Police Advisory Board for Northern Ireland. However, in line with normal practice such consultations are carried out in confidence. Minutes of these meetings are distributed to members of each of the Boards listed above. Their membership includes the Police Federation of Northern Ireland.

Meetings of the PNB Police Technical Working Group are of a very detailed and technical nature and consider the minutiae of any proposed changes to the police pension scheme. These meetings are not chaired or minuted.

With regard to legal representation, the Police Federation of Northern Ireland have advised that PNB Staff Side, which represents all United Kingdom Staff Associations in the consultation i.e. England and Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, was represented by one Legal Team. The Legal Team was and is not Northern Ireland specific, but represents all the constituent members of Staff Side PNB.

Mr D McIlveen asked the Minister of Justice what is the current time limit for the result of a Court of Appeal case to be heard; and how many times this limit has been breached in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35681/11-15)

Mr Ford: The setting of timescales for the delivery of Court of Appeal judgments is a matter for the Lord Chief Justice. His Guidance on the delivery of judgments states that in cases where it is not possible to give an ex tempore judgment, the vast majority of judgments should be delivered within days or weeks of the conclusion of the proceedings. In longer or more complex cases, Judges should aim to deliver judgment within three months.

Information about the time taken to deliver Court of Appeal judgments is not routinely collated, however, from the start of the legal year on 5 September 2013 to 12 September 2014 the Court of Appeal has heard 114 appeals. In the cases where judgment has been delivered, the average time taken is 11 working days. The table below sets out the time taken to deliver these judgments and the cases where judgment is outstanding:

Time Taken	Number
Delivered on the day ("ex tempore" or judgment delivered and reasons reserved)	60
Within two weeks	20
two weeks to three months	23
Over three months	7
To be delivered	4
Total	114

Mr Craig asked the Minister of Justice, given his Department's withdrawal of guidance on injury on duty pensions in Northern Ireland following legal challenges in mainland UK, to outline the timescales in which he will provide new guidelines for these pensions.

(AQW 35730/11-15)

Mr Ford: I should clarify that the guidance on injury on duty pensions remains in place. The Department, like the Home Office, withdrew only Annex A to the guidance, as this was the section directly affected by the legal challenges.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, given that Section 75 is grounded on equality, to what extent can persons within, or considering themselves to be within, Section 75, use this as mitigation for, or as, a defence in criminal proceedings.

(AQW 35765/11-15)

Mr Ford: Section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 does not apply to decision-making in court or by prosecutors. There are defences that an individual may seek to rely on, or mitigating factors that he or she may raise at the point of sentencing. However, these are not available as a result of section 75, but as part of a wide body of criminal law and sentencing practice.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, in light of recently published figures of 452 drugs finds at Maghaberry Prison in 2013, how many of the finds were (i) banned substances; (ii) prescription drugs held unlawfully; and (iii) banned and legal so-called legal highs.

(AQW 35770/11-15)

Mr Ford: It would not be possible to provide the information as required without disproportionate cost. The NIPS does not differentiate between banned substances and so called 'legal highs' which are not permitted in prison.

Those occasions where substances are found, and can be attributed to an individual are referred to PSNI. These substances are analysed for evidential purposes in regard to prosecutions.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice under what authority his Department's Security Branch allowed the Charity Commission access to the private offices of the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35816/11-15)

Mr Ford: A member of staff from my Department attended the premises of the Disabled Police Officers' Association to give general advice to Association members. His access was on the invitation of and in the presence of the Charity Commission and two trustees of the Association.

Department for Regional Development

Mrs Hale asked the Minister for Regional Development whether there are plans to upgrade the street lighting surrounding Moira Train Station.

(AQW 29893/11-15)

Mr Kennedy (The Minister for Regional Development): In order to best target the finite resources available for the provision and upgrading of street lighting in rural areas, it is necessary to establish certain criteria. These relate to the density of development along a road, or where it is likely to help at sites that have a significant history of night-time collisions.

The area surrounding Moira train station is rural in nature and street lighting is situated at either side of the train station, in the direction of Glenavy as far as the Chestnut Hill Road junction and in the direction of Moira as far as the bridge near Ballycanal Holiday homes. My Department's assessment of the locations beyond those areas already lit is that they fall short of the minimum criteria required and consequently it are no plans to either install or upgrade the street lighting at this particular location.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Regional Development (i) on what date was his Department first notified that the street lighting in Tamnamore was on 24 hours a day; (ii) when action was taken to address this issue; and (iii) what is the estimated cost of this wastage.

(AQW 35228/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department was notified on 11 July 2014 that a street lighting column had been damaged by a vehicle. As this particular column contains a light sensor that controls a group of the lights in the area, a decision had to be made whether to leave all the lights on until the damage could be repaired or to turn all of the lights off. My officials decided the interests of the public would be better served by leaving the lights on until the repair could be carried out. A work instruction to replace the damaged column was issued to the contractor on 11 July 2014 and the repair work was carried out on 12 August 2014.

With regard to cost, my Department pays a fixed annual charge for street lights based on different types and wattages of the lanterns. This low increase in usage of a relatively small number of lanterns (27 out of a total stock of over 276,000) does not affect the agreed rates and therefore there will be no additional cost to the Department associated with the decision to leave the street lights on until repairs were carried out.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Regional Development how much has been paid out by his Department in each Road Service Division for public liability claims, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35249/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Details of Public Liability claims compensation paid out in each Transport NI (formerly Roads Service) Division in each of the last five financial years are set out in the table below:

Public Liability Compensation

Fin. Year	2009/2010	2010/2011	2011/2012	2012/2013	2013/2014
Eastern	£858,857	£897,172	£1,033,245	£856,041	£1,090,121
Northern	£285,447	£681,571	£356,776	£261,783	£455,554
Southern	£546,623	£569,880	£641,746	£736,308	£638,085
Western	£277,270	£180,969	£264,428	£216,205	£234,057
Totals	£1,968,197	£2,329,592	£2,296,195	£2,070,337	£2,417,816

The amount of expenditure paid in any specific year does not necessarily relate to claims received in that year, as there may be a time delay between the date a claim is received and the date it is settled.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Regional Development how many complaints about potholes have been made to each Roads Service Division; and how many requests have been made for the resurfacing of roads owing to road defects, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35250/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Unfortunately, my Department does not hold the information in the format requested. However, my Department does maintain a record of the number of defects detected, which includes potholes, during routine safety inspections. The table below sets out the total number of defects recorded, in each Transport NI Division, in the last three years:

Number of Recorded Defects

	10/11	11/12	12/13
Northern	53329	42762	36358
Southern	73887	74590	69971
Eastern	44227	42426	38332
Western	68233	59987	52078
Total	239676	219765	196739

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Regional Development how many parking ticket fines remain unpaid in each Roads Service Division from each of the last three years.

(AQW 35251/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department does not maintain this information in the format requested.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development what action he is taking to resolve the delay of the new Millisle Sewage pumping station.

(AQW 35304/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The commencement of construction of the Millisle Sewerage Pumping Station continues to be delayed owing to legal negotiations and site purchasing processes taking longer than anticipated. This is due to the preferred site's shoreline location and the need to satisfy the interests of the two existing landowners, Ards Borough Council and Crown Estates, in respect of title, conveyancing and leasing arrangements. Both Ards Borough Council and Crown Estates are aware of the urgency of the project and of the benefits that it will provide for the local community.

In order to complete the purchase and bring the project to construction as soon as possible, NI Water is continuing to engage with all interested parties on the outstanding matters that are presently outside of its direct control.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister for Regional Development, further to the Private Members' Motion on 4 February 2013 on school transport, and pursuant to AQW 23441/11-15, whether the Department for Education has sought to engage with his Department in relation to the Review of the Home to School Transport policy, and in particular with respect to the feasibility of providing free public transport for all school pupils.

(AQW 35344/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department has provided the Department of Education's Home to School Transport Review Team with briefing and information on the policy and operations of the public transport system in Northern Ireland. Translink has also provided briefing to the Review Team. My Department is also working with a number of other organisations on a pilot project to trial the better integration of publicly funded passenger transport services in the Dungannon area. The organisations involved include the Department of Education, The Southern Education and Library Board, the Department of the Environment, the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, the Health and Social Care Board, the Southern Health Trust, the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development, Translink, community transport and the Federation of Passenger Transport. The Departments are all involved in the evaluation of the pilot and in the appraisal of the options for wider implementation.

The public transport and home to school transport systems in Northern Ireland are closely linked as Translink transports around 60% of pupils who are currently eligible for home to school travel assistance. Translink currently receives substantial contract income from the education authorities for the provision of home to school transport. The cost involved will need to be reimbursed in the future under any existing or new arrangements, if services are to be maintained. Therefore, when the Department of Education review is finalised, my Department will need to be involved in decisions about the implications of any proposed changes.

The Department and the Public Health Agency have jointly awarded a delivery project to Sustrans to provide a programme of cycle and walking skills training to pupils in 180 schools across Northern Ireland over a three year period. Now in its second year, the objective of this programme is to encourage school pupils to adopt cycling and walking as their main mode of transport to and from school, with the overall aim of improving health and fitness levels of all participants.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development what action he is taking to remove illegal Republican road side monuments.

(AQW 35369/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I can assure the Member neither I nor my Department approves of, or support the unauthorised use of Departmental property for illegally erected roadside memorials.

Memorials erected without lawful authority have much in common with other unauthorised activities, such as kerb and lamp post painting, and have the potential to create tension within local communities as well as posing a risk to those tasked with their removal.

As was the practice under my predecessors Mr Conor Murphy MP, Mr Gregory Campbell MP and Mr Peter Robinson MLA, my officials do not remove terrorist commemorations on departmental controlled or associated property unless road safety is being compromised, or there are clear indications that action to remove them would have widespread local support.

Unauthorised memorials on the property of the Department's arms-length bodies are matters for the Boards of those organisations.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development what discussions have taken place between North Down Borough Council and NI Water on the sale of Portavoe reservoir.

(AQW 35370/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: NI Water representatives have held a number of meetings with both North Down and Ards Borough Councils regarding Portavoe Reservoir. At the last meeting on 25 April 2014 the possibility of the Councils acquiring the reservoir was discussed and the representatives of the Councils advised that they were considering their position. Council representatives indicated that a decision may not be made until the new Council arrangements are established in 2015.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many reservoirs are deemed surplus to requirements.

(AQW 35371/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: NI Water currently has 26 impounding reservoirs which have been declared surplus to requirements.

Mr Moutray asked the Minister for Regional Development to outline the costs associated with the change of name from Roads Service to transportni.

(AQW 35374/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I can confirm there are no costs associated with the change of name from Roads Service to Transport NI. Changes have been made to electronic templates at no cost, and signage and other changes have been phased in as old stocks have run out and been replaced, or when vehicles are being serviced. Branding of new plant and equipment is already included in the purchase price.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development what proposals there are to build more park and ride spaces over the next two years.

(AQW 35380/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: As you are aware, my Department's Park & Ride Programme Board has prepared a "Park & Ride Strategic Delivery Programme 2013-15", which is a prioritised schedule of Park & Ride projects with clearly defined responsibilities for funding, implementation, maintenance and operation. The aim of this Programme is to deliver at least an additional 1,000 spaces across Northern Ireland. To date, over 600 additional spaces have been provided under the Programme with a further 750 spaces scheduled to be completed by 31 March 2015.

My Department is currently considering the options for the delivery of additional Park & Ride and Park & Share facilities post 2015, when the current programme expires. This future programme is likely to include the completion of some sites from the current programme, totalling approximately 1,500 spaces, together with the development of other new facilities. The scale of the Park & Ride proposals post 2015 will be dependent on the availability of funding.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development what percentage of this year's departmental budget for roads infrastructure will go towards cycling specific infrastructure.

(AQW 35381/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department anticipates spending approximately £725,000 on cycling measures this financial year, which equates to around 5% of the Local Transport and Safety Measures allocation. In addition, I have secured £1 million of funding for infrastructure works related to the Active Schools Travel Programme. Schools that would benefit from improvements are currently being identified and the scale of work required is currently being assessed.

I expect to bid again for an additional £1 million for cycling infrastructure in the October monitoring round. A previous bid in the June monitoring round for this funding was not met. Future years' bidding for capital cycling funding will be in the region of £3 million for 2015/16 rising to £5 million in 2019/20.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development how his Department has developed greenways in North Antrim.

(AQW 35453/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Historically, Transport NI has prioritised the implementation of cycling measures in accordance with the blueprints of the Sub Regional Transport Plan 2015, utilising land within or alongside the existing road network. Local councils have generally taken the lead in developing greenways, which by their nature are often remote from the existing road network. However, Transport NI has liaised with both Ballymoney and Moyle councils in relation to potential links to such provision, where appropriate.

My Department's Cycling Unit is considering the potential to improve cycling provision in urban areas, starting with Belfast, and to support the development of greenways throughout Northern Ireland making use of former canal towpaths and disused railways, where possible.

I believe that, initially, there is scope to develop a 'Greenway spine' as part of the proposed Eurovelo route from Belfast to Londonderry (via North Armagh) using existing paths along the Lagan and linking to the existing Newry Canal towpath route. This would provide new routes for commuting but would also develop opportunities for boosting the local economy and improving provision for leisure, recreation and tourism. Following this, consideration would be given to providing Greenway connections to other areas such as North Antrim.

It is worth noting that Transport NI continues to maintain a considerable portion of the National Cycle Network, which traverses North Antrim. This is a comprehensive network of safe and attractive cycling routes developed by the charity Sustrans. In Northern Ireland the Network extends to more than 800 miles and includes 106 miles of traffic free paths.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the reasons for the delay in scheduled grass cutting in North Down.

(AQW 35465/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The Member will be aware of my recent announcement of the significant budget shortfall my Department is facing and its consequences. This shortfall has resulted in a suspension of work being issued to external contractors covering work functions such as footway and carriageway patching, grass cutting and environmental maintenance, road marking maintenance and renewal, traffic sign maintenance and replacement and repair to street lights which fail, unless they pose an electrical hazard to members of the public.

My Department's Operations and Maintenance staff will endeavour to keep the road network in as safe a condition as possible, however, given the limited resources available, they will not be able to provide the full service the public would expect in normal circumstances.

My Operations and Maintenance staff are currently carrying out the third cut of the season in the North Down area.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister for Regional Development to outline the proposals to create more Park and Ride spaces in South Antrim, in the next three years.

(AQW 35475/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: As you are aware, my Department's Park & Ride Programme Board has prepared a "Park & Ride Strategic Delivery Programme 2013-15", which is a prioritised schedule of Park & Ride projects with clearly defined responsibilities for funding, implementation, maintenance and operation. The aim of this Programme is to deliver at least an additional 1,000 spaces across Northern Ireland. To date over 600 additional spaces have been provided under the Programme, with a further 750 spaces scheduled to be completed by 31 March 2015.

My Department is currently considering the options for the delivery of additional Park & Ride and Park & Share facilities post 2015, when the current programme expires. This future programme is likely to include the completion of some sites from the current programme, totalling approximately 1,500 spaces, together with the development of other new facilities. The 1,500 additional spaces include around 420 spaces at a new Park & Ride facility at Ballymartin, Templepatrick. A number of additional projects are also currently under consideration, including extension of the rail-based facility at Mossley West. The scale of the Park & Ride proposals post 2015 will be dependent on the availability of funding.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister for Regional Development how many (a) churches; (b) community organisations; and (c) businesses have been impacted by Northern Ireland Water's failure to charge the full amount for water bills.

(AQW 35506/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The number of accounts which have been impacted by the addition of retrospective charges to water and sewerage bills between 1 April 2012 and 31st March 2014 are (a) 21 churches, (b) 36 community organisations and (c) 1020 businesses.

NI Water fully appreciates that retrospective charges are unwelcome, however the company has a duty to levy and recover costs for services provided. They also have a responsibility to ensure that all non-domestic customers are billed fairly and accurately. As a body which has a responsibility to manage public money, NI Water must ensure that costs for services which have been provided over a number of years at the public expense are recouped.

NI Water has a range of measures in place to accommodate customers who may face genuine hardship with paying a bill. Various payment plans can be discussed with its' Billing team.

Mr Wilson asked the Minister for Regional Development whether community organisations who have been levied for back payments for water bills, as a result of the failure of Northern Ireland Water to monitor the usage of water on their premises, have made representations to his Department.

(AQW 35507/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I can confirm that no representations have been made by community organisations directly to my Department during 2012/13 and 2013/14 in relation to retrospective billing of water charges.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail (i) the number of staff employed in his Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35515/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The table below contains details of the number staff employed by my Department (headcount and full time equivalent) at 1 April in each of the last four financial years. Basic salary details are broken down by grade and include information for analogous grades.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development why local residents were not informed of the new sewerage facility at Clandeboye Primary School prior to the commencement of works.

(AQW 35528/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Work on the new sewerage facility has not yet commenced, although some preparations have taken place such as the erection of a temporary fence at Clandeboye Primary School to comply with Child Protection and Health and Safety procedures. This permits safe access to the site in order to survey and undertake trial holes prior to the commencement of construction works and was agreed with school representatives. Subject to obtaining the necessary statutory approvals, it is anticipated that construction work will commence in November 2014.

Northern Ireland Water has held a number of meetings with Clandeboye Primary School and local residents to discuss the planned works. Initial discussions were held with the School in December 2013, and a further meeting was held with the Clandeboye Residents' Association, including representatives of the school and local Church affected by the works, in February 2014. A full public meeting to address local concerns was held on 15 May 2014 at which it was agreed that a further public meeting will be held on appointment of a contractor and prior to commencement of work on site. The Senior Project Manager responsible for delivery of the project will provide an update to the Clandeboye Inter Agency Group Meeting, which includes representatives of the local residents' group, on 16 September 2014.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much his Department spent on creating new roads, in each of the last two years.

(AQW 35529/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Details of my Department's outturn allocation in the last two financial years, 2012/13 and 2013/14, which relate to creating new roads, are provided in the table below:

Roads Expenditure

Work Activity	Financial Year
	2012/13 (£million)	2013/14 (£million)
Major Road Improvements (includes development, land and works costs)	52.0	76.8
Minor Local Road Improvements and Road Safety (including bridge strengthening and Belfast Rapid Transit)	11.3	21.4

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much his Department spent on creating new footpaths, in each of the last two years.

(AQW 35530/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department undertakes new footway construction through its annual programme of Local Transport Safety Measures. These measures cover areas such as network development, traffic calming, collision remedial and pedestrian measures. Work on new footways is often carried out as part of an overall scheme and, as such, the costs of the footway element is not allocated or captured separately.

New footway schemes are subject to an assessment process that is used to compare and prioritise schemes, which ensures finite resources are directed at those schemes where the needs are greatest.

The Local Transport Safety Measures outturn expenditure for the 2012/13 and 2013/14 financial years was £8.9 million and £16.9 million, respectively.

New footways may also be provided as part of the Department's major road projects, however, the footway costs on these schemes are not captured separately.

Mr Frew asked the Minister for Regional Development, pursuant to AQW 34553/11-15, whether the road sweeper and vacuum tanker available for use in the Ballymena area are sufficient to cover this area; and if these vehicles are owned by his Department or owned privately.

(AQW 35534/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Pursuant to question AQW 34553/11-15, I can advise the Member that the external contractor is no longer being used due to budget cuts. However, Transport NI has been able to reallocate an in-house vacuum tanker for use in the Ballymena area.

Once the drainage systems are all checked and cleaned prior to the incoming winter season, the in-house road sweeper and vacuum tanker should be sufficient to cover normal maintenance work within the Ballymena Borough.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development how much has been spent on, or budgeted for, the rebranding of Roads Service to Transport NI.

(AQW 35551/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I can confirm that no money has been spent on the rebranding of Roads Service to Transport NI nor, are there plans to provide a budget for the rebranding exercise. Changes have been made to electronic templates at no cost and signage and other changes, have been phased in as old stocks have run out and been replaced, or when vehicles are being serviced. Branding of new plant and equipment is already included in the purchase price.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the benefits of rebranding Roads Service to Transport NI.

(AQW 35552/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: With the establishment of Transport NI on 1 April 2013, the Roads Service brand no longer reflected the full role Transport NI plays in facilitating the safe and convenient movement of people and goods throughout Northern Ireland. The benefit of rebranding ensures these key business activities are accurately reflected in the title the business unit now holds.

Transport NI plays a vital role in the success of Northern Ireland and the safety of road users through the delivery of road maintenance services and the management and development of the road network. It also informs the Department's policy development process to ensure measures to encourage safe and sustainable travel are practical and can be delivered.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development why Roads Service have changed their name to Transport NI.

(AQW 35553/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Transport NI was officially established on 1 April 2013, through an internal re-organisation of a number of business units within my Department. It was agreed that the Roads Service brand would be retired and the re-organised business units would officially become known as Transport NI.

I understand that the Roads Service brand has been in place for 40 years and is well known within the communities it serves, however, this title did not adequately reflect the full role the organisation was playing in facilitating the safe and convenient movement of people and goods throughout Northern Ireland.

Transport NI plays a vital role in the success of Northern Ireland and the safety of road users through the delivery of road maintenance services and the management and development of the road network. It also informs the Department's policy development process to ensure that measures to encourage safe and sustainable travel are practical and can be delivered.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the plans for capital works on the Gransha Road roundabout in Bangor.

(AQW 35554/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Transport NI is currently investigating potential works at Gransha Roundabout to enhance pedestrian and traffic movements at this busy intersection.

A preliminary options study report has been received. This report is assisting officials in assessing potential improvements for pedestrians and establishing the best way forward for Gransha Road roundabout. It will take some time for the report to be fully considered and I have asked Mr Simon Richardson, Divisional Manager, Transport NI to apprise you of the outcome.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister for Regional Development whether, in developing the Belfast Rapid Transit ticketing system, he will ensure that passengers using the service will not be penalised if they break their journey to or from the city centre.

(AQW 35557/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The current ticketing system enables passengers to break their journeys through the use of a 'Metro Day Ticket' or a 'DayLink Travel Card', both of which incur an additional charge to that of a single fare. These tickets provide unlimited travel within the Metro area.

The new ticketing system that will be used for Belfast Rapid Transit has not yet been designed, but my Department will want to ensure that it is as flexible as possible in handling passengers' varied travel patterns and that fares are as attractive as possible to users. The cost of tickets for travelling on Belfast Rapid Transit will mirror those available on Metro services.

The options for a new ticketing system are currently being developed by Translink.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development for an update on the return of Portavoe reservoir to its original state. (AQW 35587/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: NI Water's essential reservoir safety maintenance work at Portavoe Reservoir was completed in early August 2014, since then the reservoir has been refilling naturally.

Over 400 live swan mussels were successfully returned to the reservoir on 5 August 2014 and the reservoir is to be stocked with fish in the New Year, in advance of the 2015 angling season. NI Water will continue to work closely with the Department of Culture Arts and Leisure and the Northern Ireland Environment Agency to monitor progress at the site.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to outline his departmental budget for North Down in each of the last three financial years.

(AQW 35590/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department's budget, including that of its arm's-length bodies (Northern Ireland Water and Translink), is not allocated on the basis of council areas.

Estimated expenditure in the North Down Council area for the last three financial years is outlined below.

	2011-12 £'million	2012-13 £'million	2013-14 £'million	Total £'million
Department*	4.9	4.6	5.2	14.7
NI Water	4.6	9.5	6.0	20.1
Translink	55.1	3.2	5.0	63.3
Total	64.6	17.3	16.2	98.1

* Capital and resource expenditure on roads maintenance activities is shown. Details of the works undertaken are available on the Department's website under publications.

 Resource expenditure is not available by council area therefore only capital expenditure is shown.

 Capital investment by Translink includes £50.7 million in 2011-12 on new trains and over the three years a £7.5 million investment in the overhaul of trains. The trains can be used on a number of lines including the Bangor rail line. In 2013-14 Translink invested £1.5 million in new interurban buses operating in the area.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many new vehicles his Department has purchased in each of the last three financial years.

(AQW 35593/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The table below shows the number of vehicles purchased by Transport NI in each of the last three financial years.

Financial Year	Number of vehicles purchased
2011/12	42
2012/13	14
2013/14	18

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the cost of the new vehicles that his Department has purchased in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35594/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The table below shows the cost of vehicles purchased by Transport NI in each of the last three financial years.

Financial Year	Cost (£)
2011/12	2,628,137

Financial Year	Cost (£)
2012/13	1,040,888
2013/14	1,177,240

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development how many Door-2-Door Transport journeys have been carried out in (i) Bangor; and (ii) the rest of North Down, in each of the last five years; and how many customers availed of the service over this period.

(AQW 35598/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The table below sets out the information requested, however please note that the Door-to-Door scheme ceased on 31 March 2013 and the Interim Disability Action Transport Scheme (DATS) operated by Disability Action started on 1 April 2013. Under the DATS service Bangor / Holywood / Newtownards is one operational area and figures in relation to the individual towns is not available.

Year	Bangor Operational Area		Holywood Operational Area
	Individual Journeys	Active Users / Customers	Individual Journeys	Active Users / Customers
2009/2010	17,967	255	1,742	33
2010/2011	20,869	266	2,532	47

2012/2013	19,302	246	2,628	53
2013/2014	17,250	294

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development how many Door-2-Door Transport journeys have been carried out in each of the last five years; and how many customers were carried on the service over this period.

(AQW 35602/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The table below sets out the information requested, however please note that the Door-to-Door scheme ceased on 31 March 2013 and the Interim Disability Action Transport Scheme (DATS) operated by Disability Action started on 1 April 2013.

Year	Individual Journeys	Active Users / Customers
2009/2010	145,684	2,843

Mr A Maginness asked the Minister for Regional Development, pursuant to AQW 31293/11-15, how successful efforts have been to refund motorists who were incorrectly issued with Penalty Charge Notices in Florence Place, Belfast.

(AQW 35620/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: 216 refund letters were issued to customers on 23 April 2014 and the position as at 31 August 2014 is set out in the table below:

Status	Number of Cases
Penalty Charge refunded	116
Vehicle keeper details not held by DVA	8
No driver details (RoI case)	1
Letter undelivered	3

Total	216

Mr Agnew asked the Minister for Regional Development what provisions are going to be made for parking for local residents affected by work on a new sewage pumping station in vicinity of Clandeboye Primary School, Bangor.

(AQW 35624/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Construction work has not commenced at Clandeboye Primary School. At a public meeting with local residents held on 15 May 2014, NI Water agreed to examine the possibility of creating a stoned temporary parking area on land owned by North Down and Ards Borough Councils should this prove necessary during construction. Investigation into the possibility of constructing this temporary parking area is underway.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister for Regional Development for details of the bat survey which was conducted in relation to the new sewage pumping station planned for the vicinity of Clandeboye Primary School, Bangor; and what steps will be taken to ensure the habitats of bats in the area concerned are protected.

(AQW 35625/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: A Bat Survey Report was completed on 28 August 2014. The survey found no evidence of bats roosting in the trees in the proposed location of the new sewerage pumping station.

As a precautionary measure however, NI Water contractors will carry out 'soft felling' for all trees where bats could potentially roost. This method involves trees being felled slowly, for example branch by branch, to minimise any potential harm. In addition, where possible, mature trees will be re-planted and grassland reseeded with native species. Artificial lighting during the construction phase will also be minimised to comply with the guidelines set down by the Bat Conservation Trust.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister for Regional Development what steps will be taken over NI Water's communication with the public in relation to works on reservoirs in North Down; and in regards to work on a new sewage pumping station in the vicinity of Clandeboye Primary School, Bangor.

(AQW 35626/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Northern Ireland Water is constantly reviewing and improving its communications processes with the public and key stakeholders with regard to capital works projects.

It will continue to communicate with the local community in North Down by:

- Letter drops to customers (where relevant) before embarking upon major projects
- E-mail updates to elected representatives as necessary including the dedicated Elected Representative Hotline: 0845 3006461
- Signage at each site displaying its dedicated customer helpline: 08457 440088
- Updates available on the NI Water website at: <http://www.niwater.com/major-infrastructure-investments>
- Press releases at the start of each scheme, including releases on any key milestones or disruption to the public.

NI Water is more than happy to meet with any residents' group or elected representative who have any concerns about any NI Water projects in North Down and will inform all relevant parties as any new scheme gets underway.

NI Water will continue to liaise with the local school and community regarding Clandeboye Pumping Station, and has held several meetings to date regarding this work as detailed in the response to AQW 35528/11-15.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister for Regional Development, given the continuing works schemes on the A37 between Coleraine and Limavady over a protracted period of time, when motorists will be able to travel uninterrupted on the route.

(AQW 35636/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The large scale utility works to service Dunbeg and Dunmore wind farms are now complete. The ongoing works by Firmus Energy to install gas mains are also substantially complete, however, some testing and remedial works are still to be completed which are unlikely to cause disruption to traffic. This work is due to be completed by the end of September 2014.

There are no further planned utility works currently registered on the Street works notification system for the A37 Dunhill Road/Broad Road.

Mr Dunne asked the Minister for Regional Development whether funding will be available for new councils to bring the off-street car parks up to an improved standard.

(AQW 35639/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: In his statement to the Assembly on 22 April 2013, the then Department of the Environment Minister, Mr Alex Attwood MLA, outlined on behalf of the Executive that functions transferring to councils would be: "fit for purpose, sufficiently funded and cost neutral to the ratepayer at the point of transfer".

The Executive did not agree that assets would be brought up to an improved standard prior to transfer, nor are transferring Departments funded to improve the condition of assets that will be provided to councils. I can confirm the assets transferring are fit for purpose.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many people work at the departmental depot in Bangor.
(AQW 35658/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: There are currently 33 Transport NI staff in post within the departmental depot in Bangor.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development whether plans are in place to prepare for gritting roads during the winter.
(AQW 35659/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department's Transport NI is well prepared for the coming winter. Staffing arrangements are being finalised, pre-season checks on winter service equipment are almost complete and salt stocks have been replenished. From the end of October, Transport NI will have approximately 300 personnel on standby ready to salt main roads. Contracts are also in place to enable contractors and farmers to help to clear roads during periods of prolonged snow.

In addition, my Department currently has arrangements with 25 of the 26 District Councils to salt city and town centre footways during times of prolonged ice and snow, and these councils will be contacted to ensure continuity of this service for the incoming winter season. My officials will be writing again to the remaining council to encourage it to come on board.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Regional Development whether improvements to the Northern Ireland Railways services, particularly developing rail corridors, will lead to increased ticket prices.
(AQW 35688/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Northern Ireland Railways receives an annual operating subsidy, Public Service Obligation, from the Department to ensure that rail fares are at a level which supports the Department's objectives of increasing the use of public transport and delivering a more sustainable economy. This will clearly be influenced by the overall budget available to my Department and the operating costs of NI Railways and its ability to generate fare income. Increased rail corridors may or may not increase ticket prices depending upon how they impact on the above.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many press officers are employed by his Department.
(AQW 35743/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Four Information Officers (Press Officers) are employed by my Department.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development what additional measures are planned to increase awareness of the Cycle to Work scheme.
(AQW 35908/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department's Cycling Unit through its Travelwise initiative promotes cycling as a sustainable mode of travel to and from education, training and employment. Travelwise regularly promotes the Cycle to Work Scheme in its campaigns: including reference to the scheme in press and media releases highlighting cycling matters; in Workplace Travel Plans prepared by Travelwise for employers in all sectors; and at promotional events held in workplaces. More generally we also provide advice on the Cycle to Work Scheme to a range of employers in all sectors who contact the Department.

The Cycle to Work Scheme is a HMRC scheme for employing organisations.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of the uptake of the Cycle to Work scheme.
(AQW 35909/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I refer the member to my reply to his previous question on this matter (AQW 35180/11-15).

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much Translink has spent on fuel in each of the last three financial years.
(AQW 35955/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The following schedule shows the gross operational fuel costs for Translink, i.e. fuel duty rebate has not been deducted.

Company	2011/12 £'000	2012/13 £'000	2013/14 £'000
Ulsterbus	20,759	22,241	22,517
Metro	6,967	7,179	6,915

Department for Social Development

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the number of (i) catholic; and (ii) protestant households (a) in housing stress; and (b) on the housing waiting list in each Housing Executive area of Belfast.

(AQW 34401/11-15)

Mr McCausland (The Minister for Social Development): Table A attached provides details of the Waiting List for Social Housing at 31st March 2014 broken down by applicants with 30+ Points, by Religion and by Belfast Assembly Constituencies.

Table B attached provides details of the Waiting List for Social Housing at 31st March 2014 broken down by applicants with less than 30 Points, by Religion and by Belfast Assembly Constituencies.

The Information provided in this response is governed by the Principles and Protocols of the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. This is enforced by UK Statistics Authority.

