Dear Peter,

Thank you for your letter of 10th March 2014 to Billy Crawford via email, seeking a contribution from the Department in relation to the Inquiry into Inclusion in the Arts of Working Class Communities.

The Department for Social Development recognises the benefits that the Arts can bring to the personal development of individuals, as well as the benefits at a community level in bringing people together and promoting cultural citizenship.

The Department does not specifically have programmes that seek to increase the inclusion in the arts of working class communities. It does however through its Volunteering Strategy and Neighbourhood Renewal Strategy support a number of activities that encourage the arts in areas of disadvantage. The attached Annex provides further details and some examples of projects/initiatives supported by the Department.

I trust the Committee will find this information helpful.

Yours sincerely

John Johnston

Volunteering Strategy

One of the priorities within this strategy is to “Ensure that everyone has an opportunity to volunteer and that volunteering is representative of the diversity of the community.” With specific reference to funding being directed at supporting volunteering in areas of deprivation, it promotes inclusivity for volunteers and offers access to arts based project opportunities through a number of pathways, including:

- The Volunteering Innovation Fund
- The Volunteering Small Grants Programme
- The Volunteering Infrastructure Fund

Volunteering in the arts has been evidenced through a number of DSD supported projects, with a primary example being the Londonderry/Derry UK City of Culture 2013. This was a major event which celebrated the arts across all mediums from performing to visual and media arts. The year long event had some 633 active volunteers taking part.

Neighbourhood Renewal Strategy

This long term (7 – 10 year) Strategy targets those communities throughout Northern Ireland suffering the highest levels of deprivation. Neighbourhood Renewal is a cross government Strategy which aims to bring together the work of all Government Departments in partnership with local people to tackle disadvantage and deprivation in all aspects of everyday life.

Through this Strategy, funding may be considered where a priority need is identified within local Neighbourhood Renewal Action Plans and where resources are available.
