Subject: RSE Inquiry: WRN NI Report on Approaches to Decisions Regarding Gender Decisions Regarding Distressed or Questioning Children and Young People in Schools

You don't often get email from ni_wrn@womensrights.network. Learn why this is important

Good morning

We understand that you will be discussing the effectiveness, inclusivity and alignment of current Relationship and Sexuality Education (RSE) teaching in schools at Committee today.

Our apologies that this is arriving so close to the session but we only became aware of this consultation very recently, and wanted to ensure that we had provided some of our insight ahead of this briefing session.

Whilst this is not a formal submission of evidence, we will shortly be launching the WRN NI Report on Approaches to Decisions Regarding Gender Decisions Regarding Distressed or Questioning Children and Young People in Schools. We will send this to you as soon as this is finalised, which will be before the end of next week.

If there is the opportunity, we would also be happy to provide written and oral evidence to the Committee.

In the interim, we thought it would be useful (although we appreciate extensive) background material to consider.

Gender Ideology

When considering education on gender identity, we would direct you to the following resources, although this list is not exhaustive:

- Safe Schools Alliance: Safe Schools Alliance UK is a grassroots organisation which campaigns to uphold child safeguarding in schools.
- Transgender Trend: a UK organisation advocating for an evidence-based social and clinical approach towards children who self-identify as transgender, and science-based teaching in schools.
- Cass Review: Independent Review of gender identity services for children and young people. When families/carers are making decisions about social transition of pre-pubertal children, services should ensure that they can be seen as early as possible by a clinical professional with relevant experience.
- Note should also be taken of the implications for schools and colleges of the Cass Review
- Asleep at the Wheel: Policy Exchange Examination of Gender and Safeguarding in School
- Project Stark: a blog casingt a spotlight on instances of indoctrination to help put a stop to it.
- Genspect: an international, non-partisan, interdisciplinary organization committed to promoting a healthy, evidence-based approach to sex and gender. This article specifically is of import.

Porn

Culture Framed is an excellent resource on the dangers of porn, including such articles as this one on Pornified Media on Youth. Of particular note is the porn-critical sex education curriculum which is completely free and contains teaching modules, lesson plans, and digital media literacy sessions.

A particular concern we would highlight is on the teaching of any "safe" strangulation in RSE programs. Culture Framed has been culminating research on the rise of this dangerous behavior among teens and have published articles and factsheets for your review. Porn encourages strangulation and promotes "choking," which is considered "non-fatal strangulation" in the medical profession. The neurological consequences can include unconsciousness, brain injury, seizure, motor and speech disorders, memory loss, and post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD).

This article is useful in understanding the degree of free choice women and girls in particular feel about engaging in these practices.

Any guidance to school children which attempts to inform how to "safely" engage in this or any other violent sexual practices is directly akin to recommending "safely" using illegal applications for controlled substances.

Sex Work

For absolute completeness, and mainly because some universities have published student sex work toolkits, RSE material should not glamorise or normalise prostitution, or any of the gateways to it such as Only Fans. This article is useful in explaining why sex work is not work.

ABOUT WRN NI

The women of WRN - a nationwide network of cross community, grassroots groups - are committed to free speech and to putting the sex based needs of women and girls first.

We started out in Northern Ireland in 2022 as a small group of volunteers who were concerned that the reality of biology was not consistently prioritised in Northern Irish policy, legislation and practice. This was despite being fortunate enough to have a vast network of organisations in NI with the same overriding aims and goals – protecting women and women's rights, and with huge successes already under their belt.

As a volunteer-led grassroots network with limited resources we will strive to make ourselves available to engage in future consultation on this, or any other policy changes which affect women and girls (of whichever age, ethnic origin, disability, religion, social background and sexual orientation).

Kind regards,