The following caveats should be noted:-

- <5 are cases where numbers are less than 5.
- In relation to the parliamentary constituencies in Belfast a significant problem arises with the boundaries of the Belfast East, Belfast West, Belfast North, Belfast South and Strangford Constituencies. In these areas five CLA's cross over parliamentary constituencies. These are:
 - Carryduff which crosses Belfast South and Strangford
 - Ainsworth which crosses Belfast North and Belfast West
 - Twaddell which crosses Belfast North and Belfast West
 - Cregagh which crosses Belfast East and Belfast South
 - Willowfield which crosses Belfast East and Belfast South

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the average (i) points accrued; and (ii) waiting time for (a) catholic; and (b) protestant households on the housing waiting list for each Housing Executive area of Belfast, in each of the last three years; and the equivalent data for people who have been allocated a house.
(AQW 34402/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has provided the following information:-

- Tables A and B attached provides details of the Waiting List at 31st March 2013 and 31st March 2014 broken down by Mean and Median Average Points and Months and Religion by Belfast Assembly Constituencies.
- Tables C and D attached provides details of Allocations for one year to 31st March 2013, and for one year to 31st March 2014, by Mean and Median Average Points and Months on the Waiting List at the date of Allocation broken down by Religion and Belfast Assembly Constituencies.

The Housing Executive has advised that, due to a recording system change to their Housing Management System (HMS) in July 2011 information for the one year period from 1st April 2011 – 31st March 2012 is not available.

The Information provided in this response is governed by the Principles and Protocols of the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. This is enforced by UK Statistics Authority.

The following caveats should be noted:-

- <5 are cases where numbers are less than 5.
- In relation to the parliamentary constituencies in Belfast a significant problem arises with the boundaries of the Belfast East, Belfast West, Belfast North, Belfast South and Strangford Constituencies. In these areas 5 CLAs cross over parliamentary constituencies. These are:
 - Carryduff which crosses Belfast South and Strangford
 - Ainsworth which crosses Belfast North and Belfast West
 - Twaddell which crosses Belfast North and Belfast West
 - Cregagh which crosses Belfast East and Belfast South
 - Willowfield which crosses Belfast East and Belfast South

If a there has been no applications for a specific Religion category e.g. Mixed in a CLA it will not be included in the tables.

- When a question of "average waiting times" occurs MEAN and MEDIAN average months on the waiting list for those applicants who have been successful in receiving an allocated property over a selected period of time is provided. Reasons for this include:
 - The MEAN is the arithmetic average and as a statistic can often be unreliable, having been skewed by significant outliers, i.e. applicants who have been on the waiting list for a number of years
 - This degree of skewing makes the arithmetic average, the MEAN, unreliable. Therefore, following expert advice on this matter, the NIHE Board has approved a methodology that utilises the MEDIAN (a measure of central tendency) as a more reliable indicator in relation to Waiting Lists and Allocations.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the number of houses that have been allocated to (i) Catholic; and (ii) Protestant households which were on the housing (a) waiting; and (b) transfer list, in each of the last three years, broken down by each Housing Executive area in Belfast.

(AQW 34403/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has provided the following information:-

- Table A attached provides details of Allocations for one year to 31st March 2013 broken down by Application Type, Religion and Belfast Assembly Constituencies.
- Table B attached provides details of Allocations for one year to 31st March 2014 broken down by Application Type, Religion and Belfast Assembly Constituencies.

The Housing Executive has advised that, due to a recording system change to their Housing Management System (HMS) in July 2011 information for the one year period from 1st April 2011 – 31st March 2012 is not available.

The Information provided in this response is governed by the Principles and Protocols of the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. This is enforced by UK Statistics Authority.

The following caveats should be noted:-

- <5 are cases where numbers are less than 5.
- In relation to the parliamentary constituencies in Belfast a significant problem arises with the boundaries of the Belfast East, Belfast West, Belfast North, Belfast South and Strangford Constituencies. In these areas five CLA's cross over parliamentary constituencies. These are:
 - Carryduff which crosses Belfast South and Strangford
 - Ainsworth which crosses Belfast North and Belfast West
 - Twaddell which crosses Belfast North and Belfast West
 - Cregagh which crosses Belfast East and Belfast South
 - Willowfield which crosses Belfast East and Belfast South
- If a CLA has had no allocations it will not be included in the tables e.g. Belfast South/Strangford (CLA Carryduff) had no allocations by HA Transfer.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development what budget is available to reroof Housing Executive properties in Chichester Park, Ballymena; and to detail the when this work will be completed.

(AQW 35286/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has advised that a re-roofing scheme for 89 – 105A Chichester Park East is currently programmed with a start date of March 2015. They have further advised they are unable to put forward budget details or a completion date until a Consultant has been appointed, which is likely to take place before the end of October 2014.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the number of social houses that have been allocated by the Housing Executive to foreign nationals, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35289/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information is not available in the format requested because due to a recording system change in the Housing Executive's Housing Management System in July 2011, equality based information for allocations in the year from 1 April 2011 to 31 March 2012 is not available.

However, the Housing Executive has provided the following information relating to the financial years 2012/13 and 2013/14:-

2012/13 – total allocations from the waiting list was 8,134 (of which 4,312 are undisclosed and less than five refused). Of this, a total of 246 allocations were made to households who had declared a nationality other than British, Northern Irish, Irish, Refused or Undisclosed.

2013/14 – total allocations from the waiting list was 8,809 (of which 3,039 are undisclosed and six refused). Of this, a total of 403 allocations were made to households who had declared a nationality other than British, Northern Irish, Irish, Refused or Undisclosed.

The "nationality" of a household is based on a self-reported answer to a question asked during the housing application process. This question was added during the review of the process in 2011.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development for his assessment of the resources available to the Northern Ireland Housing Executive to ensure the safeguarding of vulnerable adults as Housing Executive customers.

(AQW 35409/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has advised that safeguarding vulnerable adults who use their offices and services is a matter of priority. The Housing Executive has a zero-tolerance of abuse wherever it occurs and has in place a robust and effective policy to address abuse of vulnerable adults. This policy is supported by resources to ensure effective and efficient responses to allegations of abuse, concerns that abuse may have taken place or disclosures of abuse from vulnerable adults.

The Housing Executive's Safeguarding Vulnerable Adults Policy is intended to cover all functions and services of the Housing Executive where there is the potential for direct or indirect contact with vulnerable adults.

The safeguarding policy applies to everyone involved with the organisation, including members of the Housing Executive Board, senior and all managers, staff, vulnerable adults and their carers, advocates and visitors. The Housing Executive also requires all contractors, groups, and organisations that use its premises or services, or organisations that are funded by the Housing Executive to provide services, to have an acceptable Vulnerable Adults Safeguarding Policy in place.

The Housing Executive's Director of Corporate Services has ultimate responsibility for ensuring compliance with this policy. Day to day responsibility for implementation is delegated through the management structure to the Equality Unit Manager. Managers have a responsibility to ensure this policy is complied with by staff and any other persons associated with their functional responsibility.

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Social Development what analysis has been completed on the effectiveness of the IT system used in Britain for processing Universal Credit.

(AQW 35443/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The piloting of Universal Credit in Great Britain (Universal Credit Live Service) by the Department for Work and Pensions has been designed to test the effectiveness of the ICT system, the claimant experience and inform the ongoing development of processes and systems before further expansion.

The Department for Work and Pensions began the phased introduction of Universal Credit in Great Britain for single jobseekers on 29th April 2013. The Live Service caseload continues to grow at pace and is now available to claimants living in 38 areas of England, Scotland and Wales. Claims are now being taken from couples and it is currently planned that in autumn 2014 claims from families will start to be taken. The current planning assumption is that by the end of the year there will be 90, or one in eight, Jobcentres delivering Universal Credit in Great Britain.

DWP are continuing to approach the rollout of Universal Credit in a careful, safe and controlled manner. The provision of digital access to claim Universal Credit continues to prove popular with consistently over 90 per cent of claims being made online.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the new build social housing projects planned in Ballymena Borough Council area.

(AQW 35448/11-15)

Mr McCausland: In Ballymena Borough Council area there are six schemes totalling 94 units currently under construction. These are at:-

- St Patrick's Barracks, Ballymena (Fold) - 49 family units
- Cushendall Road, Ballymena - (Triangle) - 5 learning disability units
- Braidwater Quay, Ballymena (Triangle) - 17 mental health units
- PSNI Kells, (Triangle) - 6 family units
- 29-37 Larne Street, Ballymena (Trinity) - 11 family units
- Pentagon House, Ballymena (Ulidia) - 6 vulnerable women units

In addition, the Social Housing Development Programme for 2014/15 - 2016/17 includes eight new build schemes totalling 256 homes. These are at:

- Larne Road, Ballymena (Oaklee Trinity) - 74 family units - to start 2014/15
- Mill House, Ballymena (Triangle) - 21 homeless units - to start 2014/15
- Market Road, Ballymena (Oaklee Trinity) - 27 family units - to start 2014/15
- Templemoyle, Kells (Ark) - 6 family units - to start 2014/15
- Larne Road, Ballymena (Clanmil) - 32 family units - to start 2015/16
- Waveney Rd, Ballymena (Oaklee Trinity) - 14 family units - to start 2015/16
- Cushendall Road, Ballymena (Fold) - 60 family units - to start 2015/16

- Railway Street, Ballymena (Fold) - 22 family units - to start 2016/17

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the new build social housing projects planned in Ballymoney Borough Council area.

(AQW 35449/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Social Housing Development Programme 2014/15 - 2016/17 for Ballymoney Borough Council area includes two new schemes totalling 12 units. These are at:

- Balnamore, Ballymoney (Ark Housing) - 3 family units - to start 2014/15.
- Garryduff Road, Ballymoney (Triangle) - 9 learning disability units - to start 2014/15.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the new build social housing projects planned in Moyle District Council area.

(AQW 35450/11-15)

Mr McCausland: In Moyle District Council area one scheme of seven family houses is currently under construction by Triangle Housing at Ramoan Road, Ballycastle.

In addition, the Social Housing Development Programme for 2014/15 - 2016/17 includes three new build schemes totalling 40 new homes. These are at:

- Waterfoot, Ballycastle (Ark Housing) - 6 family units - to start 2014/15.
- Fairhill Street, Ballycastle (Habinteg) - 6 family units - to start 2014/15.
- Rathmoyle, Ballycastle (Apex) - 28 frail elderly units - to start 2015/16.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development what action his Department is taking to increase awareness amongst tenants of the importance of checking that their landlords have registered with the Landlord Registration Scheme.

(AQW 35499/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department takes a multifaceted approach to increasing awareness of the Landlord Registration Scheme for both landlords and tenants.

- The original advertising campaign comprised of (television, online and printed media) advertisements and leaflets highlighting the requirement on landlords to register and the responsibility on tenants and potential tenants to check that their landlord is registered.
- In June and July, my Department delivered a series of road shows for Environmental Health Officers from each Council in Northern Ireland. At these road shows, the original message was reinforced through a website demonstration, a presentation and additional distribution of leaflets. During September, my Department is attending seven University "freshers" events across Northern Ireland, allowing direct communication with current and potential student tenants as well as university support staff. The focus of this planned communication will be on the rights and responsibilities of both tenants and landlords. The requirement on landlords to register will form a significant aspect of this.
- A further advertising campaign is planned to commence in November. It is envisaged its key messages will be:
 - All landlords are required to register by February 2015;
 - All tenants should check that their landlord is registered; and
 - Tenants should report unregistered landlords to their local Council.

It is likely that these communication initiatives will be reviewed in the first half of 2015.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister for Social Development to detail (i) the number of staff employed in his Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35516/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The number of staff at each grade and total salary cost at each grade for the years requested are shown in the tables below:

Mr McElduff asked the Minister for Social Development to detail (i) the Housing Associations which are actively interested in providing suitable social housing for older people; and (ii) the housing schemes underway, or that are planned, for the West Tyrone constituency, as well as the procedures involved for securing necessary schemes in the future.

(AQW 35575/11-15)

Mr McCausland:

- (i) There are currently six housing associations; Apex, Ark, Clanmil, Helm, Oaklee/Trinity and Ulidia actively providing social housing designed specifically for older people across Northern Ireland, as part of the Social Housing Development Programme 2014/15 - 2016/17.
- (ii) There are currently no social housing schemes under construction in the West Tyrone Parliamentary Constituency. The following are programmed to be delivered through the Social Housing Development Programme 2014/15 - 2016/17. None, however, are designed specifically for older people.
 - Railway Court, Omagh (Apex) - 16 learning disability - to start 2014/15
 - Omagh Town (Habinteg) - 1 physical disability - to start 2014/15
 - Omagh Town (Apex) - 8 young people leaving care - to start 2015/16
- (iii) The procedures for securing social housing schemes differ depending on whether the housing is classified as general needs or supported housing.

General needs housing includes mainstream family/singles housing and housing designed specifically for relatively fit older people. The need for general needs housing is determined by the Housing Executive which carries out a Housing Needs Assessment on an annual basis and calculates a five year projection of need for local areas. These projections are published on the Housing Executive's website in an Unmet Need Prospectus which allows housing associations to bring forward proposals to meet that need and then bid for a slot in the Social Housing Development Programme.

In instances where local councillors/community groups perceive there is a demand but a lack of accommodation for specific client groups in a given area, the Housing Executive can carry out latent need testing to determine any hidden need.

Supported housing caters for a wide range of vulnerable groups, including sheltered housing for the elderly and housing with care for the frail elderly. Supported housing is normally provided through a commissioning process initiated by the relevant Health Trust leading to a partnership approach between the Trust, the Housing Executive and a nominated housing association. The housing association will deliver the scheme on the ground.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister for Social Development why income from Child Tax Credit is not disregarded when calculating entitlement to Housing Benefit.

(AQW 35607/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Working Tax Credit and Child Tax Credit replaced Children's Tax Credit, Working Families Tax Credit, Disabled Person's Tax Credit, and elements of the New Deal 50+. In addition, support for children paid through the benefit system was also integrated into Child Tax Credit. The Tax Credit system aims to create a secure means of support which spans both welfare and work and unlike most other benefits, Tax Credits are paid by HM Revenue and Customs.

Housing Benefit is a social security benefit paid by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive. It helps people on a low income pay their rent and rates, and claimants do not need to be unemployed to receive it.

For pension age claims, Child Tax Credit is disregarded when calculating entitlement to Housing Benefit, whilst for working-age claims, Child Tax Credit is treated as unearned income as Housing Benefit is disregarded in the calculation of Tax Credit entitlement, in accordance with the Tax Credit (Definition and calculation of Income) Regulations 2002. In recognition of this disregard it is reasonable to take Tax Credit payments into account when calculating Housing Benefit entitlement. To do otherwise would amount to the Government paying a double financial provision.

For the purposes of Housing Benefit, Child Tax Credit is treated as income other than earnings as it is income which is not earnings from employment, or substitute income (in the form of Statutory Sick Pay, for example). It is worth noting that if a claimant remains entitled to Income Support, income-based Jobseekers Allowance, or income-related Employment and Support Allowance, the whole of their income is disregarded.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister for Social Development when he expects the full implementation of the plan to improve Portrush Harbour and the associated works.

(AQW 35637/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department is preparing a business case for the appointment of consultants to carry out environmental and economic impact assessments and develop a detailed masterplan for the Portrush Harbour area. This work will support any subsequent planning applications and assess the viability of the project. The appointment is subject to the completion of a satisfactory business case and funds being made available in the Department's budget.

I have met with other Ministerial colleagues to discuss this project and some other regeneration proposals for the town. These are very significant development opportunities which can promote the resort town as an international destination, particularly in preparation for hosting the prestigious British Open at Royal Portrush in 2019.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister for Social Development to detail his Department's efforts to achieve maximum uptake of social welfare entitlements, particularly in West Tyrone.

(AQW 35644/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Through the network of 35 local and centralised offices, my Department provides information and advice on a full range of social security benefits as part of its daily business to make people aware of their entitlements.

In addition, since 2005, the Department has delivered Benefit Uptake Programmes targeting difficult to reach customers such as older people, people with disabilities and people with caring responsibilities. These programmes cover all Northern Ireland council areas and have included direct targeting, mailshots, Outreach services, partnership working and the "Make the Call" advertising campaign. As a result over £67million of additional annual benefit and arrears has been generated. In the 2013/14 Benefit Uptake Programme, over 1,000 people from the West Tyrone constituency were offered a benefit entitlement check.

A breakdown of the annual benefit and arrears generated through the Benefit Uptake Programme at Council level is only available from 2010. Since then, £34m has been generated and, the proportion for the West Tyrone constituency, which takes in Omagh and Strabane District Councils, is over £1.8m.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the average annual cost of running the Housing Executives network of district offices.

(AQW 35669/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive has advised that the total cost of running their network of 35 District Offices in 2013/14 was £25.7million. This is the direct employee and administration costs.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development whether he has any plans to provide revitalisation investment to support existing traders, improve shop frontages and promote the town of Coleraine.

(AQW 35694/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Last year my Department contributed grant funding of £280,000 to Coleraine Borough Council to deliver a revitalisation scheme in the Waterside/Bridge Street area of Coleraine. The Council was considering a new revitalisation scheme for the town centre this year but my Department is currently unable to provide funding as its budget is fully committed.

Under the Reform of Local Government, the new Councils will take on responsibility for delivering regeneration programmes from 1 April 2015. Shadow Councils have now been advised of their annual indicative budget allocations in advance of budget transferring to them. It will be a matter for Causeway Coast and Glens Council to decide its own spending plans and priorities for future regeneration programmes including those for Coleraine.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the Comprehensive Development Schemes delivered in South Down, in the last five years.

(AQW 35721/11-15)

Mr McCausland: To date my Department has supported a comprehensive programme of urban regeneration schemes in the South Down region including masterplans for Downpatrick and the South East Coast. These documents set out a range of development opportunities and my officials are currently working with Down District Council to develop the Grove area of Downpatrick town Centre.

Mrs D Kelly asked the Minister for Social Development to detail (i) when the report on the conduct of his Special Advisor will be published; (ii) whether the findings of the report will be shared with Mrs Jenny Palmer; and (iii) the reasons for the delay in publishing the report.

(AQW 35724/11-15)

Mr McCausland: As I advised the Assembly, I received a letter on 8 September 2014 from the Chair of the Social Development Committee in respect of this matter and that I would provide a fulsome answer to the Committee within 10 days. I think it important that the Committee is respected and given the opportunity to consider the response, which I have now provided.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister for Social Development to detail whether claimants of Jobseeker's Allowance travelling between Northern Ireland and Great Britain are considered to be travelling abroad.

(AQW 35792/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Claimants of Jobseeker's Allowance travelling to Great Britain from Northern Ireland are not considered to be travelling abroad. Where a Jobseeker travels from Northern Ireland to Great Britain, they may be treated as still being resident in Northern Ireland for up to four weeks provided they were entitled to Jobseeker's Allowance before they travelled and they continue to satisfy the normal Jobseeker's Allowance conditions of entitlement while absent from Northern Ireland. If the claimant stay in Great Britain is for more than 4 weeks, they will be advised to make a fresh claim to Jobseeker's Allowance in Great Britain.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the number of applicants currently registered on the social housing waiting list.

(AQW 35828/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information is not available in the format requested because the Housing Executive only reports quarterly on the housing waiting list. They advise that at the end of June 2014 there were 39,295 applicants on the waiting List of which 21,450 were in Housing Stress.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister for Social Development for an update on the four projects encompassing the Social Housing Reform Programme.

(AQW 35833/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Work is ongoing on the Social Housing Reform Programme, in phase one we took forward initial exploration of key elements in terms of housing structures and a number of key policies including Rent, Regulation and Engagement. As we move into phase two we are now taking forward more detailed work with the aim to bring forward proposals for consultation across a range of policy areas this year and analysis of potential structural options for consideration by the executive.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister for Social Development for an update on the creation of a comprehensive rent policy.

(AQW 35835/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Research and stakeholder engagement is ongoing regarding the potential development of a rent policy for social housing in Northern Ireland. A briefing is scheduled for the Social Development Committee on 25 September 2014 to provide further detail on the issues. The project intends to bring forward a paper for consultation in Spring 2015.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister for Social Development what role the Strategic Investment Board has in relation to the Social Housing Reform Programme; and whether he is content that no conflicts of interest are present in that role.

(AQW 35836/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Strategic Investment Board provides expert advice to the Social Housing Reform Programme. The Strategic Investment Board is represented on the Social Housing Reform Programme Board. I am content that there is no conflict of interest.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development whether he plans to bring forward legislation, change current legislation or implement new measures that would provide additional powers or authority to the Northern Ireland Housing Executive or Housing Associations to remove or evict tenants who are a threat, annoyance or involved in anti-social behaviour which affects the quality of life of neighbours.

(AQW 35941/11-15)

Mr McCausland: On 2 December 2013, I published proposals to introduce legislation that would provide for a new form of social housing tenancy (the "short tenancy") to be used where certain court orders relating to anti-social behaviour have been made against secure tenants of the Housing Executive and registered housing associations or members of their households, and the tenant needs support to help them to sustain their tenancy. Where a secure tenancy has been converted to a short tenancy, and the anti-social behaviour does not cease, the landlord would be in a position to take possession of the property as soon as the six-month period of the short tenancy comes to an end. Consultation on these proposals closed on 24 March 2014 and I am currently seeking the agreement of my Executive colleagues to commence drafting the necessary legislation.

Written Answers to Questions

Office of the First Minister and deputy First Minister

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to list (i) the prisoners' groups; and (ii) the victims' groups which were consulted with, and met, in pursuit of consultation on the Peace Building and Conflict Resolution Centre at the Maze, including the date and nature of each such contact, and who met with these groups.
(AQW 22817/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness (The First Minister and deputy First Minister): A list of prisoner groups and victims groups consulted on the Peace Building and Conflict Resolution Centre (PBCRC) at Maze/Long Kesh is provided below.

It was considered appropriate that engagement by the unit in relation to victims primarily should be directly with the Commission for Victims and Survivors. The nature of the meetings was to seek views on the development of proposals for the PBCRC both in terms of the services the Centre could deliver and the facilities needed to deliver these services.

Senior representatives from the Maze/Long Kesh Programme Delivery Unit (MLK PDU) led and held the meetings. Agreement of Ministers to these meetings was not required or sought.

Mr McGlone asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, of the business class flights paid for by their Department in each year since 2008, how many were taken by (i) Elected Representatives; (ii) Civil Servants; and (iii) Special Advisors. (AQW 25017/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We would refer you to our answer to AQW 24767/11-15 on 16 September 2014.

The table below provides a breakdown of business class flights for which information was held in a readily accessible format.

	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11	2011-12	2012-13	2013-14

Mr McElduff asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what assessment they have made of the pressures faced by St Vincent de Paul in the Omagh area in combatting and alleviating poverty among newly arrived immigrant families who are delayed in accessing assistance from the Social Security Agency. (AQW 25525/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We understand that voluntary and charitable organisations like St Vincent de Paul are facing ever greater pressures in their efforts to tackle poverty. Our officials have spoken to St Vincent de Paul to discuss the pressures they face.

Latest figures show that poverty figures have been falling here since 2009/10, with 20% of children here living in a household with income less than 60% of the UK median income in 2012/13 (relative poverty before housing costs).

27% of children in Omagh and Strabane were living in low income households over the three year period 2009-10 to 2011-12 (before Housing Costs and After Housing Costs). This is comparable to the NI (27%) and UK (28%) averages after housing costs and higher than the NI (23%) and UK (18%) averages before housing costs for the same three year period. Alleviating poverty is a major commitment of The Executive. To take forward this priority social policy area, the Executive launched the Delivering Social Change Framework in 2012. The Framework's initial focus has been on the needs of children and families, including programmes delivering support for parents and additional, one-to-one help for students who need it.

Building on this work, a new strategy focused on alleviating child poverty will be laid this year. This strategy will contain actions aimed at children and young people and their families to address the causes and consequences of child poverty. We have consulted St Vincent DePaul and other community, voluntary and charitable groups on this work. We also facilitated focus groups with parents, including immigrant families. We will continue to work with these groups to ensure our work helps meet current needs as assessed on the ground.

The Social Security Agency, through its network of local Social Security and Jobs and Benefits Offices and Benefit Centres, currently provides advice and assistance to anyone wishing to claim benefit. A claimant who is a foreign national is given the same assistance and is required to meet the same criteria, subject to fulfilling the requirements of the Habitual Residence Test, as any permanent Northern Ireland resident, when making a claim to benefit.

Where someone fails the Habitual Residence test and has no access to social security benefits, they can apply for a Social Fund Crisis Loan. A claimant who is refused a Crisis Loan may seek assistance from their local Health and Social Care Trust. Article 15 (2) of the Health and Personal Social Services (NI) Order 2972 enables a Trust to provide a social care service under Article 15(1) to a 'person in need' requiring assistance. This includes provision of cash in exceptional circumstances that constitute an emergency.

The Children (NI) Order 1995, Article 18 specifies the general duty of the authority to provide personal social services for children in need, their families and others. It directs that it is the general duty of every authority to safeguard and promote the welfare of children within its area who are in need. As such, any family presenting themselves to children's services will be supported according to their assessed need, irrespective of whether or not they satisfy the Habitual Residency Test. Where this need is best provided by other government agencies (e.g. housing) then they will be signposted to the appropriate Agency. The support offered by social services can be in kind, or in exceptional circumstances be in the form of cash.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister why AQW 24885/11-15 has not yet been answered; and when it will be answered.

(AQW 25836/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We would refer the Member to the answer to AQW 24885/11-15 which was answered on 16 September 2014.

Mr Copeland asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister whether they received an invitation to participate in the Commonwealth Summit in Sri Lanka on behalf of the Executive.

(AQW 28331/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: We did not receive any such invitation.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the number of Assembly Written Questions received by their Department in each of the last twelve months; and the number which have not been answered within the required deadline.

(AQW 30555/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Between July 2013 and June 2014 our Department received 420 Assembly Written Questions of which 91 were answered on time. The table below shows these figures broken down by month.

Month	Number of AQWs received	Number of AQWs which did not meet deadline

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail the definition of sectarianism used by their Department. (AQW 32691/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Together: Building a United Community Strategy for good relations published by OFMDFM on 23 May 2013, includes a definition of sectarianism as "threatening, abusive or insulting behaviour or attitudes towards a person by reason of that person's religious belief or political opinion; or to an individual as a member of such a group.

As outlined in the Strategy, we will seek to find an appropriate consensus around a definition of sectarianism to be included in the legislation to establish the Equality and Good Relations Commission. Accordingly, this will be one of the issues considered during the planned public consultation on the draft Bill.

Mr Lyttle asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail how the £1.7m savings within victims and survivors funding were achieved. (AQW 34287/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The £1.7m savings within the victims and survivors funding has been achieved as a result of rationalisation in 2010/11 of the funding to support individual victims and survivors. The £1.7m was achieved from a significantly increased budget, which has tripled since 2007.

Mr Agnew asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister, pursuant to AQT 1302/11-15, why an inquiry or investigation into non-institution clerical abuse or women aged 18 years and over in Magdalene Laundries and equivalent institutions, cannot happen in parallel to the Historical Institutional Abuse Inquiry. (AQW 34979/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: In light of the publication of the McAleese report into Magdalene Laundries last year and representations made to us, we appointed a senior civil servant to prepare a scoping paper regarding the Magdalene Laundry type institutions that operated locally in order to inform us of the potential actions we might be able to take. We received that report and are giving serious consideration to the options it contains before deciding the way forward.

The issue of clerical abuse is no less important or emotive than institutional abuse and we are mindful of the equally destructive impact it has had on many individuals.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what is the definition of victim by which the Victims and Survivors Service operates in making its services available. (AQW 35330/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The definition of a Victim is as set out in Section 3 of the Victims and Survivors (Northern Ireland) Order 2006 as follows;

1. An individual appearing to the Commissioner to be any of the following:
 - a. someone who is or has been physically or psychologically injured as a result of or in consequence of a conflict related incident;
 - b. someone who provides a substantial amount of care for an individual mentioned in paragraph (a); or
 - c. someone who has been bereaved as a result of or in consequence of a conflict-related incident.
2. Without prejudice to the generality of paragraph (1) of the Order, an individual may be psychologically injured as a result of or in consequence of
 - a. witnessing a conflict-related incident or the consequences of such an incident; or

- b. providing medical or other emergency assistance to an individual in connection with a conflict-related incident.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister what restrictions are placed by their Department on the staff of the Victims and Survivors Service in terms of answering legitimate queries from victims, including disclosing the true reasons why expected services have not been provided.

(AQW 35333/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Department has not placed any restrictions on the staff in the Victims and Survivors Service.

Mr Allister asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for their assessment of whether the individual victim who wishes to avail of the services of the Victims and Survivors Service directly, rather than through a victims' group, receives parity of treatment and in a timely manner.

(AQW 35334/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: Any individual wishing to avail of services may apply themselves through the Individual Needs Programme or as part of a group through the Victims Support Programme.

The Victims and Survivors Service is responsible for the provision and administration of these programmes and processes all applications in line with eligibility criteria.

Mrs Cochrane asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister to detail (i) the number of staff employed in their Department broken down by grade; and (ii) the total salary for each grade, for each financial year since 1 April 2010.

(AQW 35514/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness:

- (i) The number of staff employed in OFMDFM at 1 September 2014 is as follows -

Ms Sugden asked the First Minister and deputy First Minister for an update on the devolution of corporation tax.

(AQW 35744/11-15)

Mr P Robinson and Mr M McGuinness: The Government has previously indicated its intention to make a decision on the devolution of Corporation Tax this autumn, with an announcement to be made no later than the coming Autumn Statement, which is expected to be on 3 December 2014.

In addition, it has previously stated that if it did decide to devolve responsibility for the rate of corporation tax in the autumn, then a stand-alone Bill would be introduced in the normal way, with the aim of it becoming law before the prorogation of Parliament prior to the 2015 Westminster Elections.

Department of Agriculture and Rural Development

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what requests the Forest Service has received from Infastrata to drill at Woodburn Forest.

(AQW 35567/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill (The Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development): My Department owns land and manages trees on land owned by NI Water under a management agreement at Woodburn Forest. No request has been received from Infastrata PLC to drill on land owned by my Department.

In February 2013, Infastrata PLC notified my Department of their proposal to drill on an area of land owned by NI Water, and as such dealing with the Infastrata request is the responsibility for NI Water as land owner.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what is the cost of (i) the courses to obtain a licence to use a (a) knapsack sprayer; (b) tractor mounted boom sprayer; and (ii) any other related courses provided by the College of Agriculture, Food and Rural Enterprise in connection with the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012.

(AQW 35651/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: There are two options available to operators to become suitably qualified to spray using a knapsack sprayer or a tractor mounted boom sprayer in connection with the Plant Protection Products (Sustainable Use) Regulations 2012. They are either the current route i.e. the PA1 and PA6 and/or PA2 or the new Grandfather Rights route. CAFRE will offer assessment and training for both options. The training will be provided free of charge to farmers but there will be a charge for registration and certification with City and Guilds and for the assessment.

- (i) The costs of CAFRE provision to obtain a license to use:
- a. Knapsack sprayer is £177 through the current route and £146 through the Grandfather Rights route
 - b. Tractor mounted boom sprayer is £221 through the current route and £148 through the Grandfather Rights
- (ii) The costs of other related courses are as follows:-
- PA3 (Broadcast or Variable Geometry Boom Sprayers) is £152
 - PA6aW (Hand Held Applicators Including Application in or Near Water) is £152
 - PA4 (Granular Applicators) is £152
 - PA9 – Fogging, Misting and Smokes is £94

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the meetings and consultation she and her officials undertook to discuss and seek views on the policy options arising from the reform of the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) (Pillar I Direct Payments), including details of the groups met and the number of meetings with each group.

(AQW 35710/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: During the year from the political agreement on CAP Reform between the European Parliament and Council was reached on 26 June 2013 and the final policy decisions were announced in June 2014, I met personally with a broad range of stakeholder organisations. My officials also met with a wide range of stakeholders and attended a large number of meetings across the north of Ireland, which were attended by well over 3,000 people. Details of the meetings, including details of the groups met and the number of meetings with each group are listed in the tables below.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development, pursuant to AQW 35234/11-15, to detail the cost of felling trees.

(AQW 35844/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: The total cost of felling and extracting the trees at Belvoir forest is expected to amount to approximately £90,000. This would be a higher cost compared to an average harvesting site due to challenging factors associated with the operation, including the management of public access and the sensitive work required to protect the veteran oak trees.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what her Department is doing to safeguard redundancies at the Hillsborough site of the Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute.

(AQW 35923/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: AFBI is currently developing plans to address an expected 25% reduction in its existing sources of revenue up to 2020. Clearly, this represents a very significant challenge for the organisation and options involving both cost reductions and alternative potential revenue streams are being explored by AFBI. The functions currently undertaken by AFBI at Hillsborough represent only a portion of the overall functions undertaken by the Institute and AFBI is considering its business as a whole. I am not in a position at this point to offer assurances around the functions being carried out at Hillsborough now or in the future, but DARD and AFBI are working closely together to develop a sustainable way forward for the Institute.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to detail the amount of grant in aid her Department has provided to the Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute in (i) 2010; (ii) 2011; (iii) 2012; (iv) 2013; and (v) 2014.

(AQW 35924/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Grant-in-aid provided by my Department to the Agri-Food and Biosciences Institute (AFBI) in each financial year from 2010/11 to 2013/14 is shown in the following table. The 2014/15 figures represent the amount that has been paid to AFBI so far this year.

Financial Year	Resource grant-in-aid	Capital grant-in-aid
2010/11	£43.006m	£1.822m
2011/12	£38.168m	£1.894m
2012/13	£33.571m	£0.738m
2013/14	£44.611m	£1.188m
2014/15	£22.402m	£0m

Mr Dunne asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development for an update on the discovery of disease on a plantation of trees at the quarry on the Newtownards side of the Craigtlet Hills.

(AQW 35932/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Following confirmation of Phytophthora ramorum in larch trees in woodland adjacent to the quarry, the owners are working with the Department to implement required measures to control the disease, which will include the felling of the larch trees and other affected trees at this site. The owners have informed local residents of these measures.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development to outline the potential impact on farmers as a result of greening requirements.

(AQW 35996/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Farmers who participate in the Basic Payment Scheme must, where applicable, adhere to three greening requirements (retention of permanent grassland, crop diversification and the provision of ecological focus areas (EFAs)). However, the first of these three will be monitored at regional level and, therefore, is unlikely to affect the operations of individual farmers. As land based agriculture in the north of Ireland is dominated by grassland enterprises, the vast majority of farmers will attract the greening payment without any change to their farming practices.

Greening will have its greatest impact in the arable sector. Analysis undertaken by the Department (based on 2013 scheme year applications to the Single Farm Payment) suggests that fewer than 1,500 farms may have to comply with the crop diversification requirements that will apply to arable land. Some of these farm businesses may find that they can comply with the requirements without having to change their existing cropping patterns. However, some farm businesses may be required to grow an additional crop and others may have to change the balance of their cropping mix to achieve the requirements.

Farmers with more than 15 hectares of arable land must ensure that at least 5% of their arable land is used as EFA. The Department's analysis suggests that fewer than 1,000 farm businesses will have an EFA requirement and that the total EFA requirement in the north is likely to be less than the equivalent of 2,000ha. For the majority of farm businesses, existing land based features (e.g. hedges on or adjacent to arable land) are likely to meet all or most of their EFA requirement.

Further details on the greening requirements are available on the DARD website.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development how she will ensure that the performance of the Animal and Public Health Information System will not be affected once the changes have been made to show the number of residencies.

(AQW 36000/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: My Department has prioritised an Animal and Public Health Information System (APHIS) enhancement to add the residency count to the market download. Any enhancement to APHIS is managed within a robust change control process to ensure changes work properly and that performance of other APHIS functions is not compromised.

My officials have now agreed a specification for the required changes to APHIS with our software supplier. Performance has been considered within this process. Once the software is developed, performance will be tested before it is fully integrated into APHIS. Thereafter, ongoing testing will be carried out when the changes are in place to maintain APHIS performance.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development when the altered Animal and Public Health Information System to show the number of residencies will be in place.

(AQW 36003/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: My Department has prioritised this APHIS enhancement to add the residency count to the market download. The original target delivery date was December 2014. My officials have worked hard to bring this about quickly, while ensuring that system performance is not compromised. I am pleased that we have already made significant progress in developing this enhancement. It is therefore likely that we can have this change delivered before the December target date. We are regularly communicating our progress directly to all cattle markets.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Agriculture and Rural Development what steps her Department is taking to address rural crime, particularly farm theft, and to support the PSNI in their efforts in North Antrim.

(AQW 36067/11-15)

Mrs O'Neill: Responsibility for tackling rural crime lies primarily with the PSNI, however my Department, through its Veterinary Service Enforcement Branch (VSEB) and CAFRE, works closely with the PSNI in tackling rural crime, including agriculture related crime.

DARD's VSEB works with the PSNI in tackling rural crime at an operational level through the sharing of intelligence, the exchange of training and the conducting of joint operations and investigations. In particular VSEB uses its enforcement powers to carry out unannounced inspections of farm animals and premises suspected of involvement in rural crime. More serious criminality is referred to the police and DARD officials assist the police through the provision of expertise. VSEB also participates in multi-agency investigations with other regulators, including the Food Standards Agency, HMRC and cross border agencies.

DARD continues to work with the Department of Justice, the PSNI and representatives of the farming community on a number of joint initiatives aimed at reducing rural crime and raising awareness of action that can be taken to help prevent rural crime, including Farm Watch, the Freeze-branding initiative and the Crimestoppers Campaign.

I have met with the Chief Constable and the Minister of Justice on a number of occasions to highlight my concerns regarding rural crime and the impact it has on the farming community. Reducing levels of rural crime is a key priority of mine and my Department will continue to work closely with the Department of Justice, the PSNI and other partners in seeking to raise awareness and to reduce levels of rural crime, including farm related crime.

Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the items and artefacts, which are of historical importance and originate in County Tyrone, that are currently held outside County Tyrone by National Museums NI and by other public bodies in Britain and the rest of Ireland.

(AQW 35708/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín (The Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure): My Department's investment and involvement in the museums sector is primarily directed to National Museums NI (NMNI) and the NI Museums Council (NIMC).

NMNI has informed me that of its collections that are catalogued it has 20,875 items and artefacts of historical importance associated with County Tyrone (Archaeology 17,748; Art 40; History 3,087). This includes 440 items and artefacts in the Ulster American Folk Park, Omagh. The remaining items held by NMNI are held at a variety of sites across the north. The NIMC does not hold any collections.

Neither NMNI nor NIMC hold details of items and artefacts that may be held outside of the north of Ireland.

Miss M McIlveen asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure why her Department did not supply the in-year monitoring round bid documents requested by the Assembly Research and Information Service.

(AQW 35713/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The in-year monitoring round bid documents have been provided in full to the Assembly Research and Information Service.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure how many projects in East Londonderry have been supported through the Creative Industries Innovation Fund (CIIF 2) since 2011.

(AQW 35754/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Since 2011, the following projects in your constituency have been supported through the Creative Industries Innovation Fund.

Year	Organisation	Project	Award

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the amount of funding allocated to boxing clubs in West Tyrone, in the last three years.

(AQW 35855/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Sport NI, an arms length body of my Department, is responsible for the distribution of funding to sport in the north. In the 2013/14 financial year, Sport NI awarded funding to the Irish Amateur Boxing Association, under the Boxing Investment Programme, for small items of boxing equipment. The following boxing clubs in West Tyrone received a total of £13,873.82 Lottery funding for equipment under this award as follows:

Club	Location	Cost
Bishop Kelly ABC	Omagh	£1,707.88
Carrickmore ABC	Carrickmore	£1,707.88
Immaculata ABC	Strabane	£1,918.66

These clubs have received no additional funding from Sport NI in the last 3 financial years.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure how much funding her Department provided to the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum, in each of the last two years.

(AQW 35884/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The funding that my Department provided to the Ulster Folk and Transport Museum in each of the last two years is as follows:

Year	Grant In Aid(£)	Capital (£)	Total (£)
2012/13	2,240,189	1,027,709	3,267,898
2013/14	2,180,078	862,318	3,042,396
			6,310,294

Mrs McKeivitt asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure whether she will consider hosting a civic reception in Parliament Buildings to honour the Down Camogie team, following their fourth All-Ireland Junior Camogie title.

(AQW 35959/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: It was an incredible achievement for the Down Camogie team to win their fourth All-Ireland Junior Camogie title and I have previously publicly congratulated the team on their success.

I intend to host a reception in Parliament Buildings on Tuesday 7 October 2014 for all Ulster GAA team successes during 2013/14, including the Down Camogie Team, to celebrate their remarkable achievements.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the Department's total expenditure to Waterways Ireland in (i) 2012; (ii) 2013; and (iii) 2014 to date.

(AQW 35965/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As part of the funding arrangements for Waterways Ireland as a North South Implementation Body, my Department has provided the following funding:

Year	Amount
2012	£3,442,099
2013	£3,212,535
2014	£663,396

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure whether there is legislative provision for her Department to impose a charge on users of waterways.

(AQW 35966/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Under Article 50(1) of the Water (Northern Ireland) Order 1999, Waterways Ireland has the legislative power to introduce charges for recreation and navigational use of the waterways, including any facilities provided or maintained by it under relevant statutory provision, for the passage through any lock constructed or maintained by it under relevant statutory provision, and in respect of the registration or licensing of any vessel in accordance with an order under Article 49.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure, pursuant to AQW 35416/11-15, when she will announce the projects that will be funded by the £1 million allocation to Cultural Programmes.

(AQW 35968/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Pursuant to AQW 35416/11-15, business cases in relation to the additional funding allocated for cultural programming have been advanced but are still not finalised. I am therefore not in a position to announce the detail of the projects to be funded.

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure when the company limited by guarantee to deliver City of Culture legacy programmes and activities will be established.

(AQW 35970/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: My Department's plans for community and cultural development in the North West include proposals for new delivery structures proportionate to any additional funding allocated. As the Executive were unable to meet my Department's June monitoring round bid, it would not demonstrate value for money to establish a new company at this time. My Department's North West Office will continue to provide support in the North West.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure to detail the work that Foras na Gaeilge carry out in County Fermanagh.

(AQW 35986/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: Foras na Gaeilge's funding schemes are open to the public and advertised on an all-island basis. Foras na Gaeilge does not have any area-specific funding schemes.

In 2014 Foras na Gaeilge funded two summer camps in Fermanagh. These were Bunscoil an Traonaigh, Ros Liath, which received £1,750 and Knocks Grattans Hurling Club, Lios na Sceithe (Lisnaskea), which received £1,600 in funding.

During the 2013/2014 school year, Foras na Gaeilge also provided funding for an tÁisaonad to organise the 'Scríobh Leabhar' project in which 35 children from a gaelscoil in Fermanagh took part (Bunscoil an Traonaigh, Fear Manach).

Mr Eastwood asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure when the departmental North West office will be established.

(AQW 35987/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: As part of my commitment to the North West, my Department formally established a North West Office on 1st April 2014.

The team comprises three officials with the Branch Head based in Derry in Orchard House. The office is supported in my Department by a Strategic Delivery Division which brings together a Departmental focus on the potential of the North West to be a regional driver for the creative industries and social innovation.

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what is the annual running cost of Bangor library.

(AQW 36052/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The annual running cost of Bangor library for 2013/14 is attached at Annex A.

Annex A

2013/14

Recurrent Net Spend	Total (£)
Income	(16,142)

Recurrent Net Spend	Total (£)

Net Expenditure	389,579

Mr Easton asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what is the annual running cost of Holywood library.
(AQW 36053/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: The annual running cost of Holywood library for 2013/14 is attached at Annex A.

Annex A

2013/14

Recurrent Net Spend	Total (£)
Income	(6,555)

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Culture, Arts and Leisure what departmental services she has made available to the public via the post office network.

(AQW 36087/11-15)

Ms Ní Chuilín: There are no departmental services available to the public via the post office network.

Department of Education

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Education to detail the financial savings that have resulted from the amalgamation of Lisnaskea High School and Devenish College.

(AQW 35287/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd (The Minister of Education): The financial savings that have resulted from the amalgamation of Lisnaskea High School and Devenish College since the school opened in September 2013 to March 2014 are £483,791 (this figure excludes one-off costs arising as a result of the closures such as redundancy).

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education, pursuant to AQW 33797/11-15, for a breakdown of the £710,000 expenditure on hospitality by his Department's arm's-length bodies.

(AQW 35615/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Pursuant to AQW 33797/11-15, the breakdown of the £710,000 expenditure on hospitality by my Department's arm's length bodies is as follows:

	2013-14 £'000
Council for the Curriculum, Examinations & Assessment	319
Belfast Education & Library Board	121
Southern Education & Library Board	81

	2013-14 £'000
Western Education & Library Board	66
South Eastern Education & Library Board	54
North Eastern Education & Library Board	46
Council for Catholic Maintained Schools	11
Northern Ireland Council for Integrated Education	4
General Teaching Council for Northern Ireland	3
Middletown Centre for Autism	3
Staff Commission for Education & Library Boards	2
Comhairle na Gaelscolaíochta	-
Youth Council for Northern Ireland	-
Total	710

The figures presented in this response are in line with the Department's definition of hospitality, which is based on guidance provided by the Department of Finance and Personnel. Expenditure on hospitality includes refreshments for committees, meetings, training courses, and conferences. The figures are also based on draft accounts.

CCEA incurred the highest amount of expenditure due to the significant number of events and meetings held in support of examinations, curriculum and assessment. These events and meetings are on a regional basis and can exceed 4000 annually. Refreshments for teachers attending training and events are included in the figures quoted. As CCEA operates on a regional capacity and has limited capacity to host events internally, every opportunity is taken to utilise venues within the education sector, however this is not always possible.

The Education and Library Boards host numerous meetings and training events in Board premises and associated outcentres throughout the year, for both teaching and non-teaching staff.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Education how many assaults on teachers were recorded in (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools in academic years (a) 2011/12; (b) 2012/13; and (c) 2013/14, broken down by education and library board.
(AQW 35619/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My Department is unable to publish this information. Due to the small numbers involved a high level of suppression would be required to prevent the identification of an individual. This guidance is in accordance with the confidentiality principle of the Statistics Authority's Code of Practice on Official Statistics.

Voluntary Grammar and Grant Maintained Integrated Schools are not included in this request.

My Department continues to work with Employing Authorities and teaching unions to explore methods of preventing violence and abuse against teachers and support staff who are subjected to it.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education whether his Department is required to approve the Area Plans for each Education and Library Board; and if so, whether primary and post-primary plans, published in 2013 and 2014, have been approved.
(AQW 35803/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: To date, my Department has exercised a scrutiny and challenge role in relation to Area Plans and has been working closely with the Boards and the other school managing authorities, particularly through the Area Planning Steering Group. This will continue until there is greater clarity on the establishment and operation of the new body.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education, given that the process of Area Planning is ongoing, to detail (i) how often this process will be reviewed; (ii) whether the findings for primary and post-primary schools will be published annually by Education and Library Boards; and (iii) the action his Department will take if any of the Education and Library Boards fail to implement the stated policy in relation to Area Planning in a timely manner.
(AQW 35804/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd:

- (i) The current area planning process was set up as an interim one in advance of the establishment of Education Skill Authority (ESA). As no agreement was reached on ESA, I now have the Executive's agreement to bring forward legislation to create a single body to replace the existing five Education and Library Boards. Therefore, the area planning process and related guidance will need to be reviewed if legislation is passed. Meanwhile I will continue with the interim arrangements until there is greater clarity on the establishment and operation of the new body.

- (ii) The Area Profiles are published annually by the Education Boards and are available on their websites. This ensures everyone with an interest has access to up-to-date information to enable them to get involved in the debate on future provision.
- (iii) Area Planning is a process through which a network of viable and sustainable schools will be developed. It is fundamentally based on the Sustainable Schools Policy, the primary objective of which is to ensure all children and young people get a high quality education in schools that are educationally and financially viable. Any proposals to implement a significant change as a result of the area planning process still need to follow the statutory Development Proposal process.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education, given that the recent judgement following the Judicial Review for Drumragh Integrated College stated that the Needs Model assumes no growth in the integrated sector, when this model will be reviewed and amended in response to the judgement and the statutory duty on his Department in regard to Integrated Education. (AQW 35805/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Learned Judge Treacy did not call for the Needs Model to be reviewed. The Court accepted that it was appropriate to use a needs model for planning purposes. It did note that it would be easier for decisions which were in line with the long range plan to be approved than for decisions that are out of line with the long range plan.

The Needs Model does what it was designed to do. It was not designed to calculate estimates for growth in any sector beyond those derived from the population projections and the current patterns of enrolment. However, the distribution of the calculated need for places across the sectors is the starting point for planning purposes. The calculated need can be amended through discussions between the planning authorities, i.e. the Boards and CCMS, and representatives of the Integrated sector. The calculated need may also be increased by up to 10% system-wide to accommodate a degree of parental choice. This has been made clear to all sectors.

It is important, therefore, that those representing the Integrated sector make a robust case in planning discussions to ensure that genuine need for local expansion in the sector is expressed in amended need figures which in turn will be reflected in the area plans.

The area plans, including figures derived from the needs model, are long-term but not static. They will be reviewed as circumstances change and as more up-to-date data becomes available.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education to detail the source of funding for the three agreed Shared Education Campus projects; and whether the full funding for the projects has been agreed. (AQW 35807/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I announced the first tranche of successful projects to be supported under the Shared Education Campuses Programme on 1 July 2014.

The three projects will be taken forward to a full Economic Appraisal which, once submitted, will be considered within the normal business approval processes and in line with NI Guide to Expenditure Appraisal and Evaluation guidelines, including value for money and affordability.

Until full Economic Appraisals have been developed, it is difficult to estimate the capital costs associated with the three proposals. As with other major capital projects, formal allocation of the budget for these projects will not be made until Economic Appraisals are approved and the Department of Education's capital budget for future years has been confirmed. At this stage, capital budgets from April 2015 onwards have not yet been agreed for all Departments.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education whether performance related pay and bonuses have been paid to the staff of the General Teaching Council in each of the last five years; and if so, to detail (i) how much; and (ii) to how many individuals and whether final salaries have been enhanced for pension purposes. (AQW 35822/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I can confirm that the General Teaching Council has paid performance related pay and bonuses to staff in each of the last five years, broken down as follows:

	2009/10	2010/11	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14
Performance Related Pay Paid (£)	3,0951	3,2181	Nil	Nil	Nil
Bonuses Paid (£)	2,7082	Nil	Nil	Nil	Nil
How many individuals received PRP?	*	*	Nil	Nil	Nil
How many individuals received Bonuses?	*	Nil	Nil	Nil	Nil

1 represents fully consolidated pay increase (4.0%)

2 represents non-consolidated amount (3.5%)

* denotes fewer than 5 individuals

I can advise that the consolidated amounts would have been included in the final salary used for pension calculations.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Education whether performance related pay and bonuses have been paid to the staff of Education and Library Boards in each of the last five years; and if so, to detail (i) how much; and (ii) to how many individuals and whether final salaries have been enhanced for pension purposes.

(AQW 35823/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I can confirm that the Education and Library Boards have paid performance related pay and bonuses to staff in each of the last five years, broken down as follows:

ELB	2009/10	2010/11	2011/12	2012/13	2013/14
Performance Related Pay Paid	£60,776	£98,546	£19,988	£165,416	£3,199
Bonuses Paid	Nil	Nil	Nil	Nil	Nil
How many individuals received PRP?	16	23	5	22	*
How many individuals received Bonuses?	Nil	Nil	Nil	Nil	Nil

* denotes fewer than 5 individuals.

I can advise that the consolidated amounts would have been included in the final salary used for pension calculations.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education to detail the estimated level of savings that will result from the creation of a single Education and Library Board.

(AQW 35881/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: While the business case for the establishment of the new Education Authority (which will replace the five Education and Library Boards and the Staff Commission) has not yet been finalised, it is anticipated that savings will be realized comparable in scale to those expected from ESA (£185m over its first 10 years).

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education for an estimate of the annual budget that will be allocated to the new support body for controlled schools.

(AQW 35882/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Work on establishing the Controlled sector support body will commence after the introduction of a Bill to the Assembly to replace the 5 Education and Library Boards and their staff commission with one organisation.

At that point work will begin with representatives of the controlled sector to determine among other things, the expected annual budget for the Controlled Sector Support Body.

Mr Lunn asked the Minister of Education whether the new support body for controlled schools will provide support to controlled integrated schools.

(AQW 35883/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: My Department will fund the proposed Controlled Sector Support body to offer support to all controlled schools. The functions of the body will also incorporate building co-operation and engaging with other sectors in matters of mutual interest, including promotion of tolerance and understanding.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of Education why learning support units are not available for primary school children in the Newtownabbey area.

(AQW 35900/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The North Eastern Education and Library Board has advised that there are currently seven learning support units (LSCs) in primary schools in the board area. Prior to 2006 these LSCs were referred to as special units and catered exclusively for pupils with a moderate learning difficulty (MLD). However, following the introduction of the Special Educational Needs and Disability Order (NI) 2005 (SENDO) which strengthened the rights of children with special educational needs (SEN) to be educated in mainstream schools, the Board reviewed this element of SEN support. To facilitate a continuum of provision the Board agreed to re-designate the previous MLD unit provision as LSCs thereby enabling them to cater for a wider range of special educational needs.

When the MLD units were originally established cognisance was taken of the fact that there were already two existing special schools catering exclusively for pupils with MLD - Rostulla School in Jordanstown and the former Dunfane School (now part of the Castle Tower complex) in Ballymena. The former MLD units were therefore geographically located to provide MLD provision across the whole board area with the majority of the units therefore being located in the north of the board area where there was no other specialised MLD provision.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of Education why there is not provision, such as an equivalent school to Cedar Lodge, for those children who do not have learning difficulties but who are unable to be educated in a mainstream setting, even when extra assistance is provided.

(AQW 35901/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: As detailed in the Code of Practice on the Identification and Assessment of Special Educational Needs (SEN), no child should be placed in a special school (such as Cedar Lodge) except by a board, as specified in a statement of SEN, or for the immediate commencement of a statutory assessment of SEN. A child that does not have learning difficulties, as defined in the Code of Practice, will not be able to meet either of these criteria and should therefore not be able to receive provision within a school equivalent to Cedar Lodge.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of Education to detail the average time is for a statement of need to be put in place; and whether there are any plans to improve this.

(AQW 35902/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards (ELBs) have advised that the average length of time taken from a request for a statutory assessment of special educational needs (SEN) to the issue of a final statement of SEN in the 2013/14 academic year, rounded to the nearest week, excluding permitted exceptions, is as follows:

BELB	25
NEELB	22
SEELB	24
SELB	21
WELB	20

A key proposal of the ongoing Review of SEN and Inclusion, agreed by the Executive, is the reduction of the statutory timeframe, excluding permitted exceptions, for ELBs to complete a statement from 26 weeks to 20 weeks.

Reducing the statutory timeframe will allow for earlier assessment and intervention and will enable effective and timely supports to be put in place for SEN children as required.

Mr Hilditch asked the Minister of Education why all schools in Newtownabbey are not part of the Multi Agency Support Team scheme.

(AQW 35903/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The North Eastern Education and Library Board has advised that early in 2007 all primary and nursery schools within the Northern Health and Social Care Trust area were contacted in writing to ask for an expression of interest in being involved in the Multi Agency Support Teams in Schools (MASTS) service. 102 schools (25 in the East Antrim area which covers the Newtownabbey area) expressed an interest and joined the service.

Schools who have subsequently expressed an interest in becoming part of the MASTS service have been added to a waiting list in the order they applied and this is reviewed on an annual basis within the confines of existing resources.

The East Antrim MASTs team currently supports a total of 43 schools including 8 schools which joined in September 2011 and a further two schools which joined in September 2012.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education to detail the reasons for the Council for the Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment's high expenditure on hospitality.

(AQW 35906/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I am informed by the Council for the Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) that the Council holds a significant number of events and meetings in support of qualifications, curriculum and assessment. These events and meetings are on a regional basis and can exceed 4000 annually.

In the area of qualifications alone CCEA contracts in excess of 5,000 practising teachers to help set, mark and award examinations, and that throughout the process CCEA needs to undertake training and meetings to ensure all of the work is done to the highest standard.

Modest catering is provided for teachers attending training and events and this makes up the great majority of the Council's expenditure on hospitality.

CCEA operates on a regional capacity and has limited capacity to host events internally. Every opportunity is taken to utilise venues within the education sector, however this is not always possible.

The catering CCEA provides for meetings and events is kept under constant review and subject to challenge via internal business case approval.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education to detail the reasons for the variance of spend on hospitality by each Education and Library Board.

(AQW 35907/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Education and Library Boards (ELBs) have informed me that they host numerous meetings, seminars and training events in Board premises and associated outcentres throughout the year, for both teaching and non-teaching staff as well as for other stakeholders. Modest hospitality, usually consisting of tea, coffee, sandwiches, etc. is often provided at these events, and in the main is provided by internal canteen facilities.

The cost of hospitality incurred by each ELB will vary depending on a number of factors, including the number of pupils and staff within schools in each ELB area, the number of other premises managed by the ELB, the number of staff employed in the ELB Headquarters and other premises, the frequency of meetings/seminars etc. and the numbers in attendance.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education to detail the intake at each pre-school in North Down.

(AQW 35910/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The table below gives provisional details of the number of children in each funded pre-school setting in the North Down Borough Council area at 15 September 2014.

Name of Pre-School	Intake
North Down Area
Ballymagee PS Nursery Unit	30

Final figures for each setting will be available after the School Census is completed later in the year.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Education for his assessment of the Coleraine Education Project.
(AQW 35943/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Phase 1 of the Coleraine Education Community Project (the Project), funded by DSD's Neighbourhood Renewal Programme, from April 2010 to March 2014, has successfully met its targets and has demonstrated improvements in both Key Stage 1 and Key Stage 2 Literacy and Numeracy. Attendance rates in the primary schools across the sectors have improved by 1.6%. In the post-primary sector the number of pupils remaining in education at Year 13 has increased by just over 10%, well beyond the final year target.

Phase 2 of the Project, which builds on and enhances the work undertaken in Phase 1, commenced at 1 April 2014 and is currently being funded through DE's Community Education Initiatives Programme. The aims and objectives of the Project complement important elements of my raising standards agenda including improvements in literacy and numeracy and the strengthening of school-community links. An evaluation of the DE funded element of the Project will be undertaken in due course.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Education for an update on the future support of the Coleraine Education Project.
(AQW 35945/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: In 2014/2015, the Coleraine Education Community Project (the Project) was successful in applying for funding of £81,555 through the Department of Education's Community Education Initiatives Programme (CEIP). It is estimated this funding will meet the cost of the Project to the end of October 2014.

The CEIP budget for 2014/2015 is fully committed and the Department is therefore unable to provide further funding to support the Project in this financial year.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Education how his Department works with Foras na Gaeilge to deliver Irish language tuition in schools in County Fermanagh.
(AQW 36002/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Primary Languages Programme was introduced in 2007 to give pupils at Foundation Stage / Key Stage 1 the opportunity to learn an additional language in school. The Programme offers primary schools the opportunity to work with peripatetic language tutors to deliver Irish, Spanish and Polish. There are currently four schools in County Fermanagh registered for this programme in Irish.

The Department has received proposals from Foras na Gaeilge to develop the teaching of Irish in non-Irish medium primary schools supported by training and resources. The Department is currently considering the feasibility of this proposal.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of Education what departmental services he has made available to the public via the post office network.
(AQW 36019/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Department of Education does not provide any services to the public through the Post Office Network.

The Department will continue to look at opportunities as they arise to consider whether any new public service could be delivered through the Post Office, although these would be subject to the appropriate procurement policy.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Education to detail the estimated total cost savings that will result from the new single education board in the first five years of its operation.
(AQW 36027/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: While the business case for the establishment of the new Education Authority (which will replace the five Education and Library Boards and the Staff Commission) has not yet been finalised, it is anticipated that savings will be realized comparable in scale to those expected from ESA (£185m over its first 10 years).

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education whether he can provide an assurance to staff of each Education and Library Board that their job will be secure when a single education board is created.
(AQW 36054/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The establishment of the Education Authority will represent a rationalisation of existing structures (the five Education and Library Boards and the Staff Commission). The new Authority is therefore expected to employ fewer staff, particularly in management grades, than are currently employed by the Education and Library Boards. Significant reductions in staff had already been made in anticipation of the establishment of ESA; it is my expectation that any remaining reductions will be achieved through voluntary redundancy, retirement or resignation.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Education when he will publish the report on the Independent Review of Home to School Transport.

(AQW 36055/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Independent Review Panel presented its final report to me on 28th August. It contains a considerable number of proposals for change which I now intend to consider before making decisions on the way forward. I will publish the report in due course.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education to detail the current pupil to teacher ratio in (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools, broken down by sector; and how this compares with 2009.

(AQW 36075/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The information requested is detailed in the table below.

School Type	Management Type	Pupil Teacher Ratio
		2008/09	2013/14
Primary (including preparatory departments of grammar schools)	Controlled	20.4	21.3
	Voluntary	16.5	15.4
	Catholic Maintained	20.5	21.0
	Other Maintained	16.3	16.9
	Controlled Integrated	19.2	21.0
	Grant Maintained Integrated	20.6	22.6
Post Primary (secondary and grammar)	Controlled	14.4	15.3
	Voluntary	15.1	16.3
	Catholic Maintained	14.1	14.8
	Other Maintained	11.3	13.2
	Controlled Integrated	13.3	14.0
	Grant Maintained Integrated	13.7	15.0

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Education what budget has been allocated for the teaching of coding in schools.

(AQW 36151/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Curriculum Advisory and Support Service (CASS) in each of the Education and Library Boards provides advisory and support services to all grant aided schools and are the main providers of in-service training for teachers. Training is primarily demand lead and therefore a specific budget is not allocated to curriculum subject areas.

The Department of Education (DE) has, however, allocated £46.5k in 2014/15 to Queen's University Belfast to pilot a course to upskill post-primary teachers to deliver software systems development at GCE A-Level. The pilot is being jointly funded by DE and the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment. In addition in 2013/14, DE allocated £20k from its STEM budget to enable teachers to work with industry representatives to develop material to support the teaching of computing, including programming skills, in the classroom.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education to detail (i) how many appeals have been lodged against Nendrum College, Comber in the last five years; (ii) how many appeals were from Comber residents; and (iii) how many appeals have been successful.

(AQW 36186/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: In the last five years 11 admissions appeals have been lodged against Nendrum College, three of which were from Comber residents. All 11 appeals were dismissed.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education how many (i) primary; and (ii) post-primary schools use an enrolment criteria stipulating that weight will only be given to siblings who are current rather than former pupils.

(AQW 36222/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Neither the Department or the Education or the Education and Library Boards hold the information in the format you have requested.

It is the responsibility of a school's Board of Governors to set and publish admissions criteria for entry to its school. The criteria will reflect the particular priorities each individual school wishes to apply when considering admissions to their school. The Department of Education has no role in this process other than to offer guidance. The admissions criteria for each school can be found within booklets published by the relevant Education and Library Boards or on the Education and Library Boards' websites.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Education to outline the process for reassessing the appropriate enrolment level at a school; and when Nendrum College in Comber's enrolment level was last considered.

(AQW 36223/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The Area Planning Process is the means through which planning authorities will ensure that we have the right type and size of schools, in the right places, to meet the needs of our pupils and young people.

Nendrum College is a controlled school and it is therefore a matter for the South Eastern Education and Library Board (SEELB) to determine the need in the area and to ensure that there are sufficient places.

The SEELB's Post-primary Area Plan states that Nendrum College's 'enrolment is below the Sustainable Schools Policy threshold but this is due to the limited accommodation at the school. The school attracts applications above its admission figure'.

The plan also states that the school will be retained with no action proposed at this time.

Mrs Overend asked Minister of Education for an update on the Special Educational Needs Review.

(AQW 36240/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I hope to bring a special educational needs draft Bill to the Executive shortly. The draft Bill will include the legislative requirements agreed with the Executive in 2012 and those surrounding associated policy considerations that were raised during the consultation process and highlighted to the Executive.

Over the last 3 years, I have provided funding for a number of important capacity-building initiatives to support the introduction of my proposals. These include: the special educational needs (SEN) Early Years Pilot in Department of Education-funded statutory and non-statutory early years settings; an Educational Assessment Pilot in almost 300 primary and post-primary settings; and a SEN Continuing Professional Development course at Masters level to improve the skills of teachers in teaching reading, writing and spelling to SEN children with literacy difficulties.

The capacity building programme has delivered a comprehensive SEN Resource File and leadership and management training for SEN Coordinators (SENCOs), available to all grant-aided schools. Funding has also been made available for a one-day training course in leadership and management of classroom assistants, which will be offered to all SENCOs and delivered by board staff in this school year. As an extension to the SEN Resource File, Early Years Handbooks have been developed for staff in all funded pre-school settings.

The capacity building programme, the provisions within the draft Bill, the associated regulations and a revised statutory Code of Practice will bring a rounded and considered package of proposals to improve the management, by both schools and education and library boards, of children's special educational needs.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Education how many children are recorded as having autism spectrum disorder, broken down by Education and Library Board.

(AQW 36266/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: The information requested is detailed in the table overleaf. The information provided relates to the 2013/14 school census, the 2014/15 school census takes place on the 10th October this year, provisional figures will be available in December, finalised figures in February.

Pupils with autism spectrum disorder by Education and Library Board area, 2013/14

Notes:

1. Figures include funded children in voluntary and private preschools, nursery schools, primary (including nursery, reception and year 1-7 classes), post primary and special schools.
2. Autistic Spectrum Disorder includes autism and/or aspergers syndrome.
3. Figures include pupils at stages 1 – 5 on the Special Educational Needs Code of Practice.
4. Data refers to any special educational need rather than primary need.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Education to detail the education services available in each Education and Library Board for children with autism.

(AQW 36268/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Following publication of the 'Report of the Task Group on Autism' (2002), DE funded the Education and Library Boards (ELBs) to establish an inter-board Autistic Spectrum Disorder (ASD) Group to provide support to children on the autistic spectrum within each ELB. As a consequence, an ASD advisory team was established in each ELB to enhance existing ASD services.

The ASD advisory service provides valued and worthwhile practical support to schools and is a resource of knowledge and skill, with the capacity to raise the standards of education and the social inclusion for children on the autistic spectrum by providing tailored support to match the individual needs of each child to ensure that they reach their full potential.

The ELBs have also developed a comprehensive range of services and provision to support pupils with learning difficulties (including autism), their parents/carers and schools. ELBs also provide autism-specific training in schools and all ELBs deliver a range of autism-specific training for school staff.

Examples of support include:

Early Years

- teaching support for children and parents in the home setting; this is organised on the basis of referral from either educational psychologists, community paediatricians, or multi-disciplinary teams;
- advice, support and training to nurseries and some playgroups to support the child's effective inclusion in mainstream pre-school settings;
- in some cases, children have statements of SEN in the early years. If this is the case, the child may access placement in a nursery with adult assistance, where appropriate, placement in a diagnostic setting, or placement in nursery class that is attached to a special school.

Primary Years

- advice and support from learning support staff who can advise schools on individual education plans as well as strategies that may be appropriate for specific children;
- outreach support and teaching from staff that are attached to special schools for children at stages 3,4 and 5 of the Code of Practice;
- adult assistants, where appropriate, in mainstream schools for children who have statements of SEN;
- access to placement in learning support classes that are attached to mainstream schools; this provides teaching in a small group placement with inclusion in mainstream classes, as appropriate;
- placement in special schools that meet the needs of children and young people with SEN.

Post-Primary Years

- The core areas of support include all the services offered at primary level and in addition:
- access to transition services to support the planning of young people's needs as they transition from school to adult learning programmes;
- access to counselling services as part of post-primary support; and
- participation in a range of course options through the Entitlement Framework.

The Middletown Centre for Autism also provides a range of support and intervention to professionals, parents and children with autism. Parents can avail of a range of training courses provided free of charge by the Centre and can access a broad range of online learning resources, including training video materials.

The Centre is also currently expanding its programme of direct support and intervention to children with complex autism who are referred to it by the ELBs.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Education how many educational facilities are available for children with autism spectrum disorder. (AQW 36271/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: Children with autism spectrum disorder (ASD) can attend grant-aided schools in the north of Ireland. The Code of Practice on the Identification and Assessment of Special Educational Needs (COP) sets out a five stage approach to the identification of children with learning difficulties, the assessment of their SEN and the making of whatever special educational provision is necessary to meet those needs. The COP recognises that there is a continuum of needs and a continuum of provision which may be made in a variety of forms; in mainstream schools, Learning Support Centres attached to mainstream schools or special schools.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Education what legislative changes are being made in replacing the five existing educational boards; and to detail the applicable timescales for the change. (AQW 36282/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I am seeking the Executive's agreement to introduce a Bill which will establish a single Education Authority in place of the five existing Education and Library Boards and their Staff Commission. The timescale will depend upon the Assembly's consideration of the Bill. I will be seeking agreement to the use of the accelerated passage procedure so that the Bill may complete its passage in time to allow for the establishment of the Education Authority by 1 April, 2015, or as soon as possible thereafter.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister of Education to outline his plans for the restructuring of Education and Library Boards.
(AQW 36357/11-15)

Mr O'Dowd: I am seeking the Executive's agreement to introduce a Bill which will establish a single Education Authority in place of the five existing Education and Library Boards (ELBs) and their Staff Commission. The role and functions of the Education Authority, including its employer responsibilities, shall be the same as those of the ELBs as set out in the Education Orders.

Department for Employment and Learning

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning for his assessment of the number of work placements in East Londonderry that are available to students at the Northern and North Western Regional Colleges.
(AQW 35605/11-15)

Dr Farry (The Minister for Employment and Learning): According to the North West Regional College, there were 45 work placements in training provision and 113 further education placements in the East Londonderry area in the 2013/14 academic year. Similarly, Northern Regional College have confirmed there were 4 work placements in training and 128 further education placements within the East Londonderry area in the 2013/14 academic year.

The process of obtaining, monitoring and evaluating work placements takes significant effort by colleges, but is a key element of the student experience and an integral part of their study.

Research emphasises the importance of work placements. In particular, learners benefit from experience of the work environment to complement their main studies. This is also a very effective way for learners to acquire the all-important employability skills required by employers.

My Department's current reviews of further education and youth training are considering how work placements can be included in the most effective way in individual students' programmes of learning.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Employment and Learning who is currently delivering the Extractives and Minerals Processing apprenticeship frameworks; and who will deliver the frameworks in future.
(AQW 35621/11-15)

Dr Farry: Southern Regional College and South West College hold contracts to deliver the Extractives and Mineral Processing apprenticeship frameworks. However, no apprentices are currently undertaking training aligned to these frameworks.

Subject to the suppliers' compliance with the programme's operational guidelines and conditions of contract, they will continue to deliver the contract until its expiry date of the 31st March 2016.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what qualifications or accreditations does a body or individual require to deliver the Extractives and Minerals processing apprenticeship frameworks.
(AQW 35622/11-15)

Dr Farry: ApprenticeshipsNI contracted training suppliers must ensure that all teaching/training staff have a qualification which is a minimum of a Level 3 on the National Qualifications Framework (NQF) /Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF) in the professional and technical area(s) in which they are teaching/training.

In addition, training suppliers must ensure that all training personnel who are qualified teachers, achieve, or work towards achieving, the Certificate in Teaching, currently provided by the University of Ulster in accordance with the contract tender documentation.

Contracted training suppliers must also ensure that they have Awarding Body approval. However, training suppliers would not be expected to have obtained all Awarding Body approvals on the commencement date of the ApprenticeshipsNI contract. Suppliers should seek awarding body approval when it becomes evident that a need has arisen to deliver specific apprenticeship framework training.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the number of students from Targeting Social Need areas enrolled in each university and college, for each of the last three (i) academic; and (ii) financial years.
(AQW 35642/11-15)

Dr Farry: The tables below provide the available information from the 40% most deprived areas across Northern Ireland for each of the last three academic years. By using the bottom 40%, we are very likely to be identifying the majority of people in disadvantaged areas.

Information is only collected on an academic year basis and therefore financial year analysis is not available.

Question AQW 35759/11-15

Eligible students must apply through the Western Education and Library Board for a Further Education Award before they can be considered for assistance through college Hardship Funds. Anyone who is refused a Further Education Award is advised individually by the Board that they may apply to their college for help through Hardship Funds.

The colleges do not record statistical data in the manner requested and so cannot confirm how many students received help through Hardship Funds after being refused assistance through Further Education Awards.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the number of students studying at the (i) Northern Regional College; and (ii) North Western Regional College who have received financial assistance from (a) the Further Education Fund; and (b) College Hardship Funds, in each of the last five years.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail the range and number of higher education courses which are currently available to students who attend the Omagh Campus of the South West College; and how his Department plans to increase higher education provision in Omagh.

(AQW 35853/11-15)

Dr Farry: Details of the higher education courses offered at the Omagh campus of South West College in academic year 2013/14 and the number of enrolments on each course are provided in Annex A to this response. My Department does not hold detailed information on the range and number of higher education courses being offered at Omagh campus in the 2014/15 academic year but this is available in the college prospectus.

South West College's allocation of full-time higher education places has increased from 186 in academic year 2008/09 to 565 in academic year 2014/15. This significant increase is the result of my Department's annual review of college full-time higher education allocations and additional full-time places that I have made available, including 68 places I awarded in academic year 2013/14 and an extra 23 places I awarded in the 2014/15 academic year. These allocations of additional places demonstrate my continuing commitment to increasing higher education provision in the south west.

However, it is the responsibility of the senior management in the regional college to apply their allocation of full-time higher education places across campuses and curriculum areas to balance local demand and Departmental priorities.

My Department is committed to carrying out further reviews of college allocations in the future and to providing additional places when extra resources are identified, but there can be no guarantee that any additional full-time places would be allocated to South West College.

My Department does not place a cap on part-time higher education places and expansion of that provision therefore offers South West College another route to increase higher education opportunities. In this regard, the South West College is participating in a pilot project to encourage those who are in work and who hold a foundation degree to progress to a bachelor degree on a part-time basis. This could lead to additional part-time higher education enrolments in the Omagh area.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister for Employment and Learning why Co. Tyrone and Co. Fermanagh has not been included to stage departmental job fairs; and whether his Department plans to host a job fair in Omagh.

(AQW 35856/11-15)

Dr Farry: My Department works closely with employers and actively pursues opportunities to facilitate employer events, Job Fairs and single recruitment events.

When sufficient commitments have been received from employers in the Co Fermanagh and Co Tyrone areas we would be happy to facilitate Job Fair events.

In the meantime any employers in these areas who are planning to expand and undertake large scale recruitment exercises will be supported by the Department through local customised recruitment events

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister for Employment and Learning whether he is aware of the concern amongst first year students at Queen's University and their families at the difficulties currently being experienced in obtaining university accommodation; and to detail the steps he is taking to resolve this situation.

(AQW 35890/11-15)

Dr Farry: The allocation of student accommodation is a matter for the University and is therefore not one that my Department has a role in. However, I have asked Queen's University about this matter and they have informed me that they are by far the largest provider of Purpose Built Managed Student Accommodation (PBMSA) in the city. Queen's has invested over £60m to support the creation of 2,243 rooms. In line with the recommendations of the Buchanan Report, Queen's has developed new proposals to further increase its provision of PBMSA and is working tirelessly to bring these to a successful conclusion.

The demand from students for high quality managed accommodation demonstrates the urgent need to increase provision in the city. The University is fully committed to playing its part in increasing the supply of PBMSA and will continue to work proactively, in partnership with all stakeholders, to make this a reality.

Queen's recognises that the availability of PBMSA is an important factor for students who choose to come to study at the University. Given that demand outstrips supply, Queen's allocate rooms based on a comprehensive policy linked to distance from the University.

Queen's appreciate that this is a very difficult time for new students and their parents and they provide as much proactive assistance as possible. Queen's offer a waiting list for those students who can commute and who wish to continue to be considered for rooms that become available after term starts.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning to detail any potential employers based in East Londonderry who have signed up as partners to his Department's Computing and Engineering Scholarship Programme.

(AQW 35981/11-15)

Dr Farry: No employers have signed up to the programme as yet. The programme was launched on 15 September 2014 and the closing date for applications is 14 November 2014.

The Department will not be in a position to know which employers have submitted an application until after this closing date.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how many applications from South Eastern Regional College students to the (i) Further Education Fund; and (ii) Hardship Fund, were rejected in each of the last five years.

(AQW 36006/11-15)

Dr Farry: In the last five academic years, the numbers of students studying at the South Eastern Regional College (SERC) who have received funding from Further Education Awards and the Hardship Funds and the number who have had applications rejected from both funds are as follows:

Mrs Hale asked the Minister for Employment and Learning what mechanisms are in place to measure the quality of the skills being delivered in the Engineering and Utility Sector.

(AQW 36033/11-15)

Dr Farry: I established and chair the Advanced Manufacturing and Engineering Services Working Group to consider how issues related to the provision of skills in the Engineering and Utility sector can be addressed. This Group brings together Government, academia and local employers to identify specific skills needs and develop appropriate solutions through an agreed Action Plan which was launched in April 2014.

My Department also has a Quality Improvement Adviser who works closely with the Education and Training Inspectorate to evaluate the quality of provision across Training for Success and ApprenticeshipsNI programmes in all sectors including Engineering and Utilities. Inspections are carried out on a three yearly cycle and reports cover the quality of leadership and management, standards and outcomes and teaching and learning.

In addition, my Department's Supplier Performance Branch and the Finance and Audit Support Team both carry out at least one monitoring visit each financial year to ensure that contracted training suppliers are fully compliant with Operational Guidelines and conditions of contract. Subsequent visits are undertaken based on risk assessment.

Information gathered during monitoring and inspection activity is reviewed at an annual case conference. The review of all available information will inform decisions on further action required.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Employment and Learning how many companies in East Londonderry are partners with his Department's Bridge Programme.

(AQW 36045/11-15)

Dr Farry: The number of companies in East Londonderry and throughout Northern Ireland which have run Bridge to Employment programmes in conjunction with my Department since 2011 to the present are detailed below. The table also details the number of participants who were offered employment following participation in the Bridge to Employment scheme;

Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment

Mr McKay asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how the Northern Ireland Tourist Board is developing greenways; and to outline the anticipated tourism potential from these projects.

(AQW 35452/11-15)

Mrs Foster (The Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment): The Northern Ireland Tourism Board (NITB) has not received any financial assistance applications for the development of Greenways in Northern Ireland.

In November 2013 the Minister for Regional Development announced the establishment of a Cycling Unit dedicated to working on cycling. The Cycling Unit is working to ensure that cycling provision is a key element in both transport strategy and delivery and to develop and promote the bicycle as an everyday mode of transport for everyone in Northern Ireland and also in relation to tourism and culture.

The Department for Regional Development (DRD) Cycling Unit currently has a Draft Bicycle Strategy for Northern Ireland (August 2014) out to consultation. The draft Strategy proposes the development of Amenity Routes, Greenways and cross border routes as a way of developing tourism and celebrating the unique character of Northern Ireland. DRD is currently in the lead in the development of cycling provision, including Greenways in Northern Ireland. This will require multi-agency and Departmental input and support.

In May 2014, to ensure cohesive delivery DRD established a Northern Ireland Cross Sectoral Cycling Group to oversee and co-ordinate delivery the Strategy. NITB is represented on this Group.

In relation to other Greenway projects such as the Western Greenway in Co. Mayo, in 2011 research demonstrated that a €3million investment yielded €7million estimated economic benefit. Greenways are therefore one of the key strategic considerations being taken forward by the Northern Ireland Cross Sectoral Cycling Group.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail (i) the funding provided for the Titanic Showdown event on 6 September 2014; and (ii) who provided the funding, given that it is not included in the list of events that were successful in bidding for the 2014/15 events.

(AQW 35504/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department has committed £150,000 through the Northern Ireland Tourist Board and Tourism Ireland who are working with the promoters of the Frampton/Martinez fight to maximise exposure for Northern Ireland.

The Department of Culture, Arts & Leisure (DCAL) has allocated £100,000 of funding to this event.

Mr Flanagan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail any investment funds that InvestNI invested in, broken down by year, for each year since its foundation.

(AQW 35533/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Invest NI has invested in the following investment funds:

Fund	Fund Manager	Year
Nitech	Clarendon Fund Managers	2002
Crescent Capital II	Crescent Capital	2004
NISPO	E-Synergy	2009
Growth Loan Fund	WhiteRock Capital Partners	2012
Small Business Loan Fund	Ulster Community Investment plc	2013
Development Fund I	Crescent Capital	2013
Development Fund II	Kernel Capital	2013
techstart NI	Pentech Ventures	2014

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on the Programme for Government 2011/15 Commitment 7 to increase visitor numbers to 4.2m and tourist revenue to £676m by December 2014.

(AQW 35560/11-15)

Mrs Foster: All Programme for Government (PfG) targets on tourism have been achieved to date.

The latest full year Official Statistics on tourism are for 2013 and these figures show that the PfG milestone targets on visitor numbers and tourist revenue were met. Total visitor numbers for 2013 were 4.1 million with visitor expenditure of £723million against targets of 4.1 million visitors and revenue of £637million.

Statistics for the first quarter of 2014 (January to March) were published by NISRA on 17 July 2014. These show that total visitor numbers increased by 2% for the first 3 months of 2014 when compared to January to March 2013, with associated expenditure from these visitors up by 10% when compared to the first quarter of 2013.

Full year statistics for 2014 will not be published until spring 2015.

Mr G Robinson asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what assistance her Department can offer to private sector companies who provide 3G communications services in Limavady.

(AQW 35629/11-15)

Mrs Foster: As a fully privatised sector Mobile communications is one of the most competitive areas of the UK telecommunications market and the four main Mobile Network Operators are currently investing significantly to upgrade their 2G and 3G networks in Northern Ireland. Government can only intervene where the market has failed and in compliance with EU competition law and state aid rules.

For those areas that are not currently being addressed by market forces, the UK Government is implementing the £150 million Mobile Infrastructure project which aims to address mobile voice and basic data not-spots across the UK by March 2015. While the project is focused on 2G technology, it is understood that opportunities will be taken to upgrade to 3G where possible. Northern Ireland is in line for 72 new mast sites under this project.

My Department is maintaining a watching brief on these ongoing initiatives and will assess the need for further government intervention once they have completed.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment whether she has had discussions with her UK counterpart regarding the Kurdistan region of Iraq, and the potential impact that current events could have on possible inward investment projects.

(AQW 35635/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department, through Invest Northern Ireland, continues to liaise with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on the ongoing situation in the Kurdistan region. Our primary concern at this stage is the welfare of Invest NI's own officer in Erbil, other UK nationals and the local population.

The primary focus of Northern Ireland's contact with Kurdistan has been to increase the export of goods and services from Northern Ireland. The current conflict in Northern Iraq has slowed economic development across the region but Northern Ireland companies have made progress in Kurdistan over the past few years.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment which companies have received financial support for investments made in East Londonderry and North Antrim, in each year since 2010.

(AQW 35690/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The tables below show the companies that have been offered support by Invest NI in (i) the East Londonderry and (ii) North Antrim parliamentary constituency areas in each full financial year since 2010-11.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on the Economic Inactivity Framework. (AQW 35711/11-15)

Mrs Foster: A public consultation on the Strategic Framework to Tackle Economic Inactivity was undertaken between 23 January and 17 April 2014. 58 written responses were received.

During the public consultation period, a number of public consultation events, and information sessions were held with a wide range of stakeholders across Northern Ireland. More than 120 stakeholders attended the events.

Due to the extensive nature and the complexity of the subject matter, additional stakeholder engagement with a number of specific economically inactive client groups was undertaken in May and June 2014. I, along with the Minister for Employment and Learning and the Minister for Social Development, also met with a number of business representatives to determine how we can support business to contribute to the aims of the strategy.

A summary of responses document, based on analysis of the written consultation responses and transcripts of the public stakeholder engagement events was published in June 2014 and can be accessed at the following link: <http://www.delni.gov.uk/economic-inactivity-report-responses.pdf>

Following the public consultation period, the Executive Sub-Committee on the Economy noted the key findings from the consultation and endorsed a number of recommendations going forward. This includes an audit of existing service provision across Northern Ireland for the target inactive groups identified in the Strategic Framework document which has commenced. The results of the audit will provide an evidence base to inform development and delivery of the final Strategy.

Officials from DETI and DEL, supported by DHSSPS and DSD, are now working to finalise the Strategy which Minister Farry and I would hope to bring to the Executive before the end of this year.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what actions her Department is taking to learn from other parts of the UK on their policies, targets and achievements in promoting innovation and attracting business to use the expertise that exists here locally and to bring their expertise to Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35733/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department works very closely with the UK Department of Business Innovation and Skills (BIS) and the other Devolved Administrations in order to deepen its understanding and knowledge of developments on wider Innovation policy measures. We are represented on a number of key working groups, at both UK and EU level, which ensures that Northern Ireland contributes to wider UK and EU policy development on innovation and also helps inform our policy development here.

My officials have built up very strong relationships with a number of UK Innovation organisations such as InnovateUK (formerly the Technology Strategy Board) NESTA, and the Open Data Institute. These organisations contributed very positively to the recently published Northern Ireland Innovation Strategy while at an operational level they have been helping us test new programmes and support mechanisms that can help improve Northern Ireland's innovation performance. An example of this is the Small Business Research Initiative where, working in collaboration with InnovateUK, Northern Ireland was the first devolved Administration to run its own SBRI competition. Similarly, with the support of NESTA and the Open Data Institute, my Department and the Department of Finance and Personnel recently organised the first NI Open Data challenge in Northern Ireland. These new programmes are designed to encourage more of our local companies, particularly SME's and Micro Business to engage in research and innovation.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how her Department is planning to combat the low levels of Foreign Direct Investment for clinical research.

(AQW 35763/11-15)

Mrs Foster: DETI and Invest NI recognise the importance of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) in growing any sector. FDI brings new investment in skills and technology and is a key factor in growing productivity. Invest NI's recent success in FDI have been from the Financial and Professional Services and ICT/Software sectors. However, the Life Sciences sector, including clinical research, is an area of increasing interest from potential investors.

A Memorandum of Understanding between DETI (including Invest NI) and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety seeks to identify areas in which the organisations can work together to contribute to improved health and well-being, enhanced patient care and the development of opportunities to support the wider economic development strategy.

Invest NI has also committed to place a Business Development Executive in its Boston office in order to make connections between institutions in the US and Northern Ireland, develop export opportunities for Northern Ireland companies and to explore the possibility of increasing FDI in the Life Sciences and Connected Health sectors. A recruitment exercise for this position has recently concluded and the successful candidate will be in place in October 2014.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what steps her Department has taken to collaborate with the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, to promote innovative healthcare research and attract investment for clinical research.

(AQW 35764/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department works closely with colleagues in DHSSPS to promote innovative healthcare research and attract investment for clinical research.

At a strategic level both departments have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to develop health, social care and economic opportunities in Connected Health for Northern Ireland, through better coordination of public assets and funding. One of the key aims of the MOU is to support clinical research on Connected Health in Northern Ireland.

In collaboration with Industry and the Universities both departments are working on the Life & Health Sciences MATRIX Capability and Foresight mapping exercise which will inform government on the new Life and Health Sciences Strategy.

This strategic work has led to a number of initiatives to support and attract research.

In June 2014 HSC Innovations and the Connected Health Innovation Centre (CHIC) signed a MOU to facilitate collaborative working between academia, industry and HSC Innovations. The collaboration between CHIC and HSC Innovations will streamline the assessment of how emerging technologies and innovations will become tools to improve healthcare professionals' ability to deliver better care. One such example is a project coordinated by CHIC and HSC Innovations working with Randox Laboratories Ltd, Exploristics, EMC Corporation and Southern Health and Social Care Trust. In this project CHIC member companies are looking at utilising new analytics and big data techniques applied to diagnostics in order to improve health outcomes.

Invest NI, HSC Research & Development and University of Ulster (UU) have co-funded an R&D investment of £11.5million in a new Stratified Medicine Centre at C-TRIC (the Clinical Translational Research and Innovation Centre), Altnagelvin Hospital. The project involves collaboration between UU, the Western Health Trust and C-TRIC in age related diseases.

Invest NI and HSC Research & Development have recently worked with the Association of British Pharmaceutical Industry and the local universities to host the Northern Ireland Life Sciences Pharmaceutical Industry Clinical Research visit. The objective of this event was to build relationships between Northern Ireland and Pharmaceutical industry clinical researchers with a view to increasing collaborative research. The event was attended by over 100 delegates including scientific and medical personnel from 19 global pharmaceutical companies. Outcomes will include improvements in clinical research processes, further opportunities to attract research and the possible co-funding of a clinical research industry liaison executive.

In summary both departments are actively collaborating at strategic and operational levels to promote and attract healthcare and clinical research. Actions arising from the new Life and Health Sciences Strategy will further strengthen and set targets for this activity.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how much financial support Invest NI has provided to Bombardier in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35784/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Assistance Offered to Bombardier by Invest Northern Ireland during the past three financial years is detailed below.

	Assistance Offered	Assistance Paid
1 April 2011 – 31 March 2012	£ 1,817,050	£ 1,700,030
1 April 2012 – 31 March 2013	£ 1,459,448	£ 795,932
1 April 2013 – 31 March 2014	£ 2,616	£ 2,616

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, in relation to the Titanic Showdown boxing event held on Saturday 6 September 2014, (i) what financial contribution in the way of sponsorship was made to the event by her Department; and (ii) what representations regarding the event were received by her Department from (a) public representatives; (b) Ministers; (c) Special Advisors; and (d) lobby interests.

(AQW 35788/11-15)

Mrs Foster: My Department, through NITB and Tourism Ireland, contributed £150,000 to the Titanic Showdown boxing event.

Tourism Ireland committed £100,000 towards international TV, press and online exposure for Titanic, Belfast and Northern Ireland in the run-up to the event and during its live screening to a potential global audience of 850,000 viewers.

NITB committed £50,000, entering into a three year marketing sponsorship agreement with Cyclone Promotions to use the high profile media coverage and digital following of the event to promote Belfast and Northern Ireland.

OFMDFM was approached by Cyclone Promotions regarding proposals for the Titanic Showdown. The Head of the Civil Service asked DETI to meet with the company and consider its proposals.

My Department was not lobbied by public representatives, Ministers, Special Advisors or lobby interests.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the cost of conferences, including room hire, hospitality, travel and associated fees, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35802/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Cost of conferences including room hire, hospitality, travel and associated fees

Financial year	Total cost (excluding vat)
2009/2010	£6866.86*
2010/2011	£7866.00*
2011/2012	£1300.00*
2012/2013	£5134.88*
2013/2014	£6914.02*

*Footnote:- In some cases it has not been possible to identify the associated travel costs.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment for an update on the provision of basic and superfast broadband services.

(AQW 35841/11-15)

Mrs Foster: As a result of previous investment, Northern Ireland already has the highest availability of superfast broadband services in the UK. However, I recognise that challenges remain and there is still room to do more.

On 4 February 2014 my Department signed a contract with BT, for delivery of the c£23.5million Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement project. This project aims to provide improvements in access to basic and superfast fixed-line broadband services across Northern Ireland and is anticipated will bring more choice and improved broadband speeds to a further 45,000 premises by the end of 2015.

The project is being delivered in eight phases, each of which requires an extensive survey and design process. This takes account of technical feasibility, quality of existing infrastructure in the area, reasonable costs, number of anticipated customers etc and seeks to achieve the greatest value for money and the highest number of beneficiaries.

On 23 July my Department published details of the street level postcodes where improvements had been delivered under the first implementation phase, together with a high level roll-out plan for future phases, including indicative completion dates. The intention is to update this information as each phase completes and as services come online. The information can be found at <http://www.nidirect.gov.uk/broadband-improvement-project.htm>

My Department has also been indicatively allocated £7.24million by Broadband Delivery UK (BDUK) for the extension of superfast broadband and is seeking to match this, to provide a potential funding pot of £14.48million.

On 26 August, we commenced a public consultation on the proposed intervention area for a further project, which will utilise this funding support and aimed at extending superfast broadband services to at least 95% of premises across Northern Ireland by 2017. This consultation closes on 26 September. The consultation document can be found at http://www.detini.gov.uk/index/what-we-do/deti-telecoms-index/consultations_from_2014/superfast_rollout_programme_phase_2.htm

If value for money is demonstrated, it is proposed that a mini-competition will be taken forward; using an existing framework to find a suitable supplier and it is anticipated that a contract award may take place in early 2015.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to outline the steps that she has taken to boost the tourism potential of South Down, including the (i) details of investment; (ii) dates of investment; (iii) recipients of investment; and (iv) amounts invested in the last three years.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment how much has been spent by the Northern Ireland Tourist Board on funding events in the Banbridge District Council area in the last three years; and to detail the events that have been funded.

(AQW 35843/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Tourist Board in 2011/12; 2012/13 and 2013/14 received over 240 applications to the Tourism Events Funding Programme.

During this period only one application was received from event organisers in the Banbridge District Council area.

This application was unsuccessful in securing funding through the events fund.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail the budget attached to each of the eight phases of the Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project.

(AQW 35874/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project is being delivered in eight phases with an overall completion date of 31 December 2015.

The expected public expenditure budget for each phase is

Phase	Amount
1	£95,092

Phase	Amount
2	£1,152,795
3	£1,806,598
4	£2,580,075
5	£3,373,698
6	£3,131,309
7	£3,668,610
8	£3,491,823
Total	£19,300,000

This of course may change if the roll out plan needs to be updated during this time.

In addition BT expects to contribute over £4.3 million during the lifetime of the project.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to provide a timetable for the delivery of the Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project.

(AQW 35891/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project is being delivered in eight phases with an overall completion date of 31 December 2015.

The postcode areas where improvements have been made under the first two phases are published on the NI Direct website (www.nidirect.gov.uk/broadband-improvement-project) together with an indicative timetable for completion of improvements in other areas over the remainder of the project.

DETI officials will continue to update the information on NI Direct as the project progresses.

Mr Kinahan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what changes she envisages in the role, remit, scope and number of local economic development agencies in light of the current transformation of local government.

(AQW 35931/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Invest NI will remain the primary economic development agency for Northern Ireland responsible for local business development after the reform of local government takes place. However a number of functions relating to enterprise awareness, start a business activity and social enterprise will transfer from Invest NI to the new councils on 1 April 2015.

A comprehensive programme of engagement has taken place between my Department, Invest NI and the Councils to ensure the transfer of functions takes place smoothly and efficiently. After April 2015 it will be the responsibility of local councils to determine the schemes they will establish to deliver those functions which are transferring.

Mr Hazzard asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment which areas in South Down will benefit from the Broadband Improvement Project; and when these improvements will be implemented.

(AQW 35933/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project is being delivered in eight phases with an overall completion date of 31 December 2015.

The postcode areas where improvements have been made under the first two phases are published on the NI Direct website (www.nidirect.gov.uk/broadband-improvement-project) together with an indicative timetable for completion of improvements in other areas, including South Down, over the remainder of the project.

DETI officials will continue to update the information on NI Direct as the project progresses.

Ms McGahan asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment what proposals her Department has to secure the future of Aghnacloy street market; and to mitigate the potential reduction in footfall in Aghnacloy, if this market closes; and whether her Department has had any engagement with Monaghan County Council on this matter.

(AQW 35958/11-15)

Mrs Foster: Policy responsibility for the retail sector cuts across a number of Executive Departments. Responsibility for street markets and in particular the levies imposed on traders is a matter for the local council.

While I appreciate the importance of the Aghnacloy market to the village and the surrounding area, my Department does not have any remit in this area. My Department has had no engagement with Monaghan County Council on this matter.

Ms Boyle asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment which areas in West Tyrone will benefit from the Broadband Improvement Project; and when these improvements will be implemented.

(AQW 36014/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The Northern Ireland Broadband Improvement Project is being delivered in eight phases with an overall completion date of 31 December 2015.

The areas where improvements have already been made under the first two phases are published on the NI Direct website. In addition consumers can use the online postcode checker to find out when work is scheduled to be carried out in their area. This information can be accessed at: <http://www.nidirect.gov.uk/broadband-improvement-project>

DETI officials will continue to update the information on NI Direct as the project progresses.

Ms Boyle asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to detail her Department's plans to improve mobile phone coverage in Strabane and the surrounding rural areas.

(AQW 36015/11-15)

Mrs Foster: The telecommunications market is fully privatised and independently regulated and operators make network investments on the basis of commercial return.

The UK's four main mobile network operators have invested significantly to improve their 2G and 3G networks. For instance, to the end of 2013, 'EE' had invested some £30 million in its Northern Ireland network, while 'Three' had invested over £12 million.

For those areas that are not currently being addressed by market forces, the UK Government is implementing the £150 million Mobile Infrastructure project, which aims to address mobile voice and basic data 'not-spots' across the UK by March 2015. While the project is focused on 2G technology, it is understood that operators will future proof the infrastructure being deployed, in order to further support 3G, 4G and beyond, where possible. Northern Ireland is in line for the deployment of 72 new mast sites under this project, with the first site expected to go live in the last quarter of 2014.

My Department is maintaining a watching brief on these ongoing initiatives and will assess the need for further government intervention once they have completed.

Mr McNarry asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment (i) to detail the recommendations of the report into the NI Events Company; (ii) whether any of the recommendations could lead to prosecutions; and (iii) whether she will be contacting the PSNI as a result of the report.

(AQW 36115/11-15)

Mrs Foster: As advised in my response to AQW 35712/11-15, it is not the intention of my Department to publish the report of the company inspection of the Northern Ireland Events Company and any further comment would be inappropriate at this stage.

Mr McNarry asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment, pursuant to AQW 35712/11-15, what action she will take in relation to the report by the company inspectors on the NI Events Company.

(AQW 36118/11-15)

Mrs Foster: As advised in my response to AQW 35712/11-15 and AQW 36115/11-15, it is not the intention of my Department to publish the report of the company inspection of the Northern Ireland Events Company and any further comment at this stage would be inappropriate.

Mr McNarry asked the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment whether she will send the Report into the NI Events Company to the relevant Assembly Committees.

(AQW 36218/11-15)

Mrs Foster: As advised in my response to AQW 35712/11-15, AQW 36115/11-15 and AQW 36118/11-15, it is not the intention of my Department to publish the report of the company inspection of the Northern Ireland Events Company, so I will not be sending the report to relevant Assembly Committees.

Department of the Environment

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the approximate cost of disposing of one tonne of waste (i) to landfill; (ii) through incineration; and (iii) by recycling.

(AQW 35569/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): The UK Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) publishes an annual report on gate fees for a range of waste management, recovery and disposal options in the UK.

Approximate cost information has been obtained from the publicly available report produced by WRAP 'Comparing the cost of alternative waste treatment options, Gate fees report 2013'. (http://www.wrap.org.uk/sites/files/wrap/Gate_Fees_Report_2013_h%20%282%29.pdf)

The estimated gate fee for waste disposal in 2013 was £80 to £121 per tonne.

The estimated gate fee for waste incineration in 2013 was £62 to £126 per tonne.

The estimated gate fee for waste recycling in 2013 was -£40 to £13 per tonne. A negative gate fee indicates that the facility is paying to obtain the material.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment whether there is concern in his Department or any of its agencies that showing the video footage taken by enforcement agency staff at Ravenhill Stadium on 23 August 2013 could prove detrimental to the argument for the proposed Single Tier Taxi system in its current format.

(AQW 35584/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I am not aware of any concerns from my officials that the footage could prove detrimental to the argument for a single tier taxi licensing system.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment for an update, including timescales, on the provision of approved taxi meter centres.

(AQW 35600/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The details of the new installation, testing and calibration regime are being finalised and I anticipate being able to provide further information on the new arrangements in the coming weeks. It remains my intention for the new requirements to come into force from September 2015.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment what regulations will be introduced in relation to the fitting of taxi meters.

(AQW 35601/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I intend that the taximeter regulations will:

- set out the structure and level of the maximum fare tariff;
- require specified classes of taxi to have a taximeter and receipt printer fitted;
- make provision for the manner of use of the taximeter;
- make provision for the testing, calibration and sealing of taximeters.

The regulations will reference the Measuring Instruments Directive and relevant implementing regulations which establish the essential requirements that taximeters have to satisfy prior to their being placed on the market and put into use.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment what provisions will be put in place to ensure that the setting and fitting of taxi meters does not create any conflict of interest, by ensuring that there is not a connection between those responsible for the installation of meters and companies that will use their services.

(AQW 35604/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department continues to develop the operational model within which taximeters will fitted and tested and I anticipate being able to provide information on the details of the arrangements in the coming weeks. The arrangements will address any potential conflicts of interest between installers and users of taximeters.

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister of the Environment to detail (a) the areas of architectural and townscape importance; (b) healthier living environments; (c) conservation areas; (d) areas of townscape/village character; (e) historic parks; (f) gardens and demesnes that have been established in the East Belfast constituency by the adoption of the Belfast Metropolitan Area Plan.

(AQW 35632/11-15)

Mr Durkan: In my Oral Statement to the Assembly delivered 8 September 2014, I detailed the provisions in the Plan Proposals to safeguard those areas that may be vulnerable to development pressure or that are visually or environmentally sensitive. The Plan's environmental designations acknowledge and protect the rich natural and built heritage of the Belfast Metropolitan Area, including East Belfast.

The BMAP Urban Environment Strategy promotes new development of the highest quality, protects areas of architectural and townscape importance and promotes healthier living environments.

The development of healthier lifestyles in support of Belfast City Council's Healthy Cities Project is encouraged through increased provision for walking and cycling facilities together with policies which seek to provide an alternative to travel by car. Reduction in car travel offers the potential for improvement in air quality on major routes. Community greenways are identified including parks, playing fields and natural areas to create a network of open spaces and opportunities for leisure and recreation. In addition, the Plan Proposals identify new lands for open space.

The Plan does not designate Conservation Areas but identifies five areas within East Belfast, for information, already designated under Article 50 of the Planning (NI) Order 1991. These are Cyprus Avenue, Kings Road, Knockdene, McMaster Street, and Templemore Avenue.

Areas of Townscape or Village Character (ATC/AVCs) are designated by the adoption of BMAP, in accordance with PPS 6: Planning, Archaeology and the Built Heritage. There are 15 ATCs designated in East Belfast but no AVCs as follows:

- BT 015 Belmont;
- BT 019 Cherryvalley Extension;
- BT 020 Circular Road;
- BT 022 Cyprus Park / Cyprus Gardens;
- BT 032 Holland Park;
- BT 034 Hollywood Arches;
- BT 048 Ravenscroft Avenue;
- BT 051 Sandford Avenue / Sandbury Avenue;
- BT 057 Templemore Avenue;
- BT 061 Woodstock Road;
- MCH 019 Cregagh;
- MCH 020 Cregagh Park and Everton Drive;
- MCH 021 Dundonald;
- MCH 023 Rochester; and
- MCH 024 Thiepval.

Historic Parks, Gardens and Demesnes are detailed in a Register published by the NI Environment Agency and designated through the development plans. BMAP designates three within East Belfast. They are MCH 025 Belvoir (Forest Park), BT 075 Ormeau Park, and BT 076 Stormont Castle and Parliament Buildings.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment how many employees of the Driver and Vehicle Agency have been redeployed. (AQW 35656/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department for Transport (DfT) decision to centralise vehicle licensing services in Swansea created 266 surplus staff in DVA based in the Central Office in Coleraine or in 8 Local Vehicle Licensing Offices (LVLOs) located throughout the Province. A further 27 DVA staff became surplus, in Road Transport Licensing Division (RTLTD), as a result of my decision to transfer DOE posts from Belfast to Coleraine.

As at 15 September 2014, 117 of the original 266 DVA surplus staff had been permanently redeployed as well as 21 of the 27 RTLTD Belfast based surpluses. In overall terms 138 (48%) of the total 293 DVA surpluses have been permanently redeployed.

My officials, with the assistance of all other NICS Departments, will continue to actively seek permanent redeployment opportunities for surplus staff or if required temporary placements pending permanent redeployment.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment whether the letter of 20 June 2014 from the Director of the Road Safety and Vehicle Regulation Division was sent to all taxi licence holders, as well as taxi operator licence holders. (AQW 35668/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The letter referred to, which covered a copy of my Written Statement to the Assembly dated 19 June 2014, was sent to all holders of Taxi Operator Licences. My Department is preparing material to explain the changes which will result from taxi reform; this will be issued to members of the taxi industry and taxi users in advance of the implementation of the various reforms.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment on how many occasions, detailing the dates and venues, have departmental officials or associated agency staff held meetings with (i) fonaCAB; and (ii) Value Cabs, or their respective representatives, in the last three calendar years. (AQW 35756/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Departmental officials have attended meetings with representatives of Fonacab and Value Cabs on 13 occasions in the last three calendar years; details of dates and venues are provided in the table below.

Note: this schedule does not include routine compliance visits undertaken by DVA.

Date	Location
26 March 2012	Clarence Court, Belfast
4 October 2012	Clarence Court, Belfast
13 November 2012	Clarence Court, Belfast
23 January 2013	Clarence Court, Belfast
25 February 2013	Corporation Street, Belfast
6 March 2013	Clarence Court, Belfast
20 May 2013	Clarence Court, Belfast
20 June 2013	Clarence Court, Belfast

Date	Location
26 June 2013	Value Cabs Offices, Wellington Park, Belfast
27 September 2013	Corporation Street, Belfast
21 October 2013	Goodwood House, Belfast
21 October 2013	Corporation Street, Belfast
9 July 2014	Corporation Street, Belfast

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment in relation to information provided to the Committee for the Environment by departmental officials that outlay for Single Tier Taxi compliance for taxi drivers requiring to purchase meters, printers and signage will total approximately £1,000, which would be recouped from the consumer/service user at 3 pence per mile within five years, to outline (i) the evidence or reports on which this estimate was based; and (ii) the investigation that has been carried out into the accuracy of the suggested figure.

(AQW 35757/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My officials have on a number of occasions indicated a maximum cost of around £800 per taxi to comply with the various reforms being made under the Taxis Act 2008. They include the cost of a taximeter and receipt printer, a new roof sign and periodic training. The costs may be lower dependent on the equipment already installed in a taxi. The costs have been estimated by seeking information and prices from providers.

My officials have indicated on a number of occasions that the additional costs could be recouped over a three year period by a fare rise of 1 penny per mile. This is based on the average taxi covering 25,940 live miles per year, a figure determined by a survey of taxi drivers by PA Consulting Services in 2011. The live miles figure formed part of the PA Consulting Services report which was issued as part of my Department's consultation on maximum fares in November 2011.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment what monitoring will be carried out on taxi meters to ensure they have been correctly calibrated.

(AQW 35774/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department is developing the procedures to ensure that taximeters have been correctly calibrated. I anticipate being able to provide information on the details of the arrangements in the coming weeks.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment what actions will be taken to ensure that the installation and calibration of taxi meters will be completed independently.

(AQW 35775/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department is developing the installation and calibration procedures for taximeters. I anticipate being able to provide information on the details of the arrangements in the coming weeks.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment why it is proposed to implement single tier taxi licensing ahead of the new regulations on taxi meters.

(AQW 35776/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Concerns have been raised by the taxi industry regarding the costs associated with the implementation of the Taxis Act 2008. I am also conscious of the time required for the taxi industry and meter suppliers and fitters to install the necessary equipment in vehicles. I gave these issues careful consideration when agreeing the implementation timetable that I provided in a Written Statement to the Assembly on 19 June 2014. The timetable provides for a phasing of the different reforms to recognise these cost and capacity issues.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the number of prosecutions for fraudulent calibration of a taxi meter, in the last five years.

(AQW 35777/11-15)

Mr Durkan: There have been no prosecutions for the fraudulent calibration of a taxi meter in the last five years.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment on how many occasions, detailing the dates and venues, have departmental officials or associated agency staff held meetings with him in which a briefing was included on the detrimental impact that the proposed Single Tier Taxi System, in its present format, will have on Belfast Public Hire Taxis and smaller private hire taxi operators.

(AQW 35809/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The reforms to the taxi industry under the Taxis Act (NI) 2008 are designed to deliver a safe, fair and fit for purpose industry. I have met with representatives of the taxi industry and its users, and with my officials, on many occasions and have explored many different aspects of the reforms. These have on many occasions included discussion of the concerns of Belfast Public Hire taxi drivers on the potential impact of the reforms on their activities.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 35119/11-15, whether by permitting unauthorised sand extraction from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area to continue, his Department is breaching Article 6(2) of the Habitats Directive and the precautionary principle which underpins that Directive, as set out in the ruling of the European Court of Justice in Case C-127/02, Waddenzee.

(AQW 35852/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Article 6(2) of the Habitats Directive requires Member States to take appropriate steps to avoid the deterioration of the interest features of Natura 2000 sites. Between the last two reporting rounds there has been no deterioration of the features of Lough Neagh SPA that can be attributed to sand and gravel extraction.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 34573/11-15 and his statement on 19 June 2014, to clarify what he meant by "Whilst I am aware of the concerns of Belfast Public Hire taxi drivers, I must balance these with the requirements, clearly set out by consumer and disability groups, to improve regulation for a safe, fair and fit for purpose taxi industry" when his answer clearly states that disability access compliance was already existing and accepted in Belfast Public Hire taxis.

(AQW 35876/11-15)

Mr Durkan: This sentence in my Statement to the Assembly on 19 June 2014 is set in the context of Belfast Public Hire drivers' concerns around single tier licensing, which has been supported (as set out in my Statement) by many consumer and disability groups.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment what consideration has been given to using the Small Business Research Initiative to find a sustainable solution to the processing of waste from disposable nappies.

(AQW 35927/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Waste from disposable nappies is part of the municipal waste stream. Responsibility for the preparation of waste management plans (WMPs) setting out the arrangements for recovery, treatment or disposal of municipal waste in Northern Ireland lies with the three regional district council waste management groups (WMGs). The plans, which take account of the Waste Management Strategy prepared by the Department, include the type, scale and location of waste facilities that will be required during the period of the plan. It would be for the councils, through the WMGs in the first instance, to consider the Small Business Research Initiative approach.

Furthermore there are businesses offering treatment facilities for Absorbent Hygiene Products, which includes disposable nappies. The Department has supplied these businesses with application information for the Rethink Waste Revenue Fund and contact details for the WMGs.

The Department has also provided funding for the Cloth Nappy Library through the Rethink Waste Revenue Fund. This organisation promotes waste prevention through the use of real nappies. In addition the Rethink Waste website highlights the benefits of using real nappies: <http://www.rethinkwastei.org/at-home/reuse/go-real/>.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, in the absence of planning permission to extract sand from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area, why the granting an Aggregates Levy Credit Scheme (ALCS) certificate does not constitute a "development consent" as defined in Article 1(c) of the Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) Directive; and whether an ALCS certificate in, or affecting a European site, should have been subject to the requirements of the EIA and Habitats Directives, including EIA screening, EIA and Appropriate Assessment, prior to certificates being granted.

(AQW 35961/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Operators extracting sand from Lough Neagh (as well as others from the aggregates industry) were not obliged to join such a scheme as the Aggregates Levy Credit Scheme, i.e. the scheme was voluntary.

This scheme, or any certificate issued in relation to it, did not constitute development consent as it was not mandatory to have it prior to carrying out the operation in question; and therefore the granting of an ALCS certificate was not subject to the requirements of the EIA and Habitats Directives.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment whether the Aggregates Levy Credit Scheme (ALCS) Code of Practice specifically requires that planning permission is obtained for extraction operations within European sites or if protected species are affected, prior to an ALCS certificate being granted.

(AQW 35962/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Prior to an Aggregates Levy Credit Scheme (ALCS) certificate being issued, the Department had to satisfy itself that the operator was operating the site within the regulatory framework, including planning permission requirements. The ALCS had no statutory regulatory function. It depended on the relevant regulating authority to provide the comment on whether the site met the required statutory standards.

As a member of the ALCS, operators had to comply with the Code of Practice that specifically included conditions relating to biodiversity. Adherence to these conditions was reviewed during independent audits and improvement notices raised as required.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment to detail the reason for the contradiction between his answer to AQW 31750/11-15, where he makes it clear that planning permission is required for the extraction of sand from Lough Neagh Special Protection Area, and AQW 35123/11-15, where he states that his Department has no powers to require planning permission to be obtained; and to indicate which of his answers is incorrect.

(AQW 35963/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Both answers are correct. In AQW 31750/11-15 I advised that there is currently no planning permission for sand extraction on the Lough. I also advised that planning permission and assessment under The Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations (NI) 2012 is required.

In AQW 35123/11-15 I advised that the sites referred to around the Lough pre-dated the Planning (NI) Order 1972 and as such Planning Service had no powers to require that planning permission be obtained for these pre-1972 sites.

This answer was drafted in the context of on-shore development associated with dredging activities around the Lough. The continued removal of sand from the bed of the Lough is development which still requires planning permission.

I trust this clarifies the situation in relation to various activities in and around Lough Neagh.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of the Environment for a breakdown of the expenses paid to staff of the Northern Ireland Environment Agency, in the last twelve months.

(AQW 35990/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Expenses are paid to staff in the Northern Ireland Environment Agency to reimburse them for the costs incurred on official business in line with the policies detailed in the NICS HR Handbook. These expenses in the main relate to the costs associated with travel, accommodation, subsistence allowances and other miscellaneous expenses.

A breakdown of the expenses paid to staff for the twelve month period 1st August 2013 to 31st July 2014 is provided in the table below.

Expenses Paid to NIEA Staff: 01-08-13 to 31-07-14

Description	Total
Mileage	£246,460
Air fares	£67,463
Rail, bus and boat fares	£21,391
Accommodation (GB & NI)	£46,013
Subsistence payments	£41,883
Excess Fares	£20,199
Car Parking	£16,983
Taxi fares, car hire	£5,460
Miscellaneous	£1,845
Grand Total	£467,697

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, following the decision to permit the inclusion of a sentence within a pending letter to inform taxi licence holders, as well as taxi licence operators, that as the law currently stands it is against terms, conditions and regulations to pick up fares and/or ply for trade unless operating with a yellow plate within the Belfast city limits area or without a prearranged booking; and to detail (i) whether this letter is going ahead with this inclusion; and (ii) when the letter is due to be sent; and to provide a copy of the letter.

(AQW 35997/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Taxi operators and their drivers should be clear about the existing legislative requirements which will continue to apply until such times as new legislation takes effect. The relevant licensing restriction is printed on each taxi licence. For example, the licence for a 'Private Hire' taxi is endorsed with the note that the taxi driver named on the licence 'is licensed to use the taxi described below for carrying passengers for hire, but not for standing or plying for hire on any road or public place'.

I made a written statement to the Northern Ireland Assembly on Thursday 19 June 2014 setting out proposals for the implementation of the remaining elements of the Taxis Act (Northern Ireland) 2008. Within these proposals, from January 2015, the current licensing arrangements will change to permit all taxis to ply for hire within Belfast. A copy of my written statement was sent to all taxi operators.

Regular communications are planned to advise taxi operators of each change as it approaches. The next communication, which is expected to issue shortly, is a mailshot to all taxi operators and their drivers advising of the introduction of the new taxi test for new drivers and periodic training requirements.

Appropriate enforcement action will continue to be taken against any drivers and operators found to be committing offences and these will be dealt with by applying a variety of measures that include advice and warnings, fixed penalties, prohibitions and prosecutions.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment how many times since May 2011 he has transferred an Assembly Question to a Freedom of Information request; and of these, to detail (i) the number that resulted in the supply of the requested information; (ii) who provided the advice regarding the transfer and whether the departmental solicitor was involved; (iii) when this procedure became departmental practice; and (iv) whether the relevant Member was advised of this procedure in advance of the transfer.

(AQW 35998/11-15)

Mr Durkan: There has been none in my Department. An Assembly Question cannot be transferred to a Freedom of Information request, but must be answered in line with Assembly procedures.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment whether a review of town centres, based on the monitoring of viability and vitality, has taken place.

(AQW 36022/11-15)

Mr Durkan: My Department appointed a consultant team led by GL Hearn to carry out a review of town centres last year to inform the new retailing and town centres planning policy contained within the draft Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS). The consultant's report provides an updated evidential context for strategic town centres and retail planning policy, including an assessment of the current health of designated town centres across the Region. It was published for information alongside the draft SPPS. You can view or download the report from the following web link www.planningni.gov.uk/spps.

Furthermore, Departmental officials have been undertaking some local preparatory development plan work in order to allow councils to move quickly with bringing forward their own development plans once they become planning authorities next year. This preparatory work includes preliminary studies of the vitality and viability of some city and town centres. It is anticipated that a full evidence base for Local Development Plan preparation will be undertaken by each Council post transfer of planning functions on 1 April 2015.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment for his assessment of the existing and committed out-of-centre retail development capacity; and whether he has completed a review of the capacity.

(AQW 36023/11-15)

Mr Durkan: It is my assessment that retail development capacity for towns and cities throughout the North should be addressed by the new councils in bringing forward Local Development Plans for their areas. This is the approach proposed for consultation in the emerging Strategic Planning Policy Statement (SPPS), which seeks to ensure Local Development Plans and decisions are informed by robust and up to date evidence in relation to retail need and capacity. You will be aware that the SPPS has itself been informed by a comprehensive review of existing town centres in the North last year, undertaken on behalf of the Department by a consultant team led by GL Hearn. This updated evidential context and the consultants recommendations on possible future planning policy direction have been reflected in the SPPS. You can view or download the report from the following web link www.planningni.gov.uk/spps.

Finally you will note from my answer to AQW 36022 that, as part of the preparatory work for new Local Development Plans, my Department has agreed with some shadow Councils to undertake preliminary work on the vitality and viability of city and town centres. It is anticipated that a full evidence base for Local Development Plan preparation will be undertaken by each Council post transfer of planning functions on 1 April 2015.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 35226/11-15, to detail (i) whether he will reinvestigate if a report or notes of any nature were compiled on this matter; (ii) on what he has based his concerns regarding the release of the footage; (iii) whether he sought advice from the departmental solicitor prior to answering this question; and (iv) if no report remains on record, whether he will order a report in the interests of transparency.

(AQW 36078/11-15)

Mr Durkan: In response to each of the member's questions:

- (i) I have confirmed that the observations of enforcement officers were not captured in a separate formal report but rather formed part of the overall consideration of the arrangements, which included seeking legal clarification and advice from the Departmental Solicitors Office;
- (ii) My concerns about releasing information gathered during an investigation are not specific to the footage taken at Ravenhill, but relate to protecting the integrity of the wider investigatory process undertaken by enforcement officers;
- (iii) Regarding my response to AQW 35226/11-15, legal advice was not sought; and

- (iv) The Department has determined that the provision of taxi services at Ravenhill rugby ground is compliant with the requirements of the Taxi Act (NI) 2008 and other related legislation and in the interests of transparency published its interpretation of the legal position in this regard on 18 October 2013. I therefore do not intend to revisit this matter.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of the Environment how many planning applications for wind farms have been approved, even when the case officer working on the application had reported that the application should be refused.
(AQW 36111/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Department operates a corporate decision making process and each recommendation must be signed off by three officers, one of whom must be a designated 'authorised' officer. The Department's corporate opinion on a planning application may either be reached by the unanimous view of the three officers or by a majority. This applies to all planning applications not just those for windfarm development.

The discussion at the development management group meeting is informed by the report and recommendation of the individual case officer. The development management group can agree or disagree with the recommendation, whether that is to refuse or approve an application. The reasons for the final opinion of the group will be fully recorded.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment to detail (i) why his Department granted permitted development rights to Infrastrata for exploratory drilling at Woodburn Forest when their petroleum licence specifies the completion of an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) as a condition of their licence in year three before the commencement of drilling; and (ii) in light of the condition and emerging evidence which has since weakened the case for the original determination and instances of negative EIA determinations which were subsequently deemed positive, such as in planning applications A/2011/0671/f and A/2008/0397/f, whether his Department intends to review the negative EIA determination for exploratory drilling at Woodburn Forest.

(AQW 36161/11-15)

Mr Durkan:

- (i) Infrastrata's Notification of Permitted Development to the Department met Schedule 1 Part 16 A of The Planning (General Development) Order (Northern Ireland) 1993 as amended. Therefore my Department was within its rights to grant permitted development. Issues over Petroleum licences are not under the planning regime.
- (ii) My Department is confident that the negative EIA determination was carried out in a robust manner.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment what work has been completed to identify the cause of the recent fish kill in the River Lagan where it runs through Dromore Town Park.

(AQW 36379/11-15)

Mr Durkan: This fish kill was first reported to the Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA) on the afternoon of Monday, 22 September 2014, when a report was received through NIEA's Water Pollution Hotline that a number of dead fish were in the River Lagan at Dromore, Co. Down. Departmental officials visited the site to investigate the report and determine the environmental impact.

Officials confirmed that there were a number of dead fish in the river over an approximate 200 metre stretch where it flows through Dromore. However some live fish and invertebrates were also visible in the river, indicating that whatever had caused the fish deaths had not killed all fish in this reach of the river. While there was some slight foaming in the river this was assessed as natural and there were no obvious signs of gross pollution.

Nevertheless NIEA collected a water sample on the day from the river to rule out the possibility that pollution had caused the fish kill. As it takes a number of days to complete the standard laboratory tests for common pollutants, at the time of writing the results from this sample are not yet available.

Through the afternoon of 22 September officials checked all known potential discharge points into the river and also checked a number of premises in the Dromore area; with further follow-up checks continuing over the following days. However no evidence of any recent polluting discharge through any of these discharge points or from any of these premises was found.

One possibility is that this fish kill was a semi-natural phenomenon caused by the unusually hot weather over the past weekend and on Monday, combined with low river flows.

Following this fish kill officials from my Department and from DCAL Inland Fisheries have worked closely together in carrying out a comprehensive investigation. However it remains the case that, pending the results of the sample analysis, there is no conclusive evidence that this fish kill was caused by pollution.

Mr F McCann asked the Minister of the Environment whether his Department will ensure the zoning of additional land in Belfast, as part of the Belfast Metropolitan Plan, for the purpose of building social housing to meet the needs of the local communities.

(AQO 6639/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Social housing is a subject I feel strongly about and BMAP has made provision for the development of land for this purpose. My Department, in collaboration with the Northern Ireland Housing Executive, ensured that the Plan provides adequate provision for the delivery of a reasonable level of social housing in line with the finance available. In addition the Plan has extensive remaining potential on sites zoned for general housing. In areas lacking strong private sector demand there may be a shift from general housing to social housing provision.

The adoption of BMAP on 3 September ended the development plan process undertaken by my Department in respect of Belfast City Council area and the other five districts. On 1 April 2015 responsibility for planning powers will transfer to local authorities, including Belfast City Council, and shall include preparation of Local Development Plans. Part of that process will include reviewing relevant matters such as the principal purposes for which land is used in the City. Housing and social housing are principal land uses in Belfast. The limits of development could also be reviewed.

I have also been considering how the issue of providing social housing can be addressed, not just in Belfast, but on a regional basis. To this end, draft Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 22: Affordable Housing was published for public consultation in June this year in an attempt to find new ways of securing additional affordable housing. This draft PPS puts in place a mechanism for securing developer contributions for the delivery of affordable housing.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister of the Environment for an update on his Department's Road Safety Strategy.
(AQO 6643/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Road Safety Strategy to 2020 sets out four strategic targets and 224 action measures to reduce deaths and serious injuries on our roads.

The implementation process is shared work, involving many parts of government – and all of us as citizens. Some 118 of the Strategy action measures have already been completed or embedded in ongoing business, and there have been positive reductions against the Strategy's four targets.

At the end of last year, and when compared with the 2004-2008 average:

- road deaths had reduced by 55%
- serious injuries had reduced by 35%
- child deaths and serious injuries had reduced by 43% ; and
- deaths or serious injuries of young people had reduced by 52%.

I am however extremely concerned by the fact that road deaths have risen this year. My Department continues to take a range of actions to reduce deaths and serious injuries on our roads. We focus on problem areas, such as drink driving, speeding, carelessness and inattention; and on groups which are over-represented in the casualty figures. The Road Traffic (Amendment) Bill, which I introduced into the Assembly in May, seeks to address a number of these issues.

For most of us, using the roads is our most dangerous daily activity. I am committed to working with many partners across and beyond government to ensure effective implementation of the Road Safety Strategy.

Mr Nesbitt asked the Minister of the Environment to outline any plans he has to ban the burning of smoky coal.
(AQO 6644/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Through the North South Ministerial Council a research study has being jointly commissioned, funded and overseen by my department and the Department of Environment, Community and Local Government to assess the current levels of air pollution on an all island basis. It will examine the significance of residential heating and solid fuel burning as a source of current air pollution taking into account the social and economic implications of potential policy options.

The final report due to be completed early next year will make recommendations for the most appropriate, proportionate and effective way to reduce air pollution from residential heating in both jurisdictions.

Mr Clarke asked the Minister of the Environment for his assessment of the actions being taken in his Department and local government to meet the Northern Ireland Landfill Allowance Scheme targets for 2020.
(AQO 6645/11-15)

Mr Durkan: District Councils are responsible for meeting the Northern Ireland Landfill Allowance Scheme, or NILAS, targets. In 2012/13, the amount of biodegradable municipal waste collected by District Councils and sent to landfill was 276,702 tonnes. This is less than half the amount landfilled in 2005 when NILAS was introduced and is well under the target for 2012/13 of not more than 320,000 tonnes. The target for 2020 is not more than 220,000 tonnes.

My Department's Waste Management Strategy set out a number of policy interventions aimed at ensuring we meet EU landfill diversion targets. These include developing a Waste Prevention Programme, setting challenging recycling targets and introducing legislation that will prohibit the landfilling of separately collected food waste. These interventions, which are supported by Rethink Waste funding, will assist Councils to meet future NILAS targets.

Waste Management Plans prepared by the three regional Waste Management Groups set out the arrangements for managing waste for their constituent Councils. Taking account of the Department's Waste Strategy, these Plans set out actions to achieve the 2020 NILAS target through a combination of waste prevention initiatives, increased recycling and plans for waste infrastructure.

Mr Buchanan asked the Minister of the Environment in how many planning applications for anaerobic digestors since July 2013 has he taken a personal involvement.

(AQO 6646/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Since coming to office in July 2013, I have received numerous requests and invitations from MLAs and other elected representatives to consider a wide range of planning applications including Anaerobic Digestors. Normally this is when the proposal generates strong local objections and elected representatives become involved on behalf of their constituents.

I have been involved in a number of cases where the application has been for an anaerobic digester. This has been at the request of MLAs or as a result of correspondence to my office from interested parties. My involvement in each has varied depending on the request, and includes attending site meetings with elected representatives, meeting objectors or providing an update through correspondence.

Ms McCorley asked the Minister of the Environment for an update on the timetable for his Department's plans to implement the Local Government Act.

(AQO 6647/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The Local Government Act (Northern Ireland) 2014 (the 2014 Act) received Royal Assent on 12 May 2014 introducing the legislative framework for Northern Ireland's 11 new councils.

The 2014 Act will be supported by a comprehensive programme of subordinate legislation and guidance. This programme is being introduced on a phased basis, to accommodate key stages of the ongoing reform programme.

Two commencement orders have so far been made to bring specific provisions of the 2014 Act into operation during the shadow period, in particular, the new governance arrangements and ethical standards framework and the provisions which allow transitional arrangements to be made for the shadow period.

The Local Government (Transitional, Supplementary, Incidental Provisions and Modifications) Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2014, which provide for the activities of the new councils during the shadow period, and the Northern Ireland Local Government Code of Conduct for Councillors were both approved by the Assembly on 27th May 2014 and came into operation the following day.

A number of statutory rules will be laid in the Assembly over the coming months and will include legislation:

- on the new governance arrangements for councils;
- to specify posts and employments, the holding of which will continue to bar a council officer from being a councillor;
- to specify community planning partners;
- to specify performance indicators and performance targets;
- on the Transferred Functions Grant designed to cover the costs of the functions transferring from central to local government, and
- on compensation for loss of office due to local government reform.

The legislative programme will ensure that the new councils have the necessary provisions in place, at the appropriate time, to enable those councils to carry out their full range of functions.

Mr McMullan asked the Minister of the Environment when the public consultation on the proposed new plans for the implementation of salmon farm cages in Red Bay will be launched.

(AQO 6648/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Formal public consultation on any proposal to extend the existing fish farm at Red Bay will not begin until a Scoping Study from the owners, Glenarm Organic Salmon is received by my Department. The Scoping Study initiates the process of what has to be included in the Environmental Statement that is required in this instance and which will be subject to a public consultation. I understand that the Company may be in a position to start this process at the end of the year.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of the Environment for his assessment of the effectiveness of the road safety message on young people in East Antrim.

(AQO 6649/11-15)

Mr Durkan: I recognise the continuing challenges of preventing road deaths and serious injuries and my Department, working with our road safety partners, continues to work to address the causes of road casualties through various activities.

DOE's advertisements are regularly tracked to measure their effectiveness at influencing attitudes and behaviours. They do not target specific geographies; rather the campaigns are data-led, research-led and psychology-led to target the most at-risk cohorts of the entire population and the biggest killer behaviours on our roads.

Research gauging the awareness and influence levels of four recent DOE campaigns has shown that our recent seatbelt wearing advert, our pedestrian advert, our Share the Road To Zero advert and our new anti-speeding advert all show awareness levels of between 69%-75% amongst the 16-24 year old age group. Of those, 86%-91% of this age group reported that they have been influenced by the road safety messages contained in the adverts. The industry norm for campaign awareness is 50% and for campaign influence is 30%; the figures for my Department's campaigns therefore tell us that the message is resonating with the public.

My Department also has a portfolio of initiatives and educational tools which are delivered in schools to improve road safety learning. Feedback from teachers and students has been very positive.

In the last five years the number of 17-24 year old drivers responsible for fatal collisions has reduced from 29 to 13. The number of 17-24 year old drivers responsible for deaths and serious injuries has reduced from 202 to 116 – a 43% fall.

Improvements have therefore been made; but young drivers continue to be disproportionately involved in fatal and serious collisions. Other initiatives my Department is currently developing to address young drivers include the provisions of Road Traffic (Amendment) Bill concerning Graduated Driver Licensing (GDL), and an educational pack for learner drivers to be delivered by Approved Driving Instructors (ADIs).

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of the Environment for his assessment of the level of sufficiency of the additional funding proposed for the new councils to undertake their new responsibilities.

(AQO 6650/11-15)

Mr Durkan: Central to the Executive's vision for a reformed local government sector is the delivery of high quality, efficient services that respond to the needs of people and continuously improve over time.

The Executive commitment is for the transfer of new functions to councils based on the principles of rates neutrality and fitness for purpose at the point of transfer. In this context, "rates neutral" means that councils will receive funding from central government which is equivalent to the cost to NI departments of delivering the services that are transferring.

Transferring Departments, including my own, have been working closely with local government sector stakeholders to effect the transfer of new powers to councils. Each transferring department has now provided local government with indicative budget allocation information on the resources (budget, staff and assets) attached to the package of functions and powers to transfer to each council.

Within my own Department, I have ensured that, despite the difficult financial situation faced by the Executive, the transfer of planning functions to local government is adequately funded and fit for purpose. Indeed, I have gone further than simply protecting the budgets relating to the planning functions that are transferring from the cuts that my Department has to deliver. I have committed additional funding to bolster the numbers of senior planners that are to transfer to local government and to ensure that the Planning Portal is fully compatible with local government information systems. This is a clear demonstration of my commitment to the overall Local Government Reform programme.

The budgets transferring from other departments are a matter for individual Ministers. I have, however, written to my Executive colleagues, reminding them of the Executive commitments around rates neutrality and fitness for purpose and urging them to protect those budgets, as I have done in my own Department.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister of the Environment why agency workers in the Northern Ireland Environment Agency had their employment terminated prematurely during the height of the tourist season.

(AQO 6651/11-15)

Mr Durkan: The June Monitoring Round led to an in year compression of 2.1% in the Department's budget and this required cost saving measures within the Agency. The early release of temporary workers has been one measure to address this budgetary position.

The impact of the early reduction of temporary workers was mitigated by their phased release over four weeks, ending on 5 September. This prevented significant disruption to the availability of visitor facilities during the height of the tourist season.

The Agency's key visitor attractions such as Carrickfergus Castle, Dunluce Castle and Crawfordsburn Country Park were unaffected by the early release of seasonal workers due to the voluntary manning and redeployment of permanent staff where practicable.

Department of Finance and Personnel

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel, based on current figures, to detail the number of (i) domestic; and (ii) non-domestic ratepayers that have been awaiting rates rebate payments for (a) three months or more; and (b) six months or more.

(AQW 35555/11-15)

Mr Hamilton (The Minister of Finance and Personnel): Land & Property Services (LPS) does not currently have the capability to split rate rebate payments by Domestic, Non-Domestic or by the period they are due. There are currently 7,300 rate accounts in credit on the LPS rating system. This number constantly fluctuates as LPS releases rate rebate payments and new ones come onto the system.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel how many people were awarded the Lone Pensioner Allowance in each of the last three years, broken down by constituency.

(AQW 35673/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Lone Pensioner Allowance is administered jointly by Land & Property Services (LPS) and the Northern Ireland Housing Executive (NIHE). Information on the number of people who were awarded the Lone Pensioner Allowance in each of the last three years, broken down by constituency is not available.

The number of people awarded Lone Pensioner Allowance by LPS broken down by district council is available and is given in the following table for each of the last three years (2012/13, 2013/14 and 2014/15 to date).

Number of People Awarded LPA by LPS in 2012/13, 2013/14 and 2014/15

Strabane	318	336	342
Northern Ireland	25,421	25,960	26,059

Individual district council totals do not add to Northern Ireland totals as any individual could have been awarded LPA in more than one district council over the course of the year.

The number of awards of Lone Pensioner Allowance administered by NIHE in 2012/13, 2013/14 and 2014/15 to date is 4,906, 4,973 and 4,986 respectively. Analysis of these awards broken down by district council is not currently available.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what measures his Department is taking to encourage uptake of the Lone Pensioner Allowance.

(AQW 35674/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: My Department, through Land & Property Services (LPS), has a dedicated Outreach Officer who addresses small community groups, co-operates with public and private sector organisations and attends public events such as the forthcoming Young at Heart Exhibition being held at The Island Centre, Lisburn on 24 September. LPS has attended 670 events to promote uptake of benefits, including Lone Pensioner Allowance since January 2009.

The LPS Outreach programme was introduced to inform, publicise and educate ratepayers of the different forms of Rate Relief that may be available to them.

LPS also advises ratepayers about the various Rate Reliefs in the Guide to Rates Booklet that issues with all bills. Further information is also available on the NI Direct website.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the procedures for appealing against unfair application or abuse of procurement and tendering regulations within government departments and public bodies.

(AQW 35706/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Public procurement in Northern Ireland is regulated by The Public Contracts Regulations 2006 (as amended), The Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006 (as amended) and the overarching EU Treaty principles. These regulations, which were amended in 2009, set down the procedures that government departments and public bodies must use in awarding public contracts.

The Regulations provide legal recourse for bidders if they feel they have been subject to unfair application or abuse of procurement legislation. Ultimately it is for the courts to rule on matters of compliance with the procurement legislation.

Northern Ireland Public Procurement Policy requires each Centre of Procurement Expertise (CoPE) to have in place a formal supplier complaints procedure.

Central Procurement Directorate (CPD) encourages suppliers to raise concerns regarding individual procurements immediately as they arise through the procurement portal, eSourcingNI. This approach seeks to achieve early resolution of supplier concerns and has the potential to avoid the need for costly legal challenges. Should CPD receive a complaint relating to a procurement in which it is not involved, it will direct the supplier to the appropriate CoPE.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the number of civil servants, broken down by Department, whose posts are located in the Greater Belfast or Bangor areas but reside in the (i) Omagh; (ii) Strabane; (iii) Cookstown; and (iv) Dungannon districts.

(AQW 35707/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The information requested is set out in the attached table.

Number of Civil Servants working in Belfast District Council or North Down District Council by Home Districts of Cookstown, Dungannon, Omagh and Strabane by Department at 1 April 2014.

Cookstown		District Council Area				Total

Greater Belfast or Bangor areas have been defined as Belfast District Council and North Down District Council areas.

* Other includes staff working in the Health and Safety Executive for NI; the Office of the Attorney General for NI; and staff of the Assembly Ombudsman for NI, The NI Commissioner for Complaints.

Data at 01 April 2014 and does not include staff on a career break.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel whether interest is accrued by the Special EU Programmes Body on peace funding; and if so, to detail (i) the total accrued; and (ii) how it has been spent.

(AQW 35825/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The Special EU Programmes Body (SEUPB) has advised that interest is accrued on PEACE III funding. Interest is earned in both Sterling and Euro. Using an average exchange rate of £1 = €1.225, the total earned during the current programming period (2007 to date) is £560,428.

Interest earned by the SEUPB in relation to PEACE III funding is returned to the Member States involved in the programme, on a quarterly basis. In line with the requirements of EU regulations this resource forms part of the Member State contribution to the programme.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the eligibility criteria for businesses to qualify for the Small Business Relief Scheme; and whether there are plans to extend the scheme beyond 2015.

(AQW 35827/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The main eligibility requirement for the scheme is the assessed Net Annual Value (NAV) of a property and relief is paid automatically.

While the scheme has a general application across all business sectors, certain property types are not eligible, e.g. advertising hoardings, ATMs, car parks, etc. There are also exclusions in place for multiple property owners (banks, bookmakers, etc.) and for those already in receipt of an exemption (industrial derating, freight transport and sport and recreation).

In terms of award levels 50% relief is awarded where the NAV is £2,000 or less, 25% relief is provided where the NAV is between £2,001 and £5,000, and a property with an NAV of between £5,001 and £15,000 receives a 20% discount.

In relation to the future of the scheme, the Northern Ireland Centre for Economic Policy (NICEP) at the University of Ulster is currently carrying out a full evaluation of the scheme and is due to report findings and recommendations later this month. I will be quickly reviewing these recommendations to allow me to present my proposals on the future of the scheme to the Executive and the Assembly in October.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to detail the amount of capital spend returned from the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure in the last year; and how his Department will reallocate this money.

(AQW 35969/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: Through the in-year monitoring process the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure declared capital reduced requirements of £8.2 million in 2013-14 and £35.3 million in 2014-15, both of which related to the regional stadium programme.

Additional capital income received in 2013-14 also resulted in a reduced requirement of £1.4m being declared.

The in-year monitoring process provides a formal system for reviewing spending plans and priorities for each financial year in light of the most up to date position. It provides the Executive with an opportunity to re-direct any surplus resources to other priorities. This includes any reduced requirements surrendered by departments.

Full details of all allocations are detailed in my Statement to the Assembly that follow each monitoring round.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel, since the inception of the Small Business Rates Relief Scheme, to detail (i) the number of small businesses that have benefited from the Scheme in (a) Ballymena; (b) Ballymoney; and (c) Moyle Borough Council areas; and (ii) how much the scheme has saved businesses.

(AQW 36029/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The number of non-domestic properties that have benefitted in the Ballymena, Ballymoney & Moyle Council areas, and the amount by which those properties benefitted since the scheme began in April 2010 is provided in the attached table.

District Council	Number of Non-Domestic Properties that Benefited from SBRR since April 2010	Amount of SBRR
Ballymena	1,236	£2,386,778
Ballymoney	569	£1,024,851
Moyle	462	£872,418

Mr Elliott asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel for an update on the equal pay settlement for former Northern Ireland Civil Servants.

(AQO 6653/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: In January this year I approved a settlement offer to end 435 breach of contract claims brought by NIPSA on behalf of retired or former NICS staff, following a change in the legal position regarding timescales within which former employees could bring equal pay claims, from six months to six years. I also authorised officials to contact 765 other leavers, who could have brought similar claims but who had not yet done so, to make settlement offers to prevent further cases arising. To date, 372 settlement payments have been made to NIPSA claimants and 506 to non-claimants at a cost of £1.1m.

Mr McGlone asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel what impact the current funding crisis will have on his 'road map' to better infrastructure delivery, as set out in June 2014.

(AQO 6657/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The majority of infrastructure projects have been funded from the capital budget. It is positive that capital DEL levels for 2014-15 are over £247m (31%) higher than those announced as part of the 2011-15 Budget.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has consistently affirmed the longer term policy of growing capital DEL at the expense of resource DEL. In this regard, it is anticipated that capital DEL will grow in line with GDP.

As the 2014-15 budget reductions have been applied to resource DEL, there is significant pressure on those projects which are not funded by capital. As this may include maintenance and repair projects, I appreciate that there may be implications for the operational maintenance of Northern Ireland's existing infrastructure. However, the prioritisation and ordering of infrastructure projects is a matter for each Minister and their department to consider.

As Chair of the Procurement Board, I established a Sub-Group to examine all stages of the commissioning and delivery of infrastructure projects.

In response, the Sub-Group has prepared an Action Plan. The Action Plan addresses a number of key areas, namely; prioritisation of key, strategically significant projects that are important to Northern Ireland; a more centralised approach to infrastructure delivery so that experience and expertise can be used to successfully deliver major capital projects; and a change in culture within departments and their sponsored bodies to create a 'delivery focused culture'.

The Action Plan is designed to correct a number of significant issues identified by the Sub-Group that are reducing the likelihood of the successful delivery of infrastructure projects. Without the implementation of the Action Plan these systemic impediments will remain.

A more centralised approach to procuring and delivering construction building projects will reap the benefits of bringing together experience and expertise as well as generating economies of scale and collaboration.

Mr Newton asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel for an update on the 2014 October monitoring round.

(AQO 6659/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: There are significant pressures facing the Executive's Resource DEL budget this year. The June Monitoring round resulted in reductions to departmental Resource DEL of 2.1 per cent and indicated that further reductions would be required in the October Monitoring round to address the £87 million reduction to our Resource DEL as a consequence of not implementing Welfare Reform.

There are also significant inescapable pressures across a number of departmental budgets meaning that the level of Resource DEL reductions required in the October Monitoring round is now likely to exceed the 2.3 per cent previously anticipated.

I am therefore keen that the quantum of any further in-year reductions are agreed sooner rather than later, providing departments with early clarification on what they must deliver.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to outline the timeframe for the establishment of the 2015/16 Budget.

(AQO 6660/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: In order to give departments time to plan for 2015-16 an agreed Final Budget would need to be in place by early January 2015. Working backwards, the Executive would need to agree final proposals in December. In order to allow sufficient time for Ministerial bi-laterals and a full twelve week public consultation process a draft Budget would therefore need to be in place in the coming weeks.

I will shortly bring a draft Budget scenario to the Executive for agreement, in advance of the consultation process.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel for an update on his proposals to resolve the outstanding equal pay settlement issues.

(AQO 6661/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: In January this year I approved a settlement offer to end 435 breach of contract claims brought by NIPSA on behalf of retired or former NICS staff, following a change in the legal position regarding timescales within which former employees could bring equal pay claims, from six months to six years. I also authorised officials to contact 765 other leavers, who could have brought similar claims but who had not yet done so, to make settlement offers to prevent further cases arising. To date, 372 settlement payments have been made to NIPSA claimants and 506 to non-claimants at a cost of £1.1m.

Turning to former NIO staff and PSNI staff, it has been clearly established that there is no valid equal pay claim upon which to base a settlement for this group, so this is not an 'equal pay issue'. The recommendation and associated expenditure set out in the paper I circulated to Ministerial colleagues before the summer requires their approval, but has not yet been brought forward for discussion. The matter is now in the hands of the Executive.

Mr Ross asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel to outline his timetable for presenting the 2015/16 Budget to the Assembly. (AQO 6662/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: In order to give departments time to plan for 2015-16 an agreed Final Budget would need to be in place by early January 2015. Working backwards, the Executive would need to agree final proposals in December. In order to allow sufficient time for Ministerial bi-laterals and a full twelve week public consultation process a draft Budget would therefore need to be in place in the coming weeks.

I will shortly bring a draft Budget scenario to the Executive for agreement, in advance of the consultation process.

Mr Girvan asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel for an update on his engagements with the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. (AQO 6663/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: I met with representatives of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) in September 2013 and discussed with them the possibility of taking forward a public governance review of Northern Ireland to inform the public sector reform agenda. Since then, my officials have engaged with OECD to develop this proposal further.

The Executive at its meeting on 19th June 2014 endorsed my proposal to engage OECD to conduct such a review.

The OECD Review will be overseen by the Executive Sub-committee for Improving Public Services which I chair and which met for the first time on 9 September 2014. OECD representatives attended the meeting to present details of what the review will consist of and how it will be taken forward.

Mr Humphrey asked the Minister of Finance and Personnel for an update on digital transformation. (AQO 6664/11-15)

Mr Hamilton: The Transformation Programme Milestones are to complete the delivery of 16 digital services by 2016 and increase digital transactions through NI Direct by a further 700,000 by 31 March 2016. The Programme is on target to meet these Milestones with three services having gone live since the start of this financial year.

The uptake of these new digital services delivered through the Transformation Programme this year now totals almost 1 million online transactions. Of this total, 750,000 were made by citizens completing free on-line searches through the Genealogy NI service.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the sickness level of staff employed by the Northern Ireland Blood Transfusion Service, in each of the last three years. (AQW 35521/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): The figures for sickness absence in the Northern Ireland Blood Transfusion Service, are:

- Year ending 31 March 2012 – 5.78%
- Year ending 31 March 2013 – 6.58%
- Year ending 31 March 2014 – 6.61%

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many blood donation sessions have been cancelled in the last three years; and to detail the reason for the cancellations. (AQW 35522/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Northern Ireland Blood Transfusion Service has advised that 1,964 blood donation sessions have taken place and 42 blood donation sessions have been cancelled or postponed in the last three years.

The reasons for the cancellation or postponement of these sessions are as follows;

- Breakdown/malfunction of the BloodMobile (40%)
- Staff shortages (31%)

- Venue hosts declining visit at short notice (12%)
- Severe (snow) weather (12%)
- Venue access restrictions e.g. road closures due to parades (5%)

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 33205/11-15 and AQW 35100/11-15, for an update on whether he has received the recommendations regarding paediatric cardiac services which the Expert Group were expected to report by 1 July 2014; and to detail the expected date of publication.

(AQW 35556/11-15)

Mr Poots: The International Working Group (IWG), led by Dr John Mayer, has finalised its independent assessment of current and future needs for cardiology and cardiac surgery for congenital heart disease in the Republic of Ireland (ROI) and Northern Ireland. My Department has received the report and it is currently under consideration with the Department of Health in the ROI, with a view to agreeing arrangements for the joint publication of the report in both jurisdictions.

I anticipate that a visit by Dr Mayer may be possible within the next month and that the IWG's report will be published at this time. My Department is discussing the arrangements for this with the Department of Health in the ROI and I will announce the timetable for the publication as soon as possible.

Mr McKinney asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many whole time equivalent specialist Speech and Language Therapists are specifically funded to support the communication skills of patients with dementia.

(AQW 35578/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Belfast Trust has 0.5 WTE funded for a specialist SLT in the Dementia In-Patient Outreach Assessment Unit for People with Dementia and Behavioural Problems, who as part of their duties, supports clients with both communication and swallowing difficulties.

The Southern HSC Trust employs 2.8 WTE SLTs to provide a service to all adults with swallowing difficulties, including those with dementia; this support is provided in other Trust areas as part of the adult SLT caseload.

There are currently no SLTs working as members of community mental health teams supporting people with dementia.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the report into Children's Cardiac Services.

(AQW 35589/11-15)

Mr Poots: The International Working Group (IWG), led by Dr John Mayer, has finalised its independent assessment of current and future needs for cardiology and cardiac surgery for congenital heart disease in the Republic of Ireland (ROI) and Northern Ireland. My Department has received the report and it is currently under consideration with the Department of Health in the ROI, with a view to agreeing arrangements for the joint publication of the report in both jurisdictions.

I anticipate that a visit by Dr Mayer may be possible within the next month and that the IWG's report will be published at this time. My Department is discussing the arrangements for this with the Department of Health in the ROI and I will announce the timetable for the publication as soon as possible.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the thirteen recommendations presented by the College of Emergency Medicine in July 2014.

(AQW 35596/11-15)

Mr Poots: I refer the Member to my answer to AQW 35739/11-15.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the concerns raised by the Ambulance Service in August 2014 in relation to staffing and morale issues.

(AQW 35597/11-15)

Mr Poots: I am aware of the concerns raised by the Unison Branch of the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service Trust.

It is regrettable that Unison has taken action given that the Trust had engaged in a joint two-day workshop and subsequent Joint Consultative Negotiating Council (JCNC) meeting with the unions to seek resolutions to issues of concern.

I am assured that management at the Trust are being pro-active in addressing these concerns.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what percentage of posts in the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service are vacant; and to detail the longest period that a vacancy has existed.

(AQW 35609/11-15)

Mr Poots: The most recent published information available is at 31 March 2014 when 16.1% of posts, for which the Trust received recurrent funding, were vacant, based on Whole Time Equivalent information. However, a number of these posts were filled on a temporary basis, and 5.9% of the vacancies remained unfilled when temporary positions are taken into account. The Trust does not currently hold information relating to the duration of vacancies.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the rate of sick absence in the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service, in the last twelve months.

(AQW 35610/11-15)

Mr Poots: The rate of sick absence, in the Northern Ireland Ambulance Service Trust, for the last twelve months that figures are available, is as follows:

Fin Yr	Month	% Rate of Absence
2013/14	Feb-13	8.13
2013/14	Mar-13	9.09
2013/14	Apr-13	7.85
2013/14	May-13	8.28

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of (i) the current system for determining the value of generic drugs which dictates the amount recuperated by community pharmacists who dispense them; and (ii) it is appropriate to continue to use cost predictions made in England in relation to generic drugs, given market differences and additional costs of transportation and delivery to Northern Ireland, in the context of a devolved health administration.

(AQW 35616/11-15)

Mr Poots: Reimbursement prices for generic medicines are set by the Department of Health in England and listed in the English Drug Tariff. The Northern Ireland Drug Tariff has been informed by the English Drug Tariff since 1 April 2011.

In order to ensure that the Northern Ireland Drug Tariff provides fair and reasonable reimbursement for generic medicines, a collaborative investigation between Government and community pharmacy contractors into available profit margin from generic medicines, known as the Ongoing Margin Survey (OMS), has been ongoing since 2011. The results of the OMS show that the level of profits retained by community pharmacy contractors in Northern Ireland, some 40.46%, is in line with profit levels achieved by contractors in other parts of the UK.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to provide a breakdown of how much has been spent on Transforming Your Care to date.

(AQW 35677/11-15)

Mr Poots: A total of £19m was spent in 2012/13 in respect of transitional funding for Transforming Your Care (TYC) and other HSC savings initiatives. Spend in respect of TYC in 2013/14 was £6.19m and 2014/15 spend to date is £3.3m. This represents a total spend of £28.49m, as summarised in the following table:

	2012/13 £m	2013/14 £m	Apr–Aug 2014 £m	Total £m
Integrated Care Partnerships	1.97	1.37	1.00	4.34
Service Changes	3.65	0.92	1.10	5.67
Implementation Support	3.20	3.90	1.20	8.30
Voluntary Early Retirement/ Voluntary Redundancy	10.18	-	-	10.18
Total TYC Spend	19.00	6.19	3.30	28.49

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update of the review of exceptionality clause contained in the individual funding requests for cancer drugs.

(AQW 35678/11-15)

Mr Poots: The issue of clinical exceptionality will be given consideration as part of the evaluation of the Individual Funding Request process.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much has been allocated locally following the revised Pharmaceutical Price Regulation scheme signed in January 2014.

(AQW 35679/11-15)

Mr Poots: The latest Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS) started on 1 January 2014. A payment of £2.89m in respect of the first quarter of the scheme, i.e. for the period 1 January 2014 to 31 March 2014 was received by the HSC Board in June 2014.

The PPRS is a UK-wide scheme. The quarterly payments made under the provisions of the scheme by the pharmaceutical industry are received by the Department of Health (London) in the first instance and are then allocated to each of the devolved administrations. The apportionments are agreed by the various administrations each year. The payment in respect of the period 1 January 2014 to 31 March 2014 was made under the provisions of the apportionment methodology agreed for the 2013/14 financial year. The methodology for apportioning payments in the 2014/15 financial year has not yet been finalised.

It should be noted that the PPRS does not create new funding – rather monies will no longer be required to meet an increase in the branded drugs bill and ensure that existing budgets are not breached.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for breakdown of the £11.4m that was shifted from acute care to community care in 2012/13, as stipulated in the Programme for Government 2011/15.

(AQW 35715/11-15)

Mr Poots: In 2012-13, some £11.4m was shifted from hospital based services to community based services. This funding was used to resettle 42 learning disability (£7.2m) and 27 mental health clients (£4.2m) into the community and also to strengthen community learning disability and mental health services to prevent people being readmitted to hospital.

2012/13 Learning Disability Shift left:

	£m
Community Integration Resettlements	5.5
Community Infrastructure(1)	1.3
In-year funding to support resettlement process(2)	0.4
Total	7.2

Notes: Involves strengthening those support teams in the community working with clients to prevent them being readmitted to hospital relates to in-year staff funding to support resettlement process e.g. OT assessment

2012/13 Mental Health Shift left:

	£m
Community Integration Resettlements	3.5
Community Infrastructure	0.7
Total	4.2

Mr Girvan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many staff are currently on (i) sick leave; and (ii) maternity leave within the Northern Health and Social Care Trust, particularly staff located in the Speech and Language Department.

(AQW 35717/11-15)

Mr Poots: Within the Northern Health and Social Care Trust, there are (i) 445 (including 3 Speech and Language Therapy) staff currently on sick leave and (ii) 311 (including 5 Speech and Language Therapy) staff currently on maternity leave.

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he would consider the appointment of a full-time member of staff to take forward the workforce planning proposals required for Transforming Your Care.

(AQW 35737/11-15)

Mr Poots: There are 3 specific proposals within Transforming Your Care related to workforce planning:

Recommendation 79: Make necessary arrangements to ensure critical clinical staff are able to work in a manner which supports the new arrangements.

Recommendation 95: Development of new workforce skills and roles to support the shift towards prevention, self-care, and integrated care that is well co-ordinated, integrated and at home or close to home.

Recommendation 97a: More formal integration of workforce planning into the commissioning process to drive the financial transformation.

Responsibility for taking forward workforce planning, including these recommendations lies with the Human Resources Directorate in the Department which is headed at Director level supported by a dedicated full-time staffing resource. A Regional Workforce Planning Group (RWPG), has been established, which is chaired by the Director of Human Resources and includes membership from across the Department and the wider HSC. This group's initial focus has been to develop a Strategic Framework for Workforce Planning to inform the basis for integrated future workforce planning .

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for a breakdown of the costs associated with the last three reports into workforce planning.

(AQW 35738/11-15)

Mr Poots: The last three workforce planning reports published by my Department were:

- Review of the Medical Workforce 2010,
- Review of the Social Services Workforce 2011; and
- Allied Health Professionals Annual Update Review 2011.

The review of the Medical Workforce was completed by external consultants at a cost of approximately £25K. Both of the 2011 reviews were carried out by Departmental officials at no additional cost.

Currently, there is a number of workforce reviews underway but not yet complete.

Mr B McCreagh asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether his Department intends to increase biomedical research collaboration with research based pharmaceutical companies.

(AQW 35755/11-15)

Mr Poots: The HSC Research & Development Division invests significantly in suitable infrastructure to facilitate collaboration between local academic researchers and research active biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies. My Department is supportive of this approach and collaboration will be a key element of the next HSC R & D Strategy. Examples of this infrastructure include:

- The Northern Ireland Clinical Research Network (NICRN)
- The Northern Ireland Cancer Trials Centre & Network (NICTC/N)
- The Northern Ireland Clinical Trials Unit (NICTU)
- The Northern Ireland Clinical Research Facility (NICRF)
- Clinical Transitional Research & Innovation Centre (C-TRIC)
- The Northern Ireland Centre for Stratified Medicine

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many hygiene failings have been identified in each hospital, in each of the last five years; and to detail the number of staff that have been disciplined as a result.

(AQW 35769/11-15)

Mr Poots: The rolling programme of unannounced inspections began in 2008. The Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority (RQIA) is responsible for these inspections. RQIA publishes a report of each inspection on its website and has also published overview reports. RQIA has also published on its website the Regional Healthcare Hygiene and Cleanliness Audit Tool; the Regional Healthcare Hygiene and Cleanliness Standards; Inspection Process (Methodology, Follow-Up and Reporting), and a series of related audit tools and guidance.

As will be evident in the reports, each hospital area that is inspected is assessed against a series of criteria and is scored out of 100 to reflect the degree of compliance with the standards at the time of the inspection. As the score tables show, this is a matter of degree and red/amber/green ratings rather than simple pass/fail decisions.

No member of staff in the Health and Social Care Trusts has been disciplined on account of the findings of an RQIA unannounced hygiene inspection. The purpose of the programme of unannounced hygiene inspections is not to apportion personal blame for shortcomings identified by the inspections, but to help the HSC Trusts, at all levels within the organisation, to improve their infection prevention and control. The inspections also provide the public with independent and rigorous assurance regarding patient safety. The programme is one of a range of measures which since 2006/07 have helped to reduce Clostridium difficile infection episodes in in-patients aged 65 and over by 75%, and reduce MRSA in-patient episodes by 75%.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether there is a zero tolerance policy in relation to hospital and administrative staff failing to comply with protocols, policies and articles of governance; and if not, to outline the reasons for this.

(AQW 35771/11-15)

Mr Poots: HSC Trusts have a range of policies and procedures in place which clearly define roles and responsibilities of all staff in relation to Trust governance arrangements and required standards of conduct. All staff are required to comply with such policies.

Trusts also have a Disciplinary Policy designed to help and encourage all employees to achieve and maintain appropriate standards of conduct, performance and behavior. The policy provides guidance for managers on appropriate action to take in instances where these standards are not met.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the timeframe requirement for reporting a Level 3 Serious Adverse Incident.

(AQW 35772/11-15)

Mr Poots: All adverse incidents should be reported within 72 hours of the incident being discovered.

Revised procedures on the management of Serious Adverse Incidents (SAIs) were published on 1 October 2013 which included replacing a single investigation process for all (SAIs) with three levels of investigation.

The third level of investigation is the Independent Investigation. Timescales for submitting the Terms of Reference, membership of the investigation team and the final investigation report will be agreed between the reporting organisation and the HSCB/PHA Designated Review Officer (DRO) as soon as it is determined that the SAI requires a Level 3 investigation.

A copy of the revised procedure can be accessed at -

http://www.hscboard.hscni.net/publications/Policies/102%20Procedure_for_the_reporting_and_followup_of_Serious_Adverse_Incidents-Oct2013.pdf

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the cancer drugs provided through the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme as of January 2014.

(AQW 35782/11-15)

Mr Poots: The latest 2014 Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS), which commenced on 1 January 2014, is a single UK-wide agreement for the pricing of NHS branded medicines. The PPRS agreement covers those medicines prescribed for the treatment of cancer which satisfy the conditions for inclusion in the scheme.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the 'dementia tax' faced by carers of dementia patients, to cover expenses directly related to their needs, but only partly covered by the Health Service or local council funding.

(AQW 35831/11-15)

Mr Poots: Unlike the rest of the UK, Northern Ireland has an integrated health and social care service, and services for people with dementia are provided by Health and Social Care Trusts.

Trusts do not charge for domiciliary care services, or full costs for meals, transport or day care.

However, there is undoubtedly an additional cost associated with any disability, and with "caring" in general. In recognition of this, and in addition to arranging social care support services, Trusts can also provide financial assistance to any carers who are experiencing financial difficulties as a result of their caring role. In the 2012/13 financial year, for example, some 1,938 "one-off" Carers' Grants were provided to individual carers by Trusts across Northern Ireland.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for a breakdown of how much his Department has spent on treating dementia since 2013, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 35839/11-15)

Mr Poots: Responsibility for providing services to people with dementia rests with Health and Social Care Trusts. The information requested has been provided by Trusts and is set out in the table below.

Health & Social Care Trust	2013/2014 £m.	2014/2015 £m
Belfast H&SCT	£15,964,597	-
Northern H&SCT	£23,667,497	£8,153,241(4mths ended 31/07/2014)
South Eastern H&SCT	£3,509,313	£1,210,305 (4mths ended 31/07/2014)

1 Western Health & Social Care Trust have advised that the information requested is not collected in the format required.

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he plans to review the services provided to people living with dementia in North Antrim.

(AQW 35848/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Northern Health and Social Care Trust is responsible for providing services to people living with dementia in North Antrim. The Trust aims to provide tailored support that will meet the assessed care needs of individuals within their community. It reviews on an on-going basis the provision of services to individuals with Dementia in light of demographic needs.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many people in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust have assessed as requiring Community Meals, in the last twelve months.

(AQW 35862/11-15)

Mr Poots: The information requested is not held centrally and was therefore requested from the Northern Health and Social Care (HSC) Trust. Their response is provided below.

837 service users were assessed for the year 1 September 2013 to 1 September 2014.

This is the number of service users who have received an assessment for community meals and have received assistance for same from the internal Homecare service or the independent sector providers (this is for meals provision or preparation of meals).

This number does not however include the number of service users who have been assessed and signposted to other providers of meals provision in their own area.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the (i) budget; and (ii) staff complement of the Personality Disorder Service across each Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 35868/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Health and Social Care Board (HSCB) has confirmed that a total of £1.174M is allocated to HSC Trusts each year for Personality Disorder Services. Allocations for each Trust are as follows:-

Belfast HSC Trust	Northern HSC Trust	South Eastern HSC Trust	Southern HSC Trust	Western HSC Trust
£0.237M	£0.261M	£0.285M	£0.207M	£0.184M

The staff complement for PD services in each HSC Trust is as follows:-

Belfast HSC Trust	5.5 Whole Time Equivalent (WTE) staff
Northern HSC Trust	4 WTE staff
South Eastern HSC Trust	3.5 WTE staff Prison Health 2 WTE staff
Southern HSC Trust	2 WTE staff
Western HSC Trust	1.5 WTE staff

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail (i) the number of personnel working in the Headquarters of the Southern Command of the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service on a regular basis; (ii) the overheads for this facility; and (iii) the number of times the Area Commander and the Area Business Manager worked in Portadown in the last eighteen months.

(AQW 35904/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service (NIFRS) has provided the answers below in response to the questions raised.

- (i) The number of personnel working in Southern Area Command Headquarters in Portadown is 17.
- (ii) The overhead costs for Southern Area Command Headquarters for 2013/14 were £79,991.

- (iii) NIFRS is unable to provide information relating to the number of times the Area Commander and Area Business Manager have worked in Portadown in the last eighteen months.

Mrs Cochrane asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail (i) whether, given its success in terms of reducing morbidity and mortality, and the consequent impact on long-term care costs, there are plans to continue the 'F.A.S.T' awareness programme spearheaded by the Stroke Association beyond the original projected end date of 2014; and (ii) whether his Department has given consideration, in a circumstance where 'F.A.S.T' resources have been developed and the cost of continuing this programme is reduced, to diverting the remaining Public Health Agency monies ring-fenced for stroke awareness towards other promising initiatives such as the Stroke Association's 'Lessons 4 Life' schools programme and the 'It's not just a funny turn' campaign, which helps people to identify when someone has experienced a Transient Ischaemic Attack.

(AQW 35921/11-15)

Mr Poots:

- (i) The PHA has not commissioned a re-run of the FAST campaign during 2014/15 for a number of reasons including:
1. Government limits on advertising expenditure.
 2. The non recurrent budget for the programme terminated at the end of 2013/14.
 3. Public Health England were developing and launching their new campaign in 2014/15 and it was determined that there would be value in awaiting the outcome of its initial evaluation report prior to deciding if it should go forward for consideration within the PHA campaign programme for 2015/16 (all subject to available funding /Government approvals etc).
- (ii) The resources needed for FAST are still available if a decision is taken to re-run the public awareness campaign in the future. The PHA has no plans at this stage to commission the two programs listed.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of registered childcare providers in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35946/11-15)

Mr Poots: At 16 September 2014, there were 5,185 childcare providers in Northern Ireland, 289 of which were located in the East Londonderry Constituency. These figures were taken from a live database of childcare providers that is updated on a regular basis and maintained by the Health and Social Care (HSC) Board. As it is a live database, it is not possible to use this database to provide figures for previous years.

The table below contains the number of childcare providers at 31 March in 2012 and 2013. These figures have been taken from the HSC Board's Delegated Statutory Functions Returns that provide aggregated information on children's social care activity including childcare. As the East Londonderry constituency falls within both the Northern and Western HSC Trusts, figures on childcare provision have been provided for both Trusts.

Table 1: The Number of Childcare Providers in the Northern HSC Trust, the Western HSC Trust and Northern Ireland at 31 March (2012 – 2013)

Area	2012 No. Childcare Providers	2013 No. Childcare Providers
Northern HSC Trust	1,660	1,547
Western HSC Trust	851	868
Northern Ireland	5,320	5,336

Note: Childcare providers include childminders, crèches, day nurseries, after school clubs, playgroups, two year old programmes and summer schemes

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what steps his Department is taking to work with Health and Social Care Adoption and Fostering to ensure that, where possible, siblings who are placed into foster care are not separated.

(AQW 35949/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Children (NI) Order 1995 and associated guidance promotes that siblings, as far as reasonably practicable, are accommodated together in foster care placements.

In circumstances where an emergency placement is required for a sibling group of children and a placement is not available that can accommodate all the siblings together, steps are taken to ensure that sibling relationships are maintained through regular contact or a future change of placement. Where it is determined that separate placements are in the children's best interests, robust sibling contact arrangements will be established and the case monitored through the Looked After Children's review process where changes to these arrangements can be made if deemed necessary.

The Regional Adoption and Fostering Service continues to actively promote the benefits of fostering with the aim of recruiting and supporting suitable foster carers and kinship carers for children, including siblings, throughout Northern Ireland.

Mr McCarthy asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether he will ensure that any assessment process to access community meals is fair, balanced and equitable across all of Northern Ireland and one which allows frail and vulnerable elderly people, who are no longer able to make a main hot meal for themselves, to avail of the community meals service.

(AQW 35951/11-15)

Mr Poots: HSC Trusts use regionally agreed eligibility criteria to ensure that access to the provision of the community meals service is the same for all clients across Northern Ireland, regardless of which Trust is responsible for their care.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how much has been spent on Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services Extra Contractual Referrals in each of the last five years.[R]

(AQW 35960/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information is only available on expenditure for Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services Extra Contractual Referrals in each of the last three years as set out in the table below: this expenditure is for treatment only and does not include patient travel.

Year	£m
2013/14	1.50
2012/13	1.42
2011/12	1.14

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of patient referrals made by the Health Service to the North West Private Hospital in Ballykelly, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35971/11-15)

Mr Poots: The number of patient referrals made by the Health Service to the North West Private Hospital in Ballykelly is not available.

However, information is available on the number of outpatient attendances and inpatient admissions at the North West Private Hospital in Ballykelly. This information is detailed in Tables 1 and 2 below, for each of the last 5 years, broken down by the transferring HSC Trust.

Table 1: Outpatient attendances carried out by the North West Private Hospital in Ballykelly by transferring Trust: 2009/10 – 2013/14.

Mr Storey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the departmental services, provided through statutory and non-statutory bodies, to address the needs of alcohol and drug dependents in North Antrim.
(AQW 36030/11-15)

Mr Poots: Through my Department's New Strategic Direction for Alcohol and Drugs Phase Two, the Health & Social Care Board and the Public Health Agency commission a full range of alcohol and drug services – from education and prevention through to treatment and support – that are provided across the Northern Health and Social Care Trust area, both by Statutory and Voluntary/Community sectors.

Details of the full range of alcohol and drug services, for both young people and adults, in the Northern area can be found on the PHA website at the following link:

http://www.publichealth.hscni.net/sites/default/files/DrugsAlcohol_Directory_Northern_12_12.pdf

Ms Maeve McLaughlin asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to outline the proposals to support people with disabilities following the withdrawal of the Independent Living Fund.
(AQW 36036/11-15)

Mr Poots: The UK Government decided to close the Independent Living Fund (ILF) with effect from 30 June 2015. As I have made very clear, my Department will do all it can to ensure that those in Northern Ireland who are affected by the decision of the Department for Work and Pensions are not disadvantaged.

My Department is currently undertaking a full and comprehensive public consultation on how best to support Independent Living Fund (ILF) users in Northern Ireland following the closure of the fund. The consultation closes on 30 November 2014 and I would encourage everyone to share their views on this crucial issue. Following consultation, I will carefully consider the results before deciding on the way forward.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the waiting times on arrival for pre-arranged antenatal appointments in the Braid Valley hospital; and whether targets have been met.
(AQW 36062/11-15)

Mr Poots: The waiting times on arrival for pre-arranged antenatal appointments in Braid Valley hospital is not recorded by Northern Health and Social Care Trust.

My Department's current outpatient waiting times target reports on the waiting times of patients who are currently waiting for a first consultant led outpatient appointment. It does not monitor the length of time patients waited for their appointment following their arrival at a pre-arranged appointment.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 34921/11-15, to detail the contact between his Department and the Department of Health.
(AQW 36080/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department maintains ongoing contact with the Department of Health England regarding this issue. This has included participation in the national Meningitis B Immunisation Project Board, which normally meets once a month.

It is difficult to estimate when the Men B vaccine would be available following the successful completion of the procurement process as that would depend on how quickly adequate supplies of the vaccine would be available from the manufacturer to allow a vaccination programme to begin. My Department will endeavor to ensure a vaccination programme is in place as quickly as possible should there be a successful completion of the procurement process.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 34921/11-15, for an estimated timescale of the vaccine being made available to patients following the successful completion of negotiations regarding procurement of the Meningitis B vaccine.
(AQW 36081/11-15)

Mr Poots: My Department maintains ongoing contact with the Department of Health England regarding this issue. This has included participation in the national Meningitis B Immunisation Project Board, which normally meets once a month.

It is difficult to estimate when the Men B vaccine would be available following the successful completion of the procurement process as that would depend on how quickly adequate supplies of the vaccine would be available from the manufacturer to allow a vaccination programme to begin. Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the total number of patients registered with each Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 36083/11-15)

Mr Poots: Patients are not registered with Trusts in Northern Ireland, but with GP practices. Included below are the number of patients registered with GP practices that are located geographically within the five Trust areas.

Please note that patients do not necessarily reside within the same Trust area.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, pursuant to AQW 35778/11-15 and in relation to the further survey, to detail (i) the date in November that it is scheduled to begin; (ii) the number of weeks that the consultation is scheduled to last; and (iii) when the results will be published.

(AQW 36084/11-15)

Mr Poots: (i) The exact dates of the survey in November 2014 are unknown at present because the procurement process to appoint a company to undertake the survey is not yet complete. (ii) The fieldwork period for the survey will last for four weeks. (iii) The results are due to be submitted to me by the Public Health Agency in February 2015.

Mr Frew asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety to detail the number of people in the Northern Health and Social Care Trust who suffered a stroke, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 36117/11-15)

Mr Poots: The number of people who were admitted to HSC Hospitals in the Northern HSC Trust with a primary diagnosis of stroke in each of the last five years is detailed in the table below.

Financial Year	Individuals admitted

Notes

Stroke has been defined using International Classification of Disease (revision 10) codes as follows.

I61 – Intracerebral haemorrhage

I62 – Other non-traumatic intracranial haemorrhage

I63 – Cerebral infarction

I64 – Stroke, not specified as haemorrhage or infarction

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for his assessment of the number of people in Northern Ireland who have (i) Progressive Supranuclear Palsy; and (ii) Corticobasal Degeneration.

(AQW 36142/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on the number of people in Northern Ireland living with (i) Progressive Supranuclear Palsy or (ii) Corticobasal Degeneration is not available.

The number of individuals admitted to HSC Hospitals in Northern Ireland with Progressive Supranuclear Palsy or Corticobasal Degeneration is detailed in the table below for each of the last three years.

Ms McGahan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety why the proposed closure of Loane House in Dungannon by the Southern Health and Social Care Trust is not subject to a full impact assessment in relation to the rural domain.

(AQW 36183/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Southern Health and Social Care (HSC) Trust has informed my Department that its proposals for Loane House are set within the context of Transforming Your Care and commissioning intentions, and that a sustainability development assessment was undertaken which included the rural domain. The Trust's Equality Impact Assessment (EQIA) identifies any likely impact which the proposals may have on people living in rural areas.

The Trust has also advised that pending the outcome of the current public consultation it would keep its EQIA under review to ensure all local equality and human rights issues are identified and addressed. The Trust will review responses and prepare a final report for a decision by the Trust's Board in November 2014.

Mr B McCreagh asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many people have been diagnosed with cystic fibrosis, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust, in each of the last three years.

(AQW 36237/11-15)

Mr Poots: Information on the number of people diagnosed with cystic fibrosis is not available.

However, information is available on the number of individuals admitted to HSC Hospitals in Northern Ireland with a diagnosis of cystic fibrosis, which is detailed in the table below for each of the last three years, broken down by Health and Social Care Trust.

In order to protect patient confidentiality, cell sizes of less than five have been masked.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the new Omagh Enhanced Local Hospital.

(AQO 6676/11-15)

Mr Poots: Construction commenced on site in July 2014 and contract completion is scheduled for July 2016. The hospital is expected to become operational in Autumn 2016.

It will provide for a Local Hospital with 40 Intermediate Care beds and will include a range of services such as a 24 place renal dialysis unit, a Health & Care Centre including GP Accommodation and an Urgent Care and Treatment Centre.

Mr Brady asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on how much has been spent to date on Transforming Your Care.

(AQO 6672/11-15)

Mr Poots: A total of £19m was spent in 2012/13 in respect of transitional funding for Transforming Your Care (TYC) and other HSC savings initiatives; spend in respect of TYC in 2013/14 was £6.19m; in 2014/15 spend to date is £3.3m. This represents a total of £28.49m spend over the three year period to date.

These investments have helped to make a positive impact on the delivery of care in acute, primary and community care settings.

Mr Ross asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the Northern Ireland Connected Health Ecosystem.

(AQO 6673/11-15)

Mr Poots: The NI Connected Health Eco-System brings together the health, academic, independent, and industry sectors, as well as patient representation, to consider and accelerate the adoption of connected health solutions within Northern Ireland, which will ultimately improve the delivery of services to patients, and at the same time contribute to sustainable economic growth

Since its launch in September 2012 there have been 14 events organised through the Eco-System focussing on such areas as Medicines Management, healthcare analytics, independent living, improving health and well-being, and healthcare transformation. Further events are planned for October and December this year.

Mr Gardiner asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety when public residential care homes will be allowed to admit new permanent residents.

(AQO 6674/11-15)

Mr Poots: The Stage One consultation report on the future of statutory residential care homes was approved by the Health and Social Care Board on 12 June 2014. The report provides a thorough analysis of views shared during consultation and sets out the final criteria for evaluating statutory residential homes for older people.

Health and Social Care Trusts have now been asked by the Health and Social Care Board to review their residential care homes using the new criteria and then to review their positions on admissions once they have made proposals for the future of each home. This work will be completed in the coming months.

Mrs Overend asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many domiciliary care packages exist in the Mid Ulster Constituency.

(AQO 6675/11-15)

Mr Poots: The information requested is not collected centrally by my Department. Statistics on domiciliary care provision cannot be disaggregated by geographical areas smaller than HSC Trust.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what impact the current funding pressures are having on independent health providers and their patients.

(AQO 6677/11-15)

Mr Poots: In the context of wider health funding pressures, the Health and Social Care Board instructed Health and Social Care Trusts in July to temporarily pause sending further patients to the independent sector for elective care assessment or treatment.

Regrettably this has had an adverse impact on the waiting times for some patients. I am also aware of the potential impact on some local independent sector providers.

My Department, working with the Health and Social Care Board, is keeping this matter under ongoing review.

Mr Dickson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety what action his Department is taking in response to the Independent Review of the Actions Taken in Relation to Concerns Raised about the Care Delivered at Cherry Tree House, Carrickfergus.

(AQO 6678/11-15)

Mr Poots: Senior officials from my Department met in August with the Health and Social Care Board and the Regulation and Quality Improvement Authority to consider the 22 recommendations made by the review. It was agreed that they would most effectively be delivered by the delegation of individual recommendations to each responsible organisation.

My Department will monitor the overall implementation of the recommendations, with each organisation required to submit an interim progress report by the end of October. It is intended that all the recommendations will be fully implemented by the end of this year.

Mr Sheehan asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety why the Terms of Reference for the review into unscheduled care have not been agreed.

(AQO 6679/11-15)

Mr Poots: The terms of reference for this review have been agreed. I announced the terms of reference for the RQIA's review of unscheduled care on 10 February 2014. The RQIA published its report on 1 July 2014 and in an oral statement to the Assembly, also on 1 July, I announced the terms of reference for a task group, co-chaired by the Chief Medical Officer and the Chief Nursing Officer, to implement the RQIA's recommendations.

Mr Beggs asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety for an update on the provision of specialist respite care in East Antrim.

(AQO 6680/11-15)

Mr Poots: Respite or short break services are provided on assessed need and can be provided in a variety of ways, for example: in a residential or nursing home; through the use of day care facilities; a sitting service; or through Direct Payments, where the service user makes their own arrangements.

For Northern Trust service users, specialist respite services include, for physical disability - Cuisle in Roscommon, Corrymeela in Ballycastle, Disabled Christian Fellowship in Lisburn and the MS centre in Ballymoney. For children with disabilities, residential respite can be provided at Whitehaven in Whitehead. For children with complex conditions overnight care can be provided in their own home. For those with a learning disability, respite can be provided at Ellis Court in Carrickfergus.

Department of Justice

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice why persons facing serious criminal charges and brought to court under a Public Prosecution Service summons are not required, unless and until committed for Trial at preliminary enquiry, to (i) attend court in person; and (ii) enter into bail terms; and whether he plans to amend this in the interests of assuring cooperation and protection of both the investigation and witnesses or victims from interference and intimidation

(AQW 35670/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice): Both summons and charge procedures are available to bring persons to court and decisions to charge or summons are matters for the independent police and prosecution authorities. Charging or using summonses are matters based on the individual circumstances of each case, taken in light of the need to protect the investigation process, victims and witnesses. Bail conditions can be imposed in appropriate cases, for example, to ensure attendance at court and for protections of witnesses and victims. I am content with the procedures and protections available to police and courts in the investigation and prosecution of crime and have no plans at this stage to make any legislative change.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister of Justice what action his Department has taken to target racist behaviour outside the Belfast area, specifically in East Londonderry.

(AQW 35686/11-15)

Mr Ford: Through the Community Safety Strategy for Northern Ireland 2012 – 2017, my Department is committed to tackling all forms of hate crime, including racist hate crime, and reducing the harm it causes through prevention, awareness and education. My officials are also working with OFMDFM officials, who are responsible for wider racial equality, to tackle race hate and behaviours which may not manifest into crime.

Regionally, the Department of Justice delivers a range of initiatives to tackle hate crime. Examples include part funding a Hate Incident Practical Action Scheme to provide personal protection and safety measures at, or in the vicinity of, the home of a hate crime victim; investing in the hate crime advocacy service to ensure support for victims; and part funding an initiative to identify a Tension Monitoring model with a view to rolling it out to all areas through PCSPs. The Probation Board Northern Ireland and the Youth Justice Agency, among others, are also delivering initiatives to prevent offending through early stage intervention and support a range of programmes to address offending behaviour, including community and restorative approaches. My officials continue to develop links with local groups representing ethnic minorities to increase understanding of the issues faced and to increase confidence in the justice sector.

At a local level, my Department funds the Policing and Community Safety Partnerships (PCSPs) which deliver a range of initiatives to tackle hate crime. For example, in East Londonderry, the PCSPs financially support projects such as 'Hands off My Friend' and 'YES' which are designed to challenge attitudes that contribute to hate crime. Such projects engage with local schools to educate young people about prejudice and raise awareness of the impact of hate crime. On a practical level, assistance is also offered to victims of racist attacks including arranging community service squads to clean racist graffiti.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice (i) whether he is aware that some police officers do not feel they are being adequately and appropriately represented by the recognised staff associations and representative bodies over proposed pension changes; (ii) what action is being taking to address this, particularly in respect of a lack of transparency by failure to fully disclose decisions taken without proper consultation or with the views of serving officers as to being denied fair treatment; and (iii) whether the current proposed policy in its present form is lawful in the absence of appropriate consultation or engagement.

(AQW 35768/11-15)

Mr Ford: I have been made aware of the concerns raised by a number of police officers and have brought these to the attention of the Chairman and Secretary of the Police Federation for Northern Ireland. In accordance with the Public Sector Pension Act (Northern Ireland) 2014, my Department has gone through the appropriate mechanisms to consult on the matter.

Mr Hazzard asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the future of Downpatrick Court House.
(AQW 35791/11-15)

Mr Ford: The future of the Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service (NICTS) estate, which includes Downpatrick Courthouse, is being considered as part of the Department of Justice Estate Strategy and in the context of budgetary constraints. No final decision has been made in relation to any of the existing courthouses across the NICTS estate.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 33408/11-15 and his response "A more stringent multi-agency selection process is in place to select prisoners for Burren House" and "A more robust progression/regression policy is in place, and staff employed there will write reports on the prisoners for the Parole Commissioners" to detail (i) how this selection process was applied in the decision to return the prisoner to this unit and why this was acceptable given his previous offending whilst an inmate of Burren House in its former title as the Prisoner Assessment Unit; and (ii) whether this decision will be reviewed.

(AQW 35810/11-15)

Mr Ford: I would refer the Member to the response to AQW/35540/11-15.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 35230/11-15, whether the consultation reports have been made available to recognised staff associations and representative bodies of serving police officers, confidentially or otherwise; and if so, whether the intention is that these bodies will share the content directly with those they represent.

(AQW 35811/11-15)

Mr Ford: The consultation does not conclude until 16 October and as such, no report has yet been prepared.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice how many new recruits or new intake Prison Officers are working on landings without senior officer support; and whether this practice is subject to a risk assessment.

(AQW 35812/11-15)

Mr Ford: There are no new recruits or new intake Prison Officers working on the residential landings without Senior Officer support. It should also be noted that Unit Managers and Senior Governors are also present to lend support to staff working with prisoners.

Risk Assessments are in place for all areas.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice why his Department's Head of Internal Audit did not complete an audit of the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland despite an agreement to do so on 20 February 2014.

(AQW 35814/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Head of Internal Audit did not carry out any audit of the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland. There was no agreement to carry out an internal audit when he met officials from the Association on 20 February 2014, and before any such agreement could subsequently be made, he was informed of the Charity Commission's statutory inquiry. He agreed with the Charity Commission that it would not be appropriate for the DOJ to carry out an internal audit.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice what assurances are required by his Department and the Northern Ireland Police Fund before relevant funding can be allocated to the Disabled Police Officers Association Northern Ireland.

(AQW 35815/11-15)

Mr Ford: I intend to await the outcome of the Charity Commission's statutory inquiry into the governance and administration of the Disabled Police Officers' Association of Northern Ireland before considering next steps. I understand that the Police Fund, too, intends to await the outcome of the inquiry before considering further funding.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice how much of the cuts in expenditure in the Prison Service were made to (i) its headquarters; and (ii) prisons.

(AQW 35817/11-15)

Mr Ford: The table below sets out the prison pressures funded and savings identified for the last three years. The savings have been split (i) its headquarters; and (ii) prisons.

	2011/12 £m	2012/13 £m	2013/14 £m
Budget 2010 Allocation	121.8	121.8	121.8

	2011/12 £m	2012/13 £m	2013/14 £m
Additional Pay and VER pressures funded	18.8	19.0	3.5
(i) Savings identified headquarters	-1.2	-1.6	-2.5
(ii) savings identified prisons	-3.1	-21.0	-21.0
Increase(Reduction) in Budget Allocation	14.5	-3.6	-20.0
New Baseline Funding	136.3	118.2	101.8

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice to detail the cuts to the budget of the Northern Ireland Prison Service.
(AQW 35818/11-15)

Mr Ford: The table below details the cuts to the budget of Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS). The main part of the cuts is in connection with the savings identified by the Voluntary Early Retirement Scheme (VER).

Details of Resource DEL Budget NIPS

	2011/12 £m	2012/13 £m	2013/14 £m
Budget 2010 Allocation	121.8	121.8	121.8
Additional Pay pressures funded	1.5	1.8	3.5
Additional Funding for VER Scheme	17.3	17.3
Reform Savings Identified	-4.3	-22.7	-23.5
New Baseline Funding	136.3	118.2	101.8
Increase(Reduction) in Budget Allocation	14.5	-3.6	-20.0

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice whether the level of security checks on visitors entering prisons are the same as those carried out in (i) 2012; and (ii) 2013.

(AQW 35819/11-15)

Mr Ford: The current level of security checks on visitors entering prisons is the same as those carried out in 2012 and 2013.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice how current Prison Officer staff numbers at Maghaberry Prison compare with (i) 2012; and (ii) 2013.

(AQW 35820/11-15)

Mr Ford: The current number of Prison Officer staff in post in Maghaberry (Full Time Equivalent) compared with those in post in 2012 and 2013 are as follows:

- (i) 31 July 2012 – 662.39 staff in post
- (ii) 1 August 2013 – 739.36 staff in post
- (iii) 1 August 2014 – 688 staff in post

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice how current staff numbers at Prison Service Headquarters compare with (i) 2012; and (ii) 2013.

(AQW 35821/11-15)

Mr Ford: The current number of staff in post in Headquarters (Full Time Equivalent) figures compared with those in post in 2012 and 2013 are as follows:

- (i) 31 July 2012 – 212.70 Staff in post
- (ii) 1 August 2013 – 201.45 Staff in post
- (iii) 1 August 2014 – 174 Staff in post

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, in relation to recently published figures of drugs seizures, how many seizures accounted for unlawfully held prescription drugs.

(AQW 35877/11-15)

Mr Ford: It would not be possible to provide the information as required without disproportionate cost. Those occasions where substances are found, and can be attributed to an individual are referred to PSNI as part of the joint operation to combat drugs misuse. These substances are analysed for evidential purposes in regard to prosecutions.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice whether there are instances of, or opportunities for, automatic transfer for prison staff to the Northern Ireland Prison Service from counterpart facilities in England, Scotland, Wales and the Republic of Ireland.

(AQW 35879/11-15)

Mr Ford: There is no policy or agreement in existence to allow an automatic transfer for prison staff to the Northern Ireland Prison Service from counterpart facilities in England, Scotland, Wales or the Republic of Ireland. All appointments to the Northern Ireland Civil Service, including those to Northern Ireland Prison Service must be made in accordance with the Northern Ireland Civil Service Commissioner's Code and based on merit through an open competition.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 35230/11-15, whether he has consulted directly with serving Police Officers; and if not, when he intends to do so.

(AQW 35880/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Department's consultation is a targeted one, aimed at those bodies with a direct role and responsibility for police pensions and the recognised staff associations and representative bodies. This approach is consistent with that of other Departments in relation to the changes to public sector pension schemes.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 35258/11-15, of those prisoners transferring from outside the UK to serve their sentence in Northern Ireland, how many, transferred since 2010, have (i) repaid; and (ii) failed to repay the expenses incurred in their transfer.

(AQW 35895/11-15)

Mr Ford: Of the ten successful applications for repatriation processed by the Northern Ireland Prison Service (NIPS) since devolution nine were from prisoners being held in jails in the Republic of Ireland. While the Repatriation of Prisoners Act 1984 provides for United Kingdom prison authorities to require transferring prisoners to sign an undertaking to repay expenses incurred in connection with their conveyance to a United Kingdom entry point no such expenses were incurred in any of these cases. This is because the Irish Prison Service takes responsibility for escorting repatriating prisoners to the border with Northern Ireland where they are handed over to NIPS. Therefore none of these nine applicants was asked to make a payment. The tenth application was from a prisoner whose repatriation involved a flight to the United Kingdom. This individual paid for this in full following his return to Northern Ireland.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 33830/11-15, for a breakdown of the £243,017 expenditure on hospitality by his Department's arm's-length bodies.

(AQW 35899/11-15)

Mr Ford: A breakdown of expenditure on hospitality by the arm's-length bodies of the Department of Justice in the 2013/14 financial year is shown in the table below:

Arm's-length Body	Total spend - £
Police Service of Northern Ireland	218,800
Northern Ireland Policing Board	12,695
Probation Board Northern Ireland	6,120
Office of the Police Ombudsman Northern Ireland	2,516
RUC George Cross Foundation	1,782
Prisoner Ombudsman	344
Northern Ireland Law Commission	299
Criminal Justice Inspection Northern Ireland	267
Northern Ireland Police Fund	194
Total	243,017

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to detail the threshold in which a criminal charge can be (i) brought straight to court; (ii) put onto a 28 days charge sheet; and (iii) required to be sent to the Public Prosecution Service for a decision on whether to prosecute.

(AQW 35974/11-15)

Mr Ford: Decisions as to the method, timing and approach by which a criminal offence or charge is brought to the court are operational matters for the police and the Public Prosecution Service. The decision to charge or submit a file to the Public Prosecution Service is, for example, a matter for police.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 35230/11-15 and given that the Executive decided to switch to a new Career Average Revalued Earnings scheme model on 8 March 2012, which was six months before the announcement on 5 September 2012 and in advance of Staff Side officially accepting the changes, (i) whether he or his officials pre-empted Staff Side acceptance, or was there no opportunity to object; (ii) to provide the dates of the meetings held with Staff Side prior to 5 September 2012 in which Career Average Revalued Earnings was discussed; and (iii) on what date between 8 March and 5 September 2012 are Staff Side recorded as accepting the changes.

(AQW 35975/11-15)

Mr Ford: Public sector pension schemes are not subject to negotiation or arbitration. On 6 November 2012 following due consideration, I agreed to adopt the same approach to a new police pension scheme as that being proposed in Great Britain, in line with the Executive decision of 8 March 2012. Under Section 34 of the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 1998, my department is required to consult with the Police Negotiating Board (PNB) (now the Police Pension Consultative Forum). Currently my department is engaged in a consultation on the scheme regulations and will give consideration to the responses once consultation closes on 16 October 2014.

Consultation on the police pension reform has been ongoing since January 2012. Any member of the PNB has had the opportunity to raise any concerns they might have. The dates of meetings with staff side are detailed in my response to AQW/35671/11-15.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 35439/11-15, whether he wishes to review this answer in light of the answer to AQW 34456/11-15.

(AQW 35976/11-15)

Mr Ford: As noted in AQW/35439/11-15 I am not aware of my Department transferring an Assembly Question to a Freedom of Information Request. The reference in AQW/34456/11-15 to the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA) notes that the Department, as a Responsible Authority, has a duty to ensure any disclosure is in line with the relevant legislative requirements.

An earlier response was provided to the associated question AQW/33915/11-15 that included the requested information and advised that a request for a copy of the report would be considered in line with FOIA and the Data Protection Act 1998 given potential third party interests that may be affected by disclosure.

Mr Dallat asked the Minister of Justice to detail the cost of fitting out the office of the Chief Executive of the Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service in Laganside House.

(AQW 35977/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Chief Executive of the Northern Ireland Courts and Tribunals Service (NICTS) is permanently based in Laganside House in an office which was fitted out as part of the former Northern Ireland Court Service Headquarters relocation from Windsor House and Bedford House in 2008. It is not possible to identify specific costs for alterations made solely to the Chief Executive's office as invoices relate to work completed as part of the fitting out of the entire building.

In September 2012 modifications were made to the Chief Executive's office to create additional office space for a member of the senior management team, at a cost of £9,397 excluding VAT.

The Chief Executive does not have an office in either Massey House or Parliament Buildings. The only designated parking space for the postholder is in Laganside car park.

Mr Campbell asked the Minister of Justice for an estimate of the amount that will be spent in the current financial year on progressing the preparatory works associated with the construction of the new prison at Magilligan.

(AQW 36024/11-15)

Mr Ford: There has been no spend in the current financial year on progressing the preparatory works associated with the construction of the new prison at Magilligan. Work continues on the development of the business case for the project, securing DFP approval and capital funding. Once such approval is secured and funding has been made available, work will then commence on further development of the project including the preparation of an exemplar design and the procurement of a contractor to complete the design and build of the new facility.

Mr Hussey asked the Minister of Justice to detail any contact that he, or his officials had, with Ms Catriona Ruane MLA or Mr Gerry Kelly MLA prior to the completion of the Deputy Chief Constable selection process by the Northern Ireland Policing Board; and for his assessment of the impact of Ms Ruane's public statement prior to the completion of the interview process.

(AQW 36041/11-15)

Mr Ford: Neither I, nor my officials, had any contact with Ms Catriona Ruane MLA or Mr Gerry Kelly MLA prior to the completion of the Deputy Chief Constable selection process by the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

Following the completion of the process, I met with the Chair and Chief Executive of the Policing Board and consulted with the independent advisor from HM Inspectorate of Constabulary. I also met with Ms Ruane, who was accompanied by Mr Kelly, to discuss her concerns.

On the basis of the assurances I received, I am content that the Policing Board's procedures in relation to the selection process were properly adhered to.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice what are the implications for the current, and any forthcoming, local contract for drugs testing services carried out by the Scottish Prison Service should Scotland obtain independence in the pending referendum.

(AQW 36064/11-15)

Mr Ford: NIPS did not expect there to be any immediate implications for the existing contract with Scottish Prison Service if Scotland had voted for independence.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice for an update on the creation of a Prison Service museum.

(AQW 36071/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Northern Ireland Prison Service is committed to the preservation of artefacts, but competing priorities have resulted in progress being slower than anticipated.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 35310/11-15, to address parts (i) and (iii) of the original question.

(AQW 36136/11-15)

Mr Ford: NIPS do not conduct searches solely for drugs, searching is directed against all unauthorised articles. Since 1 January 2014 NIPS have conducted 41953 searches. Legal highs are not one of the categories listed for recording finds. All finds of unauthorised articles attributed to an individual will be treated as a breach of prison rules and dealt with under the adjudication process.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice to whom the Central Committee of the Police Federation for Northern Ireland are accountable.

(AQW 36138/11-15)

Mr Ford: The Central Committee of the Police Federation for Northern Ireland is accountable to the members of the Federation.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 35311/11-15, to detail (i) who is preparing the tender; and (ii) when work commenced on the preparation.

(AQW 36139/11-15)

Mr Ford: The tender is being prepared by the Scottish Prison Service. NIPS do not have the exact date on which the work commenced but have been advised it is ongoing.

Mr Allister asked the Minister of Justice why there has been a default in implementing Section 30 of the Public Service Pensions Act (Northern Ireland) 2014; and to detail the "technical issues" which exist.

(AQW 36143/11-15)

Mr Ford: As previously stated, I remain keen to give effect to Section 30 of the Public Service Pensions Act (Northern Ireland) 2014. There are, however, a number of issues which must first be fully understood and resolved before payments can commence.

I raised concerns during the Assembly debate on the Bill regarding the potential for Section 30 to be deemed to be repercussive. If this were to be the case, it could fall to the NI Assembly and the Executive to meet the associated costs across schemes in Northern Ireland and Great Britain.

I have written to the Finance Minister seeking to address these issues urgently and I understand he is engaging with HM Treasury on the matter. I await a substantive response. While the necessary preparatory work continues, I will not be in a position to authorise the Policing Board to commence payments until these issues have been resolved.

Mr Weir asked the Minister of Justice to detail the timescale for the proposed Mental Capacity Bill.

(AQW 36152/11-15)

Mr Ford: The timetable for the Mental Capacity Bill is a challenging one and, as such, is being kept under close review. Subject to Executive agreement, it is the intention of the two Departments to introduce the Bill as early as possible in 2015, to enable enactment by March 2016. Following enactment, it is envisaged that a further year will be required prior to the Bill becoming fully operational, in order to introduce supporting secondary legislation and provide necessary training.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister of Justice, for his assessment of the response to AQW 35508-11/15, in light of a number of vulnerable prisoners that have self-harmed and who have referred themselves as being unable to access mental health services particularly within Maghaberry Prison.

(AQW 36157/11-15)

Mr Ford: The South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust is responsible for healthcare provision in prison establishments.

The Northern Ireland Prison Service and the South Eastern Trust are committed to providing effective services to vulnerable prisoners and will continue to work in partnership to support those prisoners being managed under the Supporting Prisoners at Risk procedures.

Department for Regional Development

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Regional Development what measures will be carried out to prevent a repeat of the flooding in Dunloy that took place during summer 2014.

(AQW 35382/11-15)

Mr Kennedy (The Minister for Regional Development): I am aware of the extreme intense rainfall which Dunloy and the surrounding area encountered on Friday 8 August 2014 and was constantly appraised, by my officials, of the responsive action being undertaken during the afternoon and evening.

I am pleased to confirm the swift action of my Department helped clear road drainage outlets, reopen flooded roads, provide sand bags to properties under threat of flooding and carry out road surface repairs before the day was out.

This was a short lived, exceptional and torrential rainfall event and whilst the roads are currently well serviced by the current road drainage system which is able to accommodate normal levels of rainfall, it was on this occasion overwhelmed by the additional volume of water, particularly that flowing from private farm lands and laneways onto the road due to the topography of the land.

Whilst I empathise with residents affected by this flooding, in the current constrained budgetary climate it would not be economically viable to fund further upgrades to the existing infrastructure to cater for such exceptional weather events.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail how much has been spent on grass cutting in the North Down area, in each of the last two years.

(AQW 35527/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I can advise the Member that my Department analyses spend on a District Council basis by financial year. The following costs have been incurred by my Department for grass cutting and environmental maintenance within North Down District Council area in each of the last two years:

Function	2012-13 £k	2013-14 £k
Grass Cutting and Environmental Maintenance	176	139

The Member should also note that figures for 2013-14 could be subject to change as the Accounts have yet to be signed off by the NIAO.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister for Regional Development whether the transfer of powers for on street parking to councils will include the power to introduce resident parking schemes.

(AQW 35702/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: No. The Off-Street Parking (Functions of District Councils) Bill aims only to put in place the wish of the Executive to transfer off-street car parks (other than Park and Ride and Park and Share) from my Department to district councils.

Residents' parking schemes relate to on street car parking arrangements and are, therefore, not covered by the Bill.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development what is the cost to his Department of operating the Strangford ferry.

(AQW 35741/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Details of the operating costs for the Strangford Lough Ferry Service, for the last three financial years, are set out in the table below:

Year	Operating Costs (£)
2011/12	1,856,818
2012/13	1,442,800
2013/14	1,458,455

Please note that these figures incorporate staff, fuel and operations and maintenance costs, but exclude indirect and notional costs.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to outline his Department's long term plans for the Strangford ferry service.

(AQW 35742/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department regularly reviews the delivery and operation of the Strangford Lough Ferry Service.

In 2013, my Department undertook a Strategic Review of the service which concluded that the current level of service provision at the Strangford Lough Ferry Service remains appropriate and the continued in-house delivery of the service also remains appropriate at present.

The review also recommended the Department continues to work towards procuring a replacement vessel for the MV Strangford and that future delivery options for the Strangford Lough Ferry Service should be reviewed, once a replacement vessel for the MV Strangford has been procured.

Tender documents for the provision of a new ferry for the Strangford Lough Ferry Service have recently issued to a select list of shipbuilders. The procurement of the new ferry is expected to cost £6.3 million with delivery scheduled for Summer 2016.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much his Department has spent on the use of taxis in each of the last three years.

(AQW 35746/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The amount spent by my Department on the use of taxis in each of the last three years is shown below.

Financial Year	Spend on Taxis
2011-12	£3,252
2012-13	£3,442
2013-14	£2,610

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the reasons for the 40mph speed limit on the C560 Aughrim Road, Magherafelt.

(AQW 35761/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Over the years there have been a number of requests for safety measures or a reduced speed limit at Aughrim Road, Magherafelt and, in June 2013, my Department agreed to undertake a joint assessment for a reduced speed limit in conjunction with the Police Service of Northern Ireland Road Policing Unit.

This assessment considered the extent of development, existing road layout and topography, collision history, local facilities, existing warning signage and recorded vehicle speeds. The assessment concluded the criteria for a 30mph speed limit was not met, but a 40mph limit should be provided to generally improve safety for pedestrians in the area and to assist motorists accessing their dwellings, the filling station and the local church parking.

Mr I McCrea asked the Minister for Regional Development what public consultation was held prior to the introduction of a 40mph speed limit on the C560 Aughrim Road, Magherafelt.

(AQW 35762/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Following discussions between my officials and PSNI Roads Policing in June 2013, a decision was made to proceed with proposals to implement a 40mph speed limit at Aughrim Road, Magherafelt. Magherafelt District Council was consulted on 20 January 2014 regarding this proposal, which was subsequently advertised in the Irish News, News Letter and Belfast Telegraph on 26 March 2014. This consultation allowed a 22-day period for receipt of comments or representations. No objections to the proposed speed limit were received.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Regional Development what discussions have taken place with HM Treasury to extend the TaxSmart scheme to rail travel.

(AQW 35773/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: In January my Department wrote to the Department of Finance and Personnel in their role as lead department in the liaison with HM Treasury on public expenditure and taxation issues regarding the extension of the Taxsmart scheme from bus only to include rail. At this time I was seeking to engage directly with HMRC on the matter. Simon Hamilton committed to writing to the Chancellor of the Exchequer on behalf of my Department, which he did on 24 February 2014.

The Department of Finance and Personnel has advised that no update has been received from HM Treasury since the Minister wrote to the Chancellor in February 2014 regarding any possible extension of the Taxsmart scheme in Northern Ireland.

I welcome the opportunity to prioritise this issue and will continue to liaise with the Department of Finance and Personnel for an update on this matter.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the operating costs of Translink, in each of the last three financial years.

(AQW 35794/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Translink has advised that their operating costs in each of the last three financial years are as follows:

	2013/14 £'000	2012/13 £'000	2011/12 £'000
Translink total operating costs*	169,147	165,915	156,664

*operating costs = operating and engineering costs (including claims)

Transport NI: Gritting Vehicles

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the number of gritting vehicles owned by Transport NI.

(AQW 35795/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department's Transport NI currently has 135 gritting vehicles in service, with a further 62 vehicles which are at various stages of disposal.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the (i) number; and (ii) type of vehicles used by Transport NI. (AQW 35796/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department's Transport NI currently owns 675 vehicles across a range of categories that are at various stages of their lifecycle. Around 555 are available for operational use, with the remainder due for disposal. Further detail relating to category/type of the operational vehicles is set out in the table below:

Category	Number in Operation
Lorries 3.5 to 26 tonne (excluding interchangeable gritting units)	271
Specialist vehicles for gully emptying, sweeping, patching, inspecting and surveying.	93
Light Commercial	51
Gritters	135
Snowblowers	5

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many vehicles currently owned by Transport NI require an annual MOT test.

(AQW 35797/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department's Transport NI currently has 555 vehicles available for operational use, 544 of which are presented for Goods Vehicle Certification (GVC) testing each year.

Lord Morrow asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail (i) what his Department has done, or would be prepared to do, to promote public hire taxis as a method of public transport, paying particular attention to their accessibility for people with a disability; and (ii) whether he would be prepared to meet public hire representatives to discuss this issue.

(AQW 35813/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Through the Transport Programme for People with Disabilities and the Rural Transport Fund, my Department already provides funding to a range of service providers to deliver transport for people with disabilities and those living in rural areas. However, I acknowledge the role public hire services play in providing transport options for members of the travelling public, including people with disabilities. Such flexibly-routed services enable people, who may not have access to a car or cannot access conventional fixed-route public transport services, to undertake essential journeys, particularly at times of the day when the public transport system is not operating.

I would therefore be happy for my officials to meet with public hire representatives to discuss the options available to help promote these services as part of the overall public transport mix. This can be arranged by contacting my office.

Mr B McCrea asked the Minister for Regional Development how much his Department has spent on improving road infrastructure in Lagan Valley since 2013.

(AQW 35837/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department records expenditure by Council area rather than on a constituency basis. Expenditure in the Lisburn City Council area on improving road infrastructure (including resurfacing) during the period 1 April 2013 to 31 August 2014 was £5.7 million.

Mr McElduff asked the Minister for Regional Development to outline his Department's evaluation of the road safety benefits of the planned A5 Western Transport Corridor.

(AQW 35854/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: As an integral part of an overall Traffic and Economics assessment carried out on the proposed A5 Western Transport Corridor project, the issue of road safety has been examined and evaluated in detail.

I can confirm it is estimated that implementation of the entire project would reduce the number of collisions by approximately 1,000 over a 60-year scheme assessment period.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many new road projects have been cancelled by his Department in the last three financial years.

(AQW 35885/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: No road projects have been cancelled by my Department in the last three financial years.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development to detail the current value of land assets held by his Department. (AQW 35886/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: As of 31 March 2014, the value of land assets held by my Department was £90.8m.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many car parks are owned by his Department.

(AQW 35888/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: My Department owns/operates 358 off-street pay and free car parks, including a number of park and ride/share car parks.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister for Regional Development for his assessment of service delivery and quality of the joint Translink and Bus Eireann x1 Service to Dublin following the utilisation of private contracted companies to part operate this route.

(AQW 35893/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: I am aware that Bus Eireann use sub-contractors in the provision of the X1/X2 service and have done so for some time as part of their wider operating model. I have yet to be convinced of the merits of this practice and Translink do not use private contracted companies on this service.

I understand from Translink that it has not received any customer complaints made specifically about X1/X2 services provided by Bus Eireann or its sub-contractors and I am satisfied that Translink provides a good service on this route.

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development, over the last five years, how many new road projects have been delayed because of archeological digs.

(AQW 35954/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Two major road scheme projects have been delayed within the last five years because of archaeological investigations:

A32 Cherrymount Link Road, Enniskillen (excavation of a medieval Crannog); and A26 Ballee Road East to M2 Ballymena Bypass dual carriageway (excavation of an unrecorded Neolithic hilltop enclosure).

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much TransportNI has spent on fuel in each of the last three financial years.

(AQW 35956/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Details of expenditure on fuel, in each of the last three years, are set out in the table below:

2011-12 £k	2012-13 £k	2013-14 £k
2,538	2,676	2,409

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how much his Department has spent on fuel in each of the last three financial years.

(AQW 35957/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The amount spent by my Department, including TransportNI, on fuel in each of the last three years is provided below.

Financial Year	Spend on Fuel £000's
2011-12	2,543
2012-13	2,681
2013-14	2,414

Mr Easton asked the Minister for Regional Development how many new sewage pumping stations are required.

(AQW 35983/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: The need for new pumping stations arises for two main reasons:-

The rationalisation of wastewater treatment by replacing a treatment works with a pumping station and pumping effluent away for treatment at another location; or

Under certain circumstances where a developer requests that a new development be connected to the public sewerage system. Generally NI Water tries to accommodate this through the provision of a gravity sewer but there are occasions where this is not possible and a pumping station has to be constructed.

In its Business Plan submission for the PC15 period (2015 to 2021) NI Water currently plans to construct eight new pumping stations as part of its rationalisation of treatment works.

The provision of new pumping stations to serve new developments is market driven and it is not possible to estimate the number of pumping stations required.

Mr Agnew asked the Minister for Regional Development whether (i) recent; or (ii) anticipated future cuts will have any impact on the provision of the 60 Plus SmartPass.

(AQW 36102/11-15)

Mr Kennedy: Free travel on public transport for the over 60s and other vulnerable groups is an Executive commitment in the current Programme for Government. It contributes in a very positive way to reducing social isolation for older people and has played an important part in revitalising Public Transport. I fully support the Northern Ireland Concessionary Fares Scheme, which includes the 60+ Scheme and will continue to argue strongly for it to be retained and adequately funded.

There are around 62,000 active 60+ smart card holders. Last year some 3 million journeys were undertaken by those card holders.

I argued strongly in the June monitoring round that the necessary funding was provided to allay current uncertainty and widespread public concern in regard to the Northern Ireland Concessionary Fares Scheme. Some funding was provided but this was not at the level requested. I will continue to argue for the full funding to be provided this year and as we move forward.

Department for Social Development

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the loans advanced by his Department through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in (i) Northern Ireland; and (ii) East Londonderry, since 1 April 2013.

(AQW 35265/11-15)

Mr McCausland (The Minister for Social Development): The following loans have been advanced by DSD's Housing Division through the Financial Transactions Capital Scheme in Northern Ireland since 1 April 2013:

UK Get Britain Building initiative	Pilot rent to purchase initiative	Pilot empty homes initiative	Total £
7,200,000	5,000,000	3,700,000	15,900,000

The above amounts were advanced to Housing Associations. As Housing Associations may utilise funding across Northern Ireland, the Department does not hold information on the amounts used specifically in East Londonderry.

Mr Spratt asked the Minister for Social Development how many (i) Housing Executive and (ii) registered housing association properties have been sold at a discount under the Right to Buy scheme in each council area, in each of the last five years.

(AQW 35676/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information is not available in the format requested because the Housing Executive has advised that it does not collate details of houses sold under the Right to Buy scheme by Council Area. The Housing Executive has however provided details of the number of its properties sold to sitting tenants under the Right to Buy scheme by NIHE District Office area, as shown in Table 1 below.

Housing Associations have provided the figures regarding their properties sold under the Right to Buy scheme by Council area, as shown in Table 2 below.

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister for Social Development why the Union Flag was not flown from Banbridge Social Security Office on 17 July 2014.
(AQW 35700/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister issue a directive to NICS Departments in November of each year which includes a list of the designated days in the next calendar year on which the Union flag must be flown. 17 July 2014 was not a designated day on which the Union flag must be flown.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister for Social Development how many Comprehensive Development Schemes have been delivered in the last five years, broken down by constituency.
(AQW 35719/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Comprehensive Development Schemes (CDS) comprises a process of land acquisition and disposal to secure the better planning and regeneration of selected areas of towns and cities. They enable the Department to unlock development opportunities by releasing underused or derelict land and buildings.

The numbers of schemes delivered for the last five years (09/10 – 13/14) broken down by parliamentary constituency is detailed in the table attached.

Comprehensive Development Schemes* (2009/10 to 2013/14)

Mr McCallister asked the Minister for Social Development how much his Department has spent on Comprehensive Development Schemes in the last five years, broken down by constituency.

(AQW 35720/11-15)

Mr McCausland: A Comprehensive Development Scheme comprises a process of land acquisition and disposal to secure the better planning and regeneration of selected areas of towns and cities. They enable the Department to unlock development opportunities by releasing underused or derelict land and buildings.

Departmental expenditure on Comprehensive Development Schemes in the last five years (09/10 – 13/14) broken down by parliamentary constituency is detailed in the table below.

Comprehensive Development Schemes (2009/10 to 2013/14)

Constituency	Expenditure	Constituency	Expenditure

North Antrim	0	West Tyrone	0

Mr McCallister asked the Minister for Social Development how many Environmental Improvement Schemes have been delivered in the last five years, broken down by constituency.

(AQW 35722/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Environmental Improvement Schemes (EIS) are used to improve the appearance of our towns and cities and to regenerate areas by restoring confidence and attracting new investment.

The numbers of EIS in the last five years (09/10 – 13/14) by parliamentary constituency is detailed in the table below.

Environmental Improvement Schemes – (2009/10 to 2013/14)

Mr McCallister asked the Minister for Social Development how much his Department has spent on Environmental Improvement Schemes in the last five years, broken down by constituency.

(AQW 35723/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Environmental Improvement Schemes (EIS) are used to improve the appearance of our towns and cities and to regenerate areas by restoring confidence and attracting new investment.

Departmental expenditure on EIS for the last five years (09/10 – 13/14) by parliamentary constituency is detailed in the table below.

Environmental Improvement Schemes (09/10 – 13/14)

Constituency	Expenditure	Constituency	Expenditure
East Antrim	£1,753,531	North Belfast	£4,821,546

North Antrim	£595,293	West Tyrone	£585,000

* The Belfast Streets Ahead project is largely situated within the South Belfast constituency.

Mr McCallister asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the Environmental Improvement Schemes funded in South Down, in the last five years.

(AQW 35736/11-15)

Mr McCausland: To date my Department has invested funding of £3,547,638.75 in taking forward 4 Environmental Improvement Schemes in South Down. The funding relates to the following schemes:

- Kilkeel town centre £1,298,550
- Downpatrick town centre £2,100,000
- Downpatrick Market Lane £81,700
- Warrenpoint development costs £69,398.75

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development how many neighbourhood wardens are employed by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive and to detail their (a) location; and (b) function.

(AQW 35766/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Housing Executive advises that it currently employs 60 Neighbourhood Officers throughout Northern Ireland. The table below details the number of Neighbourhood Officers based across 31 locations.

The Housing Executive explains that the roles and responsibilities that its Neighbourhood Officers are required to undertake are tailored to the local needs of individual estates, but would be drawn from the following areas: -

Estate Management

- To monitor and identify abandoned properties to local office.
- To monitor void properties and advise local office.
- To monitor and clean communal areas. This will include cleaning duties, Health and Safety checks and assisting maintenance staff as well as tenants.
- To liaise and report repairs to local office. Work will include visits to elderly or vulnerable tenants to assist in accurate reporting of repairs etc.
- To undertake accompanied viewing of 'difficult to let' properties and to assist in securing occupation. To assist in the promotion of the local area including property located within the area. To provide advice on redecoration assistance, should it be required.
- To assist in the provision of an 'on the spot' housing management service and provide advice on Housing Executive housing policies and procedures to tenants.
- To visit with elderly or vulnerable tenants and be able to identify any other agencies which may assist tenants. This would include reference to Health Trust staff, regarding individuals released from care, or Social Workers or PBNI involved in youth work etc.

Environmental Management

- To monitor the condition of open spaces and advise local offices.
- Assist Environmental Health Officers where illegal dumping is an issue (especially if tenants are responsible), and to advise local office.
- To ensure that abandoned cars are removed promptly and maintain accurate records of all incidences and the action taken.
- To work with grounds maintenance and local office staff in addressing environmental issues.
- To provide information on land use on estates and provide a link between communities and the Housing Executive.
- To assist in the identification of planned schemes as well as response grounds maintenance issues.

Estate Security

- To act on local information provided on alleged anti-social behaviour. To make initial contact with tenants, advising of allegations and possible breach of tenancy action. To produce a report on each incident and report incidents to local office management.
- To liaise with the police (where appropriate) on issues of anti-social behaviour and develop a working relationship with community safety officers.
- To work with local communities in addressing anti-social behaviour on the estate.
- To keep accurate records of all cases of anti-social behaviour.
- To assist with dealing with localised neighbourhood nuisance.

Community Development

- To assist the Housing Executive's representatives at residents/community association meetings, deal with tenant queries, produce progress reports on Neighbourhood Officer activity and provide feedback to tenants on general Housing Executive activity on estates.
- To cooperate with community representatives on a range of local issues.
- To provide assistance/information for local manager (nominee) who attends inter-agency meetings etc.
- To cooperate in community development through liaison with the statutory, voluntary and community sector.

Neighbourhood Officers may also undertake other 'scheduled' or 'unscheduled' tasks daily. Scheduled tasks may range from cleaning duties to the monitoring and inspection of vacant properties. Unscheduled tasks would include housing management visits, requests for certain tasks to be carried out and attendance at meetings.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development to detail (i) the number of applications for social housing in East Londonderry in each of the last three years; and (ii) the average time spent on the social housing waiting list.
(AQW 35830/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information is not available in the format requested because due to a recording system change to the Housing Executive's Housing Management System in July 2011 the figures for 2011/12 are not available.

However, the table below provides: -

- details of the total applicants on the waiting list for East Londonderry at 31 March 2013 and 31 March 2014
- the mean average month/median average month calculations.

Mr P Ramsey asked the Minister for Social Development what proposals are being investigated to bridge the £758m investment gap in the Housing Executive landlord function.
(AQW 35834/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Bridging a £758m investment gap presents clear challenges. The Social Housing Reform Programme through its landlord project is embarking on a detailed analysis of the current and future investment needs for the housing stock to determine these future requirements in more detail. The programme in its development of options for delivery of Landlord functions will seek to address how future requirements will be met. In the meantime I will continue to work with the NI Housing Executive to address the current pressing investment needs including the development of an asset management strategy and strategies around tower blocks and non traditional builds.

Mr Copeland asked the Minister for Social Development to detail the total number of new social housing units constructed in each of the last ten years, broken down by (a) number of bedrooms; and (b) local council area.
(AQW 35866/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The information is not available in the format requested as the Housing Executive advises that the data is not readily available for New Build completions by the number of bedrooms, but has instead provided figures for New Build starts. The Housing Executive further advises that the number of bedrooms is only available from 2007-2008 onwards.

The information is set out in Tables 1 and 2.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development what communication his Department has had with landlords of privately rented properties which qualify for the Affordable Warmth Scheme, to ensure that they are registered with the Landlord Registration scheme, and give consent for energy efficiency improvements to be completed for which they must contribute towards costs.

(AQW 35914/11-15)

Mr McCausland: My Department launched a public consultation exercise on 17 February 2014 on proposals for a new Affordable Warmth Scheme. It also held 6 public consultation events across Northern Ireland in week commencing 3 March 2014. These events were held in Belfast, Enniskillen, Londonderry, Ballymena, Newry and Coleraine with a total of 100 people attending those events including a number of landlords.

The public consultation "From Fuel Poverty to Achieving Affordable Warmth" included consultation about landlord contribution and registering with the Landlord Registration Scheme. It is a legal requirement for all landlords who let properties under a private tenancy in Northern Ireland to register with the Landlord Registration Scheme. Landlords with an existing tenancy must register with the Landlord Registration Scheme before 25 February 2015.

My Department included the Landlord Association of Northern Ireland in its public consultation by sending it a copy of the public consultation document. Whilst the Landlord Association of Northern Ireland did not formally respond to the public consultation; it has published the Public Consultation "From Fuel Poverty to Achieving Affordable Warmth" on its website.

My Department received a total of 66 responses to the public consultation. Of those who responded to the public consultation about the landlord contribution, 40% agreed that landlords should contribute, 25% were unsure, 20% disagreed and 15% did not specify their preference. Landlords have a responsibility for maintaining the energy efficiency of their property and my Department will monitor the uptake of the Scheme amongst privately rented properties to ensure tenants are not disadvantaged.

The Affordable Warmth Scheme is based on the householder's gross income which must be less than £20,000. Once the householder satisfies the income criteria, the Housing Executive will check if the landlord is registered with my Department's Landlord Registration Scheme and will seek the landlord's permission before commencing any installation work. Once the energy efficiency measures have been installed and Building Control approval received, the Housing Executive will pay the landlord the 50% contribution towards the measures.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development for his assessment of the Coleraine Education Project.

(AQW 35942/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Coleraine Education Community Project, funded by DSD's Neighbourhood Renewal Programme has successfully met its targets and has demonstrated improvements in both Key Stage 1 and Key Stage 2 Literacy and Numeracy. Attendance rates in all the primary schools across the sectors have improved by 1.6%. In the post-primary sector the number of pupils remaining in education at Year 13 has increased well beyond the final year target by just over 10%.

The project has therefore assisted in contributing to the overall objectives of the Neighbourhood Renewal Programme and the tackling of deprivation particularly in the Coleraine neighbourhood renewal areas.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development for an update on the future support of the Coleraine Education Project.

(AQW 35944/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Coleraine Education Community Project is currently in receipt of funding through the Department of Education's Community Education Initiatives Programme. This funding is due to cease on 31 October 2014.

It was hoped that funding support could be found for the project from the Neighbourhood Renewal Investment Fund to extend it to 31 March 2015. However, as you will be aware, we are in the midst of a difficult financial environment and as the Neighbourhood Renewal budget is currently fully committed, I am unable to provide any funding for this project.

There is always a possibility that this situation will change and if so, the Coleraine Education Community Project will be considered for further funding support.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development to detail any recent changes to funding commitments made by his Department for Neighbourhood Renewal Projects in East Londonderry.

(AQW 35972/11-15)

Mr McCausland: There have been no recent changes to funding commitments made by my Department for Neighbourhood Renewal Projects in East Londonderry. All projects currently in receipt of Neighbourhood Renewal funding will continue to do so, in line with their Contracts for Funding, up to 31 March 2015.

Ms Sugden asked the Minister for Social Development whether departmental funding for Neighbourhood Renewal Projects in East Londonderry will continue in the immediate future, particularly funding for the Coleraine Education Community Project.

(AQW 35973/11-15)

Mr McCausland: All projects currently in receipt of Neighbourhood Renewal funding will continue to do so, in line with their Contracts for Funding, up to 31 March 2015.

The Coleraine Education Community Project is currently in receipt of funding through the Department of Education's Community Education Initiatives Programme. This funding is due to cease on 31 October 2014.

It was hoped that funding support could be found for the project from the Neighbourhood Renewal Investment Fund to extend it to 31 March 2015. However, as you will be aware, we are in the midst of a difficult financial environment and as the Neighbourhood Renewal budget is currently fully committed, I am unable to provide any funding for this project.

There is always a possibility that this situation will change and if so, the Coleraine Education Community Project will be considered for further funding support.

Mrs Overend asked the Minister for Social Development for an update on the Magherafelt Public Realm Scheme; and to detail the level of funds committed for the scheme.

(AQW 36058/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Work on the Magherafelt Public Realm Scheme began following the launch of the Magherafelt Masterplan in July 2011. A high level design and economic appraisal has been completed. In May this year, I approved funding of up to £90,000 to bring the scheme up to detailed design. Since then Magherafelt District Council have completed a Pre-Qualification Questionnaire exercise and issued the Invitation to Tender Documents to a select list of consultants to progress the scheme to a detailed design. When the detailed design has been completed my Department and the Mid Ulster Council will have to assess the availability of funding to allow the project to proceed to construction stage.

Mr Swann asked the Minister for Social Development, pursuant to AQW 35448/11-15, to detail (i) how many houses have been completed; and (ii) whether there are people living in the houses.

(AQW 36059/11-15)

Mr McCausland: None of the houses listed in the answer to AQW 35448/11-15 have been completed.

Mr Weir asked the Minister for Social Development what action his Department is taking to maximise the uptake of social welfare entitlements in North Down.

(AQW 36074/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Through the network of 35 local and centralised offices, my Department provides information and advice on a full range of social security benefits as part of its daily business to make people aware of their entitlements.

In addition, since 2005, the Department has delivered Benefit Uptake Programmes targeting difficult to reach customers such as older people, people with disabilities and people with caring responsibilities. These programmes cover all Northern Ireland council areas and have included direct targeting, mailshots, Outreach services, partnership working and the "Make the Call" advertising campaign. As a result, over £67million of additional annual benefit and arrears has been generated. In the 2013/14 Benefit Uptake Programme, nearly 2,500 people from North Down constituency were offered a benefit entitlement check.

A breakdown of the annual benefit and arrears generated through the Benefit Uptake Programme at Council level is only available from 2010. Since then, £34m has been generated and, the proportion for the North Down constituency, which covers North Down Borough Council area, is over £1.4m

Mr Lyttle asked the Minister for Social Development what departmental services he has made available to the public via the post office network.

(AQW 36092/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Currently 152,500 claimants have a range of social security benefits paid into the Post Office Card account and claimants can draw their money out at their local Post Office or at an Automated Teller Machine, where available.

Mr Allister asked the Minister for Social Development what funding his Department, or any of its arm's-length bodies, provided to the Ardoyne community festival held in August 2014.

(AQW 36204/11-15)

Mr McCausland: The Department for Social Development, nor its arms length bodies; did not provide any funding to the Ardoyne Community Festival in August 2014

Mr McKay asked the Minister for Social Development what work his Department has carried out in relation to making Wi-Fi available throughout Ballycastle.

(AQW 36303/11-15)

Mr McCausland: Wi-Fi provision within towns is delivered directly by Councils and may be eligible for financial support from the Department if the scheme supports the revitalisation of town centres. To date the Department has not been asked by Moyle District Council to provide any assistance towards making Wi-Fi available in Ballycastle.

Any request for funding contributions to support these schemes would be subject to a satisfactory business case and sufficient resources being available in the Departmental budget.

Northern Ireland Assembly Commission

Mr Flanagan asked the Assembly Commission whether any consideration has been given to including a stipulation in any future procurement contracts that all employees of successful tendering companies be paid at a rate no less than the living wage.

(AQW 35423/11-15)

Mrs Cochrane (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): The Northern Ireland Assembly Commission has not adopted a policy of making the living wage a mandatory condition of contracts at this time. The Commission utilises a series of contractual terms such as working hours, minimum wage, health and safety, etc. to enhance a socially responsible approach to contracting.

However, the case to introduce the living wage as a minimum requirement in contracts is complex. It is worth noting that the Commission's procurement activities amount to approximately £7.5m per annum. By way of background, there are presently only 4 Northern Ireland based companies who pay the living wage (according to the Living Wage Data - September 14). Therefore, adopting a living wage policy has the potential to rule out local suppliers from Assembly contracting.

The Commission, in common with many other public sector bodies, utilises large UK-wide procurement frameworks. As these frameworks were established without reference to the living wage, the adoption of the living wage as a contract condition would have the effect of removing these frameworks as sourcing solutions for the Commission.

The Commission will, of course, continue to focus upon the achievement of value for money and placing sustainability at the core of its procurement activities. We will maintain our focus on fair and equitable conditions of contract including, where appropriate, contract conditions relating to salaries.

Mr Allister asked the Assembly Commission what assessment has been conducted in respect of any health risk posed by unwrapped mints being offered within the Assembly Chamber in circumstances where they can be handled by multiple members.

(AQW 35824/11-15)

Mr P Ramsey (The Representative of the Assembly Commission): We can confirm that no assessment has been conducted in respect of any health risk posed by unwrapped mints being offered within the Assembly Chamber due to soft mints being classified as low risk food.

Revised Written Answers

Department of the Environment

In this Bound Volume, page WA 43 please replace AQW 35116/11-15 with:

Approvals and Refusals

Mr Agnew asked the Minister of the Environment, pursuant to AQW 33267/11-15, how many of the 103 applications reviewed have been issued as (i) approvals; and (ii) refusals.

(AQW 35116/11-15)

Mr Durkan (The Minister of the Environment): Further to my response dated 9 July 2014, I can now advise that from the year 2010- 2012 (the period of review) the Department issued 100 Planning Approvals and three Planning Refusals.

Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety

In Bound Volume 96, page WA 38 please replace AQW 33961/11-15 with:

Renal Unit

Mrs Dobson asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety how many patients have been repatriated from consultants at the Renal Unit at the Belfast City Hospital to Renal Consultants in other Health and Social Care Trusts in each month of the last two years; and how many were (i) by patient request; and (ii) at the instigation of the consultant.

(AQW 33961/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): Since the initial response to AQW 33961/11-15, Belfast Trust has completed a manual review of all patients who have attended the Belfast City Hospital from April 2012 until March 2014.

In total, 101 renal transplant recipients have been repatriated to other units from Belfast City hospital (BCH).

This is always by agreement of all parties (patient, BCH consultant, non-BCH consultant).

In Bound Volume 96, page WA 39 please replace AQW 34015/11-15 with:

ITH Pharma Supplies

Mr Swann asked the Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety whether ITH Pharma supplies either total parenteral nutrition or parenteral nutrition to any Health and Social Care Trust.

(AQW 34015/11-15)

Mr Poots (The Minister of Health, Social Services and Public Safety): I have been advised that of the five Health and Social Care Trusts, four purchase adult parenteral nutrition products produced by ITH Pharma either directly from them or indirectly through a third party. One Trust has advised that they also purchase paediatric parenteral nutrition products from ITH Pharma.

All the Trusts have advised that they do not purchase neonatal parenteral nutrition products either directly or indirectly from ITH Pharma.

Serious Case Review

Lord Morrow asked the Minister of Justice, pursuant to AQW 34383/11-15, whether he will specifically address the point on the approved residence being in an area of families with young children, and given the victim in the case was a child of the neighbourhood to detail whether (i) this point was considered prior to the approval of residence and due cognisance given to the offender's previous behaviour and targets; (ii) he will amend risk assessments in these instances taking on board vulnerability of potential victims; and (iii) he will tighten residence criteria to remove or reduce reoffending in similar instances. (AQW 35113/11-15)

Mr Ford (The Minister of Justice):

Part (i)

In any case of this type the consideration of any address for approval will be conducted by the Designated Risk Manager which may be Probation or PSNI. In this case, PSNI as the Designated Risk Manager, considered the address. Factors taken into account in considering an address are offending history, risk factors and proximity to educational establishments. Any proposed address that is in close proximity to a former victim or their family will not be approved.

All agencies involved in the approval of addresses in Northern Ireland face challenges regarding location – particularly in terms of proximity to educational establishments. The vast majority of urban residential areas will have families present to some degree.

Parts (ii) and (iii)

The independent reviewer in this case found that the agencies involved had discharged their responsibilities fully and conscientiously in the management of the offender in the community, including the careful assessment of proposed accommodation prior to approval being granted.

Additionally, the reviewer concluded that given the thoroughness of supervision in the period leading up to the offence it is unlikely that any different assessment of the risk posed could have resulted in different actions being taken which might have prevented reoffending in this case.

Agencies involved in Public Protection recognise that access to suitable accommodation is a significant factor in preventing re-offending and reducing the risk that sex offenders present within the community. Each case is carefully considered and decisions regarding the suitability of accommodation are made following consultation between a number of agencies. The location and type of accommodation will always be determined by the individual offender's circumstances.

The Question being put, the Motion was carried without division.

The Deputy Speaker (Mr Beggs) took the Chair.

4.2 Motion – Postal Charges

Proposed:

That this Assembly expresses concern at the continuing existence of barriers to greater north-south economic development; fully recognises the importance of a reliable, affordable and effective postal delivery service, particularly to micro and small businesses; further recognises the findings in the recent Ofcom Communications Market Report whereby 47 per cent of people questioned felt that the current costs of posting a letter across the border represented poor value for money; further expresses concern at the significant additional cost differential and time delay to deliver post intended for across the border; calls for all companies and agencies involved in postal delivery to introduce a single pricing structure for mail being delivered anywhere on the island of Ireland; and further calls for the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to raise this matter at a forthcoming meeting of the North South Ministerial Council (NSMC) when it meets in Trade & Business Sectoral Format and to use the NSMC to exert maximum pressure on the above companies and agencies.

*Mr P Flanagan
Ms M Fearon*

4.3 Amendment

Proposed:

Leave out all after 'small businesses;' and insert:

'expresses concern at the threat to the viability of rural post offices that direct delivery competition presents and the significant additional cost differential and time delay to deliver cross border mail; and calls on the Minister of Enterprise, Trade and Investment to assist businesses by working in conjunction with her North South Ministerial Council colleagues and her counterparts in the Westminster Government to ensure the long term viability of a universal postal service which incorporates a value for money cross border service.'

3. Private Members' Business

3.1 Motion – Investigation of Allegations of Abuse at Kincora Boys' Home

Proposed:

That this Assembly notes with deep concern the allegation of sexual abuse that took place in Kincora Boys' Home during the 1970s and 1980s; further notes allegations that senior politicians, military personnel, paramilitary figures and businessmen from Northern Ireland and Great Britain were involved both in the commissioning and subsequent cover-up of the abuse, as well as allegations that members of the intelligence service were complicit in a cover-up of this scandal; believes that the nature and seriousness of the allegations, especially that MI5 were involved in a cover-up, means that this cannot be adequately considered in any way other than a Westminster Government-led inquiry; and urges the Home Secretary to include Kincora Boys' Home in the inquiry by Fiona Woolf as the most appropriate means of achieving truth and justice.

*Mr C Lyttle
